For several days local papers have hinted at many things in connection with the two meetings held by big photoplay men here this week. They have expressed opinions that the producers are banding together to form plans for leaving Los Angeles and locating their studios elsewhere where more gracious and welcome treatment will be given them. That was not the case, however, for Mr. Jesse L. Lasky denied it. Another rumor was that the film men were forming an independent board of trade to fight the charges of immorality in the studios brought against the film people last week by a minister. This, also, was not the case, when the World man interviewed Mr. Lasky and others immediately after the second meeting.

That the session was secret was proved by the fact that we got busy on the phone at 8.30, and could not even talk to anyone to get details as to when the story would be told. We waited patiently for two hours until the big man had finished, then we got this story:

"The meeting was held to form an association," said Mr. Lasky, "and it has been named The Motion Picture Producers Association. The object is for the mutual protection and general betterment of film conditions in this vicinity. We adopted a resolution inviting all the Eastern manufacturers to join the association.

"In a few weeks we will establish a permanent office here, with an active secretary to attend to the business that may come before the association.

"There will be a third meeting on the evening of January 24, 1916, here at the Alexandria hotel at 8 o'clock."

When questioned as to what the immediate cause of the meeting was, and what the association intended doing to start action, Mr. Lasky said that "we have decided upon several things, but I am not at liberty to say just what we have done, or what we will do. There may be more to announce after the next meeting, when we will elect officers."

H. O. Davis, pilot of the Universal coast studios, was temporary chairman at this meeting. The following were present, or were represented by prominent business men from the studios: Jesse L. Lasky, Frank A. Garbutt, H. Pathe Lehrman, Thomas H. Ince, John Blackwood, Arthur Wright, Mack Sennett, George Stout, W. R. Sheehan, Harry Leonhardt, E. D. Horkheimer, H. M. Horkheimer, Norman Manning, H. O. Davis, George A. Kann, D. W. Griffith, Frank E. Woods, W. E. Keefe, J. A. Barry, Thomas Persons, G. C. Parsons, Captain Wilbert Melville, Thomas Dixon, Jr., P. G. Lynch, D. Whiting, Jesse Robins and representatives of the Kalem.

Producers Started Something.

When the manufacturers of the Pacific Coast banded together, as related at as much length as possible, in the foregoing story, they probably did not realize the action that they started, for now the many prominent business men and city officials have gotten together and formed the Motion Picture Conservation Association, and having as its object the securing of mutual co-operation between the film producers and civic interests of Los Angeles.

Officers were elected from the number of representative business men present. The list follows: W. W. Mines, president; Dr. A. J. Scott and Mrs. E. R. Brainerd, vice presidents; A. W. Kinney, secretary; Mrs. R. W. Richardson, treasurer; Executive Committee: John Blackwood, William H. Clune, Frank Garbutt, Paul Powell, L. E. Behymer, Mel Adler, Herbert Mizzy and A. D. Houghton. This executive board was selected by a nominating committee, composed of A. D. Houghton, Mrs. E. R. Brainerd and Philip D. Wilson, appointed by the temporary chairman of the meeting, Dr. A. J. Scott, and elected by those present, with the provision that further appointments to the executive committee be made as is deemed advisable.

It was further defined as the sense of the meeting that civic and industrial organizations be urged to give their support to the film industry and assurances of their appreciation of the work done by the industry in this locality.

That the meeting meant something to both sides is shown by the fact that the most prominent persons in the film business were present to confer with the citizens.

D. W. Griffith, Jesse L. Lasky and others talked to the Mayor and other city officials.

The gist of the affair is summed from what the film men said:

"While we do not claim that all pictures are perfect, we do claim that more than 99 per cent. of the pictures are fit to be seen by anybody, and that the chemical trace of 1 per cent. of the pictures that might be deemed objectionable can be taken care of by the ordinary, common laws of your city, and that they are an effective remedy in most cases against the showing of improper pictures if they exist.

"We are not accused of specific acts and no legal evidence produced, but the entire industry and everybody connected with it is held up to public view as though we were all immoral degenerates. All we ask is that these matters be handled according to law and that if there were any such cases as the public is led to believe, that the evidence be laid before the grand jury and that the guilty party be punished, according to due process of law. As business men, we would welcome this, for we know we cannot continue our business successfully in immoral surroundings.

"It is the motion picture industry which has kept Los Angeles from feeling the effects of the European war because it has been pouring money by the millions into the hands of your citizens and taking nothing away in return.

"We should be permitted to follow our vocations free from petty regulations. The people should not encourage nor permit the establishment of censors' boards at the instance of busy-bodies afflicted with the meddlers' itch. The judgment of the National Board of Censorship should be sufficient. Up to the present time it has rendered very good service and is almost universally recognized throughout the United States as being a sufficient safeguard for the public morals in matters of motion pictures.

"The lawmakers of Los Angeles have been led astray and have been induced to pass ordinances to interfere with the exhibition of our pictures and have been used to arouse public curiosity in certain productions.

"We have no desire to move. We ask no favors and we pay cash. We ask for our rights as citizens. We ask for courteous treatment, in return for which we give you obedience to your laws and a respect for the rights of other citizens. We ask that your newspapers tell the truth about our people. We don't wish anything covered up, but we do object to our directors being accused of making improper proposals to every woman who applies for a position.

"There is not an industry anywhere in the United States or in the world, for that matter, that pays salaries to compare with those paid in our industry.

Mr. Griffith, in his inimitable style, told his views, saying:

"If I had anything to say concerning the object of this meeting and our industry, there is little left. But even if we are not able to voice our feelings as an orator might, we motion picture people do feel, and as keenly as you, and we have been hurt, deeply hurt.

"But despite that hurt we have forgiven everybody and are only too ready and willing, even anxious to do anything that will send the fame of our beautiful Los Angeles to the knowledge of every man, woman and child we can reach. And I believe we reach half the world.

"Los Angeles has so much that is wonderful to be proud of that we are ready to do all we may to spread her name over the universe. We love Los Angeles just as you love her. The first story I ever wrote was about your beautiful San Gabriel Mission, the most wonderful spot in all Southern California."

The information that San Francisco and San Diego are bidding strongly for a removal of several of the larger picture concerns to those cities was let loose here this week.

"Yes," said Mack Sennett of the Keystone, "San Francisco not only is bidding for our plant, but she also has agreed to build a studio for us at her own expense."

It was stated that similar offers had been made to D. W. Griffith and to H. O. Davis of the Universal. Frank E. Woods of the Fine Arts studios and Jesse L. Lasky likewise have received inquiries from the same sources.

"Los Angeles will find that there are any number of cities that are making determined bids for this vast business," said Mr. Lasky, "San Francisco is one of them. We have investigated the source whence these offers came and we find them most reliable."

Frank E. Woods, manager of production for the Fine Arts studios, said: "To me it seems unthinkable that the business interests of Southern California will allow any other city to make a determined bid for the business of the film companies. We distribute close to $35,000,000 annually in and around Los Angeles and this item is worth fighting for. It is considerable in excess of the total capitalization of all your banks.

"Los Angeles does not seem to feel her responsibility in the matter. Every day we find ourselves called upon to face first one hardship and then another, and it is a well-known fact that the industry does not receive the encouragement that is due it."

"There is every reason why Los Angeles should try to retain every studio she can lay siege to," said H. O. Davis, director general of Universal City. "She is the logical center for the industry's home and instead of permitting the studio heads to consider outside offers she should make every effort to induce new companies to move their studios here."

It was freely admitted by all concerned that the only reason offers from other cities are being entertained is resentment because of recent attacks on the film industry and tactics pursued by some of the Southland's business interests and because of the censor board's continuance in Los Angeles.

The ultimate result, then is, that the city will take the moving picture industry under the shadow of its big guns, love, cherish, and protect it, and make its newspapers create a little board of censors to eliminate slurring remarks by persons who make remarks, oust the censors forever, and then boost the business.

On the other hand the film men are going to put "Made in Los Angeles" on the majority of the films—co-operate with the city—and make many more happy pictures here.

At the time of mailing, a late paper ran the following story, so it is easy to see that the film men have "started something."

"An answer to charges that conditions in the studios of Los Angeles had a tendency toward immorality will be given by Rev. Whitcomb Brougher of Temple Baptist church in an address he will deliver at the Venice auditorium Sunday afternoon. Dr. Brougher will tell of the good that motion picture actors and actresses have done, and will throw light on their home life and their religion, speaking in their favor."

This is very gratifying and will no doubt do great good.

Another shows even more "action" on the part of citizens throwing light on the extent and importance of the motion picture business in Los Angeles, prominent film producers will address the Los Angeles Realty Board at a luncheon tomorrow. Jesse L. Lasky, H. O. Davis, D. W. Griffith, Frank E. Woods, Frank A. Garbutt and Thomas H. Ince will made addresses.

EXHIBITORS NEW YEAR'S BALL.

Many People Attend Dance Given by Southern California Motion Picture Exhibitors Association at Shrine Auditorium New Year's Eve.

President J. M. Root of the local showmen's association, assisted by B. H. Lustig, secretary, and S. V. Anderson, treasurer, and Seth D. Perkins, director general of the affair, were present to greet the many moving picture people, exhibitors and fans on the evening of December 31st, the occasion being the third annual ball of this association.

Despite threatening weather and the fact that Thomas H. Ince held the opening affair for his new studio, and the various other attractions for New Year's celebration, the exhibitors were successful both financially and otherwise. The grand march was lead by William Farnum of the Fox Co., and plucky Anita King, the Lasky Paramount motor lady. There were about 200 in line. Mr. Carl Laemmle picked a beautiful young lady from the throng who will be given a position at Universal City, where she will learn to act for the camera. Several other interesting events took place during the evening and the exhibitors are to be congratulated on their having so successfully held three annual affairs of this kind.

OPENING OF INCE'S CULVER CITY LINE STUDIO.

Thomas H. Ince's new studios at Culver City were formally opened on New Year's Eve with a grand reception and ball. Some five hundred well known figures in the local photo play world attended the elaborate affair. The festivities were held beneath the glass room of the big indoor studio, though the entire plant was thrown open for inspection under the glare of myriad lights. The program of the evening began with a grand march which was led by Producer and Mrs. Ince. Then followed a spectacular pantomime illustrating the death of the old and the birth of a new year. The year 1915 was impersonated by Walt Whitman, veteran actor of the Ince forces, while little Thelma Salter, the Kay-Bee child actress delightfully portrayed Anno Domini, 1916. When the new year had officially been welcomed, dancing took place until the wee-wee hours.

Among those present were Mayor Sebastian, Chief of Police Snively, District Attorney Woolwine, Sir Herbert Beerbohm-Tree, D. W. Griffith, Jesse L. Lasky, Mack Sennett, E. D. Horkheimer, Thomas Persons, De Wolf Hopper and a multitude of directors and stars from the film companies in and around Los Angeles.

TRIANGLE TAKES OVER BURBANK THEATER.

The interesting news was given out, this week, that the Triangle Exhibiting Company, in which D. W. Griffith and Mack Sennett are large stock holders, have acquired the Burbank theater, Oliver Morosco's old play house on Main street. This is the second theater in the city now operated by the Triangle Exhibiting Co., the Majestic, on Broadway, leased a short time ago, being the first. The Burkank will open with Triangle pictures next Sunday.

LOS ANGELES FILM BREVITIES.

WHEN Jack Frost and some of his more chilly pals visited us Christmas week, the papers stated that "a moving picture company" was stranded without food in the high mountains we did not know which company was out until Doris Schroeder of the Hollywood Vitagraph let the light shine. She said that while making the hard trip down from the mountains about Bear Lake, Rollin Sturgeon's company almost forgot what icy weather was, but they got lots of it before they were safely back in the valley. The return trip was a hard one, the last seventeen miles being covered on snow shoes, and with dog sleds. When they got to Pine Knot Lodge in the valley, they found that the cook had been frostbitten during their absence and had decamped, so they had to find a substitute until a new cook could make the trip. Bill Duncan and George Holt essayed to cook one meal—but that was sufficient, though Bill still insists that he could have done beautifully if there had been enough provisions in the kitchen. George says that there was enough in the kitchen but he didn't understand the range! These new fangled ranges are tricky. Anyway the frost-bitten Vitagraphers are still in the snow covered hills shooting miles of feature film.

H. O. Stechhan, who hands out the literary releases for the Horkheimer Brothers at the Balboa studio, says that if Norman Manning, business manager, were not so busy helping make "the pictures beautiful," he might be down fighting Mexicans across the Rio Grande. Not long ago, he was offered a commission in the Mexican Army! His venturesome spirit longed to accept; but he couldn't get away without severing his relations with the payroll. Compensation in the troubled republic being uncertain, he decided to remain where it is fairer, if not warmer. Norman please wire!

* * *

They all get it sooner or later. This time it is our friend Thomas Meighan, from the Lasky plant, the leading man for Charlotte Walker in "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," who was badly burned about the wrists the other day during the taking of a scene for that production. He had his wrists bound by a rope and to free himself, thrust the cords into the fire. The burning strands badly seared his arms.

* * *

Little William Hopper has been converted into a film actor and will make his initial appearance in the support of his daddy in the latest Triangle-Hopper production, "Sunshine Dad."

William Hopper, Jr., who recently entered his ninth month of babyhood, is a perfect picture of health and inherits his father's ever-smiling countenance. His four-wheeled runabout will also make its debut in "Sunshine Dad," and it so happens that father and son play together in all of William, Jr.'s, scenes.

Director Edward Dillon is responsible for the engaging of diminutive William, Jr., realizing that the scenes of father and son would add a touch of naturalness to the production.

The child will receive the usual remuneration for his work, with which his father will start a bank account for his son.

* * *

Johna Johansen, proprietor of the Casino theater, Yuma, Ariz., and the Somerton picture house, arrived here this week for a few days on business. There is a possibility that Mr. Johansen will open up a moving picture house in Los Angeles, as the main feeder of a string of show houses. This has not yet been decided upon but Los Angeles theater men have made a very flattering offer to Yuma's live wire picture man, who has in the past fifteen years opened and successfully operated eight of the largest theaters from Chicago to the coast.

* * *

Charming Myrtle Gonzalez, one of the Universal's well known stars, is being featured at the big Laemmle studio in a two-reel special under the direction of Lyn Reynolds, one of the feature directors of the big coast plant.

In this, a Spanish picture, Miss Gonzalez has a chance to show some real Spanish costumes, and some rare old lace shawls handed down from her ancestors.

The company will travel south to San Diego and perhaps farther across the border and maybe clear to Tia Juana to get the proper locations for the background.

* * *

One of Lasky's stars has succumbed to the attacks of young Cupid. She is Fanny Ward, the beautiful actress, who once was the wife of Joseph Lewis, the London diamond millionaire, and who now is starring in a number of feature films being produced by the Lasky company, and was married one night this week to John Dean, the moving picture actor, who has been playing leading roles in her company for several months.

The affair was kept so secret that only Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Meighan, at whose home the ceremony was performed, were taken into the couple's confidence, The Meighans being the only witnesses. Mrs. Meighan is well known to the stage as Frances Ring and is a sister of Blanche Ring.

"Oh, yes, we are going on a honeymoon," said Mrs. Dean, at the happy little wedding dinner at a cafe. "We are going to the studio in the morning and put on the make-up as usual. But really, we expect a long, long honeymoon, because we have bought a home here in Los Angeles and expect to live here always.

* * *

At the new Hollywood Vitagraph plant the spacious laboratories and dark room are rapidly going up and it is expected that they will be entirely completed inside of a month. Further plans for the beautifying of the new studio grounds are under consideration and before long work will begin on the new offices, which are expected to be ornamental as well as useful.

Mary Anderson, Webster Campbell, Corinne Griffith and others of Director Wilbert's company have returned from Truckee, where they have been filming a three-reel snow picture. Some unusual punches will be introduced in the snow scenes which are wonderful.

* * *

H. M. Horkheimer, president and general manager of the Balboa, says that "Balboa begins the New Year with the brightest prospects in its entire career." He has returned from New York with the report that several large consolidations are pending. The manner in which the newcomers in the film business are running away from the pioneers, has made the latter realize that it would be desirable for them to form alliances with the younger element. Balboa has been invited to join with some of the strongest of the old line companies; but as yet, the Horkheimer Brothers have not seen fit to surrender their prestige as the largest actually independent producers in the film world.

* * *

Among the numerous cards, letters, books, and various other greetings received by our coast office, was a very clever and unique card, sent by Otto Lederer of Hollywood Vitagraph.

The card is made up of about forty character photos and one studio picture of Mr. Lederer as he appears without the makeup.

* * *

Last week, just after President Carl Laemmle arrived, the famous Universal City studio put on a big battle scene for a coming picture and to get the right comment on the rehearsals, the director invited about fifty old soldiers to witness the fighting and criticize the action.

The soldiers' home is not many miles from the plant of the Big "U" so the elderly ex-army men were motor-trucked to the city to see the war. They stood and admired the acting, and expressed their approval of the battle action.

* * *

The following from the Los Angeles Times shows the idea used by the exhibitors in advertising their third annual ball which was held on New Year's Eve here. The plan was carried out by a bunch of players from the Keystone.

> A throng, at first interested and finally much perplexed, gathered outside the Times Building yesterday afternoon to watch what seemed to be a troupe of motion-picture actors perform.
>
> A young man in the role of director marshaled a very stout gentleman and a demure little woman about the streets for some time, making them act before a camera that contained no film. When a large crowd had gathered, the "director" moved his forces to the second floor fire escape of the Times Building.
>
> With the spectators straining their necks, a fake battle between the very stout man and the demure little woman was staged. As the fight reached a climax actor and actress stopped, and, picking up a roll of canvas from the floor of the fire escape, flung it over the railing. In huge letters the banner screamed to the crowd below that there is going to be a great time at the movie carnival to be held New Year's Eve in Shrine Auditorium.

* * *

Half a hundred Swiss gold watches were distributed by the Horkheimer Brothers among their co-workers at the studio of the Balboa company, for Christmas. All the heads of departments and other employes who have been with the company two years were remembered. The fact that some of them work in humble capacities did not militate against the Balboas, for they were rewarded as handsomely as the high-salaried stars. The watches were all of the thin, octagonal pattern. Each one had the monogram of the one for whom it was intended in blue enamel, on the back. Five thousand dollars were spent by the Horkheimer Brothers in dispensing Christmas cheer among their employes.

* * *

Jesse L. Lasky has departed for a brief visit in New York to confer with Samuel Goldfish.

Mr. Lasky had his fur overcoat and ear muffs all carefully packed for his trip east but had to take them out to wear the day it snowed here.

* * *

Even if Kenneth McGaffey says so, Victor Moore has really gotten back in his old vaudeville ways the last two weeks and has been playing a series of benefits. He has been requested to appear at practically every entertainment given in Los Angeles and, being a good fellow, he was unable to refuse. His appearance at the Newsboys' Dinner Christmas Day was the cause of a small sized riot and it was only when his voice gave out that he was permitted to leave the platform.

Also William C. DeMille is at work on his second Blanche Sweet production.

Miss Sweet is supported by Charles Clary, Ernest Joy, William Elmer and other important members of the Lasky all star stock company.

Among the Picture Theaters

News and Views of Photoplay Houses Everywhere

ALHAMBRA THEATER, DETROIT, MICH.

After One Year of Operation This Kunsky Photoplay House Shows Big Profit—Gives Special Saturday Matinees for Children—Seats 1,600—Managed by Thomas D. Moule.

THE Alhambra theater, one of the most pretentious of the Kunsky chain of motion picture houses, although located three miles from Detroit's business district in the new North Woodward avenue section, has completed its first year with a decided balance on the right side of the ledger. The success of the Alhambra has been beyond the expectations of the most sanguine, and even John H. Kunsky, accustomed as he is to seeing theaters spring up over night in Detroit, was surprised at the large attendance that has greeted the Alhambra since the opening night, November 7, 1914. Detroit has been climbing up above the 700,000 mark in population. A great deal of the best class of development has been in the North Woodward avenue section, and the Alhambra is in the center of this new district. This probably has been the main reason for its unprecedented success. The class of the house itself and the management have also been big factors in its popularity.

Beautiful Foyer of Alhambra Theater, Detroit, Mich.

The Alhambra was built for John H. Kunsky and his associates by C. Howard Crane. It is in a building by itself and the exterior is handsome and noticeable. The front is of white tile, very ornate, and is illuminated at night by many electric lights and an electric sign reaching almost across the entire front. The ticket office is on the side and the lobby is so large that more than six hundred persons can be accommodated on the inside of the first set of glass doors. There are three sets of doors, so as to effectually break any draft from the outside. They are all of beveled glass, and the center of the lobby is marked off by a brass chain to separate the "in" and "out" crowds. This gives the lobby a spacious appearance and does not cut it up and spoil the effect as would solid doors. There is a gradual incline to the floor of the lobby, which is covered with rubber matting in stormy weather to prevent dirt being tracked into the auditorium.

At the rear of the main floor there is a foyer 20 feet wide, extending completely across the building. This space is heavily carpeted and is furnished with handsome white wicker furniture, trimmed with a narrow band of black. The wicker furniture includes settees, chairs, six foot stands for fancy lamps, stands of different heights for flowers, and even the indirect lighting shades are trimmed with the white wicker with black edges. Glass partitions reaching half way to the ceiling separate this parlor from the seating space, and at the same time there is none of the stuffy feeling of being in a narrow room. Large pictures of picture favorites, some of them life size, are placed against the glass partitions, and tables and writing decks, bubbling fountains, and other conveniences are arranged in a tasteful manner. The decorating is what is known as the Adam style. The rear is lighted with a soft but clear light. It does not effect the projection of the picture in any way, although this part of the auditorium is much lighter than is generally found in picture houses.

The Alhambra theater seats 1,600 persons. Of these 1,400 are on the ground floor, and 200 are in the balcony. There are also 60 box seats. The main floor aisles are heavily carpeted and the seats are firmly but comfortably upholstered in leather. The stairway leading to the balcony and the aisles here are carpeted. In fact the balcony is in every way finished as well as the main floor. Many patrons prefer these seats to the main floor. The ventilation is accomplished by a six foot suction fan in the top of the building, but it has been found necessary to use this in hot weather only. A thirty-inch fan is kept going at all times and working with the modern heating plan it furnishes absolutely fresh air at all times. The heating is automatically regulated and the temperature in all parts of the building is the same.

Thomas D. Moule, Mr. Kunsky's manager at the Alhambra, is in charge of the theater, and he is responsible to a considerable extent for its success. He is what might be termed a "crank on music." He believes that good music and refined surroundings go with photoplay success in any good neighborhood. His start was made with the Mark-Brock Company, which ran the old Princess theater in Detroit. After being with them four years he started with Mr. Kunsky two years ago. He believes in the personal element in managing a theater, and he is on hand in the rear at every performance to see that there is no confusion and that patrons are seated promptly and satisfactorily. He knows many of the patrons by name and many by sight. Although the Alhambra is not far from many world famed automobile factories such as the Ford and the Cadillac plants, it is in a distinctively "silk stocking" neighborhood, and its patrons are well to do people. It is not a Sunday theater crowd, in fact this is one of the lightest nights of the week, as so many people are at country clubs, etc. Friday night is the big night at the Alhambra. On account of the fact that the same people come to this theater continually and the transient business is so small, the pictures are changed nightly. Manager Moule, speaking of securing films, said:

Interior of the Alhambra Theater, Detroit, Mich.

"I have had difficulty getting just the right films several times lately, and of course the character of the attendance here precludes my showing anything but good pictures. There are too many suggestive pictures and too many that are fit only for grown people to see, and a manager cannot always judge by the title or the descriptive matter. Producers must remember that the majority of people are not only honest but decent, and that they object to anything suggestive in pictures the same as they do in a speaking play. It will be for the best interests of the motion picture business for the producers to realize this before suggestive pictures force cities like Detroit to appoint a board of censorship."

The music at the Alhambra centers around a large pipe organ of the Hilgreen & Lane make. In addition to this there is a six piece orchestra, and the music is a decided treat. Many classical pieces are interspersed with catchy popular music, which at all times is "tuned" to the picture being thrown upon the screen.

A feature that has been a success with the Alhambra, and which should interest the managers of theaters in good residence neighborhoods, is the Saturday matinees for school children. Particular attention is given to them at this time, and in any case where the evening picture is not exactly what children should see a different picture is shown at the matinee. The care taken of children at the Alhambra and the dependable quality of the picture has resulted in children being sent from all parts of Detroit. The matinees are financially a success and have helped the reputation of the theater. At the evening performances children are not admitted alone.

During the anniversary week early in November the theater was handsomely decorated with flowers and flags, and special invitations were sent out in the neighborhood. The house was filled to capacity at all times during the week. An orchestra of fifteen pieces was employed. While the Alhambra theater represents a very big outlay of money by Mr. Kunsky, its success is assured, which goes far to prove that the neighborhood theater of the highest class is what the people want and that if pictures can be changed often enough and at the same time kept of a high grade, the attendance will be forthcoming.

ACADEMY THEATER, BUFFALO, N. Y.

Manager Michael Installs Lunch Counter in Foyer to Attract Attention to His "Noonday Photoplays."

"THERE is no such thing as a dull season in the show business. New ideas create new business."

This was the statement made by J. H. Michael, manager of the Academy theater, Buffalo, whose photograph appears herewith. The good attendance at the Academy is the best proof that the innovations offered by Mr. Michael are winners.

J. H. Michael.

For instance, to attract attention to his "noonday photoplays," Mr. Michael recently introduced what he termed his "photoplay luncheons." For ten cents, a patron was able to obtain a substantial luncheon and see a fine program of moving pictures. A 16-foot lunch counter was erected in the Academy foyer and a negro chef served the patrons. Many used the foyer as their lunch room, while others preferred to "eat, drink and be merry" while watching the moving pictures. In booming his photoplay luncheons, Mr. Michael made this announcement: "Both the photoplays and the luncheons will be changed daily. There isn't a business man, or in fact any office or store employe, who doesn't spend at least ten cents for a noonday repast. And in order to get service for this small amount it is necessary to sit in a hot lunchroom, or crowd up to a counter which is an unpleasant task at the best. There will be no long features shown at this photoplay luncheon. All the pictures are short and snappy. The photoplay luncheons start daily at noon and continue until 2 o'clock. There is no interruption in the entertainment, for immediately following the photoplays come the musical comedies to which the ticket holder is entitled to remain."

Mr. Michael has been featuring recently what he terms "Treble Clef Motion Pictures," which, in an animated way, take the place of the old-fashioned illustrated songs. The title page, the story of how the song was written, the actions of the singers and other features are played up by means of motion pictures. Mr. Michael uses special lobby displays. These are prepared by his own artist, who is an expert in oil effects. The paintings fit in perfectly with the week's features and the pictorial work is striking.

Mr. Michael was schooled under the late B. J. Keith, Sr., in Boston, Mass., and imbibed many of that gentleman's valuable ideas. Mr. Michael worked out and put into operation the plan for Mr. Keith's first moving picture house, the Bijou Dream, in the Hub. This was one of the first original vaudeville houses to change to pictures. The house was equipped with escalators and other up-to-date features. "I received from Mr. Keith a letter, which I shall always prize," said Mr. Michael. "It was on the occasion of his twenty-fifth anniversary in the show business. The gist of the letter was that he hoped I would enjoy the same success that he himself had had. He said I was entitled to this success by reason of earnest and persistent endeavor."

Academy Theater, Buffalo, N. Y.

The slogan adopted by Mr. Michael for the Academy theater, Buffalo, is: "More For Your Money." This slogan and the following information appear on two large electric signs: "The Academy, 5c, 10c and 20c. Musical Comedy, Vaudeville, and Prize Photoplays." The signs have just been erected on the White Building at Main and Niagara streets, and are sixty feet long by twenty-two feet high.

A picture of the Academy theater appears herewith. Moving pictures and vaudeville have been featured at this house for nearly seven years. The Academy is the property of the Mark-Brock Theatrical Enterprises. The house has a capacious main floor and two balconies and a roomy stage.

The Academy was elaborately fitted out when it adopted its present policy and has been kept spic and span ever since. For a time, after the Pan-American Exposition in 1901, melodrama was featured at this theater. This has been a site for a playhouse for nearly half a century. Not many years after the Civil War the Academy of Music, which the house was then called, was the home of legitimate drama. Such stars as Booth, Barrett, Mary Anderson and others having appeared there. The theater was then managed by Meech Brothers, of Buffalo.

PROCTOR ADOPTS OPEN-BOOKING SYSTEM.

G. A. Graves, representing the Proctor Theatrical Enterprises, informed the V-L-S-E this week that hereafter his organization would book features in the open market. Mr. Graves advised the Big Four of this, by reason of the fact that this organization has been in the forefront in agitating the advantages of an exhibitor seeing the productions himself and renting those which he believes will best suit his clientele.

The Proctor Theatrical Enterprises for a long time past have had contracts with various feature organizations which supply them with a stated number of films weekly. These contracts have either expired or have been revoked with due notice, and the organization will go out into the open field and secure those pictures which most appeal to their judgment as being money-makers for their houses.

WALNUT THEATER, LOUISVILLE, KY.

Refurbishes Photoplay House Entirely for Presentation of Triangle Program—Under Management of Joseph Steurle.

WHEN a motion picture exhibitor determines to change from a five-cent to a Triangle program he usually decides to fix up the theater he occupies. If you can tell a man by the clothes he wears, it ought to follow that the appearance of a theater indicates the character of the programs it put on. At least the Broadway Amusement Enterprise Company, which is operating the Walnut theater in Louisville for the Spencer Amusement Company, came to these conclusions, and proceeded on that basis.

Not that the Walnut theater is not and has not always been a nice little theater. It never had made much money, that is all. But when such a jump as is represented by transition from a five-cent house to a Triangle house is contemplated, it is proper that the theater be dressed up accordingly. Built between four and five years ago, on Walnut street, half a block west from Fourth street, the principal thoroughfare, the Walnut had not enjoyed the measure of success that almost automatically conveys the impression of prosperity. It was somewhat run down.

Interior of the Walnut Theater, Louisville, Ky.

At first it started as a legitimate house, playing popular priced companies. It has served for more or less curtailed seasons of vaudeville, stock, combination vaudeville and pictures, and has been "dark" a time or two. Early last summer the Broadway Amusement syndicate took over the management of the house for the owners of the lease. At first, using the elaborate features of that now "old-time" period, they started operations on the basis of 50 cents admission. Later the price was reduced to 25 cents, and again lowered and finally and for a considerable period it had been on the five-cent admission basis, showing to good houses, but not developing a great deal of profit. Then the decision to put on the Triangle program was reached.

Joseph Steurle, manager of the house, and other members of the company, determined at once on a general refurnishing of the theater. If the Triangle program were to be offered, the Walnut must be brightened up. Decorators were called into consultation, and a color scheme was decided on. This provided for redecoration of the interior in buff, and redecoration of the entrance in buff, cream white and gold. The whole of the interior was thus gone over, paint renewed and gold decorations reapplied, resulting, with the marble wainscoting, in greatly brightening up the whole house. The "T" in the Triangle was emblazoned in the escutcheon over the main entrance doors and smaller reproductions of the device were put in the panels on each side of the storm door entrance. This treatment followed a thorough housecleaning, with generous applications of vacuum cleaners to the carpeted aisles and floors.

The walls made new again, the downstairs seats looked dingy. They were provided for by seat covers of white duck, covers for each seat and covers for the backs, and there are 600 of these downstairs seats. The screen in the Walnut is set pretty well back from the proscenium arch, to enable utilization of the front rows. Settings for the screen under the former dispensation were old scenery of the "drawing room" type which happened to be about the theater. New settings were ordered and put in place. They are reproductions of garden entrances to a country home, and, with lattice work and vines, make very attractive settings for the screen, not too pronounced in color, nor yet too subdued. They are Colonial in effect.

Carrying out the plans for improving the appearance of the house and contributing to the effect, it was determined to introduce girl ushers. Six of them were engaged and each fitted with a party dress, cut on a pretty pattern, of an old-fashioned model, lace around the throat and V necks, with a series of tunics about the skirts. When on duty each of the girls wears a black velvet, tri-cornered hat, with a rosette at each corner. For the sake of variety, the gowns come in varied shades, and the experiment got effective results from the viewpoint of appearances. So much for the looks. On the principle that "handsome is as handsome does," the operating company provided for thoroughly adequate equipment. The outfit of Power projecting machines was sent to the factory where all got a thorough overhauling.

The performance of the mechanical end provided for, the exhibitors provided for the music with a sixteen-piece orchestra, one of the good aggregations of the city, competent to play the scores which come with the pictures. And in the same way "effects" were provided by the management so that now what looks like a runaway horse, or a pistol shot, also sounds like one. The orchestra, though it added largely to the effectiveness of the program, proved incorrigibly a union orchestra, and the upshot has been eliminating the orchestra altogether. The musical end of the program, however, is being very well taken care of by the big Wurlitzer Unit Orchestra, with which the theater is equipped. With two operatives, to give each other rest periods, the special music for each performance is very well handled, indeed, and meets all requirements.

WINCHESTER THEATER, NEW HAVEN, CONN.

Runs Special Show During Noontime for Benefit of Employees of Winchester Arms Company.

ANOTHER handsome moving picture theater was added to the list of those amusement places in New Haven, Conn., when on December 15 the Winchester Avenue theater in Winchester avenue was opened. The dimensions of the structure are 50 by 100 feet, and it is built of fireproof material throughout. It has a beautiful stone front, and can seat 800 persons. The Winchester is under the management of Adolph Juul.

Winchester Theater, New Haven, Conn.

The operating room is built of Egyptian blocks and plaster which not only make it fireproof but sound-proof as well. Two of the latest Simplex machines are used and a Wotton Rexolux made by the Electric Products Company of Cleveland, Ohio. The chairs were bought of the A. H. Andrews Company, Chicago, Ill. At the present time music is furnished by a piano, but it is the intention of the management to install a three-piece orchestra.

The theater is only one block from the Winchester Arms Company, which is employing at the time of writing 20,000 people, and for the benefit of the employees of this company Mr. Juul is running a special show between twelve noon and 1 p. m. The regular matinees begin at 2 and continue until 5, while the regular evening shows begin at 7 and close at 11. The admission prices are five cents for matinees and ten cents for evening shows. The Winchester has been making a good profit since it was opened.

OBSERVATIONS

BY OUR MAN ABOUT TOWN

A FEW evenings since I happened into a hospitable place where the New Year spirit reigned supreme. The cordial proprietor and the solicitous bartenders were "on the job" with a refreshing mood. The holiday dew bedecked everything and everywhere, except one corner, and there sat an old-time picture actor. He was alone, but not deserted. A pipe and a glass were his companions. He was the most disinterested person in the place so far as his surroundings were concerned. He was completely absorbed by his pipe, glass and thoughts when the writer unsuspectingly approached and said in quiet tone, "Good evening." With almost a start the old-timer turned. Recognizing the new comer the face of the picture actor brightened and the visitor was urged to be seated and give his order. "This is, indeed, a pleasure," said the picture man. "I was just thinking. It is so seldom I meet those I wish to see that your coming takes all the darkness out of tonight. That's right. Take what you wish. Here! That belongs on my check, waiter. Say, where have you been? No, I am not down and out. I simply seek a corner to think things over. Think 'shop' if you wish to call it that."

* * *

And what followed is best told in the old-timer's own words: "I was just thinking of the stupendous progress that has attended the motion picture business and incidentally pondering over the wonderful help it has been to the old stage professionals. Yes, I know, certain people contend that the pictures have been a detriment to the real histrionic art and cheap prices have unfortunately led the public from the path of true ability, but we hear others say that were it not for the picture the homes for actors would be overcrowded. Think of the people you and I know who, by loss of the power of elocution, the sense of hearing, even the power of movement, who are today earning a livelihood in motion picture studios instead of being dependent upon the generosity of their friends on the stage. No one more abhors the prospect of going to a 'home' than the stage professional of talent and when, at last, the shelter of a 'home' stands alone as the last resort for a sustenance of life which has been devoted to the advancement of the public's pleasure the alternative is accepted within a broken heart, but well feigned spirit."

* * *

"Were it not for the pictures I too would have been a dependant in some actor's home, or, perhaps I would be doing some menial work for less per week than my hotel bill was for a day. And I was just thinking of the incongruity displayed in the spirit of some people who are persistently decrying the picture. There was a time when no church member dared enter the portals of a theatre. Time worked changes and ultimately the boxes of a 'first night' were filled by members of the clergy. The players became their honored guests. The managers became intimates of the church officials. Clergymen deserted the pulpit for the stage and many actors went to the pulpits. A spirit of reciprocity was engendered that eventually made the stage and pulpit one and there was a gradual dissolution of bigotry which had for years kept many brilliant minds separated."

* * *

"But here I am today a poor picture actor. I find the clergy arrayed against me with all the reform and kindred societies thirsting for my flesh and blood. I am stamped as a conspirator against public morals, a destructive weapon against the church and Sunday schools, an ally of the dens of infamy and vice, and yet I am only before the screen what I was on the stage, an actor. I have been before the screen for about fifteen years and I look upon that career with the same composure of conscience as I do upon my career of forty years on the 'boards.' My pride as an exponent of the histrionic art has not been impaired in the least. I feel that today I am doing before the screen my full duty as an actor, and yet I find my work made the subject of such stringent laws and local regulations that I am sometimes forced to the conclusion that in the eyes of the public I am a criminal."

* * *

"When on the 'boards' I frequently essayed the role of the avaricious 'Shylock,' and with a success that made many religiously inclined people my warmest admirers. Today I find the reformers arrayed against the character because they fear it may tend to mislead the youthful mind. Others say that a screening of the character is an exaggeration of a type that brings undue reflections. I am criticised for screening my demand for my 'pound of flesh,' and yet the laws of the country sustain pawnbrokers. In 'Richard III.' I am condemned for harmlessly jabbing my opponent with a sword, yet in the popular cantata of 'Queen Esther,' given by religious organizations, they hang a man. I am censored for shooting at a robber leaving my apartments at midnight. I am a criminal for pointing a revolver at anyone —even though it be an empty revolver—and yet the censors give approval to the portrayal of the execution of the thieves upon the cross. I dare not allow the audience viewing the screen to see me, as Brutus, plunge the knife into Julius Caesar, and yet unlimited latitude is accorded in the biblical stories and plays to the display of John the Baptist's head."

* * *

"Well, you can see about where I am at in my reverie. I am bound hand and foot like the victim of the Lilliputians. On the stage I was an idol. On the screen I am worse than Satan himself. I have been trying to think of some character I could portray in some screen play that would receive the unanimous approbation of all the censor boards in the country—something which would pass all the boards without tempting the clipper. Eh! What's that? It's New Year's morning. Why, I humbly beg your pardon. But, say, on the level, do you think we are getting a square deal on this censorship question?"

* * *

Quite a spirited discussion took place the other day between a number of people engaged in the motion picture business relative to the future of feature productions. Producers, players and exhibitors expressed their views and there was a puzzling variance of opinions. An exhibitor said he believed the days for features were limited. One of his reasons was that people who went to railway stations to meet friends, or who had appointments at department stores and other places, are frequenters of picture shows just to kill time. They will not go to places where features are exhibited because they cannot remain to see the entire feature run off. A player said most features of the day are being used as vehicles to accommodate certain people who cannot get profitable openings on the stage. Another of the party said the feature business was being used by certain regular theatrical managers to get out of old manuscripts what they could not get from revivals on the stage. Still another said that all the others were at sea; that, while the short stories will continue to figure in the field, the feature photoplays must be depended upon to hold the people who have been won over from the old line of theaters.

* * *

Among those who took part in the discussion was a producer who has been in the business for many years and one whose views seem to bear more weight than those responsible for the above summary. He said: "Features have become established and cannot be abandoned without serious result to the business. It cannot be disputed that snappy one and two-reel subjects are in great demand, but no exhibitor can depend upon them alone and ignore the real features. Many exhibitors have complained of the latter very justly because many producers have foolishly thought the patrons cannot discriminate between padding and real action. If there is a deterioration in the support of features by the public, it will be due to the same cause that caused the people to abandon the legitimate shows for the moving pictures. The picture exhibitors do not depend upon shoppers or railway station transients. Taking the city of New York as an example, localities in which railway stations are located have no moving picture houses. None can be found in the proximity of the Pennsylvania station on Seventh avenue, the Grand Central Station on Forty-second street, nor the Long Island depot in Brooklyn. Not even the smallest of picture houses can be found near these places. It is within reason to say that the patrons of picture houses in the shopping districts have many patrons who are shoppers, but the bulk of the trade is from adjacent residential districts and a transient flow that is not connected with shopping. About the best located theaters for a shopping district are located in the vicinity of Thirty-fifth street and Broadway. Several large department stores are located close to them and all are running features. But all these stores close at 6 P. M. Where does the patronage come from between that hour and 11 P. M.? Certainly not from the people who have a few minutes to spare between shopping and the keeping of appointments. It is a false notion on the part of those who contend that motion picture theaters are places for killing time. They are not halfway houses, but full-fledged places of amusement. To hold to the contrary is to class the theaters as mere nickelodeons of the former days. My experience has been that the chief cry against features comes from people who are unwilling, or have houses whose patronage will not enable them, to pay the prices that must be charged for real features on account of the cost of production. It is, in a great measure, a matter of location. The feature business has been responsible for the opening of large houses along Broadway and other prominent thoroughfares. It has been the play—the photoplay—that has won the day and it cannot be dispensed with. A good one or two-reel drama or comedy is a valuable asset, but it cannot supplant a feature that deserves the name. Furthermore, writers and directors who can satisfactorily produce a drama within the limit of one reel are far from being abundant."

"Down in Front"

(Moving Pictures and Moving Conversation.)
By Hazen Conklin.

Mrs. McGabb Arrives Early.

(Stout, red-faced woman comes puffing down the aisle and plumps herself into an aisle seat beside a thin, pale little woman who evidently has been expecting her.)

GOOD evenin' Missus Simms. I stopped at your house but your husband hollered out the window that you'd come so's to get a seat and that you'd hold an aisle for me.

Mrs. Simms—Yes, I knew an aisle seat was a comfort to you, Mrs. McGabb, so I put my hand bag and coat in it.

Mrs. McGabb—Mercy, is that what I'm sittin' on! Now I've gotta get up again, and I was all settled, too. Yes, an aisle seat is a comfort to me, I'll admit, but it has its drawbacks, too. In fact, it's one drawback after another to let people in past me. You know I ain't so slim as you, Mrs. Simms, and I can't keep bobbin' up and down. I hafta let 'em climb over me best they can. It's my shins suffer most. They gotta lift their feet to step over mine so I s'pose I shouldn't complain, but you should see the black-and-blue marks!

Mrs. S.—There! The lights are goin' out! Now we can read the advertisements.

Mrs. McG.—Yes, now I s'pose we gotta sit and look at them for ten minutes. It wouldn't be so bad if they'd change them every night, same as the fillums, but I can't say I enjoy gloomin' at the same old ones that ain't been changed since I started comin' in here, and that was over a year ago. The first night I read 'em they was real entertainin', for we'd just moved into the neighborhood and the names was new to me. I remember how my Henry and me laughed over some of them, like that meat market one, "fouls, 21c. a pound," and "Phillips the Plumber Plumbs at Pleasin' Prices—if you want your house heated by hot air, let me have a trial." But now, law me, I know every one by heart.

Mrs. S.—Was you here last night?

Mrs. McG.—Yes, I come to see that Mary Piquart fillum, "The Cave Man's Bride." And, believe me, if she'd been anywhere but on a fillum she'd of took her mortal death of cold, runnin' around in a Garden of Eden suit and the cave man after her. I saw him sneeze twice with my own eyes, for he didn't wear no more costume than she did. And no wonder, for this place was cold as a barn. I was sneezin' myself. They don't never heat this place. They wait till it fills up and let the people heat it. If they was all cold-blooded they'd freeze to death this weather.

Mrs. S.—The piano man's come in, so I guess they're goin' to start the pictures.

Mrs. McG.—I do wish that man'd play by hand instead of by ear. He starts out on a tune and then tries to see if he can hit every note on the keyboard except the right ones. My Henry says when he tries to play "Home, Sweet Home" it turns sour before he gets there. And what he's playin' don't have no more connection with the pictures than I do. He plays the same tune for someone dyin' that he does for a father bein' told his heir is triplets.

Mrs. S.—But the pictures are good here!

Mrs. McG.—The pictures are all right, leastwise they would be if that man up in the coop didn't turn the crank so fast nights when he's got a date with his girl after the show. Why, two nights ago one of the scenes was a funeral with pall-bearers carryin' the casket, and he turned the crank so fast he had 'em jig-steppin' all the way to the grave. I just couldn't enjoy the scene. I'd oughta of been cryin' and instead I was laughin' so I bust a seam in my waist. I never laughed so much, even at a Charlie Chipmunk comedy.

Mrs. S.—Here comes that young man with the disinfectant.

Mrs. McG.—Ain't that the limit? I suppose they're got to squirt that stuff around to kill germs, but when he squirts it at me I get downright mad. I ain't got germs if others have. It wouldn't be so bad if it was cologne, but between that stuff they use and a circus, give me the circus! There, the pictures are goin' to begin now, for there's that slide "Ladies will please remove their hats and gentlemen keep their feet out of the aisles." Good grief! Here comes a man who bows out more than I do and I believe he wants to get in here past us! What did I tell you! Certainly I'll excuse you, Mister, only it ain't my handbag you stepped on—it was my foot!

HARRY HOYT, OF METRO, "EXPERT."

To be sure, the photoplaywright is as yet an infant in arms compared with his big brother "playwright," and his entry into certain lines of distinction may seem quite unimportant to the older fraternity. At the same time the infant must make his debut into some new field of the game at every turn, and so it is that Harry Hoyt has earned the distinction of being the first photoplaywright to be called as a legal expert. This happened recently when Mr. Hoyt testified for the defense in the case of Miss Annie Partlan vs. Van Dyke Film Company for breach of contract. Here occurred a brilliant war of wits in which Mr. Hoyt eclipsed the opposing counsel. Justice C. M. Craigen rendered a decision in favor of the plaintiff, who is a well-known newspaper woman and scenario writer.

Motion Picture Educator

Conducted by REV. W. H. JACKSON

AN IMPORTANT FORWARD MOVEMENT—CINE MUNDIAL.

PROGRESS is secured in many ways, sometimes by leaps and bounds, and at other times by slow and careful growth, or deliberate development. The main thing to be sought for is such a progress that shall be safe, sure, abiding and profitable to all concerned. The Moving Picture Educator is most delighted to note that the Moving Picture World is about to issue a Spanish edition. This is progress indeed, a steady, solid, "safe and sane" move forward.

Second only to the United States, South America will prove a wonderful field for the greater development of the moving picture in all its branches. In Spain, as represented by the city of Barcelona, the moving picture has been placed upon its highest possible plane as an educational power, showing that the Spanish authorities are well aware of its possibilities; that this spirit will also prevail in Latin-America there can be no doubt, and the Moving Picture World has proved itself abreast of the times and equally observant of the trend of kinematographic tendencies when it decided to enter that widely opening field.

This is a splendid forward movement, neither sudden nor rash; it is an evidence of the natural growth of the influence of the moving picture, as it is also of the watchfulness of the Moving Picture World, fulfilling its careful duty as guardian of the moving picture interests as well as its greater interest in kinematography as applied to education and the power of being the people's entertainer. To wish that this advance may be crowned with success seems only to forestall an assurance of the same. If we are to judge the future by the past successes of the leading moving picture trade journal, there can be little doubt that the Cine Mundial will be both to the trade and the public of South America everything that the Moving Picture World has been to the United States; especially does the Educator look forward with good reasons to anticipate splendid results.

BUREAU OF SOCIAL ECONOMICS.

The Bureau of Social Economics of Washington, D. C., is, to use its own description, "an association of the governments, institutions, manufacturers, producers and transportation lines of America and other countries, to engage in disseminating geographical, commercial, industrial and vocational information by the graphic method of motography, showing how things in common use are made or produced, and under what conditions."

"The Bureau displays its reels and slides in universities, colleges, technical and agricultural schools, public libraries, public institutions, state granges, people's institutes, state armories, high schools, settlement houses, missions, chambers of commerce, boards of trade, commercial clubs, rotary clubs, trade conventions, welfare forums of corporations, and fraternal organizations. Auto trucks are also used with powerful projectors in parks, playgrounds, rural communities and other centers for the general public."

The breadth and scope of the work of the Bureau is evidenced by the fact that its service is available in the United States, in Canada, Latin-American republics, India, China, Japan, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa, with all titles and sub-titles of all films in the language of the country addressed. The Education Alliance of New York has associated itself with the Bureau in the using of the films in New York City, with great advantage to the poorer classes of the East Side. Penal institutions and other places inhabited by involuntary guests have also been much benefited by the work of the Bureau, which without doubt fills a large place for good in the country.

Types of Films Exhibited.

The Bureau aims to illustrate the production and manufacture of articles in common use, to reveal the source of supply, and to follow the raw material to the finished product. An example of this is seen with sheep on the ranges, washing and shearing, followed by the bale of wool through all the processes to the making of cloth and clothing. In like manner the pelt is followed to the tannery, thence on to the manufacture of shoes, gloves and commercial leather. Films showing the making of glassware from sand; china in all forms from clay, and linen from the planting of flax; also cotton garments from the sowing of the seed. In this manner all fields of human effort in industrial lines are thus disclosed through the medium of the moving picture.

Surgical, medical and medicinal drug films are circulated by the Bureau after they have been approved by the medical societies.

City sanitation, civic betterment, playgrounds and recreation centers, public health, welfare and similar educational methods are all filmed for appropriate use.

Purely technical films of architectural or engineering construction, of chemical processes, industrial or theoretical; of astronomical observations, of the X-ray and its applications, of movement and its application in hydrodynamics, gravity, human anatomy, etc., have all been made.

Geographic, scenic, fish, bird and animal life, forest and bird reservation films are available; likewise films illustrating the customs of peoples and races of all lands.

Precautions Observed.

Great care is exercised by the Bureau that the films shown conform to lawful conditions, as, for instance, no industrial films are shown in which wholesome conditions do not prevail; those illustrating the employment of children must comply with the law relating thereto. Pictures in any way illustrating food or food products must be in strict compliance with the pure food laws. Everything concerning the public health must be carefully held in mind. Films dealing with intoxicating liquors even as an industrial pursuit are not listed, while tobacco is only shown in its growing stage as being one of the nation's productions. No films are exhibited which show the taking of life of any domestic animal, and, finally, no film which is untruthful or by interpretation could be misleading or which would awaken hope where none exists is shown.

Terms.

It will readily be seen from the above outline that the work of the Bureau is a very worthy and commendable one; the list of subjects is most complete, covering, it seems, every possible subject which can or has been reached by the power of kinematography. Its detailed list is a most exhaustive one, and numbers hundreds of the best films, and cannot fail to be a power in the wide and growing field of educational moving pictures. The terms upon which the Bureau loans the films must, however, come under a strict scrutiny. While there are many times and places where their free use may be advisable or even commendable, such free use must not be universal and without discrimination. It must ever be kept in mind that the exhibitor of moving pictures is a licensed man under the law and protected by the law; as such he is under an expense often not small; it would therefore be unjust to him if free pictures should in any, or even the slightest, degree interfere with his lawful business. From the manner in which the Bureau of Social Economics has prepared its films and programs, protecting the same from all possible errors in either letter or spirit, the Educator feels satisfied and confident that it will be just to the great army of its contemporaries. With these conditions, its work is commendable, and one well calculated to foster and encourage the higher development of that power so earnestly sought for in and by the educating moving picture.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

The Rev. Father Henry P. Maus, of Saginaw, Michigan, well known in that state as a man of wide views and experiences, also as a lecturer of some note, has decided to enter the company of moving picture exhibitors in relation to his church and wide parochial interests. He has fitted a former church edifice with a commodious stage and a first-class moving picture machine. Father Maus says, "I plan to give my church people and all others who are interested high-grade pictures from time to time, and, if the demand is great enough, we will show oftener than each Sunday. I have arranged for a series of high grade pictures to run through the winter. The people have shown their appreciation of the first pictures given and say they like them and want more." At present, two exhibitions are given each Sunday, at 3 p. m. and at 7:15 p. m. A small admission fee is charged, which goes into the general expenses of the movement.

* * *

Moving pictures are causing a thorough discussion in the church circles of Lafayette, Indiana. One church has already begun to use them, while other churches are disposed to question the wisdom of the movement; that a debate should arise is only natural, the question must needs be talked out and proved in every community of such a size that their introduction is of importance to all in that community. When what one church does affects another church, there is sure to be some contention. That church which takes a stand against the pictures is very likely to find that its opposition may become a boomerang, and should realize that the moving picture is a part of the American life. The educational value of the picture is now such a settled fact that to in any way tamper with the question is to provoke a criticism of shortsightedness and possible ignorance. It would be far better for all to start upon the basis that pictures must be used and waste no further time upon a question which has been settled all over the country by those of the widest possible views and the largest possible interests; this question being settled, the way is then open for the only other question, i. e., in what way can the pictures be best used for the good of the community and the best interests of the church?

* * *

Youngstown, Ohio, finds itself with two churches about to establish the moving picture as an aid to its social and educational work. In common with many other churches, they find one of the chief difficulties in the fact that many churches are not built with those requirements now called for by the fire-prevention authorities. It is a tribute to the value of the pictures that all new churches and schools are being built with a distinct regard to the fire law requirements in this particular. The Youngstown newspapers say, however, that the matter of fireproofing churches is becoming so large a question that when it is solved there will be a great increase in the number of churches using the pictures.

* * *

Oklahoma City is submitting a "referendum" to the congregations of the churches of the city on the question of the censorship of pictures.

In the first place, this movement is bad, because, linked with it, is the question of vaudeville; the moving pictures should stand alone in a matter of this kind. What a pity it is that the questions of Sunday pictures, pictures in churches and the censorship of pictures cannot be more widely understood; because of this lack of an understanding, much outside matter and often much ignorance is allowed to creep in and bring forth results quite contrary to those really desired. Are the readers of the Moving Picture World doing all they can to edify the people in their locality with the standard of their paper, with its advice and help? If the Oklahoma newspapers and those in other cities were only asked to reprint much that appears therein, more good could be accomplished.

* * *

The schools of Saginaw, Michigan, are being prepared for the addition of moving pictures as an aid to their educational courses. Delayed last year by an excessive demand upon their resources, they have this year been more modest in their application, so that by making it within the limits of the budget they are about to get at least a beginning. The local press is strongly aiding in the work, and there is every prospect that a thorough use of kinematography will be the result.

* * *

In Washington, D. C., the Parents' League of the Public Schools is conducting a campaign for the purpose of securing picture machines in the schools. An organized canvass is being made, even in the government offices, for the purpose, which is meeting with great success; the canvassers intend invading the White House before they finish their work. From these efforts the moving picture as an aid to public school work promises to be an established fact in the capital of the American nation.

* * *

"Standardization of the moving pictures for use in public schools is coming," says C. G. Schulz, state superintendent of schools in Minnesota. "I believe that moving pictures are one of the most powerful adjuncts to teaching the majority of subjects; for this reason they must be standardized by the state department, thereby removing all possibility of their haphazard and careless use." Minnesota is now lining up with other states for a state authorized and supervised use of the moving picture in the schools. The rapid progress thus being made speaks well for the immediate advantage of the youth of the land; more thorough and complete education because of the advent of the educational picture is one of the great privileges of the youth of the present day.

PROJECTION OUTFIT INSTALLED IN THE TOME SCHOOL.

Another instance of the appreciation of the moving picture is to be found in the intelligent use made of it at the Tome School, Fort Deposit, Maryland. Each Saturday evening the school discipline relaxes itself into an hour or so of film entertainment. When it is possible some of the pictures shown have a bearing on the classroom work of the previous week. Just to what extent they are able to gratify this desire to intermingle book learning with optical encouragement we are unable to say, but we do know that they have fortified themselves for all that the manufacturers are able to do for them in the way of manufacturing films possible of application to the school curriculum by installing a complete projection apparatus, including a booth which is built as a corner balcony in the athletic cage. This building is built of concrete, steel and glass, conforming with all insurance demands. The roof of the booth is protected by a heavy wire mesh thrown over it, as is also half of the front wall. The projection machine used is a Power's 6A, operated at present by rheostats. Every convenience such as a reel rack, rewinding table and a plate glass shelf illuminated from underneath for the rapid handling of slides, is included in the equipment of the booth.

Projection Room, Tome School.

The programs of the Tome School Saturday evenings consist of slides of local interest as well as films of from one reel to six reels in length.

RUBE MILLER, VOGUE DIRECTOR.

Rube Miller has been added to the directing staff of Vogue comedies. Mr. Miller earned an enviable reputation in the making of comedy pictures for Keystone and L-KO as well as playing many leading laugh-creating roles. Miss Madge Kirby and Arthur Tavares, the latter a Keystone slap-stick graduate, will appear under Mr. Miller's direction. Miss Kirby is a typical English girl and is a convert from the speaking stage, where she appeared with Richard Carle and Fred Walton. Her first motion picture experience was under the tutelage of Dell Henderson.

In addition to these new stars, Miss Alice Neice, formerly character lead for the Lubin-Melville Company, has been signed to play the heavy dramatic parts. "Oh, for the Life of a Fireman," a forthcoming Vogue release, produced by Jack Dillon with Russ Powell in the leading role and Priscilla Dean as ingenue, has been shown to exhibitors and declared to be the style of slapstick comedy desired. It is a story of one who yearns to be a fireman and he gets the chance, permitting the staging of some unusual thrills as well as side-splitting comedy situations.

Advertising for Exhibitors

Conducted by EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

Getting the Most.

PROBABLY most exhibitors have at least once met up with a vaudeville team in which one man offers to bet the other he is dead and doesn't know it. And probably every one of us has laughed, the first time if not the last; but how about some of the laughers themselves? We have taken up the matter dozens of times, but a letter from William E. Furber, of the American Feature Film Company, of Boston, puts a question very neatly into a nutshell, although you must remember the cocoanut when you think of nuts. Mr. Furber says:

> As the recognized "Father of Publicity" among exhibitors, I can think of no better person to write to than you on a subject that I feel should concern every exhibitor.
>
> In the trade papers we are continually reading about the elements that constitute success for the exhibitors. Good productions, the proper projection, proper music for the picture, courteous employees, etc., have all been dealt with. But one very necessary factor seems to have been almost forgotten—PUBLICITY.
>
> From my point of view, all of the other essentials of theatrical success must lead from successful publicity, otherwise the busy exhibitor is hiding his virtues under a barrel.
>
> And the blame for the lack of publicity today in the average theater must be laid at the door of the exhibitor himself, for the efforts of the average exchange to assist him in this manner are misconstrued to be a desire for additional income and ignored.
>
> A short time ago an exhibitor came into a Boston exchange and booked a program for his theater, stating that he intended to start something in his town with an advertising campaign that would make them "sit up." Then he gave his order—three one-sheets, two threes, a six and 500 heralds.
>
> While there are exceptions, of course, it is true that there are a great number of exhibitors in this class who think a few lithos and a handful of heralds end their publicity troubles.
>
> All of the prominent programs have publicity galore for the exhibitor if he will only utilize it. For instance, one program I have in mind, and I will not mention it for fear this letter may be misconstrued as an "ad" for that one, offers its exhibitors free one, three and six stock sheets, program trade-mark cuts, lobby sheets, etc., supplies star photos in various sizes, colored enlargements, mortised "ad" cuts for newspaper and house organ use, cuts of stars from thumb size to double column, a weekly magazine devoted exclusively to the pictures and stars of the individual program, free use of newspaper cuts, slides, press matter, etc., and maintains a publicity department to aid and assist its exhibitors in every way possible, even to the construction of special publicity for the individual theater. But do the exhibitors utilize their opportunities? A very few. The majority allow this matter to lay on the shelves of the exchange, and by their neglect discouraging the exchange from attempting to assist the exhibitor other than to supply him with the quality production.
>
> There is no excuse for the exhibitor to say "He does not know about these publicity helps," for this particular exchange is forever pounding at the exhibitor through its weekly organ and in personal letters to use them.
>
> Now, if an exhibitor uses this program and fails to use its many publicity helps and fails to secure his share of good business, is he fair toward the program when he states: "The pictures are great, but they don't get me the money?" And by the same token, is he even fair to himself?
>
> The average program exchange supplies a great deal of this matter absolutely free to the exhibitor, while the remainder is handled at actual cost. It is not an effort for additional revenue from the exhibitor, but in truth an effort toward additional revenue for the exhibitor.
>
> How can we make the exhibitor realize that he is throwing away a host of opportunities when he neglects to use these publicity helps? And how will we make him really "start something."

Mr. Furber is speaking particularly from the point of view of his own exchange, but he touches upon a matter that is just as live an issue in any part of the country with the exception, perhaps, that the New England exhibitors as a whole are not an enterprising class. But this is not a discussion of New England exhibitors. It's a matter that is country-wide, world-wide, in its appeal. The man who is going to make a flash with a couple of three sheets and a half a thousand heralds has no particular geographical section for his own. He lives all over the country and is the same man who cannot see the use in getting a vacuum cleaner when brooms may be purchased for a quarter. There are others who are intelligent enough to appreciate the value of advertising, but who are too lazy to hustle, even when they can have cuts and posters and all the other helps free. They want some one to write the ads and take them over to the printer and some one to arrange for locations and stick the paper. Mr. Furber is with the company handling the Metro releases for New England. The exchange builds up the company advertising with its own four-page sheet weekly, a sheet from which we have frequently clipped suggestions. The publication generally devotes considerable space to the advertising proposition, telling what may be had and how to use it. And with all that assistance the people do not use the material.

Now skip across country to Seattle. There Tom North runs the V-L-S-E exchange and gets out an eight-page weekly just to coax the patrons of the exchange please to get the value of the wares they pay for. He has to coax a man who pays him rental to use a little energy and get his full return. This does not mean all, of course, for North and Furber alike record the efforts of live wires as an incentive to the rest, but generally speaking the average patron does not get his full return because he does not go after it.

Back up a bit, over into Salt Lake City. George Editor Carpenter runs a bi-weekly, Real Reels. It is the same thing here. Wherever you turn on the page there is always the urgent suggestion that you advertise. Carpenter knows, as do the others, that the man who does not get the greatest good out of a rented film does not make as good a booster for the brand, and for the sake of the exchange as well as the exhibitor he tries to coax them to extend themselves.

Now Listen.

We have passed beyond the bonanza stage. The day is gone when any sort of a structure the police would permit to remain open was a theater. The time when any man who had a store room with a machine at one end and a screen at the other could make money is no more. A lot of old timers have been dropped and more are being closed up, merely because they do not keep pace with modern conditions.

It is no more possible to make real money without effort now than it is to pick up gold dollars on the streets. You must hustle.

Manufacturing companies do not supply free advertising helps merely because they are good hearted and so full of the milk of human kindness that they perspire butter as they run. They are supplying advertising material and paying men to urge its use because they realize that without advertising, and the best sort of advertising, at that, there will presently be too few exhibitors to rent films to. They are trying to save the short-sighted exhibitor to save their own skins, but that is all the more reason why the exhibitor should sit up and take notice. He should share the anxiety of the manufacturers and help them to save him by at least holding on to the life preserver that is thrown to him.

One exhibitor lately wrote that he realized that he should do more advertising, but that he could not afford to on a ten-cent admission. Why should he try? Make it fifteen cents or twenty or a quarter, advertise to prove that the films are worth the added price when an added price is charged, and the people will come and see and be convinced. That "Always five cents," or "Always ten cents," that so many still use as a slogan is a survival of the day when no film was worth much more than any other in the program. They were all one-reels and no features. There was nothing to make an especial appeal with. There was small chance to sell many extra prints over here and such enterprise as was shown was instigated by the additional profit that might come from the greater sales abroad.

Now all this has been changed. Standards have been raised until the public has come to demand better things, and in the main the public expects to pay more for additional merit. In some towns it actually hurts business to stick to the old prices. Fewer come at ten cents than would come at fifteen or twenty, but they must be advertised for. Advertising is the very essence of the business. The entire success of the film enterprise is based on advertising, the advertising of the maker to the user and the advertising of the exhibitor to the patron. The manufacturers are not only doing their own advertising, but they are doing half of the advertising for the exhibitor, and too many exhibitors will not even do the other half.

Take this clipping from Mr. Furber's organ (and it was not sent in as part of Mr. Furber's letter, but came in the regular course of sending out the mail list). It refers to the Pittsburgh office, but the idea is the same. The item reads:

> The Metro office of Pittsburgh, Pa., sends something real good, and so it is handed along for the benefit of New England exhibitors. Here is what an exhibitor was able to do by a little ingenious advertising in Parkersburg, W. Va., for his showing of Emily Stevens in "The Soul of a Woman."
>
> On his showing of the feature immediately preceding this, he did his usual amount of advertising and his gross receipts for the day were $55. The Pittsburgh exchange sent him the layout and cuts for a larger "ad" and told him to spend $25 extra in advertising, with the understanding that if the amount of his receipts did not justify the outlay, he would be repaid the extra $25 expended.
>
> He came back with the startling information that his receipts for the day were $286, the largest amount he has ever played to, except on a holiday, and his matinee was the biggest in the history of his theater; BUT LISTEN, he raised his price for this showing to 15 cents instead of 10 cents, which goes to show what METRO will do when properly advertised.

I claim that this can be done on a number of the Metro releases if the exhibitor does not want to increase his admission. "The Comeback" that so many exhibitors fear in raising admissions will not materialize just so long as the picture is of that quality that justifies the raise, and METRO PICTURES will stand by you in just that way. Try it and see.

Nineteen sixteen is going to see a lot of changes, and one of the chief changes will be the replacement of the non-advertiser by the five wire; the man who can figure that with five reels costing fifty dollars, advertising costing five and general expenses of thirty dollars he will show a profit of fifteen dollars on a hundred dollar gross, but that if another twenty-five is so spent in advertising that the film can back up and brings a two hundred dollar gross, the profit is ninety dollars.

Let us put it another way. A film program costs fifty dollars a day and without advertising brings that much extra business. The profit is the difference between the fifty dollar subject and the cost of a cheaper program, say half of that. This does not argue that the film is worth only twenty-five dollars more, because the better film, if advertised, will bring an additional advertising value that if capitalized will yield a larger profit.

The manufacturer advertises his films to the limit. The exhibitor who does not follow his example is cheating himself. He has the same opportunity and he is paying for that opportunity in increased rental price and yet he throws this opportunity away.

What makes you take blank features instead of a commercial service? It's not just that you must have better than commercial one-reels. You were appealed to by the advertising. Take the hint and appeal to your possible patrons in the same way. You can do more business and a larger percentage of the gross will be clean profit.

Make 1916 a hummer. You can do it by merely taking the advertising material you receive free and using it. It's just as simple as it sounds. And if it is not free; if it is put to you at cost, what difference does that make? Universal will sell you ready-made ads. You get the benefit of a high-priced expert writer of advertising for the cost of matrices. Why not use it? The manufacturer may not love you, but he is a business man and he wants you to live so he can sell films to you and he tries to help you to live by giving you advertising aid, and if you don't even help by taking it they'll have to put some one else in your place.

Those of you who remember the time when the General Film was not permitted by its own rules to give any advertising aid free and when they thought they were doing wonders in arranging with lithographers to get you paper, will remember that even then you had to be coaxed to use this paper instead of the "stock" stuff. But true-to-the-film lithographs did a great deal for the business; in many ways it was a potent factor in its salvation and now you can have all the help you need for little or nothing, and too few accept that aid even when it costs nothing.

Get in behind the band wagon. Blow your hardest and longest, but get a good horn that is in harmony with the remainder of the band. You are not advertising when you announce "Great show tonight."

Sense.

Possibly this may strike you as being funny, it is, in a way, but it has a serious side. It's George Editor Carpenter is Real Reels and he says:

One of our salesmen relates a story of an exhibitor in a small town who made an appointment for ten the next morning. When the time came the exhibitor's wife appeared with the information that her husband had gone off to doctor a sick cow belonging to a neighbor some six miles away. The cow died and the opposition house signed up.

You cannot serve two masters. You can be either a good veterinary surgeon or a good exhibitor. You can't be both.

It is part of a long article along the same lines, and we wish we had space for the rest. We know one exhibitor who runs his theatre when it is not running for the legislature and another who gives no matinees because he is working at his "regular job" daytimes. That doesn't pay. Make running a theatre your real and your only job.

Gorgeous.

R. B. Wilby comes out with his old Stramco Post, Montgomery, Ala., in a new form with a colored cover in four colors, not counting black and white. From the fact that it is eight and cover, it would seem that these covers must come from the Triangle and the same as Henegan covers. They are bizarre, but eye catching and holding, and Mr. Wilby, as usual, stuffs the covers with meat. The occasion is the change to Triangle pictures at the Strand, and most of the issue is given over to the Strand. One good scheme is repeating the Strand successes at the Plaza later on. Lots of pictures can play back to more money than at first showing, but some people will stay away. Offering them at a second house in the string is a capital solution of the problem.

If that cover is a Triangle scheme, it is an excellent one. It should be if it is not. If it is just Mr. Wilby's work he is certainly traveling at a rapid pace these days, but he generally does.

An Overflow.

The editor of the programs for the Rowland and Clark theaters, Pittsburgh, springs a new form of makeup. He wants to take a full page for the chief attraction and yet there are added features, so he runs the main title on the right-hand pages and an overflow on the left, the extra added attractions, getting a proper display for his features and yet avoiding the awkward "And other good films." The company has four houses and gets out an issue for each, two eights and a twelve-pager, and by a clever use of mortise and extra plates make it appear that each house has its own drawn front. The front is lettered in white on some color and at the bottom they run the name of the house and the title, "Film Forecast." By having these house names on special blocks, each seems to be a solid drawing with white rulings.

Just Starting.

H. S. Ellis, of the Masonic theater, Hinton, W. Va., sends in a six-page folder with the remark that it is his first and adds:

We do not send it to you because we are proud of its appearance or construction, but because it is the first. We see room for improvement ourselves and are going to change, but at the same time would appreciate your opinion.

They call it a vest pocket program, but we should like to see the vest it will fit, for it is three and a half by seven. The middle of the inside pages carries the program for the week, with days cut off by rule, but the days are not dated, the general date line at the top being required to cover the whole. It will be more effective to set the date under each day and then cut off the dated day from the program announcement with a bit of rule of the same two-point that is used for the cross lines. This will give a trimness to the appearance of the program which it now lacks, as the days are abbreviated and the thirty-six point "Mon." for instance looks intrusive in a box with nothing else larger than ten or twelve-point Roman. Setting the date apart will not cut it off from its program announcement and will give a better effect. Then, too, a display type should be used for the film titles and the names of the players, where mentioned, should be set in italic. The printer will use machine Roman where he can because it is easier, but don't let him. Kick. The display type in the same point will take no greater space. It will give a better effect. An ornamental face should also be used for the word "Program" at the top. Advertisements are run top and bottom on the side pages with about three and a half inches of house talk, and announcement between. One paragraph announces an investment in a new machine and screen and ends with: "We leave it to others to improve the pictures, but it was up to us to improve the projection, and we DID." This reads in the right spirit, but the same result could have been gained without the suggestion that the past projection was poor. It could have read: "No one but ourselves found fault with our projection, but we want to present the best pictures in the most satisfactory manner. It's worth the four hundred dollars to be able to give you the very best."

Another paragraph assumed a slightly apologetic tone because tastes differ and assures the reader that ten visits will prove to be a dollar's worth. The underlying point here is good, but there is too direct a suggestion that the patron is not always pleased. This should be avoided, as some incipient kickers need only a hint. Most of the items, though, are well done.

The front page should be torn apart and reset. The gothic "Picture Progress" should be replaced by a more attractive face, although the printing office does not seem to be very strong on fancy faces. The date and the name of the town should follow immediately, being cut off by rule. Here the date is in the middle of the page, but custom causes us to turn to the top of the page. The line need not be large, and should read "Hinton, W. Va. Week of Jan. 8-15." It is a better plan to take some name that will permit the name of the house to appear in the heading as "Masonic Theater Tidings" or some similar title. "Picture Progress" suggests a magazine and this is not a magazine but a folder. Getting the name of the house and the date at the top will permit more than half of the page to carry additional reading matter and here some smartly written house stuff would pay, or perhaps a running comment on the film for the week, to gain the interest of the reader before the folder is opened up. As it stands it is a good start.

Llewllyn Is Sore.

J. W. Llewllyn, inventor of the one-piece coat and skirt hanger, is sore. He used to run the theater at West Point, Ga., but the politicians showed a disposition to make things too interesting and he quit. Now he picks up a paragraph that seems to have been going the rounds. It reads:

CITY FIXES THEATER PRICES.

A unique variety of municipal regulation of moving picture interests is that which has been brought to light by W. C. Brandon, Atlanta branch manager of the V-L-S-E, at West Point, Ga. The city government of that community has fixed by statute the maximum admission which an exhibitor of motion pictures may charge.

This maximum is 10 cents, and in the event that the exhibitor insists that he cannot show a picture for that price, and he can prove to the city authorities that it has such exceptional merit as to warrant him charging more, he is required to pay the city a sum of $50 for the privilege. It is said that this ordinance was introduced because up until a short time ago there had never been any competition in the city, and the sole exhibitor in the place abused his position by charging the public 25 cents for inferior productions.

He writes that the productions shown at a quarter were "Les Miserables," "The Last Days of Pompeii" and "A Million Bid," while lesser features of note brought ten and twenty, and "Love, Luck and Gasoline," "Goodness Gracious" and "Seven Days" were shown for five and ten cents. West Point, Ga., must be a fine place for an exhibitor to work in. A test of the legality of the ordinance would probably terminate some political careers.

Simple, But Good.

The Emerald, Milan, Mo., does not spend much money for its house program, but Harry Porter, who does the publicity, writes that the little four page sheet has done its full share toward making the house known in the short time the theater has been opened. Probably he is right, for the house publication, particularly in a small town, seems to pull more business than any other form of publicity, week in and week out. Flash stuff will get more business now and then, but the house program makes and keeps business. This issue is three by seven inches; just a trifle too long for the width. If it is carried in the vest pocket it sticks out too far and if folded it gets lost, while it will not go into a woman's pocket book nicely. The days are not dated, which is always a mistake. The one light twelve point date on the front page should not be expected to serve the entire sheet. Each day should be dated.

The layout is good, though on the front page it is suggested that "Emerald Theater" be made two lines and a larger and slightly more ornamental type used. Inside the program runs as one sheet instead of two pages, three days to a half, the matter being written to fit the space. Sometimes this cuts off a big feature, but this is seldom and the better effect of an even balancing of the space offsets this very slight disadvantage. A neat and orderly layout attracts the eye and impresses even those who may not know why they are impressed.

The back page is sane house talk. There is one paragraph on ushering that other careful managers would do well to copy. It runs:

WE NEED YOUR HELP.

If you will tell the usher where you wish to sit he will do the best he can to please you. It is very embarrassing to the usher when he is taking you to seats to have you stop several rows behind him and find seats for yourself. If you will help him the result will be more satisfying to everyone. If possible, you should come early and secure seats before the show starts and while the house is brightly lighted.

We have a phone in the ticket office at your service. No. 61.

Then back this up by telling the usher to ask the patron as to his preference before starting down the aisle and he will be less likely to get lost and walk overtime.

A Costly Throwaway.

Hal Kelley, of the Gilbert, Beatrice, Neb., sends in what he calls a "throwaway." The definition of a throwaway is a piece of advertising cheaply printed that it may be thrown broadcast. Mr. Kelley seems to know this, too, for he explains:

Just a sample of one of our "throwaways," of which we get out one each week. These things, of course, cost us a trifle more than a print paper handbill, but they pay the excess themselves in their greater utility. We print 2,000 for each of the shows and after thoroughly billing the town by the house to house method we have plenty left for the store windows, the hotel rooms, dining room tables, etc. They get us results.

What the advertising really is, is a window card of small size. It is cream colored, fabric-finished card of a really good grade, 6x7½ inches, printed in brown and bordered in light blue, the light blue that most perfectly harmonizes with the brown. It is neat and yet showy, and it most assuredly does cost more than a print paper throwaway, but it returns its cost, and that is the real test. It is an exceptionally pretty sample of work and the printer rose to the occasion and made good on his end, too. The house carries five acts of vaudeville and three reels of pictures, but offers better than the average vaudeville.

It would seem that the bill is too costly for a distribution of 2,000 a week unless the printer steals the card stock, but it assuredly will make more business than a cheaply printed throwaway.

Another Folder.

F. J. Croxall, of the Apollo, Los Angeles, sends in a program, a six-page paper folder, for comment. It carries six advertisements of an inch and a half each, and the rest is taken by the house, the pages being 7½x3½. The issue is distributed on Saturdays and the Sunday program is carried on the front page. Inside the three pages are divided between five shows by giving a cut on the center page for the Wednesday attraction and running Monday and Tuesday and Thursday and Friday on either side. The Saturday program appears on the other side, also with a cut. The arrangement is neat and the program, while not at all pretentious, is clean cut and good. It would be better to reverse the order of the back pages, however, to let the Saturday program come on the page that faces the reader as he opens the folder.

Gets Ten in Denver.

E. M. Erwin, of the Colfax, Denver, sends in his first and second issues of his house program, and adds that his is the first house in the suburbs of Denver to get ten cents every day. They have been getting ten for features for about a year and a half, but now they ask and get ten cents every day. Denver is a cheap picture town, but these days all of the houses should be ten cents. We are glad to see one neighborhood house set the example.

Mr. Erwin writes that he is just feeling his way in these early issues, but he found his way into the right track. The first, second and fourth pages are chat of films or about the house. The third page is largely program by days, run single column and turned into the second column. The third page (and not the second) is where the program properly belongs, even if the second page does seem to be the better position. It is the third page that is first seen in opening up, and Mr. Erwin works on the right idea. He gets all of the necessary information as to location, prices, times of performance and feature days down and he gets an issue that will help him to keep the price up. It is really an intelligent effort for a new issue and the minor points wherein he may improve are very minor indeed. We will be glad to see later issues for so good a start argues progress.

Third Best.

If we had the bossing of the program of the Columbia, Victoria, B. C., we think we would change it and have the third page first, because it is better looking than the front page. Compare these two pages, and see which you think will attract attention the more quickly. A new stunt is to offer two dollars for the best joke for the program. It makes a lot of talk and probably causes the management to read a lot of junk, but in return they get the program read. The program also falls in with the times with an appeal for recruits in one issue and for contributions to the relief fund in another. This is better than the lottery schemes they use for attracting. Business built on an appeal to the gambling spirit is rarely lasting and if you bet you must keep on raising the ante.

Enterprise.

Tom North, of the Seattle V-L-S-E exchange, suggested to his patrons that they make a selection from a list of films open for Christmas week and to do it at once. About the time the exhibitor started to think it over he received a telegraph envelope by mail and inside was a telegram ready printed except for the titles of the films selected. A foot note urged the recipient to fill in and send to the nearest telegraph office, the company having made arrangements with the Western Union that all such wires should be accepted collect. He cannot very well improve on this scheme unless he sends along a stenographer with a machine to fill in the message. The Seattle Pals is constantly urging its clients to advertise uniquely and Mr. North evidently practices what he preaches.

Other Ads.

W. E. L. Reeger, of the Theatorium, Mt. Carmel, Pa., says something when he sends in some programs with a letter explaining that he also uses newspaper space and adds:

The rest of our advertising is done in the theater by giving excellent projection, good music and courteous treatment to all.

That's about the best advertising he can get so it is not surprising that he adds that business is good.

The programs are not pretentious, one being a vest pocket six page folder and the others a four page 4½ by 7 sheet. We like the folder better than the larger issues. It is handy, makes up well and still gives more room for house chat.

A NEW HELP FOR MANAGERS

Picture Theatre Advertising

By EPES WINTHROP SARGENT (Conductor of Advertising for Exhibitors in the Moving Picture World)

A TEXT BOOK AND A HAND BOOK, a compendium and a guide. It tells all about advertising, about type and type-setting, printing and paper, how to run a house program, how to frame your newspaper advertisements, how to write form letters, posters or throwaways, how to make your house an advertisement, how to get matinee business, special schemes for hot weather and rainy days. Mr. Sargent tells all he knows and this includes what several hundred successful exhibitors have told him. More than 100 examples. An introduction and then 200 pages of solid text. All practical because it has helped others. It will help you. Handsome clothboard binding. By mail, postpaid, $2.00.

Moving Picture World, 17 Madison Ave., New York

THE PHOTOPLAYWRIGHT

Conducted by EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

Inquiries.

Questions concerning the writing (but NOT the marketing) of photoplays will be replied to without charge if addressed to the Photoplaywright Department and accompanied by a fully addressed stamped envelope. Questions must be typewritten or written with pen and ink.

Questions as to the financial standing of concerns or the probable markets for specific or certain styles of stories cannot be answered.

In no case and under no circumstance will any manuscript or synopsis be handled and if sent will be returned without reply.

A list of addresses of producing companies will be sent if the request is made direct to the publication office, but not where request is made to this department.

Premises.

MODESTLY asking nothing else, a correspondent wants to know what a premise is, and how to reverse premises to get a new plot. It's a simple little thing, but not quite as simple as it looks.

In the first place, the dictionary gives: "a proposition to reason from. A proposition antecedently assumed and laid down."

In photoplay the premises are the facts you establish before you start to fill in the actions; a statement of the facts of your story. Briefly stated, the facts of Camille are that—

1—Armand falls in love with Camille, a woman of the half world.

2—His love is returned.

3—His infatuation interferes with the marriage of Armand's sister.

4—His father visits Camille and persuades her, for the sake of her love, to give him up.

5—She does so and accepts the attentions of another man, Armand's rival.

6—He denounces her.

7—Grief hastens consumption.

8—Armand, learning the truth, comes to her as she is dying .

These are the premises of the story of Camille. To get a new story, reverse one or more. As a rule the earlier in the story the reversed premise occurs, the more marked is the departure from the original. Take premise one. Armand does not fall in love with Camille. At once we get the start of an entirely different story. Or reverse the latter half. She is loved, but she is not a woman of the half world. Here, again, we have the suggestion of a new line of thought.

If Armand does not love Camille, then we might have as the development her efforts to win his love. If she were not of the half world, then we might have the start of an ordinary romance. It might be worked in a variety of ways.

Reverse proposition two. Camille does not love Armand. If she did not love him, she would not, in four, respond to the appeal to that affection. She would not give Armand up, because her pretended affection would be based on the selfish desire to profit by her affair. Here, at once, we get a story of a vastly different type.

The reversal of number six might, again, give us a new ending to the story already told. We could show how Armand, instead of casting her from him, seeks to win her back. It becomes a four cornered fight between Armand, Camille, his father and her new lover. The ending must be different.

Sometimes the dropping of a premise will serve the same purpose as a reverse. Suppose that proposition three is dropped. Armand loves Camille and she him. There is no sister whose marriage is threatened through his action. This third premise largely motivates the action. It gives the reason for the action of the elder Duval. It gives the reason for Camille's sacrifice. She would lose sympathy if she threw over the man she loves merely because his father objected for no well founded reason other than her lack of morals. Either premise three must be retained, or some better premise found. It will not be an easy matter, for the appeal in Camille is the tremendous sacrifice she makes of her love and the object of her affection to a young girl who has the virtue she lacks and yet admires and respects. The sacrifice is impersonal and therefore greater than if based on more personal and perhaps more cogent reasons. It is easy to upset the other premises, but this girl, who does not appear in the play, is the mainspring of the story. We cannot drop her without offering a stronger motive or else weakening the story.

Perhaps the father urges her to give him up because Armand's health requires that he travel. Then why cannot she go along? The reason for this motive seems strong until we get the counter question. Were Armand destined for the priesthood, there would be a strong motive, but it is improbable that Camille would give him to the church. If she did, the opening premise would have to be added to and written that she was a woman of the half world, but intensely religious. That would give a reason why the lady of pleasure resigned her one honest love affair; her love for Armand and her respect for the Chuch would combine to impel the sacrifice. Here, too, we would get a story of a vastly different type.

Any story may be reduced to a series of premises, if it is not started in that manner, and the change in any major premise will give a new turn to the action, whether the change be reversal or replacement.

That is how it should be done. The rest is merely a matter of ability and practice.

We have gotten an informative paragraph out of the question, so we register no complaint, but we wonder if it never occured to the correspondent to look in a dictionary for a definition. Even if he expected to find premises defined as a house and lot, he might have taken the chance.

Probabilities.

Lately an inquirer asked if a plot he had written was too unreal to be acceptable. We did not read the plot, because we have made that rule and it goes, but we told him that if it had him guessing, it probably was.

That could be one test of probability. You are told to get the unusual, and you must, but the unusual and the impossible are two quite different things. Take the triangle story in one of its forms. It is not usual for married women to run away with another man, but it is proved in the papers that it is by no means impossible. But it seems to us impossible that she would carry along her husband on her elopement. It really is possible, but it will not be accepted as a possibility. Many stories might be written about elopements that would differ from the majority, but you do not expect to see the husband along on the second honeymoon.

You must get something that will be accepted as fact by 95% of the spectators. You cannot cater to the brilliant minded other 5%. Take it as a rule, then, that if you have your doubts, your worst fears will be verified.

Registers Again.

If you don't know what a word means, do not use it. Do not try to sound knowing and professional when you are merely showing yourself up. Lots of authors think that when they say "register" they are showing the director that they are familiar with technical terms, when they have a reverse effect. A recent scene reads:—

4—BEDROOM—John lying in bed—calls out as if calling his wife—sinks back on the pillows—registers great pain.

To be consistent John should have registered that he was calling his wife, but that, too, would be wrong. A scene "registers" if the action of the player conveys the idea required by the author. It registers if it gets over, but the action tells what must be registered, it does not tell the actor to register it. He knows that he must or get fired, so he is told what to do and if it registers, then he has done it properly. Doubtless the author of the scene thought this gave a very professional look, but even if it did, it would be nullified by the action of "calling out as if calling his wife." We do not believe that the man would call any differently when calling his wife than when he calls the trained nurse or the hired girl. As a matter of fact, all that he can show in action is that he calls. The action of other scenes must show whom he calls. If the wife was in the room earlier and leaves the scene and then this follows, we can gather from the two scenes that he seeks to call her back, but all he can show is that he is calling, though the direction in which he turns his face may help.

In a duplication of the scene the author says that "John sinks back on the pillows as if in great pain." He does nothing of the sort. John sinks back on the pillow in great pain. It is the actor who sinks back on the pillows as if in pain. He is acting as though in pain, so he acts as though he suffered and the action registers, but the script tells what the character does, not what the man who plays the character does. The character is in great pain. He does not register the fact. He suffers and that is all there is to it.

In other words the script does not describe the acting, but the action that is to be acted. We do not say that John, lying in bed, pretends to wake up. We say that John is in bed and wakes up. Then the actor who plays John does the pretending. An appreciation of this difference will show clearly why such terms as register are incorrectly used in a script.

Perhaps so slight a point is not worth all this trouble and space, but on the other hand it is worth taking a little trouble to know what you are doing and why. Learn at the start to write correctly and you will write correctly by instinct. Develop faults and they are hard to get rid of.

Even professional writers do careless work. One professional the other day was asked for a sample sheet of script and he had to look over more than a hundred pages before he could find a sheet that was clear of all breaks. Most of them had one or two slovenly phrases. But that is no excuse for the student not starting right, for the professional was one of those who mostly had to build technique rather than learn it.

Technique of the Photoplay

(Second Edition)

By EPES W. SARGENT

Not a line reprinted from the first edition, but an entirely new and exhaustive treatise of the Photoplay in its every aspect, together with a dictionary of technical terms and several sample scripts.

One hundred and seventy-six pages of actual text.

Special chapters on Developing the "Punch," Condensing the Script, Writing the Synopsis, Multiple Reel Stories, Talking Pictures, Copyrights, etc.

In cloth, two dollars. Full leather, three dollars.

By mail postpaid. Add ten cents if registration is desired.

Address all Orders to

THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD

17 Madison Avenue, New York City

Projection Department

Conducted by F. H. RICHARDSON

Operators' Union Directory, I. A. T. S. E.

NOTICE.—Each union is entitled to have its roster of officers, meeting nights, etc., listed here once per year, free of cost. Preserve this list as it will not be republished. The mail address of the secretary should be included, and the address of regular meeting place, if any.

Local Union, Gadsden, Ala.

Samuel V. Bacon, president; Joe Price, vice-president; James E. Friese, recording secretary; F. L. Price, treasurer; J. K. Junk, sergeant-at-arms. Meetings held in Stocks Building.

Manufacturers' Notice.

It is an established rule of this department that no apparatus or other goods will be endorsed or recommended editorially until the excellence of such articles has been demonstrated to its editor.

Important Notice.

Owing to the mass of matter awaiting publication it is impossible to reply through the department in less than two to three weeks. In order to give prompt service, those sending four cents, stamps (less than actual cost), will receive carbon copy of the department reply, by mail, without delay. Special replies by mail on matters which cannot be replied to in the department one dollar.

Both the first and second set of questions are now ready and printed in neat booklet form, the second half being seventy-six in number. Either booklet may be had by remitting 25 cents, money or stamps, to the editor, or both for 40 cents. Cannot use Canadian stamps. Every live, progressive operator should get a copy of these questions. You may be surprised at the number you cannot answer without a lot of study.

Important Notice.

About February first—exact date will be given later—the editor will visit Schenectady, N. Y.; Cleveland, Ohio; Chicago, Ill., and St. Louis, Mo., returning by some other route.

This trip is undertaken with a view of getting first hand knowledge of certain apparatus manufactured in Schenectady, Cleveland, Chicago and St. Louis. On this trip it will be a pleasure to the editor to meet with such locals as may desire to have him do so. I will be more than glad to hear from locals who would like to arrange a meeting at which the editor can address the men on the subject of projection, and I am quite sure that if a series of such meetings can be arranged considerable good can be accomplished. It will, however, be absolutely necessary that the matter be taken up immediately, and arrangements made.

The route I will return by will depend on the arrangements made with the various organizations as to meetings of this kind. I would like to meet with as many as possible in order that the greatest amount of good may be accomplished.

Question No. 120.

Best answer will be published, and the names of others sending in replies of excellence will appear in the Roll of Honor. Theater managers looking for high class men will do well to watch the Roll of Honor.

What do you understand by the expression "my shutter cuts 50 per cent. of the light?" What do you understand by a "6 to 1" intermittent movement? What relation is there between the speed of the intermittent movement and the proportions of the shutter blades? What relation is there between intermittent speed and flicker?

Roll of Honor on Question No. 114.

The Roll of Honor on question 114 consists of Joseph H. M. Smith, Fort Worth, Texas; W. C. Crawford, Brooklyn, New York; A. H. Cuff, Gravenhurst, Canada; F. H. Marx, Ashland, Wisconsin; G. Betz, Osgood, Indiana; W. E. Bryner, Springfield, Illinois; T. C. Shipley, Lincoln, Nebraska; Wilson Hays, Barton, Maryland; M. W. Larmour, Waco, Texas; L. C. LaGrow, Albany, New York; T. Richards, Blaine, Washington; Alex T. Case, Corning, California; M. Nosti, Tampa, Florida, and A. D. Hotaling, Orlando, Florida.

The reply of Brother Larmour has been selected for publication.

Reply to Question No. 114.

By M. W. Larmour, Waco, Texas.

The Question:

How many lenses are there in the objective? Explain fully. Suppose you got them mixed after cleaning, how would you tell "which is which," and which surface to place toward the screen? How and how often ought your lenses to be cleaned?

The Answer:

There are four lenses in a projection objective. The two next to the film are separated by a small spacing collar, but the two next the screen are cemented together, so that to the casual observer they would appear as one lens. These lenses should be assembled in the order shown in the accompanying sketch with the surface of greatest convex next the screen. With respect to each other starting at the end of the lens barrel next the film we first put in the concave-convex with the convex surface next the screen. Then comes the separating collar followed by the biconvex. By examining the lens which goes into the front end closely you will observe the dividing line where the two lenses are attached to each other. This is very close to one edge of the combined lens and it is this side that goes toward the screen, or, another way, is place the most convex side toward the screen.

The frequency with which lenses should be cleaned varies so greatly with different conditions that it is difficult to state any rule which will apply to all cases. They should, however, be kept scrupulously clean both inside and out. It is an excellent idea to polish the outside surface of the lens once every day, or oftener if it collects oil or dust. The lens should be taken apart and cleaned thoroughly on the inner surface perhaps once in sixty days. The best method is to clean the lens with a mixture of half water and half alcohol, or water and ammonia, polishing afterwards with a soft perfectly clean cloth, tissue paper, or chamois skin. The use of acids even in diluted form should be scrupulously avoided.

American Made Carbons.

The Speer Carbon Company, St. Mary's, Pennsylvania, has taken considerable pains to convince this department of the excellence of its projection carbons, which are made in all the various sizes, both solid and cored.

Among other things the company has, at my request, sent samples of carbons to C. A. Dann, Toronto, Canada; L. C. LaGrow, Albany, N. Y., and John Griffiths, Ansonia, Conn., for testing. Brother Dann, after making an exhaustive test, reports favorably, as does also Brother LaGrow; moreover, I have seen letters from a very considerable number of other operators, all of whom express satisfaction with the Speer product.

Brother Griffiths' report was not favorable, but, in view of the foregoing facts, I am inclined to believe he may have gotten hold of some carbons that were not up to the mark, a thing which I find will occasionally occur with all makes of carbons. Brother LaGrow says:

> After an extensive and complete trial of the carbons I can unhesitatingly say that, point for point, they are the best I have ever used. The light is of a different quality from that of any other I have tried, having a restful, bluish tint. Flaming and flashing was entirely absent. These carbons will not, however, I think, stand excessive overload, though I do not call that a fault. They (the ⅝ inch cored) begin to deposit glass and to needle at about 55 amperes A. C. Whether this is due to the binder or to the baking I am not prepared to say. My field is 13 x 9 feet; my throw 70; current A. C. Best results obtained from 40 amperes, which means about .32 amperes per square foot.

In view of these facts I feel that this department is fully justified in recommending the Speer carbon to the favorable consideration of operators and of managers.

Pile of Instruction.

G. W. Walker, Ellenville, New York, says:

> Have received a pile of instruction from the department and the Handbook, and this letter is in appreciation of same. Am running a new Simplex with new motor attachment, taking current through a Hallberg economizer. Get an excellent 12 foot picture at 55 feet. I like the Simplex very much. Enclosed find some "junk" which may come in handy if you run short of matter. Best wishes for a Merry Christmas.

The "junk" was conspicuous by its absence, but good Lord, man, don't talk to us about "running short;" it is all the other way. I am between the devil and the deep sea practically all the time trying to decide which out of the mass of stuff that reaches me will best serve the purpose of the department.

How to Do It.

L. Rosenberg, Seattle, Washington, says:

> Have 3,000 feet of brand new developed positive film which I want to make black, or any other opaque color, so that it may be used for leaders and tail pieces. Can you suggest a way to do this?

I am not sure, Brother Rosenberg, but one of the Edison men who ought to know says he thinks it can be done by soaking the film in what is known as "Direct Black," which you have your druggist obtain from the National Chemical Company's office, 50 Church street, New York City. I also referred this matter to the Berlin Aniline Works, New York City, who reply as follows:

> The black dye which we formerly sold for making opaque leaders is not to be had at this time. As you are doubtless aware there is at the present time a great scarcity of all aniline colors. We have been working on a process for turning the film opaque black, but it is unsuccessful, owing to the fact that it hardens the gelatine on the film too much. The only suggestion we could make, and one which is now being used with a fair degree of satisfaction, is to clean the film out in a bleaching bath made up of copper sulphate, water and salt, subsequently passing it through the hypo bath. This makes the film clear, and it may be then dyed in any color aniline bath you may desire, thus producing a colored leader, though not an opaque one. This is the only suggestion we can offer until we have worked out a further process for the securing of opaqueness in the film.

This is all I am able to offer on this particular subject at this particular time. Sorry, Brother Rosenberg, but I have done all I could do in the matter. Your local photograph sharps can tell you how to mix the bleaching bath and how to apply it.

Durham, North Carolina.

Clarence F. Dority, Durham, North Carolina, writes:

> Here is a little news from the "Bull" city, together with some dope on the condenser. I have been reading the World for five years; also have your Handbook and the Hawkins' Guide. We have a 12 foot 10 inch picture at 86 feet, using a 6 inch E. F. objective, and 6½ and 7½ condensers, with 16 inches from center of condenser combination to the film; 4½ inches from the arc to center of combination. Have practically no chromatic aberration with a 2 inch spot, but if I make it smaller a little color appears. Use 40 amperes D. C. through a Fort Wayne converter. Am considering trying out the meniscus-bi-convex combination and would like you to suggest what size to get to suit my conditions. We have a Preddy mount. There are three theaters in Durham, two using D. C.; all use Power's Six A projectors. Projection is, I think, very good.

Your spot too large, which means waste of light. I would suggest that you match up your lens as per Table No. 1, October 16th issue. If you cannot do it, then get an objective of larger diameter. I have not yet got the dope that would tell me exactly what you would need in meniscus-bi-convex. Better tell the dealer just what your conditions are, and let him dope it out—he should be able to. I intend to see if I cannot fix up a table which will give the comparative results as between meniscus-bi-convex and plano-convex.

Can It Be True?

Virgil LaVern, better known as "Curley" LaVern, writes from Washington, Indiana, sending in film faults, which have been duly forwarded to the headquarters controlling the offending exchange. In the course of his remarks Brother LaVern says that Vincennes, Ind., union operators are working for from seven to eight dollars per week. Friend LaVern wants to know when the Handbook will be out.

With regard to Friend LaVern's statement concerning operators' salaries in Vincennes, Ind., it is not at all a fair one, nor is it a true one. The Vincennes operators are organized in Local 572, I. A. T. S. E., and are getting along very nicely, everything considered. They are not biting off more than they can chew, and are pursuing the right course in taking things slowly. These men only work from 2½ to 3 hours in the evening, and whereas I have always held that that fact should not make any material difference in salaries paid, for the reason that an operator cannot be expected to work in the day time and then work at night until ten or eleven o'clock, therefore he must make his living by operating, regardless of whether he works all day or only in the evening. It must be remembered that it takes a lot of time to educate managers to that point of view; nor could the evening-only operator ever be expected to reach as high a point in salaries as can be reached by men who work eight hours, because the revenue of the evening-only theater is seldom such as will justify the payment of salaries equal to the all-day house. In this connection it might be noted, to the credit of the Vincennes men, that although business has been very poor in that city during the past year, still they have lined up the new theater which has just been erected, not only as regards the operators, but on the stage also. The union holds classes for its members, who use both the Hawkins' Guide and the Handbook, supplemented by literature sent out by projector manufacturers.

As to the film splices I have sent them where they will be presumed to do the most good.

Artisan of Projection.

Alfred D. Myers, New York City, proposes a new title for expert projectionists. He says:

> "De luxe," "epoch making," "acme" and other high sounding words and phrases have been prefixed to high class feature photoplays by the companies who have in some cases asked the public to pay as much as two dollars for the best seats at the Broadway rendition of these plays, although later on the same picture may be seen for as low as five cents in the "cheaper" theater, where they have abused the above prefixes for advertising purposes.
>
> Nevertheless the high grade feature photoplay at the better price is in some instances well worth the additional fee. Why? The answer is easy. It is a stupendous production, with an all star cast, presented in a beautiful and comfortable theater, in which the patron is surrounded with luxury, his needs met by the most courteous of attendants, while large orchestras render beautiful music, using high class instruments, expensive organs, and last but by no manner of means least, a real operator presents the production on the screen in the best possible manner, so that the tout ensemble equals and in some instances surpasses the most elaborate stage productions.
>
> For these productions the scenario must be the best possible, therefore the price paid for it is the best, likewise the director who produces it must be above the ordinary of directors, in fact, the best there is; the actors who play it must be artists in their line, and the cameramen who take it must be ne plus ultra of their craft. Then, too, the camera lens must be the very best, the scenery, properties, electrical and mechanical devices must be perfect, and at the last—the very last end of things—the best of operating room equipment and projection machines are used, which must be in charge of the very best operators obtainable, and thus we see that everybody connected with or employed in the producing and presenting of these high class photoplays is given careful consideration, and selected almost entirely with reference to quality and excellence rather than with reference to price.
>
> All this has brought to my mind the thought that the operator who is deemed capable of taking charge of the projection of such expensive, high class photoplays might be justly entitled to style himself an "Artisan of Projection."
>
> This title might cause some to smile, yet why not accept it as applying to the advanced operator, the same as we apply the title of electrical engineer to the advanced electrician? Or the same as some installation men at the heads of departments with projection machine companies have arrogated to themselves the title "projection engineer." However, the operator would have no just cause for assuming such title unless he feels fully competent, through study, experience and ability, to uphold it to the fullest extent, and once having assumed such title it would be very much up to the individual to strive to maintain the reputation for excellence in work which must necessarily accompany it, else the title would, as applied to him, quickly become a misnomer and a joke. Out of approximately 1,900 licensed moving picture machine operators in Greater New York there are perhaps as many as one hundred who may be justly classed as having earned the right to bear the title "Artisan of Projection."

Well, gentlemen, this is not, in my judgment, a bad idea. Brother Myers is right when he says the man who studies and works hard, to the end that he may produce uniformly high class results on the screen, is justly entitled to call himself an artist in projection, or an Artisan of Projection. The Electrical Engineer who has full and complete technical knowledge is an electrician, but having wider range of knowledge than the ordinary electrician, calls himself an Electrical Engineer. The same thing is true of other crafts, so why not of the moving picture machine operator?

Abuse of Film.

The editor is in receipt of a lengthy letter from Harry C. Drum, assistant general manager, World Film Corporation, New York City:

> Dear Mr. Richardson—I most heartily endorse the article, "The Abuse of Films," page 1659, November 27th issue. I am most heartily in accord with your views in these matters, and grant you that very often exchange managers are inclined to disregard the inspection of films. I want, however, to assure you that whether or not other companies are doing likewise, this company is taking steps to insure the proper inspection of films, and doing it in such manner that I am certain that we will ultimately eradicate any possibility of our film reaching the operator in anything but first class condition. As an instance of just how deeply we are going into this, I am enclosing an extract from our Weekly House Organ, which is issued to our employes all over the country, directing your attention particularly to the marked article, which was inserted in the bulletin last week following the receipt of the two letters from yourself. I have even gone so far as to insert another article, somewhat similar to the one enclosed, in our general book of instructions, and have personally written several letters to exchange managers. We have our division managers as well as the branch managers on the watch with regard to the condition of films, yet it is still possible that some of our managers may be careless, but you may rest assured that if they are, the fault will be corrected in the very near future, since we fully realize that the value of the film lies very largely in just how it appears on the screen.
>
> It is, however, necessary to the highest degree of efficiency that we shall have the co-operation of the operator and this we are in every possible way attempting to obtain. * * * This company has always seen to it that the small house, using old films, get their films in first class condition. We have even sent out reprints of subjects as much as a year old, rather than send the older, damaged prints to the small exhibitor. I have just O.K'd a requisition for more than two thousand dollars of reprints for a branch office. In addition to this we maintain a special repair department, which I assure you is extremely expensive, and are constantly experimenting with fluids and preservers which will help to keep our films in better condition. We require our offices to send their films to our repair department for new parts and a general overhauling as soon as the film begins to show any wear whatsoever, which is, I believe, evidence that we are quite willing to bear the loss of service from these films in order to have them kept in good condition.

I bring these various points to your attention, only to more forcibly bring out what we are demanding of the operator, which is that if we are willing to go to this expense, should not he, the operator, be willing to do his share in keeping the films in the best possible condition while in his possession, and should not the theater owner have, if necessary, interest enough to see to it that his operator does this? It is just as vital to the theater owner as to us, if not more so, that the film appear properly on his screen. If HIS operator abuses the film the exhibitor following must bear the brunt of the abuse, always assuming the film is so badly injured that it cannot be properly repaired. To put it more forcibly, let us say that if the operator in the theater ahead of the exhibitor who is going to use the film tonight scratches the film, strains its sprocket holes, or does other injury which cannot be repaired, then that film is going to appear badly on the exhibitor's screen, and naturally this exhibitor will feel hurt, and blame the exchange, where in reality the fault lay in the house which used the film ahead of him. Now if his operator in turn abuses the film some other exhibitor must suffer, and so on down the line.

WITH THE PLACE IN THE BUSINESS WORLD WHICH THE MOTION PICTURE INDUSTRY HAS ATTAINED, AND WITH THE MILLIONS UPON MILLIONS OF PEOPLE WHO ARE DEPENDENT UPON IT AS THEIR SOLE SOURCE OF THEATRICAL AMUSEMENT, CERTAINLY YOU WILL AGREE THAT WE OUGHT TO REALIZE MORE FULLY OUR RESPONSIBILITY AND THE POSSIBILITY OF ORGANIZED EFFORT TO KEEP THE BUSINESS ON A HIGHER STANDARD, PHYSICALLY AS WELL AS FROM A PRODUCTION STANDPOINT, AND THE OPERATOR IS AN EVEN GREATER FACTOR THAN HE THINKS HE IS IN THIS PARTICULAR MATTER. I BELIEVE I AM SAFE IN SAYING THAT IF WE HAD A HIGH TYPE OF OPERATOR IN EVERY OPERATING ROOM, FILMS WOULD LAST FULLY TWICE AS LONG AS THEY DO, AND APPEAR TWICE AS WELL ON THE SCREEN AS THEY DO; ALSO IN THE LONG RUN ALL EXHIBITORS MUST SUFFER IN COMMON IF THEY DO NOT ABSOLUTELY DEMAND THE RIGHT TREATMENT OF FILMS BY THEIR OPERATORS.

They may say carelessly: "Why should I worry when I am through with the films?" Well, if they but stopped to consider that if they are continually going to turn over films, which they have not taken care of, to their fellow-exhibitors, those same fellow-exhibitors are going to do the same identical thing to them, so that their own screen will continually show the effects of carelessness of operators and managers in general.

IN THE LONG RUN WE HAVE A COMMON, OR COMMUNITY OF INTEREST WHICH SOONER OR LATER MUST BALANCE, AND EVERYONE MUST SUFFER AS THE GRADE OF OPERATING THROUGHOUT THE COUNTRY RISES OR FALLS.

Your own work in the projection department of the Moving Picture World, as well as in your books, has been of very material benefit, and is one of, or practically, the leading factor in raising the trade or profession of operating to a higher level. Too much cannot be done toward awakening operators to a sense of their responsibility, and the importance of the service which they render to the moving picture industry in general, not only by high class projection, but also by the careful preservation of the films they use.

I, personally, and in behalf of my company, wish to express my gratitude for the daily increased number of operators who are realizing their responsibility, and using their utmost efforts to keep the films in the best possible condition while in their charge. Unfortunately, however, there still remains a great many operators who are only working for the salary they draw at the end of the week, without any regard whatsoever as to the ethics of their profession, and without any consideration for the exchange or their fellow-operators and exhibitors. Sooner or later I feel sure this class will be crowded out by the more efficient and competent men, and that exhibitors, too, will realize their responsibility, and select the better, more efficient, competent, and careful operator, even at an increased salary.

It is also regretable that a great many of the careless type of operator, as well as many of the exchange managers, allow a personal element to enter, and seek to vent their displeasure at each other, the one by damaging the films, and the other by sending out films in bad condition. I am aware of the fact that instances of this character have been brought to your attention, and most certainly such actions, either on the part of the exchange manager or operator, cannot be too bitterly condemned. It shows an extremely narrow, selfish mind. Theater managers are, however, thanks to the good work of big public-spirited men like yourself, beginning to see that such things cannot possibly be allowed, and are getting rid of the men who do it. On the other hand the men themselves are beginning to see that such things are not profitable, and we are therefore obtaining a higher degree of efficiency all round.

Your editorial, "The Abuse of Films," should bring good results, and cannot fail to strike home to any intelligent person. If any operator be not absolutely deaf to all sense of honor and efficiency, it cannot fail to awaken in him a new interest in his work, and a new determination to better handle each film that comes to him. I sincerely trust that there might be other articles along this line, and am certain they cannot fail to have great results.

I most heartily commend Mr. Drum's letter to every operator, theater and exchange manager in the United States and Canada. Every word of it is good, solid truth, which ought to hit you right between the eyes if you are guilty of the abuse of films, the matter capitalized being, it seems to me, a regular bludgeon of truth which ought to be emphasized. It has taken this department a long, long time to awaken the interest of the exchanges and producers, but it is coming, gentlemen, and the time is fast approaching when, as Mr. Drum says, the careless, inefficient, incompetent theater manager, operator and exchange manager is going to be literally crowded out of the business, and I, for one, will most heartily welcome that day. My compliments to Mr. Drum. The moving picture industry needs more men like him, who do not see things through a knot hole, but have a broad, comprehensive vision, which puts the welfare of the moving picture industry, which is supplying all of us, little and big, high and low salaried, our daily bread, above the selfish interest of the individual.

Running Continuous.

Frank F. Walter, 1106 North avenue, Milwaukee, Wisconsin, writes:

> Notice in the issue of November 13th where Clarence J. Koetting, Genevieve, Mo., wants to run continuous. If he, or anyone else wishes to learn to do that, I will, without charge, teach them, but they must enclose stamped envelope. I will guarantee to run continuous with 1,000 feet reels, and the only cost is about three dollars for material, which they do not have to buy of me. Running 1,000 foot reels is a relief, and ordinarily the machine will pull 1,000 feet easier than 2,000. Understand, I have no device to sell, though I will have to make a drawing for each reply.

Well, Brother Walter, I don't quite understand whether you mean that you can run a six-reel show continuous with one machine, or merely run one 1,000 foot reel continuous. If you can do this, why not give us the dope through the department, and thus save the trouble of a lot of correspondence? We will be glad to have it, and will give it due publicity, crediting the matter to you, of course.

Wiring Diagram.

San Francisco, California, says:

> Attached find diagram of my operating room wiring. For the projection lamp I am using from 38 to 40 amperes, and on the stereopticon lamps, which are in series, 32 to 34 amperes. Moving picture arc burns on ¾ top and ⅝ inch lower carbons. Am waiting for the new edition of the Handbook, and would also like to know price of Hawkins' Electrical Guide.

I am not publishing the diagram, my brother, because it is not correct. Your rheostat connection is made in a way that does not really mean anything, and you seem to have a rheostat connected to each stereopticon lamp, with both lamps working off the D. C. side of the mercury arc rectifier.

I don't know the price of the Handbook yet. They tell me it will be from 800 to 900 pages, though I personally still hope and believe it will be less than 800. The Hawkins' Guide is $1.00 per volume, at $1.00 down and $1.00 per week; there are now nine volumes.

Wants to Know What Is Doing.

E. N. Crain, Fort Worth, Texas, says:

> Ordinarily I am not of a curious disposition. However, while visiting Jos. H. M. Smith's operating room recently I saw something that has me guessing. At the time he was busy drilling the core out of a carbon, and did not look as if he wanted to talk to anyone, so I stood there putting in my time trying to guess what he was going to do. Having removed the core, he made a trough of metal and in this trough put a piece of wire, bending the edges of the trough together, and enclosing the wire. Then he slipped the whole business into the hole in the carbon, and began filling in the space around the metal core with carbon dust. I believe anyone not knowing Brother Smith's disposition would have suspected him of being an anarchist engaged in making a new fangled bomb. After cramming the hole full of carbon dust he poured something which looked like alcohol into the hole, and then placed the reconstructed carbon into the lower carbon arm, and at the next reel there certainly was a difference in the light. It was as good as any I have ever seen—no yellow to it at all. Before I left the manager came up and wanted to know what was making the picture so much brighter. Well, knowing Smith was a pretty good friend of yours, I thought perhaps you could get him to divulge his secret. He did not tell me, and I did not have the nerve to ask him.

Why, Brother Crain, I guess Smith was putting in some sort of metal core center by way of experiment. I would not feel like asking him to divulge his secret unless he wishes to, because he may be intending to sell that to some carbon manufacturer, or otherwise dispose of it in exchange for the article that pays grocer's bills. However, if Friend Smith wants to come across with the information why the latch string is hanging out—and he knows it. Yes, Smith is a friend of mine, I hope, because I want the friendship of all live, progressive operators. Smith is all of that, and a credit both to himself and the local to which he belongs.

Well, Well, Well!

L. F. Guimond, Monticello, New York, informs us that for the past three weeks he has run his Brush Lighting Plant on pure, unadulterated kerosene, at a cost of 8½ cents per hour, and that aside from gumming up the spark plugs a little it seemed to act just as well as gasoline.

Well, well, well! Whaddyytinkothat. It would be great if that kerosene thing would work in my Go-devil. This is particularly well worth while for exhibitors to examine into in view of the fact that the cost of gasoline is climbing slowly toward the clouds. What change did you make in the adjustment of your carburetor, Brother Guimond?

Age Limit.

Percy Peterson, Guernsey, Wyoming, writes:

> Am a reader of the World, but principally of the projection department. You expressed a wish for opinions with regard to the Denver ordinance. Personally, I believe the 21 year age limit is a trifle stiff, but am strongly against anyone under 18 years operating, except it be directly under the eye of an older chief operator. Some managers take great pride in setting forth the fact that their operator is only 13 or 14 years of age and "look at the results he puts out," when he himself does not know, and probably never has ever seen really high class projection. I am in favor of at least one year's apprenticeship, and that the minimum age limit be set at 18, at which time, if he has served a year's apprenticeship and is the right stuff, a man ought to be competent to assume charge of an operating room. I see B. H. Yoe, Montague, Prince Edward Island, has trouble with his light. I was fortunate enough after a great deal of experimenting with A. C., to get nearly as good light as with D. C. I used a modified D. C. carbon set, angling the bottom one out a trifle and bringing the upper out to meet it. Always kept my carbons at a certain distance, and as the crater formed kept lowering the upper carbon, so that the two were always in a straight line. By this arrangement I was able to have a perfectly pure light, and no trouble. But everything must be clean, including the terminals and carbon clamps; also all connections must be kept tight.

As to the age limit, I shall be glad to hear from other operators. It is a matter of much importance, and ought to be thoroughly discussed. Most of the licensing officers read the projection department of the Moving Picture World, and inasmuch as they often formulate laws and get them passed, it will be well for operators to educate these men on this subject through the department. It is up to you. As to the carbon set, why I would suggest that instead of giving the carbons a slight angle you try using a smaller carbon below, say ¾-⅝ or ⅝-7/16 or ⅝-½.

Lens Diameter.

Joseph Perry, New York City, writes:

> I have worked and experimented lately, but do not seem to succeed in matching my lens system properly. The table published in the department does not meet the conditions found in one of my machines. I have two machines, namely, Standard and Powers Six A. Lenses are 5¾ E. F., aperture plates 11/16x15/16, lens diameter 1⅜ inches, distance from back of lens to aperture plates 4 inches, throw 78 feet 6 inches. The Standard lamphouse can be pulled back so as to bring the condenser 24 inches from the aperture plate; the Powers lamphouse can only be pulled back 16 inches.

Yes, Brother Perry, the table goes far enough, but your lens don't. Your back focus is 4 inches. Taking Table No. 1, October 16th issue, we find that a 1⅜ inch lens is only figured out up to 2.41 back focus. Coming on down, in the right hand column to 4.05, which is just opposite the "7/16" at the right of the table, and following across the horizontal column to the left, we find that for a 4.05 back focus, (which is practically 4 inches) we should have a lens 1¾ inches in diameter; also coming down three more lines, over in the fifth column from the right we find 4 inch back focus exactly, and in the left hand column opposite it lens diameter 1 15/16. In the first instance, with a 1¾ inch lens diameter, we would need two 7½ condensers, with the apex of the front lens not less than 22 inches from the film. With a 1 15/16 inch lens we would need one 6½ and one 7½ condenser, with the apex of the front lens not less than 18 inches from the film. Yes, the table goes far enough, old man, but you should get a lens of larger diameter.

Red Devil Cement.

I have an inquiry for Red Divel (or is it Devil) Cement, presumably manufactured in Philadelphia. Can anyone put me wise to this particular brand of stickum?

Wiring Transformers.

Peter Lewis, New York City, says:

> I have the second edition of the Handbook; also the two sets of questions, and have read and studied them thoroughly. There are, however, three questions I would like to ask. I have 220 volts on two outside wires to which I must hook up—alternating current. Have two 110 volt transformers. Can I hook them up on a 220 line, as per diagram? What would the amperage and the voltage at the arc be? Would one primary act as resistance and cut down the pressure of the line?

In your sketch, Brother Lewis, you have the primaries of the two instruments connected in series, and propose to use the secondary of only one transformer. This would simply turn the other primary into a choke coil, and I do not believe you would get anything at all, though if you short circuit the secondary you would get amperage.

Assuming the two transformers to have a maximum of 60 amperes, if you connect both primaries to the line wires in series, and connect the two secondaries in multiple, you would get approximately 120 amperes at the arc, with an arc voltage of probably about 50. If you wire the two transformers in series on the secondary side, the result would be 60 amperes at the arc, but the arc voltage would be somewhere between 70 and 100. You will, of course, see that it is hardly practical to use two 220 volt economizers on 220 volt supply.

In the foregoing, I assume the instruments to be straight transformers—not auto transformers.

Won't Hang Him.

J. P. McArthur, Calera, Alabama, says:

> I am from a way-back town so please don't hang me for asking a few simple questions. What focus condensers should I use for motion picture objective lens which makes a 7 foot picture at 40 feet? Am making one night stands, and, of course, have different lengths of hall each time. At the shorter distance have a smaller picture, and at the longer distance a larger one. Please advise me if I should use different condensers for the different distances, it being understood that I will use sufficient light for increased size pictures.

Brother McArthur, I don't think you will get hung this time, because your question is not simple by a good long run and two or three jumps. The fact of the matter is it would not be practical for you to fit the various conditions named. I would refer you to Table No. 1, October 16th issue. The condensers and distances from the lamphouse depend upon the back focus and diameter of the lens, and when you use a single lens to project different distances you necessarily alter its back focus every time the projection distance is changed. The shorter the throw the longer the back focus, and incidentally the more light you will lose, though, on the other hand, you do not need so much. I think you put up a question which comes within the realms of the impossible. I could, of course, dope out a long list of back focuses, but it is hardly worth while. You just take Table No. 1 and study it thoroughly, until you get its true meaning, and then you can come pretty close to fitting every condition by the simple process of measuring your back focus, and carrying two 7½ and one 6½ inch condenser with you, together with about three objectives of different focal length, say 3½-4½ and 5½, the same to be 1¾, 2 and 2¼ inches in diameter, respectively.

It Seems Ridiculous.

R. E. Wicker, Pinehurst, North Carolina, says:

> Received the copy of your department answer and immediately made the experiment suggested. There is not a particle of doubt but that you put your finger square on the trouble. Am enclosing a sketch of the size of the aperture of the lens, and the size of the spot at the back factor (sketches conspicuous by their absence. Ed.) This may seem superfluous, as you probably knew what the result would be, but nevertheless it will serve to show very plainly where the loss of light lies. The operators of this country, and for that matter, the whole world, owe you more than this generation will realize for your efforts toward perfect projection. It seems hardly possible that the motion picture industry has reached its present stage with plain, unvarnished guess work in the building of the optical system of projection machines. At the beginning of the controversy with regard to the light ray theory, I could not help but believe you were off the track, for it seemed so utterly ridiculous that, with the advancement in the theory of light, a professor in one of our leading colleges could not trace the path of light rays through the combination of lenses found in a motion picture machine. Maybe, Brother Richardson, you could improve their telescopes—what? I sent a copy of your reply to the Nicholas Power Company, and asked them if they could supply me with the same lens having a larger aperture. I am enclosing their reply. Whatever you can do toward improving projection will be appreciated by all right thinking people. These improvements don't affect the operator and manager alone, but also they affect the millions of people who pay their nickels and dimes to see the "movies." Go to it, old man. We are all behind you—and behind your new Handbook, too.

Well, this is a bouquet of American beauties all right, but nevertheless if I do say it myself as "oughtn't," there is a whole lot of good hard, rock ribbed truth in what Brother Wicker says. You were not the only one who thought I was "full of prunes" on that light proposition. I had all manner of fun poked at me, but they are not poking any fun now.

I have only recently myself discovered the fact that Table No. 1, October 16th issue, is a mightly elastic thing. You have a back focus of 3¾ inches. Look down the fifth column, from the left, until you reach 3.8, which is very close to 3¾. Opposite this numeral, in the left hand column, we see 1⅞, which means that by using one 6½ and one 7½ condenser, with 18 inches between the apex of the front lens and the film, a 1⅞ inch diameter objective will do the work. You may also use several different diameters, as you will find by examining the table closely, but 1⅜ is, under any conditions, too small. As to the Nicholas Power Company's letter, why that company is very progressive and wide awake, but it is rather hard to get machine manufacturers to immediately adopt new things at their face value. You could, of course, get more light by increasing your amperage, using your present lens, but it is expensive and wasteful.

Motion Picture Photography*

Conducted by CARL LOUIS GREGORY

Inquiries.

QUESTIONS in cinematography addressed to this department will receive carbon copy of the department's reply by mail when four cents in stamps are inclosed. Special replies by mail on matters which cannot be replied to in this department, $1.

Manufacturers' Notice.

It is a rule of this department that no apparatus will be recommended editorially until the value of such appliances has been demonstrated to its editor.

A Question About Illumination.

W. W. P., New York City, writes:

> I have been watching your department ever since it was started and I have been surprised that the cameramen and those interested in M. P. photography have not availed themselves of the opportunity there presented for discussion and instruction.
>
> There is one question which has puzzled me for some time which I would like to have discussed, i. e., which is the least light value measured by white light which will be recorded at normal cranking, speed shutter 50 per cent., aperture f. 4.5, and what is the greatest value of white light which will be properly recorded under the same conditions? To explain more in detail what I mean we will assume that we have a series of incandescent lamps hung one foot away from a strip of paper beginning with a 1 c.p. and going up to say 1,000 c.p. Now suppose we photograph this strip with a moving picture camera with the above settings, what would be the first light to make a strong enough impression (or illumination) on the paper to be "picked up" by the emulsion and what would be the last light beyond which we would have over-exposure?
>
> I would like to get your ideas on this subject as it would help us to understand what range of values we can properly expect to take in with our cameras and still not have under-exposure in the shadows or over-exposure in the high lights.

W. W. P. has brought up a very interesting subject; one which is very intricate and which no photographer can ever know too much about.

The white paper placed at a distance of one foot from the light helps to simplify the explanation of the problem as foot candles are the scientific units used to express the intensity of illumination.

A foot candle is the intensity of a standard one candle power light at a distance of one foot. As the intensity of light decreases as the square of the distance, an object at two feet away from such a light would only shed upon it ¼ or .25 foot candles. Although no object reflects all of the light which strikes it we will, for the purpose of this illustration, regard the white paper as reflecting all the light which falls upon it. If we take a film and expose it to the light for an exceedingly short time and then move it along and give a series of exposures, each being double the next exposure, then the exposure will increase arithmetically as we increase the exposure. Now, if we develop this strip we find that some of the first exposures were so short that they made no impression at all upon the film, then a very thin deposit gradually increasing with the exposure until we reach a point beyond which increased exposure does not give an increase of density.

If we have conducted our experiment carefully, we will find that the shortest exposure necessary to give the greatest density is about sixty times that of the exposure required to register the first faint tint of density. In other words the range of intensities that can be rendered by a film is about 1 to 60, and this is rather more than the maximum range of light intensities in landscapes with strong shadows and bright sky.

It is a pity that there is no light portable photometer adapted for use of the motion picture photographer since it is often impossible for him to judge beforehand, particularly in an artifically lighted set, just what shadows will be so dark that they be under-exposed and what high lights will be over-exposed.

It is evident that whatever surfaces reflect more than sixty times the light which registers from shadow will be over-exposed or that, if the negative is developed to a proper density in the high lights, all shadows which reflected less than one-tenth as much light as the brightest part will be mere splotches of black in which there is no detail.

What a magnificent instrument such a photometer would be for the artistic photographer. With proper lighting facilities he could bring out every salient detail and at the same time suppress anything that he did not wish to show.

We may find the correct exposure for a photograph by measuring the amount of light reflected from the shadows, since exposures must be given so that some detail is shown in the shadows, and we shall find that the exposure at an aperture of f. 4 can be obtained by dividing 125 by the light reflected from the shadows measured in foot candles multiplied by the emulsion speed. Thus if we have a film of speed 250 and the light reflected from the shadows is about 16 foot candles the exposure in seconds will be $\frac{125}{16 \times 250}$, or $\frac{1}{32}$ of a second, at an aperture of f. 4.

Since 16 foot candles is the smallest light intensity at which any impression is made upon the film and 60 times this is the limit of increased density, then it follows that 16 times 60 or an illumination of 960 foot candles is the limit of light intensity without causing over-exposure in the high lights.

In actual practice it is well to remember that there are many other factors which may influence these calculations; such as developer, time and temperature of development and then these same factors again in the making of the print.

Animated Cartoons.

W. A. R., Norwood, Ohio, writes:

> "To begin with, I want to thank you for your reply to my inquiry regarding the changing of a negative to a positive, as published in the issue of October 2d, and also wish to say that I want to thank all who have taken up this subject through your department in the 'World.' Now I am again seeking information.
>
> "Since writing you last month I have purchased an 'Ernemann Model A' camera, but, for some reason, received no instructions with same, so I am 'fighting it out' (and it is some job). What I desire to know is this: In making drawings for animated cartoons what size should the drawing be, and as the camera has no focusing device of any kind, how may I find out how close to the drawings I may work to get best results, or what is the closest I can work on any object? What kind of a light or lights would you advise for photographing animated drawings in the home, and what kind of an exposure would you give? My shutter is marked in the following millimeters: 35- 20- 15- 12- 9- 6- 3- and at two turns per second are 1/100- 1/170- 1/240- 1/300- 1/400- 1/600- 1/1200. The lens stops are F. 3.5- 4.5- 6.3- 9- 12.5 and 18. In working out of doors, with lens set at infinity, at what distance should the camera be placed for the nearest object which you desire to have in focus."

For animated cartoon work take a stiff plank, about eight inches wide and six feet long, and fasten it across a convenient table. Bore a hole near one end to fasten the camera by means of the tripod screw and make an easel big enough to hold the drawings and mount it parallel to the front board of the camera, so that it can be moved along the plank at any desired distance, with suitable means of fastening it down rigidly. Tack two small strips on the easel at right angles to one another to support and register the drawings. By slanting the entire apparatus so that the easel is at an angle of a steep pitched roof the drawing will not need any fastening other than the registering strips. Arrange two nitrogen bulbs with reflectors so as to illuminate the drawings evenly. With drawings six inches across on eight or ten inch cards, they will need to be about fourteen or fifteen inches from the camera with a two-inch lens. The lamps will then be about eight or ten inches from the drawing on each side.

Place a piece of ground glass or ground film in the aperture and, by holding a small piece of mirror at an angle of forty-five degrees behind the gate, you can see to focus the image. It is likely that you will find it necessary to place a washer ring under your lens flange in order to bring the lens far enough from the aperture to get a sharp focus, as this close work is generally beyond the range of the ordinary focusing mount. For experimental work where you do not care to alter the lens mounting, close objects may be focused by slipping one of the kodak portrait attachment lenses over the front of the cinematograph lens, but it will not yield as sharp a result as extending the focusing capacity. Use the single picture crank and the widest shutter opening for the cartoon pictures; then make tests with different diapraghm openings to ascertain the proper exposure.

Always set the focus of your lens at the distance that the principal objects in the picture are from the camera.

With the lens set at infinity the nearest object in reasonably sharp focus at F 3.5 is about fifteen feet, at F 16 about six feet.

After all, there is only one moving picture paper that you really need, and this is IT. Conducted by the largest and most experienced staff of editors and correspondents.

*Copyright, 1916, by the Chalmers Publishing Co.

Music for the Picture

Conducted by S. M. BERG.

INQUIRIES.

QUESTIONS concerning any phase of the work of the orchestra leader in a photoplay theater may be addressed to the Moving Picture World, and the answers of Mr. Berg will appear in a Question and Answer Department, which will be a regular feature of our Music Page.

MUSICAL SETTING FOR "HER GREATEST HOUR."

Released Jan. 10 by the Equitable Motion Pictures Corporation.

Suggestions Prepared by S. M. Berg,

By Special Arrangements With

G. Schirmer, Inc., Music Publishers, New York.

This "Musical Suggestion Cue Sheet" is intended as a partial solution of the problem of what to play for the pictures and to assist in overcoming that chaotic condition encountered when the film is not available until almost the hour of showing, resulting in the first performance being a mere rehearsal.

For the benefit of those readers of the Moving Picture World who are exhibitors of Equitable Films, the following suggestions for an accompaniment to "Her Greatest Hour" were prepared by the photoplay department of the New York music publishing house of G. Schirmer, Inc. This advance publication will afford to the progressive leader an opportunity to acquaint himself with the general character of the film story he is to portray with his orchestra.

The timing of the picture is based on a speed of 15 minutes to a thousand feet. The time indications will assist the leader in anticipating the various cues, which may consist of the printed sub-title (marked T) or by a described action (marked D).

Nan Perrine, a salesgirl in a large department store, is wrongly accused of theft. The prosecuting attorney, believing her innocent, gives her a position in his home. After the death of his wife, which was the culmination of her faithlessness, he realizes the true worth of Nan and marries her. The whole character of the picture is intensely dramatic and the music should be subdued.

Note particularly:

Agitato, 39¼.
Dancing, 57½ to 61.
Fight in dance hall, 61 to 63½

Scheduled time: Five reels (5,000 feet), 75 minutes.

Time.		Sub-titles or Descriptive Cues.	Music.
0	D	Opening.	Sweetheart Waltz—Roberts.
4¼	T	James Kirby, owner of the store where Nan is employed.
5½	T	"She will mail this, whoever she is."	Gondoliera—Moszkowski. (Andante con moto.)
9¼	T	"Another robbery in that department. It must be one of the girls."
10¾	T	The next morning. Friends in need.	Roses and Rue—Scates. (Valse lento.)
13¾	T	Nan's room searched for evidence.
15¼	T	The detectives report nothing incriminating at Nan's room.	Enchanted Hour—Mouton. (Andantino.)
17	T	"She hid the ring so cleverly. I have no doubt."
18	T	"I will hold up the case and be responsible for the girl."	Ideal—Balart. (Waltz intermezzo.)
21½	T	"As soon as you told me dear you had trouble with your correspondence."
22¼	T	"But the girl is a thief."	Daffodils—Carvel. (Andante moderato.)
22¾	T	The following morning.
25	T	The dinner that night.	Destiny Waltz—Baynes.
27¾	T	"Do you realize how people gossip?"
29½	D	When Nan Picks up the letter.	In the Woods—Godard. (Allegro.)
33¾	T	Late that afternoon.
34¼	T	"The court is going to hold a session tonight and I must remain."	On the Mountain—Godard. (Andante.)
38¼	T	"So you have taken to spying on me?"
39¼	T	"I want you to go slumbing with me to see a dance."	Agitato No. 2.*
42¾	T	"Can't we put him in the road as though he had been killed there?"	In the Village—Godard. (Allegro.)
46¼	T	"So this is how you repay my trust in you?"
47¾	T	As fast as her strength will permit her she tries, etc.	Caressing Butterfly—Barthelemy. (Allegretto.)
51¼	T	"She's a swell looker and may be useful to me."
52¼	T	"Now we know why the crime was committed."	Love's Wilfulness—Barthelemy. (Andante appassionato.)
56½	T	"I will let matters rest without action until morning."
57½	T	"Mr. Bratton went to the dance."	Hezekiah—Richardson. (One-step.)
59½	T	"I will keep you safe from the police."
61	D	When Nan sees Bratton.	Hurry No. 2.*
62¼	T	"I must see Mr Bratton. I will wait until he comes."
63½	T	"You say you are a friend of Mrs. Kirby?"	Idilio—Lack. (Allegretto grazioso.)
67½	T	"We can save Mr. Kirby and you from scandal."	Arabian Night—Mildenberg. (Andante sostenuto.)
72½	T	"I won't drive in but I will help youse in wid her."
73¾	T	An hour later.	Love's Triumph—Daniels. (Valse lento.)
74½	T	And many months after, in her greatest hour, etc.
75	T	The End.

NOTE—For the convenience of readers of the Moving Picture World a price list of the numbers suggested in the above cue-sheet, is to be found in G. Schrimer's advertisement on page 508.

Themes and Their Usage

(German-Thema, French-Theme, Italian Tema)

By S. M. BERG.

In using the word Theme in conjunction with Motion Pictures some new interpretation must be accepted. A musician will possibly describe a theme as the principal melody in a composition which at the composer's will and according to the character of the composition has been transposed, elaborated, fitted with contra melodie and arranged as solo for different instruments with the tempo changed, variation and obligato added, throughout which, however, the harmonious strains of the original melody can be detected.

Dr. Theo. Baker

in his dictionary of Musical Terms describes a theme as an extended and rounded-off subject melody with accompaniment in period form proposed as a groundwork for elaborate variations, also known as a subject.

Subject.

A melodic phrase or motive on which a composition or movement is founded sometimes known as the aria.

Aria.

Primarily, an air, or rhythmic melody.—As a technical term, an aria is an extended lyrical vocal solo in various forms, with instrumental accompaniment. With the rise of homophonic music in the opera and oratorio, the aria developed, from a mere plain-song melody with basso continuo, into the aria grande (the grand or da-capo aria in three divisions preceded by an instrumental ritornello containing the principal melody; division I being an elaborate development of a theme with frequent repetitions of the words; II, a more tranquil and richly harmonized section; followed by III, the repetitions da capo of I, with still more florid ornamentation); the aria di bravura (similar to the foregoing, but overloaded with difficult passages and coloraturas for showing off the singer's skill); the aria da chiesa (church-aria, differing from the sacred song chiefly in its greater breadth, and in being accompanied by full orchestra); and the aria da concerto (concert aria, differing from the others which are portions of operas, oratorios, etc., in being an independent composition intended for the concert-hall). The modern aria is freer in form than the aria grande of the 18th century, the ritornello often being omitted, greater variety given to the da capo, and the thematic construction made to follow the sense of the words, so that it sometimes assumes the form of a rondo, or consists of 2 slow divisions separated by an allegro movement. . . . Aria parlante (also arioso) a vocal style combining the melody of an aria with the distinct enunciation of a recitative, the vowels being "thrown forward." Smaller arias, nearly in song-form and with slighter accompaniments, are called ariettas or cavatinas.

Among motion picture players some agreement of thought to fitting a theme to a picture has resolved itself and it will be this viewpoint and the new conception of theme that we shall follow.

In the majority of instances, where musical scores are being prepared for important feature films, some well-known operatic aria, standard ballad, song without words or popular berceuse is selected by the adapter to fit the action and it is called the Theme. It is usually played upon the opening presentation of the leading man and woman, then in the story when they first meet. Again at a declaration of love, parting or misunderstanding, and finally at the closing of the picture. This presents no difficulties in the modern society drama of marriage, misunderstanding and reconciliation interloped with fetes, restaurant, cabaret or reception scenes, but in the tragic drama where an attempt is made to present a Theme, skill is needed to so change its character as to portray the different emotions.

For example: "The Final Judgment" released by the Metro Pictures Corporation, is a society drama of love interest between a popular emotional actress and her three admirers, A, a lawyer, B, a banker, and C, a criminal investigator. She marries A, B becomes a mutual friend and C in jealous pique leaves for Russia to investigate a baffling mystery, the solution of which is an Oriental poison that when burned or impregnated on an article kills the person handling same. C returns to America and uses this to kill A, but fate decrees that B should be the victim, and A is tried and convicted of the murder. To properly portray this picture the Theme should be bright and melodious at the opening. Later it should have a tone of impending disaster, and then at the scenes of pathos between convicted husband and his wife the deepest note of tragedy should be sounded. This presents no difficulty to the one-man orchestra who has some knowledge of improvising and follows the articles of Mr. Clarence Sinn which are most fitting and helpful in connection with this important subject, but to the orchestra leader, the problem appears insurmountable.

(To be continued.)

New Musical Publications

With Some Critical Comment Suggesting Particular Adaptability to requirements of the screen.

Loyalty Waltz .....Baynes .....Poston Music Co.

A pleasing waltz well suited for neutral scenes or played lento for semi-pathetic action.

Villanelle .....Kriens ..... Fischer

This shepherd song by Christiaan Kriens is an orginal composition from this masterly composer's pen well arranged for ensemble or string combination admirably fitted for mountain or pastoral scenes. Tempo: giocoso, closing adagio.

Romance .....Karganoff ..... Schirmer

As the title implies: a Romance. Admirably suited for theme or slow action. Arranged by that well-known musician Carl Kiefert. Tempo: Andante sostenuto con espressione.

Inspiration .....Edwards ..... Schirmer together with Romance.

Leo Edwards has fittingly named this composition Inspiration. This number is particularly adapted to portray those dramatic moments with the tension of impending happenings. Tempo: Andante—andante sostenuto—piu mosso—closing with andante sostenuto.

In the Candle Light.....Brown ..... Witmark

Although not a new publication (copyrighted in 1914), it is a particularly bright intermezzo well suited for neutral scenes or comedy dramas.

Musical Gems of Tschaikowsky .....Langey .....Schirmer

A masterly arrangement of Tschaikowfsky airs including March Slave, Andante Cantabile from String Quartet, Dance of the Flowers, Barcarolle, Le Las des cygnes, Chanson Triste, The Serenade, Russian Dance, Cradle Song.

Venetian Love Dance....Rich ..... Fischer

A valuable number for the motion picture library. One of those moderately slow numbers with a flowing melody for strings with a cello or horn obligato. Tempo: moderato—appassionata ma non troppo, closing with a strong maestoso.

From the Highlands.....Langey ..... Schirmer

A well arranged selection of Scotch Melodies, so adapted that any one air can be played. Includes: Come Under My Plaidie, Blue Bonnets, Speed Bonnie Boat, Within a Mile of Edinboro' Town, Loch Lomond, Charlie Is My Darling, A Highland Lad, Leezy Lindsey, Duncan Gray, Robin Adair, Scots Wha Hae Wi' Wallace Bled, Turn Ye to Me, There's nae Luck Aboot the Hoose, Kelvin Grove, Auld Robin Gray, Comin' thro' the Rye, Annie Laurie, The Campbells are Comin', The Hundred Pipers, Auld Lang Syne.

Romany Waltz .....Keiser ..... Shapiro-Bernstein

A pleasing valse intermezzo by that writer of popular hits, Robert A. Keiser. This number is particularly adapted to dancing, reception or neutral scenes.

Australian Scenics by Paramount

Preceding the Paramount-Burton Holmes Travel Pictures, Four Instalments of "Australia's Unknown" Will Be Shown.

PRECEDING the issuance of the Paramount-Burton Holmes travel pictures by the Paramount Corporation on February 7, and to sustain the interest created by the success of the South American travel pictures, the last instalment of which was on January 3, four travel releases will be released picturing the unknown regions of Australia. They teem with action and tell a story rarely equalled among travelogues. The release dates are January 10, 17, 24 and 31.

The releasing of these pictures on Australia during January comes simultaneously with the releasing of the famous Paramount-Bray animated cartoons and the silhouette photoplays originated by the well known artist, C. Allan Gilbert, and the new Paramount newspictures, rounding out a program of exceptional features.

The "Australia's Unknown" pictures were taken by Frank Hurley, the chief photographer of the Shakleton expedition, and in his statement after returning to the civilized portions of the island he said that of all the uniquely interesting spots on earth he had had the opportunity of visiting in his trips of exploration, this was the one that teemed with the most action and interest.

Flickers

JUST as expected, less than twenty-four hours after the new water wagon started on its parade, the horses got away and most of the boys went off with an awful splash. All took it as a joke. None felt a bit sore.

* * *

We are very sorry to learn that A. Kessel, Jr., has been a sick man for the past few weeks and confined to his bed. We sincerely trust that he will be up and around in a short time.

* * *

Another member of the indisposed squad and a very ready victim for the various patent medicine boosters, is John F. Miller. He will take anything that anybody claims is any good for any ailment that he thinks any man could have at any time.

* * *

Joseph Metro Engle will almost lay a bet that the masked marvel, operating so successfully on the mat aspirants at the Manhattan Opera House, is none other than Francis X. Bushman.

* * *

I'll bet that Arthur Ashley sells somebody an automobile or a fancy vest before he leaves Jamaica. What do you say?

* * *

A letter from H. M. Horkheimer threatens us with another visit shortly. He claims to have bought more transcontinental commutation.

* * *

Sol Lesser, president of the Golden Gate Film Company, having consummated a "worth while" deal, intends coming east for permanent residence, in order to be on the lot and take care of things.

* * *

The best we get from Jay Cairns these days is a "souwak." But we will forgive him if he will come to New York just once.

MAC.

Mutt and Jeff on Screen

Bud Fisher Signs Contract With New Company to Make His Comedy Characters Weekly Visitors in Picture Houses.

EXHIBITORS on the watch for comedy subjects will be interested in the announcement that Bud Fisher, originator of Mutt and Jeff, has signed a contract with the Mutt and Jeff Weekly, Inc., a new concern, to present his famous character creations in a series of animated cartoon drawings, to be issued each week in installments of 300 feet. The pictures will be booked directly with exchanges and exhibitors by the Mutt and Jeff Weekly, Inc., and will not be attached to a news weekly, or a subject of any other nature.

With Mr. Fisher's comedy genius as a basis, and the renown of the characters that for many years have lived in the pages of more than 200 newspapers, the organizers of the new company feel that they have a moving picture proposition of great possibilities. This confidence is shared by experienced newspaper proprietors, such as H. H. Tammen, owner of the Denver Post, the Kansas City Post, the Sells-Floto circus and a stockholder in the Essanay company.

The arrangement with Mr. Fisher calls for a weekly scenario incorporating the adventures of Mutt and Jeff best suited to the screen. Of course, the artist will be given a free hand in devising situations for his characters and he may be relied upon for originality and humor.

Motion Silhouette Pictures

New Wrinkle for Paramount Program That Is a Wonder in Its Way.

SOME time ago C. Allan Gilbert, the famous illustrator, who with Howard Chandler Christy, Harrison Fisher and a few others has done so much to make the American Girl famous, got the idea that silhouette motion pictures could be produced. In other words, that a story could be told on the screen in black and white, using real actors to depict the various characters. He determined to try it. Now while he had not been allowed to starve by the art editors of the various fifteen-cent magazines, he had not saved enough to buy such an expensive toy as a private motion picture studio.

Scene from "Inbad the Sailor" (Paramount).

He went to J. R. Bray, the cartoonist, who saw the possibilities of his idea and who financed the project. Further, Mr. Bray spied an opportunity to indulge in a few experiments on his own account. The result was the formation of a subsidiary company of his own, called the Bray-Gilbert Studios, now located at 44 Washington Mews, New York.

The combination of the real with the drawn is now an accomplished fact. The Bray-Gilbert Silhouettes, which, like the output of Mr. Bray's other company, is to be marketed solely through the Paramount Pictures Corporation, are partly acted and partly penned. The spectator cannot tell where one begins and the other leaves off.

It is a brand new experience for Washington Mews to have a moving picture studio in its midst. But for some time No. 44 has been the scene of mysterious operations the nature of which has just come to light. The ancient structure has been transformed to meet the requirements of the new undertaking and big arc lights, odd stage properties and curious photographic machines have been set up.

A stage and flies have been added in the rear of the lot, the ceiling knocked out, and the inner walls painted a dazzling white. Powerful electric lights overhead are so arranged as to throw the actors into bold relief. Occasionally the background is colored to lend more detail and the different shades show on the screen. Though the figures are in silhouette, it is amazing how much expression is obtained.

The camera is sunk in a pit, so that the actors' feet are visible to its eye though there is no floor in the Bray-Gilbert pictures. The innovation in film production covers a wide range of subjects, but all of them are presented with a charming disregard for stereotyped methods. "Inbad the Sailor," his first release, on January 20, is a typical example.

The story, which has the proper "Arabian Nights" flavor, depicts a sailor wrecked on a desert isle with only a monkey for a companion and a bottle of tabasco sauce for comfort. But the writer produces the inevitable mystery in the shape of a genii's chest, in which is found a wishing ring. The sailor has four wishes, one of which turns the monkey into a human companion—a sort of man Friday—and another whisks the two off on a magic carpet to the Orient in search of adventure.

Mr. Gilbert writes the scenarios himself and among the other whimsical stories which he is producing for Paramount are "The Chess Queen," "Haunts for Hire" and "The Balloon Tree." This brings up an interesting point. Through his remarkable skill with the pen, J. R. Bray has found a way to combine the drawn with the actual figure, with the result that the Bray-Gilbert Silhouettes are a mixture of cartoon and real acting. Transformations otherwise impossible are accomplished and one cannot tell where the acting ends and the drawing begins.

Fantasy thus comes into its own. Nothing is impossible. The most amazing feats of the "Arabian Nights" can be reproduced with the same flight of imagination that characterizes the original. Truly the silhouette film as exemplified in these remarkable pictures opens a new field.

Kleine-Edison Program for January

Four Strong, Vivid Features of the Money-Getting Kind Which Do Not Depend on Sex Problems.

WITH the release of the Kleine feature, January 5, "The Devil's Prayer-Book," the Kleine-Edison Feature Service opened a propitious year. Never before in the history of George Kleine or the Edison Company has either institution offered a line of attractions so strong or better calculated to prove profitable to manufacturer and exhibitor alike. A glance at the January release program is sufficient evidence of the determination of the newly organized "K-E Service" to live within the time-tried reputations of both manufacturers.

"The Devil's Prayer-Book," aside from its magnetic title, is a production of rare dramatic power and constructive genius. First run exhibitors are delighted with the money-getting title which, in the lexicon of the exhibitor, "gets 'em in," and the extraordinary story which pleases them after they are in. This feature was especially written by Max Marcin, author of the dramatic success "The House of Glass," in which Mary Ryan is playing at the Candler theater, New York, as a starring vehicle for that petite beauty Miss Alma Hanlon. She is co-star with Arthur Hoops in "The Devil's Prayer-Book."

Four features are scheduled for release through the Kleine-Edison Service during January, two Kleine and two Edison. On January 12 Edison will release "The Catspaw," a really extraordinary photodrama founded on the novel by William Hamilton Osborne. Miriam Nesbitt and Marc MacDermott, those two favorites who have not recently been seen together in film, are reunited in "The Catspaw," dividing leads in this enchanting story of double identity. Marc MacDermott comes in for special commendation, as he is seen in almost every scene of the picture. Persons familiar with Osborne's novel will readily appreciate the tremendous opportunity for vital, dramatic work which it affords. Both leads, however, acquit themselves with colors flying.

"Wild Oats" is the title of the "K-E" offering for January 19, a dramatic gem featuring Malcolm Duncan and Alma Hanlon. "Wild Oats" tells a fascinating story of the social-drama variety, dealing with Broadway and the bountiful harvest of wild oats one can reap in its pregnant soil. Malcolm Duncan makes his premier appearance in the starring role of a wayward son. Duncan is remembered as one of Harrison Grey Fiske's leading men and an actor of the better kind. "Wild Oats" bristles with touches of gay night life and tense moments. It is a Kleine feature requiring almost two months to produce.

On January 26 the concluding production of the January program will be released. This is "The Innocence of Ruth," a five-part drama, featuring two of the most popular players in film, Viola Dana and Edward Earle. Viola Dana, the charming star of "The Poor Little Rich Girl" and several big Edison features, including the recently released "Children of Eve," was never seen to better advantage than in the role of the gentle, demure but quick-tempered Ruth Travers. "The Innocence of Ruth" is the story of an orphan girl, raised luxuriously by a young but wealthy friend of her deceased father. The dangers of the motherless girl are convincingly shown. The entire drama sparkles with tense moments and, from its interest-inciting start to its splendid climax, suggests the thought that no worthier role or one better suited to her peculiar temperament and capabilities could have been given dainty Viola Dana.

All four releases for the month of January are dramas of the pleasing kind, strong, but not morbid, vivid and forceful, but dependent in no way upon sex problems or sordid motives for their plots and incidental themes.

GOLD KING SCREEN COMPANY APPOINTS KANSAS REPRESENTATIVE.

E. W. Green, of Wellington, Kan., has been appointed state representative for the Gold King Screen Company of Altus, Okla. Mr. Green will make Wellington his headquarters and will keep in direct touch with the exhibitors throughout the state. Mr. Green is an expert on projection.

Many new sales agencies for the Gold King Screen were established by President S. H. Jones on his recent trip north.

Splendid Music for "The Black Crook"

Kalem Production Exhibited With Special Score Pleases Critical Audience.

A SHOWING of the Kalem feature, "The Black Crook," was given in the projection room of the Wurlitzer Building on West 41st street, New York, last Wednesday. The object of the exhibition was to demonstrate what original music combined with well-selected music will do for a great spectacular feature like "The Black Crook." Music for the feature had been specially composed and arranged by Walter C. Simon.

The splendid projection room was well filled with a critical but appreciative audience when, at 11 o'clock, Robert E. Welsh in a felicitous little address stated the purpose of the exhibition and introduced the composer, Walter C. Simon. Mr. Simon, a young man of pleasing appearance, bowed his acknowledgment of the applause and as he took his seat at the organ the picture was started.

"The Black Crook" was reviewed in the issue of the Moving Picture World of January 1. It offers unusual opportunities to a clever musician to increase the power of the story and to accentuate the many spectacular incidents. In both these respects Mr. Simon has completely succeeded. The weird and magic element which at times predominates in the feature was wonderfully well illustrated by the music. The visits to the cave where the Black Crook meets Zaliel, the sudden disappearance of the Black Crook, were accompanied by music that made every scene more impressive. The one point in the score that stood out with particular brilliancy was the way the young composer handled the music for the great spectacular parts of the film-play. There are dances of great variety, the minuet, the ballet, a Greek dance, a fairy dance, etc., all of which required different treatment to be made as attractive as possible. Mr. Simon did exceedingly well in each one of these spectacular scenes. It is difficult to see how the score for the various dances could possibly have been improved.

Presented with this splendid score "The Black Crook" becomes a performance of rare merit and presents many novel features which no audience will fail to appreciate.

V-L-S-E in New Home

Now Occupies the Entire Sixth Floor of the Mecca Building, 1600 Broadway, New York City.

FRIDAY, December 31, was moving day at the V-L-S-E, when the attaches of the home office and of the New York branch office took up their quarters on the sixth floor of the Mecca Building, at 1600 Broadway. This is the floor which was formerly occupied by the Kriterion Film Company and the Kinemacolor Company. It has a total area of 12,500 square feet, which is about 5,000 more feet than the Big Four had on the seventh floor of this building. Artisans have been working day and night for several weeks past to get the new offices in apple-pie order. The entire interior has been redecorated, and many alterations made in the arrangement of the offices, which will make for increased convenience and comfort.

The New York branch office and the home office of the V-L-S-E proper, which in the old quarters were thrown together, will be separated in the Big Four's new home. They will have a common entrance way, the reception hall opening on the Seventh avenue side of the Mecca Building to the New York branch office quarters, and on the Broadway side to those of the home office.

The suite of offices of General Manager Walter W. Irwin will be located at the Broadway and Forty-eighth street corner of the floor. Adjoining this will be that of A. W. Goff, assistant general manager, and then in their order those of Leon J. Bamberger, sales promotion manager, and E. L. Masters, advertising manager. Opening from the hallway on which these offices face is the entrance to a large projection room that will permit of a fifty-foot throw. This room will be beautifully carpeted and luxuriously furnished, with every facility for the convenience of those whose duties will take them there. Adjoining the office of Mr. Irwin on the Forty-eighth street side is a commodious auditing department, next to which is the stenographer's department and the director's room, facing on the corner of Seventh avenue and Forty-eighth street.

Joseph W. Partridge will have his office next to the director's, and his assistant, F. F. Hartich, adjoining Mr. Partridge's. The New York branch office will have its own cashier, so that there will be no lost motion for exhibitors having business with the branch. The poster and shipping departments are in the front of the floor in close proximity with the elevators.

The fact that the V-L-S-E has found it necessary to take such commodious quarters after only nine months of operation would seem to indicate that the reports of the progress which this organization is making are well founded. It is said that the lease for these offices covers a long term of years.

Gertrude Selby

THE first comedienne engaged for the L-Ko Komedies was Gertrude Selby, and she was the heroine of their first comedy, "Love and Surgery." Since then she has become one of the most famous funny film girls. "I played leads from the start," she said. "I cannot remember the time when I did not want to do something. I tried at thirteen to be a cloak model, but they laughed at me because I was so small and immature. Well, lots of people are laughing at me still, but now I enjoy it—that's the difference! I found it hard to be funny very early in the morning, sometimes. I think it must be nice to be a tragedienne, so that when you feel cross at 8 A. M. you can indulge the feeling in your heart and rave as much as you want to. It takes a real artist to feel a comedy situation when she's still half asleep."

Gertrude Selby.

Miss Selby has a new reason for liking pictures. "I soon tire of the same thing," she says, "and work in the legitimate is just a repetition of the first performance. I know, because I danced with Gertrude Hoffman, played with Gus Edwards, and had an act to myself in vaudeville.

"The only thing in the world that I am afraid of is—getting fat!"

WILL PICTURE LARRY EVANS' NOVEL.

The Frohman Amusement Corporation, through the efforts of its president, William L. Sherrill, has secured the photoplay rights to Larry Evans' very successful novel, "Then I'll Come Back to You," which enjoys the distinction of being one of the best sellers of the current year.

In its serial form, it appeared in the Metropolitan Magazine, starting with the February issue and concluding in the November, 1915, number. During that time, it created much favorable comment and was hailed as a masterpiece of American fiction. As an evidence of the popularity of this story, it was put in book form about four weeks ago and sales show it now to be in its fiftieth thousand.

Miss Alice Brady has been selected as the star in this production, playing the part of "Barbara Allison," with Jack Sherrill in the part of "Steve O'Mara," supported by a cast of well known artists. The entire company will be taken to Asheville, North Carolina, within the next ten days, where the exteriors will be secured.

JACKSONVILLE TURNS OUT FOR "SIS."

Sis Hopkins was welcomed to the ranks of screen characters last Wednesday evening at a reception given her creator, Rose Melville, by her fellow Kalem players and other screen artists now in the Florida city. The screeners turned out in full force and there were over a hundred present at the dinner and dance which was given in the Kalem studio. There are eight companies of players now working in the pretty territory around Jacksonville, including the companies located there for the winter and the feature organizations making brief stop-overs to secure the atmosphere for pictures that will be completed up north. At Wednesday night's reception William Haddock, president of the Actors' Society of America, and a feature director, made the address of welcome for the outside players, while Kalem's producer, Robert Ellis, and Miss Melville responded.

To Protect Scenarios

Senator Penrose Offers a Bill in Congress to Include Them in the Copyright Law.

By Clarence L. Linz.

A BILL has been introduced into Congress by Senator Boies Penrose, of Pennsylvania, contemplating an amendment of the copyright laws so as to include scenarios. It is provided that any person entitled thereto under the provisions of the act may secure a copyright for a scenario by typewriting the same with notice of copyright as required, and such notice must be affixed to each copy of the scenario published, typewritten or offered for sale in the United States by authority of the copyright proprietor.

It is further stated in the bill that if it be enacted into law copyright may also be had on a scenario by the deposit of two typewritten copies of the title and description, with cast of scenes without prints or other identifying reproductions thereof. After copyright has been secured by the publication or typewriting of the work, with the notice of copyright as provided above, the owner shall promptly deposit in the copyright office or mail to the Register of Copyrights, Washington, D. C., a complete copy of the scenario together with one print taken from each scene or act, each to be accompanied by a claim of copyright. No action or proceeding would be maintained for infringement of copyright in any work until the provisions of deposit of copies and registration of such work shall have been complied with.

Section 25 provides that if any person shall infringe the copyright in any work protected under the copyright laws of the United States such person shall be liable (a) to an injunction restraining infringement, and (b) to pay to the copyright proprietor such damages as the latter may have suffered due to the infringement, as well as all the profits which the infringer shall have made from such infringement, and in proving profits the plaintiff shall be required to prove sales only, and the defendant shall be required to prove every element of cost which he claims, or, in lieu of actual damages and profits, such damages as to the court shall appear to be just; and in assessing such damages the court may, in its discretion, allow the following amounts: In the case of the infringement of an undramatized or nondramatic work, or scenario, by means of motion pictures, where the infringer shall show that he was not aware that he was infringing, and that such infringement could have been reasonably foreseen, such damages shall not exceed the sum of $100; in the case of a copyrighted dramatic or dramatico-musical work or scenario by a maker of motion pictures and his agencies for distribution thereof to exhibitors, where such infringer shows that he was not aware that he was infringing a copyrighted work and that such infringements could not reasonably have been foreseen, the entire sum of such damages recoverable by the copyright proprietor from such infringing maker and his agencies for distribution to exhibitors of such infringing motion pcture shall not exceed the sum of $5,000 nor be less than $250, and such damages shall in no other case exceed $5,000 or be less than $250. This is not to be regarded as a penalty and the exceptions shall not deprive the copyright proprietor of any other remedy given him under the copyright law, nor shall the limitation as to the amount of recovery apply to infringements occurring after the actual notice to a defendant, either by service or process in a suit or other written notice served upon him. The court may allow $100 for the first and $50 for every subsequent infringing performance.

Universal's Far Eastern Itinerary

Company Under Henry McRae Will Visit the Philippines, China, Japan and Australia.

THE title of the first picture that Henry McRae's Universal company will make in the Philippines is "Onda of the Orient." The first scenes were made in and around San Francisco. These were to be followed by others after the steamer carrying the company sailed from San Francisco on January 8 on its long journey to the Far East. The first stop will be at Honolulu, where Mr. McRae plans to take a number of scenes which will fit into his picture. Then the party will sail for Yokohama, and it is Mr. McRae's intention to have the ship stop in mid-ocean in order to make several thrilling rescue scenes for his production.

Arrangements already have been made by the Universal Company by which the McRae company will be extended every facility for the filming of all the scenes aboard ship that are desired, and as Mr. McRae has had frequent experiences of this character it is safe to predict the shipboard results will be unusually satisfactory. The majority of the scenes for "Onda of the Orient" will be made in the land of the Filipinos, where the old Spanish landmarks will furnish most attractive settings for the photoplays.

Director McRae has several other stories in preparation. One of these has Japan for the location of the play. The Celestial Empire will be the location of another.

In addition to spending some time in Japan and China, the company will go to the South Sea Islands and will also visit New Zealand, Australia and Tasmania.

Thousands of feet of film will be devoted to picturing the daily life and industries of the people of the Orient and of the islands in the Pacific and later will be released on the regular program of the Universal Company. These films will be of highly educational value and undoubtedly will make a strong appeal to the heads of institutions of learning throughout the land and will prove a real attraction to the thousands of school children of every state of the Union.

Fred Leroy Granville, who was the chief cameraman of the Steffanson expedition to the Arctic, will serve in the same capacity with the party. Mr. Granville is a native of Australia. When the company reaches that far-away land in the South Pacific, it is planned to penetrate New Guinea and visit a portion of that state which it is claimed has not yet been traversed by any white man.

BETA BREUIL WITH MIRROR.

Mrs. Beta Breuil, the woman who organized and brought to a point of great efficiency the scenario department of the Vitagraph Company of America, has been engaged by the Mirror Films, Inc., to do special work on several feature pictures which the Mirror management has in mind for the coming year.

Mrs. Breuil, after much travel throughout the world, had been thrown on her own resources at an age past thirty and had tried the stage before she sought and got the position of scenario writer for the Vitagraph Company. From that she rose to the position of editor and headed the department which she organized herself. Some time ago she left the Vitagraph Company, vowing that she would not again undertake such a position as editor of any company. Until she was approached by the Mirror, Mrs. Breuil did free lance writing of scenarios or writing to order.

MOVING "THE GIRL AND THE GAME" COMPANY.

In the production of the fifth chapter of "The Girl and the Game" Director McGowan used several cowboys as a sheriff's posse. After a number of fight scenes were taken at the studio, it was necessary to move the company to a distant location to continue the day's work. Instead of losing the time which it would have taken the cowboys to ride the distance, Director McGowan loaded the horses into a boxcar of the "property" train and the entire company was whisked to the location without delay. Miss Holmes' attitude in the picture is illustrative of the friendliness she feels for her "boys." The one thing the true range rider is careful of is his mount, but they are always willing to permit Miss Holmes to borrow a mount, and she often does climb into a big western saddle and gallop up into the hills.

"Prop." Train Used in "The Girl and the Game."

Analyzing a Winner

The Great Success of "The Cheat" Much Discussed by Public and Exhibitors—The Play Destroys Some Old Time Directorial Superstitions.

By W. Stephen Bush.

IS THERE such a thing as analyzing a successful film play? If there is what is the practical use of such analysis? I think that an analysis has its great uses. What are the comments we hear among the audience but attempts at analysis? There are times when some obviously strong and successful film play stirs up an extraordinary amount of comment not only among exhibitors but among the patrons as well. The latter do not comment much on what seems to them just usual and ordinary. The program of routine never goes below the surface and the men and women who have sat through a kinematographic table d'hote forget the whole thing before the formal announcement of: "THE END." How different are these men and women when they come out of the theater after having seen something that has really shaken their souls and broken through the masks of convention and routine. Then they are worth listening to.

Of all the features released within the last few months none has been the cause of more favorable comment than "The Cheat." There has been no dissent. Exhibitors like to go into a reminiscent mood when they are among themselves and talk of the splendid features they have seen. (They talk of the other kind as well.) Each one believes his own particular favorite the best of course. He does not want to yield the palm to others. There are some film plays, however, on which all agree and undoubtedly "The Cheat" is one of them.

Yes, the consensus of opinion on that feature is absolute. It is therefore well worth looking into.

Curiously enough "The Cheat" smashes one of the fondest beliefs of a certain school of photoplaywrights. This school tells us that the first requisite of success is the enlisting of the audience's sympathy for one or two characters in the play. "The Cheat" does not enlist our sympathy for a single man or woman in the play. The first friend to whom I mentioned this fact hesitated to agree with me, but as he re-examined his emotions he admitted that there was no room for sympathy. The Japanese of course invites anything but our sympathy; the frivolous wife who steals to gratify her love of finery and who requites the affections of her husband with rank ingratitude never moves our sympathy and as a woman does not even waken our pity. When the audience in the courtroom goes mad and passionately overrides all law and order the ruling emotion is not pity for the woman but a racial antipathy blazing out in elemental fury. To be sure we are sorry for the husband but we cannot wholly repress a feeling of disparagement.

Another remarkable thing about "The Cheat" is the total absence of any attempt to teach a lesson. Of course the teaching of a lesson is always woefully out of place in a dramatic entertainment of any kind. Orations on morality are for the pulpit but so many of our playwright, photoplaywrights especially yearn to outline a lesson on the screen. Your true dramatist abhors preaching even more than your theatergoer. When people come to look at a stage or to gaze upon the screen they cannot bear to see a pulpit erected in its place. Not even the prosiest of theologs can possibly extract any thing like a moral from "The Cheat." It is a play, nothing more; an entertainment, nothing else. It is a part of "the life which all of us lead, which but few understand but which is full of interest wherever you seize it."

I have asked a dozen or more experienced film men and a good many more "fans" just what they liked about "The Cheat." They immediately began to talk of the branding scene and the climax in the courtroom. There is no doubt whatever that these two scenes are gripping and sweep the spectators on to a veritable tempest of emotion, but there have been other branding scenes and there have been very many other courtroom scenes. The secret of the success of these scenes lies far deeper. It lies in the skill with which the interest has been awakened, it lies in the directorial finesse which makes this interest rise swiftly yet gradually, it lies in the cunning calculation of the climax. The keynote of the play is simplicity itself: The irreconcilable contract between the East and the West. "Never the twain shall meet." On this most obvious theme, which no doubt the average scenario department would have rejected with scorn, rests the most notable film success of many a month. When you get a director capable of handling the simple and the elemental theme you hear (pardon the paradox) the thunder of the screen. None but Jove can wield the bolt. "The Cheat" is an echo of the old Greek drama, showing conclusively that the emotions of men and women remain untouched by the lapse of time. For playing on the heartstrings, and rousing fear and terror the instruments are still the same.

In analyzing the success of "The Cheat" one element must be emphasized—the development in the Lasky school of the purely photographic part. No school has attained greater achievements in this respect. We would have to admire the purely photographic part even if it were not subordinated to the plot. When it is thus subordinated the lighting effects may well be called a new dramatic force. It is dramatic description of a new order. It has a charm which may be much more easily felt than described. It adds an unheard of subtle strength to the photodrama.

To sum up: There is no formula for success on the dramatic screen. While "The Cheat" is still receiving unstinted praise on every hand the same company produces another play fully the equal of "The Cheat" in its effects upon the spectator. This play named "The Golden Chance" differs most radically from "The Cheat" both in theme and in treatment. It is all pathos and wrings our hearts. We dissolve in sympathy.

"The Cheat" no doubt will serve as a point of departure for many directors or at least for the few who believe that they are capable of learning something. There are quite a number of directors you know who consider themselves divinely inspired and very much above the necessity of learning.

Anita Snell

THE recent debut in motion pictures of "The Montessori Baby," little Anita Snell, is being watched with the closest of interest, not only by members of the profession, but several noted scientists who have been interested in the Snell baby for more than two years. Anita, who is regarded as a five-year-old prodigy, has just completed playing a child part in the big Metro photoplay, "Man and His Soul," in which Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne are starred.

Anita Snell.

Little Miss Snell is a remarkable child in many respects. She was born in Minneapolis, Minn., and displayed many signs of extreme precociousness when first she began to lisp only a few words. Her mother was induced to enter her in the famous Montessori school in Washington, under the direct tutelage of Miss Anne E. George, who conducts the institution. She proved a marvel from the beginning, and could write and form sentences before she was four years old. She has developed a taste for the best things in art which is almost uncanny. The little one considers it a holiday when her mother will escort her to the Metropolitan Museum of Art, in New York City, where she knows the names of many of the paintings and sculptures and the names of the artists who made them. Her comment on pictures and statuary in the museum invariably attracts a crowd.

Anita is an excellent pantomimist and mimic; which makes her invaluable in her photoplay work. If there is any fault found with the child around the studio it is her proclivity for causing the artists to become distracted, while at work. She delights in entertaining those around her, but she is never forward in that respect. Little Miss Snell is an accomplished dancer of the classic forms, and imitates all the well known terpsichorean artists. She likes Pavlowa best of all, although she never misses an opportunity to accompany her mother to see Genee, Isadora Duncan, and others of similar distinction.

British Notes.

MOTION PICTURE transactions have, during the past week, been more than sufficiently represented in the civil courts. The claim of Mrs. Elinor Glyn for damages against a film burlesque of her novel, "Three Weeks," has been finally disposed of in the Chancery Court by Judge Younger, who had some strong, unvarnished remarks to direct against "red light" novels and pictures. The novel, it will be recalled, was visualized in America for the Kinema and when copies were released here a London producer manufactured another film satirizing the American picture. It's title was "Pimple's Three Weeks—Without the Option," and Mrs. Glyn in her case sought damages and an order prohibiting further exhibition of the burlesque. In his decision the judge said, " . . . the novel which was published in 1907 was fortunate enough to be condemned by all reviewers and banned by all libraries and to give it novelty its episodes were absurd. The film burlesque is frankly farcical and vulgar to an almost inconceivable degree. The episodes in the book are grossly immoral with a tendency to elaborate incidents of sensual adultery and intrigue and, in my opinion, copyright cannot exist in works so grossly immoral as this." The action, which is not without its moral to aspiring producers of literary notorieties, was therefore dismissed.

* * *

The nomenclature of the industry differing so widely in application in the two English-speaking countries provokes many arm-chair arguments within the trade and without, but it was left the other day to Judge Coleridge to give the first judicial ruling upon the pronunciation of our most popular designation for a moving picture exhibition. Counsel was reading a letter and pronounced therefrom the word "cinema" with a soft "c." "Kinema, if you please," interrupted the judge decisively.

* * *

The Manchester licensing authorities recently wrote to the House Office requesting the Government to appoint an official censor of films. The Home Secretary has replied stating that he has no authority to do this and that he cannot see his way at present to introduce special legislation for the purpose. The Lancashire Association of Chief Constables had previously petitioned various municipalities to obtain the appointment of an official censor.

* * *

Mention of censorship recalls an amusing experience that happened at Birmingham the other day. The Essanay film, "Charlie, the Perfect Lady," was being shown at a local hall and one or two of the patrons protested to the authorities and demanded its withdrawal on grounds of indecency. Next day the magistrates saw the production privately and found not the slightest excuse for prohibiting its exhibition. On the contrary they paid a delicate compliment to the "harmless humor" of Charlie.

* * *

The British Government is about to apply the same drastic measure to other continental countries that was recently levied against Denmark. That is the prohibition of film exports and Holland is given as the next country to have the attentions of the customs offices. The object of this restriction is to prevent pictures of enemy origin from reaching Britain and the Colonies but it is not unlikely that both in Denmark and Holland one or two firms of established repute may eventually have the regulations relaxed to meet their cases.

* * *

"The Kinematograph Renters' Society of Great Britain and Ireland, Limited," came into being last week. It is a reconstruction of the Renters' Association and the organized trade body in this country of the middle men of the industry, the exchange men. Membership costs $50 per annum and is to be confined to renters taking upwards of twenty reels new open-market stock per month. The registered office is at 2 Gerrard place, Shaftesbury avenue, London, W., and the first officers elected are: A. C. Lovesy (Ruffell's), president; F. W. Baker (Butcher's), vice-president and treasurer; H. Cluet Lock, secretary, and Messrs. H. T. Redfern (Gaumont), A. M. Kay (Ideal), J. C. Squier (Jay's), A. S. Mayall (Advance) and R. M. Hewett (International) committeemen.

* * *

The Williamson Kinematograph Company of London has opened a new film printing factory with a net capacity of half a million feet of positives per week at Barnet, Herts.

* * *

The difficulty in the shipping industry of transporting freight to Russia looks like finding a speedy solution and one that should again open up a film market that has been more or less closed since the outbreak of war. A company has been incorporated in London to transport British goods and merchandise including amongst other things moving picture films from Great Britain to Russia and certain Scandinavian countries. From London or one of the East Coast ports they will be shipped to Sweden and there the agents of the company will superintend the transport of the goods to one or other of the Baltic ports whence they will be shipped again direct to Petrograd. The Government has sanctioned its approval of the route.

London Trade Topics.

Another meeting of the Amusements Committee of the London County Council has been held to attempt further exactions from the London exhibitor but fortunately, through the interception of a trade deputation, with no signal success. This time a suggestion for reserving special seats in picture theaters for unaccompanied children was extended. The proposal was made in consequence of complaints that children had been molested in certain houses. Alternatively, the deputation from the Exhibitors' Association suggested that future cases should be reported to the association and left with it to deal with and that an attendant whose special duty should be the care of juvenile patrons be employed at theaters. The Exhibitors' Association's proposal was adopted instead of the original motion.

* * *

A further provision proposed by the County Council is that no films shall be exhibited that have not received the certificate of the British Board of Film Censors except topical or news-pictures that have no bearing upon the war. The council mentioned that the British Board of Film Censors has no official authority but as no other body exists in this country with power to examine films before release were of opinion that it would be in the public interest to give official recognition to the work done by it. On the other hand, should a case arise in which the council objected to the imposition of the condition suggested, it would not prevent the council taking steps to stop the exhibition of the film.

* * *

The revised tax upon films coming into this country from the original half-penny to one-third of a penny per foot on positives and from eight pence to five pence per foot upon negatives is to be drafted into effect immediately.

* * *

Alexandra Palace—the Sentinel landmark of London—has recently been utilized for film production by the Union Film Company. Last Sunday evening an outbreak of fire entirely destroyed one of the studios quite close to the main building.

* * *

The event of the week in the producing sphere of operations is the completion by the Gaumont Company of "Ultus," a modern "Blackhand" drama of the "Zigomar" type. The interior scenes are particularly worthy of special mention and were consummated at the Gaumont studio at Shepherds Bush. For this series of special features the trade name of "Victory Films" has been chosen.

* * *

At one or two of the large industrial works near London engaged at high pressure in the manufacture of munitions of war, Kinematographic entertainment is to be provided between shifts for the mental refreshment of the tired workers. This provision is the outcome of advice from medical specialists who aver that mental tedium is a greater cause of defective output than physical strain. Certain shipbuilding yards in the North have had their own kinemas for many months.

* * *

As in the case of most of their British produced wares the Trans-Atlantic Company continues to dispose of their most notable importations on the exclusive basis, i. e., selling outright to one or other of the renting establishments. The recent Broadway picture, "Fatherhood," is the latest to go this way. Selig's "Red Seal," the Flying-A "distinctive," Vitagraph "Blue Ribbon" each seem to find readier buyers upon the exclusive basis than if sold territorially to a number or all of the exchanges. Others, Thanhouser, Lubin, to name but two, pin their faith more upon the open market, and with few exceptions most of their films can be rented from the exchanges. The Essanay company still vigorously maintains its stand and is exclusively exclusive.

* * *

After much hesitancy the Frohman Amusement Corporation of New York has formulated a regular plan of release of its productions in Great Britain. R. S. Edmonson, a familiar personality amongst the American contingent in town, has been appointed agent.

J. B. SUTCLIFFE.

German Trade Notes

THE newspaper war between the "Lichtbild-Buehne" and the Nordische Film Company is still going on. In July the Danish concern secured the control for Germany in addition to their own films a number of leading marks including the German Union, Oliver and Luna films, the Swedish Svenska Biograf, and the American A. B. and Kalem. In order to strengthen its hold upon the German market, the "trust" has been buying theaters all over Germany and is now owner of sixty moving picture houses including many of the finest in the country such as the ten Union theaters in Berlin, the Union theaters in the Provinces, the Oliver theaters throughout Saxony, the Tauentzein Palast in Breslau and others.

Houses in many of the other cities where the Nordische has not theaters, fearing that the competitor would secure the Nordische films, which are very popular and much in demand, closed contracts with the "trust" by which this concern practically controls these theaters. The result has been to narrow the field for the independent renter who cannot purchase the number of copies which he formerly did owing to the strong competition of the Nordische. This has therefore materially hurt the independent producer, who since the avenues for export have been closed has been forced to depend entirely upon the home market and is now unable to dispose of even the ten copies which he in former times could place in Germany.

Led by the "Lichtbild Buehne" the independent manufacturers and renters declared war upon the Nordische Film Company and are trying to do all within their power to avert the ruin which they claim the Nordische is trying to bring upon the German film industry. The Nordische through its director, D. Oliver, is using the columns of the "Berliner Tageblatt" and the "B. Z. am Mittag" for answering the attacks of the "Lichtbild Buehne." Mr. Oliver maintains that the foreign films which his company brings into Germany give variety to a program which would otherwise be wholly German. The German firms whose products the Nordische controls in Germany are independent of the Danish concern in every respect and the profits accrued from sales to the Nordische Company remain entirely in German hands.

* * *

The Urbach film "Das Raetsel von Sensenheim" ("The Sensenheim Riddle"), is meeting with great success in the Berlin Union theaters. Critics are universal in acknowledging this picture to be one of the finest film pieces from every point of view ever offered to the German public. The newest Urbach film, "Through Night to Light," has just been completed and was shown a few days ago for the first time to a few interested parties. "Through Night to Light" promises to enjoy the same success as that of "The Sensenheim Riddle." The film was produced under the direction of Carl Schoenfeld, familiar to American German theater patrons as leading man in the Thalia theater, New York, where under the management of Gustav Amberg, Mr. Schoenfeld played opposite Miss Marie Geistinger. Mr. Schoenfeld may well be proud of this film, not only through his success as its director, but also through his splendid work in the leading role. The other lead was taken by the popular Vienna actress, Miss Elsa Galafres, who appears for the first time in film. Her success in this picture may well be judged by her splendid work a few years ago in the Hermann Sudermann dramas in the German theaters of America.

* * *

The local film industry is at present suffering from a dearth of unexposed film. The output of the local raw film factories is consumed by a few firms and inasmuch as the American Eastman Kodak is at present difficult to secure, the majority of the Berlin producers are compelled to have most of their films printed in other countries.

* * *

Georg Jacoby, the Berlin film director, was recently in Bucharest at the request of Queen Marie of Roumania, who as in the case of the Queen Mother Elizabeth (better known through her books and novels as Carmen Sylva), has written a number of romances and now wishes to see the same in film. Queen Marie consulted with Mr. Jacoby concerning the production of a dramatic film dealing with Roumanian folk life. Following this film which will probably appear at the beginning of the year, the Queen intends screening the romance, "Ilderim."

* * *

The premier offering of the Dekla film, "A Scream in the Night," took place in the elegant Marmorhaus Lichtspiele on the Kurfürstendamm. The film, a Sherlock Holmes drama, was written by Paul Rosenhayn and arranged by Alwin Neuss, who has won great popularity through his numerous interpretations of the world-famed English detective, chief among which was as Holmes in "The Hound of Baskerville." In addition to directing the production of this interesting picture, Mr. Neuss played with much success the difficult part of Sherlock Holmes. Mr. Neuss, who was formerly engaged in London where he played dramatic parts in the Colosseum, Palace and Empire theaters, is admirably fitted for the Holmes role. Contrary to a recent American criticism of the European depiction of the famous detective, this Sherlock Holmes neglected appearing at a soiree in his checkered cap and with the inevitable pipe in mouth. Mr. Neuss is a great admirer of the American picture and is one of the German actors and directors who believe that much may be learned from the American films. That Mr. Neuss has made a careful study of American films is plainly evident in "A Scream in the Night." The action of the play is supposed to be in America. Although Mr. Neuss has never been in America, he produced a picture which is one of the few German films of this kind which have not been over-Americanized. The director who is a great admirer of the American simplicity and naturalness in film acting instilled into his cast much of this spirit and has thereby produced a work which should pass muster even in America. The music to the film was arranged by Mr. Siegbert Goldschmidt, manager of the Marmorhaus, and helped greatly toward the success of the picture.

* * *

The Messter Film Company has taken over the Mozart Saal Lichtspiele on Nollendorf Platz and has brought the beautiful theater to its rightful plane as one of Berlin's finest moving picture houses. The Messter Film Company, in addition to many of its own splendid productions, is offering some of the finest screen plays upon the German market. The sudden rise in popular esteem of the Mozart Saal is due to a desire upon the part of the management to show only the best, a wide advertising campaign and in large measure to the films featuring the Messter star, Miss Erna Morena, who has occupied a prominent place upon the Mozart Saal programs.

* * *

The trade has suffered a great loss in the death of Marius Christensen, founder of the renting firm bearing his name. Commencing in 1905 with a small picture theater in northern Berlin, Mr. Christensen, through his untiring energy and straight dealing built up a film renting house which is today classed among the largest in Germany.

* * *

Richard Oswald, who is perhaps best known through his successful film production, "The Hound of Baskerville," has commenced the third film of his 1915-1916 series. The new film is from the pen of the well-known author, Paul Rosenhayn, whose interesting detective novels are read the world over. The new film, "The Silver Ball," is being awaited with great interest as the same, in addition to a thrilling romance, will contain a number of new mechanical tricks. The two preceding films of the Oswald series, "Wandern sollst Du ruhelos" and "Die verschleierte Dame," are meeting with signal success.

* * *

L. Lowenstein, director of the Polo Film, Vienna, has been decorated with the silver honor medal of the Red Cross in recognition of services rendered to that organization since the beginning of the war, most prominent of which is the founding and maintaining of a hospital with one hundred beds.

* * *

The Nordische Film Company invited a number of people to a private exhibition of pictures in the Union theater, Friedrichstrasse. Perhaps the most pleasing among the several interesting films shown, was the Svenska Biograf film, "Swedish School-Hygiene," which aroused special interest among the many pedagogues present. Of special interest to sport lovers was the Nordische film, "Sport in the Crown Prince's Army." Among the distinguished guests present were Police President from Berlin von Jagow, Professor Brunner and Polizeirat Mildner of the Berlin board of censorship, Excellency Mumm von Schwarzenstein, chief of the central for foreign work in the foreign office, Excellency von Kessel, Excellency von Kluck, Admiral Excellency von Truppel, ex-Governor of Kiautschau, and others.

J. A. FLEITZER.

Berlin, December 11, 1915.

Reviews of Current Productions

Exclusively by Our Own Staff

"The King's Game."

Splendid Five-part Adaptation of the George Brackett Seitz Play With a Star Cast Released by Pathe Exchange, Inc.

Reviewed by Margaret I. MacDonald.

THE above-named play which served as a starring vehicle for James K. Hackett for a space of two years finds itself very possible of screen adaptation in the hands of Arnold Daly and Ashley Miller. George Probert is again seen to advantage, and Pearl White, after a lengthy vacation, returns to her work with quite as much spirit as she displayed in the Scene from "The King's Game" (Pathe).

"Elaine" series through which she starred with unwavering alacrity, and we might truthfully add, more charming than ever. Sheldon Lewis, too, is seen in the play, playing as usual the role of the bad man, the only difference being that this time there's a reason. With these three well-known artists heading the cast, and a support almost equal in ability to the stars, it is needless to add that the Pathe Gold Rooster play for Jan. 7th is an unusually attractive production.

The plot of the play originates in the unwarranted desire of the Grand Duke of Kiev for the pretty young wife of Count Dardinilis, a Colonel of the Huzzars, and the murder of the Grand Duke by Dardinilis. The accidental death of the wife of Dardinilis at the hands of the Cossacks while endeavoring to arrest the Count is an added incentive to the hatred of Dardinilis for the house of Kiev. Taking with him his little daughter he sails for America where he joins the Nihilists and plots to put to death Philip, the son of the murdered Grand Duke, who is being educated in America.

George Probert in the role of Philip adds a touch of humor to a play that is to all intents and purposes a serious drama. When he has cleverly rounded up the Nihilist gang, and fallen in love with the pretty daughter of Dardinilis, his refusal to prosecute wins the universal favor of the Nihilist leaders and the young lady for his wife.

"Life's Whirlpool."

Melodramatic Version of Frank Norris' "McTeague," Produced by World Film With Holbrook Blinn and Fania Marinoff.

Reviewed by Lynde Denig.

STRENGTH, of a kind, this five-part version of Frank Norris's "McTeague" unquestionably possesses; but it is not a healthy strength, nor a normal strength, hor a strength that will invigorate an audience concerned with the pleasant things of life. The picture is startling in the power of a few scenes, as acted by Holbrook Blinn and Fania Marinoff, and at the same time it comes dangerously near to being repellant because of a brutal depiction of humanity that has become bestial in its depravity. Probably an audience never has witnessed anything more ungoverned, or wilder than the ravings of Miss Marinoff when she finds that her precious money has been stolen, and probably it will have no desire to see a more savage piece of acting.

There are audiences that will leave a theatre impressed by the succession of horrors offered in "Life's Whirlpool" and equally, there are others certain to declare that pictures of the kind should not be screened. It is for an exhibitor to decide which type of clientele he wishes to attract. The hero becomes a drunkard and, in turn, a dangerous brute; whereas his wife develops an insane passion for money and in one of the most gruesome scenes in the production lies all but naked on a bed and goes into wild raptures over the gold coins she won in a lottery. Soon after this she is killed by her husband, who eventually dies a tragic death on a desert.

No doubt the novel from which the picture was taken contained much interesting characterization that is little more than hinted at in the adaptation. One gathers that the brawny young westerner (Mr. Blinn), despite inherited instincts toward evil has some kindly traits, manifested by his devotion to a canary-bird, which he guards all through his wild career. But it cannot be said that the character in its degeneration is always convincingly drawn, and Trina's fatal love of money is still harder to understand. She passes all too quickly from a merry girl, to an affectionate, playful wife and then into a woman that is a fit subject for Mattewan. At all events the story is unusual and it profits by the virile, intelligent acting of Mr. Blinn, also by the unrestrained emotionalism of Miss Marinoff, if one cares for that style of performance. Other character were adequately handled and Director Barry O'Neill's production was of good quality.

Scene from "Life's Whirlpool" (Brady World).

"Her Great Hour"

Five-part Equitable Feature Presenting a Strong Melodrama Written and Produced by Stanner E. V. Taylor.

Reviewed by Margaret I. MacDonald.

WITH Molly McIntyre starring in this production it must be admitted that Gerda Holmes as the feminine "heavy" has quite as fine opportunities as the star. This, it may be added, is no detriment to the picture, for with a cast consisting in addition to those already named, of Richard Lynn, Martin Alsop and P. J. LeMae, all appearing in roles exactly suited to their respective types, the action of the play from first to last has a decidedly professional flavor. It has been written as well as produced by Stanner E. V. Taylor and is a fine type of melodrama in which the characters of the play do more distinctly human things than are sometimes attributed to the characters of a medodrama.

With the exception of one or two discrepancies apparent in the cutting of the film the production may be counted an excellent one. The settings are spacious and beautiful, and provided in many instances with magnificent furnishings. Of the character of Nan Perrine, the last of a once prominent family, and now serving behind the counter of a large jewelry establishment, Molly McIntyre gives a delightful portrayal. Nan is a long suffering, gentle type, a fact which has not been lost sight of for a moment by Miss McIntyre. Gerda Holmes impersonates the foolish but fascinating young society woman whose love of admiration other than her husband's establishes her final downfall in the accidental murder of a would-be lover In this role she is most alluring, and is to be highly commended for the conception which she has placed on the character of the unfortunate woman who, at the climax of the story, dies of heart failure, leaving Nan, who since her false accusation of the theft of a diamond at the jewelry establishment, has acted by arrangement of the woman's husband, and prosecuting attorney for the town, as secretary to his wife, to wear the laurels not always awarded to virtue. After twice sacrificing herself for the reputation of the attorney Nan becomes his second wife.

Scene from "Her Great Hour" (Equitable).

Six Biograph Reissues

Griffith Productions, Varied in Theme and Treatment, Announced for Coming Weeks—Favorite Players in Casts.

Reviewed by Lynde Denig.

SELECTING the best of the early Griffith-Biograph pictures must be a task enlivened by pleasant surprises. They offer such a quantity of variety in theme and treatment and every now and then one is certain to discover a veritable gem that for the past two or three years has been lying in the darkness of a vault. No doubt Griffith produced a number of mediocre photoplays, but along with them came enough of exceptional merit for the Biograph company to pick and choose in preparing its present program. Thus far there is nothing to indicate a shortage of pictures representative of the finest workmanship of the famous director.

"His Mother's Son" (Biograph).

The subjects to be released at weekly intervals, beginning January 24th are, "Adventure in the Autumn Woods," "When Kings Were the Law," "A Chance Deception," "Just Gold," "His Mother's Son" and "The Burglar's Dilemma." Not one of this batch fails to measure up to the requirements of a good single reel, and two of them are of more than passing interest.

The characterization in "His Mother's Son," a thoroughly dramatic little sketch, is made notable by Jennie Lee in the part of a hard, domineering woman, hated by her family, yet necessary for its maintenance. When she dies the family goes to pieces and eventually is saved from seemingly hopeless straits by the son who inherited something of his mother's personality. The lovable, spineless father is accurately portrayed by Chrystie Miller, and two of the children forced to share his humiliation are convincingly presented by Mae Marsh and Bobby Harron.

In "The Burglar's Dilemma," based on the injustice likely to be the outcome of third degree methods, Bobby Harron, as the innocent victim of circumstantial evidence, supplies a remarkably stirring piece of acting. Suspected of a crime that he did not commit, and one of which the audience knows he is innocent, the police almost succeed in bullying him into a confession. Henry Walthall, Lionel Barrymore, Harry Carey and Lillian Gish are others who contribute materially to the power of this picture.

"When Kings Were the Law" is a costume drama that for a time seems conventional and a bit lifeless; then suddenly develops a strong human story carrying a surprise in the last few scenes. Dorothy Bernard, Wilfred Lucas, Claire McDowell and Harry Hyde are in the cast. "A Chance Deception" introduces Blanche Sweet, Harry Carey, Charles Mailes and Mildred Manning in a drama quite typical of Griffiith's ingenious method of developing tense situations and presenting them without a wasted scene.

As the title suggests, "Just Gold" is a tale of the hunt for wealth and its tragic consequences. Three brothers meet death in the gold fields while another less ambitious member of the family remains at home, marries and leads a contented life. One may read a lesson in the picture if he chooses, or he may merely respond to the grip of a dramatic sketch, forcefully acted by Lillian Gish, Lionel Barrymore, Alfred Paget, Charles West and others. "Adventure in the Autumn Woods" is less notable than several of the subjects already mentioned, but it is made interesting by Mae Marsh, Lionel Barrymore, Chrystie Miller, Charles Mailes and Harry Carey.

"Just Gold" (Biograph).

"The Green-Eyed Monster"

Robert B. Mantell, in Fox Melodrama, Again Reveals His Strength as Screen Actor.

Reviewed by Lynde Denig.

IT IS TOO bad that Robert Mantell is not being given material commensurate with his ability. Lurid melodramas such as "The Green-Eyed Monster" are well enough in their way, but a player with training, intelligence and presence, such as possessed by Mr. Mantell, might well be used in photoplays of greater significance. During a comparatively short experience in studio work he had learned how to make effective use of his commanding personality, and allowed the opportunity, no doubt, would provide interesting characterizations. Many actors, long in pictures, might benefit by studying his expert use of make-up to show the physical changes wrought in a man through years of sorrow.

In "The Green-Eyed Monster," directed by J. Gordon Edwards, who prepared the scenario in collaboration with Mary Murillo, Mr. Mantell has the role of a devoted lover, whose devotion is turned to bitterness when his brother wins the girl. And much brooding over the happiness that was snatched from him develops a homicidal mania. He kills the brother when he is unfaithful to his wife, places the body in a coffin secreted in a locked room and is not suspected of murder. Once more he urges his love for the woman and being refused is so obsessed by maniacal fury that he leads her to the coffin and discloses its contents, whereupon she dies of horror. Only the child of the unfortunate union, a boy of some ten years, is left, and he, in turn, is taken to view the remains. This time the perpetrator of the crime imagines that the ghost of his victim has returned to haunt him. The shock is too much, and he dies, thereby ending the picture.

Genevieve Hamper, a most attractive actress at all times, gives an excellent performance as the wife, and Stuart Holmes is satisfactory as the husband. The production contains many fine settings and some good lighting effects. Verses from a poem frequently are used as subtitles.

"The Devil's Prayer Book"

A Photoplay in Five Reels by George Kleine, with a Gripping Story, a Well Constructed Plot and a Strong Cast, Featuring Arthur Hoops and Miss Alma Hanlon.

Reviewed by James S. McQuade.

THE Devil's Prayer Book" is the unique title for a story that deals chiefly with checkered lives, whose courses run counter to the law and which, in the end, meet the penalties attached to wrong doing. True to life, the innocent suffer for the misdoings of the guilty, some of them being denied the privilege of compensation, while others come into their own after a fiery ordeal. It is due to this faithful reflection of life as it is that the story retains strong human interest until the close.

Scene from "The Devil's Prayer Book" (Kleine).

There are several discernible lapses from a perfect visualization of the story, which are due to faulty direction. While of minor importance, they jar on the perception of one who follows the story on the screen with close scrutiny. Take, for example, the manner in which the jewels of the Sprague family are brought to the attention of the spectator. The scene is absolutely isolated from anything that has preceded it, and immediately impresses the viewer as a palpable expedient to prepare one for something that is about to follow, instead of being a simple incident that fits in naturally with the conversation of the little family gathering. The attention paid to small foxes often prevents the spoiling of the grapes.

In this connection it is apropos to refer to the make-ups of Frank Belcher and Miss Ruby Hoffman as John Springer, the crook, and Nancy, his wife, respectively, in one of the opening scenes, in Part II. Fifteen years are supposed to have elapsed since the spectator has seen them last, yet this long interval seemingly leaves no trace of the ravages of time, so far as facial appearances is concerned. In contrast, one is pleased to note that the Albert Sprague (alias Al. Spencer) of Arthur Hoop's, shows artistic care in this respect.

The director has furnished several fine settings, the most elaborate of which is an interior in the Sprague home. The scene showing the result of the "come-on" game, on the premises of the gambler's (Al. Spencer's) home, is realistic in every detail. The court scenes in Parts I and IV are also deserving of mention, the latter especially for its novel arrangement, which is taken from a point back of the judge, thus giving a front view of all in the courtroom, except the jurist himself. The final scene, in the Sprague home, showing the reconciliation of Albert Sprague and his long lost daughter, Nell, will excite admiration, because of the fine light effects and photography. The close-up view preceding the fade out is an artistic touch that brings a thrill to the heart, as it shows Nell in an attitude of forgiveness breathing the word "father" into the ears of the man who is not only the author of her being, but the cause of all the ills which have befallen her.

It has been my first view of Arthur Hoops on the screen, and his Al. Spencer and Albert Sprague are so well carried that I hope to see him frequently in the future. In the latter character, particularly, he shows fine finish as the well bred gentleman, who has outlived his past and tries to atone for the follies of his younger days. One cannot fail to notice that Mr. Hoops has made Sprague appear much older in the closing scene than in any of those which precede his knowledge that Nell, whom he had prosecuted and convicted of crime, was his own daughter. This is as it should be; for the heart anguish of the father for the suffering he has caused her, and his grief and humiliation over the fact that she spurns his relationship are sufficient to break the physical stamina of the strongest man.

A warm welcome is also due Miss Alma Hanlon for her capable and appealing characterization of Nell. Miss Hanlon is also physically pleasing on the screen in this role. The flashes of the camera which show her behind the prison bars reveal a face of girlish beauty, swept by the tides of varying emotions. The look on her face when she pronounces the word "father" is, perhaps, the sweetest of all.

Frank Belcher's virile impersonation of the crook, John Springer, has the stamp of a sterling actor, and the Nancy of Miss Ruby Hoffman furnishes an excellent opposite. Nancy in the courtroom, with another woman's baby in her arms, in order to win the sympathy of the jury, which is to decide the fate of her husband, wins both our smiles and our praise for clever, intelligent acting. Fred Block, an able assistant of Crook Springer, is excellently represented by Carlyle Fleming, and the small part of Tom Sprague is well sustained by Tom Coventry.

The release date was Jan. 5, through Kleine-Edison.

"The Tongues of Men"

An Oliver Morosco Production in Which Constance Collier Appears to Advantage as an Opera Singer.

Reviewed by Lynde Denig

THE element of truth in "The Tongues of Men" will be readily recognized and appreciated by audiences in city, town or village. Hypocrisy, suspicion and intolerance are three unlovely human qualities that Edward Childs Carpenter handles quite adroity in an artistically produced Oliver Morosco pcture. Constance Collier, herself a photoplay actress of commanding presence and considerable beauty, is admirably supported by Forrest Stanley, Herbert Standing, Lydia Yeamans Titus and other players, who, without exception fulfill the requirements of the characters presented by the author. Even in the casting of so minor a figure as the church sexton, the director was careful to select an appropriate type. This is merely a sample of the attention paid to details and the production profits immensely in consequence.

The story is founded on a priggish young minister's prejudice against the stage and actresses, a prejudice that finds expression in his denunciation of Jane Bartlett, an opera prima donna, for her part in what he terms an immoral performance. His attack, published in the newspapers, determines the singer to show up the minister for the foolish youth that he is. She wins his friendship without much difficulty, proves to his satisfaction that she is a perfectly respectable woman, even accepts him as her future husband and gets a public retraction of his unjust accusations. When all this has been accomplished, the prima donna quietly returns his love and his ring that he may renew his engagement to a colorless, conventional little girl better suited to be his wife.

Scene from "The Tongues of Men" (Morosco).

There is sound character drawing in the portrayal of the earnest, but narrow-minded rector of a fashionable parish, contrasted with the kindly tolerance of the more worldly-wise Dr. Darigal; also in the members of the vestry and the altar guild, all too ready to credit the gossip linking the names of their rector and the singer. One welcomes logical situations of the kind developed, in place of the unconvincing heroics that too frequently pass for strong scenes. Miss Collier, in appearance and manner, is ideally suited to the role of an opera singer, Mr. Stanley's presentation of Sturgis is consistent and Lamar Johnstone displays the requisite poise and authority in his acting of Dr. Fanshawe. All of the settings are in good taste and notably fine is the staging of a spectacular opera.

Two Lubin Releases

"The City of Failing Light," a Four-Reel Unit Program Subject, and "The Bond Within," a Three-Reel Photoplay, Involving the Capture of Vera Cruz.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

"The City of Failing Light."

THE subject matter of this four-reel photoplay is excellent. Written by Anthony P. Kelly and produced by George W. Terwilliger, "The City of Failing Light" has many things in its favor. The theme is vital, and the manner in which the big situation is led up to centers the interest upon it with great force. The situation itself is not fully realized by the director. It moves too slowly, and a different arrangement of the business of the scene would make for improvement. There are also other portions of the drama that would profit by a quickening of the tempo.

Scene from "The City of Failing Light" (Lubin).

Mr. Kelly's story is founded upon the old struggle between capital and labor. He has taken for his main situation the dramatic incident of the strike leader who orders all the city electric light wires cut, thus, unwittingly, plunging into darkness the room in which a doctor is operating, in a desperate attempt to save the life of the strike leader's child. The other motives of the story, which include the contrasting of two brothers who bear a remarkable resemblance to each other but who are totally unalike in character and tastes, and the utilizing of their similarity of appearance to further the ends of justice, serve to bind the plot together with firmness and a proper regard for feasibility. The one incident that seems somewhat strained is where the strike leader meets, as he supposes, the man he is trying to crush, at the bedside of his sick child. All the other incidents square so well with probability that the want of likelihood in this one, is made the more noticeable. The credit side of the picture's ledger largely overbalances the other side, however, and "The City of Failing Light" may conscientiously be recommended to all admirers of an interesting photoplay.

Herbert Fortier has the dual role of the brothers, John and David Gray. His skilful differentiation of the two men, and the truth and finish of both characterizations, could hardly be improved upon. William H. Turner, Leslie Austen, Octavia Handworth and Mrs. William Carr have other well acted roles.

"The Bond Within."

AN EXCEPTIONALLY original plot, put together with deftness and produced with equal skill by the director, insure this three-reel drama by Julian Louis Lamothe, a hearty welcome. Starting with the not unfamiliar complication of the young man who must not marry before his twenty-fifth birthday, if he wishes to inherit a fortune, and the young girl who discovers, when her lover is far distant, that her friends will soon be wondering why she does not wear a wedding ring, the story follows the fortunes of the boy born to these two young people. The war in Cuba has called Lieut. Scott away, and Elsie Moore, his sweetheart, is forced to keep the birth of her child a secret. The romantic history of this child, his being lost track of by his parents, his bringing up by a Mexican woman, his being forced to serve in the Mexican Army, and, finally, his death in the arms of his mother, after he had saved her life and also that of his father, at the taking of Vera Cruz by the American forces, furnish the material for an unhackneyed screendrama that retains the interest from first to last. One of the pleasing touches in the picture is the means by which the author has the heroine indicate her approaching motherhood. Refinement of feeling is its keynote. Adda Gleason, who has been intrusted with the part of Elsie Moore, gives a beautifully sympathetic portrayal of this scene, and the same is true of her efforts all through the picture. L. C. Shumway, George Routh, Henry Russell, Joyce Wardlow and Adelaide Bronti comprise the remainder of a thoroughly good cast. Edward Sloman had charge of the production.

"The Five Faults of Flo"

A Mutual Masterpicture in Five Parts, Produced by the Thanhouser Company, and Featuring Florence La Badie.

Reviewed by Louis Reeves Harrison.

PICTURING five separate and sensational experiences in the life of a young lady of strong individuality, "The Five Faults of Flo" preserves a single line of interest. The story is of a very high school, one which is being followed by some of the most advanced of modern novelists, particularly those who are in love with human life. The play describes the state of a young girl's mind at different periods and succeeds in spite of the sensational incidents still deemed necessary by many directors to hold attention in a full-sized feature, though exactly the reverse is the case. Splendid characterization is the essential, one that depicts the mind and heart with "the minuteness of a scientist, the charm of a poet, and the faithfulness of an historian."

"The Five Faults of Flo" is at its best when it mirrors the young girl's very soul, a sort of magic mirror, reflecting those depths rarely penetrated. It is at its worst in the fourth episode, where it depends upon material that has been used until it is nearly worn out. The whole idea is in harmony with the Thanhouser progressive spirit, but instead of subordinating revelation of the heroine's complex character, as in the fourth act, to strained situations, that whole idea might have been better illuminated by more subtlety of treatment, more fascinating psychology. Miss La Badie appears to be fit for all the opportunity that can be given her. Her work has improved so decidedly that she seems to have attained the intense personality necessary to enforce a leading role, one which only comes when an attractive woman rises out of self-complacency into artistry.

Scene from "The Five Faults of Flo" (Thanhouser).

"A Soul Enslaved"

Broadway-Universal Production, Based on Novel by George Bronson Howard, Dealing With Sex Problem.

Reviewed by Robert C. McElravy.

THIS five-reel production goes deeply into the more vital problems of human relationship, picturing the manner in which two people who have transgressed, finally find happiness in each other's love. The treatment throughout is frank, but entirely sincere and convincing. It is a sad study of life, but not in any sense morbid. It solves in a way the old question of which shall suffer, the man or the woman; the answer being that both shall suffer, but that the sin is equal.

The story, by George Bronson Howard, has been adapted for the screen by Adele Farrington. A capable cast appears, headed by Cleo Madison, who plays the part of Jane after she had grown up. Irma Sorter plays the "child of sorrow" in her younger years. Thomas Chatterton, Marguerite Gibson, Lule Warrenton, Douglas Gerrard and Alfred Allen also appear.

Richard Newton, the leading man, is first seen luring a girl named Nellie to her downfall. She finds herself deserted by Richard, who is summoned home, and drowns herself. Simultaneously with this, the child, Jane, is seen running away from her drunken mother. She grows up in ignorance, working in a factory. Her employer takes a fancy to her and she lives with him for some time.

The first complication appears when Paul Kent, a friend of Richard's, comes on the scene. He meets Jane, through her employer, and induces the girl to run away with him. She goes, thinking he will marry her. Instead, he lives with her a short time, gives her money and disappears.

Jane then meets Richard, through an automobile accident, for which she is responsible. Her frequent visits to the hospital lead to love. She and Richard are married and are living happily with their child some years later when trouble of an inevitable sort turns up. At a social function Jane meets her former employer, who denounces her for leaving him. Later she chances upon Paul Kent, who immediately tells Richard of her previous life.

The feature that distinguishes this from the usual run of sex stories is the effective close. Richard, after spurning both Jane and his child, thinks back over his own life. He remembers Nellie, whom he ruined, and finally arrives at the very just conclusion that his wife is well worthy of him. A reconciliation follows.

Scene from "A Soul Enslaved" (Universal).

Vitagraph Shows Two Good Dramas

"Britton of the Seventh" Is a Military Story of the Plains, "The Ruse" a Tale of Society and Business.

Reviewed by George Blaisdell

THE Vitagraph company will release on January 27 "Britton of the Seventh." The story is in four parts, and for a background has the Custer massacre. The massacre is shown as an incident in the story. Lionel Belmore, who produced the subject, has as participants in the making of the picture large numbers of United States troops. For his actors he has the excellent players who accompanied him last spring to Fort Clark, Texas. Among these are Darwin Karr, Ned Finley, Harry Northrup, Logan Paul, Eleanor Woodruff, Eulalie Jensen, Rose Tapley, Marion Henry and Colonel Jasper Ewing Brady. The latter's brother, Cyrus Townsend Brady, is the author of the script. There is one other whose name is not given in the cast—the man who portrays Meekins, a scout. He may be a player, but he looks every fraction of an inch the part assigned to him.

Mr. Karr carries the name role, a lieutenant whose sympathy for the mistreated wife of one of his fellow officers has been construed by her as affection. Miss Jensen is the wife; when she discovers Britton is not in love with her, has not been in love with her, she testifies against him, truthfully, to be sure, but with savage satisfaction. A letter of disavowal written by Britton has fallen into the hands of the husband and he conceals its existence. Mr. Finley is General Custer; Mr. Northrup the jealous and abusive and vindictive husband; Mr. Paul, Rain-in-the-Face; Mr. Belmore, Captain Yates; Miss Henry, an Indian maid, and Miss Tapley and Miss Woodruff the feminine members of the family in the daughter of which Britton is deeply interested.

Scene from "Britton of the Seventh" (Vitagraph).

The picture is rich in incident, from the spectacular as well as from the dramatic side. There are the sagebrush and cactus studded plains, there are the barracks and structures of the army post, there are the stirring cavalry charges. The scene in the store when Meekins points out Rain-in-the-Face and the arrest of the bad Indian in spite of the attempts of the red men to prevent is red-blooded stuff. There is moving drama at the close when Mrs. Cranston, now in possession of the letter which had been the cause of Britton's resignation from the army, comes to Britton and Barbara and acknowledges that she was mistaken, that Britton was right and that his honor is secure.

"Britton of the Seventh" will make a good release.

"The Ruse."

The issue for Saturday following is "The Ruse," in three parts, an interesting drama of business and society, written and produced by Eugene Mullin. Joseph Kilgour is John Cotrell, who in a business deal defeats and makes an enemy of Morgan Dallas, portrayed by Harry Morey. Dallas in revenge makes advances to Mrs. Cotrell. Denton Vane is Edgar Langdon, the good-for-nothing brother of Mrs. Cotrell, whose clandestine visits to the home of his sister bring multiplying complications and who eventually wounds Dallas in order to save the life of his brother-in-law. Naomi Childers is the wife who is trapped into revealing the family skeleton to Dallas before telling her husband, thereby putting into the hands of the conscienceless visitor a club he is not slow to use. Charles Kent is the family doctor to whom Dallas appeals for advice—and gets it.

"The Ruse" is a well-played story. There are situations of power, the strength of which is accentuated by the skilled work of the actors. Mr. Kilgour's interpretation of the role of the husband is a study in itself. John Costello as the elder Langdon who detects his son rifling the family safe has a bit, and makes that bit stand out.

Scene from "The Ruse" (Vitagraph).

"The Ruse" is also well staged.

"The Catspaw"

Kleine-Edison Feature in Which Marc MacDermott and Miriam Nesbitt Give Able Performances.

Reviewed by Lynde Denig.

MADE in the Edison studio, under the direction of George A. Wright, with Marc MacDermott and Miriam Nesbitt heading a company of Edison players, this five-part picture may be recommended as first class entertainment. William Hamilton Osborne developed an unusual story around the lives of two ingenious criminals and a down-at-the-heels actor, who, without any guilty intentions, becomes their catspaw. It is a romance of crime committed by picturesque figures most at home in the refined surroundings of fashionable society. The plot is cleverly devised to keep an audience in uncertainty about what is going to happen next and to give a surface plausibility to the daring moves of expert criminals. The acting of Mr. MacDermott and Miss Nesbitt is always interesting and the tasteful staging of the production is no small factor in its success.

First credit goes to Mr. MacDermott for his playing of the dual role of Kittredge St. John, the Raffles style of burglar, and the man, who in appearance is his double. Posing as an invalid in need of some one to impersonate him at social affairs, St. John engages an actor badly in need of employment. The result, of course, is a perfect alibi, for when a house is entered, or a bank robbed there are always plenty of people ready to assert that St. John was their guest at the time. But the adroit crook did not reckon with the unreliability of human emotions; he did not figure that his double would fall in love with a young woman at one of the house parties, nor that his accomplice and sweetheart, Roxane, not knowing that the part of the lover was being played by another man, would become violently jealous. Roxane tells the police where the mysterious burglar may be captured and at the trial, St. John plays his cleverest trick by pretending that he is the actor employed to impersonate the crook. The subterfuge is effective, but it would not be suitable for a picture to close with crime triumphant, so in the concluding scenes St. John and Roxane are captured.

This romantic tale has a number of dramatic moments and some effective incidents devised to show how expert criminals play the game. Miss Nesbitt, looking her best in fashionable gowns, is an impressive Roxane and an able supporting company includes William Wadsworth, Yale Benner, Harry Eytinge and Grace Morrissey.

Scene from "The Catspaw" (Kleine-Edison).

"Mice and Men"

Marguerite Clark, Supported by Marshall Neilan and Charles Waldron, Scores in a Charmingly Wholesome Play.

Reviewed by George Blaisdell.

IT IS more than an interesting picture that the Famous Players release in "Mice and Men," the five-part subject directed by J. Searle Dawley and featuring Marguerite Clark. To borrow an expression from the women—and those women who see the picture very likely unhesitatingly will loan it—it is a "sweet" picture; it is satisfying. As you walk out from it you feel under its spell. Aside from a few situations, its strength is not in its power, but in its charm. It is wholesome. Of "rough stuff" there is none. Of rough characters there is not one. Of misguided love there is a rumble, a flame, but no conflagration results. Somewhat unusual in plays, but possibly not unusual in life, it is the woman who makes the advances and the man who has the saving spark of conscience and common sense to see beyond the end of his nose.

Scene from "Mice and Men" (Famous Players).

Miss Clark in the beginning has the role of Peggy, a child, one of the many in an orphan asylum. From that institution she is "took" into the home of a man who has been impressed by a sentence he has read in a book that if a man would have a wife to his liking he personally should supervise her upbringing. The ripple of mirth, feminine in sound, that passed over the big house in the Strand Monday afternoon as the sentence was shown on the screen indicated the interest with which the author's ideas were received. The plan works out splendidly until Peggy is woman grown. Mark Embury, the guardian, has set the stage for a proposal. In a moonlit arbor, with a lake in the background, he hesitates—and is lost. The real lover appears, extends his arm, and Embury gets not another chance.

The foregoing is the shell of the story, but the shell is filled with incident. Miss Clark has had no screen medium in which as child and young woman she appears to better advantage. She is the personification of virile youth. She portrays the simplicity of childhood, its innocence, and the coquetry, the unartificial coquetry, of budding womanhood.

The cast has been skillfully chosen. Marshall Neilan is a dashing army lieutenant, Lovell by name, who is momentarily fascinated by Mrs. Goodlake, the darling of a near old man. Lovell wakes up even as he nods; as his lips touch those of Mrs. Goodlake he realizes he is on ground that is untenable. The battle between the conscience of Lovell and the love of Mrs. Deborrah makes a most interesting subsidiary story. Charles Waldron is ideal as Embury—a splendidly drawn character and a character splendidly played. Another character that will appeal to any house is that of Mrs. Deborrah, Embury's aunt, the woman under whose immediate care Peggy comes as she enters Embury's home. Maggie Holloway Fiske is Mrs. Deborrah. Helen Dahl is the misguided wife, and well she plays it.

The picture is finely staged. The exteriors are of the south, with the southern atmosphere—with the moss laden branches of the trees, with those stately porticoed and column-adorned white mansions that are found only below Mason and Dixon's. The period is of the late forties, and the costumes square with it. We are not going to enumerate any of the "situations," but they are present. You'll enjoy them.

Tracing a Ray of Light

A New Kind of Fan Who Is Interested in the Motion Pictures Projector.

The manager of a local theater declares he has discovered a new kind of picture "fan" that is not a "film" fan after the manner of the general run of moving picture enthusiasts. The "fans" have hitherto shown interest exclusively in the films themselves or the players acting before the camera.

The particular "fan" in question evidences a curious interest in one important essential of the "movies" that "picture fans" usually ignore—and that is the machine that projects the picture upon the screen. The steady, even and flickerless projection of moving pictures comes as a result of tireless research and experimenting and was finally attained and credited to the genius of Nicholas Power, a man who has spent half his life in achieving a close approach to perfection in projecting pictures.

"Mr. Curious," as the theater manager aptly named his newly discovered "fan" was more interested in the ray of light that came from high above his head than he was in the picture that developed on the surface where the light spread its beams after tracing a generally widening "streak" from its source. The changing scenes in the moving picture interested him, greatly, of course, but the mechanism that was concealed from view at the narrow end of the ray of light more thoroughly engaged his curosity.

The theatre manager told "Mr. Curious" that he was welcome to call at the theater previous to the time for opening the doors and examine the machine that made moving pictures possible. So it came about that the curious one spent an hour or more, on a recent morning, inspecting the Nicholas Power invention and finding out the process by which the film passes before the light as pictures are projected upon the screen.

Moss Finishes "One Day."

The screen version of "One Day," written as a sequel to Elinor Glyn's enthralling love drama, "Three Weeks," with Jeanne Iver as the scintillating figure, is now complete, under the direction of Hal Clarendon, of Famous Players and Thanhouser fame. "One Day" will be released on Jan. 15.

Aside from its inherent dramatic worth, "One Day" commends itself chiefly for a cast of all-star distinction, including Victor Southerland, Madge Tyrone, Robert Broderick, Edna Holland, Joseph Dillon, Mrs. James Ellery, Arthur Evers, Mrs. William Hoyt, Walter D. Nealand, Mabel Alden, William Bechtel and Master Richard Ross.

Signal Enlarges Forces.

A new company to produce five-reel Mutual Masterpictures, Edition De Luxe, has been organized by the Signal Film Corporation which is enlarging its force to enable it to become a regular contributor to the Mutual Film Corporation's new feature policy whereby, beginning Jan. 1, three Masterpictures Edition De Luxe, will be released weekly. Four veteran motion picture celebrities have been chosen as the nucleus of this new feature company, which will commence work in the immediate future at the Signal Film Corporation's studios at Santa Barbara.

Comments on the Films

Exclusively by Our Own Staff.

General Film Company

SELIG-TRIBUNE, NO. 1, 1916 (Selig), Jan. 3.—The first number of the Selig-Tribune news film ushers the new venture into the moving picture field most auspiciously. The following list of news items shows the breadth and excellence of the opening installment: Savannah, Ga., housewives don overalls; new eight million dollar bridge at Memphis, Tenn.; hockey practice, Harvard; U. S. warship California; views of Panama locks; portrait of Josephus Daniels; German soldiers on the Russian frontier; young women bathers diving into Lake Michigan; Col. E. M. House, Brand Whitlock and Capt. Boy-Ed leaving New York for Europe; Senate pages, Washington; war munition plants, Aetna, Ind.; testing new warplane, Readville, Mass.; wreck of roller coaster, Revere Beach, Mass.; baby elephant at Selig Zoo; U. S. sailors on the Nebraska give Christmas presents to children.

THE LITTLE TRESPASSER (Vitagraph), Jan. 3.—The entertainment in this one-reel comedy is of the fluffy pastry sort—light and unsubstantial, but very pleasing to the taste. The author, Charles E. Risse, has built a pretty little romance around a child of nature and a wealthy young chap. Everything comes out in the proper story book fashion, and Jewell Hunt, James Morrison, William Sellery, Harry Fisher, John Costello and Nellie Palmer supply the right grade of acting.

WHEN HOOLIGAN AND DOOLIGAN RAN FOR MAYOR (Vitagraph), Jan. 5.—This one-reel comedy, on the Personally Picked Program, shows the comic side of politics. As the acting has been placed in the competent care of Hughey Mack, William Shea, Flora Finch, Kate Price, Nitra Frazer and Donald MacBride, the good points of the picture are skillfully brought out. Wally Van made the production.

THE MISSING MUMMY (Kalem), Jan. 4.—Although Bud Duncan takes the place of a missing mummy in this one-reel farce, he has little trouble in proving that he is anything but "a dead one." The comic happenings in the picture are many, and Bud, Charles Inslee, Ethel Teare, Jack McDermott, Gus Leonard and Charles Mulgro work at high speed all through the reel.

MILE-A-MINUTE MONTY (Essanay), Jan. 5.—Leon A. Sarle's animated cartoon on this split reel is decidedly amusing. The artist grotesque characters are in a class by themselves; so, also, is Monty's flying machine. Views taken in Vancouver, B. C., are also on the reel.

HIS LORDSHIP (Lubin), Jan. 5.—Daniel Ellis, the author of this one-reel comedy, has made a modern version of the Christopher Sly episode from "Taming of the Shrew." The incidents are amusing as ever in present-day dress, and offer D. L. Don a role that fits him at every angle. Florence Williams and Patsy DeForest have the leading female roles.

SELIG-TRIBUNE NO. 2, 1916 (Selig), Jan. 6.—A picture that looks like a meeting of the Peace Party opens the reel. It shows a flock of 17,000 geese at Gibson City, Ill. Other items are: Mummer's Parade, Philadelphia; heavy fall of snow near Seattle; Mexican boys at El Paso; Pan American Congress, Washington; S. S. Curacoa, Seattle; General Huerta, El Paso; animal hospital, Boston; Mexican generals and officials, Juarez, Mexico; Representative Buchanan indicted at Washington; feeding python at Chicago Zoo; two million dollar fire, South Chicago.

HIS WIFE KNEW ABOUT IT (Vitagraph), Jan. 7.—Aside from offering fifteen minutes of unalloyed amusement, this one-reel comedy contains a sure recipe for retaining the services of one's cook. The scenario was written by James Montgomery Flagg, and is as full of laughs as a plum pudding is full of raisins. Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew have not the slightest difficulty in extracting the full flavor of its humor.

BILLIE'S HEADACHE (Lubin), Jan. 8.—The fun in this one-reel farce is furnished by the seat of a chair and the corresponding section of Billie's trousers. They become firmly attached to each other, and William finds himself in an awkward position. The headache is merely a ruse. The reel is quite laughable and is well acted by Billie Reeves, Carrie Reynolds, Peter Lang, Clara Lambert and John Sherman.

CAUGHT WITH THE GOODS (MinA), Jan. 6.—The "goods" referred to in this one-reel farce is an attractive young woman, and a flirtatious married man is the "party of the first part." The complications are closely related to those found in a French farce, and lively playing by a capital cast makes the reel an amusing one.

CROSSED CLUES (No. 11 of the "Ventures of Marguerite" Series) (Kalem), Jan. 7.—This number of the series deals interestingly with foreign spies and events connected with conditions brought about by the present war. Miss Courtot still continues to dress herself tastefully, and is assisted in the action by Roland Bottomly, Richard Purdon, Forrest Cummings, Hassen Mussali and Joe Sullivan.

THIS WAY OUT (Vim), Jan. 7.—The ins and outs of hotel life as made possible by a skilled director of comic situations and the efforts of a cast that hesitate at no known variety of "funny fall," combine to shape this one-reel farce into a worthy Vim. The trio of "knockabout" comedians employed in this brand of pictures have full scope for their best endeavors.

WHEN SECONDS COUNT (No. 61 of the "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series) (Kalem), Jan. 8.—Since the advent of Helen Gibson as the star of this series of photoplays, she has made clear the fact that she will not be stumped. The hazard taken by her in this one-reel drama is a "best thriller," and the events leading up to it form an exciting screen drama.

General Film Company Specials.

THE BURIED TREASURE OF COBRE (Selig), Jan. 3.—Richard Harding Davis is the author of the scenario for this three-reel photoplay of adventure and romance. The plot calls for several unusual settings, and Frank Beal, the director, has shown great skill in meeting the demand. The story is novel, spirited, holds the interest to the finish, and is in line with the South American tales that did so much to help Mr. Davis make his reputation as a writer. Harry Mestayer is an engaging hero. Others in the well balanced cast are Frank Clark, Will Machin, Louis Cody, Fred Hearn, Richard Morris and Virgina Kirtley.

THE AVENGING SHOT (Biograph), Jan. 4.—In this tense two-part drama Charles H. Mailes gives an excellent characterization of an aged curio dealer who has waited for twenty years to avenge a wrong. The opportunity comes unexpectedly. Vera Sisson, Jack Mulhall and G. Raymond Nye are in the cast of a very well presented picture that never fails to hold the attention.

HER LESSON (Essanay), Jan. 4.—The danger run by a married woman when carrying on a flirtation with a man other than her husband, is clearly told in this two-reel drama. The subject is treated in a realistic manner, and the production is handsomely mounted. G. M. Anderson and Ruth Saville are excellent as the husband and wife, respectively, and Rodney Hildebrand, Lloyd Bacon and Eva Heazlett justify their presence in the cast.

THE SKATING-RINK (Biograph), Jan. 5.—A bright three-part comedy in which most of the scenes are laid in a village obsessed by the roller-skating craze. A barn is turned into a rink for the convenience of the rural population. There is a spectacular fire in the last reel. Gertrude Bambrick gives an especially effective comedy performance, whereas others of importance in the cast are Dave Morris, Madge Kirby, Louise Owen and Jack Mulhall.

THE HONOR OF THE ROAD (Kalem), Jan. 5.—Sixth Episode of the "Stingaree" series in which the road agent shows up a real rascal who has not only robbed but murdered his partner. What is more, he has laid the crime at the convenient door of Stingaree, who is disgusted. Stealing a police uniform, he poses as an inspector and with a clue that he stumbled upon gets enough evidence to make the rough and villainous rancher confess after which he turns him over to the police with his confession written on his chest. It is a good offering and well holds up its end in the series.

SORROWS OF HAPPINESS (Lubin), Jan. 5.—This four-reel Unit Program photoplay tells of the way in which an elder sister forced the betrayer of a simple country girl to right the wrong. The story is well told and has been carefully produced by Joseph Kaufman. June Daye, Craufurd Kent, Inez Buck and Bartley McCullum are in the cast. A review of this picture appeared in the issue of Jan. 8, page 257.

VENGEANCE OF THE OPPRESSED (Lubin), Jan. 6.—Strength of story and excellence of production mark this three-reel drama. The opening scenes are laid in Russia and a realistic picture is shown of the oppression and cruelty practiced upon an unfortunate Jewish family. The latter part of the action takes place in this country. Edward Sloman directed the photoplay and also acts the leading part. Francelia Billington, Adda Gleason, George Routh and L. C. Shumway are members of the cast. A review of the picture was printed in the issue of Jan. 8, page 257.

PAYING THE TOLL (Knickerbocker), Jan. 7.—In order to point the moral of his story, the author of this three-reel drama has discarded the "happy ending." The plot tells of a young girl who grew tired of waiting for her lover when ill-luck overtook him, and married his wealthy rival. There is an abundance of fairly convincing incidents during the action of the photoplay, and the cast works earnestly, with somewhat limited ability, to meet the demands of the scenario. The production is up to the average.

SPOOKS (No. 8 of the "Chronicles of Bloom Center") (Selig), Jan. 8.—In this two-reel comedy the director easily demonstrates his superiority over the ordinary medium, by producing a number of real "spooks." They invade a seance and put the fake "spooks" and every one else to flight. The number keeps pace with the other pictures of the series, and Cecil Holland, Wm. Hutchinson, Ralph McComus, John Lancaster and Sidney Smith repeat their respective performances of the quaint character roles.

Fox Film Corporation.

THE GREEN-EYED MONSTER (Fox), Jan. 3.—Robert Mantell gives a telling performance in this five-part picture, directed by J. Gordon Edwards. The story follows the line of extravagant melodrama, which profits by the intelligent acting of Mr. Mantell and of Genevieve Hamper. Another capable performance is provided by Stuart Holmes. This offering should appeal to Fox audiences.

Mutual Film Corporation.

SEE AMERICA FIRST, NO. 17 (Gaumont), Jan. 4.—In this number of these excellent travel pictures we are taken to Chicago, over the stock yards, to the Gary steel mills, and other interesting points in and about Chicago. Only exterior views of these manufacturies are given. On the same reel with "Keeping Up with the Jonses."

KEEPING UP WITH THE JONESES (Gaumont), Jan. 4.—In this particular episode in the life of the McGinnises a pet parrot works havoc in the domestic machinery of the household. Very amusing.

MUTUAL WEEKLY NO. 53 (Mutual), Jan. 6.—Interesting items of this number are bas-relief monument of Edith Cavell, the heroic English nurse, in Paris, France; fire at Savannah, Ga., which destroyed $200,000 worth of cotton, the opening of the second Pan-American Scientific Congress, the latest skating fashions, the sailing of the "Rotterdam" with many notables on board including Col. E. M. House, Brand Whitlock and other scenes equally interesting.

JERRY IN THE MOVIES (Cub), Jan. 7.—George Ovey is quite as entertaining as usual in this one-reel comedy. It is more or less of the slapstick sort, but free from vulgarity and very funny. After having a prospective moving picture actor arrested in the park as a crazy man, he himself takes the book on "How to Be a Motion Picture Actor" and pursues it to his heart's content. Eventually he makes his way into a moving picture studio with severe results.

ALIAS MR. JONES (Casino), Jan. 9.—"Bud" Ross is the star of this comedy, which is a very good one. Mr. Jones is more or less of a myth, but becomes quite a material factor in the straightening out of the domestic affairs of a young married couple. The husband through unfortunate circumstances is accused of what he is not guilty of, and has to move and think quickly in order to get even with the game. This will be found very acceptable to most audiences.

OH FOR THE LIFE OF A FIREMAN (Vogue), Jan. 10.—A farce comedy of ordinary merit which might be found very amusing to some audiences. The accidental muffling of the fire bell by the fire chief's wife, the effort to extricate the victims of a factory fire, and the desperate love making of some of the characters will be found amusing.

THE FIRST QUARREL (Beauty), Jan. 11.—Although many would find this comedy entertaining, it is not especially commendable for the reason again that there are too many of the scenes staged in bedrooms. This is apt to be objectionable, no matter how careful a director may be in presenting them.

SEE AMERICA FIRST, NO. 18, MILWAUKEE, WIS. (Gaumont), Jan. 11.—Comprehensive views are shown in this number of the city of Milwaukee. Numerous machine plants, public buildings and other features are pictured.

KEEPING UP WITH THE JONESES (Gaumont), Jan. 11.—Ma McGinnis takes a marvelous joy ride, in which she knocks over a train and many other obstacles with her automobile. Amusing animated drawings.

REFORMING "RUBBERING ROSE" (Falstaff), Jan. 13.—A comic number which has been done before, but has features of interest. It pictures a series of incidents which occur while the old lady gossips from her back window. The piano is taken out and the house catches fire before she wakes up to the situation. This has amusing moments.

SPIDER BARLOW MEETS COMPETITION (American), Jan. 14.—An amusing comedy-drama in which Spider Barlow still remains the winner, in spite of many complications that occur during the burglarizing of the house of Willard Dale. Dale, coming home from a masquerade ball dressed as a burglar, is the cause of much confusion and considerable comedy. The production with Winnifred Greenwood, George Field, Edward Coxen and Sid Algier is a good one.

GETTING IN WRONG (Beauty), Jan. 15.—An amusing comedy in which one occupant of an apartment house gets into the wrong apartment and consequently the wrong bedroom, while he is under the influence of liquor. Although there is nothing really vulgar about the picture it would have been as well to have chosen some other subject.

GRACE'S GLORIOUS GOWNS (Falstaff), Jan. 18.—An amusing comedy, in which a girl stenographer falls heir to her aunt's millinery business. The girl, instead of selling the gowns, wears them at the beach, making a decided sensation. Then another will is found, leaving everything to another. This is quite original and pleasing.

THE THUNDERBOLT (American), Jan. 21.—This production has a fair amount of merit. It treats of an effort of one man to ruin the reputation of a young woman and her sweetheart. The villain is killed by a thunderbolt just after he has written a declaration of his own ill-doing and their innocence Some good storm scenes occur in this picture.

Mutual Film Corporation Specials.

THE HOMESTEADER (Centaur), Jan. 6.—A two-part animal drama of more than usual merit. Margaret Gibson is especially charming in the leading role. The story is of a young girl and her invalid mother who go west in the capacity of homesteaders. The usual trouble occurs with the frontier villain, and the hero steps in and rescues the girl. But in spite of the story being a somewhat hackneyed one the production is as before said unusually attractive.

VIVIANA (American), Jan. 10.—A two-reel offering, featuring Vivian Rich, George Periolat and others. The story is that of a wealthy young idler who lures a pretty young girl to his apartments for evil purposes. He discovers his sister in an adjoining apartment with a young actor. This brings about his moral awakening. He saves his sister and spares the young girl. Later he experiences real love for her and asks her to marry him. This has a broad theme, but is handled pleasingly and really carries a desirable moral effect. It makes a good offering.

THE SECRET AGENT (Rialto), Jan. 12.—A three-reel number, featuring Robert T. Haines, Flavia Arcaro, Kathleen Ruth and Harry W. Pemberton. There is not great novelty in the plot, which has to do with a young girl carrying jewels across the ocean on a liner, followed by a crook and a secret service agent. Yet the presentation is attractive and the action good. The final scenes, if anything, are a trifle hurried. There is an unexpected twist in the plot at the close, when the supposed diamonds turn out to be merely crystal reproductions. An entertaining number.

THE WOMAN IN POLITICS (Mutual Masterpicture-Thanhouser), Jan. 13.—This five-part production from the Thanhouser studios presents one of the best constructed photoplays of the season. The plot is a good one, and is developed consistently. The story is an excellent plea for woman suffrage. A full review of this production will be found in the issue of January 8.

THE SECRET WIRE (American), Jan. 14.—This is rather a thrilling production which treats of a search for a telephone connection which has been secretly installed in the headquarters of a bandit gang. Harold Lockwood and May Allison play the principal roles. The picture is in two reels, is consistently developed and is altogether an entertaining offering.

WATER STUFF (Mustang), Jan. 15.—A three-reel Buck Parvin number, adapted from one of the stories of Charles E. Van Loan. In this number Queenie Rosson and Art Accord appear. The girl gets a job on pretense that she can swim, but when the test comes she is unable to do so. Buck saves her from drowning. The number is a trifle strung out but runs along entertainingly and comes to a laughable climax. The fire scene on the boat makes a good feature.

THE GAMBLE (American), Jan. 16.—A two-reel number, featuring Harold Lockwood, Wm. Stowell, May Allison and Harry von Mater. The scenes take place on a ranch and are very attractive. The young ranchman marries an Eastern girl after her father's suicide as the result of financial failure. She grows lonely and is attracted to Leland, an employe. The husband confronts Leland and asks the wife to choose between them. She remains true to her husband and Leland turns out to be a squawman. The story is interesting and well developed.

THE THOROUGHBRED (Masterpicture de luxe American), Jan. 17.—This five-reel picture produced by the American Film Co. features William Russell and Charlotte Burton. As one of the edition de luxe it is not as perfect a production as we would like to see. Its story is not big enough for five reels; consequently there has been a good deal of incident dragged into it for the sake of the spectacular.

THE PHANTOM WITNESS (Thanhouser), Jan. 19.—A three-reel subject, by Phillip Lonergan, featuring Kathryn Adams, Edwin Shirley and others. This is a story of the grewsome, creepy type and, while it is not convincing in every detail, keeps a close hold on the interest. The old guardian renders his ward ill by placing rats in the house. She buys rat poison and he brings about her death by pouring it in her drinking water. Her vision appears to the district attorney, her lover, who examines the guardian on the witness stand and breaks him down, so that he confesses. Both the guardian and the lover die at the close. This is strongly presented in spite of certain improbable features.

THE FIVE FAULTS OF FLO (Masterpicture de luxe-Thanhouser), Jan. 20.—The scenario for this production was written by the Lonergan brothers, Lloyd and Phil. The idea is quite a clever one, and the lesson, or lessons, contained in the picture are such as might well be remembered.

Paramount Pictures Corporation.

THE TEMPTATION (Lasky), Dec. 30.—Geraldine Farrar and Theodore Roberts do remarkable work in this film, which is rather conventional in plot. The story was written by Hector Turnbull. Photography and settings are carefully handled. An extended review of this subject can be found in last week's issue.

THE TONGUES OF MEN (Morosco), Jan. 6.—An interesting five-part story dealing with the conflict between a priggish young minister and a famous opera singer, whose reputation he attacks. Constance Collier acts with feeling and presents a fine appearance as the opera singer. In a picture marked by able characterizations, the performances of Forrest Stanley, Lamar Johnstone and Herbert Standing are conspicuous. The production was very well staged.

THE GOLDEN CHANCE (Lasky), Jan. 13.—A picture of striking splendor. Cleo Ridgley shows wonderful versatility; the story is unusually interesting, as well as diverting. The star is ably supported. Photography and settings deserve praise. Such pictures as these add to the prestige of the motion picture.

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

PATHE NEWS 104, 1915 (Dec. 29).—Interesting items of this issue show French lumberjacks at work making bomb proof trenches, scenes on a hog farm, Brand Whitlock and Col. E. M. House embarking for Europe, and several views from the battle front.

QUAINT DANCES OF JAPAN (Globe), Jan. 3.—Illustrative of the grace and artistry of the Japanese. These dances, known by various names, are danced by the petite maids of Japan gowned in their pretty silken kimonas.

OLD UNCHANGING HOLLAND (Photocolor), Jan. 3.—An unusually beautiful series of views from this quaint land, showing the people and their occupations. Some of these scenes remind us forcibly of Dutch paintings we have seen, illustrations of the rural districts of Holland.

LUKE LEANS TO THE LITERARY (Phunphilms), Jan. 5.—This is an extremely amusing farce comedy in which Luke does his best in the interests of a book agency. His efforts are not always appreciated by his victims, hence a great deal of the comedy of the film.

Pathe Exchange, Inc., Specials.

THE KING'S GAME (Gold Rooster Play), Jan. 7.—An Arnold Daly and Ashley Miller production of unusual merit. In it are featured George Probert, Pearl White and Sheldon Lewis. The play deals with a Nihilist plot. A full review of the production will be found on another page of this issue.

THE RED CIRCLE NO. 4 (Balboa), Jan. 8.—"In Strange Attire" is an intensely interesting chapter in the story of June Travis, the young woman who inherits the red circle and what it brings with it. In the last episode Mary June's nurse in an effort to throw the detective off June's trail is left with her black cloak caught in the door of a garage. In the opening of this one she cleverly lets herself out of the cloak, which is captured later by June, who tears the manufacturer's label off it. The cloak is then taken by the detective to the police department whence June, attired in man's clothes, rescues it.

THE RED CIRCLE NO. 5 (Balboa), Jan. 15.—"Weapons of War," which is the title of this chapter, brings us with June Travis and her foster mother to the seashore where she steals the formula of a high explosive. The incidents attendant on this are thrilling, and the episode thoroughly enjoyable.

Universal Film Mfg. Company.

ANIMATED WEEKLY, NO. 1 (Universal), Jan. 5.—This first number of the new series contains much of interest, including views of Col. House and Brand Whitlock departing for Europe, launching of an oil tanker, wreckage left by a New England hurricane, and scenes on the Ford peace ship.

THE BOY, THE GIRL AND THE AUTO (Nestor), Jan. 10.—A comedy number, featuring Neal Burns, Billie Rhodes, Ray Gallagher, Ethel Lynn and others. Neal takes his girl riding in the boss' car, creating domestic difficulties. Later his rival wins the girl over with a flivver. The plot is slight, but the general tone bright and entertaining.

FLIRTING A LA CARTE (L-KO), Jan. 16—Alice Howell and others are featured in this. It pictures the flirtations of two old salts. The photography is uneven and the opening scenes are slow. There are some laughable moments at the close.

SAVING SUSIE FROM THE SEA (L-KO), Jan. 19.—Rivalry in love is the chief plot ingredient in this knockabout comedy. Some of the action takes place at the beach. The automobile and motorcycle chase is well pictured. A characteristic number.

BUILDING UP THE HEALTH OF THE NATION, NO. 2 (Powers), Jan. 20.—Bernarr MacFadden appears in more gymnastic lessons, showing particularly how the stomach may be strengthened.

AERIAL BUDS (Powers), Jan. 20.—On same reel with above. Two juveniles, a brother and sister, appear in a brisk trapeze act. Very good of its kind.

A SEA MYSTERY (Victor), Jan. 21.—A seacoast tragedy, by M. B. Havey, with Mary Fuller, Paul Panzer and Ralph Belmont in the cast. The story, in which one brother gives his life to free the girl and insure his brother's happiness, is quite strong. The number is a good one of its type.

THE WHOLE JUNGLE WAS AFTER HIM (Joker), Jan. 22.—Paul and Mme. Bourgeois are featured in this comedy number, into which numerous wild animals are introduced. He pretends to be a famous hunter, but after his realistic dream in which the various skins come to life, decides to give up the deception. The number is a good one and holds the interest well.

UNCLE SAM, NO. 5 ("Protecting the Ships at Sea") (Powers), Jan. 22.—An informing number, showing instruments employed by the weather bureau, also the manner in which buoys are placed. The final views show men of the navy exploding a sunken vessel to clear a channel.

Universal Film Mfg. Company Specials.

AS THE SHADOWS FALL (Gold Seal), Dec. 28.—A two-reel number, by Harvey Gates, featuring Herbert Rawlinson, Agnes Vernon, Dorothy Beeb and Jack Wells. The story is strong in construction, but rather unpleasant in plot. It pictures quite frankly the efforts of a young man to ruin a working girl. He takes her to a hotel, engages a room and when he is about to assail her the girl jumps to the ground, three stories below. The hero, who befriends working girls, has her taken to a hospital, where she recovers. The cast is competent and the scenes are well handled, the sordid plot being the worst drawback.

THE LITTLE UPSTART (Laemmle), Dec. 30.—A three-reel number, written by Harvey Gates, featuring Stella Razeto, Charles Lyke, Laura Oakley and others. The story is a very entertaining one, working out in a way that holds the attention throughout. It pictures the adventures of a young laundress who breaks into high society by taking advantage of certain propitious circumstances. The story is fresh in subject matter and free from usual stock plot features. This makes a good offering.

LOVE'S PILGRIMAGE TO AMERICA (Broadway Universal Feature), Jan. 10.—A five-reel production, by May B. Havey, featuring Lulu Glaser, of light opera fame, supported by Jack Richards and others. This is extravagant comedy, almost approaching burlesque in some scenes. The bishop's daughter and the duke's nephew come to America to make their fortunes so they can marry. They have all sorts of difficulties, but finally find happiness. The general tone of the comedy is good, but some of the slangy subtitles do not carry as much humor as intended. The action is only fairly good in places. Miss Glaser is very pleasing. This makes a feature comedy of about average strength as a whole.

THE MAN INSIDE (Broadway-Universal Feature), Jan. 17.—A five-reel offering, featuring Edwin Stevens as a master villain. He plays in fact two parts, Col. Dana Thornton and Barry Thornton. As the former he commits a series of dramatic crimes and finally kills himself to escape trial. The action is very choppy and abounds in complications. At the same time the story is so strong that it holds the interest firmly. The cast is a competent one, including Harry Benham, Tina Marshall, Sidney Bracey and others. The strong points of this are the splendid work of Mr. Stevens in his dual role and the dramatic quality of the story. Some incidents could well have been eliminated for the sake of continuity.

THE RAILROAD MONOPOLY (Universal—Special Feature), Jan. 17. No. 6 of the "Graft" series. This two-reel number sees Tom in another struggle with an unscrupulous trust magnate, this time the president of a railroad. He and Dorothy have some stirring adventures while out in the president's car. The car dashes through an open bridge in the final scenes. At the close the president resigns and thus passes another member of The Fifteen, a characteristic number.

HER BETTER SELF (Victor), Jan. 19.—Grace Cunard, Jack Connolly, Irving Lippner and Jack Holt appear in this two-reel number. The former appears as a lady Raffles. Her first lover shoots himself because she will not marry him. Later the second discovers this fact; also her connection with a gang of thieves. The chief action centers about a theft of presents at a wedding. The number is not particularly strong, but well up to the average for this type of story.

JUST PLAIN FOLKS (Laemmle), Jan. 20.—A three-reel comedy drama, by Lenora Ainsworth, with Wm. C. Dowlan, Gloria Fonda and numerous others in the cast. The chief setting is a small town hotel. The characterizations are particularly good and the comedy touches are excellent. The actions centers about the robbery of the cash register, for which the stepson is falsely blamed. The girl and her lover succeed in clearing him by catching the real thieves at work. A very entertaining and amusing offering.

VANITY, THY NAME IS —— (Imp), Jan. 2.—A two-reel comedy number, featuring Matt Moore and Jane Gail. She plays the part of an extravagant young wife, who leaves her husband because he sends back some coveted new gowns. Her mother sets her to washing dishes and scrubbing floors, so she is glad to return to her husband. In spite of the familiar type of this plot, it is handled nicely and proves quite amusing all through. Both of the principals do entertaining work and the mother-in-law is also good.

BUCK SIMMONS, PUNCHER (Bison), Jan. 22.—A two-reel Western number, by Leon D. Kent, who plays the leading role. Edna Maison and Malcolm Blevins also appear. Buck is a cowboy in love with the girl. Dan, the gambler, also loves her. Buck rounds up the man who shot her father. Later he saves the girl from the gambler, who is badly wanted for crimes committed before the girl met him. This is a typical Western number, not new in plot material, but well constructed and containing good action and atmosphere.

World Film Corporation.

CAMILLE (Shubert), Jan. 3.—Clara Kimball Young gives one of the best performances of her entire career in this five-part adaptation of the famous play, made under the direction of Albert Capellani with Paul Capellani playing Armand. The picture possesses a strong emotional quality, it is finely acted and the production is adequate.

LIFE'S WHIRLPOOL (Brady), Jan. 10.—Based on Frank Norris's novel, "McTeague," this five-part melodrama is strongly acted by Holbrook Blinn and Fania Marinoff. The picture is well out of the ordinary, but questionable entertainment for the average audience. The succession of horrors is rather depressing.

HER GREAT HOUR (Equitable-Triumph), Jan. 17.—A five-part melodrama written and produced by Stanner E. V. Taylor with a cast consisting of Molly McIntyre, Gerda Holmes, Richard Lynn, Martin Alsop and P. J. LeMae. The production is an unusually gripping one, well acted and staged. A full review of it will be found on another page of this issue.

PATHE'S "THE LOVE TRAIL."

"The Dope Doctor," a novel by Richard Dehan, has proved so popular in England that it has run through twenty-four editions. The Pathe English office acquired the picture rights at a very large cost, and the feature made from it will be released on the Gold Rooster Program January 21st under the title "The Love Trail."

In the cast are Fred Paul, Agnes Glynne and Booth Conway, names which perhaps are not so well known on this side of the water, but stand for popularity in England.

The story is a stirring one, strongly emotional, and deals with South Africa in Boer war times. It shows the regeneration through love of a clever doctor, Owen Saxham, who through misfortune becomes a drunkard. Interwoven with his life story is that of a girl, brought up in the most criminal and sordid surroundings, why by a happy accident is rescued from her environment by a nun and becomes a splendid woman. Heart interest and thrills are united in this picture.

Manufacturers' Advance Notes

"THE MISLEADING LADY" (Essanay).

This is a story of a primitive wooing, adapted from the original dramatic version by Charles W. Goddard and Paul Dickey. It is the angle and the viewpoint from which the story is handled, rather than its originality that makes for its success.

It is a psychological study which depends for its success on the delicate shading of the acting rather than on the situations themselves.

Scene from "The Misleading Lady" (Essanay).

And Henry Walthall and Edna Mayo, the leads in the pictures, make the most of their opportunities for shaded acting.

The story runs smoothly and logically, and has intense moments.

A confirmed bachelor and woman-hater responds to the lure of a girl who, to show her dramatic ability to a theatrical producer, makes him fall in love with her. Up to the point where the man is being made to fall in love with the girl, the picture is conventional. But when he has proposed to her, been rejected with a laughing explanation that she was amusing herself and her friends, the picture leaves the beaten track.

Calmly he sets about the winning of her by primitive methods. He abducts her in a motor car and carries her to a hunting lodge and there he chains her to the floor. The awakening of her affections comes with a new-born respect for the man who can defy conventions because he loves her.

It is in the portrayal of the calm superiority of the male and a gradual response that the woman makes to his rough wooing that Mr. Walthall and Miss Mayo have their opportunity.

And Director Arthur Berthelet has made the most of this stirring drama.

BIG STUFF IN "THOU SHALT NOT COVET."

A fight to the death between a Royal Bengal tiger and a ferocious leopard will prove a feature of "Thou Shalt Not Covet," a Selig Red Seal play released through V-L-S-E, Inc., on Monday, February 7th. This is one of the most unusual and exciting scenes ever filmed at the Selig Jungle-Zoo. Another feature of this unusual drama is the daring risks taken by Miss Kathlyn Williams, the famous motion picture star. She plunges headlong from the back of a runaway horse and also leaps from the deck of a sinking ship into the sea at the risk of her life. This daring actress also struggles with a leopard and it is a genuine battle. One of the most spectacular scenes ever presented in motion pictures is the sinking of an ocean-going liner at sea. This scene alone cost $50,000 to film. Thousands of extra players participate in the action. They are seen struggling for the life boats, fighting their way to the upper decks of the vessel, while away down below in the bowels of the ship the stokers struggle in the pouring flood like rats in a trap. It can be conservatively stated that this is one of the most thrilling spectacles ever shown on the motion picture screen.

CALIFORNIA TO INSTALL COOPER-HEWITT SYSTEM.

The California Motion Picture Corporation has arranged with William C. Hubbard, general sales agent of the Cooper-Hewitt Electric Co., of Hoboken, for the installation of their latest devices for the taking of studio pictures. Mr. Hubbard, who has personally equipped over fifty of the studios here and in the west, is to make a special trip to California to install the system which will be the most up-to-date on the Pacific Coast. A special building is being erected for the accommodation of the lights which will supplement the already extensive plant of the California concern.

The decision to use the Cooper Hewitt lights came after a very careful study of the situation. Arthur C. Payne, one of the directors of the California Motion Picture Corporation, and Alex E. Beyfuss, vice president and general manager, visited last week many of the studios in and around New York making a comprehensive study of the methods of artificial lighting employed in this vicinity.

"THE THOROUGHBRED" (American).

American Film Company, Inc., announces "The Thoroughbred" as the second of its releases under the head of the widely discussed Mutual Masterpictures, De Luxe Edition. William Russell and Charlotte Burton are cast in the leading roles with the support of an all-star cast of American players, including Lizette Thorne, Roy Stewart and Jack Prescott.

"The Thoroughbred" is the powerful story of a young man's fight to "come back" after a severe financial thrashing on the stock exchange. A score of tremendously big scenes are introduced including a big mine explosion. Mexicans and miners are engaged in a gun battle. A stray bullet strikes the mine powder house. A terrific explosion follows, and there is nothing left of the mining camp but a memory. Director Charles Bartlett worked for more than a week on this single scene, insuring the perfection of every detail before he touched off the blast that spelled ruin for the settlement built up for use in this specific picture.

Another big scene is the hand-to-hand fight between Kelso Hamilton (William Russell) and his burly ranch foreman, noted throughout the country as a bully. A number of striking railroad scenes, too, are introduced, in which the dominating characters are Russell and Jack Prescott, who takes the role of Tom Cook in the production.

In "The Thoroughbred" William Russell introduces his own favorite saddle horse "Babe," an animal which Russell boasts of having taught "film temperament." "Babe" can run fifty feet before the camera and then pull up, with flanks glistening, eyes aflame and sides heaving as though he had just completed a dash from Los Angeles to Santa Barbara. It is only on special occasions that Mr. Russell will consent to the use of "Babe" in pictures. On no occasion has the horse appeared on the screen ridden by anyone but "Bill" himself.

Scene from "The Thoroughbred" (American).

"JERRY IN MEXICO" (Cub).

The adventures of Jerry, the principal character in the Cub Comedy releases, whose proclivities continually get him into trouble, are continued in the Cub Comedy scheduled for release on the Mutual program for January 21. The picture is called "Jerry in Mexico" and transfers the scene of Jerry's troubles from the states to the country just across the border. George Ovey plays Jerry in this as in all other Cub pictures.

Jerry has found the states too hot for him, after a series of painful incidents, and decides that Mexico offers a haven of rest. Instead it proves just the opposite. His trouble begins when upon entering a Mexican cafe the Mexican belles insist upon making him the object of their affections. Were it not for the objections of the girl's sweethearts everything would have been glorious for Jerry, but being hot tempered creatures the aforesaid sweethearts proceed to show their rights. Then Jerry goes through a series of exciting adventures which terminate only when he is able to make his way to safety back into the states.

Scene from "Jerry in Mexico" (Cub).

The story as outlined has been worked into a number of rapidly occurring comedy situations, which Director Milton Fahrney has staged in his best style.

George Ovey brings forth his usual number of laughs. His supporting company includes Jefferson Osborne, George George, Janet Sully, Belle Bennett and a host of supernumeraries.

"THE BAIT" (Centaur).

For the first of his five-reel productions to be distributed as Mutual Masterpictures, deluxe edition, David Horsley offers a strong moralistic drama entitled "The Bait." The principal roles in the story are enacted by a specially engaged cast including William Clifford, Betty Hart, Oliver C. Allen, Marvel Spencer, Frederick Montague and Edward Alexander, the two first named being featured.

Scene from "The Bait" (Centaur).

A theme of great possibilities has been taken by the author of the story, Theodosia Harris, and treated with such humanness and thorough knowledge of the subject, that every advantage of the theme has been realized. It is laid in the land of the trappers in the great woods of the Northwest. The picture opens in a symbolic vein by showing the means of catching big game—these means being "the bait, the trap and the game." Immediately thereafter the symbols are applied to the tragedy of the story—the catching of still bigger game—human lives.

The bait is a pretty girl; the trap is the well laid plans to fleece "the stranger with the roll" and the unsuspecting trappers; the game is the application of these plans to the men led on by the bait.

Around these fundamentals a drama of great strength has been woven pointing toward an ambitious moral. Set in the beautiful environs of the Northwest woods the drama has a picturesque aspect which enhances the interest in the tragedy as it is unfolded.

Scenes typical of a trapping country are introduced by the use of the Bostock animals in a number of instances, lending added realism to the play.

The production was staged by William J. Bowman, a recent addition to Mr. Horsley's staff of directors.

The release date of "The Bait" is January 22.

TYRONE POWER NOW WITH UNIVERSAL.

Tyrone Power, former favorite of the legitimate stage and popular screen star, is to be featured in a strong Universal production, the title of which is "The Illborn," and which is being directed by Lois Weber and Phillips Smalley.

Power's role in "The Illborn" is one of intense dramatic strength and fits him perfectly. "I like it exceedingly well," he said one day last week, as he was making up in his dressing room at Universal City, "and there are many scenes in the play which afford me excellent opportunity to portray most vividly the emotional qualities that the role demands. It is a pleasure, indeed, to be a member of the company directed by Miss Weber and Mr. Smalley."

Lois Weber Discussing Scene with Tyrone Power.

SOME FEATURES OF "CAPTAIN JINKS."

"Captain Jinks of the Horse Marines," Essanay film adaptation of Clyde Fitch's brilliant satire of the politics and frivolities of the '70's, is filled with spectacular features, which lend a wonderful setting to the work of Ann Murdock, in the leading feminine part and Richard C. Travers in the title role.

One of the striking features is the dancing. Twenty-four girls now appearing in "The Follies" in Chicago were engaged for this work. The dancing girls appear in the comedy in support of Mme. Trentoni, when she makes her great triumph in her American stage debut. To make the scene realistic the Bush Temple theater, Chicago, was engaged and the scene staged there. The dainty "Follies" girls, gaily costumed, pirouetted and kicked their heels and toes in the air in a scene of splendor. They were trained in their dance interpretation by Director Fred E. Wright.

Another impressive scene is one in which the entire band of the first regiment, Illinois National Guard, takes part. The band members, dressed in full regalia of a band of the period of 1872, makes an impressive appearance which turns into the ludicrous when led by one of Essanay's comedians.

The band was also utilized for another purpose. It was retained at the Essanay studios during the production of most of the scenes and blared forth airs so gay that all the players were stepping lively to keep in tune.

It has lent an air of lightness and quickness to the action impossible to obtain other wise, each actor catching the spirit and being carried away with lilting swing of the pieces.

Jack Cohn and his Animated Weekly department, which was transferred from the old studio on Eleventh avenue to Universal Heights, is going to return to New York City. He will be stationed at 1600 Broadway with his staff of cameramen.

"PUDD'NHEAD WILSON" (Lasky).

With Theodore Roberts in the leading role, the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company will present on the Paramount program, January 31, a picturization of "Pudd'nhead Wilson" from the story of the same name by the late Mark Twain. This production will mark the first of a series of photoplays taken from the widely read and popular stories by the famous American humorist.

Throughout the United States the works of Mark Twain

Scene from "Pudd'nhead Wilson" (Lasky).

are well known to young and old. "Pudd'nhead Wilson" has had a sale almost as big as Mark Twain's other books, such as "Adventures of Tom Sawyer," "Adventures of Huckleberry Finn" and "Innocents Abroad."

Theodore Roberts is exceptionally suited to the role of "Pudd'nhead Wilson" the small country town lawyer at Dawson's Landing, "on the Missouri side of the Mississippi." This story lends itself admirably to the motion picture form of narrative, as it is melodramatic, exciting, contains a detective theme in the plot and makes use of the finger-print method of detection of criminals.

Among those who appear with Mr. Roberts in "Pudd'nhead Wilson" are Thomas Meighan, Alan Hale and Florence Dagmar.

THIS INJUNCTION DENIED.

A petition for an injunction and a receiver made to Justice Ford of the New York Supreme Court by Frank L. Dyer, seeking to prevent a merger between the Dyreda Art Film Company and the Columbia Film Company, has been denied. Mr. Dyer claimed that the interests of the minority stockholders of which he was one, would be jeopardized by the merger, but the Court took a different view of the subject.

"THE LOVE TRAIL" (Pathe).

A thrilling story of frontier life with love interest throughout the five acts is told by "The Love Trail," Pathe's release for January 21st on the Gold Rooster Program.

"The Love Trail" is from the celebrated novel by Richard Dehan. It introduces an actress of exceptional beauty and youth to the American Motion Picture Public. She is Miss Agnes Glynne, who plays the role of Lynette Mildare, an orphan, thrown upon her own resources at an early age. Miss Glynne shares honors with Fred Paul, a wandering South African physician, and sustains interest throughout the entire play.

Scene from "The Love Trail" (Pathe).

The setting of the story is in South Africa during the Boer war. Mr. Paul distinguished himself in the role of the doctor. The picture is up to the high standard set by Pathe's recent Gold Rooster releases.

Cobe Claims "The Red Circle"

Brings Suit Against Pathe, Balboa and Others for an Injunction and a Receiver.

Andrew J. Cobe, living at 118 West 72nd street, New York, who conducts the Alliance Exchange, has procured from Justice Warley Platzek of the Supreme Court a show cause order against the Balboa Amusement Producing Co., the Pathe Exchange, Inc., Harry G. Kosch and Herbert M. Horkheimer, requiring the defendants to explain why they should not be enjoined from a further use of the film "The Red Circle," which Cobe claims he is interested in on account of a contract he made with the first named company. The matter was on the calendar for argument last week but was adjourned until Jan. 12 when the defendants will be heard as to their side of the controversy.

Cobe claims that he entered into a contract with the Balboa company on Oct. 31, 1915, to market the film on a percentage basis and that in pursuance of that agreement he had many exhibitors from out of town brought to New York to see the film, but on Nov. 19 last, when the exhibitors were ready to view the film here, it was not produced by the owners. Also, that a newspaper advertising campaign was started in order to exploit the film to the public and that much newspaper space was contracted for, and he added that the Pathe exchange was now in possession of the film and were exhibiting it in New York state.

During the pendancy of the suit Cobe asked the court to appoint a receiver who should have control of it until the controversy is settled.

FARNHAM SELLING "RACE SUICIDE."

For this, the first release upon the state rights basis to be marketed by Jos. W. Farnham, formerly general manager of the All Star Feature Corporation and later of the staff of the Lubin Manufacturing Company, the distributor has indeed a novel picture. For the past six months or more the picture has been in the making at Florida and at Newport, R. I., where the sets were built upon a lavish scale.

The picture is one dealing with a subject which Theodore Scene from "Race Suicide."

Roosevelt made a universal topic but a few years ago and which, with the realization of what the present European strife means toward the depopulation of the nations at war, again becomes a subject of decidedly timely interest.

In the leading roles of the production are to be seen Ormi Hawley, Earl Metcalfe, Octavia Handworth, Kempton Greene and Herbert Fortier with a stupendous all-star cast in their support.

SOUTHERN ROMANCE IN "THE SUPPRESSED ORDER."

An interesting bit of southern romance is pictured in the three-reel drama from the pen of Kenneth B. Clarke, "The Suppressed Order," which is being produced at the American studios for release in the Mutual Program. Edward Conen plays the role of a dauntless young southern lover, while Winnifred Greenwood is the daughter of a tavern keeper. Through it all croons Mammy June (Sylvia Ashton) a typical old southern darky who helps roll the burden off the shoulders of the other members of the cast. George Field also appears in this picture.

PATHE NEWS SHOWS SUBMARINE PICTURES.

One of the most noteworthy news pictures ever taken was shown in Pathe News No. 105. The cameraman was perched in an insecure position on the turret of a submarine, and filmed every stage of the launching of a giant torpedo at an enemy ship, together with the submersion and rising of the submarine. The pictures depict in a way that no mere description could ever do, the methods adopted by the newest and most terrible element of modern naval warfare.

"THE ISLAND OF SURPRISE" (Vitagraph).

Vitagraph announces the completion of Cyrus Townsend Brady's "The Island of Surprise," filmed under the direction of Paul Scardon, and featuring William Courtenay, well known for his work on the legitimate stage. It is a five-part Blue Ribbon Feature and a real thriller in every sense of the word. Assisting Mr. Courtenay in the cast are Miss Eleanor Woodruff, Miss Zena Keefe, Charles Kent, Anders Randolf, Charles Wellesley, Julia Swayne Gordon, Denton Vane and Scene from "The Island of Surprise" (Vitagraph).

Logan Paul. The story is one that ran in a current magazine, and is considered one of the best from the pen of that gifted author, Dr. Brady. It relates the adventures of Robert Lovell, following his secret marriage to his father's secretary, although it is planned that he wed the daughter of his father's business partner. All find themselves on a yachting cruise and Lovell quarrels with his wife, paying arduous attention to his near-fiance. He and the two girls are left alone on an island when a storm blows the yacht hundreds of miles away.

Savages attack the party and Lovell is injured in the head so that he loses all memory of his wedding to the secretary. She claims him, and the other girl, thinking it a bluff, claims him also. The real wife offers to give herself to Lovell as his wife, when savages again attack, and in the terrible fight that ensues, Lovel sustains severe injuries. The yacht returns and a squad of marines from a battleship rescue the three. When Lovell regains consciousness, his normal mentality is restored and the climax finds a happy ending in the reconciliation of all concerned.

The central figure of the story is Courtenay as Lovell, and he more than upholds the stage reputation he has. The scenes are unusually beautiful and the direction is all that could be desired. January 24 is the release date.

JOHN BARRYMORE STARS IN DOUBLE ROLE.

John Barrymore, who has more than equaled on the screen the reputation which he won on the stage as a comedian, is the star of the Famous Players-Paramount production, "Nearly A King," which is scheduled for release on January 20th. In this story which combines a great deal more of the swift action of a romantic melodrama with the lightness of a screamingly funny comedy than does the average humorous production, Barrymore plays two distinctly different roles, the one a young Balkan prince and the other an irresponsible, adventurous American who gets into more than his share of trouble.

Great as Barrymore has shown his gift of humor to be in his previous screen appearances such as "The Incorrigible Dukane," "The Dictator," and others, his playing of two roles in "Nearly a King" naturally gives him a better opportunity to do his best comic work. Like the imitators in vaudeville, Barrymore is seen giving an imitation of Barrymore as the prince, for the identities of the American and the prince become confused in the minds of the conspirators who are attempting to force matrimony down the throat of the hapless prince, and complications develop with lightning rapidity.

"Nearly a King" typifies speedy action and side-splitting mirth from beginning to end, with a totally unexpected twist at the finish that will catch every audience napping. In support of Barrymore there appear Katherine Harris, Russell Bassett, Fred McQuirk, June Dale and others of equal renown.

MAE MURRAY IN LASKY'S "TO HAVE AND TO HOLD."

Mae Murray, famous beauty and star of "Ziegfeld Follies," will make her debut as a photoplay star in the Lasky Feature Play Co.'s production, "To Have and To Hold," a picturization of Mary Johnson's novel.

Miss Murray and the big company that will appear with her and Wallace Reid, who is co-star with her in the production, have left Hollywood, Calif., and have gone to one of the coast villages where many of the scenes will be taken.

Mr. Reid, who has just made his bow as a Lasky star with Cleo Ridgley in "The Golden Chance," will play the role of Captain Ralph Percy. The rest of the cast includes Tom Forman, Raymond Hattan, William Bradbury, James Neill, Bob Grey, Lucien Littlefield, Camille Astor and Bob Fleming.

In order that she may appear exclusively in photoplays, Miss Murray has definitely left the musical comedy stage for a period of years and will make her residence for some time to come at Hollywood, near the Lasky studios. She has been called the "most beautiful show girl of the world" and during the past two years has had great popularity as a dancer.

ALICE BRADY IN "THE BALLET GIRL."

Alice Brady is one of the most fascinating screen personalities of the time. She is famous by name and famous by merit—a combination that possesses an irresistible drawing power wherever a picture in which she appears is shown.

In "As Ye Sow," "The Boss," "The Lure of Woman" and "The Rack" Miss Brady made a powerful appeal to the sympathy of audiences throughout the world, and now she is to be seen in the title role of "The Ballet Girl," a picture based upon the successful play "Carnival."

This picture tells a pathetic story of a little girl who has a natural tendency, and who in spite of all opposition goes on the stage and makes a great success. Then her trials and tribulations begin, but she finally comes through unblemished in soul and finds happiness with the man she loves.

BLANCHE SWEET IN "THE RAGAMUFFIN."

Blanche Sweet, the popular star of the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play company, will appear in her next photoplay on January 20, announcement was made yesterday. It is entitled "The Ragamuffin," and was written and directed by William C. DeMille.

In this production Miss Sweet will be seen in a role quite different from any of the score of successful parts with which her name is identified. She plays a little girl, a waif of the streets, to whom environment has been unkind. Protected by thieves, she becomes one—rightfully, she believes as the balance of fate in her favor is pretty narrow.

Among those to appear with Miss Sweet are Tom Forman, Mrs. Lewis McCord, James Neill, Minnette Barrett, Par Jones and William Elmer.

"A FOOL'S PARADISE" (Ivan.)

"A Fool's Paradise," a five-part drama by Ivan Abramson, has just been completed at the Frohman studio. Chrystine Mayo and Paula Shay are the dual stars of this production. They are supported by an exceptionally strong cast headed by James Cooley, Jack Clark and Joseph Burke.

The theme of "A Fool's Paradise" treats of an aged sentimental financier who on the death of his wife pursues the path of folly and consummates a marriage with a clairvoyant. He is rescued from this lamentable condition by the undying love of his daughter. Then, not yet too late he makes reparation for the evil his folly occasioned.

Scene from "A Fool's Paradise" (Ivan).

Joe Burke, as the sentimental financier, has an opportunity to portray the role of an old man on the point of second childhood attempting to hold the love of a scheming young woman. Miss Mayo, as Maxine, the medium, and erstwhile fortune-huntress, depicts a type of adventuress different from the ordinary. Paula Shay acts as the foil of the adventuress in the role of the financier's loyal daughter. "A Fool's Paradise" will be the regular Ivan Film Production's monthly release for February.

"THE LURE OF HEART'S DESIRE" (Metro).

Owing to an accident in the factory, which will prevent its release on the date scheduled, January 17, Metro Pictures corporation has withdrawn from its program for the present the five-act production, "The Rose of the Alley," in which Mary Miles Minter is starred. In its place the Metro Pictures corporation will release the five-part feature, "The Lure of Heart's Desire," instead of a month later, as was previously announced. Edmund Breese, who was last starred in "The Song of the Wage Slave," has the stellar role in this newest Metro wonderplay. Like his earlier success, "The Lure of Heart's Desire" is a story of the Alaskan desolate wastes, coupled with a contrasting glimpse into New York society, and the Great White Way. In short, the feature is one of sharp contrasts throughout, which enhances its value as a superb entertainment.

Scene from "The Lure of Heart's Desire" (Metro).

Besides Mr. Breese, there is a strong supporting cast, including Jeannette Horton, Arthur Hoops, Evelyn Brent, John Mahon, and other notable stage and screen artists. The exterior snow scenes were made in the Adirondacks, where an Alaskan street was constructed, and other elaborate sets built. One of the attractive scenes is the New Year's celebration, which was made in the famous Murray's restaurant, near Broadway and Forty-second street, New York City, which was made the day after New Year's, and all the waiters, omnibuses and the company of professional dancers employed regularly in the restaurant were used. Francis J. Grandon, a new director on the Metro staff, made the feature, and it was produced for Metro by the Popular Plays and Players.

BUFFALO TIMES SYNDICATE HAS WAR PICTURES.

The Buffalo Times Motion Picture Syndicate, of which Norman E. Mack is proprietor, has taken over the exhibition rights of The American Correspondent Film Company's latest war features, "The Warring Millions" and "the Battles of a Nation." Already the films have been shown in New York, Chicago, Buffalo, Omaha and Washington. At present "The Warring Millions" is being screened at the Cohen theater in Poughkeepsie and the Boston Opera House is showing "The Battles of a Nation." Mr. Mack reports unusual success for the pictures; and says the hit they have made lies in the fact that a few scenes of the film are enough to convince any spectator that The American Correspondent Film company is not palming off any dead stuff or even sham battles, but is showing in its war features actualities of war unadulterated.

This report was verified by large attendances wherever the pictures were shown; and press write-ups assure their popularity and success. But what the Buffalo Times Motion Picture Syndicate considers as its laurel wreath is the scramble for state rights. Many states have been sold, it is reported, and applications are on the wing.

RAVER'S "THE OTHER GIRL."

The first Raver Film Corporation release, "The Other Girl," adapted from the famous play of the same name by Augustus Thomas, one of America's foremost dramatists, was enthusiastically received at its first presentation. Beside newspaper men there were many state right buyers present. The press was unanimous in its praise of the picture, while those who were directly concerned in the motion picture business remarked on the big possibilities the picture contained as a commercial proposition, pointing out the value of James J. Corbett as a box-office attraction as well as William Muldoon and Paul Gilmore, who are starred in this picture. Particular mention was made by nearly every one of the night scenes on Broadway, claiming it was the best view of the famous "White Way" at night that has ever been photographed for motion picture purposes.

All but about two hundred feet of the entire five reels of the picture are artistically tinted and toned. The titling of the picture is considered very good. Many of them are bits of dialogue taken from the play itself.

The paper on "The Other Girl" includes two styles of "ones," two styles of "threes" and one style "six." The six-sheet has an especially strong punch in it. It shows the automobile accident which was photographed at 43d street and Broadway, one of New York's busiest spots. The myriad of electric lights are seen in perspective, while in the foreground the speeder and victim stand in strong relief. Heralds and three-sized photos are in the advertising lay-out of this picture.

"THE WOMAN WHO DARED" TO BE PRODUCED.

Because of the world war now waging unusual interest centers in the story of "The Woman Who Dared" by C. N. and A. M. Williamson, an exciting story of foreign politics, adventure and intrigue, which is announced as the third release of the California Motion Picture Corporation, in their new series of master film productions of which "The Unwritten Law" by Edwin Milton Royle is the second and which is reviewed in this week's issue. In "The Woman Who Dared" is handled in the adroit manner so characteristic of the skillful Williamsons diplomatic events negotiated between England, France and Germany preceding the outbreak of hostilities and while treated as fiction they have a foundation in fact which make this story of vital interest at this time. "The Woman Who Dared" will also provide a new avenue of endeavor for Beatrice Michelena, the fascinating film favorite whom the California Motion Picture Corporation has been exploiting.

KORNICKER HAS SUCCESSFUL TRIP.

Arnold Kornicker, traveling representative of Menger & Ring, New York City, manufacturers of lobby display frames, has returned from a very successful trip through Michigan, Pennsylvania and Ohio. Some of the many theatres equipped by Mr. Korniker are the New Majestic, Wyandotte, Mich.; the Norwood, Broadway-Strand and Garden theaters in Detroit, the New Strand in Cleveland and the new 56th Street Theater in Philadelphia.

Next week Mr. Kornicker leaves on a tour which will cover the above territory and also Missouri and Illinois. Exhibitors not satisfied with their present lobby displays should write the home office which is in constant touch with Mr. Kornicker, who will be pleased to call on them and offer suggestions entailing them with no obligations whatsoever.

"A FOOL'S PARADISE" COMPLETED FOR IVAN.

Setting the pace in the speedy production of five-reel feature photodramas, Ivan Abramson has just completed his latest work written especially for the screen, "A Fool's Paradise," in the short period of three weeks.

The locale of the story required Atlantic City exteriors and Mr. Abramson and his entire company spent the best part of a week at this resort getting the proper settings.

On their return they entered into the possession of the Frohman studio and now after three weeks the picture is completed. It is being cut personally by the director, who thinks that not the most unimportant part of his work is the proper joining of the scenes.

A Fool's Paradise features jointly Paula Shay and Crystine Mayo. The exceptional cast included James Cooley, Jack Clarke and Joe Burke. This feature is scheduled as the regular monthly Ivan release for February.

Notes of the Trade

COLIN CAMPBELL, the dean of the Selig directors came from Los Angeles to Chicago Monday, January 3rd for a visit with William N. Selig, president of the Selig Polyscope Company. Mr. Campbell recently completed the production of "Thou Shalt Not Covet" a Selig Red Seal Play written by James Oliver Curwood and featuring Tyronne Power and Kathlyn Williams supported by Guy Oliver and Eugenie Besserer together with an all-star cast of players. Mr. Campbell expects to return to the Pacific Coast in the near future. He has been consulting with Mr. Selig regarding the forthcoming production of "The Crisis," "Thou Shalt Not Covet" will be released Feb. 7th through V-L-S-E.

* * *

"Lillo of the Sulu Seas," a pearl fishing romance of the South Seas, is now being produced by the American company as a Clipper release for the Mutual Program.

This picture is being directed by Edward M. Langley. Harold Lockwood and May Allison play the leading roles.

* * *

Lucille Ward as Mme. Pazzazzas gives a highly humorous touch to "Mischief and a Mirror," a forthcoming American "Beauty" release.

* * *

W. S. Forsythe, for five years a photographer for the Edison Company and later with the Universal for two years, has been hired by the Mirror Films, Inc., to take charge of the Camera work for one of its companies. Mr. Forsythe would have been in Jamaica by this time had it not been for the illness of his wife, which prevented him from taking the journey as camera man for Herbert Brenon and Annette Kellermann.

PICTURE THEATERS PROJECTED

COLUMBIA, ALA.—The American theatre has been remodeled and a new white marble front constructed.

Banning, Calif.—The Banning opera house has been leased by J. O. Grant.

Los Angeles, Calif.—George Lanzby has purchased the interest of C. W. McKee in the Creation theatre on Sunset boulevard.

Los Angeles, Calif.—The Brooklyn theatre at 2235 Brooklyn avenue has been purchased by J. A. Menard.

Los Angeles, Calif.—Silverman and Kramer have reopened the Grove theatre, located at the corner of Fifth and Los Angeles streets, and renamed it the Jewel.

Long Beach, Calif.—The Boston theatre has been leased by E. Gaynor.

San Francisco, Calif.—Extensive alterations have been made to the American theatre on Market street, including a new balcony. The improvements cost about $25,000.

Tulare, Calif.—The Airdome, formerly conducted by H. D. Lester, has been taken over by Cain & Ferguson.

South Manchester, Conn.—James Goldman has disposed of his interest in the Park theatre to John F. Sullivan, of New York.

Aurora, Ill.—The Strand is the name of a new moving picture theatre opened here.

Bath, Ill.—A new moving picture theatre has been opened here by A. Valliere.

Cicero, Ill.—Klucina & Vittner, 5700 W. 22d street, are preparing plans for a two-story theatre, store and office building, 177 by 122 feet, to cost $175,000.

Lombard, Ill.—A. J. Keiler plans to erect a one-story moving picture theatre, 38 by 85 feet, to cost $8,000.

Macomb, Ill.—The Gem theatre is now being conducted by L. L. Butterfield.

Springfield, Ill.—Augustus Kerasotes, owner of the Savoy theatre which was recently damaged by fire, plans to remodel the house as soon as the insurance is adjusted.

Greencastle, Ind.—The Lyric theatre now being operated by C. F. Holderman, has been redecorated.

Princeton, Ind.—Charles F. Woods has disposed of his interest in the Star theatre to Gene W. Barrett.

Richmond, Ind.—A new $8,000 pipe organ has been installed in the Palace theatre.

South Whitley, Ind.—The Felter theatre, conducted by Wilson Brothers, has been improved with a new front.

Swayzee, Ind.—A. L. Dunevant, of Upland, Ind., has opened a moving picture theatre here.

Walkerton, Ind.—The handsome New Link theatre has been opened.

Albia, Ia.—The King theatre, formerly conducted by Fred Lambert, has been taken over by F. J. Kissick.

Cedar Falls, Ia.—M. C. Clinton has sold the Empress theatre to W. A. Matthies.

Grinnell, Ia.—The Star is the name of a new moving picture theatre opened here by Mart & Son.

Salina, Kans.—A new moving picture theatre of reinforced concrete construction is being erected by Herbert Thacher. It will have seating capacity for 1,000 persons and cost $100,000.

Hartford, Ky.—The Star is the name of a new moving picture theatre opened by Heavrin & Barrass.

Louisville, Ky.—The Second Street Amusement Company has awarded the contract to Lichtenfeld & Metzner Company to erect a commodious fireproof moving picture theatre, 70 by 150 feet, at Second and A streets; composition, roof, concrete and tile floor; cost, $35,000; heating plant, $2,500.

Lynn, Mass.—The new Strand theatre erected by the Mark-Strand Theatre Company, of New York City, has been opened. It has seating capacity of 2,500.

Calumet, Mich.—Extensive alterations will be made to the Orpheum theatre, a new addition built and the seating capacity increased.

Calumet, Mich.—The seating capacity of the People's theatre has been increased by the addition of 100 new opera chairs.

Detroit, Mich.—The seating capacity of the Rex theatre on West Fort street has been increased. The house now has accommodations for 1,000 persons.

Filmont, N. Y.—Clarence Hocton, Hudson, Mass., plans to erect a two-story moving picture theater, 80 by 35 feet.

New York, N. Y.—A modern moving picture theater will be erected at 115-19 Eighth avenue. The structure will cover an area 50 by 100 feet and cost approximately $15,000. Lessee, M. Needle.

New York, N. Y.—M. R. Ryan, 149 Broadway, will erect a commodious moving picture theater and store building, 51 by 150 feet, to cost $45,000. Lessee, Bofan Amusement Co., L. S. Bolognino, president, 615 Eighth avenue.

Raleigh, N. C.—Howell Cobb, owner of the Ralliegh Apartment, will erect a commodious fireproof moving picture theatre. It will have seating capacity for 1,000 persons.

Kenmare, N. D.—The Lyceum theater has been taken over by L. T. Darling.

Rolette, N. D.—The Foster building has been leased for a term of years by Harry Woodruff, who will convert the structure into a modern moving picture theatre.

Wilton, N. D.—A handsome new brick moving picture theater has been opened by C. V. Danielson. It has seating capacity of about 400 and cost $10,000.

Ada, O.—The Odeon theatre is now being operated by the Hunt-Moss Amusement Co.

Canton, O.—W. E. Klotz plans to erect a modern fireproof moving picture theatre on Market avenue.

Canton, O.—Harvey Loehr, 2248 Mahoning road, N. E., is preparing plans for a two-story moving picture theatre, 50 by 100 feet.

Cleveland, O.—The Peerless theater, at 3134 Cedar avenue, formerly conducted by Edward Stadler, has been taken over by Henry Kaplan.

Galion, O.—E. H. Schott, who recently purchased the Grand theater on South Market street, has had the house thoroughly renovated.

Hillsboro, Ore.—A moving picture theatre of hollow tile and brick is being erected by J. M. Wall; lessee, G. C. Combs.

Medford, Ore.—D. L. Shartes has taken over the lease of A. C. Burgess on the Star theatre.

Pendleton, Ore.—The lower floor of the Temple building has been leased and is being converted into a modern moving picture theater.

Braddock, Pa.—F. P. Garber is the new owner of the Rex theater.

Carnegie, Pa.—The Lyric Amusement and Arcade Company will expend $8,000 in remodeling its moving picture theater.

Britton, S. D.—A modern fireproof moving picture theater, the Strand, has been completed and opened to the public. The structure cost $15,000.

Highmore, S. D.—The Cecil is the name of a new moving picture theater erected here.

Lake Andes, S. D.—O. K. Hillard has leased Remington Hall and will operate it as a moving picture theatre.

Sioux Falls, S. D.—Edward Johnson is erecting a new moving picture theatre on E. Eighth street.

Chattanooga, Tenn.—Stair & Havlin have disposed of their interest in the Bijou theater to John C. Twinam. The purchase price is said to have been $38,000. A new $10,000 organ has been installed.

Houston, Tex.—H. C. Northfleet has taken over the Dixie theatre and renamed it the Globe.

Houston, Tex.—Hugh Hamilton has let the contract to the Central Contracting Company to erect a three-story reinforced concrete moving picture theater and office building, to cost $35,000.

Aberdeen, Wash.—The Grand theater has been reopened by G. F. Nye.

Walla Walla, Wash.—The Arcade theater, formerly conducted by George Retzer, Jr., has been purchased by R. W. Carm.

Huntington, W. Va.—Plans are being considered by the Leland Amusement Company for the erection of a fireproof moving picture theatre.

Delavan, Wis.—The interest of M. E. Wilder in the Pastime theatre has been purchased by T. C. Lewis.

La Crosse, Wis.—A new fireproof moving picture theater, located at the corner of West avenue and Jackson street, has been opened by F. J. Williams. It has seating capacity of 600 and cost $20,000.

Osceola, Wis.—The Iris theater has been taken over by Carl M. Lynn.

Oshkosh, Wis.—Herman Lewis has leased the Grand opera house for a term of five years. It is said he will operate it as a first-class moving picture theater.

Send for catalog of Niagara Gem Slides, any sample 10c., any dozen $1.75. Now is the time you need slides. Why not take advantage of this offer and order today?

Niagara Slide Co., Lockport, N. Y.

Trade News of the Week

Gathered by Our Own Correspondents

New Thirty Minute Bill

Massachusetts Lawmakers Have Eye on Motion Picture Business This Year—New Thirty-Minute Reel Show Bill Introduced—Censorship Bills to Follow—League Is Now Better Able to Handle Freak Measures.

By William M. Flynn, Boston Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

BOSTON, MASS.—Films, picture machines, buildings and other component factors in the moving picture industry will play an important part in the procedure of the Massachusetts legislature this year. Several bills having a serious effect upon the industry in one form or another have either been filed or will be in the near future in both the Senate and the House of Representatives.

While the fight before the General Court may not be as spectacular this year as it was last, owing to the absence of the "Birth of a Nation" bill, it will nevertheless be just as energetic to prevent the legislature from heaping any more burdens upon the business than exist at present. Two, if not more, censorship bills are almost certain to be filed within a short time for the manner in which these bills were treated last year did not suit those who were attempting to push the measure through, and they will undoubtedly be back in the arena again.

League Better Able to Handle Any Situation.

The moving picture industry of Massachusetts today, however, is far better organized than it was a year ago. The exchange men, exhibitors, operators and others in the business now have a more definite idea of legislative procedure. They have learned by experience how to combat many of the unfair, discriminating measures that are annually introduced by well meaning but misinformed persons who believe they are doing a public good. These are the sort of people who really do more harm than those fortunately few persons who are sometimes accused of filing bills for spite or for the sole purpose of having somebody buy them off.

Those allied with the moving pictures interests in Massachusetts have sought and secured the good will and support of the great mass of people in the Commonwealth. They have always tried to safeguard the welfare of their patrons and this attitude in no small measure is responsible for the tremendous growth of the industry in the old Bay State. The film men have always been willing and eager to acquiesce in anything that is fair, equitable and reasonable, but they are only exhibiting a true American spirit in refusing to be imposed upon without a struggle. For that reason a close watch is now being kept upon the activities of the legislature which has just convened on Beacon Hill.

Thirty-Minute Reel Bill.

The first anti-picture bill to receive any consideration is one introduced by Representative Charles Chapman of Cambridge —the thirty-minute reel bill. Rep. Chapman is serving his first year as a member of the Massachusetts General Court. He is perhaps better known to the public as "Sandy" Chapman, a vaudeville entertainer of a national reputation, and the measure brought in under his name has been in the legislature before. This year, however, it is intimated that certain vaudeville interests will put up a stubborn fight to get it through.

Will Boost Vaudeville.

The principal sections of this bill as it stands at present are as follows:

"Section 1. No person, firm, corporation or association of persons shall operate or cause to be operated, and no manager, owner or proprietor of a hall, theatre or other place of amusement shall permit to be used or operated, in any hall, theater, or other place of amusement, any machine or other device for the projection of pictures upon a screen or other substance for a period exceeding thirty minutes for each film, picture or series of pictures. Every person, firm, corporation or association of persons, operating or owning such machines shall, after each film, picture or series of pictures, or at the expiration of said period of thirty minutes, furnish some other form of amusement or entertainment for a period of not less than ten minutes. But the provision of this section shall apply only to moving picture machines, so called, and shall not be construed to include machines or other devices for projecting pictures upon a screen or other substance, which pictures remain stationary thereon.

"Section 2. Any person, firm, corporation or association of persons, violating any provision of this act shall be subject to a fine of not less than fifty dollars or to imprisonment for not less than six months."

There is also another section of the bill which deals with the repeal of all other acts on the statute books which conflict with the provisions of the first two sections.

Hits Small Village Houses a Blow.

This bill, if enacted into law, probably would not affect any of the larger playhouses to an appreciable extent, but it would probably work a hardship on a large majority of the smaller houses that are scattered about in the little communities of the state. The real danger in the bill, however, is in the fact that if it becomes a law, an attempt might be made next year to cut the time a film may be shown from thirty minutes to a much shorter period. The consensus of opinion is that the object of the measure is to provide more work for a large number of small time vaudeville turns that have been thrown out of employment by the rapid advance of the film industry in Massachusetts.

WITH MANAGER SORIERO.

Manager Thomas D. Soriero of the Park theater has put over a winner with a new mysterious opera singer stunt. He has aroused considerable speculation as to the identity of one of his vocal artist, who appears on the stage wearing a mask. The idea has been well worked up from a publicity standpoint and the receipts are showing its value as a box office attraction. Soriero is a hustler and is packing the Park at every performance. He now has as an assistant William Fleming, who until recently was identified with the Poli interests in Waterbury, Conn. Soriero is also working out some new lighting effects in the balcony of his theater with the idea of obtaining more light in the auditorium without interfering with a view of the pictures on the screen. The experiment is still in its embryo.

BOSTON'S NEW FENWAY.

The Fenway theater, Boston's newest, palatial photoplay house, which was recently opened on Massachusetts avenue, near Boylston street, is a welcome addition to the list of Boston show palaces. Situated as it is in the Back Bay district of the Hub and getting its patrons from one of the most densely populated of the city's middle class residential sections, the Fenway theater fills a long felt want and is receiving well merited support under the able direction of Manager Stanley Sumner.

A brilliant future is predicted for this theater. The growth of the city is uptown and the location of the Fenway should be an excellent and paying amusement site for a generation. The property is owned by the Colonial Realty company and this company has laid out a large sum of money in the construction, decoration and equipment of the structure.

An unique arrangement has been worked out for the stage and the picture screen, a specially constructed screen of gold fibre which produces an exceedingly clear picture. The theater boasts of a large orchestra, which is seated on the level of the audience behind a rail while beyond is a balcony containing a singer's stand. The organ pipes are arranged on both sides of the stage. The organist is Mr. B. B. Gillette, who for many years was organist of Trinity Church. Young lady ushers are employed in the theater and a general air of quiet refinement is carried throughout the entire amphitheater.

New Fenway Theater.

Films are changed twice a week and Manager Sumner has been fortunate in booking some high class vocal artists to appear at the Fenway during the rest of the season. The house had an auspicious opening, more than 15,000 persons visiting the playhouse on its birthday.

LOUIS B. MAYER TO TAKE REST.

Louis B. Mayer, manager of the New England office of the American Feature Film exchange, distributors of Metro pictures in this district, is planning a Southern trip, after a year's steady work during which time he has succeeded in placing Metro features on the New England map. About a year ago Mr. Mayer underwent an operation for appendicitis. After recuperating from the effects of the operation, he immediately resumed his duties and is well deserving of the contemplated rest. During his absence, Thomas Sprye, his efficient assistant, will direct the destinies of Metro pictures in this territory. Mr. Sprye is enthusiastic over the New England future of the new single reel Metro productions.

BIG NEW PROVIDENCE HOUSE.

The Emory Brothers of Providence are constructing a new theater in that city which is expected to seat at least 3,500 persons. According to available information the theater when completed will be the most up-to-date structure of its kind in Providence. It will be called the Emory theater and will be a combined picture and vaudeville house.

GENERAL FILM HAPPENINGS.

Mr. Harry Smith, formerly connected with the booking department of the Boston office of the General Film, has been placed in charge of the special feature department, taking the place of Jefferson D. Levine who has been made assistant-manager. Mr. Lawrence J. Hacking, who succeeded Edward Farrell as manager of the local branch of the General Film company is rapidly forging to the front as one of the most popular exchange men in New England. Letters received by friends in this city intimate that Mr. Farrell, who now directs the southern destinies of the General Film, and his private secretary, Mr. Edwin H. McCloskey are very much pleased with conditions as they found them in Atlanta, Ga. New England feels the loss of both men and they have the well wishes of this territory for a prosperous future.

MAINE COMPENSATION ACT.

Workmen's Compensation Is Now in Effect and Theaters Employing More Than Five Persons Are Affected.

By John P. Flanagan, Maine Correspondent of Moving Picture World (Bangor).

BANGOR, ME.—Maine theaters employing more than five persons are affected by the Workmen's Compensation Act, passed by the last legislature, which has just gone into effect. A brief summary of the law, the enforcement of which is in the hands of a commission composed of the commisisoner of labor, the insurance commissioner and a third member, follows:

Written notice must be served on an employer within 30 days after injury. To total dependents of the injured employe must be paid a minimum of $4 a week, and a maximum of $10 a week for a period of 300 weeks after injury on a basis of 50 per cent. of the weekly wage of the employe. If there are no dependents, it is provided that expense of last sickness and burial be paid to a maximum of $200.

Settlements by agreement require the approval of the commission.

A claim for compensation is not assignable or subject to attachments, or liable in any way for debts.

Reports of all accidents to employes are required to be filed with the commission by employers.

An agreement by an employe to waive his rights under the act is void.

Employers may insure in any casualty company authorized to do business in Maine.

Other insurance or savings of employe are not to be considered in fixing compensation.

Right of Appeal Upheld

Philadelphia Court of Common Pleas Tells Censor That Picture Makers Have Right of Appeal from His Decisions on the Broadest Terms—This Is Counted as an Important Victory by the Film People.

Special to Moving Picture World from Philadelphia News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—Although the judgment of the State Board of Censors was upheld by Common Pleas Court No. 5 in prohibiting the photodrama, "Sealed Lips," a production of the Equitable corporation, a most important point was settled in favor of the film interests when the court decided that there is a right of appeal to the courts from decisions handed down by the Board of Censors. The film was disapproved by the censors because of moral conditions, and the judges who viewed the picture also condemned certain suggestive scenes.

Counsel for the Pennsylvania Board of Censors brought up the point as to whether or no the court had a lawful right to interfere with their decisions and as to whether or no they were satisfactorily able to censor reels of moving picture films and to hand down a decision as to the respective merits of the picture in question regarding moral conditions.

The court in deciding otherwise, said: "This right of appeal is given in the broadest terms and is not limited into an inquiry into the good faith of the board or to the question of an abuse of the discretion primarily vested in them, but assigns to the court the duty of determining, de novo, whether or not the reel in question is moral and proper, or is sacrilegious, obscene, indecent or immoral, or such as tends to debase or corrupt public morals."

This decision is regarded as a decisive victory by the moving picture interests and it is assured that any censoring of pictures which fails to meet with the approval of the producers will most certainly be contested in court.

W. L. NEVIN BUYS EMPIRE.

The Empire theater, at the northeast corner of Broad and Fairmount avenues, which recently was sold at public auction by Samuel T. Freeman & Co. to William L. Nevin for a sum of $139,000, has been conveyed by the Empire Theater company to William L. Nevin for $39,000 subject to a mortgage of $100,000. The property is assessed at $150,000. This theater, which was formerly known to theatergoers as the Park, was erected about twenty years ago by the late Israel Fleishman.

NEW GERMANTOWN HOUSE.

Bids are being received for the erection of a moving picture theater in Germantown. The theater is to occupy a lot 125 by 150 feet in dimensions and is to be one story in height and of brick and concrete construction. Ketcham & McQuade, Cramp & Co., P. M. Sax, Frank G. Stewart, the O'Mara Construction company and other well known builders have already submitted their bids. The contract will be awarded within a short period of time.

MORE MACHINES STOLEN.

Those persons who recently terrorized the moving picture industry in this vicinity by stealing many valuable projecting machines are again at work and David Altman, 549 West Pike street, reports the loss of two machines. So far the guilty party has been unmolested.

Good Holiday Business Reported in Philadelphia.

Business conditions with local exhibitors are better at the present time than has been the case for many weeks. Managers of the leading houses report large attendance and similar news has been received from every section of the city. The holidays brought large audiences to the picture shows and from now until the Lenten season makes an appearance Philadelphia exhibitors expect to show to full houses.

There seems to be a marked tendency upon the part of the public to patronize those theaters exhibiting the best films and the day of the little corner moving picture theater has passed in this city. The average citizen is fast becoming a critic upon the subject and it is against his taste to witness a production of inferior qualities. It is surprising to note the manner in which the moving picture fan for his own personal satisfaction sets back in his seat and attempts to diagnose the film before his view. If there is anything the matter with the picture they are sure to fall upon it and tear it to pieces literally and the educational side of the industry is assuming larger proportions daily. The trade as a whole is very optimistic at the present time and a profitable season is expected.

Censor Books $4,265 in Year's Fines.

According to statistics recently handed down by the State Board of Moving Picture Censors, headquarters Harrisburg, Pa., sixty-four exhibitors were prosecuted for exhibiting moving picture films against the regulations of the board and in every case the fight was pushed to a conclusion and the defendant fined. The fines received during the year amounted to $4,265 and ranged in size from $5 to $300. The majority of offenses occurred in Philadelphia although Reading, Harrisburg, Pittsburgh, Lancaster, Altoona and Scranton helped swell the total.

SIEGEL JOINS BLUE BIRD.

By Jacob J. Kalter.

NEWARK, N. J.—Below is a photo of Henry Siegel, the new manager of the Blue Bird interests in Newark. Mr. Siegel, although a comparatively new man in the film exchange business, has made an enviable record in the short time that he has been in it. Early last year he joined the World Film Company, and worked from their Pittsburg office. He made friends readily with the Pittsburg exhibitors, and his good work was soon rewarded by the World concern, who put him in charge of their Newark office. In his capacity of manager, Mr. Siegel was given an opportunity to show his worth. He points with pride to the fact that he has no enemies in the film business, but on the contrary he numbers the most prominent exhibitors in New Jersey among his friends.

Henry Siegel

When the Blue Bird proposition was offered to him the early part of January Mr. Siegel decided to accept the Jersey territory. In speaking of the method of approving the various Blue Bird productions, Mr. Siegel explained to the Newark correspondent of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD that a committee composed of twenty exhibitors, representing all classes of photoplay houses, must approve each feature before it is placed on the program. The headquarters of the Blue Bird Newark office is 286 Market street.

Propects for 1916

Federal Reserve Board's Latest General Account of Business Shows Expansion in New York—Renewed Vigor in Boston—Improvement in Philadelphia—In South Business Is Sound, Though There Is Some Complaint.

By Clarence L. Linz, Washington Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—There has been more or less complaint of poor business by motion picture exhibitors of late. It has been stated that while this was due in part to increased competition, the main reason for decreased box office receipts lies in the fact the general business throughout the country has been dull. Thus it is interesting to note that according to a statement just issued in Washington by the Federal Reserve Board, based on the reports of the agents in the twelve Federal Reserve districts located throughout the country, that a very satisfactory boom is at hand and prosperity is once more with us.

What New York Shows.

A summary of the report would show that general trade in the New York district during the month of December, for which the report was rendered, was unusually active and continues to expand. Retail and department stores enjoyed a large holiday business and wholesalers are receiving heavy buying orders for general merchandise. There were fewer business failures and there was an increase in building operations.

Improvement in Boston.

In the Boston district the general improvement in business has continued with renewed vigor. This upward trend started in the lines of goods affected by emergency orders and has spread until now business is better in all lines than it has been for a long time. Domestic business is becoming a larger factor each month. Labor is in good demand and in some lines hard to obtain. Building and engineering operations in New England for the year, with the exception of 1912, were the largest in fifteen years.

Philadelphia Report Promising.

In the Philadelphia district conditions continue to improve, and banks throughout the entire district report that conditions are most promising. Factories of all kinds are running full time, some of them with double shifts, and many are making the greatest output in their history. Pay rolls are large, and labor, both skilled and unskilled, is scarce. Retail trade for December shows a decided increase over the same month of 1914. Collections are reported good. The community seems to be well supplied with money, and the increase in sales is both in quantity and quality of goods purchased.

Full Capacity in Cleveland.

In the Cleveland district the steel mills are at full capacity and the orders they have on hand will keep them running to the limit for the entire year of 1916. Activity in the oil fields of the district is quite marked. Crops are good. Post office receipts for the month show an increase over November. During the past month, trade in practically all lines has been in a very satisfactory condition, and there has been no retrogression from the advances of October and November. The department stores and retailers are now generally busy. Settled cold weather and the holiday season have materially stimulated general business. There is no lack of employment. Skilled labor of almost every kind is in demand at full prices. General conditions, according to the report, are highly satisfactory.

In the South.

The South has been generally complaining of poor picture business, especially during December, and it is the hope of the exhibitors that the prosperity noted by the Government agents in mercantile lines, with labor so fully employed, will spread to the extent of being more favorable to the film business.

The closing days of the year 1915 present a general activity and expansion in all lines, predicting a sound and permanent prosperity for the Atlanta district. The general business conditions of the district are on a sound basis, with strong and wide advancement in some particular lines. The retail trade during the month, and more especially the holiday season, was exceedingly bright.

In Middle West.

The improvement in business and manufacturing in the Chicago district as shown in former reports was well maintained during the month of December. Reports from banking officials throughout the district show that manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers are doing business on an even more than normal basis.

The report from the St. Louis district covers the month of November. It shows that business there is in an excellent condition. The St. Louis post office reports the largest receipts it has ever had for the month of November. Building operations in all of the large cities of the district show a decided increase over last year.

Conditions are also excellent in the Minneapolis district for the retail holiday trade has been brisk at all points. Wholesale lines are in good condition. Collections are excellent. The lumber trade continues to revive. Industrial concerns are active, with much new business. Labor is full employed at good wages. The outlook for 1916, it is said, is excellent, and expressions from all lines of business are very hopeful and optimistic.

It is said of the Kansas City district that probably at no time in its history, taken as a whole, has the wholesale trade been so active and satisfactory as at present. The mail order business espepecially is extremely active. Retailers report increased holiday trade and splendid collections.

In the Southwest.

The report for the Dallas District is based on conditions during the month of November, but shows that everything in that section is decidedly satisfactory.

Increased activity in many lines is noted in the San Francisco district and for this section of the country the outlook is very bright.

With labor fully employed and at good wages, with money less tight, and everything pointing to a good 1916 in commercial lines, the motion picture exhibitors may take heart, for all of these things constitute factors which make possible satisfactory box office returns.

Exchanges Working for Better Express Service

Discussion at National Association Meeting of Interest to All Exchange Men—Ideas to Further Better Transshipment of Films.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The various exchangemen of Washington, D. C., are co-operating with one another in an effort to secure a better express service in the territory comprising the District of Columbia, Maryland, Virginia and North Carolina, and with this in view have been holding meetings of the National Exchangemen's Association to which are being invited the general agents of the various companies who go over the matter with them, pointing out what can be done to expedite deliveries.

Advice of Adams Express General Agent.

Considerable good advice was given the exchangemen at their last meeting by General Agent Killian, of the Adams Express, who pointed out to them that they should first ascertain what sort of service was possible by express before booking their films. To do so would be to safeguard against many disappointments both to exchangemen and exhibitors. He offered to furnish the members with a schedule showing the time of leaving of all trains carrying express matter to and from Washington, as well as of arrival of all incoming trains at this city and the points in the territory served from here. Upon the receipt of this information, the exchangemen have decided that they will secure large blackboards on which the names of the towns and train time will be placed, and corrections will be made from time to time as train schedules may be changed by the railroad or express companies.

Prompt Shipments and Delayed C. O. D. Returns.

It was stated at this meeting that it was the desire of all those present that the film service they had to offer be made as efficient as possible and one of the ways in which increased efficiency could be effected would be through prompt shipments.

Of interest wholly to the exchangemen was the discussion of the problem of delayed C. O. D. returns, it being pointed out that these were often held for an indefinite period, much to the annoyance of the exchange managers. They were assured that positive rules of the company, based upon orders of the Interstate Commerce Commission, demanded returns on C. O. D. shipments within twenty-four hours after delivery, and suggested that when the money was not received within a reasonable time that his office be informed of the facts. Immediate attention was promised to all complaints and it was agreed that a form letter, as follows, be adopted by all of the exchanges to be filled out and forwarded to the local office of the Adams Express Company when such cases arise. This form can be used for submission of similar complaints to other companies, and can be adopted for use anywhere:

.....191..

.....Express Company.

Under date of.....there was delivered to your company a shipment of films consigned to the..... theater, at ..... C. O. D. $..... and charges, on which no returns have been made. Kindly show returns or advise why not yet made.

Yours truly,

.....

Name of exchange.

To Adopt a Label.

A label of a color which will in no wise conflict with such colors now in use to designate "explosives" when they or other like materials are being sent, as is required by Interstate Commerce laws, is to be adopted for the purpose of giving instructions for the disposition of films and paper where for any reason delivery can not be effected. This label will read "If for any reason not delivered or held, wire immediately at the expense of..... .....Film company."

It was stated that booking of films were often lost under conditions where delivery cannot be made because of the delays incident to the sending by the agent at point of destination of the usual "On Hand" notice, wherein instructions for disposal are requested.

NEW YORK MIDSTATE LETTER.

By E. O. Weinberg, Troy Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

Mr. Epstein is now manager of the Pathe branch in Syracuse. The Pathe Exchange in Albany will be open about February 1, 1916, at 398 Broadway.

The Rex Film Exchange (Universal) is looking for new quarters.

"The Birth of a Nation" played to capacity business in Albany, at Proctor's Grand, at 25c. to $2. This spectacle will be played in Schenectady and in Troy during weeks beginning January 10 and January 17, respectively.

PITT THEATER OPENS.

Old Miles Theater Reopens Under Promising Auspices—Will Be Managed by W. M. Patch.

The opening of the Pitt theater, Penn avenue and Seventh street, Pittsburgh, Pa., formerly the Miles, was definitely scheduled for Monday, January 10, at 12 noon, when "Fighting for France," the official war pictures of the French government, was shown in continuous performances from noon until midnight.

An elaborate musical program was arranged to accompany these pictures at the Pitt theater. A symphony orchestra of 30 pieces played in conjunction with the $40,000 Hop-Jones organ in that house. Mr. Patch has announced that he was arranging to have a portion of the weekly receipts turned over to the French Red Cross fund.

Under the name of the Pitt theater it will be under the management of William Moore Patch as the home of high-class pictures. The playhouse was purchased last week by Pittsburgh men.

The Pitt has had a more varied career than any other playhouse in town. Opened in September, 1913, by Mr. Patch as a stock theater, with the Pitt players, it encountered financial trouble. A receiver was appointed in July, 1914. The courts declared the Pitt Theater company bankrupt, and a trustee succeeded the receiver.

Charles H. Miles, a vaudeville producer of Cleveland and Detroit, obtained a lease of the theater in October, 1914, renamed it "Miles" and opened it as a variety house. Vaudeville was discontinued in May, 1915, and a season of pictures was inaugurated, but the house was closed in July on account of the elevation of the lower section of the city near Penn avenue and Seventh street.

In September the theater was reopened with pictures. Early in November, owing to the death of his mother in Philadelphia, Mr. Patch resigned from the management of the Miles theater. Shortly thereafter Mr. Miles brought his picture policy to an end and put back vaudeville. Vaudeville failed again. A landlord's warrant was issued on the Miles Pittsburgh Theater company for the non-payment of rent, and the house was advertised for sale.

Who the owners are Mr. Patch refuses to divulge. All he would say was that the name of the house would be changed back to Pitt. He says the theater will be conducted in a high-class manner, exhibiting pictures that will be seen nowhere else in Pittsburgh.

PALM GARDEN THEATER SOLD.

W. H. Ketcham has sold his Palm Garden theater, 1729 Carson street, South Side, Pittsburgh, Pa., to J. D. Walker, of East Liberty. Mr. Ketcham purchased the Palm Garden about four years ago and converted it from a bad thing to a best small house in the city. It has a seating capacity of 270 and is the only theater on the South Side that regularly employs an orchestra. Mr. Walker is a new man in the film business but will continue the house under the same policy and he is expected to retain the patronage.

Ball St. Valentine's Day

Pittsburgh Screen Club to Dance in Motor Square Garden on February 14—Leading Screen Players Are Scheduled to Be Present—Reports on Screen Club Committees—What the Club Is Doing.

Special to Moving Picture World from Pittsburgh News Service.

PITTSBURGH, PA.—Final arrangements are going on for the first annual ball of the Pittsburgh Screen Club. Motor Square Garden in the East Liberty section of Pittsburgh, which accommodates 6,000 people, has been selected as the most suitable place for holding the big affair and the date selected is St. Valentine's day, February 14. Assurances have been received from numerous manufacturers that they will send their leading actors, which will prove a strong attraction for the ball.

Club Committee Meetings.

Two meetings have been held by the officers, board of governors, and members of committees recently. The first was held Wednesday, December 28, in the office of the Cameraphone theater, and the second on Monday afternoon, January 3, in the new headquarters of the club in room 406 Cameraphone building. Both of these meetings were presided over by A. W. Cross, vice-president, in the absence of President Kester.

The first meeting was called for the purpose of hearing reports of the finance committee, as to its success in raising founds. Mr. Lande reported that subscriptions aggregating $450 had been received, although the money had not been collected. The chairman instructed the committee to make the collections and report the result at the next meeting.

Mr. Levison, of the committee on furniture, stated that he was in favor of practicing economy in furnishing the headquarters until such time as the club is on a solid financial standing.

Mr. Feitler, of the hall and music committee, stated that Motor Square Garden was about the only place in Pittsburgh adequate for holding a ball of the magnitude of the affair projected by the Screen Club and the same can be had for $200 per day. His committee was instructed to secure the information regarding the lighting, decoration, etc., of the hall for the affair.

Mr. Hanna asked to be excused from committee duty for the next two weeks, as he was to be married on January 1, and will be away on a bridal tour.

Mr. Feitler moved that the furnishings committee have an inscription made of the charter, including a list of the charter members and have the same framed and hung in the headquarters of the club.

New Committee on By-Laws.

Mr. Levison moved that, inasmuch as the committee on by-laws had been inactive, that the chairman appoint a new committee. This was carried and the chair reappointed the board of governors, and added the officers and the following members to act as a committee on by-laws: Messrs. Silverman, Seltzer and Long.

On Monday, January 3, the second meeting of the club and the first meeting in the new headquarters of the club, 406 Cameraphone building, was held.

The first matter to be taken up was consideration of by-laws. Al W. Cross prepared a very complete set with the assistance of an attorney. After discussing their various provisions the by-laws were laid aside for further discussion and adoption at Sunday's meeting, January 9.

Firms That Have Contributed.

The committee on finance reported through Mr. Lande that the following firms had paid their subscriptions to the club: Quality Film company, Independent Display company, Liberty Film Renting company, Exhibitors' Service company, James B. Clark, V-L-S-E, Feature Film & Calcium Light company, Grelle Feature Film company, Independent Film exchange, Jerry J. Kuffner, Hudson Feature Film company, Enterprise Film exchange, New Film corporation, and the Mayer Publishing company.

Getting Ready for Ball.

Mr. Clark of Rowland & Clark aided the committee materially by getting a letter from the Metro Pictures Service, Boston, outlining plans and methods carried out by the managers of the recent Screen Club balls in that city. The letter was read at the meeting and was ordered turned over to the committee on publicity, as many suggestions contained therein will prove valuable to them in their work in connection with the coming ball.

Several propositions were read from bands, but Nirella's proved the most popular and the committee was instructed to conclude negotiations with that organization.

Another special meeting of the Screen Club officers and committees was held Tuesday, January 4, at 11 a. m., when the by-laws were again discussed and adopted by the committee. The dues were placed at $1.50 per quarter and a motion was carried to waive all initiation fees for 60 days beginning January 1, 1916.

At this meeting H. A. Lande, a committee of one, was appointed to visit New York and see the various manufacturers regarding definite information as to the stars who can attend the forthcoming ball.

VIRGINIA NEWS LETTER.

By Clarence L. Linz, Washington Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

Manager of Norfolk's Strand.

From out of the ranks of theatrical men with a wide experience in the legitimate field, Edward H. Markinson, manager of the Strand theatre, Norfolk, Va., has but recently enlisted as a convert to the motion picture. His connections with high class dramatic attractions, having for several seasons managed the Ben Greet Players and subsequently having charge of the Academy of Music at Raleigh, N. C., has eminently fitted him for his duties in outlining the policy of Norfolk's largest picture house.

Edw. H. Markinson.

An attractive, and at the same time most convenient time schedule for moving picture performances is in use at the Strand theatre, Norfolk, Va. A brass box has been securely fastened to the swinging frame at the entrance to the theatre in which there is a clock giving the correct time, and underneath it a space in which a typewritten schedule of the pictures showing throughout every hour of the day is placed. The box being but six inches wide and ten inches long, and hinged in such a manner that the program can be readily changed, it attracts the attention of many passers-by. Patrons of the house have found it of great value in allowing them to choose the most convenient time for attending the performances.

Louisville Opens Fight

Federal Censorship Menace Recognized by Louisville Photoplay Association—President Dittmar, at a Meeting, Outlines Bill to Create Federal Board and Pledges Opposition With Kentucky League.

By G. D. Crain, Jr., Louisville Correspon dent of Moving Picture World.

LOUISVILLE, KY.—The Louisville Photoplay Association has taken steps to defeat a bill introduced in the United States Senate on December 15 to create a new division of the Bureau of Education, to be known as the Federal Motion Picture Commission. Shortly after the announcement that this bill had been introduced, a meeting of the local association was called for the purpose of protesting against enactment of such a law.

The local association is strong, and represents practically every moving picture theater in Louisville. L. J. Dittmar, president of the organization, outlined the bill at the meeting, and a resolution was passed pledging the organization to opposition in conjunction with the state association, known as Kentucky Branch No. 7, M. P. E. League of America, and the National Association. The resolutions also called on the association and individual members to ask the Kentucky congressmen and senators to vote against the bill. The Louisville exhibitors take the stand that the municipal government is in position to cope with all conditions, and as the Federal Commission would charge $1 as a fee for every reel of film licensed by it, and fifty cents for each copy made therefrom, it is contended that this is an unnecessary burden which would eventually fall on the exhibitor.

STRAND OPENS WITH NEW YEAR.

The Strand theater, the latest addition to the moving picture houses of Louisville, had a very auspicious opening on Saturday, January 1, when 7,000 people saw the Gold Rooster Pathe production, "The Beloved Vagabond." A Pathe weekly and Pathe comedy accompanied the showing of the feature. A twenty-piece concert orchestra under the direction of William Paulsen furnished music. Robert Arlington and Caroline Lee Covington, soloists, appeared at the opening shows.

Arrangements have been made for changing the bills on Thursdays and Sundays, and to give four shows daily, starting at 1:15, 3:15, 7:15 and 9:15. R. V. and M. A. McRae, formerly of Detroit, are operating the theater, which was formerly the Masonic. Arrangements have been made to take care of the legitimate productions which were booked by the theater before the McRaes took over the house. Mischa Ellman, and John MacCormack are among the artists who will shortly be seen at the house.

"BATTLE CRY OF PEACE"

Manager Lee Goldberg, of the Mary Anderson, Louisville, has announced that arrangements have been made whereby the widely heralded photoplay, "The Battle Cry of Peace," will shortly be shown at the local theater, which is one of the Keith photoplay houses. The play recently completed a successful run at the Criterion theater, in New York, at advanced prices. It is thought that this picture will pack the theater at every performance; it is one that interests people of all classes.

Owensboro's New "Peekin."

Richard Jackson, of Owensboro, Ky., has completed a new moving picture theater which will cater to the colored residents of the city. The theater has been named "The Peekin" by Mr. Jackson, who apparently overlooked nothing in equipping a first-class house. The building is of brick and is fireproof. A wide vestibule at the front has small rooms at each side for its patrons' comfort. A metal operating room and complete heating and ventilating system has been installed. An orchestra pit has been provided and regular stage scenery installed. The plans were drawn by A. Killian.

New House in Taylorsville.

J. H. Johnson, of Shelbyville, Ky., was recently in Louisville, where he made arrangements with some of the local supply houses for equipment with which to start a new moving picture theater at Taylorsville, Ky. The new theater will seat 300 people.

Children's Free Xmas Show.

The Uno theater, of Pineville, Ky., which was recently opened under new management, gave a special matinee as a Christmas gift to the children of the city during the holidays. At this matinee all children under fourteen years of age were admitted free of charge.

Norman Dixon Visits.

Norman M. Dixon, a representative of the General Film, of Indianapolis, Ind., was in Louisville last week calling on the local exhibitors. Mr. Dixon was formerly manager of the Louisville Mutual office and has a wide acquaintance in the city.

Joseph Everich Dies.

Joseph Everich, 49 years old, formerly advertising and publicity manager of the Walnut theater, died last week at his home in Louisville of stomach trouble after an illness of eight weeks. The funeral was held from the Sacred Heart Church, with burial in St. Louis Cemetery. Mr. Everich is survived by his wife and five children. He was a native of Braddock, Pa.

Chosen Notes of Interest.

A. C. Farrell, manager of the Louisville office of the Central Film Service Company, of Indianapolis, has just returned from the Hoosier City, where he spent the holidays. J. I Schnitzer manager of the Indianapolis office, has gone to New York on a business trip.

George Hackett, manager of the Sun theater, reports that he certainly has kept the "Sun shining" during the holidays. He ran matinees on Christmas and New Year's as well as on the Sundays following.

Teddy Bears were given away to all of the children who visited the Empire theater on Christmas. Manager H. B. Strube annually provides some interesting present for the children.

The Lyric theater, of Jackson, Ky., recently gave a benefit show in order to swell the fund of the Salvation Army, which did a good deal of work among the poor during the holiday season.

The Mason Circuit Court, at Maysville, Ky., has ratified the sale of the Pastime Moving Picture theater, and the new owner will be given control at once unless Nelson Ward, of the Colonial Amusement Company, former operators of the theater, carries the case to the Court of Appeals. It seems that the lease to the building was included in the bill of sale at the court house door. However, the lease was held by Mr. Ward personally and was not a part of the amusement company's property.

From Picture Beginnings in Louisville

Recast of Film Events in Kentucky Furnishes Interesting View of How the Fifth Greatest Industry Has Gone Locally.

LOUISVILLE, KY.—With the opening of new year, moving picture men of Louisville cannot help reviewing the remarkable growth of the moving picture industry during the past ten years. It has developed so rapidly that all of the newspapers are now forced to give a good deal of time and attention, as well as space, to this industry because of a large number of followers who equal each week the total population of the city. It was only a few years ago that the initial exhibition of pictures in Louisville was announced by the old Masonic Temple theater.

First Pictures in Louisville.

Oscar Eagle, now a prominent World Film producer, was a member of the Meffert stock company, which was playing at the theater at that time, and the picture was run between acts as a vaudeville headliner. Among the first pictures shown in Louisville were the Biograph productions "The Great Train Robbery," and "The Female Dispatcher." No names or players names were advertised in connection with the films which were shown and known as "The Polyscope," taking the name from the projecting machine used.

The First Picture Theater.

The first moving picture theater was "The Dreamland," at Fifth and Jefferson streets. Shortly afterward the Columbia was opened at Fourth and Market streets. These theaters formed a part of the chain afterward held by the Princess Amusement company, which is still in existence and which now operates the Orpheum and Casino theaters. The Dreamland was the third picture theater, with a "picture front," in the United States. In 1908 the largest photoplay house in the country was opened in Louisville when the Hopkins theater, with 2,400 seats entered the field. This theater did well for a number of years, but burned about two years ago.

The El Dorado Call.

The Hopkins cleared $20,000 in nine months, and when the news leaked out many new theaters sprang up. The Crystal on Fourth near Walnut street, and the Broadway, at Shelby and Broadway, shortly afterward came into existence. The Crystal has been out of existence for several years, but the Broadway, after building additions several times, erected a $50,000 theater about two years ago. Judge W. A. Kinney, of the Princess Amusement Co., and L. J. Ditmar, manager of the Majestic Amusement Co., are among the pioneers of the industry. The Broadway Amusement Co. has grown into a big organization which now controls nearly a dozen theaters in Louisville, Ky., and Frankfort.

In the early days of moving pictures the stars were anonymous. The Biograph company, which was the first of the successful producing companies veiled the identity of its players for some unknown reason, and people failed to take the interest in the pictures which they do now that they know the players.

Big Crowds in Early Days.

The most successful picture exhibited in the early days was one shown at the Hopkins theater, one Sunday many years ago, when 7,000 people paid admissions to see an exhibition of a world series game between the "Cubs," and the "White Sox." From one house, with an attendance of 100 a day, the industry has grown to thirty-five local theaters with attendances reaching up as high as 50,000 people on many days.

TENNESSEE NEWS LETTER.

By G. D. Crain, Jr., Chattanooga Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

"Nation" Film at Memphis.

MEMPHIS, TENN.—The Lyceum theater of this city devoted a full page to advertising the "Birth of a Nation," in the Sunday morning edition of the Commercial Appeal, of January 2. The big picture production was booked at the theater for a solid week, the first show being given at 8:15 on Monday evening, January 3, and matinees each day starting at 2:15 in the afternoon. Night prices were: lower floor, $1 and $2; balcony, 50c. to $1; gallery, 25c. Matinee prices were: lower floor, 50c. to $1; balcony, 50c; gallery, 25c. The objections of the colored race to the showing of this picture were quietly overruled.

Buys the Palace at Maryville.

H. A. Ragle, of Maryville, Tenn., has purchased the Palace theater, of Jellico, Tenn., from F. C. Moore. The theater was closed for a week after the transfer in order that it might be thoroughly renovated and remodeled. Formerly the seats were poorly arranged, but have been set so that persons occupying them are now looking directly at the screen, and are no longer forced to sit directly behind one another. Mr. Ragle has made arrangements for a better grade of film service, and will run matinees every afternoon between the hours of 2 and 5 o'clock. Mr. Ragle has had several years' experience in the moving picture industry, and is interested in a number of small theaters in Tennessee.

Memphis Likes Jack Pickford.

Jack Pickford, brother of Mary Pickford, proved himself a star well able to merit favor from the Memphis theater goers, quite independent of the success achieved by his sister in his initial introduction to Memphis people in the recent showing of "The Three Crooks," a Selig production, recently shown at the Majestic theater, No. 2.

Features and Programs in Tennessee.

CHATTANOOGA.—The Signal Amusement Company, operators of a chain of theaters, came out with a two-color, full-page advertisement of the Paramount Program in the Chattanooga News of January 1, starting the new year off with a flourish in publicity. The announcement listed some twenty paramount productions which are to be seen at the Alcazar theater shortly.

NASHVILLE.—The Belmont theater recently offered an excellent attraction consisting of two plays, eight reels in all. The program consisted of the five-part World film (William A. Brady) comedy, "Little Miss Brown," starring Miss Vivian Martin, and the three-reel feature of the General program (Knickerbocker), "The Cup of Chance," starring Miss Alice Brady.

The Fifth Avenue theater of Nashville, Tenn., arranged an appropriate holiday offering by showing the great photoplay "From the Manger to the Cross," the picture being shown for three days, starting December 27. Almost a full page was consumed in the Nashville Tennessean in a brief of the story of the great play.

William H. Wassman, manager of the Crystal, of Nashville, Tenn., who advertises as "The man who made the nickel famous," has set aside Tuesday, Thursdays and Saturdays as Keystone days. On these days only first run Keystone pictures are shown.

MEMPHIS.—The Princess theater, of Memphis, Tenn., has made arrangements to run two big serial pictures. On Tuesday, December 28, the first episode of the much talked of serial "Graft," a wonderfully strong uplift drama, was shown, and on Friday, December 31, the first episode of "The Girl & The Game," was shown. The story of the latter picture is being run in installments in the Commercial Appeal.

Ohio League Alive

Cincinnati Local Holds Lively Meeting and Shows Willingness to Get Busy When Needed—Talk Over Censorship Situation—New Policy of Exchanges That Ask Pay in Advance Also Brought Up.

By Kenneth C. Crain, Cincinnati Correspondent Moving Picture World.

CINCINNATI, OHIO.—Members of the Cincinnati Motion Picture Exhibitors' League do not underrate their power as an organization, nor are they of the caliber of those who are afraid to "start something" when their interests are at stake. In other words, the organization is, and has been active rather than passive. Expressions at the recent regular monthly meeting of the League indicated this strikingly, as vigorous action was indicated in at least two matters of importance.

Unjust Discrimination.

The one of more local interest was that in which President Red L. Emmert indicated that the League would, if necessary, use its influence in politics against what is declared to be unjust discrimination against the moving picture business. The particular point which aroused this expression was the report that the refusal of the Ohio Board of Censors to pass "The Birth of a Nation" was due to specific instructions to that effect from Gov. Willis. A committee of local exhibitors, headed by President Emmert, went to Columbus to investigate this report some time ago, and were informed that there was no truth in it, and that the Board had acted on its own initiative. However, exhibitors see in the Governor's action in refusing to let the prize corn-growers see the picture in Philadelphia a clear indication of personal prejudice in the matter, and are accordingly somewhat warm under the collar.

Don't Like Prepayments.

Another matter of considerable pertinence broached at the recent meeting was opened up by Theodore V. Bley, of the Fairmount theater. Mr. Bley registered a protest against the somewhat general practice of film manufacturers in requiring of exhibitors a deposit, usually a check to cover the charges for service during the succeeding month. Mr. Bley pointed out that such a practice is absolutely unknown in other lines of business, the general rule being, on the contrary, to extend a month's credit to buyers, with a discount for earlier payment. While exhibitors are not asking for this, he declared that they are at least entitled to the presumption that they will pay for feature and other service when the charges are due, without having to put up the money or its equivalent in advance.

OHIO CENSORS INFLUENCED BY PERSONAL OPINIONS.

The fact that the ground taken by the Ohio censors, not to mention other local bodies, in connection with "The Birth of a Nation," is based largely upon personal opinion, and not upon fundamental considerations, is illustrated rather neatly by the action taken with reference to the great Griffith production in Huntington, W. Va. There is no state censorship in West Virginia, on which the State may be congratulated; but reports of possible objections to the picture caused the city commissioners to decide to take it upon themselves to look at the picture in advance and pass upon it. They viewed it, at the specific request of a committee of colored citizens, and promptly issued a statement declaring that the scenes objected to were in no wise subject to legitimate criticism as matters for elimination. "The scenes objected to by the negroes of the city," ran the statement issued through the mayor, speaking for the city authorities, "are based on historical events of fifty years ago, and only show to the advantage of the negro in portraying the remarkable advance of the race during that time up to the present. I can see nothing indecent or immoral in the picture except as some individual mind might construe it in a wrong way. I cannot see how any man unprejudiced in the first place could be influenced against the negro by the picture." Leading negro citizens of Huntington argued that the picture would tend to discredit the race and to stir up bad feeling, but the exhibition was attended by large crowds, and nothing of that nature was in evidence. Possibly Ohio is more excitable and prejudiced than the former chunk of Old Virginia now comprised in West Virginia, but this may be doubted.

MOVE TOWARD CHILDREN'S SHOWS IN OHIO.

City Authorities Appoint Committee to Investigate Matter.

Organized movements for the purpose of providing special programs of moving-pictures for audiences of children are becoming more numerous, Cincinnati authorities having pushed the idea to the extent of appointing a committee of the Women's Civic League, with Miss Frances Huffaker, juvenile court probation officer, as chairman, to investigate the manner in which the plan is carried out in Louisville and elsewhere.

At Youngstown, O., the first week in January saw a program of this sort carried out, on the initiative of several federated organizations of the city, including the Women's Federation, the Ministerial Association, playground supervisors and others interested. If the response to the movement proves successful it will be made permanent, under some plan by which there will be a regular showing of pictures peculiarly suited for the instruction and entertainment of children at some house or houses. J. M. James, proprietor of the Palace theater of Youngstown, agreed to co-operate in the matter, and it was at his theater that the trial program was exhibited.

"PEACE" PICTURE IN CINCINNATI

G. Hill and R. N. Le Fevre Take Music Hall for Big Vitagraph Production.

Under the management of G. Hill and R. N. Le Fevre, both of Lebanon, Ohio, Vitagraph's nine-reel feature, "Battle Cry of Peace," will be shown at Music Hall, Cincinnati, Ohio, for an indefinite period at prices of 25 and 50 cents.

Nothing will be overlooked to make this picture a vast success in Cincinnati. A large orchestra has been engaged and all the necessary equipment has been secured in order to make this production as "life like" as possible.

Numerous original ideas known only to the managers will be brought out to their best possible advantage, and no expense spared. The people of Cincinnati and vicinity will be afforded a rare treat to see "Battle Cry of Peace" at a house seating 3,800 people, beginning Sunday evening, March 19, 1916.

Triangle at Bellevue's Alcazar.

Manager C. C. Hite, of the Triangle office, continues to close up bookings. One of the latest of the theaters in this vicinity to join the Triangle forces was the Alcazar, of Bellevue, Ky., the leading theater of that section of the Kentucky shore. Heretofore it has shown a five-cent program of the usual sort, but the management saw the trend, and when the opportunity to secure Triangle service came along the deal was promptly closed. The house will hereafter show features only, with an admission charge of ten cents. A. J. Cary, of Loveland, who has been with the Pennsylvania Railroad for fourteen years, has been added to the Triangle staff, additional help being necessary on account of rapidly increasing business.

Work Against Myer's Law

In Cleveland Motion Picture Exhibitors' League Is Determined to Defeat New Theater License Fee Ordinance—Would Take $3 for Every Hundred Seats—Was Introduced by Councilman Edward Myers on December 20.

By J. D. Raridan, Ohio Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

CLEVELAND, OHIO.—The committee on law of the Northeastern Ohio Motion Picture Exhibitor's League is working hard to defeat the picture theater license fee ordinance, soon to be before the new city council. The measure was introduced by Councilman Edward Meyers, December 20, and was referred to the council committee on licenses, judiciary and director of law.

It provides:

"A moving picture theater within the meaning of this ordinance is any theater, concert hall, auditorium or enclosure where motion pictures are exhibited and where a charge of admission is made. The definition shall not be held to include the auditoriums of religious, fraternal or other organizations not organized for profit.

"It shall be unlawful for any person or corporation either as owner, lessee, manager, officers or agent, or in any capacity, to give, conduct, produce, present or offer for gain or profit any moving picture exhibition within a moving picture theater without first securing from the Commissioner of Assessments and License, a License for such theater and paying therefor a license fee.

"There shall be an annual license fee for moving picture theaters in the sum of three dollars for each one hundred seats. All licenses shall expire on the first day of July following their issue, and if said license is issued at any time within six months prior to the first day of July, the license fee charged shall be one-half of the before mentioned amount.

"Any person or corporation violating any of the provisions of this ordinance shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined not less than $10 nor more than $100 for each offense."

FILMS IN CLEVELAND SCHOOLS.

Great Value of Pictures in Education Recognized—Some Opinions.

Members of the Cleveland Board of Education are to cooperate with the Congress of Mothers in the purchase of moving picture projecting machines for use in the public schools.

"We believe that motion pictures will be one of the most effective forces obtainable as an adjunct to the regular school course in our public schools," Mrs. E. B. Haserodt, president of the Mothers' Congress declared in support of the proposal. She made this statement after a demonstration of the educational possibilities of a projecting machine, was made before members of the Congress.

The organization she represents plans to have special pictures made for school use, the idea being to brighten and make more attractive the study of geography, botany, zoology and other subjects.

While the members of the Congress take the attitude that children are harmed by unsupervised attendance at motion picture theaters, Edward Bushnell, president of the Board of Education, does not believe this is true. Bushnell favors the purchase of motion picture machines for the schools, but declares Ohio motion picture houses are as a rule operated on a high standard and are good for children rather than harmful.

"With all the restrictions which surround the motion picture business, I believe the public picture theatres fill a real need," Bushnell said. "However, I believe picture machines would be of great value in school work." A similar view is taken by Mrs. Virginia D. Green and Mark L. Thomsen, other board members.

A YEAR'S NEW THEATERS.

Nearly $400,000 was invested in new moving picture theaters in Cleveland during the year just closed, according to records in the city building commissioner's office. The largest single investment was by the Stillman Amusement company, which took out a permit to build a new picture theater at 1111-1115 Euclid ave. at a cost of $200,000.

Other picture theater permits were issued to:

The Mall Building company for a $50,000 theater on Superior avenue.

L. A. Whitman for a $20,000 theater at 7213 St. Clair avenue.

Walter F. Delaney for a $20,000 theater at 10640 St. Clair avenue.

O. G. Melaragno for a $20,000 theater at 1348 Central avenue.

M. & O. J. Fisher, $20,000 theater, 10001 Miles avenue.

S. H. Stecker, $20,000 theater, 4287 Pearl road.

H. S. French, $20,000 theater, 10225 St. Clair avenue.

ANOTHER $40,000 HOUSE.

The latest picture theater deal closed in Cleveland was announced January 3, by the Fale Realty Company which filed an application with the city building department for a fireproof theater building at St. Clair avenue and E. 80th street, to cost $40,000. The structure will be two stories high and contain stores and offices. Albert Edwards is the architect.

4,000 SEE "TRIUMPH" ON SUNDAY.

The new Lasky-Paramount production, "Triumph," with Geraldine Farrar in the stellar role, attracted 4,000 people to the Knickerbocker theater Sunday when it opened a four-day run. This establishes a record for the Knickerbocker. The pictures will be shown at the Metropolitan theater the last three days of the week. This house opened the week with the Triangle photoplay, "Cross Currents."

The Strand theater opened with the World film, "The Rack," which intensely dramatic production has attracted crowds.

The Reel, the Wind-a-meer, and the Fairyland theaters are showing Paramount pictures. The Haltnorth, opened with "The Primrose Path," the Alhambra with Metro films and the Savoy with Triangle plays.

ILLINOIS NEWS LETTER.

W. J. Black Takes Helm of the Chatterton.

By Frank H. Madison, Illinois Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL.—"The Birth of a Nation" is one of the first attractions to be shown at the Chatterton opera house in Springfield under the new management of Will J. Block who succeeds A. Shapiro. It will run the week of January 16. Mr. Block has been prominent in the theatrical world as a producer and a theater manager. "The Birth of a Nation" returned to the Temple theater at Alton for four days beginning January 2.

"On the Firing Line With Germans."

The "On the Firing Line with the German" films, taken by W. H. Durborough of the Newspaper Enterprise association, are to be shown in various cities where local papers have a franchise in the N. E. A. In Springfield the pictures were shown at the Chatterton and credited to Durborough as staff photographer of the Illinois State Journal.

Illinois Charters.

Secretary of State Stevenson at Springfield has issued certificates of incorporation as follows:—

The International Photoplay company, Chicago, $25,000. To teach art and patriotism. Anton Czechowics, Stanley Snopek, Frank Szezenkowsk, Bernard Ruckarski, Leon Maniczarz and Joe Wielbacki;

Landowne Photo Play Company, East St. Louis; capital, $2,500; Incorporators, G. H. Hamilton, M. Hamilton and A. S. Richey;

The Colonial Film corporation, Chicago; capital, $10,000; incorporators, A. M. Gress, R. J. Ray and Sol Rosen;

The William T. Warren Film company, Chicago; capital, $10,000; incorporators, William T. Warren, William A. Jennings and Joseph Rolnick;

The Universal Show company, Chicago; capital, $2,500; incorporators, James T. Clyde, Charles S. Hatch, and William H. Luthardt.

What Illinois Exhibitors Are Doing.

The photoplay watch-party or the safe and sane New Year's eve celebration was more in evidence in Illinois than in former years. Nearly every theater that had a special midnight show played to almost capacity business. A premium of ten cents for each seat which was reserved a week ahead was the general practice.

Earlier opening is profitable for the Majestic at East St. Louis which now is operated continuously from 9 a. m. to 11:30 p. m.

The New Gem at Macomb encourages quantity buying of tickets by giving a certificate good for a photograph at a local studio with each $1.00 sale.

Manager Peck of the Grand at Rockford had all the local Civil War veterans as his guests to see "The Coward."

Music from the throats of scores of canaries supplemented the orchestra during the holidays at the Apollo theater in Peoria. Two 18-foot Christmas trees, illuminated, flanked the entrance canopy.

The Princess at Monmouth asks two pennies for the kiddies at the children's hours and two nickels for the grownups.

Illinois Changes—New Houses—Business Notes.

The Ranney opera house at Little York was destroyed by fire causing a loss of $25,000. Humbert & Gabby had just started a moving picture show and lost all their equipment.

Morrison Bros. have sold the Lyric theater at Villa Grove to Carl Clausen.

Fred Stelzer, who recently took over the Princess theater at Lincoln, has closed it.

The Orpheum theater on East Wood street in Paris has been re-opened by J. E. Camplin formerly with the Gus Sun Amusement company in Ohio.

J. B. McCormick has surrendered his lease on the Illinois theater at Champaign.

Scotts' Hippodrome at Jacksonville is now operating only on Saturday nights giving five reels for five cents. The business is diverted to Scott's theater.

George H. Walter has purchased a half interest in the Orpheum theater at Freeport from Fred H. Nichols.

Al Metzler of Indianapolis has purchased the Habit theater at Danville.

William Schmidt has sold the Princess theater at Manteno to E. H. Ingalls because of poor health.

Features—Personal Notes.

Manager Camplin has started the New Mutual program at the Orpheum in Paris. He had a special free show for children of the city just before New Years.

"The Battle Cry of Peace" had one of its earliest bookings in Illinois outside Chicago at the La Petite in Kankakee where it was shown for 25 cents to adults.

The Lyric theater at Elkville has been re-equipped.

"The Boy Scout" film was a come-back at the Orpheum in Elgin.

"Her Happiness" was the feature on the program at the Tilford in Murphysboro when nothing but potatoes for the firemen's Christmas tree was accepted as admission.

The feature "An Alien" was a golden one for those who had it so appropriately during the holidays. The Majestic at East St. Louis had it for two days and the Fischer at Danville ran it December 29 and 30 for the benefit of the Elks.

The Grand at Sterling has installed a 1916 Motiograph.

"The Wizard of Oz" was the Christmas Day attraction at Burr Swan's house in Pittsfield when Circuit Judge Harry Higbee gave his annual free matinee.

The Princess theater at Monticello inaugurated its twice-a-week Paramount shows with "David Harum."

MICHIGAN NEWS LETTER.

Home-Made Film for Holidays.

SAULT STE. MARIE, MICH.—Reviving the home-made picture so the holiday home-comers could see what it was, was a profitable stunt of the Temple theater at Sault Ste. Marie which ran "A Tangled Trail" two days in the course of the holidays.

Butler Theater at Ishpeming Opens.

"The Island of Regeneration" was the opening attraction at the new Butler theater in Ishpeming. The treatment of the ceiling at the Butler is distinctive among copper country photoplay houses. It is stepped down in a series of panels so that its general line coincides with that of the floor, and it is built in a series of graceful arches. As a result the house has an intimate and cozy interior, in pleasing contrast to the toplofty atmosphere of houses in which the ceilings are finished on the line of the roof. The house which seats 600, is owned by Ed. J. Butler.

New Michigan Theaters.

Adams & Fitzgerald who have opened a moving picture theater at Blanchard seating 225, have their own electric light plant for operating a new Powers machine.

The new Buddy theater at 612 Bridge street N. W. in Grand Rapids has been opened by Buddy Brothers. It seats 500 and is handsomely decorated in old rose and white.

Buddy Brothers will erect a new moving picture theater on the west side in Grand Rapids in the near future.

Kuehnle Brothers & Gordon have opened the new Fairview theater and dance hall at 1708 St. John street to cater to the residential sections of Flint known as Fairview, Homedale and Murray Hill.

The South Lansing Photo Play Co., Lansing, Mich., has been organized with a capital stock of $3,000.

Harry Moier has succeeded Daniel F. McCoy as manager of the Empress theater, Grand Rapids.

Among the Michigan theaters which have secured Triangle pictures are: Majestic Gardens, Grand Rapids; Duplex theater, Detroit, and Strand of Saginaw. The Duplex started Dec. 20.

Too Many Features

Interesting Interview With H. I. Garson—Says Makers Are Not Stopping to Analyze the Situation—Business Not Yet on a Commercial Basis—Thinks Exhibitors Don't Get Fair Treatment.

By Jacob Smith, Detroit Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

DETROIT, MICH.—"There are too many features being produced at the present time," said Harry I. Garson, of the Broadway-Strand theater. "Competition is so keen that manufacturers are not stopping to analyze the situation as to whether they can find ready market for their product, but are going right ahead and grinding out features as fast as they can for fear that some competitor will do more business or bring about a better picture. If these manufacturers would produce less features, put more money into each one and direct them better with greater attention to details, etc., I believe the industry would benefit in every way. The exhibitor would feel better satisfied and surely the public would appreciate the change."

Is Industry on Commercial Basis?

"The industry is not on a commercial basis as yet; I mean, taking the industry as a whole. There is no standard method of doing business. The exhibitor hardly knows from one month to the other whose pictures he will play. The manufacturer is willing to sign up an exhibitor when he sees no chance to get some body else, but the minute another house goes up in that particular section that looks more promising, the first customer has his service cancelled and the new man gets it. The manufacturer (I mean most of them because there are a few real business firms making pictures) does not seem the least interested in the kind of a deal the exhibitor gets but is only interested in how much money he will get out of the transaction.

Exhibitors Don't Like Their Deal.

"I have talked with at least fifty exhibitors scattered in all parts of Michigan and most of them have found fault because of unfair treatment from some exchange. The whole trouble, in my opinion, is due to the overproduction of features. The manufacturer has his money tied up and he wants it back as soon as he can get it, never stopping to think whether his booking agents are giving proper treatment to the exhibitor. We are fast approaching the stage in this business where exhibitors must give the public something else besides pictures. What is more tiresome than a picture without music? The time is at hand when exhibitors must give more attention to the way pictures are presented—pictures should be put on the same as a legitimate show."

LOCAL TRIANGLE MIX-UP.

A fight is on as to who will show first run Triangle pictures in Detroit. It seems that Harry I. Garson and P. P. Craft formed a copartnership to handle Triangle films in Detroit. This firm in turn made a contract with the Broadway-Strand. The contract was to start January 3rd. Up to that time the Duplex theater showed Triangle films and announced them as a permanent attraction. However, Mr. Garson says that Mr. Craft had no right to sign up with the Duplex and he is prepared to take the matter into the courts. By the time this issue is in the hands of the WORLD readers, there may be some definite decision handed down by the circuit court where the case was to be heard.

OUR HEARTY FELICITATIONS.

Jacob Smith, our Detroit correspondent, takes this occasion to wish all Michigan exhibitors and exchangement a Happy and Prosperous New Year. During 1916 he will always be glad to get items of news as he has in the past. His office is 503 Free Press building.

H. W. Smith to Manage Garden Theater.

H. W. Smith, for the past six months manager of the Metro Feature branch office at Escanaba, Mich., and formerly manager of the Empire theater, Detroit, has been appointed manager of the Garden theater, Detroit, owned by John H. Kunsky. We are glad to see him back and he says he is also glad to get back to the one "bright spot" in Michigan.

New De Luxe Theater.

D. I. Butler, president of a company to erect a new theater on Detroit's east side, announces that the location will be at Parkview and Kercheval avenues. It will be known as the De Luxe motion picture theater.

Interesting Short Items.

A new organ is being installed at the Forest theater, Woodward and Forest avenues, Detroit.

When the new Majestic theater at Wyandotte opens in a few weeks, the Marx theater, which is also owned by Arthur Caille and Henry J. Guthard, will be shut down for repairs and a complete overhauling. There will be many interior improvements.

Employees of the Theater Comique, Detroit, on Chrismas day, presented the owner, Henry S. Koppin, with a suit case and Bert Williams, the manager, with a watch.

D. Leo Dennison, who came to Detroit some months ago to manage the branch of the Famous Players Film company, has been transferred to the Chicago office. We are glad "Dennie" has been advanced but we certainly regret to lose him. His successor in Detroit is W. D. Bachmeyer, who has been with the Pittsburgh branch of the company. He will be here temporarily only. It has not been decided as to who the permanent manager will be.

Arthur Hoganson, former manager of the Kunsky Strand theater in Detroit and more recently with the William Klatt theaters, is now sales representative for the General Film company, in Detroit and Toledo. He is handling the Regular and the new Unit program.

Directors of the Miles Detroit theater company authorized the distribution of $17,500 in dividends to stockholders of record, December 31, at their meeting December 29. A regular semi-annual dividend of 3½ per cent. and 1½ per cent. extra. The Miles plays a combination vaudeville and pictures. It is capitalized at $350,000 and has about 800 stockholders.

Mayor of Detroit Revokes Theater License

Takes Away License of Burlesque Theater—Question as to Whether He Has the Right Is Involved—Injunction Secured.

Mayor Oscar B. Marx of Detroit has revoked the license of a local burlesque theater because of indecent shows, although the court has granted an injunction restraining the police department from enforcing the mayor's decision. The case is to be heard Jan. 8 as to whether or not the mayor had a right to cancel the license without granting a hearing to the theater manager. The effect of this decision will have an important bearing upon the motion picture industry, inasmuch as it will determine the mayor's right to at any time revoke the license of of exhibitor who may, in the opinion and belief of the mayor, show an immoral, indecent or obscene picture.

Billy B. Van in Detroit.

Billy B. Van, president of the Equity Motion Picture Co., of Van Harbor, New Hampshire, who played an engagement at the Temple vaudeville theater here the week ending Jan. 2, and who retires from the stage on Jan. 9th to devote all of his time to the motion picture business, told the Detroit correspondent of the WORLD that his company would be releasing comedy pictures in January and that already enough prints were sold to assure the company of a handsome profit.

NEW FILM ORDINANCE ADOPTED IN ATLANTA.

New Regulations Said to Be Satisfactory to Local Exchange Men.

By A. M. Beatty, Atlanta Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

ATLANTA, GA.—The film ordinance which regulates the manufacture and handling of films within the city limits, was adopted by the city council Monday afternoon, Jan. 3. An effort was made to refer the ordinance to the new council, but it was voted down. The ordinance, which has been modified from the original draft, is said to be satisfactory to the exchange men and exhibitors of Atlanta.

WANTS PATRIOTIC NAME.

Peter Mion has offered a prize of $25 in gold for the best name for the new theater building, which is being erected for him on Forsyth and Luckie streets. Work on the building has progressed to the stage where the walls for the first floor are completed. It is said the winner must not only have a name pleasing to the ear, but must also be one that gives the sound of patriotism to our country.

NEW HOUSE IN BIRMINGHAM.

Newsome's new moving picture theater in Birmingham, Ala., has just opened, which makes three theatres he controls, the Amusu, Trianon and the new one. A feature of the new house is the orchestra arrangements, being situated on a balcony opening into the theater. A name will be selected for the new theater during the coming week. Birmingham has now about half as many moving picture theaters as it had seven or eight years ago, but there is no comparison between the theaters of those days with the present houses.

SCENIC FILM COMPANY DINES.

Plans for a commercial and dramatic moving picture plant, which is now in course of construction, were discussed Saturday night, at a meeting of the Scenic film company in the hotel Ansley. More than seventeen artists, illustrators, camera men, laboratory workers, producers and other film craftsmen on the Scenic pay roll were in attendance. A banquet was served in the Pine room.

An address was delivered by Mr. Carl Roundtree, the president of the Scenic company, who outlined plans for the coming year, the concern having moved on January 1st from its quarters in the Alfriend building to the old Orpheum theater building on Marietta street.

One of the South's biggest film producing plants is being constructed on the Orpheum building. A dramatic studio is being built on the roof, and will be enclosed with a commodious glass frame. Mr. Roundtree announced that one of the first plans of his company would be the manufacture of one and two reel comedy dramas, which will make the Scenic the first permanent dramatic producing company in the city. The Scenic is now engaged in producing animated advertising, news picture weeklies and other commercial cinematography.

"Graft" Exhibited.

The first episode of "Graft" was shown Monday at the Alpha theater. Manager Fowler is delighted with the start of this serial, as the house was crowded all day.

Good Business With Nation Film.

The "Birth of a Nation" which closed a three weeks' engagement at the Atlanta theater Saturday night, did $27,000 of business which is the largest sum netted by the big picture on any road engagement in the south. Thousands of people came to Atlanta from adjacent cities to see the wonderful spectacle, and it did really better than Manager George of the Atlanta theater expected. It is at present playing to crowded houses in Birmingham, Ala.

MARYLAND NEWS LETTER.

By Clarence L. Linz, Washington Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

BALTIMORE, MD.—The year 1915 was an exceptionally busy one in building circles of Baltimore, Md., the cash value of building operations as reflected by permits issued at the office of the Building Inspector represented a valuation of nearly $15,000,000. Naturally the bulk of this huge sum covered dwelling houses, but during the year there were ten motion picture theatres erected at a valuation as stated by the builders and contractors of $206,975. The department always adds twenty per cent to the valuations stated so that the value of the moving picture property would be given as $248,370. During the month of December three permits were granted for the construction of motion picture theaters.

Henry Pfeil Co. to Build.

It is reported that the Henry Pfeil Manufacturing company will soon build a motion picture theater and apartment house on the rear of a lot on Robert street, near Pennsylvania avenue, Baltimore. F. E. Beall is the architect. The building will be three stories in height and will be constructed of brick and stucco. It will measure 64 feet by 70 feet. It is estimated that the building will cost $10,000 to erect.

I. L. Hornstein to Build Theater.

Proposals were recently invited for the erection of a two-story moving picture theater to be erected for Isaac L. Hornstein, after plans prepared by Sparklin & Childs, architects, at 1027-1029 Harlem avenue, Baltimore.

Local General Film Moves.

The Baltimore offices of the General Film company has been removed from 402 West Lombard street to 36 South Eutaw street. The new quarters are to be fitted out with every convenience. The offices have a floor space of 25 by 75 feet and in addition there is a basement. The location is very near the Camden station and a very efficient service to all customers is assured. A special messenger service has been inaugurated for the delivery of films that are delayed in transit, thus guaranteeing as far as possible the exhibitors from inconvenience resulting drom delays. The office is in charge of W. F. Ballenger. He will be assisted by a stenographer who will be on duty during the day and will be in charge during his absence. Two men will be on duty all night. The new location is a decided improvement over the old one in all respects.

Big Gold Rooster Signs.

The Pathe company has completed arrangements for the placing of ten large signs advertising their Gold Rooster plays in various parts of the city near theaters where these productions are being shown. A number of these signs are to be placed above the streets on the sides of buildings. This is the start of an even more extensive advertising campaign to boost "Gold Rooster" than has yet been carried on.

MORE PHILADELPHIA NOTES.

By Philadelphia News Service.

Film Burns in Norristown Theater.

Great credit is due the management of the Colonial theater, Main and Arch streets, Norristown, Pa., for the admirable manner in which they handled the situation when several hundred feet of moving picture films in the operator's booth caught fire and were entirely consumed. The audience was quieted and an exit made in a most orderly manner no one becoming excited and there was absolutely no sign of a panic.

L. M. Swaab to Take Vacation.

Lewis M. Swaab, proprietor of the Swaab Film Service, 1327 Vine street, is busily engaged making final preparations for his trip to Hot Springs, Ark. Mr. Swaab is taking the trip purely for pleasure and expects to enjoy himself to the utmost while at the famous recreation spot.

Taking the Theater Scenes for "The Idol of the Stage."

PRAIRIE STATES NEWS LETTER.

Special to Moving Picture World by Midwest News Service.

Reformer Cuts Little Ice in Des Moines, Iowa.

DES MOINES, IOWA.—Attorney General Cosson of Iowa is not likely to take up the fight of M. S. Odle of Des Moines who is seeking among other things the closing of theaters on Sundays. The attorney-general feels, it is said, that there is a press of more vital matters.

New $200,000 Company.

The Motion Picture Exhibit Company of Omaha has filed articles of incorporation with the secretary of state at Des Moines, Ia. The capitalization is $200,000. The incorporators are Edwin T. Swobe and Frank D. Green.

Maquoketa's Orpheum Opens.

M. L. Morrison and W. M. Hadley opened their new Orpheum theater at Maquoketa, Ia. with the Mutual Masterpicture "The Lonesome Heart." The new house seats 415 and is up to date in every way.

New Iowa Houses.

James Williams has started a moving picture theater in the opera house at Osceola.

Willard Seager has opened a moving picture theater seating 200 at Gilman.

J. N. Dowdle, proprietor of the Cozy theater at Bellevue, will erect a 30x90 concrete moving picture theater and opera house seating 300.

A new moving picture theater seating 300 has been opened at Lime Springs under the management of E. E. Oleriham.

The new opera house at Tipton has been completed.

Fred Franklin has named his new moving picture theater at Crawfordsville the Star theater.

Frank Alter will open a new moving picture theater at Persia.

F. S. Probasco is manager of the new Royal theater which has been opened at Charter Oak.

Iowa Business Notes in Brief.

The Pastime theater at Sac City was destroyed by fire.

The City Council at Boone has passed an ordinance regulating the operation of theaters and payment of licenses.

The remodeled Majestic at Atlantic will be known as the Garden theater when it reopens the latter part of January. It will be under the management of Chris Geannacopoulos.

The Latona theater at Williamsburg has installed a new Manuola player.

The Busy Hour theater at Jefferson has just started the serial "Neal of the Navy."

"The Spoilers" was the big New Years' attraction at the Magic theater in Rockwell.

IN NEBRASKA.

Give Dinner to the Brandeis Staff.

OMAHA, NEB.—Elliott & Sherman of Minneapolis, owners of "The Birth of a Nation" in the middlewest and northwest, had a big Christmas dinner in the Palm room of the Fontanelle hotel in Omaha, Neb. The film has been playing at the Brandeis theater in Omaha and the business staff, the orchestra members, stage mechanics, operators and all members of the company were the diners. At the dinner, Sig. Lockman, leader of the orchestra, was presented with a jeweled tuning fork.

Nebraska Houses Change Hands.

The new moving picture theater which the Garden Realty company will erect on the Maul property in Omaha will seat 1500. It is to be ready by May 1.

J. E. Wolfe has sold his moving picture show at Nebraska City to Eugene Russell, of Adams.

With St. Louis' Elite

World Representative Gets to Kingshighway in Delmar District—Dodges Autos and Counts Many Lined Up Before Fashionable Theaters—Full Houses the Rule—A Unique Cigar Checking System.

By A. H. Giebler, St. Louis Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

ST. LOUIS, MO.—St. Louis is a peculiar town. These words are often spoken with an apologetic air by some one from some shortcomings of the town, but we have no apologies to make for our native heath—it's a good old town, one of the best show towns in the country. But it is a peculiar town just the same. And here is the peculiarity.

Our down town district, the gay white way, is not down town at all, but forty long blocks from Broadway. Of course there are lots of lights down town, Broadway and Sixth streets are two long streams of brightly shining lights, and the streets are so crowded that one can easily get pushed off the sidewalk and get squashed by an automobile, but just the same the real gay white way is Kingshighway, around the Delmar avenue district.

Four of the biggest and most elegantly appointed theaters in the city are in this district, where the ultra fashionable set, the purse-proud and the high brows disport themselves.

The Corneliuses and Their Two Theaters

Our first stop the other night on our rounds was at the West End Lyric, with its reception room, lobby, decorated with cut flowers, and with soft carpets on the mosaic tiling, and a general air of quiet dignity. The West End Lyric was full, first floor, balcony and lobby, and a woman on the outside was contenting herself with showing her two little daughters the picture of Mary Pickford in the lobby display, as that was as close as they could get to the pictures. The West End Lyric is one of the—we don't like the word "classy," but there is no other word that describes the place so well—it is "classy," from the lobby to the screen. J. W. Cornelius and Mrs. Cornelius, assisted by their son, James, own and operate the two Lyrics, the West End, at Delmar and Euclid, and the Lyric at Sixth and Pine. These people are regarded as the most successful managers in the city, and Mrs. Cornelius, who attends to the booking personally, is considered an authority on pictures. Mr. Cornelius divides his time between the two theaters, and was at the Sixth street house when we called, but Mrs. Cornelius was overlooking things, however, and James was explaining in his politest manner to a patron that he wished the house was twice as big, so that everybody could get in to see Little Mary in "The Foundling" and Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew and the George Ade comedy that formed the bill.

The Delmar Lately the Rialto.

From the Lyric we picked our way through the automobiles that lined either side of the street and found the Delmar with another big crowd trying to see Hobart Bosworth in "The White Scar." The Delmar is again under the management of C. A. Maberry, who managed the place two years ago. The Delmar was one of the original O. T. Crawford houses; Mrs. Crawford managed the theater for a while until it was sold recently to P. Stromberg, a wealthy trunk manufacturer, and Mr. Maberry was reengaged as manager. While Mrs. Crawford managed the house she called it the Rialto, but the new management took over the old name again. Mr. Stromberg was at the Delmar in person, overlooking his business, and he is very proud of the fact that the house has built up a splendid patronage since he took possession.

The Washington and Its Cigar Check System.

Across the street, diagonally on Delmar, is the Washington, which is a family theater in more senses than one. The Washington is owned and operated by Dr. E. V. Ditlinger, a well-known practicing physician. The doctor and his wife and three sons manage the theater. A unique feature of the Washington is a cigar checking system. A number of little china cups are fastened to the side of the box office window, and all you have to do is to place your cigar in the cup, take the numbered check that hangs above and when you come out take the cigar that corresponds to your number.

Seventy-five Autos at the King's.

After leaving the Washington, we turned the corner on Kingshighway on our way to the Kings, one of the two theaters that show the Triangle pictures. Exhibitors used to shake their heads when they talked of the King's. "It cost a mint of money to build and doesn't pay. It's kinda out of the way," they would tell you; "sorter around the corner from the big mob that parades up and down Delmar." That isn't the case now. There were 73 automobiles by actual count—we counted them ourselves—standing out in front of the King's, and Manager David E. Russell wasn't a bit surprised when we told him the number. "Oh, you ought to come out here on a big night," he said. But we fail to see where he could have stowed away any more people in the theater. If there was an empty seat we could not see it, and the King's is a big house.

BENEFIT FOR INJURED PATRON.

Mrs. L. D. Stoddard, manager of the Monroe theater, at Chippewa and California avenue, gave a benefit matinee on two days last week for Miss Marie Moentmann, a young girl who recently had both arms cut off by some machinery, while at work in a bag factory. Miss Moentmann was a regular patron of the Monroe, and Mrs. Monroe has known her ever since she was a child. The entire proceeds of the two matinees was given to the girl.

WILL MANAGE BLUE BIRD HERE.

I. Leon Klasky arrived in town last week to take charge of the local Blue Bird Photo Plays, Inc. office. Mr. Klasky has had headquarters fitted up in the Universal exchange at 2116 Locust street, and will distribute his Blue Birds from there. Mr. Klasky is a well-known St. Louis man, having started in the business as city salesman for the Pathe exhange less than a year ago. He was with the Fox exchange for a while, then went to the World Film office under E. W. Dustin, and afterward was sent to the Chicago office, where he soon rose to the position of manager.

Mr. Klasky says he is glad to be back in St. Louis, where he has many friends among exhibitors, and while he liked Chicago, the chance to distribute Blue Bird features was too good to be missed. The Blue Bird office is very nicely arranged, and Klasky says he intends to make it blue bird weather for every exhibitor taking the program. The first release will be Sarah Bernhardt in "Jeanne Dore."

St. Louis Fire Department Buys Moving Picture Camera.

Fire Chief Frank Henderson of St. Louis, has just purchased a complete moving picture outfit for the purpose of taking pictures of fires in St. Louis. No sooner will the hose begin to play than the moving picture machine will begin to whirr, and the cameraman will be as much a part of the St. Louis fire department as the hose carts or the trucks. The innovation is in line with Chief Henderson's campaign for fire prevention,

Prominent New Orleans Man Defends Film Shows

Frederic Meyer Hears W. C. Crafts Lecture and Notes Weaknesses in Plea of Rabid Anti-Motion Picture Reformer.

By S. A. M. Harrison, New Orleans Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.—Dec. 20, 1915. To the Editor of the Item:—"In the Moving Picture World, of the current week, I noticed that the Hughes censorship bill was again introduced in the house of representatives, and that this bill was supported by W. F. Crafts last year, and failed of enactment.

"The same evening in my daily digestion of The Item, I learned that Brother Crafts would appear in New Orleans, to lecture on various forms of vice. Curious to hear 'personally' Mr. Craft's views on the movie question, 'the blue ribbon industry' in which I am deeply interested and have been for the past five years, I took advantage of this opportunity to hear Mr. Crafts speak.

Frederic Meyer

"The result was the most scathing exclamation possible, against moving pictures, by this 'not optimist,' I'm sure.

"In glowing originality, Mr. Crafts asserted that: 'Next to the saloons, we must fight the moving pictures, which are growing worse and worse, every day.' The above being word for word as expressed by Mr. Crafts. . . .

"I will give Dr. Crafts the benefit of my doubt, regarding his knowledge of the moving picture industry, otherwise he is simply and purely prejudiced against this world renowned art.

"Ye Gods, isn't it a fact that the great wave of reform, throughout the entire country, can be traced mainly through the efforts of the moving picture industry, to illustrate and depict the deplorable conditions that exist, caused by liquor, gambling and vice of all sorts? . . .

"I wish that every Louisianian who believes in justice would write the representative from his district in favor of the movies.

"Thanking you for printing this, I am,

"Yours sincerely,

"FREDERIC MEYER."

Y. M. C. A., City.

Mr. Meyer is of one of the oldest and most prominent families in New Orleans, he is twenty-five years of age, and within the past two years, has been offered, by three eastern directors, a position to act in pictures, though he has never had any theatrical experience. He has just completed a five reel picture in which he has played a role, the picture being produced by a local studio.

He is prominent in club and athletic circles here and is an expert swimmer and horseback rider, and tops the beam at six feet two.

V-L-S-E NEW ORLEANS BRANCH.

C. A. Meade, manager of the Dallas V-L-S-E office, and R. King Evans of the same office, were in New Orleans the first of the year, arranging for the opening of a Big Four branch in the Crescent City. When opened, the office will be in charge of Mr. Evans.

Mr. Evans is well and favorably known to the film trade in this territory, having been a traveler for the Dallas office for some time. Previous to entering the trade he was assistant treasurer of the Dallas opera house.

The promotion of Mr. Evans is in line with the announced policy of W. W. Erwin of the V-L-S-E main offices to promote wherever possible successful men already in the company's employ, and the promotion is well deserved.

New Orleans Trade Notes.

The Dixie theater at Gretchen, La., was destroyed by fire recently, but rebuilding on a larger scale was at once commenced.

Extensive repairs are being made on the Pastime theater, Alexandria, La. The house is closed until these are completed.

WILL SCHOOL "U" INSPECTORS.

Manager R. C. Cropper of Kansas City Universal Has Plan to Make Film Inspectors Efficient.

Special to Moving Picture World by Kansas City News Service.

KANSAS CITY, MO.—A new and very promising plan is being adopted by the Universal office in Kansas City, for the development of inspectors of film. This is a system, devised by Mr. R. C. Cropper, manager of the office, for thorough schooling of every one before he or she can go on the tables as a full-fledged inspector.

Mr. Cropper's idea is that every inspector must know the vital points of film production before he is competent to act confidently and effectively in that capacity. The curriculum of the school will consist of a series of illustrated lectures, starting with the very first steps in production, and following along all the details of manufacture, and of inspection, that the persons who handle the films should be familar with. A book of set rules is being prepared also, so that each will have handy the exact procedure, and the information with which to settle any doubtful point. These books are to be sent to each operator throughout the territory also, since they will contain much valuable guidance for them.

The new Universal plan will equip the inspectors to handle the work understandingly, and with confidence to meet the complaints and suggestions of operators—for the inspectors will have clear consciences, knowing that they really know how to inspect films.

A GOOD BATTING AVERAGE TO HIM.

"Kid" Nichols, baseball pitcher and team manager in both the major and minor leagues, has deserted the American game—baseball. It has been quite a while since Mr. Nichols—his first name is Charles—has depended on anything else to furnish his living. He has joined the Kansas City force of the Universal company to take charge of the "Blue Bird" photoplays in this territory.

In 1913 he and Joe Tinker, likewise the possessor of some fame and notoriety on the ball field, opened the Diamond theater at Fifteenth street and Prospect avenue, in Kansas City, A short time later that house was disposed of and Nichols managed the Palace theater here for the Standard Amusement company. Recently he has been a traveling representative of the Kleine-Edison company out of Kansas City.

THREE NEW THEATERS.

The Grand theater has been opened in Osceola, Mo., by Hudson Bros.

Fred Savage, owner of the De Luxe, Iris and Rex theaters in Hutchinson, Kan., has announced that he will build a new house on the present site of the Rex.

A new theater is being constructed in Tarkio, Mo.

C. A. JONES JOINS "U" STAFF.

C. A. Jones, better known in the southwest as "Bud" Jones, has joined the Universal of Kansas City as general representative to cover parts of Kansas and Missouri. Mr. Jones is one of the oldest film men in this territory. He has recently been in the Kansas City office of the Metro and previously was assistant manager of the Mutual Film Corporation of Missouri under M. E. Williams.

OZARK "TROOPER" EXHIBTORS.

Rural picture entertainments in the country surrounding Osceola, Mo., will be given by R. M. Wade, formerly manager of the Osceola Light company who resigned from that position to purchase a projecting machine for such use. Like other Ozark exhibitors, Mr. Wade will go from town to town, showing one or two nights at each place.

The Ozark district of Southern Missouri has many small towns, all of which offer a field for the picture exhibitor, but many of which are not large enough to support a show continuously. Consequently a number of "trouper" exhibitions have gone into that section, each owning several reels, and go from town to town, somewhat similar to the methods of the one night stand show companies.

New Building Will Contain Theater.

Contracts have been let and work started on a seven-story office building, the lower floor of which will be used as a motion picture theater, on the southeast corner of Fifteenth street and Troost avenue. It is being built by the Altman Realty company on the site that formerly was the residence of R. M. Snyder, capitalist and promoter, and later of Walton Holmes, vice-president of the Pioneer Trust company. The new building will be completed by June 1.

Kansas Wants Educational Film Expert.

Pittsburg, Kan.—The state board of administration of public schools soon will select an expert who is posted both on educational and motion picture lines to take charge of an educational film bureau as part of the state public school work. That announcement has just been made here by Lee Harrison, secretary of the board. Mr. Harrison made the declaration that in two or three years visual instruction of some character or another will be used in every public school in Kansas.

The central film bureau will be conducted as an adjunct of the state school system and it will have for its purpose the selection of films depicting history and geography principally.

The Gladstone's New Organ.

The new Kimball organ, made to order for John G. Hiatt for his Gladstone theater, was installed recently, and dedicated Dec. 22 by Professor Allen Bogen, of Chicago, organist of the Auditorium there. Mr. Hiatt has employed Professor Freestrom, of Kansas City, to play the organ. He is very well known in musical circles, and his brother is director of the academy in Stockholm, Sweden. The organ cost $15,000.

V-L-S-E Road Men Confer.

A year's-end salesmen's conference of the ten travelers of the V-L-S-E Kansas City office was held by Manager E. R. Pearson during Christmas week. Plans were made for going after more business and Mr. Pearson announced that the force would be increased by four or five men shortly after the New Year. The Kansas City office, with a branch at St. Louis, handles the business in Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa and parts of Illinois, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Tennessee, Kentucky and Indiana. S. W. Hatch, the St. Louis representative, was in attendance.

E. A. Barnhardt is a new road man out of the Kansas City office of the General Film company, handling the serial "The Strange Case of Mary Page."

R. C. Cropper, Universal manager in Kansas City, has just returned from a visit to Oklahoma City.

Suit Over Rights in Wisconsin

"The Unbroken Road," a Life Photo Production, Raises Controversy—Competing Theaters Book Same Picture from Different Offices.

Special to Moving Picture World from Midwest News Service.

CHIPPEWA FALLS, WIS.—The Casino Feature Film Company of Milwaukee and the Nelson & Moore film agency of Minneapolis are in legal controversy as to which concern controls the Wisconsin rights for "The Unbroken Road." A suit by the Casino company against Nelson & Moore will come up for trial soon in Milwaukee.

The Palace theater in Chippewa Falls, Wis., had booked "The Unbroken Road" from the Casino company. The Empire theater at Chippewa Falls had booked it from the Minneapolis firm. General manager B. C. Smith of the Casino company went to Chippewa Falls, had the Empire show prevented and the films seized. The Minneapolis concern later gave bond and the films were returned.

Milwaukee's Merrill Theater Open.

General publicity for a new photoplay house not yet built is uncommon. Long before the opening date was announced the Merrill theater at Milwaukee began using newspaper space to tell the public what it could expect in the way of ventilation, lighting, screen and service from employees. The Merrill will show Triangle pictures, charging fifteen cents for all seats.

Where They Like to See 'Em Again.

La Crosse soon will be known as the repeating city. "The Birth of a Nation" has been booked for a week's return engagement beginning April 23 at the Majestic theater. The Strand theater has started an unusual series. It has booked ten pictures which were "knockouts" at the Casino theater in the same city. The first of these was the Vitagraph feature "Four-thirteen." The Casino has had the Metro feature "Pennington's Choice" twice as a holiday attraction—at Thanksgiving and Yuletide. The Strand also rebooked 'Destiny."

Wisconsin Programs and Features.

Manager Phillip O. Gross, Jr., of the Strand theater at Milwaukee started an "All feature" policy January 2. On Sunday, Monday and Tuesday he will use V-L-S-E service. Wednesday, special and Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Fox features. "The Cave Man" and "The Green-Eyed Monster" were the first bookings under this plan. Only three changes a week will be made.

A program of especial interest to farmers was offered by the Auditorium at Waukesha. Four reels of alfalfa growing near Waukesha, "Waukesha Beautiful," with moving pictures of the principal stock farms near the city, a comedy and slides of the San Francisco fair made up the program.

Walter Goetzinger blind organist of the Bijou theater at La Crosse played forty-two numbers to accompany the Lasky film "Carmen." He was accompanied on the piano by Mrs. James Kerr.

"The Birth of a Nation" is at the Lyric theater in Ft. Atkinson the week of January 15 and at the Marinette theater in Marinette January 20-22.

Wisconsin Changes and New Houses.

Carl Muller, manager of the Elite theater at Waukegan, Ill., has leased the new Majestic theater at Beloit.

Walter F. Smith, manager of the Gem theater at Washburn, contemplates the erection of a new moving picture theater next spring. It will seat 900 and will play principally feature pictures. It will also be a dance hall and roller rink, canvas being spread on the floor on show nights.

John W. Seager has purchased the Majestic theater in Watertown from Mullen & Hollenbeck.

The Star theater on Water street in Eau Claire has been reopened by Jesse Ridgeway.

Lew Wilting who has been operating the Gem theater at Sturgeon Bay has leased the Crystal theater in that city from Will Marquardt of Manitowoc.

O. L. Meister will erect a one-story moving picture theater, 45 x 150 feet, at Third street near Grand avenue in Milwaukee. It will cost $5,000.

H. Geneska, of Plymouth, Wis., has sold the Wonderland and Atlas theaters in Berlin, Wis., to John Aamoth, of St. Paul, Minn.

IN INDIANA.

Special to Moving Picture World from Indiana Trade News Service.

If Joe Had Only Run a Store.

LAFAYETTE, IND.—M. Schultz, proprietor of a department store at Lafayette, Indiana, when shown a picture of Joseph Brandt, of the Universal company, in the office of the Lafayette Journal was indignant because he thought the Journal had taken a picture of him without permission. The resemblance is very close and Mr. Schultz expressed his opinion that if Mr. Brandt had gone into the department store business even the expression on their faces would have been identical.

Indiana Theater Changes.

Johnson & Church of Owensville purchased the Star theater at that point and will continue to run a good class of pictures.

L. E. Perry, Sturgis, Ind., operator at the Crystal theater, has bought the Majestic at Lagrange, Ind., from Charles Griffith.

Manager C. H. Zaring of the North Star, Indianapolis, is enlarging the seating capacity from 400 to 1200

Brief Mention.

John F. Mackenzie, resident manager of the Strand company, Indianapolis, announced that the new house will have a corp of uniformed girl ushers that will compare favorably in appearance, training and courtesy with the celebrated feminine ushers of the New York Hippodrome.

Tracy Brothers, proprietors of the Arcade theater, Winchester, Indiana, have installed a new electric music box known as the Coinola.

Manager H. H. Hornbeck, proprietor of the Majestic at Monticello, Indiana, has had to answer so many questions about the new pipe organ that he thinks of having a sign printed that will give all the information that he has about its mechanical and musical features.

How Films Are Censored in Minneapolis

Rules Laid Down by New Board of Twenty-six Members Who Intend to Judge on Basis of Fitness for the Younger People of the Community.

By Grace Polk, Minneapolis Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—The new moving picture censor board which is to work with Mayor Nye in passing on the showing of questionable films in Minneapolis theaters has laid down a brief set of standards by which to work. The board states that its chief concern in fixing standards is for "the adolescent boy and girl and for the youth of the city," in whose amusements and recreations "wholesomeness must be the watchword." "To avoid inconsistencies in the decision of its sub-committees," the board gives as its reason for establishing standards.

"In view of the fact," it says in a written statement, "that the vicious influence of films is due to certain incidents, the viewing committee are requested to consider the following as liable to be harmful, especially to young men and women:

"1. Drunkenness—Especially as presented in social affairs, cafes, etc.; also drunkenness of women and drunken brawls in saloons.

"2. Indecency—Including undue exposure of the person, immoral suggestiveness and any kind of sexual unwholesomeness.

"3. Cruelty—Especially to women; causing suffering to human beings or animals (the infliction of pain, occasionally portrayed as a necessary incident to the development of a story, not wantonly inflicted, would not be included as cruelty).

"4. Lawlessness—Where the general effect of the reel seems to be "beating" or defying the law.

"5. Race Prejudice—Anything which would seem to stir up race prejudice to any serious degree."

The censor board is made up of 26 men and women representing about 20 social and welfare organizations of the city.

SAXE IN NEW ASSOCIATION.

Minneapolis is represented in the recently organized National Theater Owners' Association in the person of Thomas Saxe, who owns and operates the Strand theater in this city, of which J. A. Keough, who attended the organization in New York, is manager. Mr. Saxe lives in Milwaukee, but is a frequent visitor to the Twin Cities.

While You Wait Show in R. R. Station.

Louis W. Hill, president of the Great Northern Railway, has manifested his belief in the films as an advertising medium in the most substantial of ways. In line with a plan for the exploitation of the resources of the trade territory surrounding the Twin Cities, Mr. Hill has suggested that he would provide space in the Great Northern passenger station for the showing of motion pictures "while you wait." The plan so far as worked out contemplates the showing of pictures of general interest, with development views worked in.

New Home for Exhibitors' Photo-Play Company.

A new 12-story building in the heart of the Minneapolis downtown business district is announced by the Exhibitors' Photo-Play company in the near future as a home for that company, additional space to be occupied by physicians and surgeons. The project is intended to carry out the original intention of the late John Gates, owner of the site.

A 100-year lease to the ground which adjoins the Orpheum theater has been secured and it is announced the building will cost not less than $350,000. It will be thoroughly fireproof and modern.

The officers of the Exhibitors' Photo-Play company are A. G. Bainbridge, president; H. W. McCoy, vice-president, and C. H. McCoy, secretary and treasurer. The company is a corporation composed of owners and managers of picture houses and manufactures and handles films of all sorts.

New Theaters This Year

San Francisco Sees, With the Opening of the Year, a Number of New Houses Building—Some Are of Considerable Size—Plans Being Drawn Up for Others —An Account of What Is Being Done.

By T. A. Church, San Francisco Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.—A number of new theaters, several of large size are now in course of construction in San Francisco and plans for others are being drawn, making it a settled fact that within a comparatively short time some marked changes will be made in the local amusement field, notably in the downtown district where there is a scarcity of first run houses.

Work has been commenced by N. L. Josey on the erection of a moving picture theater with a seating capacity of more than 1,000 on Geary street, near Powell, opposite the St. Francis hotel. Many of the contracts for furnishings in this building have already been let and it will be opened as soon as possible with high-class feature productions.

Work on the remodeling of the American theater on Market street, above Seventh, is well under way and this house will be opened within two month's time as a moving picture theater, but the owners have not disclosed the name of the person who will operate it.

Plans have been completed for the theater to be erected at Ellis and Mason streets and work on this structure, which will have a seating capacity of more than 3,000, will be commenced at the close of the rainy season. It is understood that this house will be conducted as the Strand theater, articles of incorporation of the Strand company having been filed recently.

The Royal Theater company is preparing to have work commenced at once on the erection of a fire-proof moving picture house with a seating capacity of more than 1,100 on California street, near Polk, and in the Mission district the rebuilding of the Idle Hour theater by the Kahn & Greenfield circuit is well under way.

Plans have also been announced for the erection of a large theater at Eddy and Mason streets, on the site of the Tivoli opera house at the time of the fire of 1906. This site was cleared some time ago for a theater building and it is expected that work will begin again on the project within a few weeks.

R. T. FURMAN WILL VISIT.

Robert T. Furman, director of exchanges for the Pathe interests, is expected in San Francisco shortly on a tour of inspection. Business at the local branch has been showing a steady gain under the direction of manager Harry Oviott and it is anticipated that the record shown will prove to be a very satisfactory one. The colored Gold Rooster play, "The Beloved Vagabond," has been shown during the past week at the Tivoli theater and met with instant success, being voted one of the best attractions shown here in a long time.

RETURN OF "PEACE" FILM.

The "Battle Cry of Peace," which was recently shown at the Columbia in San Francisco for three weeks with signal success, and which has since been shown at Los Angeles, is to be put on at the Portola for a one week run and will then be sent to the Northwest. The Pacific Coast rights to this production are controlled by the Portola company and arrangements are now being completed for the handling of bookings in the Northwest by a prominent exchange man in Seattle.

FRESNO LOCAL NO. 599 ELECTS.

Electrical Moving Picture Machine Operators, local union No. 599, of Fresno, Calif., has elected officers for 1916 as follows: W. E. Doyle, president; D. C. Miller, vice-president; Gerald James, secretary and treasurer, and J. A. Byers, business agent.

Sol. Lesser Returns, But Off for New York Again.

Sol L. Lesser, head of the Golden Gate Film Exchange, Inc., returned from a hurried trip to New York in time to spend part of the Christmas holidays with his family, and departed again for the eastern city on New Year's day for another short stay. The early reports to the effect that he had secured the rights in three western states to the "Ne'er-Do-Well" were augmented upon his arrival by the information that he had secured the rights for the entire United States. Manager Eugene Roth of the Portola theater has made arrangements for the exclusive showing of this production here at what is declared to be the highest rental ever paid for a film in this city. The re-issue of "The Spoilers" has also been booked for the Portola and will be shown in Los Angeles at Clune's auditorium.

Pioneer Supply Company Incorporates.

Articles of incorporation of the Breck Photoplay Supply Co. have been filed at San Francisco with a capital stock of $6,000 subscribed in full by A. J. Francis, T. Maguire, George Breck, J. E. Maguire and E. B. Rutherford. Mr. Francis recently left for New York on business connected with the concern and some developments of interest will be announced shortly. The introduction of new blood into the company means that Mr. Breck will be relieved of active duties to a considerable extent and that a wider field will be sought.

Amusement Companies Incorporate.

The Washington Square Amusement Company has been incorporated with a capital stock of $10,000 by J. J. West, C. Baer and J. Jacobson.

Articles of incorporation of the Mason Street Theater company have been filed by J. T. Fleming, Mr. Moran, E. E. Smith and D. Greenan, the capital stock being $100,000.

Schools Buying Moving Picture Apparatus.

The Atlas Educational Film Company, which is making a specialty of furnishing schools with moving picture equipment, is meeting with great success in this growing branch of the business. A full outfit was disposed of recently to the Pittsburg, Cal., grammar school, moving pictures being used in the dedication of the structure. Principal M. H. Rowell, of the Sonoma, Cal. high school, has also placed an order lately for equipment. A member of this supply firm recently attended the state convention of high school principals held at Fresno, Cal., at which strong resolutions were adopted favoring the use of moving pictures in schools. The University of California recently sent out cards asking school trustees if they were interested in moving pictures for educational work and more than one hundred inquiries were received in regard to the cost of equipment.

Photo Player Head Returns Home.

H. J. Werner, president of the American Photo Player Co., with headquarters in this city, has returned from a trip to New York and is now conferring with his associates on the proposition of erecting a new plant. The new showrooms and offices of this concern on Golden Gate avenue will be ready for occupancy early in February.

San Francisco Personals—Business Notes.

R. E. Stebbins, who recently joined the forces of the Progressive company, has been placed in charge of the re-booking and extended run department.

Herman Wobber, manager of the Progressive company, is expected home from a business trip to New York about the middle of January.

Frank Atkins, manager of the Marysville theater, Marysville, Calif., was married recently to Mrs. LaRose Hansen, the leader of his orchestra, and was in San Francisco during the Christmas holidays.

The Moving Picture Operators Union of this city made a substantial contribution recently to the San Francisco Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis and to the Christmas tree for the poor children.

The Pastime theater on Market street has set aside a section where smoking is permitted.

A. C. H. Chamberlin, of the Madera opera house, Madera, Calif., was a recent visitor here to look over current releases. He states that the second house opened there recently by Chamberlin Bros. has been closed, it having been demonstrated that the field was too small for two theaters.

A Wagner converter has been installed in the Irving theater conducted by Frank R. Macauley, this having been installed by Walter G. Preddey.

A Simplex projector has been purchased by A. B. Spreckels for use in his magnificent home at 2080 Washington street.

Hallahan & Getz are planning to change the policy of the Market Street theater and show feature productions in place of the regular program, which has long been a feature of this moving picture house.

Sid Grauman, manager of the Empress theater, has returned from a business trip to the Northwest.

Joe Deitch, formerly with the Golden Gate exchange, is now with Essanay, working on the "Strange Case of Mary Page" serial.

TEXAS PARAMOUNT CHANGES.

R. H. Logan, Old Timer in This Territory, Assumes Managership of Local Office.

By S. A. M. Harrison, Dallas Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

DALLAS, TEXAS.—The Texas Paramount office is in full swing under the new management, with R. H. Logan holding down the manager s desk. C. E. Tandy, general manager of the S. A. Lynch attractions, with headquarters at Atlanta, Ga., spent a few days here inducting the new manager into office. Mr. Logan succeeds L. Bickel, resigned.

Mr. Logan has been in the film game for some years and is especially well known in this territory. When the Paramount office was first opened here some years ago, he traveled the district for the pictures, and claims acquaintance with managers of theaters at all points, from the smallest tanks to the larger cities. He left this position to go to the Atlanta office as assistant to Mr. Tandy.

Mr. Logan says it was like coming home to get back here, that he took a big breath of pleasure when he got off the train, and when the exchange bunch got him, it was found necessary to take a whole day for a homecoming reception. (Get that—"reception." The "receipts" were of various kinds.) The new manager is very optimistic over the outlook in this teritory, and looks for a successful year.

A CHANGE IN MANAGEMENT.

John DeStefano, for some time associated with the Queen theater, Dallas, has assumed the management of that house, vice L. B. Bissinger, who resigned to take over the Washington.

Mr. DeStefano is financially interested in the Hulsey theaters, and for some time has taken an active part in the business of the concern. It is announced that no essential change will be made in the policy of the Queen, although Mr. Hulsey is expected to take a more direct interest in it. Not that Mr. DeStefano needs any assistance, but because Mr. Hulsey is one of those energetic men who believe there is always room for betterment.

Mr. Hulsey has surrounded himself with an exceptionally capable staff in the Dallas office, having, besides Mr. DeStefano, B. F. Lewis at the Old Mill, and Herschel Stuart and Miss Whitehead on publicity work.

The Washington theater, one of the best picture theaters in the Dallas business district is now under the management of L. B. Bissinger, former manager of the Queen. Mr. Bissinger succeeds R. A. Carter, who resigned to enter a different field.

Mr. Bissinger had been associated with the Hulsey theaters for the previous eight years in several different cities, and spent three years at the Queen. He had a wide acquaintance and has been very successful as a manager.

W. D. Nevills, owner of the Washington, also controls several other houses in Dallas, and it is believed that these will soon be augmented by the purchase or lease of more theaters.

Fort Worth House Gives Free Show to Kiddies.

The Victor Amusement company of Fort Worth, Texas, was host to about 115 children at the Healy theater on Tuesday of Christmas week, entertaining with a special complimentary matinee. The kiddies had previously been banqueted at Sam Joseph's cafe and supplied with the candies and nuts necessary to make up a real Christmas.

Back to Legit for a Night.

Albert Russell of the Dallas Metro office and "Smiling" Jimmy Kelly of the Consolidated returned to the legitimate stage during Christmas week—temporarily.

The occasion was the production of "Mrs. Temple's Telegram." The cast was made up almost entirely of ex-professionals, and the comedy was put over in fine form. The Peyton sisters, well-known in the theatrical world, were in the cast. Mr. Russell managed the production. Mrs. Russell by the way, is one of the Peytons.

A dam for a fishing lake for the Dallas Automobile Country Club was the primary object of the dramatic effort, but the play went over on its own merits, very little publicity being given to the beneficent object.

A Merchants' Matinee.

A special merchants' matinee was inaugurated at the Old Mill theater January 3. This will be a short program of a Keystone comedy for the especial benefit of those who desire noonday relaxation. It will be on from 10:30 to 2 daily, with a flat price of 10 cents all over the house. Quite a nifty set of blotters have been got out to advertise this matinee.

Dallas Personal Notes.

Shannon Fife, a successful scenario writer, spent the holidays with homefolks in Dallas. Mr. Fife wrote exclusively for Lubin for some time but is now working as a free-lance, specializing in features.

W. Eppstein and Walter McCombs, vice president and secretary, respectively, of the San Antonio Amusement Company were in Dallas during the holidays. Mr. Eppstein went from here to New York on a business trip.

Leroy Bickel, former manager of the Dallas Paramount office, spent the holidays in Greenville, Miss., his old home. He will, it is expected, return to Dallas, although his business connections are not announced.

Seattle's Coliseum Opens

Beautiful New Picture Theater Opens Its Doors to the Public the First of the Year —Will Seat 2,500—Some of Its Distinctive Features—Its Orchestra and Program —A Jensen and Von Herberg House.

Special to Moving Picture World from Seattle News Service.

SEATTLE, WASH.—Distinct in many ways, one of the most beautiful theaters in the country, and one of the very largest, the Coliseum at Seattle threw open its doors to the public the week after New Year's.

It has a seating capacity of 2,500, occupies the corner of Fifth avenue and Pike street, and is architecturally of mosaic and oriental design.

One of the newest features in the thea ter is the children's playroom, which has been fitted up with pictures of characters in nursery rhymes. Another feature is an elevator that will carry a capacity of 27 people from the ground floor to the first and second balconies.

Girl ushers are employed, and they are by no means the least pleasing sights at the new theater. Their costumes, somewhat saucy, yet conservative in the general ensemble, were designed by Pierette of New York fame.

On the proscenium arch, overlooking the pit where a Russian orchestra of eight pieces joins with the organist in rendering the picture music, are three huge paintings. Two of these, one on each end, are paintings of Cleopatra facing each other. In the center is a painting of Pharo.

The Coliseum, of course, has a men's smoking room, a ladies' room, general rest rooms, and all other of the latest conveniences of the modern theater. The new show house, which is the largest in the West, is being operated by Jensen & Von Herberg, who are also operating the Liberty, Alhambra and Mission theaters in Seattle. Paramount pictures will be featured.

Mischa Gutterson, of Chicago recently, will lead the orchestra. Most of the members of the orchestra of eight pices have been with the Chicago Grand Opera Co.

WHAT "HICK" SAYS.

Bart Bertelson, press agent for the Clemmer theater, has certainly found a fine advertising medium through H. S. Hickson, his doorman. Hick, as he is familiarly known, is a familiar figure to Seattle folks, thousands of whom see him every day as he stands guard at the Clemmer. This thought apparently struck Bertelson when he got the artist to draw Hick's picture, and every day since it has appeared in the local papers with some quaint and humorous statement. For instance, during Electrical week here recently, the letters "W. E. C." were conspicuously displayed by all electrical houses, and Hick thus explained it:

"Hick."

"'W. E. C.' that you see displayed all over town mean 'Wallingford Enlivens Clemmer.'"

Another one was worded thus: "Hick says: If there were more 'Damaged Goods' in reel life there would be less damaged goods in real life."

So well known has this uniformed picture of Hick become that Capt. J. K. Weatherspoon, a personal friend of Hick's, sent him a Christmas card which bore no other designation of address than the picture all by itself. The mail man, however, knew it belonged to Hick, and delivered without delay.

EXIT THE SEATTLE THEATER.

Due to the inroads made by the photoplays, the old Seattle theater, the landmark of the legitimate stage in Seattle, has passed away. It is being torn down.

Incidentally, it was at the Seattle theater that many who have since won fame on the screen, received valuable training in stock. Max Figman and Lolita Robertson played in stock at the Seattle theater for an entire season. It was here, too, that William C. Dowlan, a Universal actor, played in stock.

This was in the latter days of its career. At the zenith of its fame, it was the leading theater in the city and all the famous road shows, with nearly all the great stars of the speaking stage in the last generation, appeared on its stage. When it was first built it was the most pretentious theater in the entire West at that time.

NEW STRAND OPENED XMAS.

Newly decorated, exterior and interior, the Strand theater, formerly the Alaskan, threw open its doors under new management on Christmas day. It had been closed for several weeks.

William Smythe, who operates the Class A theater here, and is one of the most successful moving picture men in the Northwest, has taken over the Strand. S. Barrett McCormick, author of "The Disciple" and other scenarios produced by Thomas H. Ince recently; will handle the press agent's job for the new house, having come here Christmas day from Los Angeles.

The Golden Rooster Pathe pictures will be featured. The opening number was "At Bay," with Florence Reed in the stellar role. The house opened to packed houses.

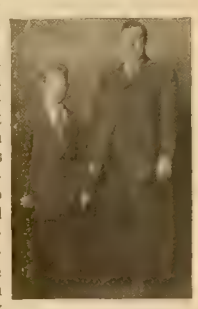
Mr. Exhibitor:—You will get more helpful information by carefully reading one trade paper weekly than by skimming over three or four. The MOVING PICTURE WORLD is the one paper you need.

World Film Branch in Portland.

Manager Geo. G. Endert of the World Film Corporation is opening a sub-branch in Portland, which is to be operated through the Seattle office. Mr. Endert hopes to handle the entire state of Oregon much more advantageously in this way.

A Booking Team Broken.

H. A. Johnson, until recently road man for the Metro pictures in the Northwest, has gone to California. Thus, the famous team of Johnson and Brown is now divorced. Johnson was the biggest traveling film man in the business. He weighs 300. Brown is the shipping clerk at the Metro office in Seattle, and his net weight in pajamas is 100. The eternal (no more) question used to be: "Can Brownie ship as many Metros as Johnson can sell?"



Brown & Johnson.

No More Cashiers.

Manager Ben Ketcham of the Mission theater has a new device installed by which the patron drops his or her coin and a little machine automatically serves him or her with the right ticket. Sort of cafeteria style—what? Just wait on yourself and don't flirt with the cashier.

Organize in Spokane

Managers of Various Theaters in District Hold Meeting and Form Amusement Managers' Association—Ralph Ruffner, President; J. W. Allender, Vice-President; Chas. York, Secretary and Treasurer—The Executive Committee.

By S. Clark Patchin, Spokane Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

SPOKANE, WASH.—Managers of the various theaters in this city at a meeting in the Davenport hotel formed a permanent organization to be called the Amusement Managers' Association of Spokane and elected a moving picture manager, Ralph Ruffner of the Liberty, president.

Other officers chosen were: J. W. Alexander, manager of the Lyric Moving Picture theater, vice-president; Charles W. York, manager of the Auditorium, the home of road shows, secretary and treasurer. The executive committee is composed of Mr. York, chairman; William T. Reed, Casino moving picture theater, Maurice Oppenheimer of the Empress, now a moving picture theater and the Hippodrome which runs two vaudeville acts and five reels of pictures; E. Clarke Walker, manager of the Pantages, a vaudeville house which runs two reels of pictures and B. W. Copeland, manager of the Rex moving picture theater.

At the same meeting committees were appointed to plan for a ball to be given in the Davenport early in February to raise funds to aid the 1916 Interstate Fair. Novel amusements are to be arranged and the stage hands and musicians' unions are arranging to work in conjunction with the managers in handling the affair.

HEAD OF LOCAL UNIVERSAL.

Since coming to Spokane, Wash., more than a month ago to succeed G. A. Hager as manager of the local exchange of the Universal Film & Supply company W. Potter has been active and is rapidly becoming acquainted with the trade in the city and the outside field. He was president of the Exhibitors League in 1911, was formerly in the Portland office of the company and was traveling representative for the Northwest territory for a time and an exhibitor since 1908 until recently. He handled "The Traffic In Souls," and "Submarine," for the Universal company.

W. Potter.

Among the bookings made by him since arriving to handle the Universal service, are the Rex, Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, of which H. E. Dodson is manager. He is also running the Universal service in the Best, Spokane, a three reel production at the Clemmer Saturday mornings for the children's shows. And the Broadway Features were booked through him by R. S. Tucker, manager of the Orpheum theater, Moscow, Idaho.

HOLIDAY FEATURE HITS.

Spokane moving picture houses report a good holiday business. On Christmas the Liberty with an emotional drama and Weber and Fields with travesty and Marguerite Clark in "The Prince And The Pauper," at the Clemmer filled those houses Christmas day.

Starting with the change of bills on Sunday December 26, 1915, the entire week was reported a good one with exceptional bills at the various houses. For the first part of the week the Liberty presented the Triangle production "The Lily And The Rose," with Lillian Gish as the country girl; the Clemmer presented Lou-Tellegen in the Lasky production "The Unknown"; Cyril Maude appeared in the Pathe play "The Greater Will," for one day, followed by "The House of Fear" at the Casino. The Mutual master picture "The Reward," was shown with good results at the Class A; the Universal picture "He Was Only A Bathing Suit Salesman," won laurels at the Rex; "The Vampire's Cure," with Theda Bara was shown at the Hippodrome; "Toilers of the Sea," a Pathe production, was shown at the Majestic together with two reels of a stampede in Montana; and "Friends of the Sea," a comedy, "Those College Girls" and "Infatuation" with Marguerita Fisher were the leading presentations at the Lyric.

The bills for the remainder of the week including New Years' were "Barbara Frietchie" with Mary Miles Minter in the leading role at the Class A; Willard Mack in "Aloha Oe" at the Liberty; "Mr. Crex of Monte Carlo," at the Clemmer; William Farnum and Dorothy Bernard in "A Soldier's Oath," at the Casino; Catherine Osterman in "The Bludgeon," at the Rex; and "The Valkyrie" and "Cohorts" at the Lyric.

"Scandal" scored a hit at the Majestic and "The Path to the Rainbow," drew well at the Empress.

Transcontinental Paramount Girl Invited.

Anita King, "the Paramount Girl," one of the well-known members of the Famous-Lasky-Morosco-Pallas combination, has been invited by Dr. H. S. Clemmer to pay a visit to Spokane early in January.

The Clemmer theater is the home of the Paramount productions. Miss King, if she accepts the invitation, will be the guest of Manager and Mrs. Clemmer and of the theater.

Spokane Brevities.

Marguerite Clark appeared as the pauper and the prince at the same time in "The Prince and the Pauper," the Famous Players' production of the Mark Twain romance, and filled the Clemmer theater at nearly every performance. On the same bill Violet and Blackie Daw appeared in "A Trap for Trapp."

Beverly Bayne and Francis X. Bushman, in "Pennington's Choice," proved a big hit at the Class A theater.

Other pictures which drew well at Spokane theaters were: "The Clemenceau Case," with Theda Bara and William Shay, at the Majestic; "The Alternative," featuring Arthur Maude and Constance Crawley, at the Lyric; "The Supreme Test," with Henrietta Crosman in the leading role at the Rex theater, and the Hippodrome theater exhibited the second of a series of war films, showing the German and Austrian troops in the field. These pictures were well attended.

Faction in Portland, Oregon, Censor Board

Pass Resolution Forbidding Members to Act as Preliminary Viewers—To Bar Passing of Film by Film Men's Representative.

By Abraham Nelson, Portland Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

PORTLAND, OREGON.—The municipal censor board is composed of four women prominent in the city's social circles, one business man who favors censorship and two men interested in the moving picture industry in the city. The ordinance permits them to delegate the viewing of pictures to others. It also gives them the power, and it has been the practice for the members of the board, to occasionally sit as viewers. Mrs. Colwell states that there was a tacit understanding when the film men's representatives were appointed on the board that they were not to sit as viewers and that their purpose on the board was to sit only when the entire body convened to take official action on a picture. The film men contend they are governed by the city ordinance which clearly enumerates their responsibilities.

The open break occurred when William Fox's "Destruction" was viewed and passed by one of the film men's representatives on the board and Mrs. Colwell, ignoring his decision, again viewed the picture and also passed it, taking official cognizance only of her own decision. At a special meeting of the board December 28, a resolution was passed by the censor board that none of its members should sit as preliminary viewers. By this resolution it is apparently sought to deprive the film men's representatives on the board, who are in the minority, of the powers delegated to them by the ordinance.

FIRE ORDINANCE KILLED.

The proposed city ordinance relative to the construction of film exchanges and the handling and storing of films which was commented upon in the MOVING PICTURE WORLD several months ago, came up for final hearing before the city commissioners December 24 and failed to pass. From the time the terms of the proposed ordinance became known to the Portland exchange men, they have vigorously opposed it, declaring that some of its drastic provisions would necessitate the removal of the exchanges from the city. The commissioners agreed with the film men that the proposed ordinance was too severe and new fire regulations, much milder in their effect, are being drafted.

SUNSET'S NEW PUBLICITY MAN.

Jennings & Company have added Chas. E. Couche to the staff of their theater, the Sunset, in the capacity of house manager and publicity man. Mr. Couche is from British Columbia where he owned the Rex at Revelstoke and other moving picture interests. He has introduced several innovations at the Sunset and proposes to make it a first run feature house.

PEACHY COMES TO PORTLAND.

Callers at the exchange of the Film Supply Company of Oregon have had the pleasure of greeting F. S. Peachy who has been installed as manager of the new office of Blue Bird Photoplays, Inc., in the building occupied by the Universal exchange. Mr. Peachy comes highly recommended from San Francisco where he was connected with the Mutual, the Union Film and Supply and the United, being general manager and supervisor of western offices for the last named. Besides organizing and conducting the local Blue Bird exchange, Mr. Peachy will act as road man until his office duties take all of his time.

Posters Damaged.

Sixty-seven days of continued rain with sun shining through the clouds only twice lightened the box office receipts of all theaters in Oregon west of the Cascades and Portland exchanges are complaining about the damage done to their posters. One exchange reports that a great deal of its paper sent out during the past two months has been returned wet and damaged and that its loss by reason thereof has exceeded $250.

Another Exchange Ordinance.

Commissioner R. G. Deick is framing another city ordinance regulating the construction of film exchanges to replace the proposed ordinance that was indefinitely tabled by the Portland city council recently. From the information gathered at the city hall, the difference between the old ordinance tabled and the new one will be in the reduction of the size of ventilators required in film vaults.

Personals and Local Business Notes.

Harry J. Cohen, secretary of Metro Film corporation, passed a few days in Portland en route from San Francisco to New York City. While here he conferred with C. J. Kerr, supervisor of Northwest offices with headquarters in Seattle, who came to Portland to meet Mr. Cohen.

Portland newspaper men and a representative body of the city's ministers were the guests of Louis Christ, manager of the Pickford theater, Portland, at a private showing of "The Warning" which held the boards there commencing Jan 1.

C. G. Guernsey has purchased the Orpheum, Canyonville, Oregon, from Kuhl and Vaugh.

The Palace theater, Philomath, Oregon, has reopened with S. H. Moses in charge and will use Pathe service.

Thomas Miller, who formerly owned the Grand, Camas, Wash., has purchased the Star theater, Brownsville, Oregon, from Susie B. Martin and will open Jan. 1 as the Grand.

S. Bernstein has sold the American theater, Union avenue and Shaver street, Portland, to H. Werple who owns a chain of small houses in the vicinity of Portland.

The Arcade, Cottage Grove, Oregon, will be reopened by L. Armentrout.

N. E. Hansen, of the Opera House, Carlton, Oregon, was a holiday visitor to Portland.

J. H. Baum, road man for the General Film company out of Seattle, spent a few days in Portland en route from Eastern Oregon and Washington, from which territory he reports the usual prosperous times.

IN BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Local Feature Hits.

Manager Creighton of the Globe theater, Vancouver, has booked "The Eternal City" for second run, opening Dec. 27.

J. R. Muir of the Dominion theater did exceptionally good business with Mary Pickford in "Madame Butterfly" last week.

W. P. Dewees of the Rex heard many compliments on the beautiful settings and lighting effects in "The House of a Thousand Candles," which was shown at his house recently.

"Hypocrites" recently played a very successful return engagement at the Monarch theater, Edmonton. But the newspapers ran a cut of Myrtle Stedman and labelled it "Margaret Edwards."

"Graft" has opened at the Lyceum and Starland theaters in Winnipeg, and will shortly start in Vancouver at the Colonial.

The Allen in Calgary has begun the showing of the popular Paramount Travel pictures.

A Request to Exhibitors.

Universal exchanges are now sending the following suggestions along with films shipped to out-of-town customers:

IMPORTANT TO EXHIBITORS.

1. Do not put wrong band on right reel.
2. Do not hold reels for a month.
3. Ship back on first train after show.
4. Do not patch film with nails, pins or railway spikes.
5. Put on the reel bands tight.
6. Ship back all extra pails and boxes promptly.

An Incompetent Censor

Vancouver Still Suffers Under Marked Temperamental Censorship—Manager J. R. Muir of the Dominion Theater Starts New Protest—Some Things That the Censor Has Been Doing Recently.

By E. C. Thomas, Vancouver Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

VANCOUVER, B. C.—A new compaign against the activities of the British Columbia censor has just been inaugurated by J. R. Muir of the Dominion theater in Vancouver, and the matter is now being taken up in the local newspapers. While most of the exchanges have had fewer pictures rejected during the past few weeks, others have now begun to feel the effect of the censor's evident desire to justify his title, and many unreasonable rejections have resulted.

It is claimed by Mr. Muir that the present censor is erratic and inconsistent in his decisions, and quite unfitted to be placed in full charge of the amusements of the entire moving picture public of the province. Numerous instances of his lack of judgment are given, out of a long list of similar offenses.

The Lasky Company's production of "The Man from Home," a particularly wholesome picture, has just been rejected as unfit for public exhibition.

The Essanay-Chaplin comedy, "His Night Out," when submitted by the local office of the General Film, some months ago, was rejected. An English print of the same picture, recently brought in by the Famous Players service, was passed, and is now being shown in Vancouver theaters. The complaint is not that it has not been passed, but that it was not passed when ordinarily submitted. Through this action alone, the General has sustained a direct loss of many hundreds of dollars. "Tess of the Storm Country," Mary Pickford's most popular picture, has been condemned twice.

"In some cases," said Mr. Muir, "the wording of the act (Moving Picture Act) is rigidly adhered to, and in other cases it is entirely ignored. The local censor insists on judging some plays by the story in the novel on which the play was founded, ignoring the fact that the story told on the screen is entirely different. Pictures which have passed every other censor in the United States and Canada are continually being rejected by our censor on some trifling grounds discovered by himself. If it were possible to appeal from his decisions, I am of the opinion that at least 50 per cent. of them would be reversed.

"Why should an industry which has a large pay-roll and so much capital invested in this city by local business men, be at the mercy of one man's opinion?"

So deplorable is the local situation that one leading film exchange, were it not for the fact that it has an especially favorable contract with local exhibitors, so that the latter must bear the loss imposed by rejections, would absolutely withdraw from this territory.

MADE XMAS CHEER.

Many free Christmas entertainments were given at Vancouver picture houses for the benefit of the poor children of the city.

In place of their annual smoker, the members of the Order of United States Commercial Travelers of America gave an entertainment to five hundred children at the Columbia theater, which was donated by the management for the occasion. Special moving pictures were shown and candy was distributed to the children by two Santa Clauses. The B. C. Electric Railway furnished free transportation.

Moving pictures and a varied program given entirely by local child artists were given at the Maple Leaf theater, and many poor children attended. Little Pollie Redfern, who played a week at the Orpheum last month, headlined.

Mrs. Plunkett arranged with Manager Pilling of the Orpheum to entertain the children at that house.

In Victoria, the Rotary Club's Christmas tree entertainment at the Royal Victoria theater was a rousing success, and many really useful presents were given to the children present. Each case was investigated beforehand, and the articles of clothing most required were given to the lucky children.

Santa Claus was present at the Empress in Edmonton on Christmas day, and presented a bag of candy to each child who entered the theater. A large tree was erected in the lobby.

MUTUAL RENEWS ACTIVITY.

The Mutual Film Corporation, which discontinued importing any new subjects for a considerable time during the present year, has again become an active factor in the Canadian market, and Manager Albert E. Vince of the Vancouver office states that local distribution of the "$8,000,000 Program" will commence on Dec. 27. The Orpheum, which was forced to discontinue the Mutual Masterpictures when the supply ran out, will resume the use of one of these subjects each week, probably taking at first some of the good pictures released earlier in the year, but which were never shown here.

NO AMALGAMATION.

The proposed amalgamation of Vancouver moving picture theaters is at a standstill, and there is at present considerable doubt about the culmination of the elaborate plans which had been made. The WORLD representative was informed last week by two men prominently concerned in the merger that they did not care whether it went through or not.

Winnipeg Theatrical Federation.

The Winnipeg Theatrical Federation has lately been formed in the Manitoba city, and comprises in its membership stage employees, musicians and moving picture operators. It is stated that about 80 per cent of the amusement places of the city now display the emblem of the federation, either over the box office or on the screen. Each craft has appointed three delegates, all of whom have been associated with local amusements for a considerable time. Those representing the moving picture operators are Messrs. Armand, Hill and Palmer; stage employees, Spence, Wishart and Robinson; musicians, Lyons, Tallman and Hughes.

A Disgusted Committee.

The Vancouver Social Service Council held a meeting and election of officers recently, and officially acknowledged failure as the lot of the moving picture committee. They had stood behind the censor, they stated, but had not received the support of Attorney General Bowser, as expected.

Operators' Fee Remains at $1.

A readjustment of various trades license fees recently took place at Calgary, but no increase was made in the fee for moving picture operators, which remains at $1.00 per year.

M. Alberts, proprietor of the Westholme Opera house at Prince Rupert, B. C., was a recent visitor to Vancouver, calling on local exchanges.

Calendar of Daily Program Releases

Releases for Weeks Ending January 22 and January 29

(For Extended Table of Current Releases See Pages 502, 504, 506.)

General Film Company.

Current Releases

MONDAY, JANUARY 17, 1916.

	Serial No.
BIOGRAPH—The Miser's Heart (Drama—Re-issue No. 33)	19895
LUBIN—The Little Sister of the Poor (Drama)	19896
SELIG—Why Love Is Blind (Three parts—Drama)	19890-1-2
SELIG—Selig-Tribune News Pictorial No. 5, 1916 (Topical)	19894
VITAGRAPH—Them Was the Good Old Days (Com.)	19893
VITAGRAPH—Mrs. Dane's Daughter (Four parts—Drama—Unit Program)
VITAGRAPH—Bittersweet (Drama—Unit Program)

TUESDAY, JANUARY 18, 1916.

BIOGRAPH—The Angel of Piety Flat (Two parts—Drama)	1990-1
ESSANAY—Book Agent's Romance (Two parts—Western Drama)	19897-8
KALEM—The Tale of a Coat (Comedy)	19899

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 19, 1916.

BIOGRAPH—A Life Chase (Three parts—Drama)	19905-6-7
ESSANAY—Canimated Nooz Pictorial No. 4 (Cartoon Comedy)	19904
ESSANAY—Scenes of Canadian Rockies (Scenic)	19904
KALEM—A Duel in the Desert (No. 9 of the "Stingaaree" Series (Two parts—Drama)	19902-3

THURSDAY, JANUARY 20, 1916.

LUBIN—The Law's Injustice (Two parts—Drama)	19908-9-10
MINA—A Misfit Baron (Comedy)	19912
SELIG—Selig-Tribune News Pictorial No. 6, 1916 (Topical)	19911

FRIDAY, JANUARY 21, 1916.

KALEM—The Sealskin Coat (No. 13 of "The Ventures of Marguerite" Series—Drama)	19916
KNICKERBOCKER STAR FEATURE—House of Mystery (Three parts—Drama)	19913-4-5
VIM—Frenzied Finance (Comedy)	19918
VITAGRAPH—A Telegraphic Tangle (Comedy)	19917

SATURDAY, JANUARY 22, 1916.

ESSANAY—The White Alley (Three parts—Drama)	19919-20-21
KALEM—The Open Track (No. 63 of the "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series—Drama)	19926
LUBIN—Insomnia (Comedy)	19922
SELIG—When the Circus Came to Town (No. 9 of the "Chronicles of Bloom Center"—Comedy)	19927
VITAGRAPH—The Secret Seven (Three parts—Dr.)	19923-4-5

General Film Company.

Advance Releases

MONDAY, JANUARY 24, 1916.

BIOGRAPH—An Adventure in the Autumn Woods (Drama—Biograph Re-issue No. 34).
LUBIN—The Evangelist (Four parts—Drama—Unit Program)
LUBIN—Fooling Uncle (Comedy—Unit Program)
SELIG—Tom Martin—A Man (Drama).
SELIG—Selig-Tribune News Pictorial No. 7, 1916 (Topical).
VITAGRAPH—Britton of the Seventh (Four parts—Military Drama—Unit Program).
VITAGRAPH—Jane's Husband (Comedy).
VITAGRAPH—The Cold Feet Getaway (Comedy).

TUESDAY, JANUARY 25, 1916.

ESSANAY—Title Not Reported.
KALEM—Snoop Hounds (Burlesque-Comedy).

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 26, 1916.

BIOGRAPH—Stronger Than Woman's Will (Three parts—Dr.).
ESSANAY—Title Not Reported.
KALEM—The Villain Worshipper (No. 10 of the "Stingaree" Series—Two parts—Drama).

THURSDAY, JANUARY 27, 1916.

LUBIN—Title Not Reported.
MINA—A Special Delivery (Comedy).
SELIG—Selig-Tribune News Pictorial No. 8, 1916 (Topical).

FRIDAY, JANUARY 28, 1916.

KALEM—The Fate of America (No. 14 of "The Ventures of Marguerite" Series—Drama).
KNICKERBOCKER STAR FEATURE—The Heart Breakers (Three parts—Drama).
VIM—Busted Hearts (Comedy).
VITAGRAPH—Peace at any Price (Comedy).

SATURDAY, JANUARY 29, 1916.

ESSANAY—Title Not Reported.
KALEM—"Tapped Wires" (No. 64 of the "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series—Drama).
LUBIN—Title Not Reported.
SELIG—Apple Butter (No. 10 of the "Chronicles of Bloom Center"—Rural Comedy).
VITAGRAPH—The Ruse (Broadway Star Feature—Three parts—Drama).

COMPLETE AND ACCURATE LISTS of Regular Program and Feature Pictures Can Always Be Obtained from the Pages of the Moving Picture World. These are Published Two Weeks in Advance of Release Days to Enable Exhibitors to Arrange Their Coming Programs. The Stories of the Pictures in Most Cases are Published on a Like Schedule. Each Synopsis is Headed by a Cast, the Players' Names Being in Parenthesis. Lay Out Your Entertainment From the Information in the Moving Picture World and You Will Not Go Wrong.

You can have A PERSONALLY PICKED PROGRAM from

THE GREATER VARIETY
RELEASED WEEKLY IN THE
REGULAR SERVICE
by the Biograph, Edison, Essanay, Kalem, Lubin, Selig and Vitagraph studios.

Our experience, dating from the very infancy of the motion-picture industry, enables us to give you the program best suited to the needs of your theatre.

Come to our office at your first opportunity and let us show you how our units are chosen and how our new big plan of closer co-operation means GREATER profits for you.

A Special Department gives its entire attention to a correct list of releases.

- - - the laboratories are the finest in the world. That's the reason why Biograph photography is supreme

Monday, January 24

An Adventure in the Autumn Woods

with

Mae Marsh — W. Chrystie Miller
Lionel Barrymore — Harry Carey
Charles H. Mailes — Walter Miller

One Reel
BIOGRAPH RE-ISSUE

Directed by
D. W. GRIFFITH

Wednesday, January 26

Stronger Than Woman's Will

with

Vera Sisson — G. Raymond Nye
W. J. Butler — Hector V. Sarno

The THREE REEL BIOGRAPH

Directed by
J. FARRELL MACDONALD

For casts and descriptions of all Biograph releases refer to your copy o
PROGRAMS

BIOGRAPH COMPANY
807 EAST 175TH STREET
NEW YORK, N. Y.

Calendar of Daily Program Releases

Releases for Weeks Ending January 22 and January 29

(For Extended Table of Current Releases See Pages 502, 504, 506.)

Universal Film Mfg. Co.

	Serial No.
SUNDAY, JANUARY 16, 1916.
LAEMMLE—No release this day.
L-KO—Flirting a la Carte (Comedy)	01121
REX—The Little Mascot (Two parts—Drama)	01120
MONDAY, JANUARY 17, 1916.
BROADWAY UNIVERSAL FEATURE—The Man Inside (Five parts—Drama)	01123
NESTOR—Mingling Spirits (Comedy)	01124
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL FEATURE—Graft (No. 6, "The Railroad Monopoly" (Two parts—Drama)	01140
TUESDAY, JANUARY 18, 1916.
GOLD SEAL—The Reward of Chivalry (Three parts—Drama)	01125
IMP—No release this day.
REX—The Silent Member (Drama)	01126
WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 19, 1916.
ANIMATED WEEKLY—No. 202 (Topical)	01129
L-KO—Saving Susie From the Sea (Comedy)	01128
VICTOR—Her Better Self (Two parts—Drama)	01127
THURSDAY, JANUARY 20, 1916.
BIG U—No release this day.
LAEMMLE—Just Plain Folks (Three parts—Rural—Drama)	01130
POWERS—Building Up the Health of a Nation, No. 2 (Educational)	01131
—The Aerial Buds (Vaudeville Act)	01131
FRIDAY, JANUARY 21, 1916.
IMP—Vanity Thy Name Is (Two parts—Com.-Dr.)	01132
NESTOR—Flivvers Famous Cheese-Hound (Comedy)	01134
VICTOR—A Sea Mystery (Drama)	01133
SATURDAY, JANUARY 22, 1916.
BISON—Buck Simon's Puncher (Two parts—Western—Drama)	01135
JOKER—The Whole Jungle Was After Him (Animal—Comedy)	01137
POWERS—Uncle Sam At Work No. 5, "Protecting the Ships At Sea (Educational)	01136
SUNDAY, JANUARY 23, 1916.
LAEMMLE—Her Dream Man (Drama)	01137
L-KO—Mr. McIdiot's Assassination (Two parts—Comedy)	01138
REX—No release this day.
MONDAY, JANUARY 24, 1916.
BROADWAY UNIVERSAL FEATURE—A Soul Enslaved (Five parts—Drama)	01141
NESTOR—Her steady Carfare (Comedy)	01142
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL FEATURE—Graft (No. 7 "America Saved From War"—Two Part Drama)	01158
TUESDAY, JANUARY 25, 1916.
GOLD SEAL—Discontent (Two Parts—Psychological—Drama)	01143
IMP—Hired, Tired and Fired (Comedy)	01144
REX—No release this day.
WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 26, 1916.
ANIMATED WEEKLY—Number 203 (Topical)	01147
L-KO—Knocks and Opportunities (Two parts—Comedy)	01146
VICTOR—Across the Line (Drama)	01145
THURSDAY, JANUARY 27, 1916.
BIG-U—No release this day.
LAEMMLE—The Red Lie (Three parts—Mystery Drama)	01148
POWERS—Sammie Johnsin, Hunter (Cartoon—Comedy)	01149
Fishing River Lampreys (Educational)	01149
FRIDAY, JANUARY 28, 1916.
BIG-U—Nan Good for Nothing (Drama)	01151
LAEMMLE—The Inner Soul (Two parts—Society—Drama)	01150
NESTOR—Flivvers in the Dance of the Shivers (Comedy)	01152
SATURDAY, JANUARY 29, 1916.
BISON—A Daughter of Penance (Two parts—Mexican—Drama)	01153
JOKER—Mrs. Green's Mistake (Comedy)	01155
POWERS—Uncle Sam at Work (No. 6 "Saving Wealth and Building Health"—Educational	01154

Mutual Film Corporation.

	Serial No.
SUNDAY, JANUARY 16, 1916.
AMERICAN—The Gamble (Two parts—Drama)	04401-2
CASINO—Ham and Eggs (Comedy)	04403
MONDAY, JANUARY 17, 1916.
MUTUAL MASTERPICTURE DE LUXE—The Thoroughbred (No. 56—American—Five Parts—Drama).
TUESDAY, JANUARY 18, 1916.
AMERICAN—The Silent Trail (Two parts—Sociological—Drama)	04404-04A
FALSTAFF—Grace's Gorgeous Gowns (Comedy)	04405
WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 19, 1916.
BEAUTY—Johnny's Birthday (Comedy)	04409
THANHOUSER—The Phantom Witness (Three parts—Mystery—Drama)	04406-7-8
THURSDAY, JANUARY 20, 1916.
FALSTAFF—Pete's Persian Princess (Comedy)	04410
MUTUAL MASTERPICTURE DE LUXE—The Five Faults of Flo (Thanhouser, No 57—5 parts—Society—Drama)
MUTUAL WEEKLY—Number 55 (Topical)	04411
VOGUE—Sammy's Dough—Full Romance (Comedy)
FRIDAY, JANUARY 21, 1916.
AMERICAN—The Thunderbolt (Drama)	04416
CUB—Title Not Yet Announced	04415
MUSTANG—Wild Jim Reformer (Two parts—Western—Drama)	04413-4
NOVELTY—Mrs. Bumps Commuter (Comedy)	04417
SATURDAY, JANUARY 22, 1916.
MUTUAL MASTERPICTURE DE LUXE—The Bait (Centaur—5 parts—Drama—No. 58)
SUNDAY, JANUARY 23, 1916.
BEAUTY—Mischief and a Mirror (Comedy)	04419
GAUMONT—See America First, No. 19 "The Dells of the Wisconsin" (Scenic)	04418
Keeping Up With the Joneses (Cartoon—Comedy)	04418
VOGUE—A Baby Grand (Comedy)	04420
MONDAY, JANUARY 24, 1916.
MUTUAL MASTERPICTURE DE LUXE—As a Woman Sows (Gaumont—Five parts—Drama—No. 59)	04421-2
TUESDAY, JANUARY 25, 1916.
AMERICAN—The Man in the Sombrero (Two parts—Society—Drama)	04421-2
FALSTAFF—Lucky Larry's Lady Love (Comedy)	0423
WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 26, 1916.
BEAUTY—Some Night (Comedy)	04427
THANHOUSER—The Burglar's Picnic (Three parts—School—Drama)	04424-5-6
THURSDAY, JANUARY 27, 1916.
FALSTAFF—Beaten at the Bath (Comedy)	04429
MUTUAL MASTERPICTURE DE LUXE—Lord Loveland Discovers America (American—Five parts—Society—Drama—No. 60)
MUTUAL WEEKLY—Number 56 (Topical)	04430
VOGUE—Subject not yet announced.
FRIDAY, JANUARY 28, 1916.
AMERICAN—A Sanitarium Scramble (Comedy)	04434
CLIPPER—The Smugglers of Santa Cruz (Three parts—Seacost—Drama)	04431-2-3
CUB—Subject not yet announced.
SATURDAY, JANUARY 29, 1916.
MUTUAL MASTERPICTURE DE LUXE—Betrayed (Thanhouser — Five parts — Race — Drama—No. 61)

A Move in the Right Direction

YOU can take desks, chairs, tables, etc., and place them where you will, but an organization moves forward only by the power of its service to others.

Twelve thousand five hundred square feet are now required to house the interests of the home office of this organization. This is approximately 5,000 more square feet than the area of the organization's former offices.

The move to larger space, made only nine months after the formation of this company, will be significant to the thoughtful observer.

It indicates, more forcibly than words, that the V. L. S. E. has been consistently moving in the right direction—IN THE INTERESTS OF ITS EXHIBITORS—and it points the way for the far-seeing exhibitor, who has not yet become allied with this business-building institution, to move in the same direction himself.

Such an exhibitor could not do better than to start with the releases for the next fortnight, including as they do:

"GREEN STOCKINGS," the popular Broadway stage success, with LILLIAN WALKER.—A five part VITAGRAPH BLUE RIBBON Feature.

"NO GREATER LOVE," a study of a woman's heart, with Sarah Bernhardt's successor—REGINA BADET.—A five part SELIG RED SEAL Play.

"CAPTAIN JINKS," the never-ending success of the late Clyde Fitch, with the captivating stage star, ANN MURDOCK.—A five part ESSANAY Feature.

"GODS OF FATE," a red-blooded drama of modern industrial life, with Richard Buhler and Rosetta Brice.—A five part LUBIN SOVEREIGN Play.

V. L. S. E. Inc.

Stories of the Films

General Film Company

KALEM.

GUARDIAN ANGELS (Jan. 11).—The cast: Bud (Bud Duncan); Spike (Jack MacDermott); Doughbags (Charles Mulgro); Ethel (Ethel Tears). Author—Howard Irving Young. Producer, William Beaudine.

Bud and his pal are hired to take care of Doughbags and his "little girl" Ethel. Doughbags is neglected while they try to amuse the "little girl," so their jobs soon end in a whirlwind finish.

THE PURIFICATION OF MULFERA (No. 8 of the Stingaree Series; Two Parts; Jan. 12.)—The cast: Stingaree (True Boardman); Howie (Paul C. Hurst); Ethel Porter (Marin Sais); Carmichael (Thomas Lingham); Bishop Methuen (Frank Jonasson); his chaplain (Edward Clisbee); Inspector (Joseph Barber). Produced by James W. Horne.

Bishop Methuen and his chaplain set out to evangelize Mulfera, "the toughest station in Australia." They are waylaid by Stingaree, who, with Howie, then take their places in the mission to Mulfera. There is comedy in the scenes, showing the bushrangers "purifying" Mulfera, but it ends in tense cross-play of action when they are captured, only to escape with the aid of Ethel.

THE TRICKSTERS (No. 12 of The Ventures of Marguerite; Jan. 14).—The cast: Marguerite (Marguerite Courtot); Tom Bailey (Roland Bottomley); Frank Whitney (Robert Ellis); Peter Enright (Richard Purdon); Jerry Holden (Homer Buress). Author—Otto Hoffman. Produced by R. E. Cummings.

Marguerite is to be the bride in an amateur theatrical. Frank, whose offer of marriage she has refused, though he is her guardian's choice, plays the bridegroom, while Tom, the favored one, is in the role of minister. Holden, a card sharp, schemes so that Tom appears in a bad light when he fails to arrival at the rehearsal, and Marguerite, hurt, consents to Frank's request, "Let's get a real minister and be married now." Tom succeeds in escaping from Holden's accomplices and reaches the scene in time to foil the tricksters.

THE HAUNTED STATION (Episode No. 62 of The Hazards of Helen; Jan. 15).—The cast: Operator at "Haunted Station" (Helen Gibson); Joe Wood (Robyn Adair); Chief Despatcher (Clarence Burton). Author—E. W. Matiack. Producer, James Davis.

A fall from a semaphore weakens Wood's mind and when he later disappears circumstances point to suicide. His "ghostly" appearances make the post known as the "Haunted Station," and Helen is appointed as a last resort after many others have quit. Wood suddenly appears and pursues her. Helen flees down the track to the drawbridge, only to find it half elevated. Her frantic cries cause a workman on the structure to throw down a rope, which she climbs hand over hand. Wood follows and there is a struggle while swaying in midair, which ends when Wood slips and falls through space to the river.

A BARGAIN
THE BIGGEST VALUE TO MANUFACTURERS, EXHIBITORS, EXCHANGE MEN AND OPERATORS IS THE
MOVING PICTURE WORLD
SEND YOUR SUBSCRIPTIONS TO-DAY DIRECT TO 17 MADISON AVENUE, NEW YORK CITY
DOMESTIC $3.00 PER YEAR
CANADA $3.50 PER YEAR
FOREIGN $4.00 PER YEAR

VITAGRAPH.

BRITTON OF THE SEVENTH (Unit Program; Four Part; Jan. 24).—The cast: Lieut. Tony Britton (Darwin Karr); Gen. Custer (Ned Finley); Capt. Yates (Lionel Belmore); Capt. Granson (Harry Northrup); "Rain-in-the-Face" (Logan Paul); Barbara (Eleanor Woodruff); Mrs. Granson (Eulalie Jensen); Otonowah (Marion Henry); Mrs. Eversley (Rose Tapley). Author—Cyrus Townsend Brady. Produced by Lionel Belmore.

For the love of Otonawah, an Indian maiden, "Rain-in-the-Face," an Indian chieftain, kills and scalps two white men belonging to the Seventh Cavalry, at Fort Lincoln, Dakota. Tony Britton, first lieutenant of the Seventh, is sent with his command to arrest "Rain" and, despite the tribe's offer of any other three Indians, brings back the murderer and jails him. Thus started one of the prime causes of the Custer massacre. Mrs. Frances Granson, married to a worthless brute, is in love with Tony, and he imagines himself with her until he meets Barbara Manning, a Chicago girl, and falls really in love.

Mrs. Granson wants Tony to elope with her, but in a note he refuses. This note gets into her husband's hands and he makes trouble. Before General Custer, the commanding officer, he accuses Tony of conduct unbecoming an officer, and Tony cites the note as proof of his innocence. Mrs. Granson is wired about it, but of course she knows nothing of any note, and Tony is forced to resign to avoid a court martial. Trouble with the Indians has followed ever since the "Rain-in-the-Face" incident, and Tony joins Old Man Meekins as a scout. They come across a horde of over a thousand Indians on the warpath and, knowing that Custer knows nothing of their presence, they hasten to him with the news.

Major Reno is sent with four troops to attack the Indians in the rear, but his fatal hesitation results in the tragic Battle of the Big Horn and the annihilation of Custer's brave command. Before he dies Mrs. Granson's husband gives General Custer the note written by Tony and it is found in the brave General's hand when—too late—Reno's command comes up. Tony is reinstated in the Seveth, with apologies, and some time afterward he and Barbara meet at Fort Lincoln and all ends well.

JANE'S HUSBAND (Jan. 24; Unit Program). The cast: Jane (Edith Storey); Ben, the Tramp (Thomas R. Mills). Author—Elizabeth R. Carpenter. Produced by George D. Baker.

Jane is looking for a husband. She is a stunner for looks, but her get-up is so funny no one takes her seriously, and the handsome R. F. D. driver scorns her proffered love. But Jane is of a determined disposition, so when she discovers that a tramp has broken into her kitchen she has hopes. Sneaking in on him, she cleverly traps him in a closet, then gives him the choice of marrying her or being arrested.

But Jane is no fool, and brings a minister to the house while the tramp is still locked in. They are married and Ben makes the best of matters. He sits down to the table and eats everything in sight, but happens to drop a remark to the effect that he "hopes his wife does not find him out." Horrified, Janes drives him from the house, and he strolls into the village bar, where he imbibes much liquid courage. Jane has to sic the dog on him to drive him away. Watching her "man's" rapidly disappearing figure, Jane tearfully promises herself to remain single.

THE COLD FEET GETAWAY (Jan. 24).—The cast: Itsky (Harry Fisher); Mr. Bumptious (Albert Roccardi). Author—C. Graham Baker. Produced by C. Jay Williams.

Hoozis, the poker fiend, is unable to quit the game while he is a winner, and invariably has to stick until he goes broke. He tries various ruses, but his companions refuse to fall for them and he has to stay to the bitter end. Itsky, the inventor, finally comes to his assistance with the following invention: On a table in a room adjoining the poker room a candle is set in a socket, with a string tied about it at a certain distance below the wick.

The cord leads through a series of pulleys to a lever which, when the cord burns through, drops, explodes a small balloon and releases a bellows attachment which blows a police whistle loud enough to be heard in the street. Hoozis is delighted with it, tries it out in a game and it works beautifully. The explosion, followed so quickly by the police whistle, sends the players flying helter skelter from the room while Hoozis is winning heavily.

But at the next game the players combine to put one over on Hoozis while he is adjusting his apparatus, with the result that he loses out. Then the cops are attracted by the police whistle and enter the building on the run. Excitement runs high for a while, but it all ends up in a laugh and good-natured fun.

Have You Read Page 489?

PEACE AT ANY PRICE (Jan. 28).—The cast: Featuring Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew. Author—Harry Southwell. Produced by Sidney Drew.

Henry Adams has no faith in that newspaper article claiming the boys will be out of the trenches by Christmas, but his wife refuses to be drawn into a discussion. Antonio Marchesa, who is Mrs. Adams' music teacher, calls, and Henry falls asleep. In his dream he learns that war has been declared on this country and everyone must prepare to defend their homes and families. Rushing home, Henry organizes the family and the servants into a brigade, arms them with the children's nursery toys and elects himself general.

Many thrillingly funny battles follow, during which brave General Adams charges the rascally General Marchesa. Both are in Fords, and amidst the din of battle Henry finds himself lunging forward straight for the other Ford. Arrived at the first line of trenches a collision seems inevitable, when a bearded figure arises from the trench and announces, "Boys, there ain't no war; the soldiers all went home last Christmas!" He pushes both Fords away from him and, after a dizzy backward ride, Henry awakes to find himself back in the room, still trying to steer the imaginary Ford. It takes the combined efforts of his wife and Marchesa to quiet him.

THE RUSE (Three Parts; Broadway Star Feature—Jan. 29).—The cast: John Cottrell (Joseph Kilgour); Morgan Dallas (Harry Morey); Edgar Langdon (Denton Vane); Dr. Carlton (Charles Kent); Emily Cottrell (Naomi Childers); Mrs. Effingham (Helen Pillsbury). Author and producer, Eugene Mullin.

At a lawn party given by Mr. John Cottrell and his young wife Emily, Morgan Dallas, an old college friend of the former, appears to cast the first cloud upon the domestic happiness of the hitherto devoted couple. Through a combination of strange circumstances, in which Emily's scapegrace brother, Edgar, plays a prominent part and the young wife's too great confidence in the unscrupulous Dallas cause her husband to seriously suspect her fidelity.

Dallas uses his knowledge that Edgar is a crook to further his friendship with Mrs. Cottrell, and gradually his sinister influence impresses her so that she begins to fear him. John is a man of the world and notes these things, worrying greatly over it. Finally he tells Dr. Carlton, his friend, of a ruse he has determined to adopt to test his wife. With the doctor's aid John is brought home as if from an accident and the doctor tells Emily that her husband's mind is a hopeless blank. The test commences for Emily, and it is a severe one, for Dallas soon shows out in his true colors by seizing her in his arms and forcibly kissing her.

She struggles free, but he follows her to her boudoir. John, who, while pretending not to know what is going on, arouses and, knocking at the door, demands admittance. Inside a dark figure has entered through the window, and as Dallas grabs Emily he stops the rascal at the point of a gun. It is Edgar. Then things happen quickly. Dallas, seeing he is trapped, puts up a fight and tries to kill John. Edgar shoots and kills Dallas; then Emily helps her brother to escape, reveals all to John and the happy termination of the affair dispels forever the cloud which threatened to wreck the Cottrell home, bringing happiness to all concerned.

ESSANAY.

THE BOOK AGENT'S ROMANCE (Two Parts; Jan. 18).—The cast: The book agent (G. M. Anderson) the capitalist (Lee Willard); his wife (Eva Heazlett); their daughter (Ruth Saville); butler (Lloyd Bacon).

The book agent meets the daughter of a capitalist on a street car when she accidentally ties her shoelace to his. A few days later the girl's father advertises for a butler. A gang of crooks send one of their number to apply for the position. He is accepted. The capitalist gives his wife the choice between a trip abroad and a pearl necklace. She first decides to take the pearls, then changes her mind. They return the necklace and depart with their daughter for their trip abroad. Immediately upon their departure the butler telephones the jeweler, telling him the capitalist wishes the necklace sent out again. The rest of the gang then hide in the house, prepared to rob the messenger. The book agent arrives at the house with his case. He is mistaken for the messenger and attacked. He is in a desperate struggle with the gang when the capitalist and his family return, having missed their boat. The daughter recognizes the book agent and admires his courage. This admiration later results in their marriage.

THE CANIMATED NOOZ PICTORIAL, NO. 4. Cartoon by Wallace A. Carlson (Jan. 19).—This is a split reel release, containing five hundred feet of animated cartoons, part of which are a burlesque on the current topics of the day, and the remainder some of the adventures of Dreamy Dud. Among the topics reviewed this week are the christening of a big dreadnaught by the beautiful little daughter of Admiral Bull, also some of the marvelous feats performed by Luke McGluck, son of old man McGluck, the champion pistol shot of Cacti County, Arizona. Luke posed especially for the Canimated Nooz. The rest of the cartoon is devoted to one of Dreamy Dud's nightmares. He attempts to shave himself with his father's razor and while he lathers his face the razor grows to an enormous size and comes to life. Dud wakes up just as the razor is about to cut him in two.

The remainder of the reel contains scenes taken in the Canadian Rockies.

THE WHITE ALLEY (Three Parts; Jan. 22).—Justine Arnold gives a house party at his summer home. Among his guests are Ernest Chapin, Cambell Crosby, his cousin and attorney, and Emery Gale, Crosby's law partner. All three fall in love with Dorothy Duncan, Arnold's fiancee, and she flirts with them. Crosby and Gale return to the city. The following night Arnold discovers Chapin asking Dorothy to marry him. Arnold tells Dorothy to consider their engagement broken. She retires to her room, leaving the two men in a heated quarrel. Next morning Arnold is missing.

Several days elapse before his body is found in a huge brick oven in the basement. At the inquest evidence is introduced which implicates Dorothy, and she is accused. Chapin, to shield her, declares he killed Arnold. He is put in prison. Stone, a detective, is hired by Dorothy. The discovery of a white alley by Stone leads to a confession by Cambell Crosby. On the night Arnold and Chapin quarreled Crosby had returned from the city and gained entrance to the house from the roof, lowering himself through a crevice which he and Arnold had played in when boys. After stabbing Arnold he had disposed of his body in the brick oven. His object was to gain possession of Arnold's estate, to which he was sole heir. As he finishes his confession he takes poison.

VIM.

POKES AND JABBS IN BUSTED HEARTS (Jan. 28).—Peggy Plump, the good-natured daughter of old farmer Plump, never had but one beau. Many times she tried for more, but father always prevented. Pokes, after many days' travel in his box car, arrives at Pumpkinville, the home of the Plumps. Peggy is milking. Pokes passes and after a rather rough flirtation they become friends. Peggy takes Pokes home with her.

Marks, the village lawyer, is at the Plump house paying Farmer Plump a large sum of money. Peggy and Pokes arrive and Pokes sees the money through the window. Immediately he wants to get it and persuades Peggy to invite him in the house. Once inside, Pokes hypnotizes Peggy and she takes the money. Pokes and Peggy elope. When they arrive in the city Pokes sees a fairer charmer and deserts Peggy. Flat broke, Peggy gets a job in Jabbs' restaurant as a waitress. The cook and waiter become infatuated with her, much to the discomfort of the dishwasher. A rough house ensues and is at its height in the kitchen when Pokes and his fair charmer enter the restaurant to have dinner. Peggy is thrown into the dining room and when her eyes meet those of Pokes she recognizes the man who deserted her. She seizes the opportunity and gives Pokes a sound thrashing, much to the amusement of Jabbs and the rest of the diners. Runt, Peggy's first love, arrives just in time in the restaurant in search of Peggy to receive her in his arms after the fray and soothes her busted heart.

KNICKERBOCKER STAR FEATURE

PAYING THE TOLL (Three Parts—Jan. 7).—Horace Stannage, Jr., and Lloyd Strong are two aspirants for the hand of Grace Waters, the belle of their home town—with Strong the decided favorite. Strong goes to the city to market his invention for canal dredging, which proves impractical and worthless.

After eating breakfast at a restaurant near his lodgings, Lloyd finds his pockets have been picked and he is penniless. The lunch man, not believing his story, calls a policeman, who starts to take him to the station house, when Strong Stannage, Jr. (who has come to the city and been appointed assistant district attorney) appears on the scene and pays the bill. Strong, upon returning to his rooms, finds an open wallet on his table, and just as he picks it up he is astonished to be confronted by the same officer, who places him under arrest for assault and robbery.

Upon circumstantial evidence Strong is convicted and sentenced to five years. After paying his toll he finds employment, but the police hound him and have him discharged. In desperation he listens to a former convict, and finally agrees to take part in a burglary that night. The victim of the burglary proves to be his former rival, Stannage, who has married the sweetheart of his childhood days.

Lloyd witnesses Stannage abusing his wife. Unable to restrain himself, he steps from his hiding place and confronts them. The husband accuses Lloyd of being there for the purpose of stealing his wife; but Lloyd, laying aside his gun, tries to convince him his sole purpose was theft. Stannage secures the discarded revolver and 'phones the police. At this moment Lloyd's pal shoots Stannage from behind a curtain, and entering the room urges Lloyd to escape, which he refuses to do. The police arrive just as the fatal shot is fired and immediately surround the house. The murderer attempts escape by way of a window, only to run into the arms of the waiting police. Lloyd is apprehended inside the house, but is exonerated by the wife, who states he is "my chauffeur."

LUBIN.

THE CITY OF FAILING LIGHT (Four Parts; Unit Program; Jan. 10).—The cast: John Gray and David Gray (Herbert Fortier); Gray's secretary (Leslie Austen); John Gray's wife (Octavia Handworth); Packard (William H. Turner); his wife (Mrs. William Carr); Packard's baby (Dorothy DeWolff). Written by Anthony P. Kelly. Produced by George W. Terwilliger.

John Gray, head of the Consolidated Lighting Company, lies near death in the hospital. He and his wife have drifted apart, and merely live together as a matter of form seldom seeing each other. John Gray has a brother, David, his double in appearance, but loving and kind and carefree. David, in a ward at the hospital, has just been discharged. John Gray's linemen deliver an ultimatum to his secretary. The secretary is in a quandary. He calls up the hospital. The doctors are at a loss what to do until one of them catches sight of David. He is struck by the strange resemblance. He asks if he knows John Gray. David informs him that he is his brother. The doctor, realizing that if John Gray is disturbed his life will be greatly endangered, has a scheme. Telling David the state of affairs, he asks him to pose as John. David finally agrees.

In the meantime the delegates of the union, headed by Packard, prepare to cripple the city's lighting by cutting the wires. David is called into the home of Packard by Packard's wife. He finds Packard's baby dying, with signs of poverty everywhere. He sends for a doctor, and he and the doctor watch over the baby. Throughout the city the wires are being cut. The light in the home of Packard goes out, leaving the room in darkness. They must have light. A candle is discovered, and David holds it while the doctor works to save the baby's life. Packard rushes in to inform his wife of their success, when he sees David, who he thinks is John Gray. David tells him that he is John Gray and that the demands will be met. There he issues orders for the power to be shut off, and Packard, in turn, issues orders for the men to splice all cut wires. The baby recovers.

David Gray goes to the home of his brother. The wife thinks David to be John and greets him indifferently. David takes his brother's boy, who has run to him, in his arms and kisses him. The woman is startled and, thinking and hoping that he has changed for the better, goes to him later in the library, and there David realizes the great love of this woman for his brother. John Gray recovers and starts for home. There he finds David with Mrs. Gray and the boy. David, rising, sees John watching and noiselessly cross to him tells him to take his place and steals up the stairs. John Gray, now a changed man, seats himself beside his wife, and together they watch the smouldering flames, while David steals toward the door and back to his old world.

EXHIBITORS!

Your Patrons Want to Read the Stories of Pictures Forming Your Program.

To Enable You to Furnish Your Clientele with This Information We Publish These Synopses Two Weeks in Advance of Release Date.

We also Realize That the Popularity of Different Actors and Actresses Has Pulling Power with a Great Many in Your Audience.

For This Reason We Give with Each Story a Cast of the Players Whenever Received.

Our Descriptions Are Concise, and Our Lists of Releases Are Complete and Accurate.

The Moving Picture World is and always has been issued in the interest of the Exhibitor primarily, and We Desire to Make It More Helpful to Each of You Whenever Possible. Let us Hear From You with Suggestions.

A BATHTUB MYSTERY (Jan. 10).—The cast: Barnabee (Dave Don); His wife (Florence Williams); traveling salesman (George Egan). Written and produced by Edwin McKim.

Mr. Barnabee and his wife, Nora, have many quarrels over her pet dog and at last in desperation he orders her to get rid of the dog. She refuses and Barnabee, in passing a vacant lot, sees a boy with a goat tied to a cart and decides to buy the goat. He returns with the goat, but his wife orders it out of the house. They quarrel and Barnabee then takes the goat into the bedroom. His wife follows and the quarrel is continued. Barnabee refuses to take the goat away unless Nora gets rid of the dog. This she refuses to do, and rushes out of the room in a rage. Taking the bedclothes with her, she sleeps in the dining room all night.

In the morning Nora continues the quarrel. As Barnabee is shaving, he accidentally pushes Nora into the bathtub. She screams and he goes to the bedroom to finish shaving. Nora decides to give Barnabee a scare and decides to feign drowning. Barnabee not hearing any noise from the bathroom, goes in and, seeing Nora, thinks she is dead. He dresses quickly and takes a train for a distant town.

Six months elapse and we see Barnabee as a waiter in a cheap restaurant and always afraid that he will be found out. He is recognized by a traveling salesman from his home town, who tells Barnabee that his wife is alive and well and has been looking for him for months. The friend gives Barnabee money to get home with. In the meantime Nora has taken in boarders, and her friend, Patsey, is in love with the star boarder. As Nora fancies him herself, she becomes jealous and decides to give him a scare to arouse sympathy for herself from him. Nora instructs the maid to tell the star boarder to come upstairs at once, as the lady of the house is drowning. Barnabee returns, goes upstairs, and Nora, hearing his approach, thinks that he is the star boarder and jumps into the bathtub, full of water. Barnabee upon seeing her is horrified and rushes out, yelling like a lunatic. Nora recognizes his voice, pursues and catches him at the foot of the stairs, where everything is explained.

THE LOST BRACELET (Jan. 10).—The cast: Happy Bob Warren (Donald Bradbury); John Lawrence (William J. Spencer); Opal (Helen Wolcott); Jane (Francelia Billington); Jerold Arnold (Jay Morley). Written by Julian Louis Lamothe. Produced by Melvin Mayo.

Daybreak. Happy Bob Warren, "the dusty gentleman," is awakened from a peaceful slumber in the open by the bell on the neck of an inquisitive cow. He rises and goes on his happy way. John Lawrence, a retired merchant, has a beautiful home in a Western city. His daughter, Opal, delights in humbling Jane, a poor relation and an orphan since childhood. Jane's position in the household is that of a servant. Anxious to please, Jane incurs Opal's displeasure and is sent to her garret room. Opal has a guest named Jerrold Arnold. Jerrold seeks Opal and the latter suggests an automobile ride. Jane is grudgingly taken along.

On the road the machine stops and Jerrold is unable to fix it. Happy Bob comes up and in a jiffy remedies matters. Jane is pleasantly impressed with the stranger. With little thanks from the occupants, the automobile is driven away. Happy Bob looks down and discovers a costly bracelet. He puts it in his pocket, hoping to meet one of the party later.

Back home Opal discovers her loss and accuses Jane. Jane is vindicated when Happy comes and explains matters. Jerrold is seen furtively putting his hand into his pocket. Mr. Lawrence invites the stranger to lunch, and Happy tells why he became a wanderer. It is the old story of the wife going off with "her true mate." Happy predicts dire results if he ever finds the man. In the afternoon Happy, going to the house in search of Jerrold for Opal, discovers the former robbing Lawrence's safe. He follows Jerrold, and sees the latter place the money in a suitcase. When Jerrold leaves the room Happy takes out the money. Jerrold induces Opal to elope with him. Lawrence discovers his loss and Happy leads him to Jerrold's room. They see that the bird has flown, and then Happy makes a discovery. He sees the letter Jerold had been reading that morning. It is from his own wife, entreating Jerrold to come to her, as she is dying. Happy crumples the letter and in a few moments the pursuit is on. At the station Jerrold goes to pay for the tickets and discovers only bits of newspapers. Before he can turn away Happy, Jane and Lawrence rush up. Happy is ready to strangle Jerrold, but Jane stays him, and he allows the law to take its course. Opal returns home with her father.

THE OLD WATCHMAN (Two Parts; Jan. 11).—The cast: Tim Carrigan (Melvin Mayo); Hazel (Helen Eddy); Alfred Morton (Jay Morley); Donald Morton (Robert Gray); Tom Bowen (George Routh); Mat Dugan (L. C. Shumway). Written by Julian Louis Lamothe. Directed by Leon D. Kent.

Old Tim Carrigan has been watchman of the Morton factory for forty years. He is highly respected by his employer, Alfred Morton, and often has a quiet game of pinochle with him at night. At home Tim's chief interest is in his granddaughter, Hazel, a sweet girl of seventeen. Hazel is loved by Mat, a young workman in the factory, and Tim watches the romance with interest. Then the factory owner dies, and the son, Donald, takes charge. The workmen are not pleased with the change, but Tim argues stoutly for his old friend's son, until Donald shows that he has no interest in his father's sentiments.

The position of manager is given to Tom Bowen, a junior professor, who was Donald's chum at college. Bowen is a spendthrift and indulges in much dissipation. Hazel goes to collect her grandfather's pay one day and meets Bowen. She is instantly attracted to the handsome stranger, and he soon has her in his power. Mat is disconsolate at losing his sweetheart. One night Hazel waits for Bowen in vain. She sees him with another girl and follows them. Tim at the factory sees Bowen, and smiles reflectively, "That is the kind of man the new manager is!" Then he is horror-stricken a moment later to see Hazel pass by. He goes on after them. Bowen and the woman come to a cafe and Hazel enters after them. She bitterly upbraids Bowen, but he scorns her, and Mat, who is in the place, rushes to lead her away. About this time Tim enters. He learns the state of affairs and is ready to throttle Bowen, but the latter fells him. Hazel rushes off in the excitement and Mat leads the broken old man out.

The next day young Donald discovers that the factory is losing money. The truth is that Bowen has been stealing from the cash and padding the expense account. When questioned Bowen declares that they are paying the workmen too much and announces a large cut in the wages. When the workmen hear this they are indignant, and Tim makes a fervent plea in their behalf. Angered, Bowen discharges him. Tim can scarcely believe he should be so summarily dealt with, but in all his sorrow he determines not to let Hazel know. When he comes home, bringing her some fruit, he discovers that she has killed herself. The blow shatters Tim's mind, and in his great grief he imagines that she is asleep. Bowen at the factory overhears Donald send for an accountant to examine the books. He determines to rob the safe and make a getaway that night while there is no watchman on the job.

The night is stormy. Bowen enters the factory and overcomes Donald, who has been looking over the books and is now calling for the police. Bowen is robbing the safe when there is a flash of lightning, and he sees Tim outside. The old watchman, crazed, has not been able to overcome the habit of forty years, and again is on duty. He sees Bowen robbing the safe and there is a terrific struggle between them, but Tim is finally shot and fatally wounded. Bowen is about to make his getaway when the police enter, having heard the shots over the telephone. Tim dies, happy in the performance of his duty, and with his last thoughts for Hazel.

THE BOND WITHIN (Three Parts; Jan. 13).—The cast: Captain Riuz (George Routh); Elsie Moore (Adda Gleason); Fidele (Henry Russell); Inez (Joyce Wardlow); Lieut. Scott (L. C. Shumway); Maria Dominguez (Adelaide Bronti). Written by Julian Louis Lamothe. Produced by Edward Sloman.

Elsie Moore is loved by Tom Scott. Tom is to inherit a large fortune if he does not marry before his twenty-fifth birthday. Because of the fortune that will be theirs the marriage is postponed. Elsie, on a visit to her country home, takes her old doll in her arms. It dissolves into a tiny baby and her heart is filled with joy. But, gazing at her hand, she sees no wedding ring. She hurries to tell Tom the news, but finds that he is on his way to Cuba. Her letters are unanswered, because for months he is at the point of death. Sooner than bear her shame alone, Elsie goes to the far-off city of San Diego, and there her baby boy is born. She leaves him in the care of the kind Mexican woman, Maria, promising to return. The war over, Scott comes into his inheritance and hastens to Elsie. They are married and leave for San Diego immediately. They find Maria has returned to Mexico, taking their child with her. Elsie is remorseful, knowing that she has sold her child for gold. Then follows a fruitless search in Mexico.

Years pass. It is 1914. Elsie, through constant brooding, is mentally unbalanced. Scott, now a commanding officer, goes to Mexico. Elsie, prompted to search for her son again, leaves by the inland route. In Mexico, Fidele, as Elsie's son is called, is betrayed into the Mexican Army; but since his childhood his dreams have been of America. Elsie is held up by the Mexican troops and condemned to be shot as an American spy. Fidele saves her, however, but she does not recognize him. Then somes the American capture of Vera Cruz. Elsie is barricaded in a house. Old Maria is in prison. Scott leads the Americans through the streets. Fidele is on a roof with the Mexican snipers. When the Mexican next to him jestingly says that he is going to pick the American officer Fidele looks in alarm at Scott. Some irresistible force causes him to stay the Mexican's hand; the latter starts a struggle with the boy. Maria from her cell sees all.

The Mexicans defeated, the work of removing the dead and wounded is begun. Elsie rushes out of her hiding place to her husband; he is amazed to find her in Mexico. Old Maria is allowed to leave the prison to find Fidele. She carries the boy across the street and comes face to face with Elsie. The latter asks for her son, and Maria points to Fidele. As Elsie weeps over the dying boy he looks up tenderly and says, "Something within me stirred when I first saw you. Now I understand why——" As Elsie kisses him he passed away.

A SKATE FOR THE BRIDE (Jan. 15).—The cast: Wilkens (Billie Reeves); his fiancee (Carrie Reynolds); his three friends (Arthur Matthews, Jack Delson and John Shermer). Written by Mark Swan. Produced by Earl Metcalfe.

Wilkins is happy, naturally, for it is his wedding day. The ceremony is to take place at 2 p. m. Wilkens decides that his outfit will not be complete unless he has a new pair of shoes. He buys a pair of patent leather "kicks," and goes proudly home with them. As usual, when one is in a hurry one makes mistakes. Thus did the errand boy. He mixed the parcels, and Wilkens finds that the shoes he brought home are exactly three sizes too small. This wouldn't have made any great difference had Wilkens not sent his old shoes to the cobbler's to be repaired. Even these are denied him, for the valet, who was carrying the old shoes, is robbed of them by a husky tramp. As 2 o'clock draws near Wilkens is in despair, for stocking feet are not popular at a wedding.

His three friends, Tom, Dick and Harry, search the town in vain for shoes that will fit Wilkens. Fate is again unkind, for it is Saturday and the shops are all closed. Wilkens eventually has a stroke of good luck through Turner, proprietor of the local skating rink, who loans him a pair of roller skates. Wilkens arives at the bride's house after a hard tussle with the skates, for during the two miles intervening between his bride's house and his own he goes through more exciting moments than he ever did before. Eventually the wedding bells ring out and Wilkens is glad of a chance to rest.

THE EVANGELIST (Unit Program; Four Parts; Jan. 24).—The cast: Christabel Nuneham (Gladys Hanson); Philip, her husband (Ferdinand Tidmarsh); Sylvanus Rebbings (George Soule Spencer); Rex Allen (Jack Standing). the Bishop of Trentistown (George Clarke); the Rev. Joseph Cushway (Peter Lang); Deacon Shergold (Arthur Matthews); Ione Nuneham (Eleanor Dunn); Phoebe Ransford (Rosetta Brice). Adapted by Clay M. Greene. Produced by Barry O'Neil.

Christabel Nuneham, wife of Philip Nuneham, a contractor for hydraulic power plants, because of her husband's absorption in business, feels that she is neglected and forgotten. She accepts the attentions of Rex Allen, a young lieutenant in the Guards. When Allen's regiment is called to Africa suddenly, he persuades Christabel to accompany him as far as Southampton to bid him farewell. After bidding Allen farewell Christabel meets with an accident near the scene where Sylvanus Rebbings, the celebrated evangelist, is holding a meeting. Rebbings assists Christabel to a chemist's, where her wounds are dressed, and later she proceeds to her home.

Sylvanus Rebbings, the evangelist, and his daughter, Naomi, are greatly beloved by the people of Trentistown, but Rebbings is thoroughly disliked by the clergy because of his radical views and of his success in securing the largest congregation of the country. Phoebe Ransford, a poor shopgirl, an attendant at the meeting held by Rebbings, is wronged by Stout, the foreman of the factory where she works, and is later deserted by him, even as he deserted his family for her. She determines to end her life, but is prevented by Rebbings.

Christabel is one day discovered in the arms of Allen by her husband, Philip, and he cast her off, retaining the custody of their daughter. Later Philip and Christabel are reunited by Rebbings, who convinces Philip that true happiness can only be secured through a strict observance of the Scriptures and all their teachings.

FOOLING UNCLE (Unit Program; Jan. 24).—The cast: Uncle (Dave Don); Mr. Brown (Kempton Greene); Mrs. Brown (Patsy De Forest); Mrs. Smith (Alice Mann); Mr. Smith (John Sherman). Written and produced by Edwin McKim.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown are childless, and when their uncle, who dotes on children, tells them in a letter that his fortune, which he intended to leave to them, will go to the Home for Indigent Cats unless they do have children, the Browns are in despair. Mr. and Mrs. Smith are visiting the Browns for a week-end and, having a beautiful baby, it was only natural that the Browns should want to borrow the Smiths' baby and pass it off on uncle as their own child.

Uncle sent word that he would arrive that day. Of course, Uncle mistakes Mrs. Smith for Mrs. Brown and vice versa, and for a while no one knows who is who, or whose child it is. The tangle is finally straightened out, and uncle is "wised up" to the fact that it was all done for his pleasure. After a little judicious blarney and a few friendly pats on the back by the women, uncle falls for the palaver, and the Browns "cop the kale," and Baby Smith goes back to its own trundle bed.

THE LITTLE SISTER OF THE POOR (Jan. 17).—The cast: Sister Theresa (Francelia Billington); La Belle Corinne (Helen Wolcott); Bert Wilson (Donald Bradbury); Duval (Jay Morley). Written by Julian Louis Lamothe. Produced by Melvin Mayo.

Sister Theresa is known as "The Little Sister of the Poor." Alone in her room she ponders over a locket containing a man's picture, thereby showing that she has not fully renounced the world. One day her spirit leads her to a weeping woman in a tenement room. The woman angrily tells Sister Theresa she wants no help; that it was one of her "good kind" that brought her to poverty. Relenting, the woman tells Sister Theresa her story.

She was once known as La Belle Corinne, queen of the demi-monde, and was saved from the hands of a discarded admirer by a wholesouled young fellow, Bert Wilson. Corinne fell in love with him and lured him on; he struggled desperately, being in love with a pure young girl, but the evil influence conquered. After having won Bert Corinne found him drifting back to the good woman, and one night saw him enter church with the latter. She signalled that she wished to see him later. When Bert came she was in an irresponsible condition, and hurled vile names at her unknown rival. Then Bert, angered, told her not to say another word about the girl. He had broken with her, but would stand no insults. Corinne gave an epithet so vile that Bert seized her and thrust her away, vowing never to return. Corinne came to her senses later, but Bert had been away.

Corinne finishes her story by declaring that she renounced the old life after that, and so is in her present condition. Sister Theresa tells Corinne she will visit her again, and goes to her room in the convent. There she writes a note to the Mother Superior. The next day she visits Corinne. She hears a familiar voice and looks in. Bert is there with Corinne in his arms and he says, "It took me a long time, dear, to discover that it was you I really loved, and now we'll be married." Theresa can stand no more and leaves. Back in her room she gazes at the locket, which contains Bert's picture, and tears up the letter she had written and which was a renunciation of her vows to go back to the man who still cared for her—as she thought. Now all is over and, lifting her eyes, she tells her beads.

THE LAW'S INJUSTICE (Three Parts; Jan. 20).—The cast: Nina (Helen Wolcott); Ashton Morris (George Routh); Stanley, his son (L. C. Shumway); Mrs. Morris (Adelaide Bronti); Rose (Mercedes Diaz); collector (William J. Spencer); Little Tony (Milton Flynn). Written by Julian Louis Lamothe. Produced by Edward Sloman.

Nina, an Italian girl, works in the factory of Ashton Morris. Her wages are insufficient to provide for her sick little brother, and soon she is in the clutches of a loan shark. The debt grows steadily, and soon her wages are garnisheed. Morris tells her nothing can be done as it is the law, but suggests an easier way out of it for her. Nina spurns his advances and Morris is more determined than ever to get her. The collector gives Nina no receipt when he collects her rent, and so she is forced to pay twice. She appeals to Morris, and he again tells her it is the law. Seeing that she is not yet ready to consent, he places temptation in her way by giving her work to do at home. Tony is taken worse, and Nina sells the materials intrusted to her care to buy medicine. But the child dies. As Nina sits alone in her grief the police come for her. Morris gives her a last chance, thinking she will surely yield; but the girl surprises him with a fierce denunciation and the acceptance of the prison term as a preference.

Nina receives three years. She makes a scene in court and vows to get even with Morris. Her sentence served, Nina is befriended by an actress and becomes a singer at a roof garden. She learns that Morris is running for governor of the state, and she plans vengeance. She meets and falls in love with Morris' son Stanley, not knowing who he is. Stanley is managing his father's campaign and gives her a position in his office. Nina keeps close watch on him, and soon discovers that the vote of the Third District has been bought through the boss, McEwen. She informs the other party. On the eve of election day Stanley prepares the sworn statement of campaign expenses required by law. Nina gains access to his desk and purloins the vouchers, signed by Stanley, and gives them to the other side. Morris is elected. Stanley, overjoyed, proposes to Nina. She promises to give him an answer at the roof garden that night. When he goes he is arrested and Nina tells him that is the answer. Stanley faces a prison sentence, and Morris is disqualified. Nina realizes that her vengeance is not worth the remorse she feels for having betrayed her lover.

INSOMNIA (Jan. 22).—The cast: Wilkens (Billie Reeves); his valet (Arthur Matthews); Susan Hamilton (Carrie Reynolds); burglar (Charles Griffiths). Written by Mark Swan. Produced by Earl Metcalfe.

Wilkens is afflicted with insomnia. He consults a doctor, who tells him to sleep outdoors and when he is wakeful to run around the block. The next night Wilkens tries the running stunt. He is chased by a crowd of policemen as a suspicious character.

His friend Barton introduces Professor Meyers, a hypnotist. Meyers hypnotizes Wilkens and tells him he must go to sleep every night at midnight. He decides to sleep outdoors. He takes a couple of blankets and gets out on the fire escape. A storm comes up and the valet closes and locks the window. Wilkens' bedclothes blow away and he finds himself on the fire escape in his pajamas.

He tries to get in the window, but can't. He climbs down the fire escape to the first landing, when he is embarrassed to find several girls. He rushes back up the fire escape and goes in a window not his own. It is the bedroom of Miss Susie Hamilton. She enters and is horrified. He tries to explain, but 12 o'clock strikes and he goes to sleep. Nothing can awaken him. Miss Hamilton is about to telephone the police when it occurs to her it would be awkward to explain to the police, the janitor and her neighbors the presence in her bedroom of a sleeping gentleman in pajamas. So she barricades herself in her living room and sits up all night.

Next morning Wilkens is greatly surprised to find himself in Susie's bedroom. He awakens Susie, explains and apologizes to her, then telephones his valet for clothes. Wilkens goes home, but gets in more trouble. When he disappeared the night before, Spike Morgan got in his house and entered Wilkens' apartment. Being near discovery, he was compelled to leave his plunder and fly. The robberies were reported and the policeman, remembering Wilkens and his strange antics the night before, calls on him and questions him. Wilkens says he was home. The plunder is found and still Wilkens will not tell where he was.

The hypnotist now takes a hand; he and Barton go to Susie's apartment. Barton introduces Meyers and Susie allows him to hypnotize her. While under the influence she tells the truth about Wilkens, thus clearing him. A romance springs up between Wilkens and Susie, culminating in their marriage.

SELIG.

HEARST SELIG NEWS PICTORIAL NO. 101 (Dec. 20).

San Diego.—Glen Martin's new seaplane, the most powerful water and air boat ever constructed, is tested for speed by Government officials and proves efficient.

New York.—Australian boy scouts who are touring the United States march to Gotham's city hall to meet city officials.

Escondido, Cal.—California's December crop of strawberries is harvested in the fields of Japanese farmers.

New York.—Mlle. Valkyrien, noted Danish beauty, comes to America touted as the most beautiful woman in Denmark.

Lynn, Mass.—Happy youngsters, 30,000 in number, are beneficiaries of this city government's generosity at Christmas. Old St. Nick takes two weeks to distribute gifts.

New York.—Princess Jue Quon Tai, of China, is touring America to avoid wedding a man she has never seen. Her name translated means "Bring-a-brother."

Philadelphia.—Tibetan Blue bear, the only representative of this rare species known to be in captivity, is found in collections of animals just received here.

Wellesley Hills, Mass.—The famous statistician, Roger W. Babson, becomes rugged from working in the open. His stenographers enjoy crisp ozone.

Butte, Mont.—Monster electric engines are used for the first time by the C. M. & St. Paul Railway in electrification test over the Rocky Mountains.

Oakland, Cal.—The new Civic Auditorium, which is just completed, is used for infant exhibit. Some fine examples of well cared for children are present.

Hopewell, Va.—Millions of dollars damage done by fire which sweeps munitions manufacturing city and renders ten thousand homeless. The ruined city is placed under martial law.

HEARST-SELIG NEWS PICTORIAL NO. 102 (Dec. 23).

San Francisco.—Monster salmon and hundreds of rock cod-fish are caught by Oriental fishermen.

Cambridge, Mass.—Strong man of Harvard, John Weatherhead, stages a mat bout.

New York.—Double-deck cattle barge sinks near Battery Park. Powerful wrecking crane prevents the barge from sinking further.

Chicago.—Monster Christmas tree reaches city after 300-mile trip, to be center of Yuletide fete in Grant Park.

New York.—Belgian youngsters, many of whom are orphans as the result of the war, arrive at Ellis Island.

Galveston, Texas.—The S. S. Ausable, carrying a cargo of cottonseed cake for Denmark, leaves under the stars and stripes. A British cruiser was believed to be lying in wait for this boat.

New York.—Mayor John Purroy Mitchel of New York City welcomes visit of Chicago's mayor, W. H. Thompson.

Marysville, Cal.—Bridge spanning the Yuba river is the scene of impressive ceremonies staged by the Marysville boosters.

Randolph, Mass.—American Fireworks company turns plant into veritable doll factory. After the dolls are dressed each is packed into a box marked "Made in U. S. A."

Chicago.—"Foolkiller" diving craft which was built but never successfully operated, is discovered by diver on bed of river. Two attempts were made before the strange submarine, which has been lost 20 years, was brought to the surface.

New York.—Traffic is resumed after delay caused by heaviest snow fall of the season. The young folks greet the snow with delight.

HEARST-SELIG NEWS PICTORIAL NO. 103 (Dec. 27).

New York.—The Manhattan, a large ferryboat, is smashed when a tramp steamer crashes into her stern during dense fog.

Charleston, S. C.—Troops, marines and bluejackets march in gorgeous line at the Southern Commercial Congress. Visitors are received aboard warships in Charleston harbor.

Omaha, Neb.—The Greater Omaha Roller Skate Hockey Team demonstrates lively playing on concrete walks.

New York.—Ruling granting steamers of alleged German interests freedom of the seas allows the Winneconne to depart for Norway.

Sacramento, Cal.—George A. Powell, a jeweler of this city, is frequently compelled to explain that he is not President Wilson.

Cincinnati, O.—Long struggle between organized baseball and Federal League ends in agreement. James A. Gilmore's Federal League goes out of existence. Charles Weeghman becomes owner of Cubs.

Mantoloking Beach, N. J.—Pere d'Alemquer, a Portuguese bark, after safely crossing the Atlantic, is beached where wind and waves pound her severely.

Lynnfield, Mass.—Forest creeks on the estate of J. H. Pierce are dynamited to prevent forest fires. William H. Vanderbilt, an explosive expert, exhibits his contempt for danger.

New York.—The summit of the Hotel Biltmore becomes a frozen garden, attracting many devotees of skating. Fancy skaters perform difficult and graceful feats on the smooth ice.

Venice, Cal.—Bellowing breakers besiege beautiful beach, battering the bare borderland and being bumped back.

HEARST-SELIG NEWS PICTORIAL NO. 104 (Dec. 30).

New York.—The liner California brings gifts and greetings from across the sea.

San Francisco.—Youngsters of Oriental empire enter into American games with zest and get a lot of joy out of life.

Omaha, Neb.—Mayor Dahlman aids an animal keeper in caring for a wild denizen of the forest whose illness makes him tame.

New York.—Henry Elionsky, who swims in a straightjacket, takes a roll in the snow. The chilling blasts of winter have no terrors for him.

Baltimore, Md.—Boat that will not tip over, and turns in very small space, "walks away" with a much larger launch of fifteen horsepower.

New York.—The only building in honor of Santa Claus in the world will be erected by the International Santa Claus Association.

San Francisco.—The liner Minnesota comes to anchor off Yerba Buena Island and officers of the United States examine her to see if she has been the victim of a war plot.

New York.—Business men of Rockaway Beach give yuletide festival for children and Old Saint Nick hands out presents lavishly.

Spokane, Wash.—Bridge costing $25,000 falls. Five men are killed and twelve others are rescued after being injured. A large girder ripped the upper part of one trolley car away.

ROLL TICKETS

PRICES

Five Thousand.....$1.25
Ten Thousand.....$2.50
Twenty-five Thousand.....$3.50
Fifty Thousand.....$5.00
One Hundred Thousand.....$8.00

Your own special Ticket, any printing, any colors, accurately numbered; every roll guaranteed. Coupon Tickets for Prize Drawings, 5,000 $2.50. Stock Tickets, 6c. per 1,000. Prompt shipments. Cash with the order. Get the samples. Send diagram for Reserved Seat Coupon Tickets, serial or dated.

NATIONAL TICKET CO.
Shamokin, Pa.

THE DEVIL-IN-CHIEF (Jan. 10).—The cast: Johann Szeckler (Tyrone Power); the Woman (Eugenie Besserer); the Naval Officer (Wheeler Oakman); the Girl (Edith Johnson). Written by Lanier Bartlett. Directed by Colin Campbell.

Johann Szeckler, an anarchist, lives with his mistress in a tenement building, where he spends his time manufacturing infernal machines. The woman with whom Johann lives has a lust for gold, and for a stated price she delivers Szeckler into the hands of the police. Placed behind prison bars, Szeckler almost immediately makes his escape because of a fire breaking out in the prison. He returns to his room, where he discovers the woman counting her illy gotten gains. There he slays the woman and writes in blood upon the wall his vow to reap vengeance upon members of her sex. Later, Szeckler embarks on a ship for foreign lands.

There is a shipwreck. The former anarchist is cast upon a lonely island where for a long time he lives alone. Then one day he discovers the almost lifeless form of a young girl which has been cast up by the sea. His brain again reverts to thoughts of the slaying of womankind. However, to better enjoy his vengeance, he concludes to wait until the girl grows up to young womanhood.

As the years pass the girl grows to beautiful young womanhood. Szeckler sits alone sharpening a knife which he proposes to plunge into the body of the young woman. When he endeavors to take her life, she defends herself. Szeckler dogs the woman about the island seeking for an opportunity to kill, and when it finally seems that her life must be sacrificed to the frenzy of this man, a young naval officer visits the island on a tour of discovery. He encounters the young woman while Szeckler hides nearby still seeking an opportunity to slay. Seeing his opportunity, Szeckler overcomes the naval officer, renders him unconscious with a blow, and seizes the girl, his intended victim, and rushes away to his hut.

The naval officer recovers his senses and goes in pursuit arriving in the hut just in time to stop Szeckler from killing the girl. He fires a shot from his revolver and the girl collapses upon a couch, apparently dead. Szeckler sees what he believes is the lifeless form of the girl, and remorse overcomes him. He forgets about his vengeance to kill and wishes himself dead. Then he springs to his feet and makes his escape from the hut. He runs to the edge of a cliff, hurls his knife into the sea and plunges after it.

The girl recovers her senses and is escorted to a ship. That night the soul of Johann Szeckler returns from the sea. It approaches the empty hut in grief-stricken appeal in memory of love that might have sweetened life.

NO SIR-EE BOB (The Chronicles of Bloom Center Series—Jan. 15).—The cast: Ezra Pash (John Lancaster); Constable Plum (Wm. Hutchison); Selina Tubbs (Martha Mattox); Phil Pickle (Lee Morris); Chubby Green (Ralph McComas); Johnny West (Sidney Smith). Written by Maibelle Heikes Justice. Directed by Sidney Smith.

Ezra Pash, village storekeeper, receives a lot of Civil War relics which belonged to his father. When he hears a real war veteran rehearsing war stories, he goes the vet one better and tells of his own wonderful deeds in the conflict. Urged to apply for pension papers, Pash does so.

Constable Plum becomes suspicious when a stranger arrives and signs his name "Dobbs" on the hotel register. Miss Selina Tubbs immediately becomes infatuated with the newcomer. During an athletic meet, Pash forgetting that he is a pseudo war veteran, knocks down Dobbs in a boxing contest. Constable Plum arrests Dobbs for fighting a poor war veteran.

Upon his release, Dobbs leaves town. A few days later, Pash receives a letter which reads: "Do you get the pension? No Sir-ee Bob." The letter is signed, "Chester Dobbs, Chief Investigator." Pash is then left alone to mourn the fact that he failed to put one over on the government.

WHY LOVE IS BLIND (Multiple Reel—Jan. 17).—The cast: Bobby Stone (Jack Pickford); Peter Stone (Guy Oliver); John Stone (Wm. Scott); Mrs. Stone (Lillian Hayward); Bill Rogers (Frank Clark); Ruth Rogers (Betty Nathan). Directed by George Nichols. Written by Wm. A. McGuire.

Peter Stone and his wife have two boys, Bobby and John. John is a strong, energetic youth, while Bobby is a hunchback. The father favors John and when Bobby is abused by his brother, the father is always inclined to condone the offense. Finally Bobby leaves his home. The Rogers circus camps on the road to Ludlow, and Bill Rogers, proprietor, tells his daughter, Ruth, who is blind, that he will soon have the necessary $500 for an operation which will enable her to see her fond parent. Bobby applies to Bill Rogers for employment and joins the circus. He accompanies Ruth everywhere, and the sightless girl does not know that Bobby is a hunchback.

Rogers places his savings in a secret place, and telegraphs to the specialist to come and make an examination of his daughter's eyes. Bobby's interest in Ruth has developed into love, which is sincerely returned by the blind girl. He learns that Ruth's sight may be restored through the operation. Bobby concludes to steal the $500 rather than Ruth should see him as he is. The specialist arrives, examines Ruth's eyes and says: "A successful operation can be performed." When Bill Rogers reaches into the hiding place for the carefully hoarded $500 he finds it missing.

Bobby resolves to tear himself away from his beloved Ruth. But once again before his departure they go hand in hand to a trysting place. Bobby kisses Ruth's hand and says: "Why do you let me kiss your hand?" and the girl replies, "Because I love you." "You must not love me, Ruth," replies Bobby. "I am a hunchback. I am a selfish thief. I wanted you to be blind forever." In a frenzy Bobby leaves the sightless maid alone on the edge of a lake. And then it is that Ruth calls alou- for her beloved Bobby, and he cannot ignore the call. He returns to the maiden, who whispers to him: "Bobby, I love you, and the things we love are not the things we can see. I will always love you," and hand in hand they return together to the circus grounds.

WHEN THE CIRCUS CAME TO TOWN (One of the "Chronicles of Bloom Center" Series—Jan. 22).—The cast: Constable Plum (Wm. Hutchison); Ira Pash (John Lancaster); Phil Pickle (Lee Morris); Johnny West (Sidney Smith); Chubby Green (Ralph McComas); Selina Tubbs (Martha Mattox); Mrs. Plum (Lyllian Brown Leighton). Written by Maibelle Heikes Justice. Directed by Sidney Smith.

The Bloom Centerites arrive at dawn to greet the arrival of Footpaugh's Mammoth Circus and Menagerie. Dan Sykes, circus manager, selects Ira Pash and Phil Pickle to impersonate Ben Hur and Messala in the chariot race, and in so doing offends Johnny West, who aspires to participate in the act. A bareback rider becomes ill and Miss Selina Tubbs agrees to take her place. Johnny West puts a burr in the ear of Selina's horse, and it breaks up the show. Amidst the wildest pandemonium, the elephants and other wild beasts escape through the village of Bloom Center. The circus is ruined and in the night time Constable Plum slips in the scene with a big placard, which he nails on a low stake, reading: "No Show Tonight."

NESTOR

MINGLING SPIRITS (One Reel—Jan. 17).—The cast: Mr. Newly Wed (Eddie Lyons); His Wife (Betty Compson); Her Mother (Stella Adams); Jim Smith (Lee Moran).

After a quiet honeymoon, Mr. Newly Wed and his wife settle down. Newly Wed's mother is interested in Spiritualism and during a big meeting she decides to surprise the newly married couple with a long visit.

Mr. Newly Wed makes the acquaintance of Jim Smith, who spends the day being a "blind man," while at night he dresses in imitation of the "devil" and carries an advertising sign through the streets.

Mother-in-law arrives at the Newly Weds' home, while Mr. Newly Wed is away, and changes the arrangement of the different rooms and Mr. Newly Wed arrives in the midst of the confusion. He protests but he receives scant consideration, and mother-in-law asks to be shown about the house. She picks out Mr. Newly Wed's bedroom for her own and in spite of vehement protests proceeds to take charge. To cap the climax she informs the Newly Weds that on that night she intends holding a party for her friends with demonstrations from the spirit world.

To quiet his raging temper Mr. Newly Wed proceeds to a local bar and soon is filled with spirits himself. Outside he runs across his old friend, Jim Smith, dressed in his "devil" suit, and through the medium of a ten dollar bill persuades Jim to fall in with his plan.

At Newly Wed's home Mother-in-law has her chosen companions and is entertaining them with manifestations of the spirit world. She tells them that as a grand finale she will request a visit from a well known personage of the spirit world.

All are waiting expectantly when suddenly the door opens and Smith, in the costume of the "devil," enters. There is a general stampede and Mr. Newly Wed shows Jim his mother-in-law, requesting that he keep on her trail. Mother-in-law makes a hasty retreat with the "devil" in close pursuit.

FLIVVER'S FAMOUS CHEESE HOUND (Jan. 21).—Summoned by the manager of an important bank, where a sensational robbery has just taken place, Flivver, the world renowned detective, sets out to find the criminals. Having heard the facts of the case over the telephone, he is at once convinced that this is an occasion on which he must make use of his celebrated blood-hound. In fear and trembling his man servant goes out to loosen the ferocious animal, a noted cheese-hound.

Arriving at the bank, the manager and his employees are told by Flivver that he must search them all. His hound proves most useful in at once getting on the scent. It does not take long before he discovers the house of the criminals.

He decides to hide and await the arrival of the thieves. Before long they arrive staggering under the sack containing the million dollars. Unseen, Flivver follows them into the house, overpowers the guard and makes him prisoner.

Seeing a train passing, the prisoner escapes and, making a flying leap he manages to board it just in time, holding the dollar-filled sack firmly in his hands.

Flivver is distracted; all that now remains is for him to race the train. He hires a powerful car and the chase ensues. Crossing a railway bridge, Flivver drops on to the top of the train, which is going at 60 miles an hour. He discovers the whereabouts of the thief, who is anxiously looking out the window for his pursuer. Catching hold of him, Flivver drags him on to the top of the train.

After a hard struggle, Flivver knocks out his opponent. As soon as the unfortunate man regains consciousness Flivver drags him off, together with his booty, to the bank, where he restores the lost treasure to the grateful manager.

OUR CATALOGUE OF
BRUSH ELECTRIC LIGHTING SETS
contains more useful information about electric lighting in general than any other book ever issued. Write for it today.
THE CHAS. A. STRELINGER CO.,
Box MP-2, Detroit, Mich., U. S. A.

Central Film Co.
H. A. Spanuth, Mgr.
110 S. State St. Chicago

Developing and Printing for the Trade
Commercial Motion Pictures Co.
Cliffside 323 Grantwood, N. J.

IVAN FILM PRODUCTIONS
PRODUCING MONTHLY, FEATURE DRAMAS OF DISTINCTIVE MERIT IN WHICH "THE PLAY'S THE THING"; PRESENTING FAMOUS SCREEN STARS UNDER FILMDOM'S MOST ARTISTIC DIRECTORS
IVAN FILM PRODUCTIONS INC. 126 WEST 46TH ST. NEW YORK

BROADWAY UNIVERSAL FEATURE.

THE MAN INSIDE (Five Reels—Jan. 17).—The cast: The Master Rogue; the Stranger (Edwin Stevens); Eleanor, his niece (Tina Marshall); Senator Carew (Charles Burbridge); Cynthia, his daughter (Justina Huff); Lieutenant Lane (William Armstrong); Winthrop (Sid Bracy); Hunter, diplomat (Harry Benham); Brett (Louis Leon Hall); Secretary of State (Gustave Thomas); Mlle. Yvette Deplau (Florence Crawford).

Dana Thornton has a niece, Eleanor. She is friendly with Cynthia Carew, the daughter of a Senator. After a ball one night, Cynthia finds her father dead in their machine.

While the ball was in progress we see Cynthia and Lieutenant Lane, a naval officer. Lane asks her father for her hand and is refused and a quarrel ensues. It later transpires that before going to the ball, Carew wrote a letter to the Secretary of State saying he knows a certain American who is selling his country's secrets in South America. The letter goes on to say that the name of the spy cannot be divulged yet. And immediately following the writing of this letter the old man was found dead—showing that someone thought him dangerous.

Cynthia, is prostrated and Eleanor Thornton and her uncle come over—the man to take charge of Carew's affairs and the girl to comfort her friend. Eleanor has a mysterious maid who is acting the part of the spy.

Douglas Hunter, a secret service agent, is sent to help Detective Brett on the Carew case. The lieutenant who quarreled with Carew is under suspicion and Cynthia feels that he must be guilty and refuses to see him. Carew's nephew, Phil, is also suspected, because he had been seen quarreling with the Senator.

Then the Stranger appears. He is Harry Thornton, brother of Dana, and his exact counterpart. Harry visits the Secretary of State, learns of Carew's death and has an attack of vertigo. When the Secretary goes to get him a drink he rushes down the hall.

Later Dana visits the Secretary, steals the important papers and the stranger, who rushed away, is suspected. Eleanor sees Barry shrinking in the grounds and aiming a gun at the window. This is during a visit of the whole party as the guests of Dana. Phil is seized with illness. It transpires that Cynthia and Eleanor have kimonas just alike. One of them, or so it seems, visits Phil and gives him medicine and he, in delirium, tells where the missing plans are. She goes downstairs and finds them and tears her kimona. Hunter, the detective, sees her as she goes upstairs.

The girl's kimonas are examined next day, but no trace of the tear can be found. Consequently it was not one of the girls that was downstairs the night before. Brett and Hunter search the maid's room. There is found the torn kimona and they believe that she was the mysterious girl of the night before.

The doctor discovers that Phil is being systematically poisoned. Lieutenant Lane, Cynthia's sweetheart, is arrested for the murder of Carew. Dana sees Eleanor's maid listening at the door and finds her stealing papers in the library.

That night Harry Thornton comes into the Thornton house and secrets himself in an untenanted room. No one sees him or knows he is there but an old colored servant. Cynthia tells Eleanor of a dream wherein she sees a door with panels in the shape of a cross. She goes to the door and tries to get out but cannot. She awakens screaming in terror. She also tells Cynthia that when she has this dream something terrible always follows.

The mysterious maid lies down for a sleep and an arm reaches through the wall and extinguishes her light, leaving the gas on. She dies. Cynthia, coming down, passes the door and seeing the panels in the shape of a cross, screams and several men, to quiet her, force the door open and the body of the maid is found. In the girl's closet is the torn kimona and the missing plans which she stole on the night Hunter saw her. The maid was a secret service spy.

All gather in the drawing room. Phil rushes in and accuses Eleanor of the murder of Carew and of poisoning him. He tells how he saw her go down to the machine on the night of the murder and return to the house frightened. She did this because she saw Dana, her uncle, commit the crime. A letter to the Secretary of State is found in a book. It was written by Carew before his death and forgotten. This is sent to the conference in the drawing room, where it is opened and the name of Dana Thornton is found therein. He is the spy. He jumps into a car and is followed by Detectives Brett and Hunter in another car. Dana jumps out of the car and hides, while the car then goes over a cliff.

He rushes home and comes face to face with Barry. Barry gives him a gun and tells him it is the only honorable way. Dana shoots himself and falls dead. The crowd rushes in and Barry says: "He has paid the penalty."

Eleanor recognizes Barry as her long-lost father and rushes to his arms. Barry tells about the time, years before, when he and Dana were in Panama. How he followed him to a saloon where friends of Dana's hit him on the head, and then he is sent to jail. He is offered his freedom by soldiers of the small republic for certain secret codes in his possession, but he refuses. He escapes by changing clothes with the guard of the jail. Then he goes to his own country to be revenged on his brother.

Hunter and Brett arrive and they learn that Dana did not go over the cliff in the machine, but that he lies dead in the drawing room. Cynthia and Lieutenant Lane are brought together and Hunter and Eleanor have fallen in love, and the long-lost father gives his blessing to their union.

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL FEATURE.

GRAFT, NO. 5 ("Grinding Life Down"—Two Parts—Jan. 10).—The cast: Tom Larnigan (Harry Carey); Bruce Larnigan (Hobart Henley); Mrs. Larnigan (Nanine Wright); Stanford Stone (Glen White); Roger Maxwell (Marc Fenton); Dorothy Maxwell (Jane Novak); C. Wood Ayers (Charles Bachman); Wilbur Ayres (Elmer Wilson); Dunn (E. P. Evers); Ben Travers (Jack Conally).

The experience of Bruce on the grain steamer has been a great shock to Dorothy. She thinks Stone responsible and breaks her engagement, despite the pleadings of her father.

Tom Larnigan is working for the Textile Trust in Lyndham. The low wages have caused a strike. Tom does what he can for the workers.

The hired thugs of the Trust attack an auto driven by Ben Travers. Tom goes to his assistance and finds an old friend from whom he gets money to help the workers.

Dorothy overheard Stone's plot to secure Tom by putting him out of the way, under cover of the strike excitement. One of Stone's underworld aids has seen Tom. She is to accompany the men and point him out. Dorothy presents herself at Dunn's office as this woman, her object being to see Tom and warn him. The thugs become suspicious and bind and gag her, throwing her in the bottom of the auto. In this chapter Dorothy's fate is left in doubt.

Ayers, the head of the Trust, has returned to New York and attends a meeting of the Graft Trust. Ayers sneers at the efforts to remove the Larnigan family.

Travers, who has been invited to Ayers' reception with Tom, as his mining partner, attends the social function. Tom picks up many pieces of information while posing as Travers' partner. Ayers, in conversation with Travers, pulls Tom's note from his pocket and remarks that he wants to meet the writer—is anxious to meet him, in fact. Travers points to his partner: "There is a man who knows him well," he says, laughingly: "In fact, he is Larnigan's best friend." Ayers asks Tom if he thinks he could induce Larnigan to visit him (Ayers). Tom thinks he could. Ayers begs Tom to bring Larnigan to his house that night. Promising to return with the wanted man, Tom takes his leave.

Ayers prepares for his reception; arranges a device to chloroform Tom while he sits at his desk. In the next room is a couch that will kill the sleeper and leave no trace.

Tom finds Ayres' son drunk, so picks him up and carries him to his home. Ayres is alone. He tells Tom to place him on the murder couch. Tom does so; Ayres starts machinery and draws Tom to library, closing the door. He and Tom sit at desk; Ayers is loud in praise of Tom's promptness—Tom cuts him short by

BE UP TO DATE
Install
CORCORAN TANKS
Get No. 8 Price List
A. J. CORCORAN, Inc. 11½ JOHN STREET NEW YORK CITY

—FEATURE FILMS—
Three, four and five reel subjects, with paper,
$10.00 per reel
Two reel subjects, with paper,
$7.50 per reel
Single subjects, with paper
$5.00 per reel
Splendid comedies, all makes
G. W. Bradenburgh
802 Vine Street Philadelphia

EVERYTHING-FOR-YOUR-PLAYHOUSE
HOMMEL'S
COMMERCIAL BUILDING
422 FIRST AVE
PITTSBURGH, PA.
We Will Equip Your Theatre Completely
REPAIR PARTS
SUPPLIES
MACHINES Shipped from Stock.

You will be pleased and it will pay you if you
Send Your Next Order to Hommel's

125 Features
FOR SALE
2-6 REEL SUBJECTS
With Original Paper in Perfect Condition--Bargain Prices
NO JUNK
WRITE FOR LISTS
"Room 1601 FILM EXPORT"
71 West 23d Street New York, N. Y.

Have You Read Page 489?

MINA COMEDIES
Make You Giggle and Wiggle
EVERY THURSDAY ON THE GENERAL FILM PROGRAM. BOOK THEM

giving him a paper to sign granting the increase of wages asked and the employment of the men now on strike. Ayers is dumfounded at such a request. Tom reveals his identity. Ayers starts back in astonishment and terror. "Then who is the man in the next room?" He rushes in, followed by Tom; reverses the machinery and finds his own son—dead.

GRAFT NO. 6 (Two Parts—Jan. 17).—The cast: Tom Larnigan (Harry Carey); Roger Maxwell (Mark Fenton); Dorothy Maxwell (Jane Novak); Stanford Stone (Glen White); Chas. Rockford (Burton S. Wilson); Kitty Rockford (Mina Cunard); Babcock (J. P. Evers); Bruce Larnigan (Hobart Henley); Ben Travers (J. F. Conolly).

Tom Larnigan, encouraged by his victory over the Textile Trust, turns his attention to the Railroad Monopoly. Tom receives warning from the Graft Trust to cease his activities or suffer the fate of his father and brother. This warning he shows to Ben Travers, his wealthy friend and to Stevens the reporter, who has enlisted on his side, with the suggestion that they let him proceed alone, as an alliance might bring harm to them. Tom's friends assure him that they will stick for whatever happens.

Tom learns that the President of the Railroad Monopoly, Rockford, is to leave for Boston that afternoon in his private car. Rockford is one of the members of the Graft Trust and one of the men to be brought to account for the death of his father.

Tom and Ben call on Rockford; Tom manages to slip a warning on his desk. Leaving the office, he scrapes an acquaintance with the engineer of the President's private car. Tom offers the engineer a bribe to take his place.

After Tom leaves, the engineer informs Rockford of the attempted bribery. Stone is present and tells the engineer, with Rockford's permission, to accept the bribe and allow Tom to take his run.

Stone arranges to send Dunn, Stone's criminal agent, to take the place of the draw bridge tender and open the bridge and let the car through.

Tom and Ben pay a large sum to the engineer and fireman, then run to the car, just in time to jump aboard and pull out at the command of the station master.

Dorothy Maxwell has been bound and gagged, and robbed by the two men with whom she set out to warn Tom of danger. Dorothy escapes and starts for New York. The men leave a road house in time to see her go and give chase. Seeing that they will soon overtake her, Dorothy abandons the auto near the sound; rushes to a small private dock, jumps aboard a motorboat and races out on the water to safety. The owner, who happens to be in the cabin, rushes to the deck as the boat is under way. The owner is Kitty Rockford, daughter of the Railroad president and Dorothy's best friend. Dorothy explains her adventures as the boat speeds towards New York. She was on her way to Lyndham, to warn Tom Larnigan when overpowered by the two men. She wishes to go there as soon as possible. Kitty says that they will borrow her father's private car for the purpose.

Kitty sends a note to her father, informing him where she has gone. Rockford and Stone are enjoying a laugh together as they picture the car, but a few moments' distance from the open draw bridge, when Kitty's note is handed to Rockford.

In horror at the thought that his daughter's life must be sacrificed, he suffers a complete change of nature. He resigns from the trust and declares he will do all in his power to bring railroad matters to a normal condition.

When near the bridge, Tom stops the car to have a settlement with the president and is astonished to find, not the president, but Dorothy and Kitty. Explanations follow and all get off the car to make an investigation.

The girls are safely delivered to their fathers, whose delight and gratitude know no bounds. Tom is much taken by the vivacious Kitty.

Rockford promises Tom a complete reform and Tom reports his success to Bruce, who adds another name to the list—Charles Rockford "Reformed."

LAEMMLE.

JUST PLAIN FOLKS (Three Reels—Jan. 20).—The cast: King Stander (William C. Dowlan); Silas Benton (V. T. Henderson); Mrs. Benton (Helen Wright); The Orphan (Gloria Fonda); Constable (Frank MacQuarrie).

Silas Benton, landlord of a hotel in a little country village, has a son Martin and is married to a widow, who also has a son, Tom, of whom he is extremely jealous. He discovers Tom stealing through his office and upstairs to his room, when it is long past midnight and upbraids him severely.

STOP!

LOOK!!

READ!!!

SEE WHO'S HERE!!!!

HEINIE & LOUIE

STARLIGHT COMEDIES

FEATURING

JAMES AUBREY

as HEINIE

Now running in its THIRD WEEK at the STRAND Theatre New York City

The Strand Management claims they are the best comedies that have ever played the theatre.

If they are good enough for the Strand—they ought to be good enough for you.

BOOK NOW

Beat Your Neighbors To It!!

RELEASED THROUGH

PATHE EXCHANGES

ALL OVER THE WORLD

MANUFACTURED BY

The Mittenthal Film Co.

Studio and Laboratories

Yonkers, New York

His own son, Martin, has robbed the cash drawer in the hotel just before Tom has been seen by his stepfather.

In the morning, when Silas finds that he has been robbed, he is convinced that Tom is guilty and despite the entreaties of Tom's mother, has him sent to jail.

King Stander, a drummer, registers at the hotel, and is interested in an orphan, who has escaped from the orphan asylum and has obtained work in the hotel. Martin tries to kiss her. King Stander pours a pitcher of water on the head of the tormentor.

That night Martin goes to the village poolroom and plays pool with a pool shark, Sam Twist, who gets Martin in debt to him. He then demands his money and he and Martin plan to rob Silas' safe the same night.

The orphan hears her kitten crying and steals down stairs and out doors to find it. The drummer sees her in the moonlight, and joins her. While they are outside Martin and Sam enter the hotel and get the money from the safe. The orhpan starts in with her kitten and the drumer remains outside with his cigar.

The orphan surprises the pair at the safe and Martin grabs her. She screams and Sam sneaks out, but is caught by the drummer, who rescues the orphan. The house is aroused and Silas is confronted with the proof that it is the son of his who is the thief. Freckles, the choreboy, has been aroused and has arrived with the constable and Silas is determined that his son shall pay the penalty, but Mrs. Benton pleads with him, and Silas decides he will temper justice with mercy and allow his son a better chance.

Mrs. Benton is happy that her son, Tom, is cleared from suspicion and she and Silas leave to obtain his freedom, leaving the drummer and the orphan alone.

HER DREAM MAN (Jan. 23).—The cast: Helen Wakefield (Myrtle Gonzales); Jack Armston (Frank Newburg); John Brandt (Alfred Allen); Helen's Maid (Josie Sedgwick); Mr. William Courtney (Val Paul); Mrs. Courtney (Franzi Gunn).

Helen Wakefield, the wealthiest, unmarried woman in the country, finds it difficult to secure as a husband one who does not care for her wealth, but for herself alone.

Prior to a long trip, she had placed her country property in the hands of her agent, with instructions to sell.

One day Jack Armston calls upon the agent with an offer to buy. Satisfactory arrangements are made and Jack sets out to look over his new property.

Helen and her maid, meanwhile, have become settled in the home when Helen hears a mysterious movement in one of the rooms; she investigates and finds a man prowling about the room. She covers him with a revolver, until one of the servants arrive. Helen is surprised that such a nice looking man should be a common thief and offers him the position of manager of her estate. The intruder, who happens to be Jack, is very much amused, but decides to carry on the deception. His mistress enjoys the company of her new manager and one day while they are shopping, she greets two of her old friends and Jack, in dismay, recognizes them as friends of his own. Helen invites the friend to call upon her.

The night of the dinner arrives and the new manager, who has been installed as cook, prepares the dinner. During its preparation his face becomes black, but when he hears Helen telling of having a burglar for a manager and offering to show him to her friends, he decides to leave. One of the servants see him making a get away and takes him in charge.

Jack is brought before the company and recognized by them. Explanations follow and the friends laughingly tell Helen that Jack would hardly be after her money as he has more than he knows what to do with himself.

Jack then tells of having bought the place and has some hope of her sharing the place with him.

GOLD SEAL.

LORD JOHN'S JOURNAL (No. 2, "The Grey Sisterhood"—Three Parts—Jan. 4).—The cast: Lord John (William Garwood); Roger Odell (Ogden Crane); Maida Odell (Stella Razeto); Head Sister (Laura Oakley; Dr. Rameses (Albert MacQuarrie); Three-Fingered Jenny (Carmen Phillips); Lord John's Valet (Doc Crane).

The Felborn theater is crowded to witness the first performance of Lord John's play, dramatized from his novel. Opposite the box in which sit Lord John and other guests of the manager are Roger Odell and Maida. Lord John notices a spasm of pain flash over Maida's face and traces her gaze to a sinister figure in the orchestra. It is Doctor Rameses.

Lord John hurries after this person, arriving at the curb just in time to see his automobile roll away, not, however, before Lord John jots down the number of the machine. This is seen by a veiled woman who sits far back in the car. It is the Head Sister. Dr. Rameses and the Head Sister hasten to the former's house, the upper floors of which are given over to the doctor's lectures on hypnotism and Egyptian wisdom, the basement den being the place where he receives the criminals in his employ. Three-fingered Jenny, a trusty confederate of the Head Sister's—an inmate of the Gray Sisterhood Home—is waiting there with her son, Nickie, a dumb boy of ten, who is used by Dr. Rameses on special occasions. Jennie and Nickie are given hurried instructions about the night's work.

Roger Odell shows Lord John the wonderful mummy case belonging to Maida and the elaborate electric wiring system which surrounds it and prevents theft. As Roger is going away, and Maida will also be out of the house, he conndes to Lord John the secret of the valuable curio's safety. He gives him two envelopes, one containing diagrams of the apparatus, the other the printed "key" to the secret system, one being useless without the other. While Lord John sleeps, after consulting and noting some deductions in his journal—chiefly his suspicions of The Gray Sisterhood, and the eagerness of the head of it to gain possession of the mummy—Nickie slips from under the bed. He cuts off the automobile number noted on Lord John's cuff—his chief object in coming. When Lord John later finds the box under the bed, misses the envelops and sees the severed cuff, he knows he has been tricked, but can do nothing.

In the early morning Lord John starts out in his motor to be at the point where he knows Maida will be met by the Head Sister and driven to the home. On the platform he sees a woman whom he recognizes by her garb to be the Head Sister. The wind tosses her veil from her face and she is seen to be wearing a gray mask. Word comes that Maida's train is stalled up the track. Lord John finds Maida troubled by the delayed train and in this condition persuades her to tell him what is and always has been the shadow of her life. Maida conndes her story: Years before, her mother had jilted Roger Odell's father to marry an English Army Officer of whom nothing was known. Three years later the mother returns, dying, and begs Odell to take Maida. As a young girl she is loved by Lieutenant Granville, who is insanely jealous without cause. In the midst of a ball he enters the small anteroom where Maida is surrounded by young men. He then vents his jealous rage upon the girl, finally sinking into a chair, panting, asking Maida to get his handkerchief where it protrudes from his cuff. Maida draws it out. Granville starts and falls writhing to the floor as a muffled report rings out. Maida tears open his shirt, revealing a revolver with a string leading from the trigger to the handkerchief. The guests burst into the room and Granville's mother accuses Maida of murder. This is her tragic past—and the world has never let her forget it. She is entering the Gray Sisterhood in search of peace.

Lord John jots in his faithful journal: "My Maida's sorrows make her mine to save from the Gray Sisterhood—tonight." In the Sisterhood home Maida is asked if the mummy case will come with her trunk. She says it can never be removed from its shrine. Then a light beams from the half-globe of glass, and in the aperture Rameses' face appears. But Lord John had discovered the nunnery and is waiting for just such a contingency in his automobile outside the gate. He assists Maida to escape and then restores her to the Odells.

THE REWARD OF CHIVALRY—Three Reels—Jan. 18).—The cast: Stanton Ware (Herbert Rawlinson); Doris King (Jean Taylor); Richard King (Alfred Allen); Wallace Aines, crook (Barney Furey); Horace Brighton (Scott Leslie); His Wife (Mrs. Kraft).

Stanton Ware, a young Southerner, holding the sacredness of woman's honor above everything else, is in love with Doris King, a vivacious Southern girl, but she holds Ware's impetuous advances off in spite of a real liking for him. Ware demands from Doris an answer one way or the other and she promises a definite answer on the opening of the social season. Doris' father, a gentleman of the old school, loves Ware like a son and does everything possible to help him along. Finally Doris gives Ware a tentative promise, but declines his engagement ring.

Horace Brighton, a power in newspaper circles, is conducting a crusade against graft in the northern city where he lives and is making things so hot for the gang of crooked politicians, that Dougherty, the boss, orders his "go between" Aines to frame up something against Brighton. Aines agrees and tells his boss that the only way to work Brighton is through his, the latter's wife. Brighton has promised to take his wife South for the winter. Aines learns of their contemplated trip and precedes them to the city, where he meets them on their arrival and makes such a good impression they accept him as a friend. Aines and Mrs. Brighton become intimate companions. Brighton meets King at a dinner, where Ware has brought Doris and her father. Brighton and King are old friends. Doris is introduced. Aines at once begins to cast about for a way to win her good graces.

Ware takes Doris and her father to the big masquerade ball, where they again meet the Brightons and Aines. Doris in a willful mood flirts with Aines and Ware, coming upon him holding Doris' hand, demands an explanation. The girl tells him she will do what she pleases. Holding the happiness of the girl above everything else, Ware withdraws in Aines' favor, but warns the latter if he is just trifling with her, he will kill him later. Aines protests his good intentions.

The Brightons return home. Aines receives a cordial invitation from them to visit them. He reports his progress to Dougherty and they begin to weave their web to "get" Brighton. Ware, broken hearted decides to leave and is given a note to Brighton by King. He is given an assignment as reporter.

Dougherty and Aines meet at a road house to complete their plans and while there one of the girls resents Dougherty's advances. As she leaves she hears Aines and Dougherty planning their scheme and resolves to repay them in their own coin. Coming out on the street she is arrested. Ware takes pity and goes her bond, gives her money and helps her out to a cab. She tells him of Dougherty and Aines' planning and if he wants to make a scoop to be at a certain road house that night.

Doris, meanwhile, has repented and makes her father bring her North to locate Ware. They meet the Brightons and are told of Ware's occupation, but as he is out on an assignment, Brighton promises to bring him to the house. Ware has arranged to be at the road house that night.

Aines induces Mrs. Brighton to take an auto ride and gets her into the road house. She is "doped." Dougherty then calls up Brighton and tells him that unless he calls off his graft investigations, he will make known the fact of Mrs. Brighton being with her lover at a famous road house.

Brighton is entertaining King and Doris when he receives the message. He tells of the message. They all set out for the place.

As Mrs. Brighton revives Aines enters her room. When she screams Ware breaks through the window. He is about to choke Aines when he recognizes him and still thinking Doris loves Aines, kicks him out. He is trying to soothe Mrs. Brighton when Brighton, King and Doris burst in. Ware, trying to save Mrs. Brighton, refuses to make a statement and he and King are about to shoot, when Doris rushes in and pushes her father's arm aside. Aines is aiming through the window to kill Ware, when Doris sees him and pointing her father's arm, forces him to pull the trigger. Mrs. Brighton has explained to her husband and Ware receives his reward in the surrender of Doris.

L-KO.

SAVING SUSIE FROM THE SEA (Jan. 19).—The cast: The Rivals (Dick Smith and Jos. Moore).

Susie is loved by Dave and Joe. She prefers Dave, although he is poor and Joe is rather well to do.

The father insists upon her marriage to Joe and Susie despairs.

Dave becomes a street cleaner. One day he sees his sweetheart in an auto with her father and the rival and hitches his street sweeper's little barrow to the auto axle and is wheeled down the avenue to the beach.

Dave gets employment as a life saver. Susie hires a boat and loses her oars. Dave thrusting aside the father and the rival jumps into a boat and rigidly rows to her. He lifts her into his boat and rows her ashore, where the

FULCO FULCO FULCO FULCO
MovingPicture Exhibitors
Get your supplies from FULCO the house that carries everything you need
E. E. FULTON CO., 152 W. Lake St., Chicago

Get acquainted with the
ERBOGRAPH WAY
of Developing and Printing
ERBOGRAPH COMPANY
203-11 West 146th St., New York City

ACETINE
FILM CEMENT
AT ALL SUPPLY HOUSES OR WRITE
QUAKER CITY CO.
3955 RIDGE AVE. PHILA, PA

THE STERLING
CAMERA & FILM CO.
Manufacturers of Feature Film Productions
Commercial, Industrial and other Camera Work a Specialty. All Work Guaranteed
145 W. 45th St., New York, N. Y.

There Is No Program So Good That One of Our Features Cannot Improve
Pasquali, Terriss Feature Film and Interstate Feature Film
MASTERPIECES
Picture Playhouse Film Co.
71 W. 23rd St. New York City

Perfect Developing and Printing
Your negative developed, printed, titled and shipped within TWELVE HOURS
5c. per foot complete
Special price on quantity orders.
TITLES in any language.
6c. per foot
Cards Free—Tinting Free
Satisfaction guaranteed by our fifteen years' experience.
GUNBY BROS., Inc.
145 West 45th Street New York City

You Should Read Page 489

MINA COMEDIES
Little Brown Hen
RELEASE OF THURSDAY, JANUARY 13th
BOOK IT

Triangle Releases for Week of January 16th

First, there is "The Beckoning Flame" featuring Henry Woodruff and Tsuru Aoki in a thrilling East Indian story that holds with unabated interest the constant attention of your patrons. It's a "somewhat different" picture that commands continued consideration and automatically creates unsolicited recommendations and statements of approval. This sensational picture will win the instant approbation of everyone who witnesses it.

Then Robert Harron appears with Norma Talmadge in her first TRIANGLE PLAY, "The Missing Links," a vivid and dramatic picture that vibrates with tense interest in the solution of an appalling murder mystery. The gripping theme compels undivided attention and the final happy ending will be the sign for spontaneous applause and enthusiasm on the part of your patrons.

For comedy, the two Keystones this week will present at their best two Broadway stars famous as laugh-makers. Sam Bernard will repeat his success of last week in a ten-laughs-a-minute comedy entitled "Because He Loved Her," and Joe Jackson, probably the best known tramp on the stage, will make the most serious laugh in his picture "The Modern Enoch Arden."

TRIANGLE FILM CORPORATION
71 WEST 23rd ST. NEW YORK

Triangle Plays are Lobby Crushers

Every exhibitor today is in business for the profit to be made. This profit is dependent on the revenue which is pushed through the Box Office Window, and the live wire is signing contracts for the motion pictures that create the most business for him and therefore the most profit.

The number of TRIANGLE contracts which are being received every week is evidence that exhibitors believe TRIANGLE PLAYS will help solve their problems.

Detroit, Michigan,
December 29th, 1915.

TRIANGLE FILM CORPORATION,
701 Sincere Building,
Cleveland, Ohio.

We opened Duplex Theatre at ten and fifteen cents. After second week placed TRIANGLE PROGRAMME in our house at 25c. and 50c., and our attendance has doubled. Played to over 5000 paid admissions Sunday. TRIANGLE PLAYS make our patrons walking advertisements.

H. M. PAYNE, General Manager.

This and many other letters and telegrams of the same kind are PROOF that TRIANGLE PLAYS are helping exhibitors increase their box office revenue and their profits. In many cases where a well-managed house has been a continued success the exhibiting of TRIANGLE PLAYS has made it possible to increase both the number of patrons and the admission prices—which automatically increases net profits.

IF YOU HAVE NOT SIGNED YOUR TRIANGLE CONTRACT BETTER WIRE FOR PARTICULARS.

TRIANGLE FILM CORPORATION
71 WEST 23rd ST—NEW YORK

rival attempts to wrest her from him. Dave knocks the father and rival down and gets in an auto and rides away with her. They summon the police and follow in various conveyances. The furious ride continues through fences, around sharp corners, up and down hills, along the edge of precipices and finally ends in the swimming tank.

MR. McIDIOT'S ASSASSINATION (Two Reels Jan. 25). The cast: Mr. Mcldiot (Ray Griffith); Chief Assassin (Dan Russell); The Woman (Louise Orth).

Whether to asphyxiate himself outright, or hire someone to put him out of the world and thus relieve himself of the suspense of death, was the question Mr. Mcldiot had to decide for himself. This was on account of Mr. Mcldiot's lady friend refusing to marry him. At first he decided on self destruction, but when he attempted to throw himself into the lake, several hungry alligators were cruising about therein, and he changed his mind. He then hired the Chief Assassin of the Murderers' Association to do away with him within twelve hours. Same assassin agreed to the bargain, but unfortunately in the meantime Mr. Mcldiot's lady friend decided she had made a mistake and told Mr. Mcldiot she wanted him back again. He went to cancel his bargain with the assassin, but unluckily the assassin was out on a killing expedition, and Mr. Mcldiot couldn't find him. To make matters worse the Chief Assassin had a fit of remorse and decided to give up his old life. He chose the same minister to confess to who was marrying Mr. Mcldiot and the meeting was not pleasant. Mr. Mcldiot ran up a high ladder, and the Chief Assassin fell off the same ladder into shallow water. Mr. Mcldiot finally got the girl, but he was in such nervous condition he forgot to kiss her at the close of the wedding ceremony.

VICTOR.

HER BETTER SELF (Two Reels—Jan. 19).—The cast: Yvette (Grace Cunard); Jack Trevor (Jack Holt); Paul (Irving Lippner); Bride (Genevieve Abbot); Groom (Roy Russell).

Yvette, known as a society woman, but in reality a leader of a gang of crooks, sits at the telephone, laughing at the impulsive young man at the other end. Yvette still laughs when Ralph threatens to kill himself if she does not promise to marry him. Hearing her mocking laugh over the wire, he pulls the trigger and ends his life just as the crook robbing his safe a few feet away sees him and pulls his own gun to protect himself should Ralph see him. At the other end of the wire, Yvette stops laughing long enough to pick up the receiver to tell the young man he may call; unaware of the tragedy.

Jack Trevor, in his studio just above his brother Ralph's library, is about to bid his friends goodnight when they are startled by a shot. They burst into the library to find his brother on the floor dead, with a still warm revolver clasped tightly in his hand. Rushing to his brother, he finds him dead, just as his friends discover the open safe, and all come to the conclusion that he was shot in self defense.

Jack asks his friends to leave him to himself, and he continues his search for some evidence of the murderer, when he finds on his brother's desk a half finished note reading:

"Yvette: I can't stand it any longer. If you don't marry me, I'll kill myself."

Yvette meets Jack, and not knowing he is a brother of Ralph, becomes strangely attracted to him. He asks to paint her portrait. Yvette is surprised to find herself really in love with him. Knowing it would hurt him if he knew that she cared but was unworthy, she assumes a careless air.

Arriving home, she is about to break down, when she hears someone enter the room. It is Jack. He pleads, but she only laughs. He is about to go, when he notices on a small table a portrait of his brother. He reads the inscription: "To Yvette, with love from your boy." He denounces her. As Jack leaves by the front door, several of the crooks of her gang enter by the secret panels in the back of the room, and tell her of a big haul that can be made at a society wedding the next day. She decides to help the gang for the last time.

The next evening Yvette goes to the fashionable wedding. On the outside of the house several of her gang wait for her signal that the coast is clear for the robbery.

Yvette sneaks to the French windows, and unlocing them, she gives a signal to the awaiting crooks. The theft is discovered and confusion reigns over the place.

Jack, with two of the plain clothes men, discovers a secret door in the crook's dive, and opening it, is surprised to find himself in Yvette's own room, just as she enters by the front door. She tries to plead with him that he is accusing her unjustly and that she really loves him, but he only throws her from him. A crook secreted behind the curtains, sees and overnears this; and really in love with Yvette himself, determines to avenge her. Drawing a gun, he awaits an opportunity to get Jack. Yvette sees Paul's hand with the gun come through the curtains and take aim at Jack. Realizing it is too late to stop him, she throws herself in Jack's arms as Paul pulls the trigger, and Yvette falls limply to the floor.

A SEA MYSTERY (One Reel—Jan. 21).—The cast: Husband (Robert Lee); Mary (Mary Fuller); John (Paul Panzer); Ralph (Ralph Belmont).

A shot is fired in the darkness of the cabin on an ocean liner—a man falls prostrate across the table while a frightened woman throws a revolver from her and rushing out on deck she flings herself over the rail into the waves. The man was not badly hurt. The woman was washed ashore next morning on the beach of a fishing village.

The man traces the girl to be revenged upon her. Meantime in the hut of some fishing folk, Mary, the girl, is happy.

Two fishermen love her—one, big and stalwart—the other—weak of mind and weak of body. The big fellow, John, proposes to Mary and she accepts him. Ralph, the other boy, sees the progress of this love affair and smiles upon it, although it breaks his heart.

The man of the boat arrives at the fishing village and one day as Mary is dancing over the sands to meet John she comes face to face with this visitor from her past. He asks her to go away with him back to the old life.

Mary protests and tells him she has a chance for happiness and begs him to go away and leave her free. He laughs at her; he taunts and goads her into a rage.

Ralph comes to the girl who sits sadly on the sand and asks her the trouble. "That man makes you unhappy," asks the boy. She nods. "Then I will take him where he can never make you unhappy again."

That night Mary determines to confess all to John. Ralph steals out and finding the stranger, suggests that he row him to the mainland. The stranger jumps into the little craft that sets out on its last voyage.

Mary confesses to John, telling him of the past of the days when she was the accomplice of the man on the boat, and how, finally unable to stand the life, she pleaded for a chance to go away and be free and when the beast laughed in her face, she shot him.

John soothes her and when he learns that the man has come to disgrace her he vows to kill him. But the dawn breaks on two bodies washed in by the tide—Ralph and the stranger side by side.

JOKER.

THE WHOLE JUNGLE WAS AFTER HIM (Jan. 22).—Paul (Paul Bourgeois); Rosita (Mme. Bourgeois); Her Uncle (T. D. Crittenden).

Paul, a gilded youth, and his friends are out on the boulevard, when they see Rosita with her uncle. Rosita is an heiress and her uncle is owner of a large circus. The girl is accustomed to circus life and frequently assists the trainers in their occupation. Rosita makes a strong impression upon Paul and he determines to make her acquaintance.

Through a mutual friend Paul and Rosita meet and Paul becomes madly in love with the heiress. She holds him off, however, and tells him that her husband must be a brave man. Paul, to make a good impression, tells that he has often hunted wild beasts and narrates some

CAILLE
Ticket Office Equipments
Embody Ticket Sellers, Ticket Choppers, Change Makers, Theatre Record Ledgers and Theatre Tickets. Catalog on request.
CAILLE BROS. COMPANY, 1001 Amsterdam Ave., Detroit, Mich.

L. A. MOTION PICTURE CO.
Manufacturers of high grade studio equipment
215-217 E. Washington Street
LOS ANGELES, CAL.

Features For Sale
Write the largest film brokers in the country for your wants. We have everything. Dramatic, sensational, animal, Western. See us first.
Wisconsin-Illinois Feature Release Co.
Mallers Building, Chicago

MENGER & RING, Inc.
MANUFACTURERS OF
Poster and Lobby Display Frames
304-6 W. 42d St., NEW YORK
Phone Bryant 6621-22

The First Moving Picture Journal in Europe
The Kinematograph Weekly
The reliable Trade organ of Gt. Britain; covering the whole of the British Film market, including the American imported films. Read by everyone in the industry. Specialist writers for Finance, Technical Matters, Legal, Musical, Foreign Trading (correspondents throughout the world)—and every section devoted to the Kinematograph. Specimen copy on application to:—
The Kinematograph Weekly, Ltd.
9-11 Tottenham Street, London, W. Eng.

You Should Read Page 489

MINA COMEDIES
MAKE YOU PINCH THE FELLOW SITTING NEXT YOU
EVERY THURSDAY ON THE GENERAL FILM PROGRAM. BOOK THEM

The Greatest Scoop of the War!

On the Firing Line With the Germans

Showing: Storming Novo Georgeievsk—Fall of Warsaw—Great Seven-Day Battle—Battlefields from Aeroplane — Von Hindenberg's Great Drive — The Kaiser at the Front — Murderous Machine Gun Fire!

State Rights Selling

Showing: Smashing the Big Forts —Zeppelin Raids on Warsaw—Rain of Russian Shells—Fierce Infantry Assaults—Miles of Battling—Terrific Trench Struggles—Desperate Bayonet Charges !

There are dozens of so-called war pictures, but ours is authentic, consisting of 8500 feet of pulse-quickening scenes taken from automobile and aeroplane at the front by WILBUR H. DORBOROUGH, daring American Press photographer, who accompanied Von Hindenberg's army for seven months.

Ten weeks Chicago, auspices Chicago Daily News.
Five weeks St. Louis, auspices Times.
Two weeks Milwaukee, auspices Free Press.
Two weeks St. Paul, auspices Daily News, and closing for all of the big cities and daily newspapers.

Playing to enormous receipts wherever shown.

The camera does not lie. Mr. Dorborough is seen in at least 50% of the scenes on the film.

CHICAGO TRIBUNE ADMITS:—December 10th, 1915
"THERE ARE WAR PICTURES AND WAR PICTURES, BUT THE BLUE RIBBON GOES TO THOSE TAKEN BY DORBOROUGH."—KITTY KELLY.

FOR TERMS ADDRESS:

WAR FILM SYNDICATE, 308 Mallers Bldg., Chicago

vivid encounters. To carry out his boasts, he gets a collection of wild animal trophies which he distributes around his rooms.

That night Paul has a vivid dream in which the different stuffed animals come to life and he is finally treed by a ferocious tiger and just as the animal starts to devour him, wakes up with a scream.

Rosita has a vivid dream the same night and in it Paul proves to be a coward, the girl determines to prove the valor of her admirer. Securing a pet lion cub, she slips the beast into Paul's house and just as Paul starts out the door he comes face to face with it. With a terrified yell he drops hat, coat and cane and takes to his heels. The merry laughter of Rosita and the trainer halts him and he comes back ruefully. Rosita, having found her admirer wanting in bravery, refuses to have anything more to do with him and leaves him with the admonition that "Faint heart never won fair lady."

IMP.

VANITY, THY NAME IS? (Jan. 21).—The cast: Jane (Jane Gail); Harry (Matt Moore); Her Mother (Leonora Von Ottinger); The Boob (Al De Ball).

Harry and Jane are happily married, but Harry is worried over his wife's extravagance. He says nothing about it until, one day, on returning home, he finds his wife admiring several new gowns and hats.

He is horrified, protests at her extravagance and tells her he can't afford to pay the bill. This leads to a quarrel and Jane goes home. Harry follows, and finds her in her mother's arms.

The mother understands the situation, and plans a reconciliation. After getting her daughter out of the room, she tells Harry to leave it to her, and that he must not see Jane for one week.

Harry protests, but he leaves for home. The mother makes the daughter comfortable and pets her until dinner time. After dinner has been served she discharged the servant, and gives her daughter the servant's apron, telling her that she must wash the dishes.

Jane refuses, but it told that she must or return to her husband. In the throes of her false pride she determines to remain with her mother and begins her housework, but after having washed the dishes, she is taken to the servant's room and told she must sleep there.

From then on life is made so uncomfortable for her that one day she steals out of the house and returns repentant to her husband.

POWERS.

UNCLE SAM AT WORK, NO. 3 ("Are We Prepared?"—Jan. 8).—Many of the scenes thrown on the screen in this picture show phases of naval activities never before photographed. They are authentic pictures of the daily work of the sailors and officers in the North Atlantic Squadron, with close-up views of all the big ships of this fleet. All the drills, both on board the powerful dreadnoughts and while on land, give a clear idea of the routine life of the sailor in our navy.

The men are shown first at the Naval Training School, where they are being taught to heave the lead to determine the depth of the water and the nature of the bottom of the sea. Then there are numerous drills to perfect the new man in his duties. Many feet of this remarkable picture treats of our submarine fleet. A splendid view of a submarine going under the surface, a rare picture, is but one of the many features of this reel.

Most of the scenes on shipboard were taken on the battleships Delaware, Montana and New Jersey, three of the largest and most modern of all our fighting vessels. Not a single incident of interest in the lives of the men on board the ships has been left out, and the complete picture is an education to the uninitiated in the ways of the service.

One of the most wonderful pieces of photography in existence comes near the end of the reel. The photograph of a broadside was taken just after sunset. In the dusk and flashing through the heavy clouds of black smoke are seen spurts of flame from the mouths of the big guns.

REX.

THE SILENT MEMBER (One Reel—Jan. 18).—The cast: The Silent Member (Robert Leonard); Mr. Hangover (Marc Robbins); the Friend (Kingsley Benedict).

The silent member of the club is the occasion of many a conjecture because whenever the day is rainy he becomes sad and unhappy. One rainy day Mr. Hangover, who has indulged a little too freely in liquor, proposes to the silent man that he tell him his story. The silent man consents, and tells him that rainy days seem to always bring him bad luck. How, one rainy day, he had found a long lost friend, gave him money and helped him along; later on another rainy day he had run the same friend down with his automobile. After the accident the silent man paid all the expenses, saw that the friend's wife was made happy and even gave money for her household expenses.

Some time later, on a rainy day, he was served with a summons to answer to the complaint of his friend, who was suing him for damages, and that seemed to be the breaking point of all his troubles; rather than go through the routine of court work, the silent man settled the matter out of court and administered a sound thrashing to his friend, in addition to the money paid.

He closes his story and tells the members that whenever it rains he thinks of the misfortunes that happened to him on these days.

BISON.

BUCK SIMMONS, PUNCHER (Two Reels—Jan. 22).—The cast: Buck Simmons (Leon Kent); Sheriff Adams (Pat Rooney); Jessie Adams (Edna Maison); Dan Watson (Malcolm Blevin); Ted (Hart Hoxie).

Buck Simmons has long been calling on Jessie Adams, the sister of the sheriff. Buck has the middle watch of the night herd; and the pleasant thoughts of Jessie make the time pass quickly.

A stranger comes to the little Western town and announces to the sheriff that he is on the square and intends to conduct a "gentleman's game."

Jessie meets the gambler and finds much to admire in him.

As time goes on Jessie becomes infatuated with the gambler and neglects Buck.

Buck determines to watch the gambler as he realizes that the girl is attracted by the glamour which surrounds the man.

One day Big Ted is called down by the sheriff, and words follow. Both men draw, and the sheriff is mortally wounded. Big Ted escapes. Buck arrives at that moment and sets out upon the bad man's trail, determining to bring him back, dead or alive. He tracks the fugitive down, succeeds in wounding him, and later brings him back. The sheriff dies, begging the boys to elect Buck Simmons to fill the vacancy. Buck is elected, and gives satisfaction.

A short time after he takes the office, a sheriff from a neighboring county calls for aid in tracking a criminal and displays a postal giving a picture and description of the man. Buck recognizes the man as the gambler, whom Jessies seems to love. He decides to give the gambler a chance, and posts notices in such a manner that the gambler be warned. The gambler hurries to Jessie, and tells her that he is being hounded by Buck.

Buck follows the gambler to the girl's house, and Jessie hides the gambler in a closet. Buck commands the man to come forward. The gambler runs out, and Buck confronts him. The gambler tries to brazen out, but finally confesses that he is guilty. Buck agrees to give him an hour's start toward the border. The gambler takes advantage of this, and is successful in reaching the border unharmed.

Buck returns to the house, and finds comfort in Jessie, who has decided that Buck is the one she has loved all along.

Mutual Film Corp.

AMERICAN.

THE SILENT TRAIL (Two Parts—Jan. 18).—The cast: Frank Martin (Ashton Dearholt); Joe Mandott (Jack Prescott); John Hayward (Charles Newton); Helen Hayward (Nan Christy). Directed by Charles Bartlett.

Joe Mandott and Frank Martin are woodsmen. They come to work in a strip of wood, where John Hayward, an aged trapper, and his daughter Helen lead their lonely lives. The trapper is caught by the steel jaws of one of his own traps. Joe, hearing his cries for help, comes to his rescue. This leads to a friendship and the trapper often invites Joe to his cabin. Helen and Joe meet and eventually the girl promises her heart to the sturdy woodsman. Circumstances at length throw Frank, Joe's partner, into Helen's life. She finds she has more love for Frank than she has for Joe, but her sense of fealty and honor holds her to her betrothal.

Helen and Joe are married, and from the beginning of their life together Joe shows Helen nothing but insult and continual abuse. Frank knows how things are going, but is powerless to interfere. Driven to desperation, Helen leaves Joe's cabin and returns to her father. The old trapper is beside himself with anger when he hears the girl's story, and he vows that vengeance shall fall upon the head of his daughter's husband. Joe, enraged by Helen's desertion, goes in search of her. He and Joe meet and a fight ensues and Joe is given a thorough beating. He starts for his home alone in his canoe.

The aged trapper from a point on the bluff sees Joe paudling across the lake. He lifts his gun and is about to shoot when the sheriff of Mendino County arrives. He is searching for an escaped murderer, one John Bates, who had killed his wife some years before in his Eastern home. The old trapper recognizes the portrait that the sheriff shows him as that of Joe Mandott. He points out Joe to the sheriff and the officer shouts to Joe to surrender. Realizing that he has been discovered, Joe attempts

There Is a Great and Growing Demand for HIGH CLASS EDUCATIONAL FILMS
The biggest and best photoplay theatres in the country cheerfully give credit for much of their success to the Educational Subjects which they use with unfailing regularity.
We stand as pioneers in the business of assembling and distributing educational films
WE OFFER ONLY THE BEST—AND WE KNOW THE BEST WHEN WE SEE THEM!
Any Exhibitor Anywhere Will be Interested in "WHERE FOOTFALLS SELDOM SOUND"
An Unique American Adventure Series which We Have Arranged for Weekly Release.
"The Film Hunters," Released Friday, Jan. 7, Is Adventure No. 1.
Taken in the Columbia National Forest and on the Yakima Indian Reservation.
For Bookings Write or Wire
EDUCATIONAL FILMS CORP. OF AMERICA
No. 171 Madison Ave., New York City KATHERINE F. CARTER, President

For POSTERS
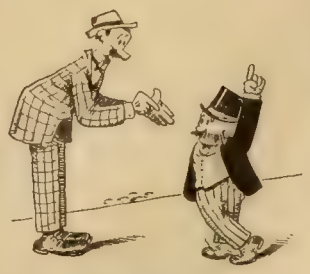
Goes Lithographing Co
Chicago

You, Particular Exhibitors
Do you ever stop to think of the importance of properly and correctly recording your business transactions?
ACCURATELY! CORRECTLY! SYSTEMATICALLY!
THE THEATRE RECORD LEDGER
Is a nationally known theatre man's bookkeeping and recording system. You can keep your entire week's receipts and expenses recorded all under one cover of 52 pages, or one year's records.
Sells Everywhere $2.50
(Include 20c. additional for postage.) Money refunded if wanted.
Northwestern Motion Picture Equip.Co.
J. V. Bryson, Pres. Minneapolis, U. S. A.



HERE AT LAST

Bud Fisher's

"Mutt and Jeff"

The most widely advertised comic feature in the world

Laughed at daily by 17,000,000 people through the medium of 200 newspapers, has been secured for the patrons of the movies

AT LAST

You see them in the papers, now see them come to life

300 feet animated cartoon each week

Under the personal direction of BUD FISHER
The highest priced comic artist in the world

FOR STATE RIGHTS

WIRE

MUTT and JEFF, (Inc.)

207 S. WABASH AVENUE, CHICAGO

to escape. The sheriff lifts his gun and fires. Frank and Helen, standing together at a point not far distant overlooking the lake, see Joe's canoe drifting by carrying his lifeless body along "the silent trail."

THE THUNDERBOLT (Jan. 21).—The cast: The Outcast (Helene Rosson); The Outlaw (E. Forrest Taylor); The Man (Charles Bartlett); The Sheriff (Frank Thorne). Directed by William Bertram.

The Outcast and the Outlaw, common victims of the Man's duplicity, are thrown together at a frontier saloon, where the Outcast, sick and hungry, goes for help. The Outlaw, taking advantage of the Sheriff's absence, goes for provisions. The Outcast finds no sympathy and is ordered out. The Outlaw champions her and holds up the place until she is fed and the men are made to dig up for her benefit. She recognizes the Man, who has just arrived to inspect his mines. The Outlaw gets away with the Outcast, in the face of the Sheriff, and carries her to his cabin, where she tells him the story of the Man whose lying promise has made her what she is. Under the friendly Outlaw's care, the Outcast recovers her strength and goes to take her vengeance on the Man, refusing the Outlaw's offer to avenge her, because she feels the vengeance must be hers. The Man falls a willing victim to her lure and follows her. They leave the town as the Sheriff starts on another search for the Outlaw. A storm comes up. The Man is induced to seek shelter at the Outlaw's cabin. As the men face each other the Outlaw recognizes his enemy and exclaims, "The vengeance is mine! His lying testimony made me what I am!"

The Man is given ten minutes to live and make what reparation he can for ruining two lives. His money is spurned. He writes a statement as the Outlaw's watch measures off his earthly moments, acknowledging that the sins of the Outlaw and the Outcast are on his own soul. Out in the rain, a shadowy figure rides ever nearer the object of its pursuit. The statement is finished. The Man awaits the inevitable moment. The Outlaw raises his gun to take his vengeance. Suddenly a bolt of lightning spits from the storm-swept sky and vengeance is removed from the hand of both Outcast and Outlaw.

Awed by this stroke of fate, they stumble out into the night and the sheriff, reaching the cabin, finds only a dead man lying across the table alone with his confession. Dawn discovers the Outlaw and the Outcast, whose destinies a common wrong had so strangely drawn together, rising to freedom and a new life.

BEAUTY.

JOHNNY'S BIRTHDAY (Jan. 19).—The cast: Johnny (John Sheehan); Carol (Carol Halloway); Motorman (John Steppling). Directed by James Douglass.

It is Johnny's birthday and his sweetheart, Carol, is giving a party in his honor. Johnny drops in at the club, en route to Carol's home to have "just one little drink." He breaks away a dozen times, but always is induced to return to have just one more, until at last Johnny and his friends are sadly the worse for alcoholic wear and tear. He musters his army of friends and insists that they accompany him to visit "the sweetest girl in all the world."

Outside is a string of taxis, which Johnny has ordered one at a time on the occasion of his various efforts to break away. His friends climb in and the procession moves off. Johnny's car bumps into a motorman, who is saloonward bound with a can in his hand. The motorman is plied with champagne and urged to attend the party, which he does.

They arrive at Carol's several hours late. The family is horrified at Johnny's condition and Carol promptly returns his ring. Meanwhile the motorman takes a personal dislike to a dapper young man, who is paying an evening call, and throttles that individual and "climbs all over his frame." Johnny departs, weeping alcoholic tears on the bosoms of his sympathetic friends. He takes the motorman with him to his home.

Next morning he is so sorry for the poor working man who must be on the job at 6:30 that he decides to substitute himself in the motorman's place and let the poor fellow sleep. Donning the motorman's clothes, Johnny sallies forth. He drives the street car madly down the street, injecting thrills of all sorts into his passengers and open-mouthed pedestrians who watch the flight of the wildly careening car.

Carol signals the car to stop. She and a minister step aboard; then Johnny sees his chance. Locking all the doors, he throws on full speed ahead and vows he will not touch a brake until Carol consents to marry him. She is not altogether unwilling and at length accepts, and there, in the speeding street car, the minister ties the knot. By this time the motorman has "slept it off" and he arrives and resumes his job without penalty, for Johnny's father is president of the street railway.

MISCHIEF AND A MIRROR (Jan. 23).—The cast: Maud (Neva Gerber); Fred (Wallace MacDonald); Tom (Dick Rosson); Maud's Father (William Carroll); Madame Pazzauzes (Lucille Ward). Directed by Archer McMackin.

Both Fred and Tom are head over heels in love with Maud, and she, poor girl, is at a loss as to which of the pair she will accept. She is advised to consult a fortune-teller, and goes forthwith to the tent abode of Madame Pazzauzes, a dusky reader of the past, present and future. The swarthy seeress shuffles the cards, then turns up three—the Jack of Clubs, Jack of Diamonds and Queen of Hearts. After a series of occult passes, Madame Pazzauzes instructs Maude to go to her home and at the hour of midnight to gaze into a mirror. There she will see reflected the face of the man she is to wed.

It is Hallowe'en. Maud gives a party. There are ghosts galore and sprightly fairies. As the witching hour of midnight approaches the guests depart and Maud hastens into her room to gaze into her mirror. Fred, who had overheard the fortune-teller's instructions, clambers in through a window and makes his way to Maud's boudoir. Tom, in the distance, sees Fred enter the window, thinks he is a burglar and calls a policeman. He and the bluecoat enter Maud's room and as Maud peers into the glass the face of Tom is reflected. The policeman pounces on Fred and Tom, coldheartedly, tells the minion of the law to do his duty. The commotion arouses Maud's father, who rushes into the room, pajama clad, to find his daughter in Tom's arms and Fred in the arms of the law.

SIGNAL FILM CORP.

THE GIRL AND THE GAME (No. 3—"A Life in Peril"—Two Parts—Jan. 10).—Helen learns the railroad stock left to her by her father is worthless. Segrue, given the location through a memorandum of Spike's, finds the missing survey. He renews his proposals to Helen, who, as before, refuses his attentions, whereupon Segrue pretends to tear up her stock, but is restrained by Waldo, who says, "Some day that stock will be worth its value."

Meantime, Spike is in jail for attempted murder. He writes Segrue that unless he is immediately liberated he will "squeal." Segrue hurries to the jail. As they talk Spike sees possibility of escape in the jailer's key. Hurriedly crushing some bread which he has been eating into dough, he covertly covers the key to his cell. He then passes the dough to Segrue with a significant glance.

The following day the trickery of this is apparent when Segrue passes into Spike a key made from the dough mold, also a linen duster and auto cap and goggles. It is a matter of an instant for Spike to put his arm through the bars and open the cell door. Spike lets himself down from the jail wall and makes his escape in Segrue's machine.

Scenarios Wanted

Two or more Reel Comedies for Equity Motion Picture Company featuring Billy B. Van and Beaumont Sisters.

Manuscripts Universal Society of Writers-Inc.
Literary Agents 220 Fifth Ave., N. Y.

HARRY K. LUCAS
"THE SUPPLY KING"
ATLANTA —— GEORGIA
THEATRES EQUIPPED THRUOUT. FIVE YEARS OF UNINTERRUPTED SUCCESS. 50 PAGE ILLUSTRATED SUPPLY CATALOGUE FOR THE OPERATOR OR MANAGER. WRITE.

Commercial Motion Pictures Co.
Cliffside 323 Grantwood, N. J.
Where printing is an art and Quality reigns supreme

"NEWMAN"
Brass Frames and Rails

NOW IS THE TIME to fix up your lobby. Throw out those unsightly old wood frames and invest in neat, attractive BRASS FRAMES. You will be surprised how quickly your investment will return to you.
But be sure the name "NEWMAN" appears on all frames—the guarantee of satisfaction.
Write for new 1916 catalog

The Newman Mfg. Co.
NEW YORK 101 Fourth Ave. CINCINNATI 717 Sycamore St. CHICAGO 108 W. Lake St.
Established 1882

It will be to your advantage to read page 489

RUN ROLIN PATHE FILMS AND MAKE YOUR AUDIENCE HAPPY.

MINA COMEDIES Make You Rip, Rear and Roar
EVERY THURSDAY ON THE GENERAL FILM PROGRAM. BOOK THEM

Nothing That We have said about

Seeburg Pipe Organs

has had as much influence on

Seeburg Sales

as the things which SEEBURG OWNERS say about them

→ READ THIS LETTER ←

NATIONAL M. P. THEATRE
Lucas, Iowa, Jan. 3, 1916.

J. P. Seeburg Piano Co.,
Chicago, Ill.

Dear Sirs:—

I think your instrument the most wonderful on the market and the instrument alone has increased my receipts at least 50 per cent.

You have my permission to use my name and testimony if you so desire.

Please get the music here as soon as possible, and oblige. Your very respt.

(Signed) CLIFFORD SMITH, Mgr.

A Seeburg Will Solve Your Music Problems

J. P. Seeburg Piano Company

Manufacturers

Republic Building, Chicago

SIMPLICITY • RELIABILITY • ENDURANCE
SEEBURG

BRANCHES:

New York	Boston	Pittsburgh	Atlanta	San Francisco
127 W. 65th St.	M. Steinert Sons 162 Boylston St.	431 Liberty St.	65 No. Pryor St.	52 Turk St.

A financial reverse has come to Helen. She is forced to abandon her home and tearfully dismisses her maid and servants. Her uncle offers her a home, but this she declines as she realizes she must make her own living now. The superintendent of the railroad establishes her as assistant to the agent at Signal.

Waldo in order to recoup his own and Helen's fortune again seeks to locate the survey. Segrue and his crowd in possession of the stolen survey plan begin work. Construction material, including two cars of dynamite and one car of powder, are shipped to Signal on a train of which Storm is the engineer.

Segrue, determined to harass Helen, sends Spike up to Signal station to commit any sort of deviltry that will interfere with the operations of Waldo's forces. When Storm brings in his train Spike sets fire to the axle box of one of the cars.

The crew unsuspectingly starts out with the train. Too late the fire is discovered, having spread so that two cars are enveloped in flames. The burning cars are cut off and backed under a water spout, but one of the cars was filled with crude oil and this the water spread over other cars. Suddenly the four cars start down the grade, two loaded with dynamite and one with powder.

Storm is on top of one of the cars with the crew. The cars picking up headway, the crew except Storm jump to the ground. A message is sent back to Signal warning of the runaway burning cars. Helen receives the warning and immediately evolves a rescue plan. She takes a rope and rushing outside climbs a tree, where she makes it fast. The other end is dexterously landed over a telegraph pole. As the burning cars come down the grade Helen climbs out on the rope. Storm, still fighting heroically to stop the cars with hand brakes, sees rescue ahead and as the cars speed underneath he makes a frantic leap and grasps the rope. Just as he does so the fire reaches the explosives and with a terrible din the four cars are rent to pieces.

THE GIRL AND THE GAME (No. 4—"Helen's Perilous Escape—Two Parts—Jan. 17).—Seagrue visits Helen Holmes, now operator at Signal Station, and finds her deeply interested in the promotion of Storm to drive "the pride of the road"—the fast express. Rhinelander, her uncle, is having difficulty in relocating the survey over Superstition Range, resulting in threats from his financial backers to withdraw their support.

Seagrue, grown arrogant by the apparent progress of his conspiracy against Rhinelander and Helen, sends the latter a photograph of himself taken in his office. Helen is about to tear the photograph to pieces when she notices the missing survey, shown in the photograph, lying on the desk at Seagrue's elbow. It was a trick of fate. Her first impulse was to telegraph the news to her uncle, but reflection gave her a plan. She would wait, feed Seagrue's egotism, obtain entrance to his office-hut and obtain the survey.

A party was arranged and Helen is received by Seagrue in his construction office. Helen searched the interior of the place with her eyes for a trace of the survey, but it was all in vain. Seagrue later opening a desk, Helen spies the survey tucked in a corner, but Seagrue, ever cunning, carefully locked the drawer again. Helen was growing nervous, for Seagrue was getting entirely too familiar. He dismissed the man who had been serving their dinner and Helen knew a test of courage was being rapidly forced upon her.

Despite his protests, Helen started to clear the table of its array of dishes. A scuffle followed and Helen, driven to desperation, with a superhuman effort brought a water bottle full across her assailant's forehead. He sank to the floor and Helen, quickly forcing open the desk, seized the survey and rushed out into the night. Arrived at the depot, she telegraphed Rhinelander: "Have blue print of survey. Will be on Limited."

But Seagrue was not yet undone. Recovering from the blow, he followed her to the depot. Seeing him she closed and locked the station door. Now another battle was on. Seagrue threw his weight against the door, but Helen had no thought of remaining a prisoner. She climbed out of a window and ran down the track. Seagrue followed. On the top of a cliff she was brought to bay. Seagrue advanced. She warned him back, but on he came. Then Helen plunged off the cliff into the ocean below.

Seagrue, spellbound, ran back and boarded the Limited for Oceanside after seeing Helen weathering her mad plunge, climb into a speed launch and start, as he had anticipated, for the same place. Then there ensued a race between the Limited and the sped launch. Aided by powerful glasses Helen saw Storm at the window of the Limited engine's cab. Grasping the cord of the air whistle, Helen screamed out "H—e—l—p!" in the Morse code. Storm hurriedly glanced back over his train, then at his whistle and finally his attention was attracted to the speed launch dropping gradually behind the train. He recognized Helen. Then came another whistled message from the launch: "Have survey. Seagrue on your train. Delay so I can reach Oceanside first."

Almost immediately the big Mogul slowed down. The fireman tried to persuade Storm it would cost him his job, but Storm laughingly replied, "My job is nothing compared to the help I must give that girl." Seagrue in his seat in the last car was plainly disturbed. Dashing forward with the conductor, Storm was encountered coolly working with wrench and hammer, while in the distance a speed launch was making the best of the delay. In Oceanside, Rhinelander was having the argument of his life with his backers. What they wanted was the survey, not telegrams about it. Seagrue instituted an inquiry as the self-appointed passengers' chairman and the fireman disclosed the messages between the speed launch and Storm. Seagrue and Storm mixed it a bit and finally the conductor ordered the fireman to take the train into Oceanside, landing then at the same time Helen clambered onto the dock and rushed to the office of the directors of the road where Rhinelander was awaiting her.

But Seagrue had Helen arrested and obtained the survey. Rhinelander was beaten. Storm, meantime, was suspended indefinitely. Very disconsolate Helen, her uncle and Storm boarded the launch to return to Signal. Suddenly her eyes became focussed on the canvas covering the deck of the boat. When she boarded the launch earlier in the day she had carefully laid the blue print out to dry. Now on the canvas she saw a reproduction of the survey. The launch was turned back to Oceanside and a pocket knife quickly gave them the much sought survey. The directors decided, upon seeing the canvas copy of the survey, to continue their support.

MUSTANG.

WILD JIM, REFORMER (Two Parts—Jan. 21).—The cast: Wild Jim (Jack Richardson); Helen (Lizette Thorne); Bill (E. Forrest Taylor); Bert (Frank Coolley). Directed by Frank Coolley.

Wild Jim is a bandit whose depradations have terrorized the Western country and for years has foiled the armed minions of the law who sought to capture him. Bill is a young prospector from the East, who has gone West to seek his fortune in the rugged mountains at civilization's border.

Helen, a mountain school teacher, has come West that she might escape the brutality of her husband, from whom she was forced to flee because of the weakness for alcohol displayed by this gentleman. Helen and Bill meet and become friends. Helen befriends Wild Jim, not knowing who he is, and the young woman's kindness makes an indelible impression upon the bandit.

Later, Bert, Helen's lawful husband, arrives at her cabin, having in some manner managed to trace her. He finds her in conversation with Bill, who has come to pay a call, and he covers them both with his pistol. Then Wild Jim happens on the scene and his formidable rifle muzzle deters Bert from carrying out his threat to shoot. Wild Jim then leads Bert away and the two agree to fight a duel. Fifty paces are measured off. The men face each other. Their weapons speak and Bert falls, never to rise again. Helen and Bill come upon Wild Jim as he is cutting another significant notch in the butt of his gun. With Bert dead, Bill declares his love and Helen accepts him. Helen urges Wild Jim to mend his evil ways and he promises. That night he leaves the scene of his depredations never to return.

Years elapse. Helen and Bill have grown gray. They are forced to seek lodging in a mountain cabin far from any other habitation. They sit before the fire with the aged mountaineer and relate the old story of their acquaintance with Wild Jim. As the narrative is finished the bent old mountaineer rises and from the wall he takes a weapon, which he hands to Helen. On the stock are fourteen notches. She recognizes the gun and then its owner. It is Wild Jim and he has kept his promise made to her those many years ago.

CUB.

JERRY IN MEXICO (Dec. 31).—The cast: Jerry (George Ovey); Black Gomez (George George); Sheriff (Jefferson Osborne); Mexican (Jefferson Osborne); first Mexican (Louis Fitz-Roy); second Mexican (Arthur Jackson); third Mexican (Joseph Von Meter); Farmer Brown (Robert Kenyon); Butler (Arthur Jackson); Bartender (Gordon MacGregor); Constable (Gordon MacGregor); Juanita (Belle Bennett); Agie (Louise Horner); Mexican Woman (Janet Sully).

Jerry has lost his job in the movies and is chased out of the United States into Mexico. He sneaks back over the line. His only support is a tree against which he is leaning. Here he reads and appropriates for future use a notice tacked thereto which offers a reward of $500 for the capture of Black Gomez, a bandit. At the boundary line post, one side reading "U. S." and the other "Mexico" he meets Farmer Brown who is staggering along the road under a heavy load of trouble. Jerry learns that Gomez has captured Brown's daughter Agie and robbed him; if Jerry saves his daughter he may have her for his wife, and Brown produces her photo. Jerry throws a sickly smile when he looks at it. With the reward in mind Jerry promises Brown, leans exhausted against the sign post, which, not being well secured, turns as he keeps turning with it, until the signs are in reverse position.

Jerry reaches a Mexican roadhouse which happens to be owned by Gomez. Gomez has brought in Agie and sent her to a room. All the girls fall in love with the flirtatious Jerry, but Juanita takes him to herself and entertains him royally. On reaching his room Jerry writes a note to Juanita saying he will be at her window later and fly with her. By

FOR GOODNESS SAKE see to it that after your negative has been exposed it is developed carefully and "Right."

INSIST THAT YOUR NEGATIVE BE HAND-CLEANED preparatory to printing.

BE SURE THAT THE NECESSARY TESTS ARE PROPERLY MADE AND ACCURATELY TIMED, so that when the positive is screen-inspected it shows full photographic value.

IN OTHER WORDS, GET "REEL" MANUFACTURING INSURANCE AT THE HOME OF PERFECT DEVELOPING AND PRINTING.

May We Send You Price List and Factory Description?

INDUSTRIAL MOVING PICTURE COMPANY

WATTERSON R. ROTHACKER, President

223-233 West Erie Street - - Chicago

Simplex

TRADE MARK PAT'D

THE PROJECTOR WHICH ENLIGHTENS and BRIGHTENS EVERY QUARTER of the GLOBE

SIMPLEX Projectors are used in China, Canal Zone, Philippine Islands, Hawaiian Islands and the Army Posts all over the United States.

ALL GOVERNMENT DEPARTMENTS ARE NOW DEMANDING

Simplex

TRADE MARK PAT'D

The PROJECTOR that received the UNANIMOUS APPROVAL of the U. S. GOVERNMENT WAR DEPARTMENT.

AND

GRAND PRIZE—PANAMA-PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION.

SEND FOR CATALOG "A"

MADE AND GUARANTEED BY

THE PRECISION MACHINE CO. INC.

317 East 34th St. New York

mistake he slips the note under Agie's door. Garbed in a female costume he finds in his room, Jerry boldly attempts to leave the house through the only exit, the barroom, but is chased by the irate Gomez and his pals. He evades them, returns and plants a ladder at what he believes Juanita's window. Just as he reaches the top of the ladder Juanita lets fly the contents of a water pitcher onto his head. Thinking he had made a mistake in the room, Jerry plants the ladder at another window, which proves to me Agie's, for she had found the note and was ready to flee and is heavily veiled. Close to the United States border they are held up by Gomez. Jerry points to the sign, Gomez is astonished to read "U. S.," weakly yields his gun to Jerry and obeys orders to step over the line—but really into the land of the free. Meeting a constable a little further on Jerry tells him about Gomez being in the United States, aids in his capture and gets the reward. With Agie still veiled Jerry hurries to a Justice of the Peace, but when she raises her veil he is almost prostrated, but manages to make a safe getaway on a constable's bicycle.

CASINO STAR.

HAM AND EGGS (One Reel—Jan. 16).—The cast: Willie Wandermind, a poor young artist ("Budd" Ross); the banker's daughter (Marie Weirman); her father (Phin Nares); the landlady (Katherine Sheldon).

Willie Wandermind, an impecunious young artist, loved Lucile, the banker's daughter, but his poverty was a handicap to his proposal.

When Lucile and her father came to call, Willie wished to conceal his poverty and painted a picture of Ham and Eggs on his plate for food. Lusile noted the deception.

When Willie asked her father for Lucile's hand, the banker told him he must accomplish something worth while within a week. Going to sleep, Willie dreamed that he had an order to paint the words "Ham and Eggs" all over New York. In his dream he painted these words everywhere—on the sidewalks, on top of the Woolworth Building, in Times Square, on the sky, etc., etc. He received a check for ten thousand dollars for his services, which was sufficient to win Lucile's hand.

Then he woke up to find his landlady about to eject him for not paying the rent. Just at that time, however, Lucile and her father arrived. She had told her father of Willie's straits, and the banker felt that the young artist was plucky enough to be taken into the family.

To fill Wilie's cup of happiness to overflowing, a waiter then appeared on the scene bearing a large tray with real Ham and Eggs.

THANHOUSER.

THE PHANTOM WITNESS (Three Reels—Jan. 19).—The cast: Girl (Kathryn Adams); Her Lover (Edwin Stanley); Her Guardian (William Burt); Officer Quinn (Samuel Niblack).

A miserly man, guardian of a girl, soon to be married has had charge of his ward's property so long that he regarded it as his own.

The girl's fiancee was the district attorney. She often came to the court room. Suddenly she died.

Her guardian had been very solicitous regarding her health. But there was the very significant fact that she bought the poison herself. No one had any reason to suspect the apparently heartbroken uncle, and a verdict of suicide was brought in.

As the district attorney sat alone in the court room the spirit of his sweetheart appeared to him, and told him the true story of her death. Her guardian had played upon her fears by placing rats under the flooring of the house. Nervous and terrified she had readily accepted the old man's suggestion that she go to the drug store and buy a drug to dispose of them, and then he contrived to slip part of the drug into the glass of water.

An inquiry was instituted, but all witnesses were positive that the girl had committed suicide until the old guardian was called to the stand. The merciless cross-examination of the district attorney surprised and terrified the guilty man. Facts concerning the girl's death which he thought no one else knew were in the possession of the relentless prosecutor. It seemed to the murderer that the dead girl stood beside him as her sweetheart hurled question after question at him. Finally, terrified and cowering, the guilty wretch was imprisoned.

MUTUAL.

MUTUAL WEEKLY, NO. 54 (Jan. 13).—Oakland, Cal.—Frank Steinbacher thrills thousands in daring "slide for life."

Seville, Spain.—The Infanta Isabelle comes here on a visit.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—Explosion on steamer kills 9. Naphtha fumes on oil tanker "Aztec" ignite with disastrous results.

Barcelona, Spain.—King Alfonso's artillery in action. Manoeuvers of the 9th regiment.

San Francisco, Cal.—Magnificent new city hall is dedicated. Subtitle: Mayor Rolph opens the doors of the new building.

Revere, Mass.—New England swept by hurricane. Terrific Nor'easter wrecks roller coaster here.

Washington, D. C.—Congressman Frank Buchanan is charged with conspiracy to foment strikes in American munition plants. His arrest is delayed.

Winchendon, Mass.—New York and Boston society folk at winter carnival. Snow sports season in full swing.

Washington, D. C.—Lord and Lady Aberdeen attend American civic convention here.

San Francisco, Cal.—U. S. Army has new commander. Major-General Bell takes command of the Department of the West.

Boston, Mass.—"Fido" visits the dentist to have his teeth fixed up. The world's only dental clinic for animals is conducted by the Angell Memorial Hospital.

Alexandria, Egypt.—P. & O. liner torpedoed. The "Persia," unwarned, sank in five minutes. Late reports indicate over 300 pessengers perished, among the number being U. S. Consul McNeely.

Cambridge, Mass.—Harvard athletes start first outdoor winter practice.

London, Eng.—British cruiser sunk. "The Natal" goes down with over 300 of her crew.

New Orleans.—Sport of Kings takes center of stage. Winter race meeting opens here. Subtitle: They're off!

Philadelphia, Pa.—Day laborer's invention passes official tests. Poor negro invents R. R. mail receiver and expects to become a millionaire.

Chicago, Ill.—Fred Fulton, the Rochester giant, says he will vanquish Jess Willard. Title match will take place at an early date. Subtitle: Mr. Fulton demonstrates some of his punches exclusively for the Mutual Weekly.

Clinton, La.—Minnesota's Governor dies suddenly. Winfield Scott Hammond dies while visiting here.

Birmingham, Ala.—Sheriff Batson destroys 5,000 gallons of liquor here. State-wide prohibition for eight states during 1916.

SIMPSON SEAMLESS SOLAR SCREEN FOR Perfect Projection

SIMPSON'S CELEBRATED SLIDES

Write for Free Projection Information

A. L. SIMPSON INC.
113 W. 132d St.
New York City

Patented June, 1908

FALSTAFF.

GRACE'S GORGEOUS GOWN (One Reel—Jan. 18).—The cast: Grace (Louise Emerald Bates); Young Lifeguard (Bert Delaney); Lawyer (Riley Chamberlin); Old Maid (Frances Keyes).

Grace was a poor stenographer. Among Grace's relatives was an aunt of a peculiar disposition. She owned a dressmaking business, and had plenty of time to hate her various kinsfolks. She hired a lawyer by the month and kept him busy making out new wills. When she finally died eleven wills were found, and the heir under No. 11, a disagreeable old maid, took possession. But soon afterward a later will was found, and under this Grace inherited.

Grace was delighted with her inheritance. It consisted of many pretty dresses, and she determined to wear them all herself. So she hired a maid, engaged a private express car, and went to Whirlpool Beach to astonish the natives. In the course of her visit she met a handsome young lifeguard, and it was a case of love at first sight. Will No. 13 was found, and the cousin she had dispossessed, again inherited. The vengeful woman went to Whirlpool Beach, seized all Grace's gowns, and left her alone in the world, with only a bathing suit and an unpaid hotel bill. Then the lifeguard said tenderly, "Marry me. You can help in my work, and you will need no other clothes until winter."

She accepted him and they were married.

PETE'S PERSIAN PRINCESS (One Reel—Jan. 20).—The cast: Pete (Claude Cooper); Princess (Ethel Jewett); Millionaire (Arthur Bauer).

Before the mansion of the millionaire rug collector, Pete, the tramp, decided that it was time to get some food. He saw an auto coming from the house and decided to get "run over." He does; but the driver never notices. He then makes love to a Persian beauty in another car and is induced to help steal back a sacred rug from the millionaire. Pete showed to the beauty's armed servants the millionaire in a high hat. The princess gives her orders; but a sudden gust of wind blew off the hat. Pete tried to return it, but the millionaire was so impressed with the honesty of the tramp he refused to take it. Then the Persians jumped for the hat. Poor Pete got it good and was rescued by the millionaire. At that the princess falls into the millionaire's arms.

Then the rug collector took the girl for a bite to eat at a convenient inn. Pete, tired of his bumps, went to sleep on the rug while the princess was enjoying herself. He proposed and she accepted. They are married.

The faithful Persians went back to the home of the millionaire and stole the rolled-up rug, not noticing that the sleeping Pete was rolled up inside of it. They brought it back at the conclusion of the wedding ceremony and dumped the tramp on the floor at the foot of the princess.

BY EXHIBITORS, FOR EXHIBITORS

Here are the details about

THE GRAND EXHIBITORS' MEETING at Hotel Ten Eyck, Albany, N. Y., March 1 and 2

Every Motion Picture Exhibitor in New York State is cordially invited

The One Object: To Protect Our Investment, Large or Small

PROGRAM

The meeting will be called to order at the Hotel Ten Eyck at 10.30 A. M., by State President Lee A. Ochs

Address of Welcome, by state or city official.

Organization of the meeting, election of officers of the meeting, appointment of committees.

Recess at 1 o'clock.

Address, "The Present Perils of Censorship in New York State," by W. Stephen Bush.—Discussion and Suggestions.

Address, "Constructive Legislation for the New York State Exhibitor," by Lee A. Ochs, State President.

Address, "State Organization," by Samuel H. Trigger, National Vice-President.

MARCH 2nd

10:00 A. M.—Address, "Organization," by Frederick J. Herrington, National President of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America.

Discussion and Applications for Membership.

11:30 A. M.—Address, "The Sunday Entertainment in New York State," by a prominent clergyman whose name will be announced later.

Recess

2:30 P. M.—"The Needs and the Just Grievances of the Exhibitor." Address by Mr. L. F. Blumenthal, a New York exhibitor.

On this subject general discussion is invited. Methods of payment, protection of exhibitor in contracts and other vital matters will be taken up and some definite action will be taken.

Meeting Will End With Banquet at 8 P. M.

There are Two Bills threatening the welfare of the industry in this State: Censorship and Sunday Closing

This Grand Meeting of Motion Picture Men will be proof to the lawgivers at Albany that the exhibitor knows his rights and will fight for them

LEE A. OCHS,
President New York State Exhibitors' League.

MASTERPICTURE DE LUXE.

VENGEANCE IS MINE! (Centaur—Five Reels—Jan. 31).—The cast: John Loring, candidate for Governor (Crane Wilbur); Richard Loring, his brother (Carl VonSchiller); Stanley Clark, a social gangster (Brooklyn Keller); Robert Grey, a merchant (William Jackson); Marion Grey, his daughter (Gypsy Abbott); District Attorney (A. B. Ellis); Warden of the Penitentiary (H. C. Demore); Assistant Warden (C. A. Foster); Officers (M. D. Moran, S. Murphy); City Editor (F. A. Johnson); Priest (C. W. Mills); Prisoner (B. H. Benny); Mrs. Decker (Miss Roberts); Telegraph Operator (R. M. Iliff); Governor's Aide (Capt. James Gunn); Governor's Staff (W. H. Morrison, E. Hunt, W. K. Fletcher, W. A. Aubrey).

Stanley Clark, a social gangster, holds evidence of a compromising episode in the early life of Marion Grey, later the wife of John Loring, Governor of the State. In return for his silence Clark demands blackmail. Richard Loring, the governor's brother, overhears Clark's threats and, on the night the money is to be turned over, follows Mrs. Loring to Clark's chambers.

Mrs. Loring has been unable to raise the sum and pleads with Clark for time. Richard Loring, at the door, knocks. Mrs. Loring is hidden by Clark behind a pair of velvet curtains. Clark refuses Richard's demand for the return of the evidence and a fight follows, in the course of which Clark is heavily thrown against the curtains, exploding the gun which Mrs. Loring has just picked up from a desk, and killing him.

Richard assumes full responsibility and faces a charge of murder. He is tried, convicted and sentenced to be electrocuted.

Richard's brother, the governor, finds he is helpless to interfere.

Meanwhile Marion has remained silent and the day set for Richard's execution approaches. No longer able to bear the strain and seeing Richard's last hopes dying, Marion, on the eve of the day of execution, hurries to her husband. She tells the truth of the accident.

The governor demands the complete story. As it is unfolded he is horrified at thought of the sacrifice of his innocent brother. He tries to telephone the penitentiary but the warden and an attendant, mortal enemies of the governor, have cut the wires. He then jumps into his automobile and races against time to the prison, arriving just before the fatal current is applied.

Soon after the newspapers report that following the pardon of his brother the governor relinquished his office and disappeared with his family who, as the picture closes, are seen on their way to a place where the past will be forgotten.

THE BAIT (Centaur—Five Reels—Jan. 22).—The cast: Margot, "the bait" (Betty Hart); Bruce Powell, a trapper (William Clifford); Ed. Mitchell, "a stranger," who plays a part in the drama (Oliver C. Allen); Tom Sloan, a gambler, Margot's husband (Frederick Montague); "Old Bill" Prewitt, Margot's father (Edward Alexander); Greta, a child of the neighborhood (Marvel Spencer).

Symbolisms:

"The Trap."

Scene 1—A bear trap on the ground; a man's hand enters the picture from above, presses down the jaws, shows how they work, and as they spring back into place his hand begins to scatter the leaves over the trap.

Scene 2—Close-up of a saloon doorway, showing the swing doors opening in and springing back to place. The movement is the same as the bear trap.

"The Bait."

Scene 3—A bear trap is shown on the ground covered with leaves. A man's hand enters from above with a leg of meat. He holds it above the trap for a moment then lays it gently on the trap.

Scene 4—The saloon swing doors are again drawn back by unseen hands and as they open just wide enough to make a panel in center of picture "Margot, the bait," is shown sitting on the edge of a table, and talking and laughing to unseen people.

"The Game."

Scene 5—Close-up is shown of rocky background. A puma is shown coming from behind the rocks with a snarl.

Scene 6—Close-up of exterior of barroom doors. Camera shows Ed Mitchell, the stranger, half intoxicated and a man's hand on his shoulder trying to lead him into the barroom. He registers disinclination, laughs in maudlin manner. Man's hand urges him in. Camera then shows Tom, the gambler, with his arms reaching out toward Mitchell; he opens doors and gently pushes Mitchell through.

The story opens in a symbolic vein—the bait, the game, the trap. The analogy is drawn between the catching of big game with the usual bait in the trap, and the luring of big game with the bait of lovely but pathetic Margot, victim of a low man whom she believes to be her husband, and who has her in his power through a hold upon her father.

The bait is sent into the saloon to fleece "the stranger" with the big roll. He discovers the game, the trap and the bait and a shooting fray takes place. Tom, the gambler, is badly wounded, and his partner in the game, "Old Bill," is slightly injured. Margot, believing Tom dead, escapes with her father.

The scene then switches to the big trapping vicinity of which Bruce Powell, the trapper is the big man. He is shown trapping pumas.

"Old Bill" and Margot make their way across country. A trap has been laid for game and "Old Bill," stumbling with exhaustion and illness, falls into it. Margot's screams attract Powell, who hurries to the scene. He carries the old man to his cabin where he expires after confessing to Margot that Tom was not her husband.

The trapper soon learns to love the girl. Four months later they are happily married when the vultures, headed by Tom, arrive in the community, having exhausted the old fields.

The wages have been dissipated and the next check being belated the trappers mutter and rebel against Powell, the paymaster, holding him responsible. Powell draws his own earnings from the bank and by anouncing that the money is forthcoming stems the tide of rebellion.

The father of Greta, the child of a neighbor, cared for by Margot, spends his hours in the saloon gambling and drinking. Margot, with Greta, goes to the saloon to get the derelict and is discovered by Tom. He follows her to her cabin. Powell has placed his money in his home for safekeeping. Tom makes Margot give him the money while Powell is absent.

Arriving home he discovers his loss and attributes the crime to some outsider. The men, hearing of it, are calmed by the arrival of the belated payroll.

Meantime, Tom fleeces the trappers of their remaining wages.

Powell comes to the saloon and announces that the men are to be paid. Tom recognizes the purse of Margot, which Powell carries, and makes reflections upon Margot's character. Powell threatens to kill him if he finds he lies.

In the meantime the trappers have left the bunk house for the paying station. Tom steals the money which the trappers have pooled from their earnings, leaving the big knife of Powell to deflect the blame.

Tom then goes to Powell's cabin and demands that Margot turn over the money to him. She promises to meet him later with the money. Mitchell, the stranger, who also comes to the community, overhears the conversation.

Margot meets Tom. The scene is witnessed by Powell from the distance. Margot leads Tom to a trap, killing him.

The trappers, receiving no money and finding their fund stolen, suspect Powell trough finding his knife. They hurry to string him up and find him lifting the dead Tom from the trap. Mitchell suggests that they search the body of Tom. The stolen money is found.

Mitchell then looks at the fainting Margot and the stricken trapper. He leads the mob away from the scene, saying that the settlement is between these two souls. Powell's arm goes around Margot in love and protection and they go toward their cabin.

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

PATHE NEWS NO. 1 (Jan. 1):

New York City.—A thousand-foot pier, costing $2,600,000 and capable of berthing the largest ocean liner, is being constructed in the North River. Subtitle: (1) Great difficulty is encountered in blasting for the foundations below the river level.

Vosges Mountains, France.—The famous Alpine Chasseurs are rushed by train to help repel a concentrated German attack. Subtitle: (1) After detraining the troops are quickly on the move.

Washington, D. C.—Delegates of the Pan-American Union gather in the Capital to discuss the war's effects on our trade relations with South America. Subtitle: (1) John Barrett, Director of the Union.

Spokane, Wash.—Bridge over Spokane River collapses under weight of traffic, killing six persons and injuring many others. Subtitle: (1) Street cars, with their human freight, fall fifty feet into the wreckage.

Aboard a French Submarine in the Dardanelles.—Exclusive pictures taken by Pathe's Correspondent with the French Fleet. Subtitle: (1) The $5,000 Whitehead torpedo, driven by a delicate compressed air engine, is tested before being placed aboard the submarine; (2) A special exploding cutter is the latest device to enable the torpedo to pierce defensive nets; (3) Keeping a nerve-racking watch for enemy mines and warships, the cruising submarine sights her prey and immediately submerges; (4) Only the periscope, the precious eye of the submarine, remains above the water; (5) of prominence in any sized picture can be furnished instantly—WIRE US YOUR WANTS—If you fail to display the face of a popular player who is appearing at your house, you are overlooking an opportunity for larger receipts. THE FACE OF A WELL-KNOWN PLAYER prominently displayed will draw more money than the mere announcement of a name.

ALL THE PLAYERS

LARGE HAND COLORED PICTURES

Size 22 x 28 inches, 75 cents each. Every prominent player.

FAC-SIMILE OIL PAINTINGS, all sizes, from $8 to $25 framed. Quotations submitted on any size, framed or unframed.

THE SEMI-PHOTO POST CARDS, $3.00 PER THOUSAND, of over 600 players. The indispensable article for your mailing list.

PHOTOGRAPHS, SIZE 8 x 10, of all the prominent players; 600 different names, 20c. each.

LARGE PICTURES, HAND COLORED, size 11 x 14, all the prominent players, $2.00 per dozen; in aluminum frames, 50c. each.

GRAVURE FOLDER, containing pictures of the prominent players, including stars from the stage, $8.50 per thousand.

SINGLE COLUMN CUTS of every prominent player, 40c. each.

KRAUS MFG. CO.

220 West 42nd Street, NEW YORK

12th Floor Candler Building

Send for Catalogue of over 600 players and samples free. Write us, giving details of your dull nights, and we will send you a remedy.

PICTURE MACHINES

AT LESS THAN HALF PRICE

EDISON MODEL B, everything new but head, which is entirely rebuilt $100, cost new $225.—MOTIOGRAPH $85, cost new $185.—POWERS 6-A with motor, everything new but head, which is rebuilt, $230, or $185 without motor. Powers No. 5 head on new 6-A outfit, $150. All machines guaranteed first-class condition and complete in every detail, ready to run picture. Lenses to fit any size picture desired.—NEW RHEOSTATS with all machines. Ft. Wayne and B. & H. Inductors, $30 extra with machine in place of Rheostats.—SIMPLEX machine used in sample room display thirty days, $255. Bargains in many other machines; send for complete list Opera and Folding Chairs, all kinds, new and slightly used. Operating Booths that pass inspection.—PICTURE CURTAINS, $5. ROLL TICKETS 7½c. per thousand. Film Cement and Machine Oil 15c. a bottle. All makes and sizes of Carbons. Orders filled same day received.

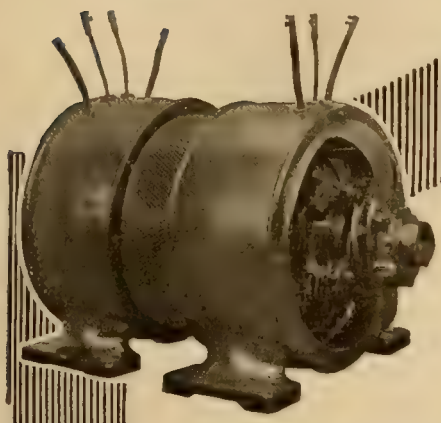
LEARS THEATRE SUPPLY CO.

509 Chestnut Street St. Louis, Mo.

Tell Your Motion Picture Sales Story in THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD which Speaks Authoritatively to the ENTIRE Trade Each Week.

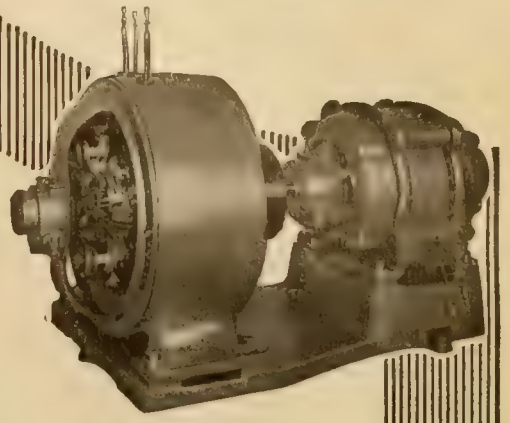
BETTER LIGHT

LESS CURRENT



The DC Compensarc lowers the voltage of a direct current supply to that required at the lamp without needless waste.

The AC Compensarc cuts ⅔ from your lighting bill if you use alternating current.



The AC to DC Compensarc will transform alternating into direct current and reduce the voltage at the same time without needless waste.

No matter what current you have---Alternating or Direct---or what voltage or frequency, one of the will enable you to secure a light that will give those clear, bright pictures that everybody now demands.

FORT WAYNE COMPENSARCS

What's the use of paying extra money for special screens, projecting machines, and first run films and then spoil the whole result with poor light? With the Fort Wayne Compensarcs you can get any kind of light you want regardless of the kind or quality of your current supply.

The Compensarcs will give you

STEADY LIGHT. No flickering, no sputtering, even when changing intensities or from one machine to another.

WHITE LIGHT. No yellow streaks, no ghosts.

BRIGHT LIGHT. Three times the light with two-thirds the current.

They are safe, efficient, easy to operate, fool proof and reliable.

FORT WAYNE ELECTRIC WORKS
OF GENERAL ELECTRIC COMPANY
1702 BROADWAY
FORT WAYNE, INDIANA

Compensarcs are so commonly found in motion picture theatres that many people now call all current saving and transforming devices by that name.

But Remember

If it isn't a FORT WAYNE *it isn't a "COMPENSARC"*

Send TODAY for this FREE descriptive booklet

The torpedo is dispatched on its deadly mission; (6) The submarine rises to discover the effect of her shot.

Piedras Negras, Mexico.—Carranza troops formally take possession of Villista headquarters after Villa abandons the town. Subtitle: (1) Box cars with holes cut in the side provide crude "armored cars" and also traveling homes for the soldiers.

Revere Beach, Mass.—Scenic railway is completely wrecked when a violent 70-mile-an-hour hurricane sweeps this famous summer resort.

PATHE NEWS NO. 2 (Jan. 5):

Chicago, Ill.—Mysterious explosion, followed by fire, destroys oil company's plant, which covered four city blocks.

Mansfield, Ill.—A huge shipment of 32,000 live geese starts for New York to satisfy the Eastern demand for the succulent bird.

Spring Fashions.—Courtesy of Lesher Whitman & Co. Subtitles: (1) A simple costume of Angora taffeta with pleated back; (2) Green and white awning striped afternoon costume of Spanish origin with highstanding Velasquez collar; (3) A costume of grey military suiting with full organ pipe folds and two pockets; (4) A beautiful three-piece costume of Spanish 17th century design with Toreador shoulder cape and full cuff.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Multi-colored costumes of beauty and burlesque appear in the Annual Mummer's Parade. Subtitles: (1) Jack McGalester of the Klein Club is one of the leading ladies; (2) A gruesome attempt at an original costume; (3) Fourteen "war brides" distribute their "easy money" along the route; (4) The peace party is well represented.

Aboard a Russian Seaplane.—Special pictures by the Pathe Correspondent with the Russian Navy. Subtitles: (1) With pilot and observer on board, the seaplane starts on a reconnoitering trip; (2) Flying at a low altitude, the observer watches for any sign of military activity in the town below; (3) The results of his observation are signaled to a Russian gunboat; (4) Its mission accomplished, the seaplane returns.

Cambridge, Mass.—Harvard's hockey team takes advantage of the ice for the first outdoor practice of the season.

Troy, N. Y.—State dam on the Hudson River near here is destroyed by dynamite to allow the pent up waters to flow into the new Barge Canal.

Centralia, Wash.—Many families are driven from their homes when the Skookum Church river overflows its banks and floods the town.

Ocean Park, Cal.—Fire destroys this popular resort for the second time in three years, causing $200,000 damage. Subtitle: (1) All that is left of the Esquimau village.

Los Angeles, Cal.—Auto speed kings contend for prizes at opening of the new Ascot Motor Speedway. Subtitle: (1) Barney Oldfield races with a curious forward drive machine.

MADAME X (Gold Rooster—Five Parts—Jan. 14).—It is just one year after her marriage to Floriet that Jacqueline feels the first pangs of regret. They are really happy with their son Raymond, but she wants the attention, love and caresses which Floriet is unable to give because of the time and attention he gives his law books—for her sake. Craving the love her husband is too busy to supply, she clandestinely meets Eugene, a former lover, and Floriet sees everything. Disregarding her pleas, Floriet sends her away. A very short time later Eugene meets with an accident and poor Jacqueline is left alone. She returns to Floriet's house to see little Raymond and again Floriet drives her away. Unable to secure work, and desperate for want of food, she accompanies Manuel Garcia, a disreputable Cuban, to Havana. Sweethearts are plentiful and Garcia soon tires of Jacqueline.

In the depths of degradation, she is about to end it all, when she meets Laroque, a runner for Perrisard and Merrival, shyster lawyers in Bordeaux. With him she returns to France. In Bordeaux, in the Hotel of the Three Crowns, she tells him her past, omitting to give her husband's name. When the lawyers come to the hotel to transact business with their employee, he tells them of Jacqueline, of her former social position in Paris, and most important of the dowry which her husband failed to return to her. Laroque's preparations to go to Paris to search for her husband crazes her with the thought that her son will know of her degradation and she kills him.

Raymond Floriet, her son, now an advocate, is appointed to defend Jacqueline, who, because of her refusal to divulge her identity, is known to the police as Madame X. Before his father as judge, Raymond defends Madame X, his own mother.

Thanks to the eloquent pleading of her son, Jacqueline is acquitted. Then in a tragic scene old Floriet holds out his arms, a light of forgiveness in his eyes—but too late for her to see. She no longer sees, nor hears, nor will she—"here below."

THE RED CIRCLE NO. 5 ("Weapons of War"—Two Parts—Balboa—Jan. 15).—The red circle, a birthmark peculiar to the criminal Borden family and thought to be extinct, is seen on the back of a woman's hand by Max Lamar, crime specialist. This woman is June Travis, interested in social reforms and well known to Lamar. June steals some usurious notes from a loan shark and notifies his victims of the destruction of the paper, which relieves them of obligations to the broker. Mary, June's old nurse, sees the red circle on her ward's hand and tells her that she is the daugher of old Borden. At June's home, on a friendly visit, Lamar sees a piece of one of the lost notes and June offers to show him where she found it.

Mary diverts attention from June by donning the latter's coat and goes on the street. Max sees and pursues her, but she makes her escape. However, in taking refuge in a garage, the coat catches in the door. But June, while Lamar is not near, tears the label off the garment. Later, in man's garb, Miss Travis by a clever ruse obtains the coat from the police. Lamar, baffled, tries to obtain from "smiling" Sam Eagan, a cobbler, reformed crook and jewel fence, some knowledge of the Borden clan, but fails. Eagan later sends a confederate. Alma La Salle, having painted a red circle on her hand, goes to the ball at the Hotel Surfton. The Travises have come to Surfton for the season, and while on the beach one day June comes across in a shanty two men dickering for the sale of a high explosive. Thrusting her hand through the open window, she gets the formula and disappears. But the red circle on her hand is seen by the man. Lamar is sent for and what he discovers will be told in the next episode. It is called "False Colors."

RAILROAD CONSTRUCTION ON THE DARK CONTINENT (Photocolor—Jan. 17).—Railroad construction in Africa as shown by these pictures is decidedly primitive in comparison with the European and American methods. The difficulties of transporting machinery and the cheapness of native labor make it inadvisable to install modern machinery. Notwithstanding the handicap of unskilled labor and the inadequate facilities, these pictures show that many commendable feats of engineering are performed.

THE LIZARD (Colored—Globe—On same reel as foregoing).—Those of us who were fortunate enough to enjoy a ramble through the woods at some time or other may have seen a bright green little reptile scurry across our path. This spot of color usually marked with several white stripes across the back is the green lizard. This picture shows the most interesting points in connection with this well known but little studied reptile. It shows that it is insectivorous, is easily trained, and is valuable to farmers, etc.

LONESOME LUKE LOLLS IN LUXURY (Phunphilms—Jan. 19).—Luke and his companion, Tin-horn Tommy, are now able bodied seamen cast away on the rocks of some unfamiliar island. While sunning themselves on a large boulder musing of the biscuits, salt pork and lime-juice that were stored away in the ship's poop they are set upon by two vicious-looking individuals who with spears in their hands order them to do a double quick away from the beach.

Soon they are brought before the chief of the place, who orders the two to guide a large palm leaf through the air above the heads of his wives, who total in all about six, so that the ladies might not feel the effects of the tropical sun. The men soon lose control of their optics and the ladies are very willing that they stop work and sit down to a little tete-a-tete. This so angers the chief that he orders them to amuse his baboon-like wife who has been ostracised by the others. Luke in his turn shows resentment and forces the chief to abdicate in his favor. As chief he seeks the good graces of a pretty white girl, but her sweetheart nearby offers very sturdy objections. The chief again becomes master and our heroes are glad of the opportunity to swim toward home and we leave them returning to our shores.

THE LOVE TRAIL (Jan. 21).—Lynette Mildare, an orphan, was thrown into the hands of an unscrupulous tavernkeeper. It was at the age of six that she became a nameless kitchen maid. Despite the humble surroundings she grew up into beautiful womanhood, and was compelled to flee to escape the sordid life of her master.

She wandered about the Veldt for hours, until hungry and exhausted, she sank into a slumber. A group of nuns discovered her lying prostrate on the field and took her to their convent, where she was educated and mothered by the only friends she had ever known since her parents' death.

HALLBERG

20th CENTURY MOTOR GENERATOR

GIVES BEST LIGHT

Costs Only

$249

For 30 to 70 Amp. D. C. Capacity.

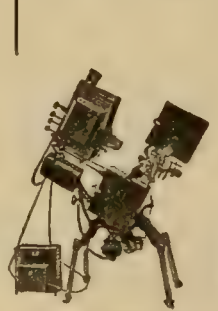
$20 extra for control for (2) 30 to 40 amp. arc's—or $50 extra for control for (2) 30-40 amp. arc's on fine switchboards with volt and amp. meters and special field rheostat—No live part on front of boards.

For 110 or 220 volt, 60 cycle, 2 or 3 phase A. C. Line. For single phase, $40 extra.

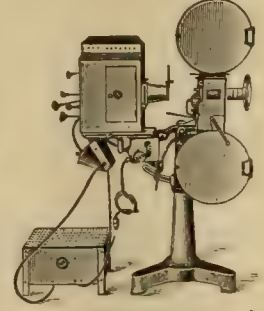
Weight, 450 lbs. Height, 15″ Width, 15″; Length, 28″.

Other Sizes and Styles of All Kinds—Quoted Upon Request

I am distributor of all makes moving picture machines and furnish everything complete for the theatre, new and used apparatus.



POWER'S 6A



"SIMPLEX"

Send for Free Circulars and Catalogues, but for Hallberg's Big 100-page Catalogue, send 25 Cents.

I EQUIP THEATRES COMPLETELY AND CARRY ALL MAKES CARBONS AND SUPPLIES.

Send $2.50 for latest Operators' Book "MOTION PICTURE ELECTRICITY"

J.H. HALLBERG SWEDISH ELECTRICAL ENGINEER

38 East 23d St. The House of Quality New York

The Speer Laboratories

have overcome the difficulties in the design and manufacture of a perfect projector carbon—It has always been contended that it was impossible to produce a carbon equal to the imported carbons but now Uncle Sam through the

Speer Carbon Company is able to produce his own carbons equal to the best in the world—

Place your orders now—The shortage will soon be felt all over the country—then you may be up against it.

First Come First Served

TRADE MARK

We fill Sample Orders for 100 Carbons Pro Rata at the Prices Quoted.

NET CASH PRICES

½x12, cored, pointed both ends	$37.50 per M.	(1,000 in a case)
9/16x12, cored, pointed both ends	$40.00 per M.	(1,000 in a case)
⅝x12, cored, pointed both ends	$50.00 per M.	(1,000 in a case)
¾x12, cored, pointed both ends	$70.00 per M.	(1,000 in a case)
⅞x12, cored, pointed one end	$115.00 per M.	(500 in a case)
1x12, cored, pointed one end	$150.00 per M.	(500 in a case)

Our Speer Carbons are absolutely guaranteed to give satisfaction or money back

SPEER CARBON CO. DEPT. "W"

(Makers of Carbon for Electrical purposes during the past 25 years)

SAINT MARY'S, PA.

For Sale by Leading M. P. Machine Distributors, Including the Following:

J. H. HALLBERG, 36 East 23rd Street, New York, N. Y.

E. E. FULTON CO., 154 W. Lake Street, Chicago, Ill.

KLEINE OPTICAL CO., 166 N. State St., Chicago, Ill.

War came and the frontier town was garrisoned by British troops. Lynette had reached the stage of womanhood, when she met Lord Beauvayse, who came to order the evacuation of the convent. He wooed and won her, obtaining the sanction of the nuns.

In that town there lived a ruin of a man named Dr. Owen Saxham. His reputation as a drunkard earned for him the title of "The Dop Doctor." His evil instincts were conquered by his love of the beautiful Lynette and soon after, at the death of Beauvayse, who, it developed, was already married, Lynette and "The Dop Doctor" were betrothed.

TWO FOOLS THERE WERE (King Cole—Jan. 22).—The "two fools" endeavor to gain admittance to a lodge meeting but are unable to give the countersign. The men within, wishing to manhandle the two for disturbing them, admit one at a time and treat them to a drubbing. Gaining the street, they hie themselves to the main thoroughfare of the town so that they might mark time with the members of one of our social organizations out on parade. They enter the long line of marchers about twenty different times and at as many points and the welcome they receive at each assault is on par with what they received at headquarters.

Triangle Film Corp.

KEYSTONE.

A MODERN ENOCH ARDEN (Keystone—Two Reels—Jan 16).—The cast: Joe Jackson (Viva Edwards); Mack Swain (Dora Rogers), and Hank Mann.

"A Modern Enoch Arden" returns to his home to find his wife married to another man. He recognizes his wife, but doesn't give himself away to her. Viva Edwards, as the wife, has married a lawyer named Mack Swain. He cleverly rescues his own child from a runaway motorboat, and then finds out that the tramps with whom he is associated are going to kidnap the child with the connivance of Swain and at the instigation of a grafting lawyer, Hank Mann. He reveals his identity to his former wife and tries to convince her of the villainy of Swain. She does not believe him and when she sees him near a tree, where some money was to be paid, accuses him of being in the plot. He afterwards squares himself by making a daring rescue of the child by entering a hut, just before it is blown up with dynamite. His wife takes him back and Swain goes to jail.

BECAUSE HE LOVED HER (Keystone—Two Parts—Jan. 16).—The cast: The Chef (Sam Bernard); Cafe Proprietor (Glen Cavender); The Cashier (Mae Busch); A Cook (Harry McCoy).

"Because He Loved Her," the new Triangle-Keystone, shows Sam Bernard working as chef in the cafe of Glen Cavender. Sam steals Glen's private stock whiskey and Glen cuffs and kicks the hilarious chef when he discovers the larceny. This arouses Sam's ire, and he puts what he thinks is poison into a mince pie he bakes for Glen. Mae Busch, the cashier in the restaurant, has a pretty sister. Glen sends the pie to the sister. When Sam finds where the pie is gone, he is remorseful and confesses his guilt to Glen. Sam gets a taxi and races for the sister's house. He is wrecked on the way and jumps on a motorcycle. He runs through a brick building and then a lunch wagon, strewing bricks and woodwork in all directions. He finally comes to the place, but the girl has eaten some of the pie. Sam takes out a bottle labeled poison and drinks a liberal amount. It all comes out right when Glen rushes in with the word that he had put some of his private stock in the bottle with the death's head.

THE WOOD NYMPH (Fine arts—Five Parts—Jan. 23)—The cast: Marie Doro (Frank Campeau); Wilfred Lucus (Charles West); and Cora Drew.

The locale of the play is among the redwoods of California. The Nymph has grown up under the care of a mother who has foresaken civilization to live in a log house in the timber. There is a stalwart Amazon-like servant, who guards the girl jealously. The Nymph has known nothing of men's society. She is taught the ancient stories of the Greek divinities and plays hymns to these personages on her harp. But the restless girl is not content to stay at home. She runs and dances through the forest, her head filled with the wonderful stories that she has read. She gives the trees the names of the gods. One day she clasps her arms around a tree and calls on the divinity that inhabits it to appear. As the tree remains stolid to her impassioned cries, she clasps her hands and calls again for Apollo. A young hunter, who happens to have come on the scene, steps forward. The girl can hardly reconcile his hunting clothes and high boots with the picture of the half-draped Greek god. He wins her interest, however. There is a thrilling fire scene afterwards and the girl is rescued from danger and restored to her adorer.

THE CONQUERER (Kay-Bee—Jan. 23).—The cast: Willard Mack, Enid Markey, J. Barney Sherry, Louise Brownell and Margaret Thompson.

Mark Horn is a self-made millionaire. His ruthless methods have gained him the name of "The Wolf."

At a social affair, Horn meets Wayne Madison. Horn despises Madison for depending upon his lineage for respect. When Madison tells a story at which a little group of toadies laugh hilariously, Horn causes consternation by saying he had heard it ten years before and that it was old then. Madison has invested heavily in West Central stock. Horn determines to ruin the social luminary and manipulates the stock so that it keeps falling. Facing disaster, Madison sends for Horn and wants to know what his terms will be to save him financially. Horn has become interested in Viva Madison, the daughter of the society man. He demands the hand of the girl as the price for rescuing the father.

For the sake of the family he tells the girl of Horn's terms. She is enraged at the proposal, but the tears and pleadings of her mother and her sister prevail, and she reluctantly accepts. Horn brutally asks her if she knows what price had been put on her by her father. This insult so works on the sensitive girl that she calls a servant to show Horn out, and he causes the West Central stock to go up and the Madison family rejoice because their fortune is restored. Horn writes to the girl saying that he took her dismissal as final but that had she accepted him under the conditions, he would have left her father to his fate. Though hopeless of winning her, he tells her of his deep love and respect.

Understanding the test Horn had made of her and realizing his high ideal of womanhood, the girl called him up on the 'phone and asked him to tea the following afternoon. Gladdened by the good news, Horn smiles and whistles for the first time in years.

Miscellaneous Feature Film

METRO.

HER DEBT OF HONOR (Five Reels—Jan. 24). The cast: Marie Delmar (Valli Valli); John Hartfield (William Davidson); Olin Varcoe (William Nigh); Crawford Granger (J. H. Goldsworthy); Doctor Glade (Frank Bacon); Mrs. Varcoe (Mrs. M. Brundage); Niatana (Ilean Humo); Kalatin, her lover (Frank Montgomery); Pierre Leroux, her father (David H. Thompson); Old Wolf (R. A. Bresee); Swiftwind (Jack Murray).

Marian Delmar's father, an architect, has died without an estate, though it seems to the girl that he has left a settlement of some sort on her. From the time of his death, a certain Varcoe, a member of her father's profession, has sent her a monthly remittance, which enables her to live decently and study painting.

Varcoe dies, leaving no instructions regarding the remittance and no reason why his son, Olin, should continue it.

John Hartfield, whose father has been a lawyer of doubtful integrity, but unquestionable shrewdness, is now the friend of Marian, to whom she goes, when her remittance fails to arrive. He subsequently informs her that the remittance seems to have been a matter of charity on the part of the late Varcoe, and, incidentally, that his son Olin is dying from his wild dissipation and morbid excesses.

Marian's independent nature revolts at the idea that she has been an object of charity, and against the pleading of John, determines to pay the debt by nursing Olin back to health. She offers her services as nurse, and is engaged by Olin, who exhibits a wicked joy. All repair to the old Varcoe home on the St. Lawrence, where lives Mrs. Varcoe, whom her supposed son has never seen.

Mrs. Varcoe has been for years an invalid. The old family physician has been her faithful attendant for thirty years, in a house, with Indian servants and queer furnishings, that must have been the expression of a morbid brain.

The largest staff of experts in all departments makes the MOVING PICTURE WORLD the one paper in the trade that fully fills the requirements of every reader.

The

Radium Gold Fibre

Is

The Ultimate Screen

It Is Certainly

"The Screen You Will Eventually Buy"

While most of the installations we make are in theatres where exhibitors have been convinced of the vast superiority of the scientifically prepared projection surface over the ordinary "white sheet" or painted wall, not a few are made in theatres where patented screens other than the Radium Gold Fibre have been tried with results that were far from satisfactory.

Experiences Like These Convince Us That the Radium Gold Fibre Is "The Screen You Will Eventually Buy"

In soliciting your patronage our strongest claim is that we are doing business "with all our cards on the table.". We, better than any person else, know just what our product will do, and, knowing full well that dissatisfied customers would hurt rather than help our business, we are still willing to absolutely guarantee each screen we install for a period of five years. Let us do the worrying—we are perfectly willing to do it!

Write or wire today for Sample, Price, and Details of Our New Sales Plan

RADIUM GOLD FIBRE SCREEN, Inc.

220 W. 42d St., New York City

CANADIAN DISTRIBUTORS:
Allfeatures, Ltd., No. 56 King St., Toronto, Can.; Allfeatures, Ltd., Scala Theatre Bldg., Montreal, Can.

Have You Read Page 139?

This Silent Watchman is a Helper!

He helps the Cashier check up his accounts.

He tells the Owner and House Manager how many tickets have been sold at each price—something that no other machine can do.

He works shoulder-to-shoulder with the honest Cashier.

This Watchman's name is AUTOMATICKET SELLER, whose more than three years' use by houses of every size, all over the country, proves beyond any doubt that this machine can be depended upon. Wherever the AUTOMATICKET SELLER goes, there is no guesswork.

"Used Wherever Tickets Are Sold!"

Send samples of tickets you use. We will forward full description and pictures showing how easy it is to install the machine; how simple to operate; how compact; how safely it locks up the tickets and how conveniently it issues each kind, as wanted. It sets flush in the counter, thus saving space now taken by awkward ticket-rolls.

Shall we refer you to users in your section?

THE AUTOMATIC TICKET SELLING AND CASH REGISTER CO., Inc.

1735 BROADWAY NEW YORK

When Olin meets Mrs. Varcoe, whose son he is supposed to be, he seems to inspire her with fear and misgiving. She is immediately impressed with Marian, whose attentions are now directed to the old lady's health. The aged doctor's jealousy of Marian in her efforts to relieve Mrs. Varcoe creates frequent friction.

Through the finding of certain plans in a secret compartment, John finds that Marian's father has been the real brains behind the elder Varcoe's success; hence, the remittance by agreement. Olin's morbid nature drives him to take advantage of an Indian girl in his household, and the consequence is the exposure of the secret, that he himself is the offspring of such an affair on the part of his father.

John, meanwhile, is constantly trying to dissuade Marian from continuing in this atmosphere, but between the kindly old lady and Marian a strong affection has developed, and furnishes the incentive to her to remain.

Olin is determined to have one more big fling before he passes away, and invites a number of his dissipated friends from the city to spend a week-end with him.

Olin traps Marian in a secret passage, but John and another Indian rescues her and wound Olin. Olin crawls to the Indian huts on the estate where the remainder of his mother's tribe dwell, and dies in the arms of his Indian grandfather.

Marian and John determine to travel the road of life together, while the old doctor gives evidence that his devotion to his equally venerable patient was not purely of professional interest.

RAVER FILM CORP.

THE OTHER GIRL (Five Parts).—Frank Sheldon, known professionally in the prize ring as "Kid Garvey" (James J. Corbett); Rev. Clifton Bradford (Paul Gilmore); Henry Waterman, banker (Horace Vinton); Thaddeus Fulton (Mortimer Martini); Judge Newton Bates (Louis Thiel); Reginald Lumley (Rawland Ratcliffe); Arthur Taylor (Harry Redding); Thomas Robinson, butler (Ten Eyck Clay); Mrs. Waterman (Mona Ryan); Catherine Fulton (Becky Bruce); Estelle Kittredge (Edith Luckett); Myrtle Morrison (Frances Thompson); Anne Murphy, the cook (Lizzie McCall); William Muldoon (himself). Scenario by G. D. Proctor. Directed by Percy Winter.

Rev. Bradford seeks the health resort conducted by William Muldoon. "Kid Garvey," who has known Mr. Muldoon for many years, calls on his old friend. Rev. Bradford arrives and he chooses the "Kid" as his trainer, believing him to be one of the regular trainers of the institution. Garvey seeks an opportunity of breaking into "swell society" and requests that he be introduced by his right name, Frank Sheldon. Besides Rev. Bradford, Mr. Thaddeus Fulton, his daughter Catherine and her chum Estelle are stopping with the Waterman's and friends of the minister. The minister and the Kid are boxing on the front lawn. The children of the neighborhood learn of this and peek over the hedge at the combatants. There is one, however, the cook, who does not think that this is quite the proper conduct of a minister and plainly demonstrates it in her attitude toward the two pugilists. Catherine, not to be denied the acquaintance of the minister's new found friend, seeks an introduction. It is evident there is a mutual attraction. In the meantime, Reginald Lumley, a society fop, has told Judge Bates, an old friend of the Waterman's, that he is engaged to Catherine Fulton. The Judge reminds him of Myrtle Morrison, a vaudeville headliner whom the Judge persuaded to give him up.

"Kid Garvey" has known Myrtle for many years. He meets her to take her for an auto ride, when Rev. Bradford happens along. The minister is introduced to Myrtle under her right name, Miss McCarthy, and is invited to accompany them for a ride. Their drive takes them to a restaurant, where Taylor, a reporter on the Times, spies them. The next morning the family is shocked when they discover a news item telling of Rev. Bradford dining with a prize fighter and a vaudeville headliner. Mr. Waterman and Rev. Bradford explain things to Judge Bates and instruct him to demand a denial of the article or institute suit immediately. The reporter is sent to the Waterman home upon receipt of the letter to explain that the story is true and that the paper will not print a retraction. Frank Sheldon is announced and when he reads the articles he is annoyed that they stated Myrtle was at the Pleasure Palace, because she is playing at the Orpheum, a high-class house.

A theater party is arranged, but Catherine slyly tells Garvey that she wants to see him and pleads a headache as an excuse not to join the party. Estelle, suspicious that the headache is feigned, volunteers to stay at home with her chum. All symptoms of a headache disappear when Catherine hears the honking of an automobile horn. She hurries down and admits Garvey. Estelle follows and secretes herself behind a screen. When Garvey asks Catherine to marry him she shows him the engagement ring she is already wearing. This does not deter him. He replaces it with a larger one. She, however, complains that he is a pugilist. He tells her of his home, how he was expelled from school for fighting, his elation when he won his first battle, and then his training for his title bout, explaining that he had lived a cleaner life than most society gentlemen.

An elopement is planned. The plot is overheard by Estelle and she plans to outwit the lovers. When Catherine reaches the library prepared to go she pleads with her not to marry the pugilist, and at a moment when Catherine is not looking Estelle runs out a side door, locking it on the other side. With a veil over her face Garvey does not recognize her and speeds away with the other girl. In her frantic efforts to get out Catherine kicks a glass panel of the door, breaking it and arousing the whole household. In the meantime the theater party is enjoying the show. The headliner is the next attraction. The judge, looking at his program, calls Lumley's attention to the fact that Myrtle is the next player to appear. He hastens from the theater and in crossing crowded Broadway is run down by the speeding elopers. They are arrested, but are released on the promise of Mr. Muldoon that they will appear in the morning. They, however, forgot their traveling bag and when Taylor, the reporter, enters the entry on the blotter of "Kid" Garvey and Myrtle Morrison does not fool him, as he connects the initials, "C. F.," on the handbag with Catherine Fulton.

When he calls at the house for the story everyone is a bit surprised, as Catherine has not left the house. Garvey and Estelle enter and things are explained. Lumley staggers in and tells that he is the one who was run over. Garvey phones Myrtle to call in the morning to the police court, as he sees a possibility for some publicity for her. When morning breaks explanations are in order. Lumley gives Catherine up. The minister declares his affection for Estelle and Lumley discovers that Myrtle

STOP!! Consider a minute Before you purchase your

THEATRE EQUIPMENT

There is a certain lasting confidence in purchasing from a reliable concern— Whether it is biscuits or battleships you buy. YOU KNOW THAT.

When installing a theatre equipment why not confine your purchases to a house whose experience and reputation will inspire that confidence? It costs no more— but the feeling of security you have is worth more.

The Kleine Optical Company is the oldest house in the country handling motion picture theatre equipment. We were the pioneers in the business! Ask anyone who has been in the business for years. The name KLEINE to them is synonymous to motion picture confidence.

Write us on any subject concerning the equipment of your theatre. WE ARE DISTRIBUTORS OF EVERY STANDARD MAKE OF MOTION PICTURE PROJECTOR ON THE AMERICAN MARKET. OUR STOCK IS LARGE AND COMPLETE AT ALL TIMES AND INCLUDES EVERY ARTICLE AND DEVICE THAT HAS MERIT.

SEND FOR OUR COMPLETE CATALOGUE

Kleine Optical Company

166 North State St. GEORGE KLEINE, PRESIDENT INCORPORATED 1896 CHICAGO, ILL.

Selig

"TOM MARTIN---A MAN"

A gripping story featuring GUY OLIVER, supported by VIVIAN REED, and presenting an unusual story of love's sacrifice. Released through General Film Service on Monday, January 24.

SELIG-TRIBUNE

A REEL newspaper showing REAL news. A news film that has scored an instantaneous hit. Released Monday, January 24.

SELIG-TRIBUNE

Shows the news and does it first. Late news pictures from all parts of the world where news is made. Released Thursday, January 27.

"APPLE-BUTTER"

A Selig Comedy in Chronicles of Bloom Center. It's a dandy! Released Saturday, January 29 through General Film Service.

"NO GREATER LOVE"

A Selig Red Seal Play with Miss Regina Badet in the role of "Sadunah, the Dancer," a Wonderful Plot with Wonderful Scenic Effects. Book through V. L. S. E.

SELIG POLYSCOPE CO.
CHICAGO AND EVERYWHERE

A Factory Accident

has made necessary a delay in the release of "The Rose of the Alley" scheduled for January 17. In its place for that date will be released the Metro wonderplay

The Lure of Heart's Desire

An original drama by Aaron Hoffman in five vital acts starring

EDMUND BREESE

Directed by Francis J. Grandon
Produced by Popular Plays and Players, Inc.

Released on the Metro Program
January 17.

METRO PICTURES CORP'N

Metro Pictures Corporation

is really the girl he loves. Catherine and Garvey plan for their wedding to take place immediately after Garvey's appearance at the police court.

EQUITABLE.

HER GREAT HOUR OF TRIUMPH (Five Parts—Jan. 17).—The cast: Nan Perrine (Molly McIntyre); Violet Kirby (Gerda Holmes); Robert Kirby (Richard Lynn); James Irwin (Martin Alsop); Ralph Barrett (P. J. LeMae). Directed by S. E. V. Taylor.

Nan Perrine, a shop girl in the S. & X. Department Store, of which Irwin is the manager, is unjustly accused of stealing a ring which has been placed in the pocket of her coat by Jenny, another employee of the store. Kirby is the prosecuting attorney of the town and his wife, Violet, is in love with Irwin. Nan declares her innocence. Kirby, who was a friend of Nan's father, thinks she is innocent, but Irwin insists that she is guilty. Kirby agrees to take her as maid for his wife and hold up the indictment for a time.

Violet is having a flirtation with Barrett when Nan is taken into the house. Kirby gets a letter warning him of his wife's flirtations. At a party in the evening Nan sees Barrett and Violet go to the piazza and Kirby discovers them. He expostulates with her, and when she answers indignantly he shows her the letter he has received. Nan, after they disappear, finds that she is standing on the note which Kirby has dropped and reads the line, "A scandal would ruin him." Barrett and Violet later meet on the rocks at the shore with Nan and Kirby both watching, unseen by each other, and they go separate ways after Barrett and Violet disappear. At night Kirby 'phones his wife that he will be at the court late and she 'phones to Barrett, who is out when she rings up, and Nan is surprised to see Irwin calling. While he is there Barrett calls up. Irwin demands to know who is calling. She refuses to tell; they struggle for the 'phone; she strikes Irwin with it and kills him.

A burglar breaking into the house sees the affair but is unseen. Nan and Violet start to take the body out to the road, but Kirby drives up in his car. Violet, trapped, tells him that Nan has killed Irwin. Nan pleads with him not to have her arrested and, when his back is toward her, escapes through a window. Kirby and his wife have an affectionate scene, while the burglar follows Nan. Nan on the rocks writes a letter indicating suicide, with the burglar watching. Removing the body, detectives find Irwin's note to Violet. The burglar reads Nan's note, catches her and tries to make her agree to join his gang. Violet tries to bluff Kirby about any connection between the note and the murder. He threatens arrest; she admits that she killed Irwin and he reproaches her with allowing an innocent girl to be charged with the crime.

Detectives come back with Nan's coat and note and Kirby orders the search stopped as Nan is innocent. Detectives learn that it was his wife and tell him that the girl has faked a suicide; that no one will suspect his wife, and they let matters rest until morning.

Then Violet packs up her jewels to go to Barrett. Nan is taken to a tough dance. Barrett is there and Nan appeals to him to save her. Barrett is attacked and the whole crowd fights. Barrett and Nan escape, aided by a dancing girl. He takes her to his rooms. Violet goes to Barrett's room and is shocked to see him come in with Nan. She faints. Kirby at home finds Violet away. Nan tells Barrett they must get Violet home. Nan will take her there. As they get there in a cab, Kirby comes out and sees the driver carrying the body with Nan beside him; he slips back into the house and opens the door when Nan rings. She tells him the story. Doctors declare Violet died from heart failure. Kirby tells Nan this is the second time that night she has sacrificed herself to save him and he knows now that she did not commit the first crime, the theft.

FOX FILM CORPORATION.

A PARISIAN ROMANCE (Five Parts—Jan. 9).—The story, in brief, tells of Baron Chevrial, whose whole interest in life centers in women and his one big hobby, the censoring of female loveliness. He is smitten with the charms of Rosa, the incomparable dancer of the Opera Comique. He pays homage to her beauty by establishing her in the most luxurious quarters and lavishing upon her the major part of his income. Rosa toys with the Baron, even curtailing his liberty, which extends only so far as her whim or caprice will permit. The Baron, however, true to his nature, finds that Rosa does not entirely fill his craving for feminine companionship and seeks new fields to conquer. Therese Beauchamp, a beautiful girl, prominent in society, meets with his approval and he marries her, but keeps up his interest in Rosa, making no effort to conceal his relations with the ballet dancer from his wife.

And then a new woman enters his life and for a time he is oblivious to everything else until visions of his former ballet girl charmer arise and he returns to Rosa. He decides to give a party in honor of her birthday and their reunion, and throws open the magnificent Chevrial banquet hall for the occasion, Rosa and ballet girls, still in costume, being brought from the opera house in motor cars. During the progress of the dinner the Baron rises to propose a toast to Rosa, when he is stricken with apoplexy and drops dead.

PARAMOUNT PICTURE CORP.

THE TONGUES OF MEN (Morosco-Five Parts—Jan. 6).—The cast: Jane Bartlett (Constance Collier); Rev. Dr. Penfield Sturgis (Forrest Stanley); Rev. Dr. Darigal (Herbert Standing); Georgine (Elizabeth Burbridge); Winifred Leeds (Helen Eddy); Dr. Lyn Fanshawe (Lamar Johnstone); Mrs. Kearsley (Lydia Yeamans Titus); Mme. Sternberg-Reese (Miss Marlborough); Mr. Goaby (Charles Marriot); Mr. Loughran (John McKinnon).

Rev. Dr. Penfield Sturgis, of fashionable St. Martins-in-the-Lane, finds himself face to face with Jane Bartlett, a grand opera prima donna whose opera he has denounced on grounds of morality, and who comes to his very vestryroom to make him "eat his sermon word for word."

Out of the encounter a strange acquaintance develops, Jane Bartlett interested through vindictive reasons, the rector through the challenge to his church. She prevails upon him to visit the notorious opera, which but deepens his previous convictions, but meanwhile he discovers a surprising humanity in the woman herself. Just as it is beginning to dawn upon him that maybe he takes himself a shade too seriously, word comes that the Mayor has closed "Zaporah" on the strength of his own condemnatory sermon.

Repentant, Sturgis decides to apologize in an open letter to the newspapers, at which his vestry and congregation, already perturbed by the ascendency of the Bartlett woman, are up in arms. To preserve her dignity the young rector offers to marry her, and she accepts him, thus at last making him "eat his sermon word for word," as she had set out to do.

But her vanity appeased, Jane Bartlett proceeds to make peace between her young rector and Georgine Darigal, daughter of the rector emeritus and formerly his fiancee, and the reconciliation assured, Jane Bartlett gracefully withdraws.

POWER'S 6B

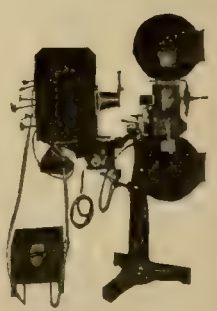
The Copesa Amusement Co.

(Messrs. Cohen & Pearl)

Owners of the New

BUSHMAN THEATRE

New York City



SIMPLEX

Placed Their Order With Us for Projection Machines, Special Condensing and Projection Lenses, Dissolving Attachment, etc., etc.

Ask About Our Special Projection System

And We Saw To It That Their

Projection Was Perfect

We Equip Motion Picture Theatres Completely

Ask Them About It — We Can do the Same for You

Picture Theatre Equipment Company

19 WEST 23rd STREET
NEW YORK

158 PEARL STREET
BUFFALO, N. Y.

PROJECTION ENGINEERS
CONSULT US FOR MODEL PROJECTION

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS

SITUATIONS WANTED.

A-1—Theatrical pianist and director. Specialty vaudeville and pictures. Sober, reliable. Charles Jerreld, 1205 Hampden St., Holyoke, Mass.

ORGANIST—(Young Lady) at liberty. Have been playing one of the largest theater organs in the country. If you are looking for an organist who can match pictures, address particulars to Lady Organist, care M. P. World, N. Y. City

OPERATOR—Six years' experience, guarantee perfect projection. First-class electrician; can repair machines. Go anywhere, reasonable salary. First-class references. Address Walter Milner, care Idyl Theater, Ocean City, N. J.

EXPERT ON DETAIL—Designer of special sets and costumes. Locator and fixer for exteriors. Generally useful. Salary contingent to ability. Address Open, care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

OPERATOR—And wife pianist. Joint salary $25. Experienced. Best references. Experienced, care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

OPERATOR-PIANIST—A-1 gentlemen, best references. Any machine. Expert picture cueing. Would handle house salary and percentage. Long successful experience. Write, wire—Operator or Pianist, 304 W. Grand Ave., Beloit, Wis.

YOUNG MAN—Desires position as assistant cameraman. Single. Address Assistant, care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

PIANIST AND TRAP-DRUMMER—Pianist is sight reader, faker, feature picture player, first-class orchestra leader. Good library of music. Drummer is first-class. Has drums, orchestra bells, all effects. Thoroughly reliable and experienced. State work hours, salary, etc Address Musical Photoplayers, Davenport, Iowa (Gen. Del.)

MANAGER—At liberty. First time eight years. Nothing too large. Middle States preferred. H. A. Higgins, Beatrice, Neb.

EXPERIENCED CAMERAMAN—Desires position, first-class company. Sober, reliable. Willing to accept moderate salary until results are shown. Can furnish best references. Address Cameraman C. H., care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

CAMERAMAN—Desires position. Has representative references; complete outfit. Accept moderate salary. Address Reliable, care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

CAMERAMAN—At liberty to execute orders for industrial or commercial advertising purposes. Furnish own outfit. Correspondence solicited. Commercial, care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

YOUNG MAN—Live worker, first class still photographer and laboratory worker. Desires position in laboratory. A-1 references furnished. H. D., care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

COMEDIAN—Good acrobat, original makeup, circus and dramatic experience. A hard worker; height 5' 9", weight 168 lbs. Can take falls. Bob Drake, 784 Granby St., Norfolk, Va.

CAMERAMAN—With new professional camera. Experienced, go anywhere. Employed, but want change. Reliable Cameraman, care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

MOVING PICTURE OPERATOR—Long experience, work all make machines, wishes position city or country. Margolies, 1465 Rockaway Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES.

"AMBERLUX" Lens filters are business bringers.

FOR SALE—Fine large motion picture studio (about 100 x 200 ft.). Situated on large tract of land. Picturesque location, thirty minutes from New York. Address Picture Studio, care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

FOR SALE OR RENT—Completely equipped motion picture studio in New York City. Modern studio lighting system. Full line equipment and scenery. For particulars address Marston & Co., 30 East 42d St., Tel. Murray Hill 540.

THEATERS WANTED.

CASH FOR YOUR MOVIE—I am a practical, successful moving picture broker. Seventeen years of continuous success. Selling upwards of one million dollars' worth annually, sales, exchanges and leases. Lewis, the Moving Picture Broker, Established 1896. Offices, 578-80 Ellicott Sq., Buffalo, N. Y.

PROFITABLE MOVIE WANTED—In good Texas, Indiana or Illinois town. Will buy or lease. Write describing fully, if you have something really worth close investigation. Box 24, Route 3, Pimento, Ind.

THEATERS FOR SALE OR RENT.

FOR SALE—Moving picture and vaudeville theater. Only one of the kind in the city. Fully equipped and doing business. Cheap for cash on account of sickness. Gold Mine, care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

MODERN—Fully equipped picture and vaudeville theater, located central states, town 10,000. Best reasons for selling. Closest inspection. Bargain $2,500. Exceptional opportunity. XYZ, care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

MOTION PICTURE—House and airdome. Kentucky, town 3,000. No opposition. Receipts $120 to $140 per week; expenses $75. Complete equipment. Good reasons for selling. Write W. L. S., care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

FOR RENT—Very desirable house in manufacturing town of 250,000. Seating and standing capacity about 990. Fully equipped with everything of the latest and most expensive electrical machinery necessary to produce good life-sized pictures. Rent very reasonable to responsible tenant. A fortune is awaiting the right man. Lewis, 580 Ellicott Sq., Buffalo, N. Y.

LIFETIME'S OPPORTUNITY—To purchase one of the leading and most successfully conducted ten cent movies in town of about 15,000. Actual expenses less than $100 week; receipts $185-200. The coziest and most comfortable family theater on the market. Positively worth $6,500; will sacrifice for $4,500. Immediate possession. Lewis, 580 Ellicott Sq., Buffalo, N. Y.

FIREPROOF MOVIE—Buffalo, N. Y. Seating and standing capacity about 625. Six exits. Two 6A Power's machines, motor driven, motor generator. Automatic ticket seller, chopper; daylight curtain, fireproof booth. Property and contents is positively worth $30,000. Price $26,000; or will sell contents for about $3,000 and lease the premises upon very favorable terms. Lewis, 580 Ellicott Sq., Buffalo, N. Y.

PHOTOPLAY HOUSE—One of the largest and most successful moving picture houses in town of about 14,000. Not much competition. This house is now doing business $350-$400 week, expenses, including manager, less than $250 week. Seating capacity 800; standing room for about 130. Price $7,500. Lewis, 580 Ellicott Sq., Buffalo, N. Y.

NOTICE TO MOVING PICTURE BUYERS—When you buy a movie through LEWIS you can have a week or month's trial. We only handle substantial money makers. Lewis, Moving Picture Brokers, 580 Ellicott Sq., Buffalo, N. Y.

FOR SALE—Crystal Theater, Rector, Ark. Modernly equipped, in town of 3,000, no competition. Have other business, must sell at once. For full particulars address Crystal Theater, Rector, Ark.

EQUIPMENT WANTED.

SIX—Oscillating fans, 110 volts, sixty cycles. "Fredericks," 3533 No. Thirteenth St., Philadelphia, Pa.

WANTED—To buy Power's 6A and Simplex machines; also heads for Power's 6. Olson Bros., 117 N. Topeka Ave., Wichita, Kansas.

EQUIPMENT FOR SALE.

FOR SALE—New and second hand moving picture machines, all leading makes, at reduced prices. Crescent Film Exchange, 37 So. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

LARGE STOCK of used moving picture machines—all kinds—also opera and folding chairs at about half regular price; all goods guaranteed in first-class condition, shipped subject to inspection. Lears Theater Supply Co., 509 Chestnut St., St. Louis, Mo.

FOR SALE—Complete equipment, any quantity, new and second-hand for moving picture theaters, furnished at short notice. Specializing Powers' machines. W. H. Latimer, 308 Lackawanna Ave., Scranton, Pa.

FOR SALE—Two Power's 6A travelling equipments, mechanism entirely rebuilt. One asbestos booth for two machines. One 220 volt compensarc. One Mirroroid screen 12x16 feet, used but two months. Poster frames. Bargain for quick sale. Eugene L. Keefe, 1325 Vine St., Phila., Pa.

"AMBERLUX" Lens filters protect your patrons from evestrain. Price $3.50. W. D. Warner, Columbus, Ohio.

FOR SALE—New or second hand opera chairs for moving picture theaters at a bargain. Crescent Film Exchange, 37 So. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill

$225—Edison Underwriters model B with outside shutter, chain drive, Smith rewind, Gundlach lens—used three weeks. All complete for $100. Compensarcs, new lenses, Mortimer Film Cleaner, etc. Dirt cheap. Box 434, Washington C. H., Ohio.

OPERA AND FOLDING CHAIRS—New and second hand. 400 maple folding 35c. each. 2,800 opera practically new. Electric sign. Extra special prices. All guaranteed. Shipped subject to inspection. Atlas Seating Co., 501 Fifth Ave., N. Y. City.

SPECIAL—300 Theater chairs. Only used four months. A-1 condition. Will ship anywhere for $225. Atlas Seating Co., 501 Fifth Ave., N. Y. City.

ORDER "Amberlux" lens filters today.

FOR SALE—Number 5 Power's, good running order. Complete, less projection lens, $25. Lyric Theater, Spencer, N. Y.

CAMERAS FOR SALE.

NEW—Latest model professional camera, automatic dissolve, 400 foot magazines. Guaranteed. Only $200. Ray, 326 Fifth Ave., N. Y. City.

NEW MODEL No. 4 Pittman Prof. camera now ready. Automatic dissolve, automatic takeup, both directions, 400 ft. magazine. The most up-to-date camera proposition ever placed upon the market. Tripods, lenses, etc. Send for particulars. We also specialize in repairs and improvements in all makes of cameras. R. W. Pittman Co., 394 Canal St., New York City. Phone 5961 Franklin.

KODAKS—View cameras, folding hand cameras, fine imported cameras, professional studio cameras; also motion picture cameras in all sizes and styles. Motion picture tripods, motion picture projecting machines, photographic lenses for all photographic purposes, of all makes and sizes, speed shutters, hundreds of fine photographic outfits in stock. Send for the largest bargain book and catalogues on everything photographic. Koehler's Camera Exchange, Inc., 7 East 14th St., N. Y. City.

FILMS WANTED.

WANTED—Pathe Passion Play and other Religious films. Also scenic films of all parts of the world. The Warwick Attractions, Ellsworth, Me.

WANTED—Sole agencies Australasia everything connected cinematography, also second-hand war films, scenics, exclusive features any quantity, C. O. D., Melbourne. Commonwealth Feature Films, Ltd., 182 Collins St., Melbourne, Australia.

WANTED—Single reels, doubles, three, four and five-reel features. Must be in first-class condition, with or without posters, for export. Federal Feature Film Co., 119 East 23d St., N. Y. City.

FILMS FOR SALE OR RENT.

FOR SALE—"David Copperfield," seven reels, plenty of paper, Hepworth; "Motherhood of Politics," two reels, with paper. "Love and Devotion," or the "Passions of the Renaissance," founded on Tarquato Tasso's famous work, five reels, with paper. "The Miser's Daughter," three reels, founded on Balzac's "Eugenie Grandet." Eugene L. Keefe, 1325 Vine St., Phila., Pa.

FOR SALE—200 reels film, $1.50 per reel; 100 reels, with paper, $3 per reel. Lot features for sale. Cheap. Meyer Silverman, Pittsburgh, Pa.

"BOHEMIAN GIRL"—3 reels, $90. "Moth in the Flame," 3 reels, $90. "Memoires Tragic Leap," 2 reels, $50; all with posters, cuts, photos. Single reel dramas, comedies, westerns, $5 each. 601, 17th St., Portland, Oreg.

FOR SALE—"Fall of Constantinople" in three reels, hand colored, plenty of paper. Make offer. S. Kaufman, 4130 Parkside Ave., Philadelphia., Pa.

FOR SALE—200 reels $2 per reel up, with posters. Billy Sunday, $35. War pictures, $25. "War World Wide," four reels, new, $200. Wichita Film & Supply Co., Wichita, Kan.

FINEST THEATERS use cartoon and chasing letter announcements. Titles made for 17c foot upwards. Ray, 326 Fifth Ave., N. Y. City.

3, 4 AND 5-REEL features in excellent condition, with plenty of advertising matter; also single and two reelers, with posters, great bargains. Weinberg's Features, 145 West 45th St., N. Y. City.

FOR SALE—Last Days of Pompeii, 3 reels, $50. Passion Play, 3,000 feet, $25. Old Maids Carnations Love, 4 reels, $38. All good condition. Hollingsworth, Overton, Neb.

SACRIFICE SALE—Four-part "Round-Up" negative with negative titles assembled. Exceptionally clear and sharp photography. One of the most, if not, the most diversified pictures of its kind ever produced. Only a few prints ever made. Indian, bucking, trick riding scenes exceptionally strong. Our future business policy precludes further exploitation. About five thousand sheets of made-to-order lithos, cuts, photo negatives and advance heralds. Make us offer. Superior Film Mfg. Co., 13th and Crocker Sts., Des Moines, Ia.

FOR SALE—(Lubin's) "Drug Terror," five reels. "Oliver Twist," with Nat C. Goodwin, five reels. Overland Feature Film Corp., Douw Bldg., Albany, N. Y.

100 SINGLES AND DOUBLES, American make, 12 posters with each reel. Shipped privilege screen examination. Federal, 119 East 23d St., N. Y. City.

MISCELLANEOUS.

WE BUY and sell new and second hand moving picture machines, opera chairs and films. Crescent Film Exc., 37 So. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

ENTER—"Amberlux"—Exit eyestrain.

WILL SELL, for any territory, brand new copy of the great Mutual masterpiece Besse Barriscale in "The Reward," four reels, $200; also one good print "The Mix-up," four reels, thirty days old. $75. Ernest Bru, 766 Seventh Ave., San Francisco, Cal.

INDEX

TO CONTENTS

Advertising for Exhibitors..... 418
Albany Convention, The..... 390
Among the Picture Theaters..... 411
Analyzing a Winner..... 432
At Leading Picture Theaters..... 398
Audience Applauds Bernhardt..... 395

Ball St. Valentine's Day..... 453
Berst Appoints Division Managers..... 392
Blackton Denies Rumors..... 388
Board of Trade Holds Annual Meeting.... 391
"Bond Within, The" (Lubin)..... 438
British Notes..... 433
"Britton of the Seventh" (Vitagraph).... 439

Calendar of Daily Program Releases..466, 468
"Catspaw, The" (Kleine-Edison)..... 439
Caught in a Blizzard..... 400
Censorship Hearing at Washington..... 391
Chicago Gets Exhibitors' Convention for 1916..... 389
Chicago News Letter..... 406
"City of Failing Light, The" (Lubin)..... 438
Coming Keystones Brilliant..... 403
Comments on the Films..... 441

Death of A. Arthur Caille..... 396
"Devil's Prayer Book, The" (Kleine)..... 437
Diversity of Subjects..... 399
"Down in Front"..... 415

Enigmatic Secret, An..... 386
Essanay Serial Through General Film..... 388
Exchanges Working for Better Express Service..... 452
Exhibitor Elected Alderman, An..... 405

Faction in Portland, Oregon, Censor Board. 464
Facts and Comments..... 385
Famous Players—Mary Pickford Co..... 394
Findlay, Ruth, Star of "The Salamander".. 392
"Five Faults of Flo, The" (Thanhouser).. 438
From Picture Beginnings in Louisville.... 454

General Opens Showrooms..... 390
German Trade Notes..... 434
Golden, Mary Fuller..... 394
Good Faith and a Bad Reward..... 387
"Green Eyed Monster, The" (Fox)..... 436
Grey, Katherine..... 398

Helen, a Circus Rider..... 405
"Her Great Hour" (Equitable)..... 435
Hoffman, M. H., Talks on Bluebird..... 402
Horkheimer on the Job..... 399
How Films are Censored in Minneapolis... 461

Incompetent Censor, An..... 465
Industrial Moving Picture Company..... 401

"King's Game, The" (Pathe)..... 435
Kleine-Edison Program for January..... 429

Lasky Releases for February..... 402
Leading Stars in Pallas Pictures..... 396
"Life's Whirlpool" (Brady-World)..... 435
List of Current Film Release Dates..502, 504, 506
Louisville Opens Fight..... 454

Manufacturers' Advance Notes..... 444
Mayor of Detroit Revokes Theater License. 457
"Mice and Men" (Famous Players)..... 440
Motion Picture Costume Ball..... 388
Motion Picture Educator..... 416
Motion Picture Photography..... 446
Motion Silhouette Pictures..... 429
Music for the Picture..... 407
Mutual's Six-a-Week..... 395

New Directors for Famous Players..... 397
New News Reel Well Received..... 397
News of Los Angeles and Vicinity..... 408
New Theaters this Year..... 462
New Thirty Minute Bill..... 450
Notes of the Trade..... 448

Observations by Man About Town..... 414
Ohio League Alive..... 455
Organize in Spokane..... 464

Paramount House Warming..... 393
Philipp, Adolf, With World Film..... 404
Photoplaywright, The..... 421
Picture Theaters Projected..... 449
Pictures to Instruct Bankers..... 401
Projection Department..... 422
Prominent New Orleans Man Defends Film Shows..... 460
Prospects for 1916..... 452

Right of Appeal Upheld..... 451
Rothapfel to Direct Knickerbocker..... 405
"Ruse, The" (Vitagraph)..... 439

Seattle's Coliseum Opens..... 463
Selby, Gertrude..... 430
Six Biograph Reviews..... 436
Snell, Anita..... 432

"Soul Enslaved, A" (Universal)..... 438
Southard, Bennett..... 400
Splendid Music for "The Black Crook"..... 430
Stories of the Films..... 470
Suit Over Rights in Wisconsin..... 461

Taft, Lucille..... 395
Thanhouserites to Florida..... 398
"Tongues of Men, The" (Morosco)..... 437
Too Many Features..... 457
To Protect Scenarios..... 431
Tree as Macbeth..... 403
Two Lubin Releases..... 438

Universal's Far Eastern Itinerary..... 431

Vitagraph Shows Two Good Dramas..... 439
Vitagraphs for Next Week..... 404
V-L-S-E in Canada..... 397
V-L-S-E in New Home..... 430

With St. Louis' Elite..... 459
Work Against Myers' Law..... 456
World Offers Strong Program..... 401

TO ADVERTISERS

ASBESTOS SUPPLIES.
Johns-Manville, H. W. Co..... 512

CARBONS AND CARBON ACCESSORIES.
Jones & Cammack..... 512
Kiewert, Chas. L..... 507
Reisinger, Hugo..... 512
Speer Carbon Co..... 493

CHAIR AND SEATING MANUFACTURERS.
American Seating Co..... 513
Andrews, A. H., Co..... 513
Steel Furniture Co..... 513

ELECTRICAL & MECHANICAL EQUIPMENT.
Amusement Supply Co..... 508
Cushman Motor Works..... 513
Detroit Theater Equip. Co..... 510
Electric Products Co..... 509
Erker Bros..... 501
Fidelity Electric Co..... 512
Fort Wayne Electric Works..... 491
Fulton, E. E..... 477
General Electric Co..... 513
Hallberg, J. H..... 492
Hertner Electric & Mfg. Co..... 509
Hommel, Ludwig & Co..... 475
Kleine Optical Co..... 496
Lears Theater Supply Co..... 490
Lucas, Harry K..... 484
Northwestern Motion Picture Equip. Co.... 482
Picture Theater Equip. Co..... 498
Porter, B. F..... 501
Stern Mfg. Co..... 513
Strelinger, Chas. A..... 474
Sturtevant, B. F., Co..... 507
Swnab, Lewis M..... 512
Typhoon Fan Co..... 512

FILM EXCHANGES.
Bradenburgh, G. W..... 475
Central Film Co..... 474
Film Export..... 475
Greater N. Y. Film Rental Co.....466, 506
Wisconsin-Illinois Feature Release Co..... 480

LENS MANUFACTURER.
Gundlach-Manhattan Optical Co..... 503

MANUFACTURERS OF MOVING PICTURES.
American Commercial Film Co..... 510
American Film Co., Inc..... 362-63
Biograph Co..... 467
Bluebird Photoplays, Inc..... 344-46
Bosworth, Inc..... 353
California Motion Picture Co..... 371
Edison, Thos. A., Inc..... 374
Educational Films Corp..... 482
Essanay Film Mfg. Co.....331, 340-43
Equitable Motion Picture Corp..... 354-55
Famous Players Film Co..... 338-39
Gaumont Co..... 367
Great Northern Film Co..... 512
Hanover Film Co..... 505
Hearst-Vitagraph..... 381
Horsley, David, Productions..... 368
Ivan Film Productions..... 474
Kalem Co..... 382-84
Kleine, George..... 375
Knickerbocker Star Features..... 376
Lariat Films..... 370
Lasky, Jesse L., Feature Play Co..... 352
Lubin Mfg. Co..... 373
Mittenthal Film Co..... 476
Mutt & Jeff, Inc..... 483
Mutual Film Corp..... 358-61
Paramount Pictures Corp..... 336-37
Pathe Exchange, Inc.....347-51
Picture Playhouse Film Co., Inc..... 477
Radio Film Co., Inc..... 357
Raver Film Corp..... 372
Rolin Film Co..... 484
Selig Polyscope Co.....497, 515
Selig Tribune..... 514
Signal Film Corp..... 364-65
Sterling Camera & Film Co..... 477
Thanhouser Film Corp..... 330, 369
Triangle Film Corp..... 478-79
Universal Film Mfg. Co.....332-35
Vim Comedies..... 377
Vitagraph Co. of America..... 378-80
V-L-S-E, Inc..... 479
Vogue Films, Inc..... 366
War Film Syndicate..... 481
World Film Corp..... 356

MISCELLANEOUS.
Automatic Ticket Selling & C. R. Co..... 495
Bioscope, The..... 512
Ex Exhibitors, for Exhibitors..... 489
Caille Bros..... 480
Classified Advertisements..... 499
Commercial Motion Pictures Co..... 474, 484
Corcoran, A. J..... 475
Eastman Kodak Co..... 507
Erbograph Co..... 477
Evans Film Mfg. Co..... 501
Exhibitors, Send for These..... 510
Gunby Bros..... 477
Il Triso Al Cinematografo..... 512
Industrial Moving Picture Co..... 486
Kinematograaf, De..... 512
Kinematograph Weekly, The..... 480
Kraus Mfg. Co..... 490
Manuscripts Universal..... 484
Metro Pictures Corp..... 497
Motion Picture Electricity..... 509
M. P. W. Anti-Censorship Slides..... 513
M. P. W. Circulation Coupon..... 505
M. P. Directory Co..... 512
Moore, Wm. N..... 513
National Ticket Co..... 473
Quaker City Co..... 477
Richardson, F. H..... 511
"Rogers," care M. P. World..... 503
Standard Motion Picture Co..... 513
Trade Circular Addressing Co..... 511
Vim Comedies Corp..... 508

MOVING PICTURE CAMERAS.
Los Angeles M. P. Co..... 480
Universal Camera Co..... 509

MUSIC AND MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.
Deagan, J. C..... 508
Harmo Pipe Organ Co..... 512
Schirmer, G., Inc..... 508
Seeburg, J. P., Piano Co..... 485
Sinn, Clarence E..... 513

POSTERS AND FRAMES.
Goes Lithographing Co..... 482
Menger & Ring..... 480
Newman Mfg. Co..... 484

PROJECTION MACHINE MANUFACTURERS.
American Standard M. P. Mch. Co..... 508
Enterprise Optical Co..... 503
Power, Nicholas, Co..... 516
Precision Mch. Co..... 487

PROJECTION SCREEN MANUFACTURERS.
D-D Screen Paint Co..... 508
Genter, J. H., Co., Inc..... 501
Gold King Screen Co..... 512
Minusa Cine Products Co..... 505
Radium Gold Fibre Screen, Inc..... 494
Simpson, A. L., Inc..... 488

STEREOPTICON SLIDES.
Niagara Slide Co..... 449

THEATRICAL ARCHITECTS.
Atherton, Thomas..... 508
Decorators' Supply Co..... 511

The Principal Asset of a House Is Its Reputation

When such universally known firms as the E. I. Dupont de Nemours Powder Co. of Wilmington, Del; the Ford Motor Co., Ford City, Ontario, Canada, and the Pathescope Co. of America, purchase Mirroroid screens they know what they are buying. They know the reputation of the screen and the firm. Then we add the shipments made to the United States Naval Hospital, Rixey, Colorado; Connecticut State Reformatory, Cheshire, Conn.; Connecticut State Hospital for Insane, Middletown, Conn., and the University of Georgia, Athens, Ga., besides many others. A total of eighty (80) Mirroroid shipments made last week, January 3rd to 8th, 1916, inclusive. You have the stamp of universal approval that can never be equaled. The approval of firms and institutions that investigate before they buy.

THEY BOUGHT MIRROROID KNOWING IT WAS THE BEST SCREEN ON EARTH

Now, Don't Throw Your Money Away

If conflicting claims confuse you when you are about to purchase your screen, hold fast to the judgment of the above and over 9300 exhibitors the world over who are using Mirroroid Screens—practically the unanimous choice of men best qualified to judge. You can't buy a gold dollar for a cent, nor can you buy a pound of gold—twelve ounces to the pound—for less than two hundred and forty dollars.—But—You can buy gold bronze for $1.50 a pound of 16 ounces. The man who puts his brand on the goods he sells sets his light where it will "shine before men." When he guarantees his goods and signs his name, he knows his product has the quality that will lend credit to his name—the principal asset to his house—REPUTATION.

Patented 1908 MIRROROID Patented Feb. 15, 1915

Has stood the test of time. It has the reputation of being the Best Screen on Earth. It is the only screen with a rough or matte finish. Consequently, it insures perfect perspective without haze, fade-away, glare or eye-strain, regardless of how close, or at what angle your seats are placed.

Let us send you our large Free Samples! Write now! Tell us your projection troubles. We will eliminate them as we have the projection troubles of others.

MIRROROID is sold the world over at 36 1-9 cents a square foot. Backed up with a Five-Year Guarantee by the Largest Screen Factory in the world. We ship the same day order is received.

THE J. H. GENTER CO., Inc.

NEWBURGH, N. Y.

MIRROROID—Built up to the limits of human ability. If you fail to read our ad next week you will let Opportunity pass you by.

PORTER EQUIPS ANOTHER GREAT THEATRE

After a searching investigation of New York's Best Theatres, the BAY RIDGE THEATRE CORPORATION was convinced that B. F. Porter's installations were producing the BEST PROJECTION RESULTS. They signed a contract with him to install TWO SIMPLEX PROJECTORS, TYPE "S," Latest Models, in the LARGEST and FINEST THEATRE in BROOKLYN.

BUY YOUR MACHINES FROM THE MAN WHO SATIS FIED THE PRODUCER OF "THE BIRTH OF A NATION."

B. F. PORTER, 1482 BROADWAY, AT TIMES SQUARE, NEW YORK

Quality means EVANS means Perfection

We do PARTICULAR Work for PARTICULAR People
Developing and Printing ONLY

EVANS FILM MANUFACTURING COMPANY

Telephone 6881 Audubon

416-418-420-422 West 216th Street, New York City

MOVING PICTURE MACHINES AND SUPPLIES

ABSOLUTELY EVERYTHING FOR THE MOTION PICTURE THEATRE

WRITE FOR CATALOG

ERKER BROS. OPTICAL CO.

608 OLIVE ST., ST. LOUIS, MO.

List of Current Film Release Dates

(For Daily Calendar of Program Releases See Pages 466, 468.)

Universal Film Mfg. Co.

RELEASE DAYS.

Sunday—Big "U," Laemmle, L-KO.
Monday—Broadway Universal Features, Imp, Nestor.
Tuesday—Gold Seal, Imp, Rex.
Wednesday—Animated Weekly, L-KO, Victor.
Thursday—Big "U," Laemmle, Powers.
Friday—Imp, Nestor, Victor.
Saturday—Big "U," Bison, Joker.

ANIMATED WEEKLY.

Dec. 15—Number 197 (Topical).
Dec. 22—Number 198 (Topical).
Dec. 29—Number 199 (Topical).
Jan. 5—No. 200 (Topical).
Jan. 12—Number 201 (Topical).
Jan. 19—Number 202 (Topical).
Jan. 26—Number 203 (Topical).

BIG U.

Dec. 30—Babbling Tongues (Drama).
Jan. 2—The Honor to Die (Three parts—Dr.).
Jan. 6—No release this day.
Jan. 13—"X 3" (Three parts—Detective—Dr.).
Jan. 15—Across the Rio Grande (Three parts—Western—Drama).
Jan. 20—No release this day.
Jan. 27—No release this day.

BISON.

Jan. 8—On the Trail of the Tigress (Two parts—Animal—Drama).
Jan. 15—Across the Rio Grande (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 22—Buck Simon's Puncher (Two parts—Western—Drama).
Jan. 29—A Daughter of Penance (Two parts—Mexican—Drama).

BROADWAY UNIVERSAL FEATURES.

Dec. 27—The Nature Man; or A Struggle for Existence (Five parts—Drama).
Jan. 3—Landon's Legacy (Five parts—Drama).
Jan. 10—Love's Pilgrimage to America (Five parts—Drama).
Jan. 17—The Man Inside (Five parts—Drama).
Jan. 24—A Soul Enslaved (Five parts—Dr.).

GOLD SEAL.

Dec. 28—As the Shadows Fall (Two parts—Human Interest—Drama).
Jan. 4—Lord John's Journal (Adventure No. 2, "The Gray Sisterhood" (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 11—The Boob's Victory (Two parts—Comedy—Drama).
Jan. 18—The Reward of Chivalry (Three parts—Drama.)
Jan. 25—Discontent (Two parts—Psychological—Drama).

IMP.

Dec. 28—No release this day.
Dec. 31—A Tribute to Mother (Two parts—Psychological—Drama).
Jan. 4—No release this day.
Jan. 7—The Law of Life (Three parts—Human Interest—Drama).
Jan. 11—No release this day.
Jan. 18—No release this week.
Jan. 21—Vanity Thy Name Is (Two parts—Comedy—Drama).
Jan. 25—Hired, Tired and Fired (Comedy).

JOKER.

Jan. 1—Lemonade Aids Cupid (Comedy).
Jan. 8—Those Female Haters (Comedy).
Jan. 15—No release this day.
Jan. 22—The Whole Jungle Was After Him (Animal—Comedy).
Jan. 29—Mrs. Green's Mistake (Comedy).

LAEMMLE.

Dec. 28—The Evil of Suspicion (Drama).
Dec. 30—The Little Upstart (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 5—The Underworld (Comedy—Drama).
Jan. 6—Missy (Two parts—Modern—Drama).
Jan. 9—Blind Fury (Drama).
Jan. 13—No release this day.
Jan. 16—No release this day.
Jan. 20—Just Plain Folks (Three parts—Rural ——Drama).
Jan. 23—Her Dream Man (Drama).
Jan. 27—The Red Lie (Three parts—Mystery—Drama).
Jan. 30—No release this day.

L-KO.

Dec. 29—A Scandal at Sea (Comedy).
Jan. 2—Pants and Petticoats (Comedy).
Jan. 9—Billie's Reformation (Two parts—Comedy).
Jan. 12—Gertie's Busy Day (Comedy).
Jan. 16—Flirting a la Carte (Comedy).
Jan. 19—Saving Susie From the Sea (Comedy).
Jan. 23—Mr. Mcidiot's Assassination (Two parts—Comedy).
Jan. 26—Knocks and Opportunities (Two parts—Comedy).
Jan. 30—Cupid At the Polo Game (Comedy).

NESTOR.

Dec. 31—Flivver's Terrible Past (Comedy).
Jan. 3—Jed's Trip to the Fair (Comedy).
Jan. 7—Flivver's Art of Mystery (Comedy).
Jan. 10—The Boy, the Girl and the Auto (Comedy).
Jan. 14—Flivver's Good Turn (Comedy).
Jan. 17—Mingling Spirits (Comedy).
Jan. 21—Flivvers Famous Cheese-Hound (Comedy).
Jan. 24—Her Steady Carfare (Comedy).
Jan. 28—Flivvers in the Dance of the Shivvers (Comedy).

POWERS.

Jan. 8—Uncle Sam At Work, No. 3, "Are We Prepared?" (Educational).
Jan. 13—The Rubber Rompers (Vaudeville Act). —Transporting Timber in Sweden (Educational).
Jan. 15—Uncle Sam at Work, No. 4, "Uncle Sam's Proteges at Work and at Play" (Educational).
Jan. 20—Building Up the Health of a Nation, No. 2 (Educational). —The Aerial Buds (Vaudeville Act).
Jan. 22—Uncle Sam At Work (No. 5, "Protecting the Ships At Sea"—Edu.).
Jan. 27—Sammie Johnsin, Hunter (Cartoon—Comedy). —Fishing River Lampreys (Educational).
Jan. 29—Uncle Sam at Work, No. 6, "Saving Wealth and Building Health (Educational).

REX.

Jan. 2—No release this day.
Jan. 4—Shattered Nerves (Comedy).
Jan. 9—No release this day.
Jan. 11—His Return (Drama).
Jan. 14—Her Defiance (Two parts—Heart Interest—Drama).
Jan. 16—The Little Mascot (Two parts—Dr.).
Jan. 18—The Silent Member (Drama).
Jan. 23—No release this day.
Jan. 25—No release this day.
Jan. 20—In His Own Trap (Three parts—Modern—Drama).

VICTOR.

Dec. 31—No release this day.
Jan. 5—The Heart of a Mermaid (Three parts—Sea Drama).
Jan. 7—No release this day.
Jan. 12—Man and Morality (Three parts—Dr.).
Jan. 14—The Ring and the Rajah (Drama).
Jan. 19—Her Better Self (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 21—A Sea Mystery (Drama).
Jan. 26—Across the Line (Drama).

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL FEATURE.

Dec. 27—Craft (No. 3, "The Traction Grab") (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 3—Graft (No. 4, "The Power of the People" (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 10—Graft No. 5, "Grinding Life Down" (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 17—Graft No. 6, "The Railroad Monopoly" (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 24—Graft, No. 7, "America Saved From War" (Two parts—Drama).

Mutual Film Corp.

RELEASE DAYS.

Sunday—Reliance (2), Casino (1), Thanhouser (1).
Monday—American (2), Falstaff (1), Novelty (1).
Tuesday—Thanhouser (2), Cartoon and Scenic (1), Beauty (1).
Wednesday—Rialto, Centaur (3), Novelty (1).
Thursday—Centaur (2), Falstaff (1), Mutual Weekly (1).
Friday—Mustang (2), American (1), Cub (1).
Saturday—Clipper, Than-o-play or Mustang (3), Beauty (1).

AMERICAN.

Dec. 27—The Tragic Circle (Two parts—Society—Drama).
Dec. 31—The Mender (Drama).
Jan. 3—Matching Dreams (Two parts—Comedy—Drama).
Jan. 7—Time and Tide (Drama).
Jan. 10—Viviana (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 14—The Secret Wire (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 14—Spider Barlow Meets Competition (Crook—Drama).
Jan. 16—The Gamble (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 18—The Silent Trail (Two parts—Sociological—Drama).
Jan. 21—The Thunderbolt (Drama).

BEAUTY.

Dec. 28—Kiddus, Kids and Kiddo (Comedy).
Jan. 1—Settle Out of Court (Comedy).
Jan. 4—Billy van Deusen's Shadow (Comedy).
Jan. 8—To Be or Not to Be (Comedy).
Jan. 11—The First Quarrel (Comedy).
Jan. 15—Getting In Wrong (Comedy).
Jan. 19—Johnny's Birthday (Comedy).
Jan. 23—Mischief and a Mirror (Comedy).

CASINO.

Dec. 26—Hunting (Comedy).
Jan. 2—Leaving It to Cissy (Comedy).
Jan. 9—Alias Mr. Jones (Comedy).
Jan. 16—Ham and Eggs (Comedy).

CENTAUR.

Dec. 23—The Winning of Jess (Two parts—Animal—Drama).
Dec. 30—The Terror of the Fold (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 6—The Homesteader (Two parts—Animal—Drama).
Jan. 13—Marta of the Jungles (Two parts—Animal—Drama).

CLIPPER STAR FEATURES.

Dec. 11—Curly (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 1—The Wraith of Haddon Towers (Three parts—Psyclo—Drama).

CUB.

Dec. 31—Jerry's Revenge (Comedy).
Jan. 7—Jerry in the Movies (Comedy).
Jan. 14—Jerry In Mexico (Comedy).
Jan. 21—The Girl of His Dreams (Comedy).

FALSTAFF.

Dec. 23—Toodles, Tom and Trouble (Comedy).
Dec. 27—Una's Useful Uncle (Comedy).
Dec. 30—Foolish Fate Flora (Comedy).
Jan. 3—The Optimistic Oriental Occults (Comedy).
Jan. 6—Hilda's Husky Helper (Comedy).
Jan. 10—Belinda's Bridal Breakfast (Comedy).
Jan. 13—Reforming Rubbering Rosie (Comedy).
Jan. 18—Grace's Gorgeous Gowns (Comedy).
Jan. 20—Pete's Persian Princess (Comedy).

GAUMONT.

Dec. 28—See America First, No. 16, Chicago, Ill. (Scenic). —Keeping Up With the Joneses (Cartoon—Comedy).
Jan. 4—See America First No. 17, "Chicago Industries" (Scenic). —Keeping Up With the Joneses (Cartoon—Comedy).
Jan. 11—See America First (No. 18, "Milwaukee, Wis.) (Scenic). —Keeping Up With the Joneses (Cartoon—Comedy).
Jan. 23—See America First, No. 19, "The Dells of Wisconsin"—Scenic). —Keeping Up With the Joneses (Cartoon—Comedy).

(Mutual Releases cotninued on page 504.)

WANTED!

A Capable negative editor—Not the ordinary film "cutter," but a lady or gentleman of expert ability who can edit first negative and can meet exacting requirements. A splendid opportunity in salary and connection is offered by one of the largest and most successful film establishments.

Address "Rogers,"
Moving Picture World.

Gundlach Projection Lenses

Furnished as the regular equipment of the latest models of Power's, Simplex and Baird Machines and conceded to give the best results by thousands of theatre owners using these and other makes of machines. There must be a very potent reason why Gundlach Projection Lenses have replaced nearly all other lenses formerly in use and why they are given the preference by the United States War Department, The Lyman H. Howe Co., and the biggest theatre circuits in the country.

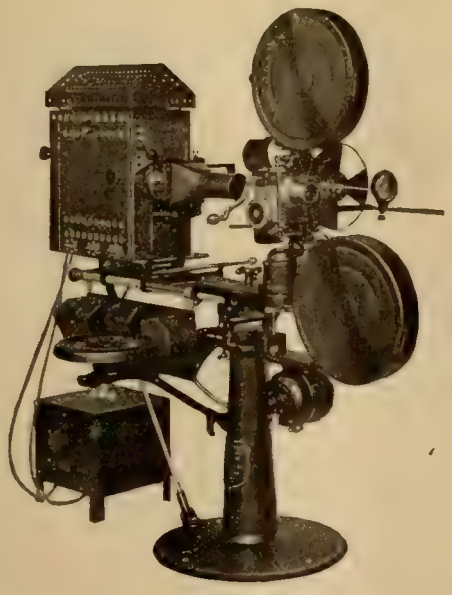
Try them and see for yourself how a picture looks made by Gundlach Projection Lenses.

Gundlach-Manhattan Optical Co.
808 Clinton Ave., So., Rochester, N. Y.

IT'S ALL IN THE LENS

Big Increase In Motiograph Sales



Why?

Most Men Who Appreciate Quality and Perfect Projection Select a 1916 Model Motiograph

Nothing that we have said about Motiograph projectors has had as much influence on MOTIOGRAPH sales as the things which MOTIOGRAPH owners say about them every day. There are thousands of exhibitors in this country from whom you will hear higher praise of MOTIOGRAPHS than we would ever put in this advertisement.

The MOTIOGRAPH represents the ESSENCE of SIMPLICITY, STRENGTH and DURABILITY.

Write for literature.

THE ENTERPRISE OPTICAL MFG. CO., 574 W. Randolph St., Chicago, Ill.

Eastern Office: 19 West 23rd St., New York City. Western Office: 833 Market St., San Francisco, Cal.

List of Current Film Release Dates

(For Daily Calendar of Program Releases See Pages 466, 468.)

(Mutual Releases continued from page 502.)

MUSTANG.

Jan. 7—The Hills of Glory (Two parts—Western—Drama).
Jan. 15—"Water Stuff" (Three parts—Comedy—Drama).
Jan. 21—Wild Jim Reformer (Two parts—Western—Drama).

MUTUAL WEEKLY.

Jan. 6—No. 53 (Topical).
Jan. 13—No. 54 (Topical).
Jan. 20—No. 55 (Topical).
Jan. 27—Number 56 (Topical).

NOVELTY.

Dec. 29—No release.
Jan. 21—Mr. Bumps, Commuter (Comedy).

RELIANCE.

Jan. 2—The Law of Success (Two parts—Drama.)
Jan. 5—The She Devil (Three parts—Melo-Drama).

RIALTO.

Dec. 29—A Prince of Yesterday (Three parts—Domestic—Drama).
Jan. 12—The Secret Agent (Three parts—Secret Service—Drama).

THANHOUSER.

Jan. 4—The Bubbles In the Glass (Three parts—Society—Drama).
Jan. 11—In the Name of the Law (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 19—The Phantom Witness (Three parts—Mystery—Drama).
Jan. 26—The Burglar's Picnic (Three parts—School—Drama).

MUTUAL MASTERPICTURES DE LUXE.

Jan. 17—The Thoroughbred (American—Five parts—Drama—No. 56).
Jan. 20—The Five Faults of Flo (Thanhouser—Five parts—Society—Drama—No. 57).
Jan. 22—The Bait (Centaur—Five parts—Drama—No. 58).
Jan. 24—As a Woman Sows (Gaumont—Five parts—Drama) (No. 59).
Jan. 27—Lord Loveland Discovers America (American—Five parts—Dr.) (No. 60).
Jan. 29—Betrayed (Thanhouser—Five parts—Race—Drama) (No. 61).

MUTUAL MASTERPICTURES.

Jan. 6—The Other Side of the Door (No. 54—Five parts—Romantic—Drama).

SIGNAL FILM CORPORATION.

Jan. 3—The Girl and the Game (No. 2, "The Winning Jump") (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 10—The Girl and the Game (No. 3—Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 17—The Girl and the Game (No. 4—Two parts—Drama).

THANHOUSER MASTERPICTURE.

Jan. 8—Society Wolves (Five parts—Political Drama).

VOGUE.

Jan. 10—Oh, for the Life of a Fire Man! (Comedy).
Jan. 12—A Bum Steer (Comedy).
Jan. 20—A Baby Grand (Comedy).
Jan. 23—Sammy's Dough-Full Romance (Com.).
Jan. 27—Subject not yet announced.
Jan. 30—Subject not yet announced.

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

RELEASE DAYS.

Monday—Pathe.
Tuesday—Pathe, Photocolor.
Wednesday—Pathe, Phunphilms, Globe
Thursday—Gold Rooster.
Saturday—Pathe, Starlight, Balboa.

BALBOA.

Jan. 1—The Red Circle (No. 3—"Twenty Years Ago" (Two parts—Drama.).
Jan. 8—The Red Circle (No. 4—Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 15—The Red Circle No. 5, "Weapon of War" (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 22—The Red Circle, No. 6, "False Colors" (Two parts—Drama).

GLOBE.

Jan. 3—Quaint Dances of Japan (Dances).
Jan. 10—Unfamiliar Fishes (Educational).
Jan. 17—Railroad Construction on the Dark Continent (Industry).

GOLD ROOSTER PLAYS.

Dec. 31—Excuse Me (Five parts—Drama).
Jan. 7—The King's Game (Five parts—Dr.).
Jan. 14—Madame X (Six parts—Drama).
Jan. 21—The Love Trail. (Five parts—Dr.).

KING COLE.

Jan. 22—Riding the Goat (Comedy).

PATHE.

Dec. 28—Col. Heeza Liar, Nature Faker (Cartoon—Comedy).
Jan. 3—New Adventures of Wallingford (No. 14—Two parts—Comedy).

PATHE NEWS.

Dec. 29—Number 104, 1915 (Topical).
Jan. 1—Number 1, 1916 (Topical).
Jan. 5—Number 6, 1916 (Topical)
Jan. 8—Number 7, 1916 (Topical).

PHOTOCOLOR.

Jan. 3—Old, Unchanging Holland (Colored—Scenic).
Jan. 10—From Kabylia to Constantine (Scenic).
Jan. 17—The Lizards (Colored—Educational).

PHUNPHILMS.

Jan. 5—Luke Leans to the Literary (Comedy).
Jan. 12—Luke Lugs Luggage (Comedy).
Jan. 19—Luke Lolls in Luxury (Comedy).

STARLIGHT.

Jan. 1—Chasing 'Em Out in the Open (Com.).
Jan. 8—Ach! Such Crimes! (Comedy).
Jan. 15—From Bad to Worse (Comedy).

Miscellaneous Feature Releases.

AMERICAN BIOSCOPE.

January—The Making of Fulton (Three parts—Drama).

AMERICAN CORRESPONDENT FILM CO.

Dec.—The Warring Millions (Topical).
January—The Battles of a Nation (Six parts—Topical).

AURORA FILM PLAYS CORPORATION.

January—The Waif (Five parts—Drama).

B. S. MOSS MOTION PICTURE CORPORATION.

Jan. —The Salamander (Drama).

COSMOFOTOFILM CO.

January—His Vindication (Four parts—Dr.).

EAGLE FILM MANUFACTURING & PRODUCING. CO.

January—Ocena's Pearl (Drama).
January—Pirates of the Sky (Drama).
January—Grogan's Alley (Comedy).
January—The Adventures of Suffy (Comedy).

EQUITABLE—FILM CORPORATION.

Jan. 10—Her Great Hour (Triumph—Five parts—Drama).
Jan. 17—The Ransom (Triumph—Five parts—Drama).
Jan. 24—Babette of the Bally Hoo (Five parts—Drama).
Jan. 31—The Clarion (Five parts—Drama).

JOE W. FARNHAM.

January—Race Suicide (Six parts—Drama).

FOX FILM CORPORATION.

Jan. 2—The Green-Eyed Monster (Five parts—Drama).
Jan. 9—A Parisian Romance (Drama).
Jan. 16—The Fourth Estate (Drama).
Jan. 23—The Serpent (Drama).
Jan. 30—The Ruling Passion (Drama).

FRENCH OFFICIAL WAR FILMS.

January—Fighting With France (Topical).

GREAT NORTHERN FILM COMPANY.

January—Sins of a Great City (Four parts—Drama).

ARTHUR S. KANE.

January—Somewhere in France (Five parts—Topical).

MEDUSA FILM.

Jan. —His Daughter's Second Husband (Five parts—Drama).

METRO PICTURES CORPORATION.

Jan. 6—What Will People Say (Popular Plays & Players—Five parts—Drama).
Jan. 10—The Turmoil (Columbia—Five Parts—Drama).
Jan. 17—A Rose of the Alley (Rolfe—Five Parts—Drama).
Jan. 24—Her Debt of Honor (Columbia—Dr.).
Jan. 31—Man and His Soul (Quality—Drama).

WM. MORRIS.

January—On the Battlefields of France (Top.).

THE NEW YORK WORLD.

January—Fighting in France (Topical).

PARAMOUNT PICTURES CORPORATION.

Jan. 6—Tongues of Men (Morosco—Five parts—Drama).
Jan. 10—Mice and Men (Famous Players—Five parts—Comedy—Drama).
Jan. 13—The Golden Chance (Lasky—Five Parts—Comedy—Drama).
Jan. 17—My Lady Incog (Famous Players—Five parts—Comedy—Drama).
Jan. 20—Nearly a King (Famous Players—Five parts—Comedy).
Jan. 24—The Call of the Cumberlands (Pallas—Five parts—Drama).
Jan. 27—The Spider (Famous Players—Five parts—Drama).
Jan. 31—Pudd'nhead Wilson (Lasky—Five parts—Comedy—Drama).

SUPREME FILM CO.

Jan. 1—The Cow Puncher (Six parts—Drama).

TRIANGLE FILM CORPORATION.

(Releases for week of Jan. 9):
Let Katy Do It (Fine Arts—Five Parts—Drama).
Great Pearl Tangle (Keystone—Two Parts—Comedy).
The Corner (Kay-Bee—Five Parts—Drama).
Fatty and Mabel Adrift (Keysto —Two Parts—Comedy).

Releases for week of Jan. 16:
The Missing Links (Fine Arts—Five parts—Drama).
Because He Loved Her (Keystone—Two parts—Comedy).
The Beckoning Flame (Kay-Bee—Five parts—Drama).
A Modern Enoch Arden (Keystone—Two parts—Comedy).

WORLD FILM CORPORATION.

Jan. 3—Camille (Shubert—Drama).
Jan. 10—Life's Whirlpool (Brady—Drama).

V-L-S-E, INC.

Jan. 3—The Misleading Lady (Essanay—Six parts—Drama).
Jan. 3—Thou Art the Man (Vitagraph—Six parts—Drama).
Jan. 10—No Greater Love (Selig—Five Parts—Drama).
Jan. 10—Green Stockings (Vitagraph—Five parts—Drama).
Jan. 17—Gods of Fate (Lubin—Five Parts—Drama).
Jan. 17—Captain Jinks (Essanay—Comedy).
Jan. 17—My Lady's Slipper (Vitagraph—Five parts—Drama).

KLEINE—EDISON FEATURE SERVICE.

Jan. 5—The Devil's Prayer Book (Kleine—Drama).
Jan. 12—The Catspaw (Edison—Five parts—Drama).
Jan. 19—Wild Oats (Kleine—Drama).
Jan. 26—The Innocence of Ruth (Edison—Dr.).

A Marvelous Superman Usurped Stellar Honors in "Cabiria," The Wonder Play

MARVELOUS MACISTE.

IN 6 Parts — The Giant of Cabiria

Is Another Wonder Play Made to Fit the Most Remarkable Character Which Has Been Given the Amusement World in Years. It is Playing Return Engagements Everywhere.

STATE RIGHTS APPLY

HANOVER FILM CO., Inc.

BROADWAY AT 47th STREET — Suite 904 Columbia Building, Bryant 9544 — NEW YORK CITY

CUT YOUR LIGHT BILL IN HALF!

Minusa Gold Fibre Screens, "Built by Brains," will positively save FIFTY PERCENT of your light bill, because of their greater reflective power—they absorb less than one percent.

The WISE exhibitor makes the Electric Company pay for his screen—think it over.

"Minusa" Screens not only SAVE you money, but MAKE money for you by greatly increasing your patronage. Here's the thing in a nut shell. The public KNOW a GOOD screen when they SEE IT; they KNOW when the pictures are CLOUDY, and they KNOW that a poor screen causes EYE STRAIN!

"Minusa" Screens show such a Clear, Natural, Brilliant picture that the first night's exhibition starts "tongues to wagging," and before you get up next morning the whole town knows about it. What's the result—PACKED HOUSES DAILY.

Now Mr. Exhibitor, it's up to YOU—figure it out. You CAN'T LOSE! Write or Wire for Samples and Prices.

The "ORIGINAL GOLD FIBRE SCREEN"—Perfected.

MINUSA

MINUSA CINÉ PRODUCTS COMPANY,

SAINT LOUIS, BROADWAY AT CHESTNUT | CHICAGO, SAN FRANCISCO | PITTSBURGH, CALGARY, ALBERTA | NEW YORK, 19 WEST TWENTY-THIRD STREET

SCREENS "BUILT BY BRAINS"

KNOWLEDGE BRINGS SUCCESS

Messrs. Exhibitor, Exchangeman, Operator, and Film Men Everywhere:—The moving picture business is one of the youngest but one of the leading industries of the world to-day. We may well be proud to be connected with it. Are you keeping up? Do you know all about it? It will yield larger returns for an equal amount of work to the men who know. Each weekly issue of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD contains more up-to-date information than you can get from all other sources. Subscribe now if not already on our mailing list. You will get your paper hours earlier than from the newsstand and it costs less.

ONE YEAR.....$3.00
SIX MONTHS.....$1.50
See title page for rates Canada and Foreign

MOVING PICTURE WORLD
17 Madison Avenue, New York

.....

.....

.....

Cut out and mail today.

Theatre.....

List of Current Film Release Dates

(For Daily Calendar of Program Releases See Pages 466, 468.)

General Film Company

RELEASE DAYS.

Monday—Biograph, Essanay, Lubin, Selig, Vitagraph.

Tuesday—Biograph, Essanay, Kalem.

Wednesday—Biograph, Essanay, Kalem.

Thursday—Lubin, Mina, Selig.

Friday—Kalem, Vim, Vitagraph.

Saturday—Essanay, Kalem, Lubin, Selig, Vitagraph.

BIOGRAPH.

Dec. 29—The Woman of Mystery (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 3—The Lesser Evil (Drama—Biograph Reissue No. 31).
Jan. 4—The Avenging Shot (Two parts—Dr.).
Jan. 5—The Skating Rink (Three parts—Comedy).
Jan. 10—In the Aisles of the Wild (Drama—Biograph—Reissue No. 32).
Jan. 12—The War of Wealth (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 17—The Miser's Heart (Drama) (Biograph—Reissue No. 33).
Jan. 18—The Angel of Piety Flat (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 19—A Life Chase (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 25—An Adventure in the Autumn Woods (Drama) (Biograph Reissue No. 34).
Jan. 26—Stronger than Woman's Will (Three parts—Drama).

EDISON.

Dec. 15—History of the Big Tree (Educational).
—The Black's Mysterious Box (Cartoon—Comedy).
—The Hicks in Nightmare Land (Cartoon—Comedy).
Dec. 17—The Hand of the Law (Special—Three parts—Drama).
Dec. 18—Santa Claus Versus Cupid (Comedy-Drama).
Dec. 24—Blade o' Grass (Three parts—Drama).

ESSANAY.

Dec. 17—Broncho Billy's Marriage (Drama).
Dec. 18—A Christmas Revenge (Special—Two parts—Drama).
Dec. 21—The Danger of Being Lonesome (Two parts—Drama).
Dec. 22—Canimated Nooz Pictorial No. 3 (Cartoon—Comedy).
Dec. 25—The Woman with a Rose (Three parts—Drama).
Dec. 28—Brought Home (Two parts—Drama).
Dec. 29—The Fable of "The Heir and the Heiress" (Comedy).
Jan. 1—The Prisoner at the Bar (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 4—The Lesson (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 5—Mile a Minute Monty (Cartoon—Comedy).
—A Scenic Subject on the same reel.
Jan. 8.—The House of Revelation (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 11—Angels Unawares (Two parts—Comedy—Drama).
Jan. 12—The Fable of "The Two Philanthropic Sons" (Comedy).
Jan. 15—Pieces of the Game (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 18—The Book Agent's Romance (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 19—Canimated Nooz Pictorial No. 4 (Cartoon—Comedy).
—Scenes of Canadian Rockies (Scenic).
Jan. 22—The White Alley (Three parts—Dr.).

KALEM.

Dec. 29—The Taking of Stingaree (No. 6 of the "Stingaree" Series (Two parts—Drama).
Dec. 31—The Spy's Ruse (No. 10 of "The Ventures of Marguerite" Series (Dr.).
Jan. 1—At the Risk of Her Life (No. 60 of the "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series (Drama).
Jan. 4—The Missing Mummy (Comedy).
Jan. 5—The Honor of the Road (No. 7 of the "Stingaree" Series—Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 7—Crossed Clues (No. 11 of "The Ventures of Marguerite" Series—Dr.).
Jan. 8—When Seconds Count (No. 61 of the "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series—Drama).
Jan. 11—Guardian Angels (Burlesque—Com.).
Jan. 12—The Purification of Mulfera (No. 8 of the "Stingaree" Series) (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 14—The Tricksters (No. 12 of "The Ventures of Marguerite" Series (Dr.).
Jan. 15—The Haunted Station (No. 62 of the "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series (Drama).
Jan. 18—The Tale of a Coat (Burlesque—Com.).
Jan. 19—A Duel in the Desert (No. 9 of the "Stingaree" Series) (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 21—The Sealskin Coat (No. 13 of "The Ventures of Marguerite" Series) (Drama).
Jan. 22—The Open Track (No. 63 of the "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series) (Drama).
Jan. 25—Snoop Hounds (Burlesque—Comedy).
Jan. 26—The Villain Worshipper (Tenth of the "Stingaree" Series (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 28—The Fate of America (No. 14 of "The Ventures of Marguerite" Series—Drama).
Jan. 29—"Tapped Wires" (No. 64 of the "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series—Drama).

LUBIN.

Dec. 22—Heartaches (Four parts—Drama—Unit Program).
Dec. 22—Otto's Cabaret (Comedy—Unit Program).
Dec. 23—Beyond All is Love (Three parts—Drama).
Dec. 25—No Smoking (Comedy).
Dec. 29—Saved from the Harem (Four parts—Drama—Unit Program).
Dec. 29—This Isn't the Life (Comedy—Unit Program).
Dec. 30—The Convict King (Three parts—Dr.).
Jan. 1—A Ready Made Maid (Comedy).
Jan. 5—Sorrows of Happiness (Four parts—Drama—Unit Program).
Jan. 5—His Lordship (Comedy).
Jan. 6—Vengeance of the Oppressed (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 8—Billie's Headache (Comedy).
Jan. 10—The Lost Bracelet (Drama).
Jan. 10—The City of Failing Light (Four parts—Unit Program).
Jan. 10—A Bath Tub Mystery (Comedy).
Jan. 11—The Old Watchman (Two parts—Dr.).
Jan. 13—The Bond Within (Three parts—Dr.).
Jan. 15—A Skate for a Bride (Comedy).
Jan. 17—The Little Sister of the Poor (Dr.).
Jan. 20—The Law's Injustice (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 22—Insomnia (Comedy).
Jan. 24—The Evangelist (Four parts—Drama—Unit Program).
Jan. 24—Fooling Uncle Tom (Comedy—Unit Program).

MINA.

Dec. 9—Forty-Five Minutes from Nowhere (Comedy).
—Why Hubby Grows Bald (Comedy).
Dec. 16—When the Show Hit Watertown (Comedy).
Dec. 23—The Little Puritan (Comedy).
Dec. 30—From Blackstone to Stone (Comedy).
Jan. 6—Caught With the Goods (Comedy).
Jan. 13—Title not yet announced.
Jan. 20—A Misfit Baron (Comedy).
Jan. 27—A Special Delivery (Comedy).

SELIG.

Jan. 3—Selig Tribune News Pictorial No. 1, 1916 (Topical).
Jan. 6—Selig Tribune News Pictorial No. 2, 1916 (Topical).
Jan. 8—The Chronicles of Bloom Center (No. 7, "Spooks"—Comedy).
Jan. 10—The Devil-in-Chief (Drama).
Jan. 10—Selig Tribune News Pictorial No. 3, 1916 (Topical).
Jan. 13—Selig Tribune News Pictorial No. 4, 1916 (Topical).
Jan. 15—The Chronicles of Bloom Center No. 8, "No Sir-ee Bob!" (Rural Com.).
Jan. 17—Why Love Is Blind (Drama).
Jan. 17—Selig-Tribune News Pictorial No. 5, 1916 (Topical).
Jan. 20—Selig-Tribune News Pictorial No. 6, 1916 (Topical).
Jan. 22—Chronicles of Bloom Center No. 9, "When the Circus Came to Town" (Comedy).
Jan. 24—Tom Martin—A Man (Drama).
Jan. 24—Selig-Tribune News Pictorial No. 7, 1916 (Topical).
Jan. 27—Selig-Tribune News Pictorial No. 8 1916 (Topical).
Jan. 29—Apple Butter (No. 10 of the "Chronicles of Bloom Center" (Rural Comedy).

VIM.

Dec. 24—Mixed and Fixed (Comedy).
Dec. 31—Ups and Downs (Comedy).
Jan. 7—This Way Out (Comedy).
Jan. 14—Chickens (Comedy).
Jan. 21—Frenzied Finance (Comedy).
Jan. 28—Busted Hearts (Comedy).

VITAGRAPH.

Jan. 3—Who Killed Joe Merrion? (Four parts—Drama-Unit Program).
Jan. 7—When Lin Came Home (Drama).
Jan. 8—Tried for His Own Murder (Broadway Star Feature—Three parts—Dr.).
Jan. 10—The Surprises of an Empty Hotel (Unit Program—Four parts—Dr.).
Jan. 10—A Cripple Creek Cinderella (Unit Program—Comedy).
Jan. 14—When Two Play a Game (Comedy).
Jan. 15—By Love Redeemed (Broadway Star Feature—Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 17—Mrs. Dane's Danger (Four parts—Drama—Unit Program).
Jan. 17—Bittersweet (Drama—Unit Program).
Jan. 21—A Telegraphic Tangle (Comedy).
Jan. 22—The Secret Seven (Three parts—Dr.—Broadway Star Feature).
Jan. 24—Britton of the Seventh (Four parts—Military-Drama—Unit Program).
Jan. 24—Jane's Husband (Comedy).
Jan. 24—The Cold Feet Getaway (Comedy).
Jan. 28—Peace at any Price (Comedy).
Jan. 29—The Ruse (Broadway Star Feature—Three parts—Drama).

General Film Company Features

BROADWAY STAR FEATURES.

Jan. 8—Tried for His Own Murder (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 15—By Love Redeemed (Three parts—Dr.).
Jan. 22—The Secret Seven (Three parts—Dr.).
Jan. 24—The Ruse (Three parts—Drama).

KNICKERBOCKER STAR FEATURES.

Dec. 31—The Mysterious Bride (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 7—Paying the Toll (Three parts—Dr.).
Jan. 14—A Daughter of the Woods (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 21—House of Mystery (Three parts—Dr.).

UNIT PROGRAM RELEASES.

Jan. 3—Who Killed Joe Merrion? (Vitagraph—Four parts—Drama).
Jan. 3—Sorrows of Happiness (Lubin—Four parts—Drama).
Jan. 10—The City of Failing Light (Lubin—Four parts—Drama).
Jan. 10—The Surprises of an Empty Hotel (Vitagraph—Four parts—Drama).
Jan. 10—A Cripple Creek Cinderella (Vitagraph—Comedy).
Jan. 17—The Evangelist (Lubin—Four parts—Drama).
Jan. 17—Fooling Uncle Lubin (Comedy).
Jan. 17—Mrs. Dane's Danger (Vitagraph—Four parts—Drama).
Jan. 17—Bittersweet (Vitagraph—Drama).
Jan. 24—Britton of the Seventh (Vitagraph—Four parts—Military Drama).

We offer a GREATER VARIETY of BETTER FILMS in THE REGULAR SERVICE than any other exchange. Our subjects consist of the one, two, three and four reel productions of the EDISON, ESSANAY, BIOGRAPH, KALEM LUBIN, SELIG, VITAGRAPH, KLEINE and PATHE studios. Our charge is most reasonable. It will be to your advantage to investigate at once.
GREATER NEW YORK FILM RENTAL CO., 126 West 46th St., New York

A clear picture

is as essential as a good scenario. Because the basic product is right the clearest pictures are on Eastman Film. Identifiable by the stencil mark in the margin.

EASTMAN KODAK CO.
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

A Reel Bright Spot

Produced Only With

BIO RECOGNIZED BIO CARBONS BRAND STANDARD CARBONS

ORDER FROM YOUR DEALER OR EXCHANGE OR FROM

Charles L. Kiewert Co.

NEW YORK

MILWAUKEE 114 Huron St. | 165 Greenwich Street | SAN FRANCISCO 143 Second St.

THE DAILY TRIBUNE

Says Movies Are Great Distributors of Colds

"REGULAR" THEATERS, CHURCHES, AND OTHER PLACES OF ASSEMBLAGE OVERLOOKED BY GOVERNMENT HEALTH EXPERT

Washington, Oct. 8.—"Keep your house or apartment well ventilated and wear seasonable clothes, walk to work in the morning and back in the afternoon, and stay out of moving picture theaters and other places where tainted poisons may be."

This was the advice for prevention of colds today of Surgeon C. Pierce, of the Public Health Service. "Ill-ventilated houses," said Dr. Pierce, "form the chief cause of colds. Most people are too much afraid of letting a little fresh but cool air into their living rooms. If we live and work in well-ventilated homes and office, and wear suitable clothing, we would be taking about as much precaution against colds as it is possible to take with our mode of living.

"Any doctor can discourse learnedly on how to avoid taking cold, but a week or so later he will be found coughing just the same as any ordinary human. The reason is that it is impossible to avoid, in our manner of living, contact with persons who have colds. The worst place of contact is the closed street car, which seems almost never to be well ventilated, and into which many persons are crowded together, of whom some always have colds. The only way I know to avoid this is to walk or use an auto. I would not favor open cars, for there the shock would be too great.

"The moving picture theater is another great center for the distribution of colds.

Disarm Criticism

A hot, stuffy, and ill-ventilated house is always the object of suspicion and creates the impression that all "movies" are distributors of colds. This is not the case if the theatre is properly heated and ventilated. If your theatre is liberally supplied with pure, fresh air, patrons will be comfortable and satisfied and you will disarm criticism.

Sturtevant
REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

Heating and Ventilating System not only gives abundant heating, it also gives ventilation.

Sturtevant Fans are made in different types to meet every known ventilating requirement. Get in touch with our engineers. They will tell you just what fan you should have.

When writing give details regarding size of theatre, number of doors and windows, seating capacity, etc., and draw a rough floor plan if possible.

B. F. STURTEVANT COMPANY

HYDE PARK, BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS

And All Principal Cities of the World

Wanted--- Slapstick Comedy Scenarios

Will pay $25.00 and upward. Must have story and contain original comedy situations. Address Vim Comedies Corp., 750 Riverside Ave., Jacksonville, Fla.

A GOOD THEATRE PLUS GOOD PICTURES INSURE SUCCESS
HAVE YOUR PICTURE THEATRE DESIGNED BY A SPECIALIST

THE PROBLEMS OF PROPER PROJECTION, VISIBILITY, VENTILATION, SANITATION AND FIRE PROTECTION SCIENTIFICALLY SOLVED.

OLD THEATRES REMODELED AND TURNED INTO SAFE, SANITARY, COMFORTABLE HOUSES. AN ATTRACTIVE FRONT WILL DRAW THE CROWD. A COMFORTABLE INTERIOR WILL HOLD IT. EXAMINATIONS AND REPORTS MADE. SKETCHES, PLANS, SPECIFICATIONS AND SUPERVISION FURNISHED. RATES REASONABLE.

THOMAS H. ATHERTON, Jr., Architect, Wilkes-Barre, Penna. Graduate Massachusetts Institute of Technology

We Want Your Orders for Machines and Supplies

We have some SPECIAL OFFERS that are worth writing for today.

Let us show you what you can save in the cost of equipment, supplies, etc., and how much better service you can give your patrons, how to increase your receipts and especially, we ask the privilege of acquainting you with the class of service that we give to the exhibitors.

We are LEADING DEALERS in all makes of machines and supplies for the Picture Theatre.

WRITE FOR SPECIAL OFFER TODAY

Amusement Supply Company
6th Floor, Cambridge Bldg.
N. W. Cor. 5th and Randolph, Chicago, Illinois
Distributors of the Motiograph, Power's, Simplex, Edison and other machines and Genuine Parts

PRICE LIST OF MUSIC

suggested in the cue sheet for the current Equitable release

"HER GREATEST HOUR"

Moszkowski—Gondoliera	$1.00	Barthelemy—Caressing Butterfly.	$1.00
Scates—Roses and Rue	.60	Barthelemy—Love's Wilfulness
Mouton—Enchanted Hour	1.00	Richardson—Hezekiah	.40
Balart—Ideal	.75	Lack—Idilio	1.00
Carvel—Daffodils	.80	Mildenberg—Arabian Night
Baynes—Destiny Waltz	.60	Daniele—Love's Triumph	.60
Godard—Scenes Poetiques	1.25	Herbert—Sweethearts Waltz	.75

These prices are subject to a professional discount of 25% to patrons of the Moving Picture World, transportation costs to be added to the net amount. The quotations given are for small orchestra; editions for piano solo, full orchestra or extra parts are in proportion.

To insure prompt service and favorable discounts, a cash balance may be maintained, against which purchases may be charged; or a regular monthly charge account will be opened with responsible theatre managers or orchestra leaders on receipt of the customary business references.

The numbers in the cue sheet preceded by an asterisk (*) refer to the

Schirmer Photoplay Series a loose leaf collection of dramatic numbers specially written for motion picture use. Two volumes now in preparation:

Price per volume (containing 10 numbers): Small Orchestra, $3.20; full orchestra, $4.40. Each number separately, 60c., small; 80c. full.

G. SCHIRMER (INC.) 3 East 43rd Street New York City

BOUND VOLUMES

of THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD

are the

Accepted Reference Books

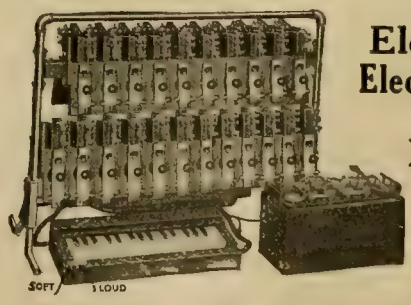
of the Moving Picture Trade

Your Office Equipment is Not Complete Without Them

ADDRESS CHALMERS PUBLISHING CO.,

17 Madison Ave., New York City

Deagan's Musical Instruments Will Fill Those Empty Seats



Electric Bells
Electric Una-Fons
Electric Xylophones
Electric Cathedral Chimes

Your regular pianist plays them] Write for Catalogue "F"

J. C. DEAGAN, DEAGAN BUILDING 1776 Berteau Ave. CHICAGO

A perfect white opaque light-saving screen can be obtained by the use of a gallon of the WONDERFUL D-D SCREEN PAINT

Will Not Fade, Run or Crack. $4.50 GALLON Easily Applied. Gallon will give large screen two coats.

Used by Keith's, Stanley, Lincoln, Famous Players and hundreds of prominent theatres. Send for testimonials, circulars, etc.

D-D SCREEN PAINT CO., 1430 MASONIC BUILDING 23d St. and 6th Ave. N. Y. Phone 4454 Gramercy

SAYS MR. F. B. DAVIS, JONESVILLE, IA.

"I have an old STANDARD that is giving perfect satisfaction and that I would not trade for a lot of new machines of other makes."

Because the STANDARD is easiest to operate, is fireproof, durable; because the pictures projected by the STANDARD cannot be beat; because repairs are practically eliminated many exhibitors echo Mr. Davis' statement.

For perfection in projection, plus economy, plus efficiency, remember to purchase the American Standard MASTER MODEL.

AMERICAN STANDARD MOTION PICTURE MACHINE COMPANY
One Hundred Ten and Twelve West Fortieth Street, New York, N. Y.

Furnished for Single or Double Arc. Single, two or three phase circuit, 110, 220, 440 Volts, A. C. to Controlled D. C.; D. C. to Controlled D. C.

TransVerteR

TRADE MARK

is a complete—upright electrical unit, that furnishes the best possible direct current light for motion picture projection and may be installed and operated in any projection booth.

Better pictures, bigger profit and perfect automatic arc regulation.

Send for booklet, "The Perfect Arc"

The Hertner Electric & Mfg. Co.
Department W, Cleveland, O., U. S. A.

If your Panoramic and Tilting Tripod is not as good as this one—

You are working at a disadvantage.

If your Tripod and head are not like this—
It is not as good.

Shall we prove it?

UNIVERSAL TILTING AND PANORAMIC TRIPOD

Wide spread top legs give truss strength and rigidity.
Segmental slide prevents twitching.
Panoramic table quickly changed to any position.
Positive locking devices. Snap-handles cannot fall off.
Deep cut worms and gears insure long wear.

Can be used with any camera

Demonstrational Catalogue on request

The Universal Camera Company
25 E. Washington St., Chicago, U. S. A.
1209 Times Bldg., New York
Represented by Atlas Educational Film Company
821 Market Street, San Francisco, Cal.

EVERYTHING YOU OUGHT TO KNOW

to Get Best Results in the Conduct of Your MOTION PICTURE BUSINESS Where Electricity Is Concerned

Whether You Are OPERATOR MANAGER OR MANUFACTURER

IS AT YOUR EASY COMMAND IN

Motion Picture Electricity

By J. H. HALLBERG
Electrical Expert with an International Reputation

This Splendid Work Will Pay for Itself the First Day You Have It in Your Possession

Sent to Any Address, Charges Prepaid, on Receipt of TWO DOLLARS AND FIFTY CENTS

Chalmers Publishing Co.
17 Madison Avenue, New York City

Questions and Answers

QUESTION: What kind of pictures result from the use of alternating current?

Answer: Flickering pictures with a low intensity of light.

Question: Is there a remedy?

Answer: Yes, the

Wotton Rexolux

Question: What will this machine do?

Answer: It will produce steady pictures with the highest intensity of light, guarantee eye comfort, assure the efficient use of current and incidentally build up business.

Send further questions to,

Electric Products Company
CLEVELAND, OHIO

We Feel Proud To Boast of This

We have just installed the latest Power's No. 6 B machines in the Beautiful Majestic Theatre of Detroit.
We have to date installed all the projection apparatus in this theatre since its opening and have equipped every large theatre that has opened in Detroit in the past year, and most every large one opened in the State.
We carry a tremendous stock of machines and parts, together with everything to equip the up-to-date theatre.

We are agents for the Velvet Gold Fibre Screen (seamless up to 12 x 16 feet), which is a revelation as a projection surface. No glare or eye-strain and producing natural color tones. Let us demonstrate to you.

Detroit Theatre Equipment Co.
154 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich.

Exhibitors, Send for These

THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD has prepared blanks for petitions to Congress against the proposed Federal Censorship. Each one of these blanks contains space for fifty signatures. We will send these blanks to each exhibitor according to his needs. Our advice to him is that he make it a point to secure the signatures of voters or persons of voting age. No others will have weight. This is to be a petition of the People to their representatives in Congress. It is best, therefore to have the signatures of citizens who are not in any way interested in the moving picture industry. Do not sign yourself. Do not ask any of your employees to sign. Let only disinterested citizens sign the petition. Forward the petition duly filled out with the signatures to us and we will forward it to Congress. This should be taken up by every Exhibitor in every State. ADVISE AT ONCE WHETHER YOU REQUIRE ONE OR MORE BLANKS. WRITE US IMMEDIATELY. Act at once! Now!! This minute!!!

WARNING TO EXHIBITORS!

You Are Losing $100 to $150 Cold Cash Every Month By Not Running "MOTO-ADS" (Animated Cartoons) In Your Theatre!

DON'T kill your patronage with slides. Our animated cartoon ads are more entertaining and amusing than most comedies. The audience never tires of them. Send us a post card today and we will show you how you can increase your profits at least $100 monthly without one cent of expense.

AMERICAN COMMERCIAL FILM COMPANY, 30 N. Dearborn St., Chicago

FOR SALE

MOVING PICTURE MAILING LISTS

Only complete one to be had, numbering 22,000; price, $40.00; itemized by states, or $3.50 per thousand for states you want. Postage guaranteed.

1173 Film Exchanges	$4.00
149 Manufacturers and Studios	1.00
210 Moving Picture Machine and Supply Dealers.	1.50

Write for particulars

Trade Circular Addressing Co.
168 West Adams Street, Chicago
Franklin 1183 Estab. 1880

Projection Engineer

Is your screen result unsatisfactory?
Is your projection current costing too much?
Are you planning a new theatre?
Are you contemplating the purchase of new Equipment?

Theatre plans examined and suggestions made as to operating room location. Operating rooms planned, etc., etc. Will personally visit theatres in New York City or within 300 miles thereof. Fees moderate.

(YOU ALL KNOW HIM) F. H. RICHARDSON (YOU ALL KNOW HIM)
Room 1434, 22 E. 17th St., New York City

ELECTRA

PINK LABEL

CARBONS

are a guarantee of perfect projection

A Limited Stock of

5/8 x 12 Cored Double Pointed and 5/8 x 6 Cored Still on Hand

To be had of all first-class dealers

SOLE IMPORTER

HUGO REISINGER
11 Broadway New York

Ornamental Theatres

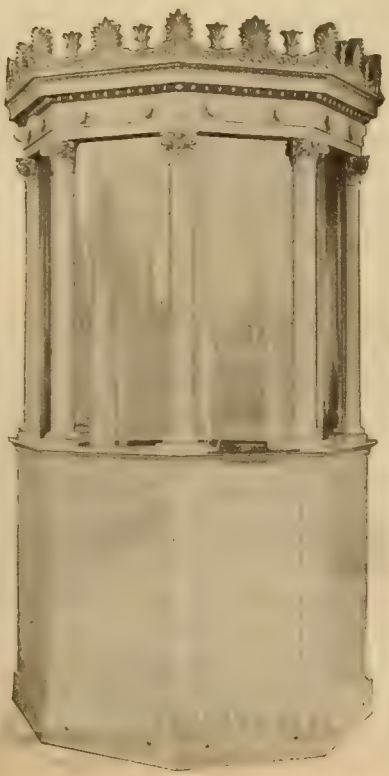
PLASTER RELIEF DECORATIONS

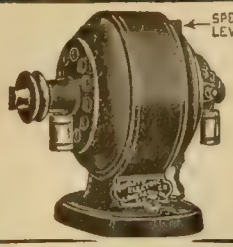
Theatres Designed Everywhere

Send for our 1916 catalog. It contains forty beautiful full-page illustrations—some in colors—of theatres we have designed and decorated. It shows several styles of ticket booths, lighting fixtures and ornaments; it will give you many valuable ideas for decorating your new theatre or improving the looks of your present one.

Send us Sizes of Theatre for Special Designs

THE DECORATORS SUPPLY CO.
Archer Avenue and Leo Street
CHICAGO, ILL.





HERE IT IS

Motors for moving picture machines.

110-60 Alternating Current, $14.00
110 Volts Direct Current, 12.00

Furnished complete with speed lever giving a speed range of 50%.
Immediate delivery for cash with order.
These motors you can attach yourself.
We manufacture Motor-Generator Sets.

FIDELITY ELECTRIC CO.
LANCASTER, PA.

"Perfection in Projection"

Gold King Screens

TEN DAYS' FREE TRIAL

GOLD KING SCREEN CO., Allus, Okla.

DUTCH EAST INDIES

Netherlands

DE KINEMATOGRAAF

Leading Organ of the Cinematograph Trade. With Correspondents all over the World.

AMSTERDAM	HOLLAND
Annual Subscription	fl. Dutch 7.50
Sample Copies	fl. Dutch 0.20
Advertisements, each line	fl. Dutch 0.20

Belgium

DUTCH WEST INDIES

THE BIOSCOPE

IS THE ENGLISH TRADE JOURNAL
OF THE MOVING PICTURE INDUSTRY

Annual Subscription (post free) 14s. (Dollars, 3.50)

85 SHAFTESBURY AVENUE, LONDON, W.

IL TIRSO AL CINEMATOGRAFO

The most important Film Journal in Italy.

Published every Monday at Rome. Excellent staff, special bureau of information. Correspondents in all parts of the world. Yearly subscription for foreign countries: $3.00.

Business Office: Via del Tritone 183, Rome, Italy.

SCENIC and EDUCATIONAL FILMS

Write for descriptive catalogue containing subjects from all parts of the world.

GREAT NORTHERN FILM CO. 110 W. 40th St. New York, N. Y.

A Genuine* PIPE ORGAN

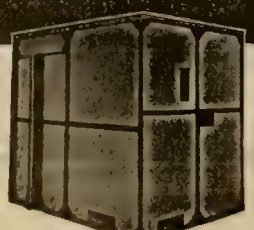
can be operated from the simple keyboard of the piano. ORGAN ALONE — PIANO ALONE — OR BOTH TOGETHER. Write for particulars

HARMO PIPE ORGAN COMPANY

126 West 46th Street NEW YORK
1423 McCormick Bldg. CHICAGO

J-M Transite Asbestos Wood Booths



Absolutely fireproof. Prevent noise of machine from disturbing audience. Cannot become electrically charged or grounded.

J-M Booths conform to all the requirements of state and municipal regulations, insurance authorities and inspection departments wherever ordinances compel the use of a fire-proof booth.

Furnished in portable and permanent types. Write our nearest Branch for "J-M Theatre Necessities" Booklet.

H. W. JOHNS-MANVILLE CO.

New York and every large city

Motion Picture Machines

FROM

The Largest Supply House in the East

We are Distributors for

Minusa Gold Fibre Screens

The Acme of Screen Perfection.

Power, Simplex and Baird Machines and all supplies

Catalogs for the asking

LEWIS M. SWAAB

1327 Vine Street, PHILADELPHIA

A Dependable Mailing List Service

Saves you from 30 to 50% in postage, etc. Reaches all or selected list of theatres in any territory. Includes name of exhibitor as well as theatre in address. A list of publicity mediums desiring motion picture news. Unaffiliated exchanges looking for features, Supply houses that are properly characterized as such. Producers with address of studios, laboratories and offices. Information in advance of theatres being or to be built.
W43.

MOTION PICTURE DIRECTORY COMPANY

80 Fifth Avenue, New York — Phone 3227 Chelsea
425 Ashland Block, Chicago — Phone 2003 Randolph

Addressing Multigraphing Printing Typewriting

COOL VENTILATE BY TYPHOONS

Send for Catalogue W — TYPHOONS COOL YOUR SHOW — TYPHOON FAN CO. 1544 Broadway, N. Y.
Tel. 8134 Bryant.

REFLEX

Made in Switzerland.

The Quality Carbons of the World.

Reflex D. C. Carbons have a Specially Constructed Negative with Copper Coated Core.

An English theatre manager writes:

"The REFLEX Carbons you sent were very satisfactory, they settled down almost as soon as the arc was struck, maintained a steady amperage and gave quite 25% MORE LIGHT than any carbon I have ever used."

This theatre has used REFLEX carbons steadily for over two years.

You cannot obtain the results you have long wanted unless you use REFLEX carbons. Don't delay, send in your order now.

¾ x 12 plain cored	$10.00 per 100 carbons
⅝ x 12 plain cored	7.50 per 100 carbons
⅝ x 6 copper coated cored	3.75 per 100 carbons
½ x 6 copper coated cored	2.75 per 100 carbons

If your dealer cannot supply you with REFLEX Carbons, send cash with your order or instruct us to ship C. O. D., and we will fill sample orders in lots of not less than fifty each in all the above sizes.

Watch our weekly advertisements.

JONES & CAMMACK

SOLE IMPORTERS

Corner Bridge and Whitehall Sts. New York City

Non-Breakable and Sanitary STEEL and CAST IRON

HIGH Quality

LOW Price

Opera Chairs
immediate shipment on many styles; Second Hand Chairs; out-of-door seating Send measurements for FREE SEATING PLAN. Mention this paper.

STEEL FURNITURE CO.
Grand Rapids, Mich.; New York, 150 Fifth Ave.

Are You Tired

of playing waltzes and popular songs for all your pictures? Try "bringing out" the dramatic scenes with dramatic music. The

Orpheum Collection contains the best music of this kind published. Issued in Three Series:

No. 1, No. 2 and No. 3

Piano (24 pages each), 58 cts. for each series; $1.15 for any two; $1.70 for all three. Violin, 40 cts. each; 75 cts. for any two; $1.05 for all three. Cornet, 35 cts. each; 65 cts. any two; 95 cts. all three. First and second series have parts for Cello, Flute, Clarinet, Trombone and Drums. Practical for piano alone or in combination with any above instruments. Discounts on orders for four or more parts. Send for free sample pages. Note new address.

CLARENCE E. SINN
1942 West 21st St. Chicago, Ill.

We Furnish Cameramen
—ALSO DO—
PRINTING AND DEVELOPING
OF THE HIGHEST GRADE
We guarantee all work. Give prompt delivery at lowest prices
Standard Motion Picture Company
Room 1620, 5 So. Wabash Ave. CHICAGO

PATENTS

Manufacturers want me to send them patents on useful inventions. Send me at once drawing and description of your invention and I will give you an honest report as to securing a patent and whether I can assist you in selling the patent. Highest references. Established 25 years. Personal attention in all cases. WM. N. MOORE, Loan and Trust Building, Washington, D. C.

TYPE W FLAME ARC
Powerful LAMPS Economical
For brilliantly illuminating the outside of your theatre
General Electric Company
4987 General Office, Schenectady, N. Y.

Please note page 489
Read it and tell your friends

OPERA CHAIRS

1000 Styles
For every purpose
Established 1865
Write for Cat. No. 31

Branches in leading cities
1472 Broadway, New York
728 Mission St., San Francisco
512½ First Ave. So., Seattle
Broadway & Yamhill St., Portland

THE A. H. ANDREWS CO., 115-117 SO. WABASH AVE. CHICAGO, ILL.

When you want Opera Chairs remember we have 50,000 CHAIRS ALWAYS IN STOCK in 6 different designs in Antique Mahogany and Circassian Walnut finishes, assuring you of a satisfactory selection and IMMEDIATE SERVICE

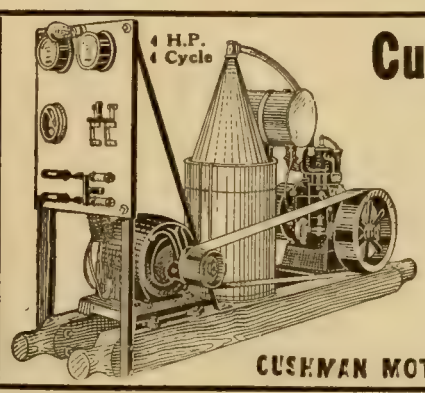
Other designs of unupholstered and Upholstered Chairs in unlimited numbers furnished in 25 to 50 days after receipt of specifications, depending on character of chair selected. We will be pleased to forward you illustrated literature on Veneer (plain) Chairs, or Upholstered; kindly state in which you are interested.

Our consultation service, specializing in designing economical arrangements for theatre seating, is tendered to you without any charge whatever.

AMERICAN SEATING COMPANY
General Offices: 1010 Lytton Bldg., Chicago
Sales offices in all principal cities



Cushman Lighting Plants
Get the Crowd.

Cushman throttling governed engines give steady voltage. It's cheaper to make your "juice" than to buy it. You get a good light at arc, which makes clear, bright pictures. Extremely light in weight, 4 H. P. complete plant weighs only 575 lbs. Not the cheapest, but cheapest in the long run. Get information describing exclusive features. It's free.

CUSHMAN MOTOR WORKS, 938 N. 21st St., Lincoln, Neb.

Anti-Censorship Slides

Four Slides..... 50c.
Six Slides..... 75c.
Twelve Slides All Different $1.50

Address
MOVING PICTURE WORLD
17 Madison Avenue, N. Y. City

Moving Picture Exhibitors and Theatre Managers. The fight against Legalized Censorship of Moving Pictures is your fight. Show these slides on your screen for the next few months and help create a strong public sentiment against this unnecessary and un-American form of legislation. See page 1743 of our issue of March 20th for text matter. All slides neatly colored, carefully packed and postage paid.

"Keeping Everlastingly at It Brings Success"

Send your slide orders and remittances at once to Moving Picture World, 17 Madison Ave., N. Y.

MIRROROID SCREEN, the only screen worth bragging about. If you contemplate making improvements on your projection, let us show you how you can do it. We have two of these screens, slightly used, good as new—a bargain. Let us know what size your screen is. If they will fit, it is worth your consideration. We are jobbers for the Mirroroid.

Mr. Exhibitor, a new Projection Machine is coming to life; you can afford to wait, it will pay you. Get the habit: Deal with us for your pocketbook's sake.

STERN MANUFACTURING CO., 109 N. 10th Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

The Selig Tribune

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWS FILM

No. 1 A REEL NEWSPAPER 1916

WILSON'S ADVISER SAILS!

New York, N. Y.—Colonel E. M. House, confidential adviser to President Wilson, leaves for Europe to confer with U.S. Diplomats. Captain Boy-Ed, recalled by the German Government, and Brand Whitlock, U. S. Minister to Belgium, are passengers aboard same ship.

SENATE PAGES DINE WITH VICE PRESIDENT

Washington, D. C.—Pages of U. S. Senate enjoy bountiful Christmas dinner with Vice President Marshall.

GEORGIA WOMEN WEAR OVERALLS

Savannah, Ga.—Georgia women have adopted overalls for house work.

TEST NEW WAR PLANE IN ARMY

Readville, Mass.—U. S. Army experts test new war plane the first to carry two gun turrets.

NAVY HOLIDAY SPIRIT

Boston, Mass.—Blue Jackets on battleship Nebraska are hosts to poor children.

DANIELS SAYS DREADNAUGHTS REACH LIMIT

Washington, D. C.—Secretary Daniels says Panama Canal causes battleships to reach limit in size.

WAR MUNITION PLANTS ACTIVE

Aetna, Ind.—War munition manufacturing companies are guarded owing to disturbances

KEWPIE, BABY ELEPHANT, TAKES BREAKFAST

Selig Tribune Feature Picture—Kewpie, baby elephant at Selig Zoo, gets his breakfast.

HARVARD FRESHIES ACTIVE

Boston, Mass.—Harvard Freshmen get in form for hockey games.

PRETTY DAMSELS SWIM IN ICY WATER

Chicago, Ill.—Pretty girls take usual plunge in Lake Michigan on Christmas morning.

GERMAN TROOPS BRAVE WINTER

Vilkomir, Russia—German reserve forces dig themselves in for a Russian winter.

HOUSES RAZED BY A COASTER

Revere Beach, Mass.—A roller coaster wrecked by a gale destroys two houses and injures people.

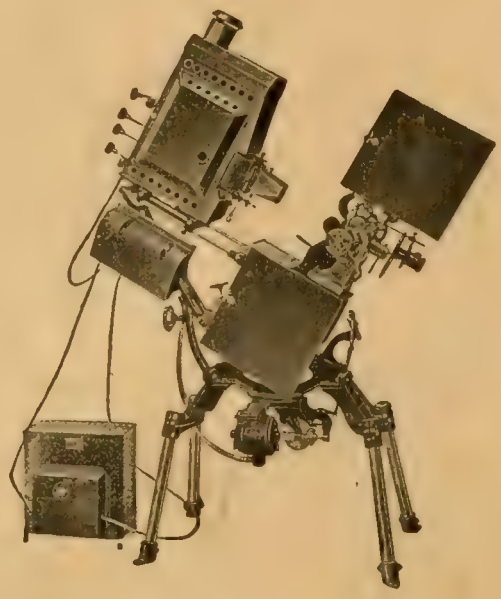
NEW SOUTHERN GATEWAY

Memphis, Tenn. — $8,000,000 bridge opening Southern gateway, nearing completion.

REPRODUCTION OF THE POSTER THAT DREW THE BUSINESS!

SELIG Introduces
Miss Regina Badet to the American Pictureplay Public
In the Sensational and Heart-touching Drama
"NO GREATER LOVE"
A SELIG RED SEAL PLAY WRITTEN BY WM LE QUEUX
BOOK THROUGH V·L·S·E

N.P.Co.



A Giant Influence
In
A Giant Industry

The enormous growth and development of Power's Cameragraph in its years of contributing the best to the projection side of the motion picture industry is most impressive.

Manufactured in the largest factory of its kind in the world, its success has been built upon superior construction and actual performance, upon broad gauge and straight-forward selling methods and the maintenance of superior quality throughout.

"Power's," a projecting machine that put the remunerative features of beauty and steadiness in motion picture projection.

OUR LATEST MODEL NO. 6 B

NICHOLAS POWER COMPANY

NINETY GOLD STREET, NEW YORK CITY

Vol. 27, No. 4 January 22, 1916 Price 10 Cents

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

THE FILM INDEX

EXHIBITORS' GUIDE

Scene from "The Darkest Hour" (Kalem).

Post Office Box 226
Madison Square Station

NEW YORK

17 Madison Avenue
Telephone Madison Square 3510

MUTUAL PICTURES

EDWIN THANHOUSER

PRESENTS

FALSTAFF COMEDIES

LUCKY LARRY'S LADY LOVE

1 REEL

TUESDAY JAN. 25TH

WITH

RILEY CHAMBERLAIN
BOYD MARSHALL AND LOUISE EMERALD BATES

BEATEN AT THE BATH

1 REEL

THURSDAY JAN. 27TH

WITH

BARBARA GILROY
AND FRANCES KEYES

A THANHOUSER COMEDY DRAMA

THE BURGLARS' PICNIC

3 REELS

RELEASED WED. JAN. 26TH

WITH A GENEROUS SPRINKLING OF PRETTY GIRLS IN LIVELY EPISODES, LED BY THE POPULAR

FAIRBANKS TWINS

Staged by WILLIAM PARKE from the story by CLINTON H. STAGG

THANHOUSER FILM CORP.
NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y.

ESSANAY

PRESENTS

ANN MURDOCK

THE FAMOUS FROHMAN STAR

IN

"Captain Jinks of the Horse Marines"

IN 5 ACTS

Adapted from the stage success of Clyde Fitch
Arranged and directed by Fred E. Wright

Essanay

1333 Argyle Street, Chicago

George K. Spoor, President

The UNIVERSAL PROGRAM

Greatest program on earth

According to Shakespeare and Carl Laemmle, "The Play's the Thing"

The greatest writers for stage and screen contribute to the excellence of the Universal Program every week. The Universal doesn't care who writes its photoplays so long as they are the BEST—and it produces the works of great writers of reputation because it is usually from their training and experience that THE BEST IS SURE TO COME. Look at this list of writers—among them men and women who are responsible for the greatest stage, screen and book or story successes of the day. They contribute to the Universal Program:

Clara Louise Burnham	Elaine Sterne
Frances Hodgson Burnett	Eustace Hale Ball
George Ade	Olga Printzlau
George Bronson Howard	Bernarr Macfadden
C. N. Williamson	Frederic J. Haskins
Mrs. A. M. Williamson	Wm. McLeod Raine
Wallace Irwin	James Oliver Curwood
Rupert Hughes	Randall Parrish
Augustus Thomas	Joe Mitchell Chapple
Lois Weber	Hal Reid
Louis Joseph Vance	Frederic S. Isham
Anne Katherine Green	Wm. Addison Lathrop
Peter B. Kyne	Vera Tyler
Lottie Blair Parker	Phil Hunt
Meredith Nicholson	Ethel Lloyd Patterson
Bayard Veiller	Joseph Medill Patterson
R. W. Kauffman	Nina Wilcox Putnam

On what other program, or what two programs, will you find the works of such a list of notables? THEY CAN BE FOUND ONLY ON THE UNIVERSAL PROGRAM. That is why when you want to see the best plays to be seen in moving pictures you will find them on the Universal Program at Universal Theatres. Watch for the writer's names on the titles of Universal Features on the Universal Program.

More than a thousand Universal actors will protest the statement that "the play's the thing"—and to prove that the Universal believes in competent actors as well as good plays we present the names of the featured players on the Universal Program for the week of February 7:

Billie Rhodes and Ray Gallagher
Bob Leonard, Ella Hall and Rex de Rosselli
Harry Myers and Rosemary Theby
Alice Howell and Harry Coleman
Mina Cunard and Malcolm Blevins
Paul Panzer and Edith Roberts
Baby Early
Francis Ford and Grace Cunard
Rupert Julian and Elsie Jane Wilson
Gertrude Selby and Reggie Morris

Search the world's programs and you will not find such a list of talent except on the Universal Program. Players of personality that capture the fans and win their loyalty appear on the regular Universal Program. They mean profit and popularity for your house.

UNIVERSAL FILM MANUFACTURING COMPANY

CARL LAEMMLE, President
"The Largest Film Manufacturing Concern in the Universe"

1600 BROADWAY, NEW YORK

PRESENTING—

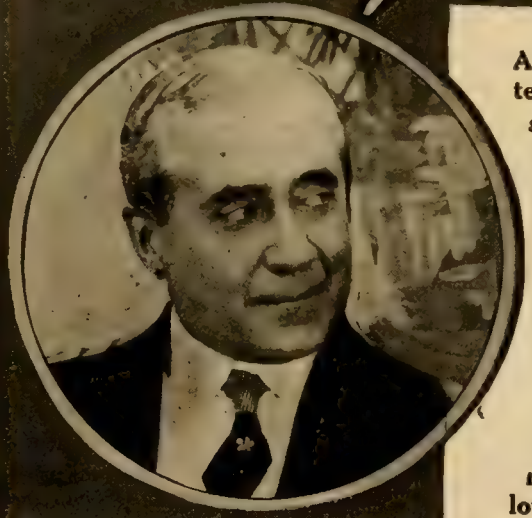
The popular American co-stars

Herbert KELCEY and Effie SHANNON

IN

The romantic drama

"The Sphinx"



A brilliant play crammed with tense moments and dramatic situations. Father and son, unknown to each other, are rivals for the hand of a noted dancer known as "The Sphinx," who does not dream of their relationship. The effect of the boy's mad infatuation makes an emotional and gripping drama which, with the splendid acting of Mr. Kelcey and Miss Shannon, two of America's best loved stars, will crowd your theatre to capacity.

Arrange for booking immediately. Write or wire your nearest Universal Exchange for release date.

RED FEATHER PHOTO-PLAYS

EQUITABLE

Regardless of what the other six nights may bring, a contract for the following Equitable features will afford you one big contrasting subject each week.

Arrange your forthcoming seven weeks with one night each week as

EQUITABLE NIGHT

as follows. Taking Wednesday night as an example.

January 19 — Henry Kolker in "The Warning"
The eminent stage star in a powerful allegorical drama.

January 26 — Gail Kane in "The Labyrinth"
The magnetic favorite in the best story of stage life, ever screened.

February 2 — William Courtenay in "Sealed Lips"
One of the most fascinating tales with a series of surprises and remarkable plots.

February 9 — Charles J. Ross in "The Senator"
An unusual story. Episodic, picturesque, romantic and wonderfully produced.

February 16 — Margarita Fischer in "The Dragon"
As strange as the title implies. No story like it ever filmed.

February 23 — Molly McIntyre in "Her Great Hour"
To the screen, what "Within the Law" was to the stage, only more romantic and startling.

March 1 — Julia Dean in "The Ransom"
The representative emotional actress in a vivid story of mother love, sacrifice and man's avarice.

The above features are proven. They have been playing from one to eight weeks and have been unanimously accepted by the trade as real box office attractions.

EQUITABLE MOTION PICTURES CORPORATION
LEWIS J. SELZNICK, VICE PRES. AND ADVISORY DIRECTOR
RELEASING THROUGH
WORLD FILM CORPORATION

TRADEMARK
Reg. U. S. Pat. 1907

Essanay

GEORGE K. SPOOR, PRESIDENT

BIG FOUR FEATURE PLAY

1333 Argyle Street, Chicago

Look at Them

and

You'll Book Them

★★★

Watch for the

ESSANAY-CHAPLIN COMEDY

"Charlie Chaplin's Burlesque on Carmen"

★★★

Don't fail to book

G. M. ANDERSON'S

great drama

"The Book Agent's Romance"

2 Acts Released Jan. 18

★★★

"FOLLY"

Featuring DARWIN KARR and ANN KIRK

2 Act Drama Jan. 25

"THE FABLE OF FLORA AND ADOLPH AND A HOME GONE WRONG"

By GEORGE ADE

Comedy Jan. 26

"DESTINY"

Featuring BRYANT WASHBURN and RUTH STONEHOUSE

3 Act Drama Jan. 29

TRADEMARK
Reg. U. S. Pat. 1907

Essanay

GEORGE K SPOOR PRESIDENT

1333 Argyle St., Chicago

"The Misleading Lady"

Presenting

HENRY B. WALTHALL

and EDNA MAYO

in Five Acts

Adapted by H. S. Sheldon from the great stage success of Charles W. Goddard and Paul Dickey. Directed by A. Berthelet.

HENRY B. WALTHALL

EDNA MAYO

"The Raven"
"Graustark"
"The Man Trail"
"A Bunch Of Keys"
"The Alster Case"
"The White Sister"
"The Crimson Wing"
"The Slim Princess"
"A Daughter Of The City"
"The Blindness Of Virtue"
"In The Palace Of The King"

Book Essanay's Great Multiple Reel Features

TRADEMARK REG. U. S. PAT. 1907

ESSANAY

GEORGE K. SPOOR, PRESIDENT

PARAMOUNT

DANIEL FROHMAN
PRESENTS

PAULINE FREDERICK

IN AN UNUSUALLY POWERFUL DRAMA,

"THE SPIDER"

By William H. Clifford.

IN WHICH THE SUPERB EMOTIONAL ARTISTE PRESENTS TWO DISTINCT CHARACTERIZATIONS.

IN FIVE PARTS

RELEASED JAN. 27TH.

PRODUCED BY THE

FAMOUS PLAYERS

ADOLPH ZUKOR, President

DANIEL FROHMAN, Managing Director

48 FAMOUS FEATURES A YEAR

PROGRAM

THE SYMBOL OF SCREEN SUPREMACY

THE SIGN OF THE HIGHEST AND MOST CONSISTENT PHOTOPLAY STANDARD IN THE WORLD.

FILM COMPANY

Executive Offices
507 FIFTH AVENUE
NEW YORK

Canadian Distributors—
Famous Players
Film Service, Ltd, Calgary—
Montreal—Toronto

FAMOUS FEATURES A YEAR

Something New in

Paramount Pictures

Bray-Gilbert Films, Inc.

Present

Bray-Gilbert Silhouette Fantasies

A strange combination of drawing and acting making a wonderful picture and delighting young and old

From "Inbad the Sailor"
Releases January 20, 1916.

This is a type of moving picture made entirely by Artists.

After painting his backgrounds or settings, a moving picture camera is used to put living models into the picture.

The remarkable result is a living illustration.

Originated by C. Allan Gilbert, the world famous Illustrator. Covered by patents owned by J. R. Bray and an application for patent by C. Allan Gilbert.

Write Our Nearest Paramount Exchange Today About Bookings

Paramount Pictures Corporation
FOUR EIGHTY FIVE FIFTH AVENUE at FORTY FIRST ST.
NEW YORK, N.Y.

Paramount Pictures

1916 1916

Mary Pickford

Has signed a new contract with the Famous Players Film Co.

It costs Paramount one-half million dollars to put Mary Pickford's pictures in the Paramount Theatres during 1916.

$500,000.00

Real Money! Just one star! For one year! This is only possible because so many millions of people each week select Paramount Theatres when they go to see high class photoplays. The reason is plain—
The people know theatres showing Paramount Pictures, as the best theatres—
Cash in on this fact. Write your exchange today.

Paramount Pictures Corporation
FOUR EIGHTY FIVE FIFTH AVENUE at FORTY FIRST ST.
NEW YORK, N.Y.

189-91

The Strange Case of MARY PAGE

By FREDERICK LEWIS, Author of "What Happened to Mary"

FIFTEEN POWERFUL EPISODES

With

HENRY WALTHALL and EDNA MAYO

Directed by J. Charles Haydon
Gowns by Lucile (Lady Duff Gordon)

THESE NEWSPAPERS ARE PRINTING THE STORY

The Albany Times-Union.
The Atlanta Constitution.
The Baltimore News.
The Binghamton (N. Y.) Press.
The Birmingham Age-Herald.
The Buffalo News.
The Chicago Daily News.
The Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.
The Cleveland Plain Dealer.
The Columbus State Journal.
The Dallas Times-Herald.
The Dayton Herald.
The Denver Post.
The Des Moines Register and Leader.
The Detroit Free Press.
The Erie (Pa.) Dispatch.
The Harrisburg Patriot.
The Houston Chronicle.
The Indianapolis Star.
The Lincoln Star.
The Los Angeles Express.
The Louisville Herald.
The Memphis News Scimitar.
The Milwaukee Evening Wisconsin.
The Minneapolis Journal.
The Mobile Item.
The New Haven Union.
The New Orleans Item.
The New York World.
The Omaha Bee.
The Philadelphia Telegraph.
The Pittsburgh Press.
The Portland (Me.) Express.
The Portland (Ore.) Telegram.
The Richmond Times-Dispatch.
The Rochester Union and Advertiser.
The Salt Lake Herald-Republican.
The San Francisco Chronicle.
The Springfield (Mass.) Union.
The St. Louis Republic.
The Syracuse Herald.
The Trenton Times.
The Utica Press.
The Washington Times.
The Wilkes Barre Times-Leader.
The Wilmington (Del.) Journal.
The Worcester Telegram.
AND HUNDREDS MORE.

A Score of Magazines of National Circulation Are Advertising It

Essanay

1333 Argyle St., Chicago

Geo. K. Spoor, President

THE EXHIBITOR WHO BOOKS

The Strange Case of

MARY PAGE

Presents a

WALTHALL-MAYO FEATURE EVERY WEEK FOR FIFTEEN WEEKS

First Release January 24

Book through the General Film Co.

Essanay

1333 Argyle St., Chicago

Geo. K. Spoor, President

The Supreme in Artistic Accomplishment of The Silent
Drama

BLUEBIRD
PHOTO-PLAYS (Inc.)
ANNOUNCE AS THE SECOND PRODUCTION
HELEN WARE
in
"Secret Love"
Adapted from "That Lass o' Lowrie's"
The Famous Novel by Frances Hodgson Burnett
BOOKINGS
May be arranged by Communicating with the Executive Offices of BLUEBIRD PHOTO-PLAYS (Inc.)
1600 BROADWAY, NEW YORK
or your local BLUEBIRD booking offices

BLUEBIRD
Photo-Plays
(Incorporated)
ANNOUNCE THE Third Release
"UNDINE"
with
Ida Schnall
The magnificent dramatic spectacle from the famous French Classic of the Sea by Pierre de la Motte Fouque
Directed by Henry Otto
Booking Reservations now being apportioned in all the foremost cities throughout America
Chief Executive Offices
1600 Broadway
NEW YORK or your local
BLUEBIRD Offices

METRO PICTURES

METRO challenged the field to match the best pictures of all programs with Metro's regular productions. The challenge was definite, specific and made in good faith. No company or group of companies accepted the challenge. Metro, therefore accepts, in all modesty, the leadership of the world of motion pictures.

Metro Pictures Corporation

METRO
Pictures Corporation
presents

FRANCIS X. BUSHMAN and BEVERLY BAYNE in MAN and HIS SOUL

A 5 Act METRO wonderplay of extraordinary power
Directed by John W. Noble and produced by
Quality Pictures Corporation

Released
on the Metro Program
January 31.

MUTUAL MASTERPICTURES
DE LUXE EDITION

MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION
offers —

THE DRIFTER

A DRAMA OF DEEP HUMAN INTEREST, DEALING WITH ONE OF LIFE'S MOST COMPLEX PROBLEMS. A MASTERFUL PRODUCTION — FIVE REELS featuring the Charming Actress —

LUCILLE TAFT

And

ALEXANDER GADEN

Released the Week of FEB. 7TH.
Produced by GAUMONT

MUTUAL MASTERPICTURES
DE LUXE EDITION

MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION
offers —

POWDER

AN ALTOGETHER STARTLING PRODUCTION - A DRAMA UNIQUE IN THEME AND ABSOLUTELY AMAZING IN ITS INTEREST-COMPELLING QUALITIES

Featuring.....

ARTHUR MAUDE

THE STAGE FAVORITE OF TWO CONTINENTS

Released the Week of FEB. 7TH.
Produced by AMERICAN

MUTUAL MASTERPICTURES
DE LUXE EDITION

MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION
offers

THE SOUL'S CYCLE

A SENSATIONAL PHOTODRAMA BASED ON THE THEORY OF TRANSMIGRATION OF THE SOUL...THE SCENES ARE LAID IN ANCIENT GREECE. FIVE REELS

Featuring the Alluring Star

MARGARET GIBSON

AND THE FAMOUS
BOSTOCK LIONS

Released the Week of FEB. 7TH.

Produced by Horsley

MUTUAL PICTURES

MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION
offers
A CLIPPER STAR FEATURE

LILLO OF THE SULU SEAS

AN INTENSELY GRIPPING AND SPECTACULAR PRODUCTION PRESENTING BIG SCENES OF TROPICAL SPLENDOR. THREE POWERFUL REELS

Featuring the Eminent Star
HAROLD LOCKWOOD
Supported by
A GREAT CAST - INCLUDING
MAY ALLISON AND WILLIAM STOWELL

RELEASED the WEEK of FEB. 7TH.
Produced by American

MUTUAL PICTURES

The BROKEN CROSS

With Harold Lockwood and May Allison

The thrills and heart-throbs of this strong Western drama bring out the best work of these splendid co-stars—amid settings of supreme beauty! A pendant—a "broken cross"—decides the romance of the disinherited son and winsome Red Cross Nurse. Another "Flying A" two-part play that hits the high mark.

Directed by Thomas Ricketts

Released Feb. 1st

Mammy's Rose
Neva Gerber and Frank Borzage One Reel
Directed by James Douglass
Released Feb. 4th

Billy Van Deusen's Fling
John Steppling—Carol Halloway and John Sheehan
One Reel "Beauty" Comedy
Released Feb. 2nd

The Extra Man and the Milk Fed Lion
Three-Reel "Mustang" Comedy
Released Feb. 4th

The Laird O'Knees
"Beauty" Comedy
with Orral Humphrey
One Reel
Released Feb. 6th

American Film Company, Inc.
Samuel S. Hutchinson, President
Chicago, Illinois

All "Flying A" "Beauty" and "Mustang" productions are distributed throughout the United States and Canada exclusively by Mutual Film Corporation.

MUTUAL PICTURES

SAMMY'S DOUGH-FULL ROMANCE

THE new screaming hit of the "Sammy" series. The dough flies and the fun follows the dough! Ludicrous situations, sparkling with the inimitable comedy of Sammy, develop fast and furiously into convulsing climaxes. Absolutely a novelty, as are all Vogue Comedies, with new stuff, new stunts and new comedians—a whole company of them that produce laughs at a record-breaking rate.

Released—January 20

And Another Sure-Fire Vogue Comedy

A BABY GRAND

Released—January 22

Slapsticks With a Reason

VOGUE COMEDIES

BOOK Vogue funny films—they become a habit with your patrons. Vogue nights are over-flow nights. Cash in on the cleverest screen comedy.

Distributed throughout the United States and Canada exclusively by Mutual Film Corporation

VOGUE FILMS, Inc.

Executives

JOSEPH H. FINN SAMUEL S. HUTCHINSON

Publicity Offices: 222 South State St., Chicago, Ill.

MUTUAL SPE

TRE

THE GIRL AND THE GAME

"THE GIRL AND THE GAME" is a remarkable series of rapid-fire thrills. A half million dollars were spent on these smashing Fifteen Chapters—or over $33,000 on each chapter! Each chapter is a marvelous production in itself.

Thrills Guaranteed In Every Chapter!

President Hutchinson of the producing company definitely guarantees the thrills in every chapter. Every chapter is an individual triumph. Book "The Girl and the Game" and your patrons will cheer each sudden, terrific climax.

CIAL FEATURE

MENDOUS!

-SCENES-CROWDS-RECEIPTS

From thousands of theatres comes the same report of record-breaking attendance and boundless enthusiasm overflowing at each electrifying exploit of daring Helen Holmes in "The Girl and the Game". Each chapter is a ten-strike, jammed with hair-raising situations and tremendous thrills! In Chapter Five, this surprising star leaps from the top of a telegraph pole onto a speeding train. Then she settles a sensational fight on a coal car. Climax follows climax, bringing the big crowds to the edges of their seats.

Book Fifteen Weeks of Big Profits!

Book "The Girl and the Game"—fifteen two-act chapters that crowd your house. One chapter is released each week. Five now appearing. Beautiful Helen Holmes is a fearless heroine who is immensely popular. She is seen in vastly differing situations—in beautiful gowns—then in the humble frocks of a telegraph operator.

Make big money out of this two-mile-a-minute railroad film novel. The thrills on the screen mean jingling thrills in the box-office. Make your house the community center of the greatest in motion pictures. Act now. WIRE your nearest Mutual Exchange.

Over 1000 Newspapers are publishing, for millions of readers, week by week, Frank H. Spearman's story of "The Girl and the Game." The leading newspapers all over the United States are giving more than twice the cooperation ever given before to any film production.

The story is graphic—vivid—describes the lightning-like scenes with remarkable realism and all the power of the great word-painter. It is being followed by enormous numbers of people eager to see the enthralling tale pictured for them on the screen.

New York World	San Francisco Chronicle
Pittsburgh Press	St. Louis Globe-Democrat
Atlanta Constitution	Cleveland Leader
Omaha Bee	Louisville Herald
Buffalo Courier	Philadelphia North American
Indianapolis Star	Memphis Commercial Appeal
Chicago Evening Post	Milwaukee Sentinel
Detroit Journal	New Orleans Times-Picayune
Baltimore American	Los Angeles Tribune
Boston Globe	Dallas Journal
Cincinnati Times-Star	Seattle Post-Intelligencer
Kansas City Journal	and One Thousand Others.

For booking information apply to "The Girl and the Game" department of any Mutual Exchange, or at Mutual Home Office, New York City.

SIGNAL FILM CORPORATION

SAMUEL S. HUTCHINSON, President

Publicity Offices: 222 South State Street CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

MUTUAL MASTERPICTURE
DE LUXE EDITION

EDWIN THANHOUSER PRESENTS

"BETRAYED!"

A DRAMA OF THE ETERNAL CLASH OF HUMAN FORCES

IN 5 REELS

RELEASED JAN. 29TH

Featuring

GRACE DE CARLTON

AND A SPECIALLY SELECTED CAST

STORY BY PHILIP LONERGAN STAGED BY HOWARD M. MITCHELL

THANHOUSER FILM CORP.
NEW ROCHELLE N.Y.

MUTUAL WEEKLY

First Page News!

Get any newspaper man to compare current releases of motographic weeklies, and he will unquestionably tell you the leader is

THE MUTUAL WEEKLY

Compare the latest release, Mutual Weekly No. 54, and see how much MORE FIRST PAGE NEWS it gives than any other News Reel.

You Get These Only in the Mutual Weekly

Mutual Weekly No. 54—FIRST PAGE NEWS—The British cruiser, "Natal," mysteriously sunk with loss of over 400 of her crew.

Mutual Weekly No. 54—FIRST PAGE NEWS—P. & O. Liner "Persia," torpedoed in the Mediterranean, U. S. Consul McNeely being among those drowned.

And many other views of national interest.

Mutual Weekly Leads by Six Weeks

A motographic weekly is just now showing Mr. and Mrs. Walter Estes leading primitive lives in the Maine woods. This was news when it appeared in Mutual Weekly No. 48, the latter part of November, 1915.

Again the Mutual Weekly Leads

The movement of the Seventh Cavalry to the border was shown in the last Mutual Weekly of 1915. This was NEWS when the Mutual used it. Two weeks later another weekly gets it—skim milk. The Mutual gives the cream of the news when it is news.

You can have the Mutual Weekly, too, just as it is shown at the Palace Theater, New York, America's greatest vaudeville theater

For Particulars Visit or Write Any Mutual Branch

Manufactured for Mutual Release by Gaumont Laboratories, Flushing, N. Y.

PELL MITCHELL, EDITOR.

A 5-part GOLD ROOSTER play adapted which cost PATHÉ for the picture

THE LOVE

Agnes Glynne

The
is a contribution
art in story,
RELEASED

The PATHÉ
EXECUTIVE
25 WEST 45th ST.

from a novel rights alone

$25,000

TRAIL

"The Dop Doctor"

a novel by Richard Dehan, has passed through 24 editions in England, because of its power, pathos, heart interest and originality. The picture was made on the South African veldt with a strong cast headed by

Agnes Glynne,
Fred Paul and Booth
Conway result unique to photo-dramatic atmosphere and locations

JANUARY 21st

EXCHANGE inc.

OFFICES
NEW YORK

THE IRON

PATHÉ'S RED-BLOOD

PEARL WHITE

CREIGHTON HALE
and SHELDON LEWIS,
the "ELAINE" favorites

Publicity, cast, title, story or authorship are what bring the crowds your way. Here you have them all, and all ABOVE PAR!

Story written by Arthur Stringer, and adapted by George B. Seitz. 12 chapters of 2 parts each.
Produced by the Feature Film Corporation, under the personal supervision of Edward Jose.
Released Monday, February 21st.

The PATHÉ EXECUTIVE
25 WEST 45th ST.

CLAW
SERIAL WILL FEATURE

Advertised by the newspapers everywhere.

EXCHANGE inc
OFFICES
NEW YORK

WHAT DO THE EXHIBITORS

THE RED

"YOU HAVE TURNED PATHÉ SERIALS SURELY

Just to Remind You

Produced by Balboa, from scenarios by Will M. Ritchey; Newspaper story by Albert Payson Terhune. Complete in 14 two-part episodes.

The PATHÉ EXECUTIVE
25 WEST 45th ST.

SAY ABOUT PATHÉ'S CIRCLE

OUT A WINNER! DO GET THE MONEY!"

Featuring the popular favorite of the wonderfully successful "WHO PAYS?"

RUTH ROLAND

EXCHANGE inc.

OFFICES
NEW YORK

We Will Shortly Market

TEN ONE-REEL COMEDIES

comprised in a one-a-week series to be known as

The Mishaps of Musty Suffer

Featuring in his famous Tramp Characterization

HARRY WATSON, Jr. of BICKEL and WATSON

for which we are accepting EXCLUSIVE SHOWINGS preliminary to their general release.

Better class theatres in all principal cities are taking advantage of our new and novel plan for exclusive advance of release date exhibition.

You don't have to speculate, see them first. Phone the nearest Kleine office for screen inspection. Then—if you have seen them, you will agree with the Motion Picture News—

"They are a medley of absurd incidents, a delightful extravaganza. They keep a theatre full of people laughing till their sides ache"—which, by the way, is all any comedy can do!

But see it yourself first, then let the Kleine man give you details of our plan for EXCLUSIVE PRELIMINARY SHOWINGS in your city.

GEORGE KLEINE, 805 E. 175th St., New York City

New York
226 W. 42nd St.
Chicago
166 N. State St.
Atlanta
71 Walton St.
Boston
14 Piedmont St.

Denver
405 Railroad Bldg.
Philadelphia
1309 Vine Street
Minneapolis
708 First Ave., N.
Pittsburgh
123 Fourth Ave.

Kansas City
209 Ozark Bldg.
Seattle
204 Orpheum Theatre Bldg.
San Francisco
234 Eddy Street
Cincinnati
138 West 7th St.

Dallas
1812½ Commerce St.
Los Angeles
514 W. 8th St.
Montreal
204 St. Catherine St., West
Toronto
96 Bay St.

New Orleans 103 Nola Bldg.

WORLD FILM CORPORATION

LEWIS J. SELZNICK, VICE-PRESIDENT & GENERAL MANAGER

VIM

COMEDY FILMS

THURSDAY JANUARY 27th

ANNOUNCE

FRIDAY JANUARY 28th

Their New Thursday Comedy Release

PLUMP AND RUNT in

A SPECIAL DELIVERY

A COMEDY OF CHARM

A COMEDY OF CHARM

THE ARRIVAL OF THE SPECIAL DELIVERY

LAUGHTER——LAUGHTER——LAUGHTER
THE FUNNIEST FILM FOR THE FUNNIEST PEOPLE
THE BEST COMEDY FOR THE BEST HOUSES
FUNNY SCREAMS BY FUNNY PEOPLE
SPECIAL ONE AND THREE SHEET POSTERS AS FUNNY AS THE FILM

REGULAR FRIDAY VIM, "BUSTED HATS"

ON THE

GENERAL FILM PROGRAM

Knickerbocker Star Features

offer

THREE STAR RELEASES

on

General Film Program

3 REELS

"HOUSES OF MYSTERY"

Featuring

PAUL GILMORE

A Detective story, thrilling, artistic, dramatic. Secret Service men round up a treacherous gang of diamond smugglers.

JANUARY TWENTY-FIRST

3 REELS

3 REELS

"THE HEART BREAKERS"

Featuring

JACKIE SAUNDERS

A Three Act Semi-Comedy. The troubles of an Heiress; the triumph of an ambitious Cub Reporter. Hilarity and humanity blend. A winner; everyone will like it.

JANUARY TWENTY-EIGHTH

3 REELS

3 REELS

"THE CRIME OF CIRCUMSTANCE"

Featuring

LEWIS J. CODY

Photographically a Masterpiece; Dramatically Convincing. A "Butterfly" and her ambitious husband and a home of destitution become enmeshed in circumstances which result in startling disclosures.

FEBRUARY FOURTH

Special Artists Engaged To Make One, Three and Six Sheet Posters

Remember EVERY FRIDAY We Release On Regular General Film Program

Knickerbocker Star Features

NEW YORK

LUBIN

Released Jan. 24th

"TWO NEWS ITEMS"

One Act Drama

Released Jan. 25th

"THE DRAGOMAN"

Two Act Drama

Released Jan 27th

"THE EMBODIED THOUGHT"

Three Act Drama

Released Jan 29th

BILLIE REEVES COMEDY "CURED"

One Act

GENERAL FILM RELEASES LUBIN

VITAGRAPH

SCOOPS

HEARST-VITAGRAPH
NEWS PICTORIAL No. 1

Congressman Buchanan Indicted Strike Plotter

British Cabinet Crisis Over Conscription

Survivors of Torpedoed Liner Ancona

Ford Peace Party On their Voyage

HEARST-VITAGRAPH
NEWS PICTORIAL No. 2

President Wilson and Bride On Honeymoon

Ascot Park Motor Speedway Races

Opening of 1916 Racing Season at New Orleans

HEARST-VITAGRAPH
NEWS PICTORIAL No. 3

Strike Rioters Burning East Youngstown, Ohio.

Newly Organized German Artillery in Action

Survivors of The Abandoned Liner Thessaloniki.

And this letter tells the Story

Morrison Hotel and Boston Oyster House

CHICAGO, ILL.
Jan. 6th-16

Hearst -Vitagraph News Pictorial.
Chicago, Ill.,

Dear Sirs:-

Congratulations on your new weekly adventure. I ran #1 first run today at THE BOSTON THEATRE, 21 N. Clark St. and played to a crowded house all day, the business being far above what I really expected, as the weather was so cold. The news was interesting and of the most importance and was well gotten up. The photography was excellent and the Powers cartoon was a scream. All that we regretted was that it ended too soon.

With very best wishes for the good work, I am,

Very truly yours,

J. C. Miller Mgr.,
Boston Theatre 21 N. Clark
Alcazar Theatre 69 W. Madison
Rose " 63 W. Madison.
City

RATES
NEW MORRISON - 225 ROOMS AT $1.50 SINGLE $2.50 DOUBLE 400 ROOMS AT $2.00 SINGLE - $3.00 DOUBLE
90 ROOMS AT $3.00 SINGLE $4.00 DOUBLE
OLD MORRISON - 140 ROOMS WITH RUNNING WATER $1.00 SINGLE - $2.00 DOUBLE
95 ROOMS WITH BATH $1.50 SINGLE - $2.50 DOUBLE

The VITAGRAPH COMPANY of AMERICA
EXECUTIVE OFFICES
EAST 15th ST. and LOCUST AVE., BROOKLYN, N.Y.
NEW YORK · CHICAGO · LONDON · PARIS

VITAGRAPH

A story by the greatest of all screen writers,

CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY

Directed by a great masterful director,

RALPH INCE

Enacted by stars whom the millions love and admire,

ANITA STEWART and EARLE WILLIAMS,

And produced by a gigantic organization

THE VITAGRAPH

That is,

MY LADY'S SLIPPER

THEY SAY THAT NAMES AND REPUTATIONS COUNT FOR NOTHING

But Here you have Names
Reputations
Splendid Production
Absorbing Story
And Merit of the Most superlative kind
In each.
Released January 17th thru
V. L. S. E., Inc.

The VITAGRAPH COMPANY of AMERICA
EXECUTIVE OFFICES
EAST 15th ST. and LOCUST AVE., BROOKLYN, N.Y.
NEW YORK · CHICAGO · LONDON · PARIS

VITAGRAPH

Again Cyrus Townsend Brady

Following
My Lady's Slipper
Comes
THE ISLAND OF SURPRISE

By the author of
The Island of Regeneration
CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY

* * *

Some say
The Island of Surprise
Is even better than
The Island of Regeneration

* * *

It Features
WILLIAM COURTENAY
The eminent stage star
Eleanor Woodruff
Zeena Keefe
Julia Swayne Gordon
Charles Kent
Anders Randolph
And other popular Vitagraph Stars.
Produced by Paul Scardon
Released January 24th

The VITAGRAPH COMPANY of AMERICA
EXECUTIVE OFFICES
EAST 15th ST. and LOCUST AVE., BROOKLYN, N.Y.
NEW YORK · CHICAGO · LONDON · PARIS

VITAGRAPH

Business Is Good

From every section of the country
East, West, North, South
Come reports that
Business is good.

★ ★ ★

These reports come
From exhibitors who know—
From exhibitors
Who believe in the open market—
From exhibitors
Who pick their programs
On Merit only.

★ ★ ★

And the best part of it all is
They are exhibitors who Use Vitagraph.
They see them on the screen
Use them—

and Business is Good

Regular Releases

"The Cold Feet Getaway"

Comedy—Monday, January 24th
Featuring Harry Fisher and Albert Roccardi

"Peace at Any Price"

Comedy—Friday, January 28th
Featuring Mr. & Mrs. Sidney Drew.

"The Ruse"

Three-part drama—Saturday, January 29th

Broadway Star Feature

Featuring JOSEPH KILGOUR, HARRY MOREY, Denton Vane, Charles Kent, Naomi Childers and Helen Pillsbury.

"Jane's Bashful Hero"

Comedy—Monday, January 31st
Featuring EDITH STOREY, Donald MacBride, Billy Bletcher and Edward Elkas.

The VITAGRAPH COMPANY of AMERICA
EXECUTIVE OFFICES
EAST 15th ST. and LOCUST AVE., BROOKLYN, N.Y.
NEW YORK · CHICAGO · LONDON · PARIS

PaZAYS

"a smile is a STINGY man's LaFF"-
GOZH! But You'll all
Be GeneRouZ when
You ZEE me in the movieZ

TRADE KALEM MARK

SIZ. HOPKINZ
(MYSELF)

"THE PERIL OF THE RAILS"

An Episode in

"THE HAZARDS of HELEN"

Featuring HELEN GIBSON

The Most Daring Actress in Pictures

Kalem, the originator of railroad pictures, continues to set the pace in excellence of production and ingenious and reckless thrills. The spectacle of two speeding trains rushing to an almost certain head-on collision will pull your patrons out of their seats when you show this episode. Helen's courageous coolness in the face of danger averts the disaster by inches. This episode released February 12th. 1 and 3-sheet, 4 color lithographs on the striking Kalem kind. Newspaper mats, also.

Kalem's "Hazards" Give You "The Last Word in Thrills"

WURRA-WURRA

A Bud Duncan and Ethel Teare comedy without a lagging moment in the reel. The Cannibal Isles are the scene of the action, Ethel is queen, and Bud and Jack rather fortunate castaways.

Released Tuesday, February 8th. Catchy 1 and 3-sheet, 4-color lithographs on this comedy

THE TRAIL'S END

Last of the three stirring "Ventures" with The Wolf as the grim central character, and international intrigue the theme. A thousand feet brimming over with action.

Released Friday, February 11th. The 1 and 3-sheet, 4-color lithographs are unusually attractive.

THE DARKEST HOUR

A "Stingaree" Episode by E. W. Hornung, Creator of "Raffles"

The closing episode in this famous two-reel series is worthy of the amazing success that Hornung's stories have achieved. If you want a "sure thing," a series that has been proven, give your patrons a chance to see "Stingaree" now. In the closing episode the bushranger, aided by his partner, Howie, is successful in making his escape from prison, and after a number of stirring incidents, he gets back to England and finds happiness in the arms of Ethel, his former sweetheart.

Released Wednesday, February 9th. 1, 3 and 6-sheet, 4-color lithographs.

These pictures obtainable at all General Film Company offices or the Greater New York Film Rental Company

YOU ARE MISSING SOMETHING GOOD IF YOUR NAME IS NOT ON THE MAILING LIST FOR THE NEW KALEM BULLETIN

KALEM COMPANY

235-239 West 23rd Street New York City, N. Y.

MOVING PICTURE WORLD
THE FILM INDEX
EXHIBITORS' GUIDE

Entered at the General Post Office, New York City, as Second Class Matter

J. P. Chalmers, Founder.

Published Weekly by the

CHALMERS PUBLISHING COMPANY

17 MADISON AVENUE, NEW YORK CITY.

(Telephone, 3510 Madison Square)

J. P. Chalmers, Sr.....President
J. F. Chalmers.....Vice-President
E. J. Chalmers.....Secretary and Treasurer
John Wylie.....General Manager

The office of the company is the address of the officers.

CHICAGO OFFICE—Suite 917-919 Schiller Building, 64 West Randolph St., Chicago, Ill. Telephone, Central 5099.
PACIFIC COAST OFFICE—Haas Building, Seventh St. and Broadway, Los Angeles, Cal. Telephone, Broadway 4649.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and Philippine Islands .....$3.00 per year
Canada ..... 3.50 per year
Foreign Countries (Postpaid)..... 4.00 per year

All changes of address should give both old and new addresses in full and clearly written, and require two weeks.

ADVERTISING RATES.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING—no display—three cents per word; minimum charge, fifty cents.

DISPLAY ADVERTISING RATES made known on application.

NOTE—Address all correspondence, remittances and subscriptions to MOVING PICTURE WORLD, P. O. Box 226, Madison Square Station, New York, and not to individuals.

(The Index for this issue will be found on page 680)

"CINE-MUNDIAL," the monthly Spanish edition of the Moving Picture World, is published at 17 Madison Avenue by the Chalmers Publishing Company. It reaches the South American market. Yearly subscription, $1.50. Advertising rates on application.

Saturday, January 22, 1916

Facts and Comments

WE call the reader's attention to the reports of the hearing on Federal censorship at Washington. When the reformers for revenue only attacked the motion picture two years ago and succeeded in persuading the House Committee into a favorable report of the Federal Censorship Bill the great men in the industry were too busy making money to "bother with it." Now the opposition has descended upon the Capitol like a cloud. The sleeping lion has roused himself and is more than ever before conscious of his strength. It may turn out that the reformers for revenue only have rendered a priceless service to the motion picture. The fight against the freedom of the screen has now passed the stage when lobbying in quiet corners and reckless, wholesale misrepresentation are to be feared. Such devious and subterranean methods will not bear the light of free, honest discussion. Public sentiment stands arrayed against censorship of all kinds, Federal or otherwise, and if Congress is responsive to public sentiment the professional reformers will have to hunt up another issue to keep themselves in the limelight and go through the motions of earning a salary.

* * *

A WELL-KNOWN leader in the film world recently spoke of a coming storm and of the probable wrecks in the wake of the storm. This forecast is concurred in by every one who is familiar with conditions as they exist today. The exhibitor pays more for his film service than ever before. That he is paying more today than he did four or five years ago is natural enough and no alarming conclusions could be drawn from this circumstance alone. Within the last two years, however, the increase has been abnormal and out of all proportion. There has been nothing like a corresponding increase in his revenues. The producer has been forced to increase the cost of negatives to an extent which derived him anything like a profit and often resulted in a loss. The distributor finds it more difficult and expensive to distribute. The industry is not running on a sound business basis, else there could not be so much waste and leakage. Paying preposterous prices to "stars" is only one of the evils of the day. The extravagant financing of exchanges is another. The most serious aspect of the whole situation is the lack of high quality in pictures. This deluge of mediocre productions is beginning to affect the attendances at the motion picture theaters.

* * *

HERE is a strange inconsistency. The same companies that adhere to the old low prices for scenarios pay extravagant sums for the filming rights of novels and plays. A well-known novel or play has value, we make no question of that. When we hear, however, of a thousand dollars paid for the filming rights of a novel which is practically unknown outside of a few libraries, we begin to wonder. Even the fourth-rate author tries to hold up the film man. The first-class author can only be approached with a fistful of thousand dollar bills as an evidence of good faith.

* * *

QUESTIONS are frequently asked by our readers why so many companies insist on five reels as the proper feature unit. We have asked one very prominent producer, who referred us to the rule and practice in the classic drama. The classic drama is spoken drama and it puts far more strain on eye and ear than the film play. We do not want to say that the five-reel unit for a big feature is wrong, but rigid adherence to it may be. A feature of five reels must have uncommon elements of strength, otherwise it is apt to run into digressions and padding. It happens at times that a three or four reel feature is greatly superior to one of greater length. A feature in one respect is something like a poem—it may have more feet than it needs.

* * *

AS an incentive to the removal of differences between the Angelenos and the motion picture men perhaps the former hardly needed the accelerating influence of the munificent offers of the San Franciscans to give land and build studios. Still, 'tis well to have it known that one has honor outside his own country.

Five Reel Material*

By Louis Reeves Harrison.

THE author who has a story to tell, even when he knows how to tell it in print, is often under a false impression as to the amount of material required for a five-reel feature and almost wholly unaware of how it should be divided into five acts. He may even imagine that because he knows very little about the construction of a photoplay scenario that there is very little to be known. Such a view is the natural result of having an intellectual boundary, that of his own craft, and the one who entertains it is occasionally shocked to discover that all he has to provide can be swallowed by one reel without a gulp.

While no rules have yet been formulated on the subject, at least none which would not equally serve for measuring moonlight, the author who has one eye on the main chance, who wishes to develop his story in feature proportions, may feel reasonably assured that directors rarely complain of excess material. Long experience has taught them to expect a shortage of grey matter in the scenario, which they convert by laborious overplaying, or by reckless interpolation, into an oversupply for the ruthless editor to cut down, all of which might be obviated in the scenario. "But, how?" asks the author, the gentleman who is supposed to supply the brains of a story, "how is this to be done?"

The question might be evaded by suggesting that the anxious inquirer closely observe the best screen examples, count the time, the scenes and subtitles, and in a general way familiarize himself with the subject on which he is about to venture. Such a training might modify many a new writer's self-sufficiency and tame some of the older ones, but short cuts of experience may be of value, and what is done in other arts of expression may help.

In the opening period, that of making known the characters, the location and the general trend of a story, may be one-third of the whole novel and usually requires one-third of a three-act stage play. It is not, however, advisable to use more than one-fifth, the first act of a five reel photodrama, for such introductory and preparatory work, though this limitation is not actually imposed. Now strip the novel, or the drama, of all verbiage save a few clarifying explanations or bits of conversation, particularly those which enforce the action, and there is left a skeleton of incidents and events, the bare narrative.

Those who have successfully transformed the novel and the stage play for screen presentation have come upon a discovery that is always alarming and sometimes painful—the actual story material is not enough to hold the attention of an audience for more than three reels. Two additional reels must be provided by dragging attenuation or by providing entirely new material in harmony with the subject matter. In both cases, especially in the latter, it has been found necessary to knock the old ship to pieces and simply piece the old material into a new structure.

Pages of conversation and philosophic comment in one case, hours of uttered language in the other, nearly all must be eliminated for the sake of visible beauty, significant movement and intense psychology. In order to ascertain how every one of three dozen scenes and a half dozen subtitles in one act of a photodrama may be made to count strongly with an audience, it would not be a bad plan for an author to reduce his narrative to a synopsis and work from that basis to evolve a single telling act, remembering that the chopping of two contrasting scenes can easily be done at the studio by the editor.

Starting with a theme, and keeping that theme ever in mind, the author of creative imagination and devotion to his work will find his material supplied by the necessities of development, his plot taking care of itself. If the story reaches its natural end in three reels, let it rest there for good, or begin over again at the beginning on a larger general scheme, one which will probably suggest itself after the first writing. The one thing to be avoided at every step in theatricalism.

By theatricalism is meant staginess and the use of artificial characters and incidents long deemed essential in the drama. By theatricalism is also meant stale stuff, the Kentucky feud, the Balkan Princess and the ingenious young American who stirs up things in her kingdom, the country maiden who is wronged, or nearly wronged, by the city chap, who is forgiven by her old country sweetheart, the shifting of clothes and identity between mistress and maid, or between gentleman and valet, the dual identity, or the man of two lives, the story that depends upon uncle's will, or upon a foolish wager, the millionaire hero or heroine who assumes a disguise that he or she may be wed for love's sweet sake. Above all the wornout Cinderella story.

The author who starts in to use this sort of material need not fret his soul as to how much of it will fill a feature play. It is at present being liberally supplied to us without cost to the producer. Largely from fountains of pure creative genius will come such original five-reel features as will be given consideration by men who must expend thousands of dollars to produce them. Most surely such features may be counted upon to win the author's way to artistic success and at least, an imitation of commensurate financial reward.

Among those we meet quite often in the Five-Reeler are: The Lady who has a Past and wishes to Heaven she hadn't; The Big Grafter with an Up-Tilted Cigar in his Mouth, who tries to Compromise the Rising Young Politician; The Wife whose Licensed Provider is Older and Uglier, though Noble he may be, than the Other Man; The Artless Little Adopted Child who turns out to be the Real Heiress; The Lost Heir who was stolen by Operatic Gypsies when a Mere Babe; Brute Man; Big Westerner, Absconding with Cultured Lady, Eastener, to their subsequent Mutual Edification; The Poorly Posted Banker who reads in the paper that he is Ruined.

Some day we may meet a banker who understands finance and come to regard the lady with no past as the real novelty. We may discover the big grafter teaching Sunday school, while the rising young politician is buying drinks all around. We may gaze upon sensible wives who stick to the man with the bank balance in spite of all. We may even enjoy a brief vacation from Cinderella, Carmen and Camille. Grown men may then go unescorted to the movies.

Mix the narrative of three well-sifted novels with the residue of two boiled-down stage plays and add a strong dash of melodrama for seasoning. Knead the composite plot carefully and bake in a hot oven. Set it away to cool for several weeks while permitting a Real Idea to simmer. When ready to serve, pour the real idea over the re-warmed plot so that it saturates every part of it and bring it in on a hot plate, remembering always that the idea furnishes the flavor, although it may lower the temperature. The composition may be used as a chef-d'oeuvre when exquisitely garnished with psychology.

*Copyright, 1916, Louis Reeves Harrison.

Hearken All Ye Producers

(The writer of this page now "yields the floor" to a valued contributor, Chapin H. Hoskins, of Chicago. Mr. Hoskins' observations are full of interest. He evidently is a close student of the motion picture. Self-criticism is anti-censorship under another name. That's the main reason we print Mr. Hoskins' contribution.—W. Stephen Bush.)

The Unconverted Public

A RECENT advertisement in THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD mentions the desirability of drawing to moving picture theaters the better class of patrons —"a large per cent. of whom have not yet begun to attend motion picture shows."

Why are there still so many people unattracted by the screen drama? Is it because they do not know the excellence to which the silent plays have attained? Or is it that, in spite of seven-league strides of recent years, the moving picture does not yet merit the interest of highly intelligent people? I believe it is the latter.

The photography of most current pictures is excellent, the directing is thorough and often reveals genius, the acting is frequently superior to that of the "legitimate" drama—but in spite of camera man, director, and cast, the screen has yet to gain the universal recognition given to the stage. The reason is that the photoplay, but for few brilliant exceptions, is still on the level of the dime novel or penny-dreadful, and the "ten-twenty-thirty."

That sensation, so called, is the goal of nearly all our producers is apparent to anyone who frequents moving picture theaters. In a recent issue of THE WORLD an analysis of the stories, comments and reviews of the films then current shows that fifty-seven dramas out of sixty-eight, or 83.8 per cent., displayed crime or criminals! Even among the farces and comedies 46 per cent (seventeen out of thirty-seven) introduced crime. Is it any wonder that people leave in the middle of a "feature play" and go to a Charlie Chaplin show to "get the taste out of their mouths"? When it is remembered that the figures used here include only the releases of our best producing companies, because those which issue frankly obscene or degrading pictures are not permitted to advertise in THE WORLD, it must be admitted that men and women who dislike cheap sensation have small chance of witnessing a pleasant picture play.

The producers of the fifty-seven crime-displaying dramas and the seventeen crime-containing comedies doubtless hold the theory that their plays will be satisfactory to the most fastidious if only the lawbreakers in them received retribution in the end. Such a test may satisfy the official censors, but how about the ultimate censor, the intelligent public? A number of recent photoplays have pictured a struggle between two persons, one holding a gun; a third person, whose presence is unknown to either, shoots. The hero or heroine is a murderer in intention, and thinks himself one in fact, but because the author decides that the man labeled "Villain" shall shoot first the audience is expected to sympathize with the would-be murderer earmarked "Hero."

In one recent release five characters registered their determination to murder; one succeeded in being the culprit, whereupon we of the audience were supposed to look upon him with loathing, and glory in the living happy ever after of the four whose criminal intentions were frustrated. Intelligent people, regardless of any moral question, do not like to be played with in this way. They see in the murderous intention, not conquered but prevented, a crime as black as murder itself.

Most of the crime in picture plays has as little excuse as the sensuousness in "problem plays." Mark Twain once wrote a story in which the hero and heroine become involved in such difficulties that the author gives up the effort to extricate them. Had he been an average photoplaywright he would have introduced a murder or two, a fall over a cliff, or a suicide to eliminate the characters obstructing a logical solution of the plot.

George Bernard Shaw, in his preface to "Three Plays for Puritans," discusses the shortcomings of London theater managers in their choice of plays. Much of what he says might be read with profit—and amusement—by film play producers. Of the "so-called problem plays" he writes that they "invariably depended for their dramatic interest on foregone conclusions of the most heart-wearying conventionality concerning sexual morality. The authors had no problematic views; all they wanted to capture was something of the fascination of Ibsen. It seemed to them that most of Ibsen's heroines were naughty ladies. And they tried to produce Ibsen plays by making their heroine naughty. * * * Thus the pseudo-Ibsen play was nothing but the ordinary sensuous ritual of the stage become as frankly pornographic as good manners allowed. * * * I found that the whole business of stage sensuousness * * * disgusted me, not because I was Pharisaical or intolerably refined, but because I was bored."

THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD's British correspondent writes that "film critics, both in the trade and out, are just now making capital of the ubiquity of the six-shooter in the average imported society or domestic drama from the American studios." Fortunately the day has passed when Englishmen believe us to be a gun-carrying nation, but can we blame them if they revive their old notions after seeing our photoplays?

People are beginning to associate crime and the screen automatically, just as they used to think that a picture was bound to display fleeing comedians knocking over banana carts and upsetting painters on their ladders. If one of your friends reads in the newspaper of a sensational crime he immediately says to you, "What a fine opportunity for a 'movie' plot!" So long as this continues to be the case that "large per cent." of the public who "have not yet begun to attend moving picture shows" will remain unconverted. Praise is due the few producers who are striving for a higher standard, but that standard must be made still more lofty.

Massachusetts League Election

President Horstmann Re-Elected for Third Time—Meeting Well Attended.

E. H. HORSTMANN, of Boston, was elected president of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of Massachusetts, Inc., for the third successive time, at the annual meeting of the league here last week. The meeting was the longest in the history of the organization. Seventy members were represented in person or by proxy, and although some of the subjects brought up at the meeting precipitated warm debates, everything wound up harmoniously, and the outlook for the ensuing year is exceedingly bright.

Richard W. Drown was elected first vice-president; Patrick J. Lydon, second vice-president; H. A. Gilman, treasurer, and Harry Wasserman, secretary. All of the officers are directors of the league and the other directors elected included G. M. Clark, L. Dadmun, F. J. Howard, Colonel Henry Kincaide and Jacob Lourie.

The Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of Massachusetts, Inc., is a Massachusetts corporation and under the provisions of its by-laws the members elect the secretary and treasurer and nine directors and the directors elect the president and two vice-presidents.

Film Hosts in Battle Array

Three Important Hearings on Federal Censorship Bill—Prospects of Opponents of Bill are Good—Producers, Distributors, Exhibitors and Newspaper Men Present Solid Phalanx to the Foe—Visit of President Wilson, Who Will Attend Trade Dinner on January 27th—Crafts Demoralized Before Powerful Opposition to His Scheme

By W. Stephen Bush.

Washington, D. C., January 16, 1916.

THE battle for and against federal censorship for motion pictures opened on Thursday, January 13, before the members of the House Committee on Education. Two years ago the hearings on the same bill were held in the committee room on the fifth floor of the House Office Building, in New Jersey avenue. It was a small room, scarcely accommodating a score of persons. This time the meetings are conducted in the big caucus room of the same building. The caucus room easily holds three hundred persons.

There are other contrasts. The House Committee on Education consists of fifteen members, of whom seven are new and have never heard any argument on federal censorship. The new members, upon whom the hopes of the motion picture men are centered, are Claudin A. Stone, Illinois; John A. Key, Ohio; William J. Sears, Florida; B. C. Hilliard, Colorado, Democrats, and Frederick W. Dallinger, Massachusetts; S. Taylor North, Pennsylvania, and Robert M. McCracken, Idaho. While at the last hearing there was less than a corporal's guard of film men, this time there was a cloud of opposition. The proponent of the bill was the same Dr. Wilbur F. Crafts, a well-known professional reformer But one other man has so far been heard on the same side as Crafts—Howard Clark Barber, a young man and a salaried agent of the Society for the Prevention of Crime.

Film Men Out in Force.

The gathering of the film men was by far the largest and the most representative I have ever seen. Every branch of the industry was well represented. J. Stuart Blackton, of the Vitagraph Company, was there, and so was John R. Freuler, of the Mutual, and P. A. Powers, of the Universal. Lubin, Metro and one or two others were represented by the Board of Trade, whose executive secretary, J. W. Binder. arrived at the Hotel Willard early on Thursday. The first on the ground were the organized exhibitors, headed by National President Frederick J. Herrington. Other exhibitors were James A. Delves, George W. Sahner and W. H. Ketchum, of Pittsburgh; Charles Segall, of Philadelphia; William Brandt, of Brooklyn; Samuel H. Trigger, of New York; Frank Rembusch, of Indiana; Peter Magars, of Harrisburg; Beniamin Zerr, of Reading; Charles A. Megown, of Cleveland; G. L. Wonders, of Baltimore, president of the Maryland State Organization; Jack Greenburg, of Baltimore; W. J. Crandell, president of the Washington local organization; Fulton Brylawski and J. H. Morgan, of the Princess Theater. The press was represented by Charles Condon, William A. Johnson and W. Edwards. The National Board of Censorship was represented by Cranston Brenton and Dr. Orrin G. Cocks. Other men who were present and who are well known in film circles were Paul Cromelin, Cosmofotofilm Film Company; Jenkins L. Jones, Thanhouser Film Corporation; Don J. Bell, of Bell & Howell, Chicago; Chester Beecroft, Centaur Film Company; C. Francis Jenkins, Tom Moore, of Washington; William M. Seabury, counsel to the Motion Picture Board of Trade; P. A. Parsons, of Pathe, and John M. Miller, of Buffalo.

One of the most notable figures was Nicholas Power, who attended every conference of the film men and followed the hearing with the closest attention. No branch in the industry had a more zealous representative than the supply men.

The exchangemen present were Walter W. Irwin, V-L-S-E; Max Koerpel, General Film; H. M. Osborn, manager of the Washington Exchange of Pathe, and Rudolph Berger, connected with the same office, and Guy Bradford, representative of Gaumont.

A Resume of the First Three Days.

The battle is still raging, and no one can tell how it will end. There is no doubt that the committee was not any too friendly to the film men on the opening night—most of them seemed to have made up their minds for Crafts and his bill. The proceedings, in fact, started inauspiciously for our side, but after Seabury and Cromelin had spoken there was a noticeable change for the better. Mr. Seabury ably repelled several attacks made on legal grounds, while Mr. Cromelin's masterly and destructive analysis of the copyright provisions in the bill made the members of the community realize the weakness and absurdities of the Crafts measure. The cause of the film men grew stronger on Friday night, when Cranston Brenton, of the National Board of Censors, gave a forceful, clear and convincing account of the work of his organization. He was followed by Walter W. Irwin, V-L-S-E. Mr. Irwin made a marked impression. His address was dignified in tone and manner, full of cold, solid facts and compelling in its logic. The greatest triumph for the freedom of the screen was achieved on Saturday night. F. J. Herrington, representing the exhibitors, interested the committee with valuable facts and with his own personal experiences in fighting legalized censorship in Pennsylvania. He was followed by Bainbridge Colby, representing the Hearst newspapers. Mr. Colby's arguments were brief, but very much to the point. J. Stuart Blackton, of Vitagraph, stated the film men's case with his usual grasp of the subject, his usual eloquence and his usual sallies of wit. The sensation of the evening came with the speech of the Rev. Cyrus Townsend Brady, the well-known author and preacher. He swayed the audience and the committee with his magnetic power, and at the end of his address the members of the committee vied with each other for the privilege of extending his time. Against this array of screen defenders the opposition had nothing to offer but a dozen elderly ladies, who spoke in favor of more pictures suitable for children, and some local clergymen, most of whom were colored. The change in the attitude of the committee toward the film was most pronounced after Mr. Brady had finished on Saturday night. According to well-authenticated rumors there were but three members of the committee favorable to the film men. The best that was hoped for was a minority report against the Crafts' Bill. As I write these lines the prospects are very much better. We have made more friends on the committee and the defeat of the bill is by no means impossible.

How Additional Hearings Were Secured.

Before going into the detailed reports of the hearings I want to tell a pleasing and interesting news story. I learned from excellent authority, in fact from some of the members of the committee themselves, that they had decided not to grant any further hearings and to send the bill, making Uncle Sam a censorial mogul, into the House with the original favorable report. I heard that Craft kept camping on the trail of the members and that he sent his emissaries in relays, when he was otherwise busy. Happily the film men have a very good friend in Granville S. MacFarland, editor of the Boston American. Mr. MacFarland is in close touch with Mr. Horstmann, the president of the Massachusetts Exhibitors' League. When he heard of the reintroduction of the Smith-Hughes' federal censorship bill, he wired Fred W. Dallinger, a congressman and member of the Committee on Education, to check the further progress of the bill and obtain a new hearing. Dallinger, a close friend of Mr. MacFarland, at first found the committee strongly disinclined to reopen the hearing. It took two days of tireless campaigning to win another chance for the film men to be heard. Mr. Dallinger succeeded in getting six hearings with two hours and a half for each session. Half of the time was placed at the disposal of the motion picture interests. Dallinger and Edward Platt, son of the late John I. Platt, of Poughkeepsie, and owner of the Poughkeepsie Daily Eagle, were the two members of the committee who openly favored the film men and who grilled Dr. Crafts.

It is scarcely necessary to point out the far reaching effects against censorship. If the effort to set up this engine of oppression fails at the National capitol, the principle of censorship will suffer a blow from which it may never recover.

The Events of the First Night.

When at 8 o'clock on Thursday night, Chairman Hughes called the committee to order, the large caucus room was filled well nigh to capacity. Chairman Hughes stated that there had been some reluctance on the part of the committee to re-open the hearings on the Federal Censorship bill. It had been decided, however, to give each side seven hours and a half to submit arguments to the committee. He made it plain to the opponents and proponents of the bill that the committee would frequently exercise its right of asking questions of the various speakers. He added that the committee realized its duty of giving the matter very careful consideration, and that within certain days, after the last hearing, the committee will be ready to accept briefs.

Mr. Hughes had hardly finished speaking when Wilbur F. Crafts, the reformer and main sponsor for the bill, jumped to his feet and in a somewhat excited manner deplored the action of the committee in granting further hearings to the moving picture men.

"I think," said Mr. Crafts, "that the committee has been rather more generous than just. This matter has been thoroughly thrashed out, and we must stop sometime. There is absolutely no justification for any further hearing. The committee considered the question very fully in March, 1914, and I insist that only matter which is strictly new be submitted at any of these hearings. I represent one-quarter of the population of the United States, and this population, consisting of parents and children, insists on a speedy decision."

Having solemnly placed himself to read nothing but new matter into the record, Dr. Crafts read, in full, the favorable report of the committee submitted to the House in May, 1914 He followed this up by reading a communication from the Superintendent of Schools of the State of West Virginia. According to this communication, which was likewise read into the record, 75 per cent. of the pictures displayed in the State of West Virginia were considered bad by the writer. All these pictures showed, it was alleged, drinking or cigarette smoking.

Very much in the style of the celebrated Sergeant Buzfuz, the reverend speaker threw back his head and bestowed many knowing glances first on the audience and then on the committee as he reached forth and grasped a loudly printed pamphlet. Presently, he waved it with gleeful gloating before the members of the committee, and declared, with a triumphant smile: "Now, gentlemen," he purred, "I do not ask you to take my word as to the need of censorship of moving pictures. Here is Carl Lammle, the largest film manufacturer in the world." Saying this, Mr. Craft pecked at the paper first with one finger then with another.

"Here," Crafts continued, raising his voice, "Here, Mr. Laemmle himself goes on record, proving the fact that there is a very large percentage of indecent pictures, and further proving the fact that 65 per cent. of the exhibitors in the country have no use for any but unclean pictures."

With great relish Mr. Crafts then read the "straight-from-the-shoulder" talk which has given rise to so much comment. The last few sentences Crafts read over and over again, and having waited for the contents of the article to sink in, he sat down in evident glee.

First Inning for Foes of Censorship.

Mr. Hughes then called upon J. W. Binder, the executive secretary of the Motion Picture Board of Trade, to open the proceedings for the film men. Mr. Binder was evidently well prepared, and if he had been permitted to pursue the even tenor of his way, no doubt, he would have had smooth sailing. He had not proceeded very far, however, before different members of the committee began to hurl questions at him. Congressman Towner, from Iowa, was particularly insistent and impatient, and Mr. Binder hardly had a chance to answer Towner's questions, before another member fired a new query at him. Presently one of the members of the committee began to ply the speaker with questions of law. It was here that William M. Seabury, general counsel to the Motion Picture Board of Trade, came to the rescue of Mr. Binder, extricating him from an embarrasing position.

The habit of all the members of the committee to break in upon the orderly discourse of the speaker proved to be a disturbing factor, especially in view of the fact that many of the questions asked were either unfair or childish. Mr. Seabury presently encountered the same obstructive tactics, but he parried every thrust very adroitly. When one member after another asked him whether he objected to any control and regulation of the moving pictures, he came back with a very loud "No!"

"We believe," said Mr. Seabury to the committee, "that there is all the difference in the world between regulation and censorship. Just to prove to this committee that we are in favor of the strictest sort of regulation, I am going to suggest to you an amendment of the Penal Code which will put indecent motion pictures on a par with indecent books and other objectionable articles. Under the law, which now makes the transmission of such objectionable matter through the mails a crime, the distributor of an indecent motion picture will incur the full penalties provided for this offence. Under the amendment which I propose any person who would attempt to take an indecent film out of an express office would be liable to criminal prosecution. The sound sentiment within the ranks of the motion picture industry is wholly and enthusiastically in favor of clean pictures. I wish I could make this committee understand the difference between regulation and censorship. Let us define what we art talking about. I want this committee to know that a highly objectionable picture was suppressed in the State of New York, which has no censorship law, and was approved, at least, in substance, by the censors of the State of Pennsylvania."

Group of Picturemen at Washington.—Left to right—first row: William N. Seabury, P. A. Powers, Nicholas Power, James A. Delves, F. J. Herrington, Mrs. Walter W. Irwin, Mrs. P. A. Parsons, Commodore J. Stuart Blackton, J. W. Binder; second row: Paul Cromelin, Granville S. McFarland, Capt. Dan Burke, Charles A. Megown, P. A. Parsons, W. A. Johnston, William Brandt, George Ketchum, Walter W. Irwin, Mrs. Blackton, J. Harford, I. M. Miller, G. W. Sahner, Chester Beecroft, W. S. Bush, John R. Freuler.

Crafts here interposed to sing a little song of praise for the censors of Ohio and Pennsylvania. He pointedly asked why the motion picture men objected to censorship if they really wanted clean pictures. "Pat" Powers, who had been sitting in the front row, arose and told Crafts that he had a "tough time" in getting action on any of the Universal films in Ohio. "You see," said Powers, in a whimsical, complaining way, "one of the censors is sick and the other two are not on speaking terms." Powers scored with the first laugh at the hearing.

Paul Cromelin's Telling Speech.

The last speaker of the evening, and, undoubtedly, the most effective one, was Paul Cromelin of the Cosmofotofilm Company. Mr. Cromelin attacked Section 9 and 10 of the Crafts bill. Those sections provide that no copyright shall be issued for any film which has not previously received the certificate and seal of the proposed Federal Censorship Commission. He pointed out that it would be impossible for any importer of film to comply with both the Crafts bill and the provision and regulations of the present copyright law. The members of the committee were much impressed by the argument of Mr. Cromelin, all except Mr. Towner, of Iowa, who wanted to know all about censorship in England. As Mr. Cromelin had materially helped in drafting the scheme for control of motion pictures in England, he was well able to supply all the information Mr. Towner wanted. At this time the hearing was brought to a close. Lively discussions by groups scattered all over the room were carried on after the adjournment until the watchman began to turn out the lights. It was noticed that the attitude of the committee had changed for the better, and some of them scattered pleasantly with little groups of film men.

Moving Picture Men Call on President.

At 10 o'clock on Friday morning a long line of automobiles were standing in front of Hotel Willard. All the film men present left the hotel, after a short conference, and got into the automobiles, which were driven directly to the White House. Arrangements had been made for a reception by the President of the entire party. There were three ladies in the party, Mrs. J. Stuart Blackton, Mrs. Irwin, and Mrs. Parsons. There was a wait for just a minute or two, and then the procession of film men smilingly filed into the reception room. Very close to the head of the procession was Commodore Blackton, who thanked the President for his acceptance of the invitation to the trade dinner to be held in New York City, Januarv 27.

The President smiled, and expressed the hope that nothing would occur between now and January 27 to interfere with his attendance at the dinner. Just after the film party had left the presidential presence, they were surrounded by some enterprising photographers, who took pictures of the group which is shown standing on the steps of the White House. It was noticed by most everybody that the President looked haggard and careworn.

Strong Pleas Against Crafts Bill.

Before the speaking began on the second night, the chairman of the committee made some very significant remarks which were interpreted favorably by the motion picture men. Chairman Hughes said: "I am glad to see that we are beginning to understand each other and to appreciate each other's motives. I am sure that out of all this friendly discussion we will recommend a bill that will do justice to all concerned." The first speaker of the evening was Dr. Cranston Brenton, the President of the National Board of Censors.

"I am engaged," said Dr. Brenton, "in social work, and I do not receive any compensation. I have, heretofore, been connected with Trinity College, where I taught dramatic criticism and also lectured on English literature. I am also an Episcopal clergyman. As an educator I believe that the motion pictures are the greatest influence for good, as they touch every phase of life. I am opposed to censorship of motion pictures because it is un-American and opposed to democratic principles. I have the right to preach a sermon in either words or pictures, and in either case I have the right to deliver the sermon without the approval of any legalized party of censors. If I preach anything corrupt or malicious, the police have a right to stop me."

The speaker was in splendid voice, and commanded the closest attention of every person present. "Not one of the 225 men and women who censor pictures for our board received any compensation, nor are they directly or indirectly interested in motion pictures in a financial way. It is foolish to say that because the manufacturers contribute to the support of the clerical force of our board they control the policies or influence the decisions of the board. Your committee is not controlled by your clerk. We have, scattered through the country, a National Guidance Committee of seven hundred correspondents, who report to us whether the eliminations ordered by us have been complied with. We have done all in our power for the arrangement of special programs for children."

Here the doctor displayed a large map containing the titles of film especially suited for children and the addresses where such films could be had. "Now, while we have done more than any other body that I know of to bring the fullest benefits as a motion picture home to the children, I want to make it plain that motion pictures are not produced exclusively for children. If that were done, and all films were reduced to the level of intelligence of children under fourteen, no interesting program could be produced. That kind of entertainment would be laughed down even by the trustees of the Sunday school library."

Wilbur F. Crafts, who could not help noticing the profound impressions by the appearance and remarks of Mr. Brenton, here insinuated something about the board being influenced by the contributions of the manufacturers. When Dr. Brenton resented the imputation of Craft's in strong language, there was a demonstration of approval.

Crafts Grilled by Members of Committee.

The next speaker was Walter W. Irwin, general manager of the V-L-S-E. Mr. Irwin pointed out that the exhibitor did not want so-called "purple pictures." He said the two classes that complained most loudly about the influence of motion pictures were the saloon keepers and the ministers. The arguments submitted by Mr. Irwin covered the situation very thoroughly. While Mr. Irwin was speaking, Crafts remarked that the Federated Churches of New York had withdrawn from the National Board because of that board's policy toward motion pictures. Having read this announcement, the speaker said that society to-day was worse than at any time since the fall of Rome. He added that the devil was constantly getting in his fine work. He spoke bitterly of the Wild West and hold-up pictures, when Congressman Edward Platt, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., interrupted him with this question: "Why don't you object to the reports and descriptions of those things in the newspapers?"

There was an outburst of applause which Chairman Hughes had a little trouble in suppressing. Crafts said he would take up the bad books and bad newspapers when he came to them; and then he sat down suddenly. Congressman Platt was not through with him, however. He referred to the report from West Virginia, in which the smoking of cigarettes in motion pictures was condemned as immoral. Mr. Platt asked Crafts to state the moral difference between the cigarette and the corncob. Loud laughter drowned the halting answer of Crafts. Next Mr. Dallinger wanted to know why motion pictures were to be discriminated against while the stage was left to welter in its wickedness. Crafts replied that the motion picture was the same everywhere, while the living actors and actresses often graded the acting of their part with the varying moral standards of different communities. "In one place," Crafts said, "the actress might be sinuous and sensational in displaying herself in a way which would raise the devil," while in another town she might be quite proper and demure."

Mr. Irwin was followed by J. A. Morse, secretary of the Mayor's Conference Committee of New York State. The gist of Mr. Morse's contention was that censorship of the screen would inevitably lead to censorship of the press. The second night they were all in favor of the motion picture interest.

The "Millions" Represented by a "Handful."

Great as was the victory of the film men on Friday night, their success on Saturday night stirred general interest in and about the capitol.

To this victory the advocates of Federal censorship, who appeared in large numbers, contributed not a little by their vague, wild statements and extravagant claims. The censorship forces were marshaled by Mrs. J. M. Culbertson, who said she represented numerous Epworth Leagues and other religious institutions. She scored a picture called "woman and wine," on the ground that women and wine should never be brought together. She was followed by Mrs. Margaret I. Ellis, who said she represented a million women who were members of the W. C. T. U. She said she took a grandchild to a theater in Morristown, N. J. She said the first thing shown was a prize fight at which her grandchild began to squirm. A woman living in Washington had told her of a play showing a Russian story in which an innocent girl was drugged, and in which several people were flogged with a knout. The daughter of this woman, a girl of eleven years, passed a restless night after seeing this Russian play. The speaker also objected to the coarse language and profanity on the screen.

The next speaker was Mrs. Kate Waller Barrett, who said she represented the Florence Crittenden Mission of the country. She claimed to speak for three million members. The next speaker was Mrs. Ellis Logan, who said she represented the Children of the American Revolution. She said some pictures were good, but others were very bad, and she wanted them all good. She said she liked the pictures, but that 1915 had evidently been a bad season for quality. She also deplored the fact that there were so many more women than men. Mrs. Elinore W. Freeland spoke next, representing the United Women of Maryland. No numbers were stated. She said that some the "motion picture parlors" nice, clean pictures, but other "motion picture parlors" showed horrid pictures. Mrs. Edward H. Robinson said she represented the Mother's Congress with a vast membership. She recorded her belief that bad motion pictures incited boys to crime. Mrs. Wilbur F. Crafts, wife of the professional reformer, confided to the committee that she very much liked the pictures shown by the National Geographical Society, accompanied by suitable lectures.

"I went through a number of motion picture theaters in Washington this afternoon, and I found nothing but robbery, trickery, infidelity, adultery. I feel sordid. Why can't we have clean pictures?" she said. Mrs. Crafts then read from a statement made by Arthur H. Spiegel, which, she said, proved that the moving pictures needed a whole lot of cleaning. Mrs. Emma S. Shelton, representing some white ribbon societies, protested against bad motion pictures in the name of her little grandson, whom, she told the committee, did not want to see the moving pictures any more. Mrs. Norman Hill, representing some women's clubs in Washington, spoke in favor of censorship. H. F. Worley protested against motion pictures portraying drunkenness and housebreaking. A colored minister, named Samuel Garner, representing an evangelical alliance, added his protest against bad motion pictures. The next speaker was a Baptist minister, the Rev. James Waldron, who said that he was one-third colored, one-third Indian and one-third white. He said motion pictures were just as bad as saloons, and needed the strictest supervision. The orators on the censorship side closed with an address by another colored minister, the Rev. Charles M. Thomas.

Herrington Stirs the Committee.

The first speaker for the opposition was Frederick J. Herrington, the president of the National Exhibitors' League. Mr. Herrington spoke all too briefly. He told the committee that the organized exhibitors of the country, and, as far as he knew, nine-tenths of the exhibitors of the country, were emphatically in favor of film pictures. "If I confine myself to my own observations and experiences, I am safe in saying that all exhibitors favor film pictures," he said. "I have spoken to exhibitors and to moving picture audiences in my travels from the Atlantic to the Pacific ocean. Everywhere I have found keen sentiment—a sentiment in favor of clean pictures. While I am everlastingly opposed to censorship, I believe in the most drastic punishment for the exhibitor who shows indecent, obscene or immoral pictures. I am more afraid of him than I am of censorship; he is our worst enemy, and our organization intends to prosecute such offenders to the limit. I oppose censorship not only as a moving picture man, but as an American citizen who will not tolerate any encroachment on his personal or political liberty." Mr. Herrington was followed by Bainbridge Colby, representing all the Hearst papers published in the United States. Mr. Colby, a splendid type of young American manhood, delivered an incisive attack against legalized censorship.

Americans Surcharged With Humor, Laugh at Censors.

"Beware," he said, to the committee, "of the follies and stupidities of censorship. You will never reconcile the American people to censorship. Americans are surcharged with humor, and they will laugh you down. The ideas underlying this Crafts bill are altogether irrational, and utterly alien to the genius of our institutions. The whole thing is rustic and provincial. Look at the history of censorship! Do you know that the great university of the Sorbonne refused to allow the publication of Sir Isaac Newton's 'Principia,' which contained the great theory of gravitation?" Here the members of the committee winced visibly as persons do in sudden alarm when they see a mysterious projectile swiftly passing over their heads.

Mr. Colby was followed by J. Stuart Blackton, vice-president of the Vitagraph Company.

Mr. Blackton repelled the idea that the producers of motion pictures were semi-criminals constantly in need of vigilant supervision by the police. At this point there was so much questioning of the speaker (several members of the committee addressing Mr. Blackton at the same time), that three of the members got into a snarl among themselves, and Chairman Hughes had to use quite a little of his fine Southern diplomacy to straighten things out. Mr. Blackton continued by saying that he himself was the father of four children whom he loved very dearly. He declared that of the 5,000 pictures made by the Vitagraph Company in the course of its career there was not one that he would have hesitated to show to his own children. "The Vitagraph company," he said, "has made many pictures especially for children, such as fairy tales and juvenile fiction.

"The Vitagraph company, however, to supply amusement to the public must draw upon the literature of the whole world, and cannot confine itself to the production of special children's pictures. As for Dr. Crafts I admire him for two things: His ability to dodge straightforward questions and his remarkable psychological make-up. He told us that he looked at the four murders in Hamlet without turning a hair, but that he could not see a shooting scene in a Wild West picture without an uncontrollable desire to go forth and do likewise. If this is so the fault is not with the picture, but with the curious composition of Mr. Crafts' mind, and the principle of 'Safety First' ought to be invoked to restrain him."

Cyrus T. Brady Makes a Sensation.

The hardest blow to censorship and to the smug complacency of those supporting it was delivered by the last speaker of the evening, the well known Dr. Cyrus Townsend Brady. Mr. Brady nearly convulsed his audience by his opening statement: "I have listened," he said, with well simulated solemnity, "to representatives of twenty million mothers, of about the same number of fathers, of twenty million children, of thirty-five million or thereabouts of women, and of the representatives of all the Protestant denominations of the country. I tell you it makes me feel very lonely. There is no one left to be represented by me, and thus I am reduced to the necessity of representing nobody but myself. There are many reasons why I oppose this bill. Here is one of them. The church in this country and in other countries as well has never succeeded in entirely ridding itself of the hope that the state will come to its aid and force people to be good. It cannot be done. If your churches are losing their congregations and if your congregations prefer to go to the moving picture theater rather than to the church, don't you think there is something wrong with the church?

"People cannot be made righteous by law. When you talk of censorship of motion pictures and of the need of keeping children away, isn't it a fact that there are lots of books and of newspapers which you and I are safe in reading, and, perhaps, ought to read, but which we would not care to put into the hands of our children. That, gentlemen of this committee, is true of even the Bible. There are passages in the Bible which I would not want my children to read. I tell you that this proposed censorship of motion pictures is a distinct discrimination against the poor man. The motion picture is the poor man's grand opera; it is the poor man's motor car, and the poor man's trip to Europe. Can any of you men on this committee name five grand operas which, under your proposed law, would be safe from the censor? Take the story of 'Carmen.' We have read the novel, we have seen and heard the opera, and we fail to be shocked, but the moment 'Carmen' was put into motion pictures we censored it. I tell you the motion pictures have done more good than many of the churches."

At this point Mrs. W. F. Crafts, the wife of the reformer, looked straight at Dr. Brady, and shook her head most vigorously, giving a weird effect to a most remarkable hat. Dr. Brady noticed the action, and waving his arms at her, he said, amidst shouts of laughter: "Go shake your head to your heart's content; it will never make the slightest difference to me."

Dr. Brady closed with a most powerful peroration against the Federal Censorship bill. It was after 11 o'clock before the hearing was brought to a close.

Pathe Dinner a Love Feast

L. J. Gasnier's Associates Welcome Announcement That He Is to Remain as Director of Productions—First Annual Gathering of Newly Formed Club.

THE first annual beefsteak dinner of the Pathe Club, in a banquet hall at Healy's on the evening of January 15, was a "deliberately friendly" affair. Not one of the 100 men present was too proud to cheer when Charles Pathe, through his associate and interpreter, pro tem, Hedley M. Smith, announced that L. J. Gasnier would remain with the company as general director of productions and that the office of vice president and general manager, vacated by Mr. Gasnier, has been tendered to J. A. Berst.

This immensely sensational rumor, released early in the evening, proved an even better vocabulary accelator than the "Gold Rooster" cocktails. It had been a day of doubt and fears in the Pathe office, for rumor said that Mr. Gasnier was leaving the company, and the members of the Pathe Club were loath to lose their aggressive chief. They feared, as George B. Seitz expressed it, that their first dinner might be a funeral—a time of lamentation and regret. Instead it became a rousing tribute to Mr. Pathe, Mr. Gasnier and Mr. Berst.

Mr. Pathe's announcement of the new line-up of officials brought every man in the room to his feet and the cheering, led by the resonant voice of P. A. Parsons, ended with calls for a speech. Mr. Gasnier said in effect, that he had been with the house of Pathe for sixteen years and that he had always been proud of the association; moreover, he hoped to continue the relationship for sixteen years more. Mr. Smith told of his business dealings with Mr. Pathe long years ago and expressed profound respect for his ability and loyal character. After another popular demonstration, Toastmaster W. A. S. Douglas glanced around the hall in search of a bright looking newspaper man. He selected Fred Beecroft.

And his confidence was not misplaced. Mr. Beecroft rose to heights of wit and wisdom unequalled in his quite talkative past. At each oratorical period, advancing to the declaration that Mr. Berst and Mr. Gasnier comprise an unbeatable combination, the speaker was applauded. Then airily shifting to a more or less delicately whimsical vein he inspired Mr. Pathe to remark that his American experiences had brought no such convincing revelation of native humor.

Having been introduced as a great—or was it the greatest—American director, George Fitzmaurice responded appropriately. Donald Mackenzie avowed his loyalty to Pathe and, not being content to take the cash and let all the credit go, suggested that the names of directors be placed in larger type on lithographs. Director Devon and the Mittenthal brothers were the spokesmen for Heinie and Louie comedies M. Ramirez-Torres expressed unmitigated satisfaction over the news that Mr. Gasnier was to remain as director of productions, whereas Mr. Seitz and Creighton Hale were no less outspoken in their enthusiasm.

J. W. Kyle talked entertainingly of the difficulties met in organizing a club and arranging a beefsteak dinner.

The entertainment was varied, original and—well, call it a bit Frenchy, a trifle sophisticated, or, to be more emphatically American, let's call it "some" entertainment. Toastmaster Douglas offered a question for the departing guests to ponder over on the way home. The French nation gave America the Statue of Liberty. Charles Pathe gave America motion pictures. Which gift is the greatest?"

Guests of the club included Charles Pathe, L. J. Gasnier, Hedley M. Smith, Albert S. LeVino, Thomas C. Kennedy, John Semler, Fred Beecroft, George Fitzmaurice, Donald Mackenzie, Lynde Denig and Samuel Friedman. Club members present were: G. H. Atwood, S. E. Abeles, G. Bardet, J. K. Burger, R. J. Brown, B. Brunet, S. Bernfield, John Clymer, F. C. Davidson, W. A. S. Douglas, R. W. Ensign, C. J. Fisher, A. Gausman, I. W. Goodfield, F. H. Knocke, J. W. Kyle, B. F. Lyons, A. Mittenthal, H. Mittenthal, B. Millhauser, J. C. McLean, R. Navarro, E. J. O'Connor, H. N. Osborn, L. E. Quimet, P. A. Parsons, A. J. Picard, G. A. Powers. M. Ramirez-Torres, F. A. Regan, A. E. Rousseau, C. W. Robinson, W. C. Smith, Geo. A. Smith, G. B. Seitz, C. Somers, F. C. Sumner, L. A. Sheridan, Fritz Wathne, H. J. Walsh, Chas. Westcott.

MIRROR BEGINS PRODUCTION.

The work of producing pictures has been started at the studio of Mirror Films at Glendale, Long Island. Larry Marston is directing a picture in which Nat Goodwin is being featured. Other members of the company are Margaret Green, Raymond Bloomer, P. T. Rollows, William Gregory, Harry Carvill, Ione Bright and Anna Marston.

Wharton Doing General Producing

The Well-Known Brothers and Directors, No Longer Bound by Exclusive Contracts, Enter the General Field of Contract Producing.

IN THEIR steady progress, the Wharton brothers, Theodore and Leopold, widely known as motion picture producers, have arrived at another elevation in their ascent to the uppermost rank of moving picture magnates. This step is marked by the announcement this week that they are to be general producers of motion pictures, henceforth operating at their model plant at Ithaca, New York.

From the time they first launched into the contracting producing business as pioneers in that line, some three years ago, their output has been contracted for exclusively far in advance. Three years of prosperity as contracting producers have enabled them to add to their equipment so extensively that they are no longer obliged to decline contracts that hitherto they have been prevented from accepting. They are equipped to turn out such a quantity of negative that they can supply more features than any one firm could buy, hence the throwing open of the doors for general business for substantial distributing firms.

One of the most reassuring facts about the Wharton brothers' business is that it is not a mushroom growth. It has grown steadily and healthily from a small infant industry to its present size, which covers some forty-five acres of land in Ithaca, New York. From a modest beginning, with no great dreams of empire, it has grown like a healthy plant in a garden spot, and has arrived at its maturity by gradual growth. A recent examination by prominent New York financiers, showed that Wharton, Inc., is a concern consisting entirely of assets and no liabilities. It was further pronounced to be in the first rank of solvency and reliability among the motion picture producing companies.

The Whartons have been motion picture producers for many years. Theodore began with Edison Company considerably over ten years ago. Prior to that he had had a long career in theatricals. After being with the Edison Company, he was identified with the Kalem Company, Pathe Freres, and the Essanay Company. Leopold Wharton began producing about eight years ago with the Pathe Company and remained steadily in the employ of that firm until he embarked in business with his brother at Ithaca. At the present time they are listed among the leading citizens of Ithaca, New York, and have settled there permanently, taking an interest in civic welfare and public matters in general.

General contract producing on the scale undertaken by Wharton, Inc., marks a new phase of the motion picture industry. The Whartons were the first American producers to conceive the idea of taking over a play for complete production from beginning to end. Their first work along this line was done for Pathe Freres. The latter company has taken practically the entire output of the Wharton plant at Ithaca. But in the time that Wharton, Inc., has been in existence it has grown to such proportions that more film can be turned out there than any one firm can use, hence the letting down of the bars, and the invitation to reputable film distributing companies to take advantage of the remarkable facilities of the Whartons at Ithaca. The plant is set in twenty-five acres of beautiful park land. It formerly was known as Renwick Park, an amusement resort that was owned by the Ithaca trolley company, and lies at the shore of Cayuga Lake, just outside of Ithaca. The park was taken over intact, with its wharfage, boats, buildings, its miniature railway, roller coasters, bridges and arbors. The park has been closed to the public, as the demands of business require that it shall be used exclusively for the work in hand.

BALL PLAYER-ACTOR SIGNED BY HORSLEY.

For the role of the "heavy" in "A Law Unto Himself," a five-reel feature production starring Crane Wilbur, which is to be released February 28 as a Mutual Masterpicture, de luxe edition, David Horsley announces the engagement of Louis Durham, a man who has achieved distinction and popularity in two widely removed fields of endeavor.

Durham first came into the limelight of public favor in 1904 as a baseball player. In that year he joined the Brooklyn Club of the National League as a pitcher. He jumped that organization, however, for the Coast "outlaw" league, playing in that circuit for three seasons. In 1908 he was signed by Indianapolis of the American Association, where his good work attracted the attention of the New York Giants, who signed him for the following season. He was with the Giants until 1911, when an accident to his pitching arm put an end to his baseball career.

Rothapfel Opens Knickerbocker

Floral Settings Give a "Near to Nature" Touch and Billie Burke's "Peggy" Gets an Ovation.

By Margaret I. MacDonald.

IT GOES without saying that most of you know that S. L. Rothaphel has taken the Knickerbocker theater by the hand, to be her guardian angel, until such time as the Rialto is ready to receive the patrons of the Triangle program, after which Mr. Rothapfel accompanies said program to its new place of exhibition.

In the one week allowed Mr. Rothapfel as a transformation period, he fastened a few new decorations onto his charge, which proved to be thoroughly becoming, and caused to be installed a new pipe organ. We missed the pretty girl ushers with their triangular bonnets, in spite of the fact that their neatly uniformed male substitutes were scrupulously polite. But there was a coziness about the place, from the moment you entered the lobby, where an abundance of lilacs bobbed at you from their nooks above the great doors, until you had settled down in your seat into the dream atmosphere that seems to be an attribute of the magic wand of Rothapfel.

Many of us remember with pleasure the opening of the Strand theater a couple of years ago. The difference between the effects procured then with flowers, lights, fountains, etc., and those which greeted us at the reopening of the Knickerbocker theater on Saturday night, January 15, was not a marked one. The climbing roses were still there, but not in as great abundance. They were of a pale pink, intermingled with their foliage, and had moved just far enough toward the edge of the proscenium to allow a few tendrils and their blossoms to stray into the roseate light of the boxes. The orchestra had vacated the stage in deference to pretty Billie Burke, who was making her screen debut, and now sat half hidden behind a railing artistically festooned with roses. Neither was the fountain forgotten. It lay at the foot of a terraced slope, back of which stretched a rustic perspective of winding roads, woodlands, and hills, and a sky that dissolved itself into the violet hue of night, or the rosy tint of dawn at the magic touch of Rothapfel. And about the fountain at the opening of the program tripped a wood nymph, impersonated by a graceful young danseuse, Hilda Biyar, to the strains of Greig's "Au Matin."

About the entire performance at the Knickerbocker that night there was a "near-to-nature" touch. And when it was fairly launched, we forgot that we had been forced into a patient wait of three-quarters of an hour before it began, and that even after that it became necessary to "draw the blind" on a badly-behaved back-drop, before the beautiful rivers of France were allowed screen space in which to flow. Our nerves were finally quieted by Carl Bohm's "Still wie die nacht," tastefully rendered by Ruth Freeman in a deep, rich contralto; and after the last note of Victor Schertzinger's song "Peggy," dedicated to Billie Burke, had died away, the subject of the song smiled at us from the screen in the Ince production of the same name. At the close of the picture the large audience sighed in vain to behold in person charming Billie Burke, whose screen debut had been pronounced by them a decided success. She failed to appear, even after the most vociferous applause. But as we left the theater a huge and beautiful floral offering, which stood in the lobby, awakened a suspicion that perhaps the witching smile of "little Billie" was hidden somewhere in the curtains of one of the boxes.

FAIRBANKS WILL LIVE IN CALIFORNIA.

Douglas Fairbanks, whose recent achievement in the "Lamb" started him on a successful moving picture career, is preparing to migrate to California. The "caravan" (or is it the 20th Century Limited?) leaves for the west this coming Saturday. And from the looks of the trunks, bags and general merchandise, which Mr. Fairbanks is accumulating to take with him, it seems as if he is planning to settle down in the west for life. And certainly, if the actor is to accomplish the extensive program which the Triangle studios have laid out for him, it will be a long time before Broadway sees anything of him except as a screen ghost of himself.

Homebuilding is a happy prospect which Mr. Fairbanks is anticipating. He is thoroughly tired of hotel-living and is determined to build up a real home of his own. A comfortable house has been engaged for him already, and from the looks of the household and gardening utensils, which the star is collecting to take with him, his plans apparently include extensive farming as a side-attraction to his studio posing.

Essanay Serial Looms Big

"The Strange Case of Mary Page" Opens Strong—Has Many Thrills and Arouses Deep Interest.

THE first two episodes of the forthcoming Essanay serial, "The Strange Case of Mary Page," have been shown at private exhibitions in New York, greatly to the delight of those who were invited to view them. Since it has been the rule that a serial must have a train wreck, an automobile smash-up, or some equally deathdealing catastrophe to provide the necessary "punch," it will be something of a revelation to film experts to see a picture that has plenty of "punch" without the usual calamity.

Just as a reminder it may be said here that "The Strange Case of Mary Page" will consist of fifteen parts of two reels each, released every week commencing January 24, through the General Film Company. Much advertising of a very special nature has been prepared for this serial and the story is appearing in a large number of big and small town dailies, as well as The Ladies' World, for which it was written by Frederick Lewis, author of "What Happened to Mary," the first of the serials.

The Essanay is producing this serial with great care under the direction of J. Charles Hayden, with Edna Mayo and Henry Walthal in the leading roles.

Bronx Exhibitors Install Officers

President John J. Wittman Starts on His Fourth Consecutive Term Under Most Favorable Circumstances.

AT THE regular gathering of the Cinema Exhibitors' Association of Bronx County on the evening of Thursday, January 13, John J. Wittman was for the fourth time duly installed as president of the organization. Mr. Wittman thanked the members for the unfailing support they had given him during the preceding year. The following officers were also installed: vice-president, Henry Cole; treasurer, Herman Polak; financial secretary, John Bolte; recording secretary, Frank Allen; sergeant-at-arms, William Colby; trustees, Henry Newman, Adolph Bauerenfreund and Hans Suckow.

At the conclusion of the ceremonies the members and their guests sat down to a banquet. Treasurer Polak was toastmaster. He congratulated President Wittman and his fellow-officers on their work of the year. Addresses were made by Senator James A. Hamilton, who had officiated as installing officer; Assemblyman M. Maldwin Fertig, Alderman Harry Robitzek, Julius Tobias, counsel for the Children's Society of Bronx County; W. B. F. Rogers, one time attorney for Manhattan exhibitors; Frank Fitzpatrick, chief inspector of gas and electricity of the Bronx, and Jacob Glassen.

There was much favorable discussion on a suggestion that the Bronx exhibitors have drafted a bill permitting unaccompanied school children to visit motion picture theaters after school hours, the theaters to provide for the stated periods matrons who would keep an eye on the little folks. It was agreed that the matter should be taken up in the near future.

The speeches were interspersed with entertainment by professionals, among those contributing to the pleasure of the evening being James J. Marron of Marron and Lamar. The occasion was one of the best held under the auspices of the Bronx picture men—and they have a reputation for putting over good times.

SPECIAL PRESS SERVICE FOR BLUEBIRD FEATURES.

The headquarters of Bluebird Photoplays, Inc., have been established on the seventh floor of the Mecca Building, at 1600 Broadway. Sol J. Berman is in active command, and his wide acquaintance in the film trade, especially among exhibitors, will be accepted as a popular selection. Mr. Berman's close association with one of the biggest film distributing organizations in the country gives Bluebird Photoplays the advantage of an experience that counts most in film success—the distribution and marketing of productions.

The office arrangements are excellent for the prompt and active transaction of business and there is a large force of employees to give the best possible attention to exhibitors. One important feature in co-operation will be the press department which will work to the best interest of the individual exhibitor. Whenever special publicity work is required, to serve any immediate purpose, it will be turned out exclusively for the exhibitor who needs it for the promotion of Bluebird Photoplays. This service will, of course, be supplemental to the press sheets and general newspaper assistance that usually goes with a feature service.

Rowland Refused Injunction

Judge Mayer Declines to Interfere With Directors of General Film Company.

THE attempt of Richard A. Rowland, president of the Metro Pictures Corporation, to have the Federal District Court interefere with directors of the General Film Company, failed on Friday, when Judge Mayer refused to grant an injunction preventing the purchase of the Greater New York Film Rental Company by the General Film Company.

Mr. Rowland began proceedings Wednesday as a preferred stockholder of the General Film Company. He alleged that the General Film Company was about to waste the assets and property of the organization by purchasing the Greater New York Film Rental Company. He asserted the directors were on the eve of the meeting at which this purchase was to be authorized. He further set up that the General Film Company was taking this action in order to avoid the payment of $1,800,000, as triple damages in a Sherman lawsuit against the General Film Company by the Greater New York Film Rental Company. Upon the application of President Rowland of the Metro, Judge Mayer issued an order to show cause which was returnable upon Friday.

President Rowland was represented before Judge Mayer at the hearing Friday by Dwight Macdonald. S. O. Edmunds of 32 Liberty Street, and Judge R. O. Moon of Philadelphia, represented the General Film Company.

The attorneys for the General Film Company pointed out to the Court that while Mr. Rowland was a preferred stockholder of the organization represented by them, nevertheless, he was president of a rival concern, the Metro Pictures Corporation. The Court, they said, could easily fathom Mr. Rowland's motive in the matter.

Messrs. Edmonds and Moon contended that such a purchase as that Mr. Rowland had said would be made was entirely within the discretion of the directors of the General Film Company and that the Court had no right to interfere.

Judge Mayer accepted this view of the situation and dismissed the temporary order, refusing to issue the permanent injunction asked for by President Rowland.

H. B. Warner's Triangle Debut

H. B. WARNER has completed his first play, "The Raiders," for Thomas H. Ince, and is nearing the completion of the second, "The Beggar of Cawnpore." In this second play he has to wear a beard. An actor considers his face his trademark and he wants his trademark to be easily identified. However, Mr. Warner made no kick. "If I can't act the part well enough to overcome so small a handicap I don't deserve it at all," he said. "All I want is a chance to do a real characterization. If it's good Warner won't be overlooked!"

H. B. Warner.

England has never sent a more popular young actor to this country than Henry B. Warner. As the star of "Alias Jimmy Valentine" he played a whole year to capacity audiences in New York and to equally large business for several seasons thereafter on the road. More recently he was the star of "The Ghost-Breaker." He is tall, lithe, good-looking, an expert horseman, a man of cultivation, grace and modesty. "The Beggar of Cawnpore" will afford him special opportunities for he had relatives in the East Indian army, has traveled extensively there, and the India of Tagore and Kipling is as familiar to him as London, New York or Los Angeles. Here is how Mr. Warner regards the relationship of the legitimate and the pictures:

"The actor comes nearer to creation in the present day photoplay than he does in stage parts. An acting stage company devotes itself to expressing as exactly as possible a well-considered plan of the dramatist, but the photoplay is generally a free collaboration of dramatist, director and player. The actor thus wins a stimulating and valuable experience in each picture that is far beyond what the run of stage work offers. He is really creating to an extent that has never before been allowed him."

Flickers in Philadelphia

FOR many years there have been any amount of things that I'd rather do than consider a ride to Philadelphia. To-day I can't think of a thing I would want to consider in preference to it. The reason for the change in mind probably lies in the fact that I had heretofore never met the proper folks.

Last week I visited the Lubin plant to say "how-do" to any new faces that may have arrived since my last trip. While there I had the pleasure of watching George Terwilliger directing his company. After convincing himself I had nothing to do that evening, George insisted that I should visit his home after work. I accepted. I arrived about the same time that a dozen others did. After being introduced I found I was the only one present not a member of the Lubin forces.

Well, we "let George do it," and he started the party. We were all well seated when Terwilliger gave us our first shock of "static." From then on the party continued merry.

George Spink, the new publicity manager, entertained with the piano and his songs launched another "static" from the host. It was Mrs. Terwilliger's duty to see that enough "static" was kept in the air. Crawford Kent and Helen Green whistled all the sentimental ballads that Kent could play, while Clay Green, director and playwright, amused all with his knitting. Without worsted or needles Mr. Green manipulated his fingers so that one would swear that he was doing some really difficult fancy work. Of course that produced more "static."

* * *

Earl Metcalf, comedy director, got a good laugh with his antics. His movements were so fast that it was an easy matter to notice the coming "static." So it went from one to the other. Everybody had something to do. The other members of the party were, Mrs. Clay Green, Mrs. Francis M. Green, scenario editor, Leslie Austin and Clarence Elmer, leading men; Miss June Daye, leading woman, Mrs. R. Bassett and Dan Burns.

It seems that the Lubinites have a weekly get-together, during which the past and future weeks work is discussed at length. After the business is done with, a little play and refreshments well oiled with "static" are indulged in before the "good night."

* * *

Our good old friend, Watterson R. Rothacker, will be in New York for about a week or ten days. While in town Rothacker will make his home at the Biltmore.

* * *

Edward St. George Hardin, in society, but in business and for short, Eddie Hardin, arrived in New York Thursday morning and hopped a rattler for Chicago and home the same afternoon. Hardin is main hustler for the American Poster Company, Inc.

* * *

Earle Metcalf has an idea that a moustache is becoming to a naval officer and intends to show one at the Screen Club ball in February. His friends don't think the deception possible.

* * *

A good ride upstairs is guaranteed now in the World Tower Building. Their lifting facilities have always been a joke, so to make good the building management has discharged the entire staff of hall and elevator men. Leavitt building please note.

* * *

Joe "Wah-Ho" Farnum has tired of surf bathing and rolling out of the ocean. Joe is no longer with Ocean Film Company. He is devoting his time to his own company at 220 West 42nd street.

* * *

Harry "Metro" Cohen is back again in New York after a stay in the far West. The Coast, I believe.

* * *

What's the idea of the mysterious person in room 2402 World Tower Building?

* * *

Jay Cairns?!

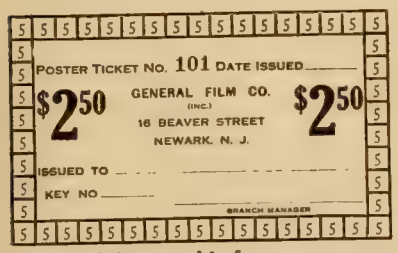
MAC.

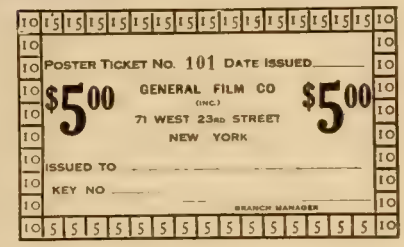
Poster Ticket System

Plan to Avoid Friction in Handling of Matter Devised by President Berst.

IN his desire to do away with all possible causes of friction between the exhibitor and the branches of the General Film Company, President J. A. Berst recently put into operation in the two New York branches (23d street and Fourth avenue), a new plan for dealing with posters. This is a ticket system. The plan has now been in use in the two branches for two weeks, and already it has proved the source of great satisfaction to exhibitors, who state they were glad that conditions under the old system had been remedied.

The friction in the average exchange between the exhibitor and those in charge of the poster department was due chiefly to the fact that while the exhibitor was billed for his film service weekly in advance, the bill for poster service was rendered at the end of the week for posters taken during that week. Almost without exception the exhibitor paid for his film service in advance and wished to settle for the posters at the same time.





Exhibitors could see no reason for the second bill. Usually they came, or sent to the poster department for explanation. The poster department made the matter clear with the result that the exhibitor invariably reuested that poster service be billed weekly in advance, just as film service was.

Under the new system tickets are issued. They are in $5 and in $2.50 denominations. The first is blue and the second pink for speedy identification. The exhibitor is enabled to purchase these tickets at any time. When he takes paper from the branch, the punch mark upon the ticket shows the amount taken. The $2.50 ticket has divisions each of which represents five cents. The $5 ticket has five, ten and fifteen cent divisions for convenience in handling one, three and six sheets.

Through the use of these tickets, all friction between the exhibitor and poster department in regard to the quantity of paper supplied is eliminated. Frequently the exhibitor was not at all certain as to the number of posters which his employees had taken from the branches. He had no check upon his employees. The card system provides this check.

C. W. Allers, who is in charge of the poster department of the 23d street General Film branch, states that as soon as the card system was explained to exhibitors, several weeks in advance of its actual installing, they wished to purchase cards. They regard the device as one which makes for simplicity and efficiency in their dealings with poster departments. The exhibitors were also gratified at the reducing of possible friction to a minimum.

HENLEY IMPROVES RAPIDLY.

Hobart Henley, who was injured in an automobile accident during the fourth episode of the Universal Company's "Graft" serial, in which he has the leading role of the district attorney and who was confined to the hospital for more than a month, will soon be himself again.

Henley discarded one of his crutches early this week, and Dr. Lloyd Mace, who has been attending the popular young actor, says Henley is improving so rapidly that in another week he will be able to resume his role in the series.

V-L-S-E EXCHANGES HOLD CONVENTIONS.

With a view to further developing a partnership plan between the offices and their exhibitors, the attaches of the Big Four branches in Seattle and Kansas City, held conventions at their respective headquarters last week. The status of business generally in the territories covered by the two branches was analyzed and plans outlined to stimulate the support of photoplay theaters in those sections which because of local conditions are somewhat depressed.

The Kansas City convention was attended by E. R. Pearson, manager of the Kansas City office; S. W. Hatch, manager of the St. Louis sub-office; John Noehrn, St. Louis booker; Joseph Gilinsky, J. E. Storey, R. L. White, H. E. Stahler, A. G. Reed, representatives; F. F. Nine, Kansas City booker; L. J. Scott, publicity manager of that territory.

At the Seattle gathering there were, in addition to Tom North, manager of that branch, Philip Lowry, Oregon representative; T. C. Montgomery, Western Washington representative; C. R. Kearny, Spokane representative, and Edward Watson, assistant branch manager and booker.

Popular Plays and Players Active

Mme. Petrova Has Program That Will Keep Her Busy for Many Weeks—Another Feature for Edmund Breese.

POPULAR Plays and Players' productions for the Metro program promise to reach a high mark during 1916, according to an announcement made this week at the Metro offices. Three elaborate five-part features have already been prepared for Mme. Petrova, Metro's famous emotional star, while Edmund Breese, whose first Metro production of the New Year, "The Lure of Heart's Desire," a highly dramatic story with its locale divided between the sparkling lights of Broadway and the desolate Alaskan wastes, was released in the Metro program, January 17, is shortly to be at work upon another important feature picture, as yet unnamed, under the direction of Francis J. Grandon.

Mme. Petrova, who has now given up her stage engagements altogether, to devote herself exclusively to the production of distinctive photoplays for Metro, under the direction of Popular Plays and Players, has already begun work on her first picture. It is called "The Soul Market," and presents a dramatic story built around society and the stage, which will call for the highest display of Mme. Petrova's emotional powers. This feature is now being made in the studio at 228 West Thirty-fifth street, which was recently taken over by the Popular Plays and Players to produce Metro features.

Following "The Soul Market," Mme. Petrova will immediately begin work on another five-part screen production, "The Scarlet Woman." Next she will be seen in "Playing With Fire." All three of these features were written by Aaron Hoffman especially for Mme. Petrova. In fact, he has written nearly all of her vehicles since she went into pictures. Mr. Hoffman was one of the foremost writers of musical comedies and vaudeville plays in the country before he began to devote himself to the silent drama.

Le Vino Leaves Arrow

Scenario Worker and Publicity Man Plans to Make at Least One Big Production Each Year.

ALBERT S. LeVINO, from its inception the secretary and treasurer of the Arrow Film Corporation, has tendered his resignation from that organization, with the request that his fellow-directors accept his resignation at the earliest possible moment. Pending the return to New York City of W. E. Shallenberger, president of the Arrow company, no announcement can be made of Mr. LeVino's successor.

Mr. LeVino leaves the Arrow organization in order to resume the writing of feature pictures and to engage in the production of at least one special feature a year. These special features are intended for bookings in only the largest legitimate theaters and not for release on any program. He found it impossible to do this with the Arrow organization, which produces solely Gold Rooster features for Pathe.

For fifteen years Mr. LeVino has been a successful writer of special magazine articles and of fiction. Just before his association with the Arrow company Mr. LeVino was for more than a year with the Mutual publicity departments. In collaboration with Harvey F. Thew he has just completed a five-reel adaptation of "The Woman's Law" for Miss Florence Reed, which Lawrence B. McGill is directing as the Arrow's first Gold Rooster feature.

Messrs. LeVino and Thew are now at work on three five-reel features, one of which is an adaptation and the others original scripts for one of the big producers. Mr. LeVino will shortly open his own offices uptown so as to be in close proximity to the offices and studios of the prominent producers. He and Mr. Thew have been invited by Mr. Shallenberger to write scenarios for the new "Who's Guilty?" series, which Arrow is shortly to make for Pathe.

Berst Leaves General Film

Declines Re-Election as President and Will Probably Return to Pathe—Rumor that Lewis J. Selznick Leaves World Film.

DAME RUMOR was particularly busy with the big men in the business this past week, but, despite the apparently good grounds for the reports circulated, no definite developments along the lines prognosticated have occurred up to the time of going to press—Tuesday, January 18. There is no denying that the pot is seething and that there is every indication that things are happening under the surface, but the lid is down tight and some one is sitting on it with a stern determination to keep it tight, at least, for the present.

The first rumor had to do with Lewis J. Selznick, vice-president and general manager of the World Film Corporation, and vice-president and supervising director of the Equitable Film Corporation. Under a Cincinnati date line the New York daily papers published a statement from George Cox, president of the World Film, to the effect that Mr. Selznick was out of the board of directors of that organization. Other reports had it that the World Film would amalgamate with the Equitable, but confirmation of these statements could not be obtained in New York.

Regarding J. A. Berst, president of the General Film, it was announced that he had been elected vice-president and general manager of Pathe Exchange, Inc., to take the place of L. J. Gasnier, who had resigned to become director of productions. This announcement was quickly denied by all parties interested. So there you are. Everybody says it's not so.

General Film Stockholders Meeting.

At a meeting of the stockholders of the General Film Company, held January 18, the following directors were elected for the ensuing year: W. N. Selig, George Kleine, George K. Spoor, Ferd Singhi, F. J. Marion, P. L. Waters, J. A. Berst, C. H. Wilson, A. E. Smith and Paul Melies.

The directors were in meeting at a late hour Tuesday night, but up to the time of going to press it had not concluded the election of officers.

Mr. Berst, speaking for himself, said definitely that he would not accept re-election to the office of president, although he had been urged to remain. While he denied that he had been elected to the office of vice-president of the Pathe Exchange, the conclusion is justified that he will accept that position when it is formally tendered him.

TOM CHATTERTON JOINS AMERICAN.

Tom Chatterton, who has achieved a number of notable film successes, has been engaged in the capacity of actor-director by the American Film Company (Mutual), Inc. Director Chatterton has been commissioned to produce one two-reel drama weekly, to be released under the "Mustang" brand in the Mutual program. Anna Little, Frank Borzage, Jack Richardson and other well known American (Mutual) actors and actresses will be under Chatterton's direction.

For a number of years Chatterton was on the stage. Recently he has been acting and producing pictures for another company at its California studios. His first production for the Mutual program is "The Cactus Blossom," a two-reel subject, in which Miss Little and Frank Borzage take the leading roles. "The Cactus Blossom" is scheduled for release December 31.

ARTHUR JOHNSON IS DEAD.

Arthur Johnson, one of the earliest screen players and always one of the best, died at his home in Philadelphia on Monday last. He had been incapacitated for work for some time. Death was due to tuberculosis, the end being hastened by injury in a recent accident. Mr. Johnson was one of the old-time Biograph players. For some time he also was with Reliance. About six years ago he joined the Lubin players, and remained under the Lubin banner until the end. He joined the Screen Club at its organization, being the initial first vice-president.

HARRY LEONHARDT TO GO TO CHICAGO.

Harry Leonhardt, special representative on the Pacific coast of the Fox Film Corporation, has been in New York for a few days. He left on Tuesday for Los Angeles, his headquarters. He will stop off at Chicago, Seattle, Portland and San Francisco. After straightening out matters in the Southern California city he will remove to Chicago, where he will assume charge of the Fox middle division.

At Leading Picture Theaters

Programs for the Week at New York's Best Motion Picture Houses.

Hazel Dawn at the Strand.

HAZEL DAWN in the Famous Players Film Company's production, "My Lady Incog," is at the Strand theater. The story is a combination of thrills and comic situations, the settings of which Director Sidney Olcott took the company to St. Augustine and Jacksonville, Fla.

The Strand Topical Review contains some interesting news and European War pictures. In order to give the audiences the very best news service in pictures the management now use news pictures taken by four different concerns. Other screen attractions are interesting travel pictures and educational studies and a new comedy. The Strand Quartette, Martha De Lachmann, soprano; Edith James, contralto; Martin Richardson, tenor, and Bruce Weyman, baritone, are also on the program.

Vitagraph Theater Bill.

William Courtenay appears this week at the Vitagraph theater in Cyrus Townsend Brady's "The Island of Surprise." Assisting Mr. Courtenay are Eleanor Woodruff, Zena Keefe, Charles Kent, Anders Randolf, Julia Swayne Gordon, Charles Wellesley and Denton Vane.

The film, which is produced in five parts under the direction of Paul Scardon tells the adventures of a young man cast away on a South Sea Island with the girl he secretly married, and the girl whom his father has picked out for him to wed.

The bill also includes "A Telegraphic Tangle," a one-reel with Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew, and "Bill Peter's Kid," a three-reel drama, featuring Mary Anderson and William Dangman.

Triangle Program at the Knickerbocker.

A new era in the Triangle tenancy of the Knickerbocker theater began this week when Samuel L. Rothapfel offered Billie Burke in her first picture play, and Sam Bernard as a star in Keystone comedy. "Peggy," a Scotch comedy, is the medium in which Thomas H. Ince introduces Miss Burke in her long promised debut as a screen star. Bernard appears as a chef in a Mack Sennett conception called "Because He Loved Her." The Knickerbocker has been completely overhauled during the last week, under Mr. Rothapfel's direction. One radical change at the Knickerbocker is the policy of continuous performances seven days a week, from one o'clock to eleven. Prices have been re-arranged to correspond to the new policy. William H. Thompson heads the Billie Burke supporting cast, which includes William Desmond, Charles Ray, Gertrude Claire, Mona Thomas and others. Mae Busch, Glen Cavender and Harry McCoy are the principal funmakers in Sam Bernard's support.

"The Golden Chance" at the Broadway.

At the Broadway theater Cleo Ridgely and Wallace Reid are appearing as co-stars in the Jesse L. Lasky production of Jeanie Macpherson's thrilling society drama. "The Golden Chance." A modern Cinderalla is the leading character. From the depths of poverty, the girl is introduced among the leaders of society, only to be cast back again by her drunken, thieving husband.

Miss Ridgely and Mr. Reid are of great assistance to the picture's success, and the production is fully up to the Lasky standard. Pathe weekly news, colored scenarios, cartoons and comedies complete the program.

UNIVERSAL EXCHANGE MANAGER WINS WATCH.

M. H. Hoffman, manager of exchanges of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, announces that L. L. Henley, manager of the Universal Film & Supply Company, Oklahoma City, Okla., is the winner of the solid gold engraved watch, which he offered six weeks ago to the branch exchange manager who showed the greatest net profit increase for a four-week period beginning November 22. It is Mr. Hoffman's intention to give a prize valued at $100 every four weeks to the manager showing the greatest net profit over the preceding four weeks, and Mr. Henley has the distinction of being the first prize winner.

The present period closed January 8, and the winner will be announced shortly. The exchange managers are just beginning to warm up to this contest, and there is a great deal of interest being manifested by the different managers, who are all anxious to be sporting one of Mr. Hoffman's watches.

With World Film Directors

Formidable Staff of Capable Producers to Be Augmented—Some Big Men on the List.

VALUABLE additions to the present corps of directors of World Film are contemplated in the immediate future to keep pace with the scale and magnitude of the productions of this firm. Negotiations are now pending for the enlargement of local studio space and facilities in addition to the big plant planned for Cuba in the Santiago district, where Clara Kimball Young will be featured in a series of noteworthy film plays.

There is Maurice Tourneur, the big amiable Frenchman, whose masterly craftsmanship was never better shown than in the recent World production of "Trilby." There is the veteran, Barry O'Neill, who not only can stage a picture, but can make a good scenario out of a bad one. Then that distinguished playmaker, Oscar Eagle, who long before pictures became the rage was doing such important creative work as staging "The Christian," for Liebler & Co. Hardly less well-known is genial Emile Chautard, who learned his art staging the first of the famous French film comedies and who since then has given the screen more than a score of successful feature productions. Lastly, and named in that order only because of their comparative youth, come Frank Crane and Edwin August, both of whom have been responsible for numerous film successes, and are now at work upon two of the World Film's most ambitious productions.

Director Tourneur is at present engaged in screening George Beban's new and delightfully original story temporarily entitled "The Genius-Pierre." This picture, ranging in scenic scope from the valleys of Picardy and the boulevards of Paris to the swarming sections of New York's lower east side, has given the noted director what he considers his greatest artistic opportunities. For more than ten weeks, Tourneur, Beban and a big company of specially selected film favorites have worked with infinite pains upon more than 350 scenes and the picture is only now nearing completion.

Director O'Neill, whose latest work, the film presentation of Holbrook Blinn in "Life's Whirlpool," is now being enjoyed by the picture patrons throughout the country, has returned to the South with Mr. Blinn and a large company to begin work on his next production. This will be a picture dealing with life during the reconstruction period in the South just after the Civil War. It will call for every ounce of ability this noted director possesses. Some of the scenes in this picture deal with the closing moments of the great war and involve the use of an army of several thousand men in Confederate uniform and other field equipments. It was necessary to engage a special train of ten cars to carry the effects from New York to Montgomery, Alabama, which will be Mr. O'Neill's headquarters until the main exteriors of the new feature play are completed.

Director Eagle's latest contribution to the World Film program of sterling five-part features is the presentation of Henry Russell Miller's noted American novel, "The Ambition of Mark Truitt." The final interiors of this picture are now being completed at Fort Lee, after which Director Eagle will begin work on a new script with the same star.

Director Chautard is in the middle of his work on the film version of Jules Eckert Goodman's sociological drama, "The Point of View," in which Miss Frances Nelson will make her debut as a real, honest-to-goodness star. This skillful director can be counted on to give Miss Nelson every opportunity to make her first starring venture one of the season's greatest triumphs.

Frank Crane at present holds the fort alone in the huge new Paragon studio, where he is putting the statesque Kitty Gordon through her first experience as a film star. This picture, adapted from the novel "As In a Looking Glass," deals with official and social life in Washington, the nation's capital, and offers both Mr. Crane and Miss Gordon exceptional opportunities for colorful and brilliant effects. In fact, the combination of gorgeous gowns, gleaming military and diplomatic uniforms and the star's world-famous, and justly so, back, has proved such a strain on director Crane's eyes that he now goes about his work in a cap with a transparent green visor.

Edwin August is making his premiere with the World Film as director in the production of a great Russian drama in which the peerless Clara Kimball Young is next to be seen. The young director is on his mettle to produce a picture that will prove a veritable triumph for all concerned. Private showings of the reels already consumed would indicate that the World has found in Mr. August a master craftsman.

Oliver Morosco Signs Broadhurst

Noted American Dramatist Will Supervise the Adaptation of Many of His Plays for the Screen.

THE Oliver Morosco Photoplay Company has just closed a contract with George Broadhurst, the famous international playwright for all of his plays and for all of his future extending over a term of years. This is said to be the largest contract made with any author since the commencement of the motion picture industry. Among the plays to which the Oliver Morosco Photoplay Company has acquired the motion pictures rights are the following: "The American Lord," "The Wrong Mr. Wright," "Why Smith Left Home," "The Speculator," "A Fool and His Money," "An International Marriage," "The Crown Prince," "The Law of the Land," "The Captain," "The Easterner," "What Money Can't Buy," "Don't Weaken," "A Man and His Wife," "A Lucky Dog." Included in the Morosco-Broadhurst deal also are the following, played by T. W. Broadhurst: "Justice," "The Plainsman," "The Holy City" and "Winning Him Back." Mr. Broadhurst will supervise the scenarios of all these plays, which will insure the production on the screen of all dramatic values which have made them famous throughout the world.

George Broadhurst.

Mr. Broadhurst is undoubtedly the foremost dramatist in America and his association with this organization proves conclusively the advance that motion pictures are making in the development of the silent drama. Mr. Broadhurst being a comparatively young man, the author of such plays as "Bought and Paid for," "The Man of the Hour," etc., it is felt that he should in the next four or five years be able to give to the motion picture art some of the most important original plays ever seen on the screen.

It is estimated that Mr. Broadhurst's royalties amount to more than $150,000 per year, and that several companies were bidding very high for his association with them.

The importance of this affiliation between Mr. Broadhurst and the Morosco organization, which releases its product through the Paramount program, can hardly be overestimated in its far-reaching effect upon the motion picture industry. Those who have discussed this remarkable announcement were of the opinion that no more marked evidence of the development of the business has ever been given than the association with a photoplay company of this wonderful writer whose previous efforts have been devoted practically exclusively to the speaking stage. It is understood that Mr. Broadhurst begins his services with the Morosco Company at once, although the announcement has yet to be made as to which of the plays will be the first to be filmed.

DRUM HAS NEW SALES IDEA.

A unique sales idea has been hit upon by Harry C. Drum, the assistant general manager of the World Film Corporation. His scheme is an entirely novel one for business getting and partakes of the nature of an inspiration. World Film salesmen, thanks to Mr. Drum's plan, now carry real "samples" with them and do not depend on their rhetoric and powers of persuasion to sell their firm's features. The "sample" in question is what Mr. Drum calls a "sales-reel" and has created a deal of business and a gread deal of favorable comment. The reel consists of about a thousand feet of film, showing scenes from the World's most recent big feature successes, pictures of the World's stars in novel poses, interesting data concerning World Film and brief pictures and descriptive matter of every phase of the World's activities.

Chicago News Letter

By JAS. S. McQUADE.

Advertising a Serial

Essanay's Plan for Exploiting "The Strange Case of Mary Page"—A Marvel of Modern Publicity Tactics.

IN A CONVERSATION with George K. Spoor, president of the Essanay Company, the other day, I learned that after the idea of producing "The Strange Case of Mary Page" first occurred to him, fully nine months were spent in studying the situation from every angle.

The plan for the exploitation of the serial was developed gradually and was made much easier of accomplishment by reason of Essanay's valuable connection with the McClure publications. This connection clearly showed the way to handle the publicity most advantageously. With twenty of the best-known magazines in the country to carry advance advertising of the serial for a period of two months and over before the release date of the first episode was announced, while the story on which the serial was based was running concurrently in The Ladies' World, the entire country was acquainted with Essanay's project. These magazines reached a wide circle of moving picture patrons, whose interest was immediately awakened in the filming of the story of the great murder mystery.

To reach a still wider circle of readers interested in moving pictures, a publicity campaign has been arranged with 123 large dailies of the United States, every one of which will carry the serial story during the period that the 15 episodes of the filmed story will be released. Many of these newspapers never before published a serial story of the kind. Prominent among these newspapers are the New York World, the Boston Post, the Chicago Daily News, the Detroit Free Press, the Cleveland Plain-Dealer, the Denver Post, the San Francisco Chronicle, the Los Angeles Times, the Portland Oregonian, the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, etc. The dailies on the list encompass every nook and corner of the country, and each of them will carry both advertising and the serial story for a period of 15 weeks.

The story in The Ladies' World was written by Frederick Lewis, and the serial scenario was done by H. S. Sheldon. The first four episodes, comprising two reels each, are already completed by Director Hayden, and the first release will be made January 24, through the General Film Company.

At the time of writing Mr. Spoor tells me that nearly 50 expert men are in the field booking the serial. These men, while working independently, are also working in connection with the General Film Company's office in the territory covered by each of them.

The first episode was shipped out to all parts of the country on January 11, for the special viewing of exhibitors, and the same policy will be followed in the case of each of the remaining 14, the advance showing being for the special benefit of exhibitors.

Before the showing of the first episode, Mr. Spoor assures me that at least one-quarter of a million dollars' worth of bookings had been secured by ris representatives in the field. He also tells me that numerous telegrams and letters have been received from exhibitors in all parts of the country, who have viewed the first episode, assuring him that if the succeeding episodes are kept up to the standard of the first, "The Strange Case of Mary Page," will be the greatest of all successes in the moving picture serial line.

On Federal Censorship of Moving Pictures.

Appended are editorials of the Chicago Examiner and the Chicago Evening News on the subject of federal censorship of moving pictures.

The editor of the News in one paragraph, as will be seen, makes this statement, "It is not, however, true that an adequate censorship of moving pictures would lead to an invasion of the liberty of free speech and a free press."

That is just the rub. How are we to get an "adequate" censorship?

The fifth paragraph of the Examiner editorial meets this very question, with respect to showing the great difficulties in the way.

A recent editorial in the New York American contained the following paragraphs which convey what "adequate" treatment of the moving picture means:

We have no official federal board to sit in judgment upon American literature or American newspapers. We have no federal juries to require orators to rehearse before them before they may deliver their orations to a breathless public.

But we do have adequate laws protecting the public against indecent literature, indecent newspapers, and indecent speakers. If persons violate these laws they do so at their own risk. They can be punished after the act. We should have laws to protect society against indecent films, but we have such laws already.

We don't need any more federal guardians.

The Examiner editorial:

The Examiner believes federal censorship of moving pictures to be unconstitutional. But even if the courts held such a censorship to be constitutional, there are other weighty objections which Congress should consider.

In the first place, a board of censors would be bound by no other rule than its own judgment in matters of morals, religion and education. Therefore, in these very matters upon which intelligent persons must differ, and always will differ, the whole people must submit to the judgment of a few individuals.

Millions of adult, intelligent American citizens would have their pictorial entertainment and education limited to just whatever a few censors thought they should be allowed to see.

We submit that the theory of our institutions is NOT that we grown citizens are children, who need moral, religious or educational guardians, but that we are all EQUAL SOVEREIGN CITIZENS, free to use our own judgments, to make our own standards and to entertain and instruct ourselves as we see fit, within the limits of orderly decency.

It ought to be evident to any man that just as no newspaper can please every taste, or can avoid offending some one's prejudices, so no moving picture dealing with moral, religious or educational problems can please every taste or avoid offending some prejudices. And it would be impossible for picture producers to tell in advance what might or might not run counter to the taste or to the prejudices of some censor.

Historical pictures, biblical pictures, current war pictures—all these are sure to excite the disapproval of some persons; and it is hard to imagine an educational or historical picture play which the board of censors would not be importuned by some of its own members to forbid.

Now, such procedure is wholly foreign to the theory of free government under which we Americans live. Any citizen has a constitutional right to produce papers, pamphlets, books or picture plays to spread any religious or historical or economic theory he wants to teach, and the remedy those have who do not like his teachings is to let the papers or pamphlets or books they do not like go unread and to stay away from the picture plays they do not want to see.

It is infinitely better that everybody's religious or political prejudices be occasionally offended by some publications, whether in print or in pictures, than that the liberty of either the printed or the pictorial press should be subjected to an irresponsible and un-American censorship.

We are unable to understand how any member of Congress who has the least respect for democratic free government can vote for this bill to suppress the freedom of the pictorial press.

The News Editorial:

Shall the federal government act as censor for the moving pictures? The question is up for settlement now. The measure before Congress will, if it becomes a law, create a federal moving picture commission of five members whose tenure shall be six years. These may appoint advisory and deputy commissioners, the annual cost of all salaries not to exceed $40,000. The commission will be a part of the bureau of education. The commission will license every film intended for interstate commerce, unless it is obscene, indecent, immoral, inhuman, depicting prize fights or bull fights or tending to corrupt morals or to incite crime. In case the bill passes, no film can be shown in any territory under federal jurisdiction unless approved by the commission.

Certainly many delicate problems are involved, among them every community's natural wish for home rule and the undesirability of creating a bureaucracy in Washington. It is not, however, true that an adequate censorship of moving pictures would lead to an invasion of the liberty of free speech and a free press.

The moving picture is here, undeniably an influential factor in modern life. The theaters are patronized chiefly by women and children, who ought to be protected from greedy and inartistic producers who make improperly sensational pictures. It must be evident to any observer that the local censorships have in too many cases fallen short of their purpose. The federal censorship would be strong enough to eliminate the obscene and corrupting picture as thoroughly as the government has eliminated the lottery and similar evils that were beyond control in any other way.

Apparently, then, such a censorship would be desirable, if controlled by broad minded and intelligent men.

Chicago Film Brevities.

The first three releases of Bluebird Photoplays were shown in the exhibition room of Universal, 109 North Dearborn street, one day last week, and the room was filled twice to accommodate the exhibitors in attendance. Mr. Lawhead, who is manager of Universal bookings in Chicago, informed me that all those present were highly pleased with Sarah Bernhardt in "Jeanne Dore," with Helen Ware in "Secret Love," and with "Undine," which features Ida Schnall. Mr. Lawhead also stated that bookings had started very satisfactorily for these subjects, which will be released in order, the first mentioned being issued on January 24, and the others, one and two weeks afterwards, respectively. It is the intention of Universal to open the Colonial theater, where "The Birth of a Nation" has been housed for some time past, with Universal's big feature, "The Dumb Girl of Portici," in which the famous Pavlowa is featured. This big feature subject is in ten reels, and during a continuous run at the Colonial it will be under the personal management of Manager Lawhead. A large orchestra has already been engaged, and the policy pursued by "The Birth of a Nation" management in musical accompaniment will be followed. The prices will run from 25 cents to $1.

* * *

A. W. Goff, assistant general manager of V-L-S-E, Inc., made a short stay in the city Saturday, January 8, on his way back to New York from a business trip through the middle west. Mr. Goff reported favorable conditions for the company he represents.

* * *

Since writing my last letter the management of "The Birth of a Nation," at the Colonial, has decided to continue its run at that house until Saturday, January 29, when it will give place to "The Dumb Girl of Portici."

* * *

Albert T. Downs, manager of the Orpheum theater, Aurora, Ill., called at this office last week and subscribed for the World. Mrs. M. A. Dewey is owner of the theater, which seats 335 people. Ten cents admission is charged for World and Equitable programs. A new 15 by 20-foot Satin Gold-fibre screen has been ordered from R. S. Keppel, of Chicago, and will be installed in the near future. Good business was reported by Mr. Downs.

* * *

Colin Campbell, Selig's veteran director, who had been in the city some time in consultation with Wm. N. Selig, on the production of "The Crisis," returned to Los Angeles Monday evening, January 10. Director Campbell expects to return to Chicago in about six weeks' time, when he will be accompanied by Miss Bessie Eyton, Thomas Santschi, Miss Eugenie Besserer, Wheeler Oakman and other Selig stars. It is expected that many of the interior scenes of "The Crisis" will be produced in the Chicago studios. During their stay the members of the company, accompanied by Mr. Selig, will engage in the making of the big exterior views in St. Louis, Nashville, Vicksburgh and Paducah, Ky.

* * *

Jack Pickford stopped over in the city last week on his way from New York City to the Selig Los Angeles studios, where he will immediately resume work in a series of photoplays specially written for him under the guidance of Mr. Selig.

* * *

F. C. Aiken, division manager of the middle west for the General Film Company, returned from Omaha, after a week's trip, on January 14. While there Mr. Aiken appointed C. W. Taylor, formerly of Chicago, manager of the Omaha branch. Mr. Taylor was for some time the branch manager in the City Hall Square Building for the General Film Company, and prior to that had been with Mr. Aiken on the staff of the Theater Film Service for several years. Mr. Aiken informed me that Mr. Taylor will be united in matrimony to Miss Gertrude M. Bell, daughter of C. H. Bell, of Council Bluffs, Ia., on Sunday, January 16. The Rev. Mr. Mackay, of the First Presbyterian Church, Omaha, will officiate. Mr. and Mrs. Taylor will be at home thereafter at the Linwood apartment building, Omaha. The numerous friends of Mr. Taylor, in Chicago, wish long life and happiness to himself and his bride. Mr. Aiken reported good business conditions in film circles in Omaha.

* * *

During the past week a special committee of the Chicago Political Equality League, comprised of 300 club women, has been investigating Chicago moving picture theaters to ascertain if improper films are being screened. Reports have been rife that an effort has been made to exhibit sensational and salacious pictures by some exhibitors. While the members of the league give the city censorship board due credit for performing its full duty, they believe that there has been in certain cases a violation of the law by exhibiting pictures to children, where the permits include adults only. Second Deputy Funkhouser says that a marked increase of violations of this kind has been shown for some time past. When the reports of the club are in, the result will be submitted to the city authorities, and City Prosecutor Miller will be instructed to prosecute all theater managers who have violated the law.

* * *

"Madame X," which was produced in pictures some time ago by Henry W. Savage, was finally passed by the Chicago board of censors last week, the permit being for adults only. Second Deputy Funkhouser was guided in issuing a permit in this case by the fact that the picture can be shown on a decision handed down by Judge Tuthill in 1914, by which an injunction was obtained against the city for refusing a permit to "Magda, a Modern Magdalen," a photoplay with a plot similar to "Madame X." At that time Judge Tuthill ruled: "I have viewed the picture and have found it a lawful subject for exhibition and in no way a violation of the laws of Illinois, or of the ordinance of the city of Chicago." "Madame X" is now being run at the Bijou Dream, on State street. The picture is being booked by The Pathe Exchange, Inc.

* * *

The Strand Theater, Indianapolis, was opened Saturday evening, January 15, by the officials of the New Strand theater, Chicago, who own and manage it. President E. C. Divine, accompanied by a crowd of friends and boosters from Chicago, organized by Treasurer A. J. Pardridge and Vice-President J. S. Inderrieden, left Saturday noon, January 14, on a special train. The leading feature on the opening program was "Mice and Men," with Marguerite Clark in the leading role.

* * *

While Sheriff Frank Green, of Flint, Mich., was watching the pictures of the Youngstown (Ohio) riots in a picture theater at Detroit, one night last week, he recognized one Stanislaw Ferrett in one of the crowds on the screen. Ferrett has a charge of murder hanging over him, the victim being one Stanley Vancowskey. Sheriff Green immediately sent one of his men to Youngstown, where, with the aid of the local police, Ferrett was arrested.

* * *

John F. McCauley, traveling representative of the Enterprise Optical Company, this city, has just returned from a trip through the state of Wisconsin. Mr. McCauley attended the opening of the New Merrill theater in Milwaukee, on Wednesday, January 5. The evening before the official opening of the Merrill, Manager H. D. Graham held a dress rehearsal, which was an invitation affair for the moving picture trade in general and the press. The Merrill theater is located in the Merrill Building, and is recognized as one of the finest theaters in the middle west. It has a seating capacity of 1,300, and runs Triangle pictures at 15 cents admission. The opening program consisted of W. S. Hart in "The Disciple," and Syd Chaplin in "The Submarine Pirate." The projection apparatus in the new Merrill, which includes three of the latest models of the Motiograph projection machine, was supplied and installed by the Wisconsin Theater Supply Company, of Milwaukee. The operators at the Merrill are Arthur Weaver and Theodore Weinstein, and they have one assistant. Manager Graham, who supervised the details of the opening, is one of the best-known photoplay theater managers in Wisconsin. He was at one time manager of the Butterfly theater, in Milwaukee.

* * *

Robert Lieber, manager of the Indianapolis branch of the General Film Company, spent a few hours in the city on Friday, January 14. Is is so seldom we see Mr. Lieber nowadays that it is to be regretted he was unable to prolong his stay. "Bob" can always have the keys of the city, so far as Chicago film men are concerned.

* * *

A. Czechowicz, owner of the Kosciuszko Photo Gallery, 2123 North Robey street, well known in the city as an expert photographer, called at the office one day last week, and informed me that he is about to enter the producing field in moving pictures. About two months ago Mr. Czechowicz incorporated the International Photoplay Company, with a capital stock of $25,000, all paid up. Mr. Czechowicz is an ardent Pole, and has resided in this country since 1885. In connection with some of his friends, it is his dearest wish to produce pictures of Polish subjects, dealing largely with Polish historical characters and subjects. I understand that Mr. Czechowicz is not only in good financial standing himself, but that he is also backed by associates also of strong financial standing. In the near future further details will be given of Mr. Czechowicz's efforts in the producing field.

News of Los Angeles and Vicinity

By G. P. VON HARLEMAN and CLARKE IRVINE

FIRE SWEEPS INCEVILLE.

Administration Building Burns, Destroying Several Hundred Scenarios and Big Stock of Film. Producer Ince and Many Employes Seriously Burned.

THOMAS H. INCE, director general of the New York Motion Picture Corporation, and nine of his employes were seriously burned Tuesday afternoon, this week, in a fire which gutted the administration building, destroying the general offices, the film cutting room, a big stock of films and several hundred scenarios and other valuable manuscripts.

While the cause of the fire is unknown, the theory is advanced that a spark, probably from defective wiring or a blown-out fuse, dropped into a maze of film fragments in the "cutting" room of the building. There was a series of explosions and the entire frame building was a mass of flames.

Eight persons were in the cutting room when the explosion occurred. All dashed for the door, but several were badly burned before getting out of the blazing building.

Thomas Ince was in his office, which adjoins the cutting room, when the fire broke out. Mr. Ince suffered a severe injury to his ankle in an automobile accident some time ago, and being still lame as a result of the injury, was severely handicapped in escaping from the building. He was compelled to fight his way through the flames in the film-cutting room to reach the stairway. When he reached the foot of the stairs his clothing was on fire, and he had been badly burned about the face, hands and arms. In half fainting condition he was carried by Chief Two Lance to the commissary building and given first aid, then taken in an automobile to his home in Hollywood. It was reported last night that Mr. Ince will suffer no lasting ill effects from his injuries.

U. S. (Dell) Andrews, head of the cutting department, was perhaps the most seriously burned. He was taken to St Catherine's Hospital in Santa Monica. Others who were burned more or less severely in the dash for safety were J. Parker Reed, Roy Stone, Charles Soper, Arthur Sisk, Hal and Robert Kern, Grant Whitlock and Jack Kelly.

Six stenographers employed in the scenario department located in the building and a telephone operator were cut off from the stairs by the flames and were rescued from almost certain death by C. Gardner Sullivan and Monte Katterjohn, the two scenario writers, and E. H. Allen, business manager, who aided the girls to escape from a balcony at the side of the building. Sullivan lowered the girls over the railing of the balcony and dropped them into the arms of Katterjohn and Allen. All the girls escaped injury.

According to later information the loss will probably amount to more than $100,000. The loss caused by the destruction of the building was comparatively trifling, as the structure was of light frame construction and can be duplicated at no great expense.

The real loss is that caused by the destruction of scenarios, and several photoplays which had just been completed and were ready for production. The preparation of these plays alone had occupied more than three months, and it will take fully as long to do the work over again.

That the entire film stock was not a total loss to the company was due to the fact that only a few days ago all the negatives had been removed, and this makes it possible to duplicate the burned reels. In addition to these completed films, a number of others in course of preparation also were destroyed, but these can be replaced.

Of the scenarios destroyed, thirty-five had been accepted by the company. In addition to these a number of scenarios which had been read and rejected were burned as were 300 manuscripts which had not been read, and of the authors of which the company has no record.

That all the official records of the company were not destroyed was due to the presence of mind of R. C. Smith. When the fire first broke out Smith before quitting the building, dashed into the room where the safe was located and slammed the door of the safe shut.

PREACHER VS. PREACHER.

The Immorality Question One-Sided—Dr. Brougher Pleads for Fairness in Criticism of Actors' Morals.

"The public at large does not hold a minister responsible for what his congregation does during the week, and I see no reason why anyone should hold all motion picture people responsible for the acts that are committed by a small minority of their numbers," declared the Rev. J. Whitcomb Brougher of the Temple auditorium Sunday afternoon to an audience of more than 1,200 persons in the Auditorium theater at Venice.

Dr. Brougher was speaking on "The Morals of the Movies" and the crux of his talk was to the effect that salacious stories circulated by a preacher regarding the motion picture fraternity are true as regards only a small part of those who make their living as film actors and actresses.

Dr. Brougher was introduced by Thomas Dixon, author of "The Clansman." Mr. Dixon declared in his introductory speech that the motion picture business in Southern California is being subjected to the same sort of senseless persecution that drove the Huguenots and Pilgrims from Europe and he asserted that unless this is stopped there will be grave danger that the film companies will forsake California. He declared, on the other hand, that if the proper moves are taken, all the film companies of the east can be attracted here.

Mr. Dixon asserted, also, that the motion picture is bound in time to supplant the text book in the schools of the United States. He also declared there is no need of a local board of censorship in Los Angeles.

"It was announced that I was invited to speak this afternoon in defense of the moving picture people and their business," said Mr. Brougher. "I want it distinctly understood that I was not invited to do anything of the kind. An invitation to speak in defense of moving picture people would seem to imply that they needed somebody to speak in their defense. Such men as Thomas H. Ince, D. W. Griffith, W. H. Clune and others do not need anyone to speak in their defense. Their business does not need to be defended. The clean, upright, earnest, efficient picture actor or actress does not need me or any one else to stand and plead for them before the public.

"But these managers who are conducting their business on a high moral plane; these actors and actresses who are living clean and respectable moral lives, know just as well as I do that there are persons in the moving picture business who do not maintain the same high moral ideals that they do. There are actors and actresses whose lives are above reproach, but they also understand that there are those who are employed at times in the making of moving picture films who can be classed among the rough necks and toughs and who do not desire to establish or maintain any high moral standards of life or character. The managers and directors whose lives are above criticism would not thank me to come to their defense. The other kind would not ask me to do it. They would have no respect for me if I did stand up and defend their immoralities."

The one who spoke in favor of the industry and its thousands of good, artistic, clever and clean toilers, talked so that the hearers would clearly understand the situation.

He even suggested ways and means of coping with the situation and indorsed the association formed by prominent producers to protect the industry in Southern California.

VITAGRAPHERS SNOWBOUND.

Eighteen Actors Arrive After Struggle in Snow Banks. Crew "on Rations" While Marooned in Bear Valley.

Rollin S. Sturgeon and his company who had been waiting three months for snow were lost and marooned this week in the deep snows of the high mountains.

After subsisting for a week on a diet of pancakes, prunes and beans and then braving a fierce snow storm in a fight to regain civilization the eighteen plucky players arrived in our city Sunday afternoon.

Their tale of starvation was told when the eighteen "survivors" arrived home after a thrilling escape, by sliding on snow shoes down the mountain side into Bear Valley. The bloodshot eyes and drawn cheeks of the adventurers, some of whom went almost snow blind, illustrated the graphic story of the last bean and pancake. And one member of the party, a musician by preference, exhibited a violin minus its strings, explaining sorrowfully that the departed cat gut had gone to make soup.

Director Sturgeon, Nell Shipman and Assistant Director Goodfriend at Bear Valley.

A fine team of imported Alaskan sledge dogs returned with the party. It was through these dogs that final escape from the snow was made possible. Not only did they aid in the perilous slide down the mountain, but it was because it had come to a question of braving the dangers of the snow or eating the dogs that the sortie was made.

Nell Shipman and Nell Kellar were in the party, the rest were men.

For two weeks the party stayed at Pine Knot Lodge, making film. Provisions came on big trucks from San Bernardino. Everything was lovely. Then came the storm. When the sky had cleared from eight to fifteen feet of snow blocked all roads.

At first the exiles thought it a great joke, but when Iguchi, the official Nipponese chef, reported supplies low, an order was issued putting everybody on rations. William Duncan lived up to his character by venturing forth with other hardy souls in search of deer, which is out of official season, while Iguchi spent his leisure hours at a nearby stream fishing through a crack in the ice.

After a week of imprisonment, Iguchi reported a quantity of beans, a little flour and four cans of prunes to be all that was left in the larder. That meant nothing for the Alaskan dogs and mighty little for anybody else.

"We had beans and beans and beans," Miss Shipman said. "Fortunately, the cook was educated in the art of cooking beans, for he knew twelve different styles. That was all that saved us from going mad about beans. Once a day we were given three pancakes apiece and for supper we each had two prunes. One day we had soup. After that Bill didn't play his violin any more.

"Finally we got desperate. One morning we came to breakfast and there were no more beans. Only a pancake apiece and one prune. Mr. Sturgeon was very thoughtful, and as one of the dogs walked through the hall, he watched it sorrowfully.

"We knew what he was thinking, and we all protested. We finally decided it was either break for freedom or stay there until the end. So we put on our snow shoes, harnessed the dogs to the sled and started. It was one long slide. Miss Kellar and I rode the sled, working with heavy boards to hold it back. The men slipped and slid down.

"After what seemed like hours, we arrived at the Shay ranch. They were awfully nice, and took us on trucks the rest of the way to San Bernardino. Never again, if I know it. It was too real for me."

"Well, we were sent out to get some real northwestern hardship into the films, and I guess, thanks to the elements, we put it over," said Duncan. "It has been a great experience even for a motion picture man."

ACTORS' FUND PLANS.

Chairman Lasky Calls Meeting. Three Big Benefits Scheduled.

Jesse L. Lasky, heading Southern California committee of the Actors' Fund of America, called the first business meeting of the Executive committee this week in the Mayor's office. There were present, besides Mr. Lasky, De Wolf Hooper, J. A. Quinn, Will H. Wyatt, Clarke Irvine and Kenneth McGaffey.

An outline of the scheme to raise money for the Fund was considered. The two months campaign will open Thursday, February 10th, on which day stars from the studios will appear in person at the motion picture theaters. Tickets will be sold on the streets by the leading actresses, good for admission to any theater. An extra charge will also be made by the managers of the vaudeville and higher priced houses for their seats on that date, and it is expected that a large sum will be raised.

Saturday, February 12th, a big ball will be given in one of the principal hotels, and money received for the sale of tickets will be turned into the Fund.

Friday, March 3rd, Al Levy will give a special "Actors' Fund Night" at his cafe. Tables will be reserved and sixty per cent. of the gross receipts of that night will be presented to the committee.

The campaign will be concluded Friday evening, March 31st, with a monster benefit at the largest theater. This benefit will run from one to six o'clock and the stars appearing at all theaters, and the photoplayers will do stunts.

A number of other plans are well under way to fill in the intervening time. These will be announced later. The first day the notice asking for subscriptions to the Actors' Fund of America was posted in the Lasky studio, over two hundred and fifty dollars were promised. The Ince, Keystone, Griffith, Universal and other studios have posted this request for funds and a great amount of money has been promised.

EVERYBODY BOOSTS FILMERS.

The Los Angeles Examiner Comments Admirably on the Censor Question in the Following Manner.

LET THE LOCAL CENSOR BOARD BE ABOLISHED.

There is now pending before the public welfare committee of the City Council the problem of whether or not the Board of Moving Picture Censors shall be continued or abolished, and, if continued, what its powers and standards shall be in the performance of its functions. A public hearing has been set for January 24th, at which members of the Council, leaders of the motion picture industry and representatives of various organizations in all walks of the city's life are to thrash out the question. This hearing should provide a time for the emphatic expression of disapproval of moving picture censorship and should result in the abolition by the Council of the local Censor Board.

As the "Examiner" declared Wednesday in an editorial condemning the proposed Federal censorship:

"No newspaper is more earnestly interested in having the moving picture films free from any suspicion of objectionable matter than is the 'Examiner.'

"And no newspaper is more unalterably opposed to a Federal or even a local censorship of moving pictures than is the 'Examiner.'"

This question is of national interest and it is of peculiarly intimate concern to Los Angeles—the center of the motion picture manufacturing industry of the world.

The constant and discouraging harassments of censorship and its stifling effect upon a Los Angeles industry in which millions of dollars are invested and through which millions of dollars are circulated here annually might be properly advanced as an argument for the abolition of the local board.

The economic injustice of censorship, which gives to the board the arbitrary power to forbid the exhibition of a film which has cost thousands of dollars to produce and thus encompass the loss of the money invested as well as potential profits, might also be set forth as an argument for the abolition of the local board.

And there are other sound reasons for the abolition of this board, the exercise of whose functions is in largest measure the expression of the personal views and prejudices of its members. But the "Examiner" bases its opposition to moving picture censhorship upon a broader and higher ground, viz.: That such censorship is a direct violation of the constitutional guarantee of free speech and free publication and of the liberty of the press.

The same principle that induced the framers of the Constitution to prohibit censorship of the press should prevent the censhorship of moving pictures. The same influences and the same laws which regulate the action of a newspaper and compel it to remain within the proprieties in all matters of publication would have their effect upon motion pictures.

There are ample laws and powerful influences to penalize all who misuse the freedom of the press, and there can be sufficient laws, police regulation and moral influences to penalize those who abuse equal liberties allowed in the production of pictures upon the screen.

The basic idea is that the motion picture, like the press, is a liberalizing, educational power and that this power should not be restricted except by the public itself; certainly not through an arbitrary or possibly prejudiced body which passes upon the picture and prevents it from having even its initial production.

The moving picture makes the poor man's theater, and the poor man and the middle class man, whose morals are good and whose ideals are high, will not patronize pictures that offend the proprieties or corrode morals. And besides there resides in the law and in the hands of those administering it a punitive instrument for the makers or exhibitors of such moving pictures as shall transgress the moral or mental welfare of the people.

Let the members of the City Council consider every phase of this question, but, above all, let them contemplate the constitutional principle involved, and then let the local Board of Moving Picture Censors be abolished.

ALLEGED BOARD OF TRADE.

Circle of Sierra Madre Men Elect Officers and Vote to Keep out "Immoral Movies."

"For the upholding of the moral standard of the community, no moving picture concerns should be encouraged," was what the circle of men, calling themselves The Board of Trade of Sierra Madre, announced this week when they held an election of officers in their little hamlet.

Many of the film producers visit the place and the adjoining canyons, for the picturesque scenery and unusual opportunities for good productions.

By the sentiment expressed at the board meeting their actions have not encouraged any desire for their permanent location there.

The board refused decidedly giving any support or encouragement to concessions by the city for the establishment in this region of film-producing companies. The question arose over an application for a concession.

Here is an example of something that means nothing. These men, one may safely venture to say, never even saw a studio, nor met a player.

They are banded together to do good to their village, and if a film concern tries to locate there this so-called board of trade, resists its efforts, because they think the morals of picture people are dead wrong—and thereby keep out several thousand dollars a week from the coffers of the townspeople.

The short-sightedness of this "booster" organization is woeful. There is not a city from the Mexican border to the Canadian line, and from the Pacific to the Atlantic that is not burning with a desire to welcome, any established film manufacturing company.

LOS ANGELES FILM BREVITIES.

Daily papers advise that a petition for a mandate compelling Frank C. Jordan, Secretary of State, to file the articles of the incorporation of the Film Producers (Inc.), has been denied by the Supreme Court, and the writ discharged.

Secretary of State Jordan refused to file the articles on the ground that they violated the State's laws as on incorporation.

The company is incorporated for $1,000,000, with 50,000 shares of stock of the par value of $1 each, and 47,500 shares of preferred stock of the par value of $20 a share. The law provides that preferred stock shall have no advantage either as to voting power or statutory or constitutional liability of the holders to the creditors of the company. The court holds that under the articles of incorporation, the holders of the preferred stock are given a preference in voting power which is not allowed under the laws of this State.

* * *

From Santa Barbara we are informed that the magnificent new glass studio of the American Film Company will be the scene of a dance, given by the employes of the company, Friday evening, January 14.

The dance is the result of a movement started some time ago by Superintendent C. P. Morrison, and sanctioned by Manager P. G. Lynch. The purpose is to create a fund to be known as the "employes emergency" fund, to be used in helping any employe of the company through periods of illness, accident or other misfortunes. The receipts of the coming dance will serve as a nucleus for this fund and it will be added to later by the receipts from other dances, wild west shows and other forms of entertainment.

It was originally planned to give this dance on New Year's eve, but when it was learned that several of the local organizations had already made preparations for this date, the "American" employes decided to postpone their affair so as not to interfere with these jollifications.

The big glass studio will be elaborately decorated. A ten-piece orchestra will be located on the second floor, and there will be seating accommodations for 500 persons. Besides dancing there will be a varied program of entertainment. During the evening refreshments will be served free.

* * *

The new electric light studio at Universal City is now completed and twelve companies already at work in the big structure.

* * *

Al Christie and his two companies having left the Universal Film Manufacturing Company are now producing independently and have established their new quarters in Universal's old Hollywood studio at Gower street. Their comedies will continue to be released under the "Nestor" brand and will be handled by the Universal on a footage basis. Horace Davey is still directing the second Nestor company while Christie himself is directing the first with Eddie Lyons, Lee Moran and Betty Compson as principal players.

* * *

George Cochrane, a brother of Robert H., the vice president of Universal Film Manufacturing Company, has been placed on the producing end of the activities of the Pacific Coast studios, and started his first picture at Universal City this week. The name of the production is "Shackles," from a story by Laura Oakley and adapted for the screen by F. McGrew Willis. Douglas Gerrard and Carmen Phillips will appear in the leading roles.

Thelma Francis.

Thelma Francis, who was accorded the honor of being the most beautiful girl at the Southern California Motion Picture Exhibitors' Ball New Year's eve by a committee comprising Carl Laemmle, Hobart Henley and Crane Wilbur, the understanding being that the one thus chosen would be offered a place in pictures at the Universal studios, has reported for work at Universal City this week.

The lucky girl has been placed on the company's payroll as leading lady and a company is expected to be formed for her in a few days.

Although a novice in the motion pictures, Miss Francis is not without theatrical training. She studied for over a year under the direction of Maude Fealy in Denver, and has appeared in stock.

* * *

John Emerson, who for the past three months has been engaged in producing Douglas Faribanks' Fine Arts Play, "His Picture in the Papers," at the New York Triangle studios, has been recalled to the Los Angeles studios and is now directing "Macbeth" in which Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree is being starred. Mr. Emerson's extensive theatrical experience as general stage director with Charles Frohman and others qualifies him to direct such an important production.

* * *

Dorothy Gish has also returned from New York and is now starting rehearsals for another Triangle play at the Western Fine Arts studios. The name of this production is "Katie Bauer" and Owen Moore will play the opposite lead. The cast includes Fred Turner, Fred Butler, Kate Torcray and Margaret Marsh.

* * *

Joe Jackson, the famous tramp comedian, will appear in Keystone comedies and has started his first picture supported by Mack Swain, and a selected company of Keystone players.

* * *

Fred Mace and Anna Luther who took the principal parts in "Crooked to the End," are working on another Keystone film thriller. In this picture we are told that Miss Luther makes a leap on horseback from the bank of a river to the water far below, in order to cross after a bridge has been burned and Fred Mace is bound to a fly-wheel in a mill and spun around at dizzy speed. Another member of the company is lashed to the carriage of a stone crushing machine and sent to what appears to be certain death, and there are many other equally hazardous feats that will prevent any Triangle audience from becoming drowsy during the action of this photoplay.

* * *

A. C. DeLang, of the Rolin Film Company, was married Friday last week to Miss Annabel Wyatt. The management gave a wedding reception in honor of the event.

Several hundred members of the Pals club, an organization of motion picture celebrities, stage stars, city and county officials and other congenial spirits, enjoyed the novelty of listening to a speech by Roscoe Arbuckle, who is in New York at the Pals meeting Saturday night last week.

The speakers in the Eastern metropolis made their addresses over a trans-continental wire and separate receivers were supplied to each member and guest of the Pals.

Fred Mace, who was the guest of honor for the evening, conceived the idea of the telephonic speech making and Big Chief Pal Guy Woodward immediately co-operated with him in the plan.

On the night of January 24th the Pals will turn out in full force to greet Anna Held, who is a life member of the order.

* * *

This week, when the cold wave from the far north swept down the coast, the city and environs were covered by a soft white comforter of snow, varying in depth from one to six inches. Universal City was the Alaska of Southern California. Here snow fell in regular blizzards for many minutes during the squall, and before an hour passed the players were having a big snowball battle, and were building snow houses and making snow men.

Snow Scene at Universal City.

At other points where films are made, light blankets of snow fell. Old timers refused to believe that snow fell until they saw actual pictures taken out in the snow. One of the extraordinary sights was the orange groves which bore ripening fruit, with leaves covered with snow.

* * *

Henry McRae, the former director general, is not going to the Orient. At least not for quite a while. Instead he will remain at work at Universal City and produce 101 Bison releases of the western spectacular type. Marie Walcamp, his former leading woman, will play leads in these productions.

* * *

Edward Ferguson, the husband of Elsie Ferguson, has joined the producing staff of the Universal Coast studios and is now preparing his first picture, a two-reel feature entitled "Their Act." The cast has not yet been selected.

* * *

Robert Leonard and his company of Rex players will soon begin production of a five-reel drama written by Calder Johnstone under the title "A True Story of Cinderella." Ella Hall and Robert Leonard will play principals.

* * *

Sessue Hayakawa, the Japanese actor, and his wife, Tsusu Aoki, are playing Chinese characters in a Lasky production under direction of Frank Reicher. Fanny Ward and Jack Dean, the newlyweds, play the other two principal characters.

* * *

Henry R. Johnston, second vice president of the Rolin Film Company, with offices in New York City, arrived in Los Angeles this week from a trip through the Orient. Mr. Johnston, who is accompanied by his charming wife, will shortly depart to the Eastern metropolis. In the meantime many plans are being made for his entertainment by Manager Whiting and President Roach. Mr. Johnston reports good progress with Rolin films in the far eastern countries and especially in China, Japan and the English colonies. Mr. Johnston is contemplating a trip to South American countries in the near future in the interest of his company.

Harold C. Lloyd, leading man of the Rolin Film Company, was nearly asphyxiated this week in a Phunphilm comedy scene, when director Roach placed him inside the engine compartment of a large racing car with a smoke-pot and the hood fastened on firmly. The car was only driven a short distance necessary to make the scene, but on opening the hood the actor was found unconscious, overcome with the smoke. Prompt service of a physician with a pulmotor succeeded in bringing Lloyd to, and owing to his iron constitution he was able to go on with his work the following day. It was however, a mighty close call for Lonesome Luke.

* * *

An elaborate cafe set is under construction at the Fine Arts studio, in which a number of the scenes for De Wolf Hopper's new play, "Sunshine Dad," will be staged by Producer Edward Dillon.

For these scenes the entire cabaret forces have been secured from Levy's cafe and the cabaret scenes will be supervised by Ethel Davis, De Wolf Hopper, Fay Tincher, Jewel Carman, Chester Withey, Raymond Wells and Eugene Pallette will be prominent in the filming of the big cafe scenes.

De Wolf Hopper and Fay Tincher with Cabaret Talent from Levy's Los Angeles Cafe, Secured for Fine Arts' "Sunshine Dad."

STUDIO NEWS.

When you see Don Quixote, watch the footage well where George Walsh tries to kill himself by putting a snake to his throat. The "rep" is supposed to be a Spanish asp, but it is really only a little California rattler. De Wolf Hopper tells the following story:

"That was my bright idea, and it's one on me. When we were seeking a unique and striking method by which Mr. Walsh might despatch himself, it occurred to me it would be startling to have him make way with himself by means of the rattlesnake route. We went through the nervous process of working in the company of the reptile. George Walsh even got bitten, and after it was all over we found there are no rattlesnakes in Spain. So we painted out his rattles on the film and he became a Spanish asp."

* * *

The film and stage folk gave a benefit last Sunday evening at the Mason Opera house when about $2,000 were raised for Los Angeles Newsboys.

In the audience were many of the most prominent people of the city and contrary to the usual custom, the highest-price seats were in greatest demand. On the stage were notable musicians and stars of the spoken drama and of filmland, all giving freely of their abilities to a performance rare indeed for variety and quality of entertainment.

Among the stars who acted as magnets for the elusive "big iron men" were such distinguished players as Sir Herbet Beerbohm Tree, De Wolf Hopper, Walker Whiteside, Constance Collier, Florencio Constantino, Eddy Foy and the Seven Little Foys, Edna Goodrich, Dustin and William Farnum, William Collier, Constance Balfour, Charlie Murray, Polly Moran, H. Guy Woodward, Blanche Hall, Joe Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. Carter De Haven, Filson and Errol, Frank Egan, Harry Gribben, Lydie Yeamons-Titus, Burt Wesner, Victor Moore, Marion Shipp and her dancers, La Monaca and his Venice Band, and Charlie Chaplin.

* * *

At the Balboa, Jack Lait is busy on a new photoplay series for Balboa. While in Chicago recently, H. M. Horkheimer closed with Lait. He will be remembered as the author of "Help Wanted." This will be Lait's first piece written for the screen. To portray it, Balboa will offer some of the best known artists in filmdom.

* * *

Lillian Russell's husband, Alexander Moore, the multi-millionaire Philadelphia publisher, was a visitor to Inceville, this week. He was escorted from Los Angeles to the studio by Frank Tannehill, of the Ince Scenario staff, and then shown about the plant personally by Producer Ince. Later he inspected the new plant at Culver City, and expressed his admiration for the film maker and his large plant.

* * *

Everything is ready for the big scenes for the newest Lasky picture and the replicas of the two ships to be used in the "To Have and To Hold" production, now being built in the Harbor are nearly completed. The first of the week the two boats will sail for Catalina for the filming of the exterior scenes. Over two hundred extras will be used. As the stars of the production, Mae Murray and Wallace Reid, insisted upon being captains of the ships, they are now trying to stage a race, each betting on their own ship.

* * *

"God's Country and the Woman" the Sturgeon Vitagraph feature will have some very realistic interiors. In building these sets every detail of description as given in the book being picturized has been followed. To get the exact sort of building material and lumber for the furniture, a small army of property men spent many days in the hills hewing down trees. At the studio an extra force of workmen under the able direction of James Brown lost no time in shaping them into required form.

* * *

Lewis J. Cody, star, now with Selig, is appearing in a thrilling five-reel picture called "The Grinning Skull of Respectability."

* * *

These are indeed busy days at the two great plants operated by Thomas H. Ince—for with upwards of five hundred persons working steadily at various tasks, and with virtually every department of importance in full swing, the new quarter-million dollar studios became a reality this week. Although there yet remain to be applied the finishing touches to most of the buildings and although the wardrobe and property rooms have not as yet been stocked to their respective capacities, the work of production has begun in earnest and henceforth a vast majority of the scenes in forthcoming Ince features will be made at the new plant.

With the Exhibitors.

Clune's Auditorium opened with the new production of Rex Beach's great Alaskan story, "The Spoilers," which has been re-done into 12,000 feet. His Broadway house has started Tyrone Power in "The Devil-in-Chief."

* * *

Quinn's Superba, after the second Farrar film opens with Camille, which stars Clara Kimball Young. The new Hearst-Vitagraph film newspaper is an added attraction.

* * *

The Majestic and Burbank theaters, running Triangle plays, are booked with the latest pictures. The former continues another week with the Hopper success "Don Quixote," and Mack Sennett's hair-raiser, "The Submarine Pirate."

* * *

Tally's Broadway theater presents "The Great Divide," with House Peters. He advertised this film in a novel way last week by first projecting a slide calling attention to this picture, then dissolving in a fifty-foot flash from the real film, then dissolving out to "Next Week."

* * *

Miller's house is packing them in to see Richard Mansfield's "A Parisian Romance," made by Fox. The Alhambra shows "The Unfaithful Wife," with Robert B. Mantell.

* * *

Woodley's is making a success with Mary Pickford in her latest play, "The Foundling."

* * *

The Palace of Pictures shows Blanch Ring in "The Yankee Girl."

* * *

Pantage's runs "The Red Circle" and at the Orpheum film fans are seeking Eddie Foy in the flesh after witnessing his exploits in films.

General Film Company Not to Dissolve

Action of Government in Standard Oil Case is Cited As an Indication of Probable Course to Be Taken.

RUMORS which appear highly uninformed in the light of the most intelligent opinion in film circles, have been circulating this week regarding the General Film Company. These rumors, due to the imminence of the filing of a decree in the Government suit centering about the Motion Picture Patents Company, have gone so far as to state that the General Film Company was to be dissolved, and it was to go voluntarily out of existence, that its business was to be absorbed by other companies, etc.

It is of course, impossible at the present time for even the most astute to forecast correctly the terms of the decree which will be filed in the Government suit, but it can be said that the General Film Company will not be dissolved, will not retire voluntarily from business, and that it will not be absorbed by any other companies. On the contrary, the General Film Company will be in a position, under the new policies of co-operation with the exhibitor, put into force by President J. A. Berst, to serve the exhibitor in the most efficient way.

Men in quarters of filmdom, which heretofore have proved the most authoritative, scoff at the idea that the General Film Company will be dissolved. They assert most positively that the outcome of the patents case could in no way alter the relation of the General Film Company with the exhibitor and with the manufacturers.

The General Film, they point out, is an organization of exchanges precisely as other distributing agencies are organization of exchanges. The General Film Company, like its rivals, procures films from manufacturers and, like other organizations, rents through exchanges to exhibitors. Its business is conducted lawfully.

For the proof of their assertion that no decision in the patents case will materially affect the General Film Company, these men instance three sets of facts about which there can be no dispute:

1. Property belonging lawfully to stockholders of a corporation cannot be taken from the stockholders.
2. As the outcome of the Government prosecution of the Standard Oil Company none of its subsidiary companies were put out of existence.
3. In the Standard Oil case as in the patents case, the separate entities (separate corporations), were defendants. The Government did not attempt to end the life of any of these, but did object to the relation between them. The General Film Company is simply one of the defendants in a group of defendants.

A peep into the Standard Oil case puts an end at once, it is asserted in the best informed film circles, to any such idle supposition as that the General Film Company will go out of existence.

In the Standard Oil suit, the Government brought its proceedings against the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, the parent company, and its thirty-four subsidiaries, that is the thirty-four companies whose stock was held by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey. After the Standard Oil Company had lost the case, and the decree was finally filed, it was directed that the stock of the subsidiaries held by the New Jersey Company be distributed to the stockholders of the New Jersey Company in proportion to their holdings. There were six thousand and five stockholders.

The distribution made necessary the use of fractions, the numerators of these fractions depending upon the holding of each of the 6,005 in the Standard Oil of New Jersey.

After this stock distribution had been effected, no effort was made to disturb the corporate existence of either Standard Oil of New Jersey or the thirty-four companies. But each of the thirty-four elected its own officers and was placed under its own management.

It should also be remembered that the petition filed in this case alleged an unlawful restraint of trade and asked only that a stop be put to the alleged illegal practices by power of law. The conclusion of the court was that "the petitioner is entitled to the relief prayed."

By this it may be taken that no dissolution was asked for or is intended by the Government, for, as is well known to the motion picture trade, the alleged unlawful practices complained of have long since ceased to be followed by the defendants; that there is no monopoly of the trade in motion pictures nor is there any attempt being made to control motion picture cameras and other devices used in the making or exhibiting of pictures.

Here's the "Regisseur"

He's Baron Dewitz, and a Danish Authority on Motion Picture Technique and More.

WHETHER or not motion picture producers are ready yet, or not, to accept the new departure into the realms of higher art for the films, which the Baron Dewitz, the Danish picture authority, is attempting to introduce into American studios, they will be forced to, sooner or later, by the demands of the public.

Baron Dewitz is what is known as a "regisseur cinematique" which crudely translated means "consulting technical director." But it really means more than that.

In Europe all the royal and national theaters, subsidized as they are by bountiful government grants, retain a staff of regisseurs, as a rule one for the drama, one for the comedy, and one for the ballet, which are the three separate and distinct units that make up the artistic institution known as the royal theater. These regisseurs are professional histrionic connoisseurs. They absorb everything of technical value bearing on their appointments. They are government officials, appointed by the crown for life. Naturally they become experts in the most exacting meaning of the term. They never cease to study, observe and compare, thus obtaining new ideas in the technique of their particular domain.

Baron Dewitz.

The Baron Dewitz is the only professional regisseur known to have adapted his elaborately accumulated knowledge of technique to the screen, having scored a startling success with the Union Film Corporation in Berlin and the Svenska Biografen in Stockholm.

Europe has accepted this new profession, then. The American public is demanding a higher and higher grade of motion picture production. Witness the success of high class theaters where nothing but high class films are shown.

But there are ludicrous errors in even the high class films. A dentist was seen the other day putting his patient to sleep from a tube of gas connected with the gas light. Guests at garden parties appear in evening gowns and frock coats, quite as often as the proverbial reporter pulls out his note book. Peasants supposed to inhabit the mesas of Spain go about garbed in the costumes of the Alps or of the Russian steppes.

"The people don't know the difference," the producers argue. But the people are coming more and more to know the difference. The demands for carefully produced films has increased tremendously during the past five years. The attendance at motion picture theaters has vastly increased. Say, and this is putting it at a high average, that 20,000,000 people in the United States do attend the motion picture theaters daily, what of the 80,000,000 who do not come. How many more do you suppose would come if they were not bored by the stupidities and blunders slipped through on the screen because the director and the producer have been in two great a hurry or have not known.

By introducing the "regisseur cinematique" to the picture field the Baron Dewitz assures accuracy and artistic finish to the film.

He does not interfere with the director's work. He is handed the script before the director starts work. If the setting calls for the costumes, the background, the social customs of the Fourteenth Century, it will be the business of the regisseur to provide all these with a correct detailed description to the director.

He will supplant the work of the director, lifting it from the workshop of the craft over into the realm of art. He will make the motion picture appeal to the thousands of highly educated and cultured people who do not attend the pictures now because their inaccuracies bore or disgust, rather than amuse them.

There is need for a regisseur in every motion picture studio. He must be an exceptional man, and one who is hard to find. As the Baron, he must be widely traveled, widely read, widely experienced. He must have a working insight into the main channels of universal knowledge. He must know society, he must know the technic of all professions.

The time is coming when the producer will not be satisfied to pay $500 or $1,000 a week to a director who has never crossed a fashionable threshold to produce a society and official film. Motion pictures, as well as gentlemen and ladies, bear the ear mark of good or poor breeding, according to "the way they've been brought up."

Von Schiller's Admirers Increasing

FOUR months ago there came to the David Horsley studios in Los Angeles, unheralded and unannounced, a young actor named Carl von Schiller. He was placed in Crane Wilbur's company by Mr. Horsley and for his first picture was given a part that only an accomplished actor could effectively play. It was in "The Blood of Our Brothers" and the character was that of a semi-heavy. Mr. von Schiller jumped in, worked hard, and when the finished picture was shown on the screen it was easy to be seen that in this actor the Horsley studios possessed a player hardly anything short of a "find."

Carl von Schiller.

Following this first successful appearance he was cast for "heavies." As such he appeared in "Could a Man Do More?" and "The Mystery of Carter Breene," both starring Crane Wilbur. His next appearance is in "Vengeance is Mine!" which is to be released as a David Horsley-Mutual Masterpicture, de luxe edition, and in which he has a part that in its prominence is second only to that of the star, Crane Wilbur. The fine acting of Mr. von Schiller in scenes with Mr. Wilbur have made such periods in the film unusually compelling, which, in telling, is a tribute to the abilities of both actors.

Prior to joining the Horsley forces Mr. von Schiller was with the Morosco company. There he played juvenile parts in "Captain Courtesy," "The Hypocrites" and "The Traitors." Compliments to the actor have been paid in letter by many of his admirers, the number of which is steadily climbing, judging by the increasing bulkiness of his mail.

WANTS TO JUMP OFF WOOLWORTH BUILDING.

The number of persons who are willing to do almost anything to break into motion pictures is past counting. Here is one who wants to "drop in" the business, and in the further parlance of the street, stands ready to "fall for motion pictures." Comes one Theodore Finkelstein, of No. 659 Hinsdale street, Brooklyn, N. Y., who writes Lewis Hooper, casting director at the Rolfe-Metro studio, as follows:

"My dear Mr. Hooper: I want to be the first man to jump off the Woolworth Building in a parachute, and I want your advice if you will be kind enough to advise me. What I want to know is, how to go about it. That is to notify different film companies, and who to see. Also what price to charge. You will greatly oblige me by sparing me some of your valuable time."

PAT SULLIVAN IN CARTOON FIELD.

Pat Sullivan, a cartoonist associated with McClure's Syndicate and experienced in making comedy drawings for the screen, has sold the first of a series of pictures to the Universal company. It is probable that Mr. Sullivan will become a regular contributor to the Universal program.

Robert Vignola, Famous Players Director

Former Kalem Producer Stages "The Spider," in Which Pauline Frederick Is Starred.

CLOSELY following the news that John O'Brien and Frederick Thompson had joined the directorial forces of the Famous Players Film Company, there comes the announcement that Robert C. Vignola, for seven years director with the Kalem Company, has been engaged by the first-named organization in a similar capacity.

Robert Vignola.

Mr. Vignola is one of the best-known figures in filmdom, having traveled in Ireland, Scotland, England, France, Italy, Algiers, Egypt and the Holy Land during the seven years in which he has been identified with the business. Among his most notable productions of recent date and those which are most readily called to mind, are "Don Caesar De Bazan," "The Barefoot Boy," "The Haunting Fear," "The Maker of Dreams," "The Dance of Death" and "The Vampire."

It is a peculiar coincidence that Mr. Vignola owes his entry into the motion picture field to another Famous Players director, Sidney Olcott, who engaged him to play his first silent role—an Italian character part. Into the interpretation of this role, Mr. Vignola put the natural powers of national feeling—for he is an Italian—and the experience of eight years on the stage.

So successful was this debut that Mr. Olcott later engaged him to play Judas in "From the Manger to the Cross," the first five-reel film produced in this country, and he became the first actor who was placed upon a permanent salary by Kalem.

Mr. Vignola treasures among his most valuable possessions a handsome loving cup which was presented to him by the players who have been under his direction at the time of his leaving the Kalem Company to join Famous Players.

The new director's first production under the new banner will be "The Spider," in which Pauline Frederick is starred. It is the Paramount release for January 27. In support of the star there appear Thomas Holding, who has appeared with Miss Frederick in many of her most recent productions, and Frank Losee, who was last seen in Denman Thompson's famous role of Josh Whitcomb, in "The Old Homestead."

Mutual Masterpictures

Offerings for the Week of January 24 Are of Excellent Character and Quality.

SECOND of the weekly group of three Mutual Masterpictures, Edition de Luxe, to be released by the Mutual Film Corporation, are announced as follows: "As a Woman Sows," five reels, Monday, January 24; "Lord Loveland Discovers America," five reels, Thursday, January 27; "Betrayed," five reels, Saturday, January 29.

"As a Woman Sows," first of the feature releases for the week, is a Gaumont production, featuring the popular stage and screen star, Gertrude Robinson, supported by Alexander Gaden, equally well known for his many successes on the speaking stage and the screen, and an exceptionally powerful cast of regular Gaumont stock players. It depicts the story of a young wife's folly, in which Miss Robinson portrays the part of the wife. The story is based on a man's fight for political supremacy, during which he becomes so obsessed that he neglects his wife, leaving her to the companionship of an unscrupulous friend.

Miss Robinson, as "Milly," wife of the mayor of Lynboro, has been cast for a part that permits her to bring into play the many dramatic qualities which have won for her an enviable position both on the stage and in the studios. In Alexander Gaden, no better selection for the portrayal of Loren Hayward, the mayor, could have been made.

"Lord Loveland Discovers America," second of the Mutual Masterpictures, Edition de Luxe, for release during the week of January 24, is a filmization of the famous story of the same name, by C. N. and A. M. Williamson, whose various offerings to the world of fiction have won them wide acclaim. In this picture, produced at the American studios, Arthur Maude scores one of his greatest screen achievements in the role of "Lord Loveland." Constance Crawley, who has shared honors with Mr. Maude in a number of feature productions screened at the American studios for the Mutual, appears in Mr. Maude's support. Her portrayal of "Leslie Dreamer" is conceded one of Miss Crawley's most excellent screen characterizations. In the cast are William Carroll, Charles Newton, William Frawley, George Clancy and Nell Franzen.

"Betrayed" was written especially for Miss Carlton and presents her in a role entirely new to her admirers. As the daughter of an old Indian chief, who quits the western reservation for the eastern metropolis, this young star renders an exceptionally powerful characterization.

In this picture, a dozen or more full-blooded Indians were obtained, with the sanction of the federal government, with the understanding, of course, that they would be returned to the reservation immediately after the picture had been completed.

"Betrayed" is a drama full of adventure and throughout it runs one of the prettiest love stories imaginable. It is beyond doubt one of the best pictures that has ever come from the New Rochelle studios of the Thanhouser Company.

M. P. Inventor in Distress

Mr. Friese Greene, Who Helped to Make the Motion Picture Commercially Possible, Fallen Upon Evil Days.

IN THE history of the motion picture no name is deserving of more credit and honor than that of Mr. Friese Greene. It was largely through his inventions that motion pictures were made commercially possible. It is distressing to think that this eminent and brilliant man, to whom we owe so much, is now in the grip of poverty. Our esteemed British contemporary, The Bioscope, has opened a list of subscriptions to relieve the present wants of the distinguished inventor. Mr. Greene has a family, consisting of wife and children. At the time the last issue of The Bioscope reached us, a bailiff was in possession of Mr. Greene's home for the sum of $250.00 due for rent.

We hope that generous America will remember the great inventor in these evil days that have come to him. We hope that enough money will be raised to relieve his present distress and assure him of a better chance in future.

Readers of The Moving Picture World who wish to contribute to such a noble work may send their offerings to The Bioscope, 85 Shaftesbury avenue, London. The editor of The Bioscope will make public acknowledgment of all moneys received.

Mr. Friese Greene's laboratory, showing the first practical camera and projector for taking and exhibiting animated photographs from one point of view on an endless band of film.

"Stingaree" Nears End

Strong Episodes Promised for Closing Issues of Kalem's Popular Series—Other Early February Releases.

AFTER establishing a mark as Kalem's most popular series production—always excluding the never-flagging "Hazards of Helen"—"Stingaree" will, in February, round out its twelve-week career. A trio of strong releases is promised for the closing issues of the series, beginning with "The Villain Worshipper," released next Wednesday. Though the Hornung series will be officially ended on February 9, it is probable that there are many more months of life awaiting it in the theaters, for the General Film exchanges report a surprising number of exhibitors who are at this late date beginning the series with plans to run through the twelve. The addition of twelve newspapers last week to the list of those publishing the stories is further evidence of the long life that meritorious film productions may expect.

E. W. Hornung breaks all picture precedents in "The Villain Worshipper," the tenth of the series, by allowing the picture to close with his hero still behind prison bars. Stingaree sets out to cure a misguided youth with ambitions to follow in the footsteps of the bushranger, but his well-meant efforts result disastrously in the young man's capture. The bushranger then attempts to secure his release, and succeeds at the price of his own liberty. As if to further show his disregard for precedent, Hornung follows this episode with "The Moth and the Star," released February 2, which sees Stingaree out of jail and in again. Had it not been for his audacious daring in attending a concert at which Ethel, his former sweetheart, was to sing, the bushranger might have made good his escape. Needless to say, however, "The Darkest Hour," which closes the series on February 9, enables Stingaree to once more make his escape and this time to find happiness in the arms of Ethel. Like the initial episode of the series, "The Darkest Hour," is an original story, written to adapt the novel to screen purposes.

Kalem's five-reel-a-week schedule includes a varied list of offerings for the early part of February in addition to the "Stingaree" series. Chief in importance on the calendar is the "Hazards of Helen" series, in which the daring railroad heroine continues to devise new means of tempting fate. "The Broken Wire," a single reeler released Saturday, February 5, starts the month for the "Hazards."

The next few weeks will also see the release of three episodes of "The Ventures of Marguerite" that are said to be among the strongest of Kalem single-reel releases of the past year. The trio of "Ventures" has ben written by Howard Irving Young around the theme of preparedness and with The Wolf, an international spy, as the central character. "The Scene from "The Broken Wire" (Kalem).

Fate of America," scheduled for release on January 28, starts this new series. It is followed by "The Lurking Peril," on February 4, and "The Trail's End," February 11. The stories are characterized by rapid-fire action of a melodramatic nature.

The comedy end of the early February schedule for Kalem is taken care of by "Artful Artists," released February 1; "Wurra Wurra," on February 8, and "A Molar Mix-Up," on February 15. Bud Duncan and Ethel Teare are the featured stars in this trio of releases. Gus Leonard, the former Orpheum circuit star, is also seen in these comedies. Leonard, who is a comedian of the Lew Field type, has proven immensely popular with screen audiences since his debut in Kalem comedies a few weeks ago. In addition to these comedy releases for the early part of February several "Ham and Bud" comedies are nearing completion and the release date of these subjects with Lloyd V. Hamilton back on the job will probably be announced in the near future.

Scene from "Wurra Wurra" (Kalem).

Sis Hopkins' Experiences

Comedy Star Writes Humorous Account of First Days in Picture Studio.

"WHEN they named them moving pictures they were right," says Rose Melville, creator of Sis Hopkins. "The accent is strongly on the 'move,' for I haven't been stationary for sixty successive seconds since the camera was first set up. Now, I know why so many stage stars have jumped at opportunities to take up motion picture work. The screen is the greatest weight-reducer ever invented for players threatened by an excess of embonpoint. I feel sure that I must have lost ten pounds already."

It is in a letter to the Kalem Company officials received last week that Sis Hopkins gives her views of motion picture work following her first week in the studio at Jacksonville. As the candid expression of the emotions of a stage player making her first bow to the camera the communication is of unusual interest.

"Well, the first week and the first picture are over," the letter reads. "And right now, let me tell you that your 'Hazards of Helen' girl cannot show me anything new in the way of bruises and sore muscles. I knocked my nose against something—was too busy to find out just what it was—and have a bruised lip and am sore all over from crawling from one room into another and running at full speed around tables. After I get through with pictures I plan to take up athletic competition with obstacle races as my specialty.

"The first day outdoors found me more thoroughly frightened than I was on the night I first stepped out of the wings to face a Broadway audience. Just think of walking across the main thoroughfare of the thriving city of Jacksonville in full regalia and before a large crowd. I can assure you I felt like the 'Greatest Show on Earth.'

"But with it all—and without the ten pounds—I must say that I am beginning to like the work. If the picture audiences get as many laughs out of my actions on the screen as I do in the comparative quiet of my dressing room, we are going to get along together like old friends. I know I am enjoying the work, for I am really anxious for the next picture to start. The screen offers such unlimited scope for your efforts to please that it makes the stage feel like a Punch and Judy show in comparison. In conclusion, I want to express my appreciation of the surroundings here. Everybody has been most kind and we have a real happy family here at the studio."

Alliance of Author and Director

A Rational Method Worked Out by the Edison Company on "At the Rainbow's End."

A FURTHER indication of the progress of the motion picture in its advance from the one man's idea to nearing a composite of many minds, is readily evident in the association of author and director in the production of the Kleine-Edison five-act feature, "At the Rainbow's End," from the Edison studios, in which Carroll McComas is starred, with Richard Tucker.

The time is passing, if not already passed, when one man can decide upon the worth, or availability, of a picture. Intended to please many varied tastes of folk of differing ideas, it is now pretty generally recognized by the successful studios that the picture itself must reflect the judgment and skill of more than one man, however able that man may be.

Ben Turbett.

So that, differing from the arbitrary director of earlier days, when Director Ben Turbett was offered the associated help of the author of "At the Rainbow's End," Sumner Williams, Mr. Turbett welcomed the idea heartily although he had a wealth of theatrical experience to draw from, vastly more than many directors.

The way the idea worked out will be greeted with considerable satisfaction by those—particularly authors themselves—who have always claimed that a director should be guided more by the author's ideas and motives. The picture was finished in about one-half the time that features of that length usually take, while the direction itself shows the most patient and skilful care.

Director Turbett is accorded all the credit by Mr. Williams, who by temperament is ideally fitted to collaborate. Mr. Williams was in daily attendance at the studio, the actual directing being done by Mr. Turbett, the former acting in something of an advisory capacity. Mr. Williams, however, had more than theory to advance as he was the adapter of the highly successful Kleine-Edison feature, "Vanity Fair," in which Mrs. Fiske appeared. Mr. Turbett also was concerned with that picture, as assistant director, and assembling and cutting the twelve thousand feet down to seven thousand feet—a delicate task, to preserve the spirit of the story and times.

Sumner Williams.

Mr. Turbett brought twenty-six varied years of theatrical experience to motion pictures. Born in Salem, Mass., he was boy soprano in Gorman's Minstrels, later joining the J. R. Wait Opera Company. With a repertoire of twenty-five operas, two performances a day, for three years straight—summer and winter—Mr. Turbett lost his voice through strain. It came back a baritone when he went with "The Highwayman," then with the original "Floradora" company, managing the stage for two years. A number of years in vaudeville, with many stock companies, two years with Lillian Russell, and then motion pictures—Edison, where he has been over two years, often acting while the assistant director.

Mr. Williams is a graduate of Harvard college, and has done some magazine writing. He took up the study of drama while in college. Some time ago he was connected with the Edison scenario department. Previous to "Vanity Fair" he wrote the feature, "On Dangerous Paths," Edison, in which Viola Dana was featured. Mr. Williams differs refreshingly from most scenario writers in that the money end of it interests him little at all. He says that if he writes more than two or three features a year he would not like it to be known as he considers no artistic standard too high for the screen.

Famous Players for February

Feature Company Releases Two Original and One Adapted Feature on Paramount Program.

THERE will be two original scripts and one adapted play released by the Famous Players Film Company on the Paramount program during the month of February. They are "Out of the Drifts" and "Nearly a King," starring Marguerite Clark and John Barrymore respectively, and "Diplomacy," starring Marie Doro.

"Nearly a King," which is being produced under the direction of Frederick Thompson, was originally intended for release in January, but was postponed in order to give the director ample time in which to obtain the best possible results. It was felt by the officials of the company that it was preferable to forego the release in January rather than to in any way hurry the production and run the risk of impairing its effectiveness. "Nearly a King" is the story of an American who is summoned to the Balkans by a mysterious message. Though he knows nothing of it, he is the image of a young prince whose father has insisted upon marrying him to a princess whom the prince has never seen. The American is to serve as general scapegoat and be married to the princess instead of the prince. But the American meets the princess on the ship and falls in love with her without discovering her identity. From that point on the story develops a whirlwind series of complications that vary from the comic to the tragic with startling rapidity. "Nearly a King" will be released February 10.

"Out of the Drifts," which is scheduled for February 24, is a thrilling dramatic tale of the Swiss Alps in which Miss Clark plays a shepherdess, whose lack of sophistication, though it brings her to the brink of disaster, ultimately proves her salvation. It is the story of a London rake, who goes to the St. Bernard monastery to recuperate, and finding there a delightful little girl, persuades her to accompany him to London "to see the world." But her lover saves the girl from the fate into which she is innocently plunging and the terrible realization of his own bestiality awakens in the roue the dormant good qualities of his character. It is a story of the great out-of-doors with the thrill of the avalanche and perils of the dizzy Alpine heights J. Searle Dawley is the director.

The third production, "Diplomacy," is an adaptation of the famous Sardou play in which Marie Doro has already scored a great personal success on the stage. As its name suggests, it is a story of international scope, involving the stealing of the war plans of one of the great nations by the spies of another. Circumstances point to the bride of the diplomat from whom they have been stolen, as the only possible culprit, and the innocent girl is subjected to a gruelling cross-examination by her own husband, who believes in her guilt. "Diplomacy," which was said by newspaper critics to be one of the best plots presented on the stage in recent years, is to be released February 28.

ESSANAY STUDIO NEARING COMPLETION.

Essanay's new studio, built on the extreme west of the Essanay property in Chicago, is nearing coupletion, promises being made by the contractors that it will be ready for occupancy in February. Already the executive offices on the second floor are being finished. The studio on the first floor soon will be in use. One of the novelties of the new building is a green room for actors and another for actresses in which those waiting to go on the floor will not be compelled to wait where action is going on. A system of telephones with automatic exchanges is being installed so that an assistant director may call his cast together without leaving the floor. The whole building will be devoted to the executive offices and the studio with gymnasium, reading rooms and a few dressing rooms.

Spokes from the Hub

By Marion Howard.

HOME again from a lively, but not foreign shore, and dear old Broadway, where one is sure to meet familiar faces. One was that of H. Cooper Cliffe, the finished actor who came here from England ever so many seasons ago and who likes us well enough to remain. He "needs no introduction" to readers of this publication. We have seen and admired his work in the films with the Metro players, in "Final Judgment." I was a bit surprised to have him tell me that he was with the Fox forces, but glad to know that his first try out was in "The Parisian Romance" now on here, at the Modern, and liked immensely by many whom I met to-day. Will comment on it later. Just now am a bit satiated with the many wonderful films seen in New York at theatres and run-offs and content to pass the word along to see this and that. While over, I was privileged to get inside the lines at some studios and to receive the utmost courtesy from all. I took in a dozen long reels like "The Foundling;" "The Other Side of the Door;" "Temptation" (a corker); "Camille;" "The Misleading Lady;" "The Wood Nymph;" "The Green Swamp;" "Green Stockings," etc., attended a wedding, a club affair or two, saw "The Boomerang," went into New Jersey to the Universal and Peerless studios, paid my respects to the big men who head the corporations (film), resisted the temptation to stay over and see Harry Davenport's work at the Vitagraph studio, and finally escaped, in order to prolong life in this town. Prosperity seemed everywhere, and I brought home a fine impression of the men and women engaged in the industry and whom I was glad to meet and be inspired by. I wasn't "looking for trouble," but why not pay attention to titles? At one theatre we were inflicted with "The Devine Bernhardt" and a half hour later with "Camellia."

* * *

Members of the Film Club will turn out to see "Thou Shalt Not Kill," if presented here, because their honorary member, Rose Coghlan, is in it, also her son, Charles, named for that prince of actors, the late Charles Coghlan. This film has been tried out at Sing Sing, where it received strong endorsement. It is a plea for the abolishment of capital punishment and ought to be popular here, as there has been a strong effort made to put an end to electrocutions in this state, a movement headed by Mrs. Florence Spooner, who has devoted years of her life to this end. While in New York I was priveleged to meet Rose Coghlan in her home and to hear of her experiences in posing for "The Sporting Duchess," which for some reason, we have not had here at our large houses. She is beginning work on a book of reminiscences and take my word for it, there will be no dull lines, for she is witty to a degree and has a wonderful memory to draw upon. She is at liberty—more's the pity—for she is vigorous and good to look at as ever. Her last stage appearance was here in Trilby, when it closed. Cause? The pictured version! Score one for the films!

* * *

We are anticipating the arrival of Cissy Fitzgerald with her funny wink, and often do we wish that a personal appearance could be made during the presentation, for stars like her have a compelling personality. Why do not managers wake up to this bit of good advertising when the players are close at hand? Other good things are awaited here like "The Mill on the Floss," by George Eliot, to be given us by the Thanhousers, who might film "Daniel Deronda" with profit.

* * *

"A Soldier's Oath," built around "The Celebrated Case," featuring William Farnum, proved dramatic enought to suit all, and was rather more impressive at the close than the speaking version. We were given a big thrill when Sing Sing was disclosed in all its activity. The Modern had the title advertised wrong on the program, but the worst perpetrations were in the titles, showing a lack of common school education. After the released prisoner seeks the aid of the old priest and is given work out doors, this is what we read, "The New Gardner." Another, when the Sergeant—the loyal one all through—was made to say: "I brought her to the Duchess and adopted her." This is neither good grammar or sense, as it was patent to all eyes that he took her to the Duchess who adopted her. Illiteracy has no place on sub-titles and accuracy is inexpensive. Are there no censors of titles?

* * *

I am going to do some missionary work round here after reading what I did in a New York picture house relative to one nuisance. "The best way to enjoy the pictures is in silence," etc. Why should managers not try this moral suasion, and see how it works? It ought to be shown "early and often." As seats are not numbered why do not people move along, instead of rising while a bunch file in, cutting off our view? Why not follow the custom in the churches? Thoughtfulness and good manners ought to prevail all through the week—not one day only.

* * *

The Modern theatre gave us a genuine treat in "The Old Homestead," directed by James Kirkwood, the part created by the late Denman Thompson splendidly done by Frank Losee, and every detail carefully attended to so that even titles were not needed, the play being familiar to two generations of theatre goers. It was a joy to see Swanzey, N. H., in the spot light and we naturally were pleased at the Grace Church scenes. A most artistic bit of work was done by Denman Moley as the tramp before and after reformation Such plays are wholesome and uplift the films.

* * *

I was genuinely sorry to miss Pathe's "The Beloved Vagabond," done in colors, and shown here all last week at Tremont Temple, where many pretentious films are exhibited regularly, like Vanity Fair now on, with Mrs. Fiske as Becky. The Hub literary set are helping fill the big house—and rightly.

* * *

Lydia Gilmore was some play, despite the eternal triangle in life depicted. Pauline Frederick has done nothing better and great credit is due the director for such lovely out door scenes. Thomas Holding made a manly lover, rewarded at the close, and that boy, Jack Curtis, was certainly well trained.

* * *

Gustave Frohman has taken up a residence in the Hub and is working out one or two problems—rather experiments—along uplift lines in filmland. He has established a little theatre in the settlement district on Charles street. It is called The Peabody Playhouse, to be the home of educational films for the very poor children of that district. Some years ago the Elizabeth Peabody House was started for settlement work and it has the backing of well known men and women of means. Mr. Frohman opened with "The Fairy and the Waif," and the price to see it is five cents. The kiddies went wild over Mary Miles Minter.

* * *

Yesterday I was tempted to take in a show and went to the Park, where an exceptionally strong and clean program was presented to say nothing of the music by Mrs. Renfrew's orchestra, and the singing of opera arias and a duet by former members of the Boston Opera Co. We had "The Yellow Streak" and "Mice and Men," also some travel films, and a packed house. The first named was some film, full of vitality, and it strikes me that Lionel Barrymore has done nothing better than in this Jekyl-Hyde role, showing great versatility. The "wild and woolly" features were great in their contrast to the New York scenes. This ought to be a winner for the Metros.

* * *

"Mice and Men" with Marguerite Clark and the Famous Players trademark was thoroughly enjoyable for its working out and splendid acting of Charles Waldron and Marshall Neilan (one of the best of our virile young men). Waldron we thought particularly fine all through and we felt sorry that the adopted waif did not reward him rather better. The play is delicious in its atmosphere of the South in the period of '61, and the dancing recalled certain scenes in the "Birth of a Nation," for the same attention to detail in the dance steps was observed. There was an excellent old mammy and the titles were well done, especially the lines given the colored servants. There is a play with a motive worth while and one we can take the little folks to see.

* * *

What is the reason directors do not pick out babies with straight legs? We were edified with the spectacle of a bow-legged youngster in "Her Mother's Secret," and everyone present tittered at the sight of the little waddler. Perhaps Mr. Thompson failed to notice it, but the camera is right on the job. There were some remarkable scenes in that picture so ably directed, especially the closing ones, with the merciless sea engulfing the heroine. But why such plays anyway? They have no good lesson and this was built around immorality. I certainly would not take young people to see such films as Fox has given us here of late. As to "Destruction," there is absolutely not one single thing about it worth while, save the stage business and photography. That some patrons like such a theme worked out is no argument, because the morbid, the blase and sensational seeker you find everywhere, but they by no means constitute the majority. A woman behind me had her young son with her. He was about 9 years of age, and annoyed all around with his audible reading of the titles. They had been in the theater all the afternoon and at the close of the program, the boy began to yell because of his expressed desire to "stay and see the lady burn up again." Wise mother that. Think of the impression on that lad's mind—a lasting one, too.

* * *

Edgar L. Davenport has gone south with the Metro Company to rehearse, and the best wishes of his many friends follow him. While here for the holidays he was a guest of honor at The Film Club and made a neat little speech, full of enthusiasm for the pictures, in some of which he has appeared in small parts though capable of heavy roles. At this meeting he placed upon the wrist of the club president, Miss Marion H. Brazier, a gold watch, the gift of the club to its founder. It was the consensus of opinion at the meeting that federal censorship ought to be condemned. At the request of the president, several articles were read on the subject and there was much discussion favorable to the stand taken by this publication. Additional theater nuisances were mentioned, Mr. Davenport adding one to the list—the playing of ragtime and other flippant music on the organ, which is better suited to serious, sacred and pretentious music suited to the picture.

* * *

I must not fail to mention the delight given large audiences recently in two delicious reels, "Christmas Carol," with Tiny Tim and those dear Dickens' creations, and "Is Christmas a Bore?" cleverly done by the Drews and Mary Maurice. Both sides of the question were well worked out and I saw many furtively wiping their eyes. Such films carry so much weight when the right emotions are stirred, even by Santa Claus.

* * *

The Pathe people are going on with their good work in showing the young and old, portions of the world hitherto quite unknown to our eyes and of far more educational value than the bare printed page. Recently I saw a long section of our own California coast—a rock-bound section, which one rarely sees as a tourist by land. It was done in colors, too, and one scene depicted the richly colored rocks at sunset. Certainly we owe a debt to the producers for these rich treats. Every theater should run one or two each day and help along the slogan, "See America First."

* * *

I am telling all my film fan friends about the two Triangle films seen at the Knickerbocker happily at this writing in the hands of Mr. Rothapfel for improvements in stage effects. These are "The Wood Nymph" and "The Green Swamp," differing widely in theme, and all else, but well worth while, the latter for the great lesson it teaches concerning morbid jealousy when there is no cause for it. It takes one into the life of the physician devoted to his profession and to his wife, the part artistically done by Bessie Barriscale. It is natural and beyond criticism. A feature at the close was the changing of the green swamp into a bed of flowers illustrating the change in the mind of the little wife from morbidness to sunshine. In "The Wood Nymph" we are treated to miles of California wild woods, with its varying foliage, trees and perspectives. I thought the forest fire scene too prolonged, but appreciated the skill required to make it appear so natural. There is no other we can think of so well fitted to the elfish part played by Miss Doro. There was a fine example of mind over matter when the man was tempted to take advantage of the little rescued one, whose very innocence and plaintiveness overcome his bad desire. This bordered on tragedy, since the girl turned out to be his sister. There was some inconsistency in it, as to the other characters and we wonder what became of the Amazon servant.

* * *

At the Metro runoff I saw George Le Guere in "The Upstart," and the novelty of the satire appealed. It shows him in a vastly different role from that in "The Soul of a Woman," to my mind one of the best films ever shown here. The comedy also introduced James Lackaye, of bulky frame and a brother of Wilton, whom he greatly resembles. If any criticism can be made in regard to the cast it might center on the clergyman—husband, who was too old in appearance from the front, to be the son, but that is a mere detail. Marguerite Snow is the heroine. The photography is excellent and the play worth while.

South African Letter

THAT competition is healthy is proved to be true as regards films and film exchanges in South Africa. The Trust is not now the sole owner, or shall we say holder, of the field. Into the limelight have stepped two new companies. The United Film Supply Co., of Johannesburg, and The International Theatrical and Variety Agency, of Cape Town. The first-named company has been in business a little while now, and doing very well in spite of opposition. Its policy of importing good and high-class pictures has forced the Trust to do the same. They have on hand now the famous "Black Box" serial. The second-named company I will deal with in my next letter.

* * *

Some little while back the Sunday Sallies column of the Sunday Times had the following great thought: "If this country—South Africa—wants to get a move on, let us import ten practical business men from U. S. A. and hand the reins of government over to them for ten years." Although put in jest, it seems to be taken in earnest in a tenth part by at least the African Films Productions, Ltd. Let the world say what it may, but for producing self-reliant, dogged and determined people, the United States cannot be beaten. Being a Scotchman, I shouldn't say so, but, well, I always had a liking for the States.

* * *

Quite a feature is the film of "The Southwest Campaign," taken on the spot. Although the photographer labored under unusual difficulties in the way of sand storms and cloudy atmosphere, still the picture is splendid and gives one a clear idea of the hardships endured by the Union Troops in that unhospitable country of sand and drought, formerly German Southwest Africa, now under the more impressive title of Bothaland. "The Avalanche," a Life Photo Films production, can be safely described as something above the average, and the plot acting and mounting leave nothing to be desired.

* * *

"The Girl of the Music Hall," an Alice Joyce-Kalem, is a fascinating drama, dealing with the adventures of one Ida, a music hall girl. Love, intrigue and tragedy are interwoven in a masterly manner.

Many others have been shown, but although good to look at, yet they are not worth reporting on. With more than one company in the field, let's hope better films will come along.

* * *

A new scheme has been formulated by the African Theaters Trust. Briefly, it is as follows: Daintily designed Christmas cards will be issued at the various theaters on the circuit, which will be on sale about three weeks before the festive season, and these cards can be sent to friends in other towns, entitling them to admission to the local theater or bioscope.

S. H. CRAWFORD.

The first number of the Selig-Tribune was cordially received in Chicago. A large number of prominent theaters report that their audiences were greatly pleased. The same reports have been received regarding th presentation of the second number of the new film. The Selig Polyscope Company says the demands for the early numbers of the Selig-Tribune have exceeded all expectations. They are coming in from all sections of the country.

The days when knighthood was in flower are portrayed with all the picturesque romance of the medieval days in "The White Rosette," a Mutual Masterpicture, De Luxe, now in preparation at the American Film Company's (Mutual) studios. Castles, drawbridges, moats and armor have been constructed or hunted up among relics of ancient days to lend realism to the picture. E. Forrest Taylor, Helene Rosson, Eugenie and Harry Von Meter are cast in the leading roles.

A new motion picture plant is nearing completion at Hudson Heights, N. J., lying directly opposite 96th street, New York. Messrs. Teitel and Schlatter, of New York, are responsible for the new enterprise known as the Ideal Film Studios and Laboratories. Edward B. Kinsila is responsible for the architectural work.

OBSERVATIONS

BY OUR MAN ABOUT TOWN

IT is surprising that the makers of motion picture films have not awakened to the injury that is being done them, as well as the players who take part in the pictures, by the so-called motion picture editions which some of the newspapers have recently added to their publications. Perhaps the newspapers themselves are not aware that the additions to their issues are making them the subject of keenest ridicule on account of inaccurate, distorted (and quite frequently), palpably false accounts of what is going on, and is contemplated, in the motion picture field. The situation is but a natural result of any undertaking that is plainly based upon mercenary motives. Motion picture editions of the newspapers are but in their infancy and it would be well for the publications to supervise and reconstruct them now, before the public gets the impression that with such badly managed departments the publication as a whole must be lacking in a spirit of good faith.

* * *

The majority of the so-called motion picture editions of newspapers have shown in their brief career that they are modified instruments of graft and blackmail. The so-called news collectors are, as a rule, wholly devoid of any newspaper experience. Most of them could not tell a good "item" were it written and handed to them by an expert, and few of them are capable of constructing a three-line paragraph to make it fit to print. The trouble is that, with but few exceptions, the editors and reporters on these motion picture editions have secured their jobs chiefly on account of their previous connection in some way with the moving picture business. They have succeeded in inducing publishers to believe that their previous connections made them specialists and has given them opportunities to get inside knowledge of the motion picture business and current events which the ordinary reporters could not obtain. People in the moving picture business have already classed these specialists as they soon will be by the public—pure fakirs. Most of them are simply solicitors of advertisements. They frequent studios, clubs, and other places where the players are found, incidentally to get news items, but chiefly to procure subscriptions to their publications and paid for cards, write-ups and interviews. These scavengers pick up any old thing in the line of gossip and dish it up to the readers of their paper without the slightest endeavor to ascertain whether or not the stuff they have gleaned has any color of authenticity. They care nothing for that. Their chief aim is to swell their commissions on subscriptions and advertisements. If the moving picture trade publications were conducted on the same system under which the newspaper editions are operated they would soon lose the favor of the makers of and players in the pictures. Of late the inaccuracies and distorted articles in the newspaper editions have become so glaring that it is time all support be withdrawn from them until changes are inaugurated that will carry the conviction that the editions are entitled to recognition.

* * *

The censorship fight is in full blast at Washington, and both sides are busy throughout the country getting ammunition for the decisive battle. A strong appeal has been made by the moving picture interests to directors and prominent players. They are asked to forward telegrams and letters to the chairman of the educational committee at Washington, condemning the proposed Federal Censorship Bill. This appeal should meet with a speedy and hearty response. More than that, appeals should be made direct to the representatives at Washington who will have a voice when the proposed measure comes up for a vote. Another excellent idea is that every motion picture house in the country have patrons sign petitions against the un-American measure. Such a plan would result in placing before the law-makers thousands of direct appeals from the amusement public. Such appeals would carry more weight than those from people connected with the business. At all events, it sincerely is hoped that the fight now being waged on the censorship question will not be left to a few, but that there will be a protest with an unmistakable ring to it.

* * *

The situation in Kansas City, Mo., is another illustration of the relentless spirit of persecution harbored by the people who favor official censorship. In that city there is a body to which appeals are made when exhibitors are dissatisfied with the rulings of the censorship board. Heretofore the appeal board has met daily in order that the motion picture people should not be subjected to unnecessary delay and loss. The appeal board has now announced that hereafter it will meet but twice a month. The spirit of deceit and oppression shown by such a ruling is abominable. It is a glaring piece of trickery to practically deprive the moving picture people of their right of appeal. On its face it shows that those who favored arbitrary censorship have succeeded by underhand methods in making the appeal board a nonentity. There seems to be nothing too mean and despicable for these so-called reformers to do, yet they have the effrontery to declare themselves American citizens whose chief aim is to uphold the laws for the safeguard of public morals. Everybody with the least spark of intelligence must see that the kind of persecution such as is reflected by the Kansas City reformers must, in time, bring about a state of demoralization.

* * *

It is gratifying to see that exhibitors in various parts of the country are commencing to learn that to fight fire with fire is the only effective policy they can adopt to guard themselves against the persecution of the so-called reformers. New Jersey and Indiana exhibitors have taken the lead. The movement to keep picture houses closed on Sunday in Jersey City precipitated a fight on the part of the exhibitors to enforce all the blue laws on the statute books of the state, and has had a wholesome effect. The exhibitors took the tip of newspapers that the only way to beat blue laws is to enforce them. The writer remembers a similar fight waged in a Pennsylvania town some years ago. A vindictive person caused the arrest of a merchant who kept his store open for a few minutes on a Sunday to accommodate a friend. The next Sunday the merchant had every store in the town closed, and that was the last of any attempt to spring the blue law game. In Indianapolis the exhibitors have turned their guns upon the churches that have been used for moving picture exhibitions without any attention being paid to the laws bearing upon fireproof booths, exits and the crowding of aisles. The very element that forms the nucleus of the official censorship movement is itself ignoring the most important laws regulating the motion picture business.

* * *

It has developed in the Indiana situation that the introduction of moving pictures as part of the church services in many sections of the state has become quite popular and that the innovation is justified upon the ground that anything which attracts people to churches is for the good of the church. Quite a novel argument, isn't it? If these Indiana church people are sincere in what they claim, they give a valuable tip to the moving picture houses. Why not engage preachers and revivalists for Sundays and have pictures as a part of the services?

* * *

Here is a nut for the reformers at Washington, D. C., to crack. At a session of the Scientific Congress in that city a prominent delegate declared that photoplays are of great usefulness in the suppression of the liquor habit. The delegate contended that the ease of access to motion picture exhibitions lures frequenters from the saloons and in localities where picture houses are located in the neighborhood of saloons, there has been a pronounced falling off in the liquor trade. It is impossible to see how the reformers can consistently strive to stifle such a valuable agent in the cause of human welfare.

* * *

Incidental to the suggestion that exhibitors take a hand in getting petitions against the adoption of a Federal censorship bill, an exhibitor has asked how the work can be accomplished. He says he cannot interrupt his show by circulating petitions through the audience nor can he interrupt the people when passing into the theater and thereby cause delays which may cause people to walk away. Signatures may be secured without any inconvenience to the patrons or loss to the management. A petition conveniently displayed in the lobby of the theater with a prominently lettered request for signatures will answer the purpose. Ticket-takers might also invite patrons as they approach to kindly sign the petition. If the attention of the patrons is attracted to the petition the securing of signatures will be an easy matter. The people are only too willing to aid in combatting anything that may interefere with what has become their most popular form of amusement.

Advertising for Exhibitors

Conducted by EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

Scott's Back.

REGULAR readers of this department will remember Luke J. Scott, who used to be running a house down in Warrensburg, Mo. He dropped out of sight some time ago and we have been wondering what had become of him, when he breezes in with this letter:

In some way I became sidetracked and neglected to send you any more of my literary efforts for criticism. Although I was a constant reader of the "World" and any other periodicals I could lay hands upon, I continually had a feeling that I was handicapped some way. I finally decided that it was lack of co-operation on the part of the exchanges. The only time I ever heard from them was when my account was in arrears or I had not returned some advertising.

Consequently I took up the matter of a Publicity Department, which would really be an Exhibitors' Aid Department, with one of the big regular service companies. After a month I received a reply saying they were working on such an idea but had no place for me.

I then got in touch with Mr. Pearson, of V-L-S-E., who, it seems, had just been waiting for a fellow who had thought this proposition out in detail, and who would suggest it. It did not take us very long to get together, and I do not think I am showing any immodesty when I say we have gotten results. By the way, the local exchange of the people with whom I first talked, used my letter of announcement nearly word for word in announcing their Publicity Department one month after ours was started.

Do not mistake this letter, I am not suggesting that this department is a new idea, but I know it was new to this territory.

Besides assisting exhibitors in every way possible, we have succeeded in establishing about 20 M. P. departments in large dailies in this territory and are furnishing them weekly press sheets. Our two biggest victories were the K. C. Post and K. C. Star, probably the two hardest propositions in the country. Of course credit is not due V-L-S-E. alone, the other exchanges were all instrumental in landing them, but you can safely wager V-L-S-E. gets its share of space.

Possibly you have seen samples of our monthly edition, the "Big Four Clansman." While it does not necessarily come under the head of your department, you may be interested in glancing over the copies I am sending under a separate cover.

Do not criticize the make-up too severely. I will have more than a day to prepare it after Jan. 1st, and will endeavor to use some of the ideas in proper make-up that I have gotten from your columns.

The Clansman has not come in yet, but Mr. Scott's letter is not without interest on its own account. Lately, from Boston, has come a complaint that exhibitors do not work in with the exchanges on booming feature stuff, but there are some sections where the exhibitor is more alive to his chances, and as usual this is mostly in the west. It is only a question of time when the exhibitor will have to get into touch with the helpful exchange, and when the right sort of exchange will draw the business from the men who merely rent films. We are past the point where anything that is on film will draw a crowded attendance. Film must be advertised and advertised intelligently.

The men who do advertise are the ones who win, and the more they know the more they want to learn. The bulk of sales of Picture Theater Advertising has been to the men who are already advertisers, not to those who need this help most because they know least about it. Work with your exchange when they are willing to work with you. They are not disinterested. They know what you should realize—that only by advertising can you make the money with which to pay for film hire.

Half-Page Joy.

Steve Farrar, of the Casino, Eldorado, Ill., mixes business with pleasure when he wishes his patrons a Merry Christmas and tells them he will have Graustark to help along. It was Steve who last year originated the stunt of mailing out cards "Not to be opened until Christmas." We wonder if he did it again this year. It should work more than once if the card is a pretty one. We wonder, too, how many others did it this year. Steve is going to have his coal miner patrons guessing if he keeps on using "photoplay" and "photodrama" interchangeably. They'll be too busy figuring out the difference to come to the theater and find out.

That Excursion Scheme.

A correspondent in New York writes that he thinks that E. B. Linck, of the Hippodrome, Williamsport, Pa., was the first to use the railroad excursion for a film. This was with the same Heart of Jennifer and in September, where Mr. Woodin's excursion was in October. Now who can beat the September date?

Help! Help!

Will exhibitors who send in newspapers without comment be good enough to mark the particular parts to which attention is called? It saves a lot of time and ensures the reading of the particular paragraph referred to.

Briefly Effective.

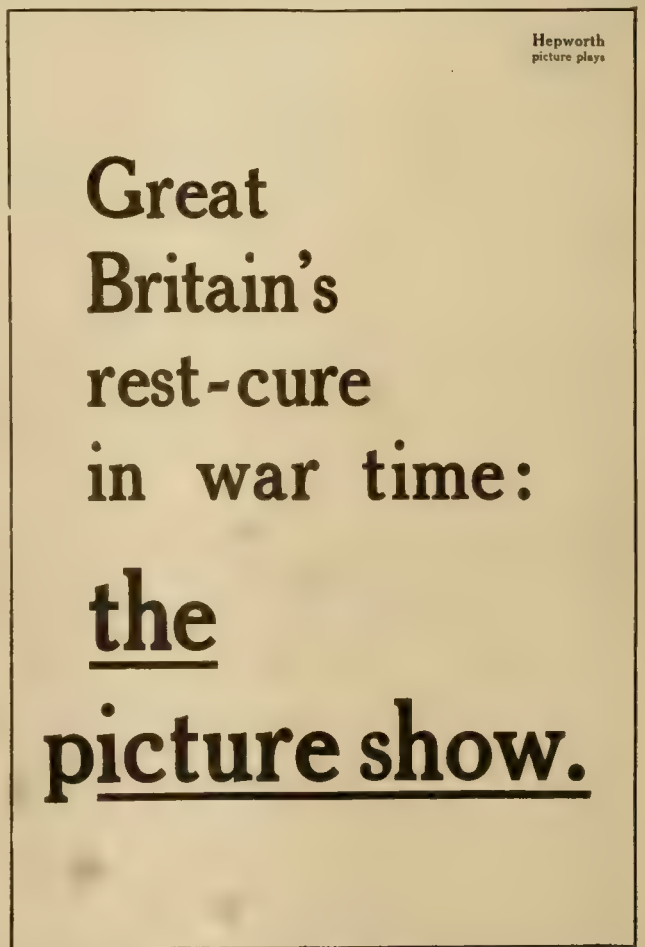
Ralph Ruffner sends in a two column down the page advertisement for a film. Instead of loading down the space he runs a large cut of a dog with a tin can on his tail and then

DOUBLE TROUBLE
AT THE GLEE FACTORY TODAY
THE LIBERTY.

Coming on a page with several detailed advertisements for other houses, and being set at right angles, it is a certainty that the advertisement is seen and read before the others on the page and gets first chance at possible patrons. It is expensive to take two whole columns for just nine words, but if it pulls above the others, it is cheap, and we think it pulled.

Hepworth Publicity.

Every now and then, and not as often as we could wish, the Hepworth sends across some of its publicity material. It is always clean-cut and well worth looking at. In the last submission are some type posters that evidently are presented by exhibitors. They scarcely mention Hepworth, some only through a small imprint, and most of the space is given to some argument in favor of the pictures, the theater as a place to forget the worries of war, or the warmth and cheer to be found there. One of these is reproduced. In the original it is about the size of a half sheet (double crown, 20 by 30 inches) printed in deep green on a very light green paper. Brown and cream and blue on blue are also used. They show what can be done with type when an effort is not made to load the sheet with as much type matter as room may be found for.



But it is in booklets that the company makes its strongest appeal. A brochure for "Far from the Maddning Crowd" is a work of art. But it is not the art work alone. Another strong example is given in a booklet urging Hepworth pictures. At the top is a band across the page ranging from a very light gray to almost black. At the bottom is another band, but this, in the lighter side, has set in the word, picture plays, white letters against a black ground, balancing the composition, as an artist would say. Between the two runs this text:

That common spirit of the nation, on which victory depends, may range from light saneness and enthusiasm to dark gloom and morbid fear, in much the same way as does this diagram, from gray to black.

If those two things—the nation's spirit as we have seen it since August, 1914, and the diagram which is shown above—are left to themselves, both of them will overbalance on the dark side. There, automatically, the emphasis falls.

And just as the artist, in order to regain the lost balance of his diagram, was forced to add a strong spot that brought back the emphasis to the light side, so Great Britain to keep her common spirit unweakened by waves of doubt that sometimes sweep the country, must insist on the nation's sane spot, and so force the emphasis to fall again on the side of normal determined enthusiasm.

In the figure at the bottom of the page, the artist has shown the emphasis can be restored to the light side. In the remaining page of this booklet, the Hepworth Company makes its suggestions for maintaining the balance of the nation's spirit.

The idea can be adapted to other copy with good effect. The Hepworth Publicity department is assuredly doing some telling work.

Amen.

If the rules of make-up permitted poster type to run for sub heads, we would have that set in a six inch letter and tie it to this sapient sentiment from Tom North, speaking in his Seattle "Pals."

READ YOUR AD PROOFS.

Every week we receive from our PALS and from a clipping bureau, ads which have been run in the different papers advertising V-L-S-E Features. There are any number of these in which will be found many mistakes, not only in spelling, but in the wording. Every time a reader notices a mistake in your ad his attention is bound to be taken off the story you are trying to impress on his mind and you have left an opening for ridicule which about 90 per cent. of the people who read papers do not hesitate to take advantage of. It is human nature to make the most of the other fellow's weakness, so don't give them a chance. Read your proof carefully and make your paper do the same. Don't let it go to press until you are absolutely sure that everything is all right.

Just a moment ago we put down a paper in which an advertiser hoped his patrons would have an even better New Year than they had dared "antisipate." People do not stop to realize that it is the printer's error when you announce Mary Pickfort. They blame you. It's your advertisement. It must be you, and you must be a fine sort of manager if you do not know of Mary Pickford.

And here is another item that should be passed along:

Many exhibitors, in fact most of them, make the big mistake of trying to advertise a whole week's program every day in a small ad. If you will not use large space, then for the sake of your business concentrate on what you are going to show for the day on which your paper is published, that is if you have a morning paper, play up your show for that day. If an evening paper it is advisable to work on the show for the following day, although space should be used to boost your evening show as well.

But concentrate on your features. Don't just give them a line along with the rest of your program. They cost you more. You depend on them to get you more money, or at least you should and therefore you should devote more space to them. If you will follow the advertising of any of the big National advertisers in, say, The Saturday Evening Post, where space costs $70 to $90 an inch each insertion, you will note that they do not tell all about what they have to sell in one ad unless it is a full page ad and even then many of them have a different story to tell each week. However, they do take one or two important features of their goods and work up a desire on the part of the public to buy. The space is so valuable that they must concentrate, and it is the same in your own case.

Just because you buy space you must not think you must crowd into that space all you have to tell for several weeks. Better one feature properly advertised than ten merely mentioned. Then one out of the ten, at least, will make you money.

And we wonder if Mr. North will be so good as to tell us what an "honorary associate editor" is. We have met several kinds of editors but this is a new one. Pals has five.

Full of Ideas.

The Star Theater, Trail, B. C., issues an eight-page and cover program that is full of ideas. We reproduce the front page here, but we wish we might reproduce the entire issue. We are going to do the best we can. First off, we note they offer commutation tickets, good for one admission each day for three dollars a month. This is not thirty admissions for three dollars. The coupon book is no novelty. This is a straight commutation ticket, just as it says, good for one person once each day for a month. They also have coupon books with eight tickets for one dollar, on the old lines, but the commutation book is a new one on us. The admission is fifteen cents and there are no Sunday shows, so this gives twenty-six or twenty-seven tickets for three dollars; not much saving for the coupon book, but the latter is a direct appeal to the pride of the possessor.

There is a local announcement department that is not running very strong yet and in line with the public service idea comes the announcement that the house will be loaned, free of course, on Sundays for charitable purposes.

On other nights than Sunday the house can be had after nine o'clock by arrangement.

They have several contest schemes, one of which appears to have been taken from Picture Theater Advertising. The paragraph will suggest the scheme better than will explanation:

The second four words in this contest are found as follows: Fifth word is the tenth from the last of Butcher's ad; sixth is the smallest word in the Wagstaff & Vestrup ad; seventh word is "peace"; eighth is second smallest word in the second line of Furniture ad. It is very possible to obtain the sentence now, and if the money is not found by the time our next issue is out, it will be withdrawn and put into another contest.

The program runs on the first inside page and is confined to the announcement of the subject. Through the rest of the issue the synopses are run, mixed with general matter, until the booklet takes on the appearance of a small magazine with a detailed program again on page seven. There is plenty to read that will interest, not too much of the press dope that too many similar papers are filled with, but some good stuff, and mostly original matter. There is a suggestion that the local postoffice put in a desk for the convenience of patrons and a hint that people who seem to be staggering home may merely be following the path laid out by the municipal snow plough.

To show the fun of running pictures in the Northwest, here is an item:

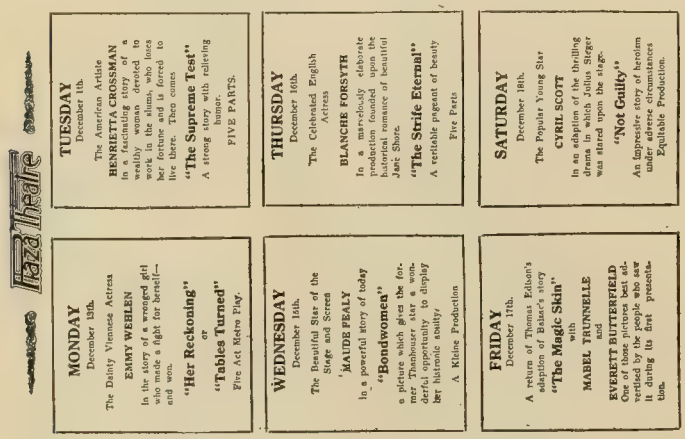
> We have at last some news of "The Diamond from the Sky," but regret to say that it is not very good news. We have been advised by the exchange that owing to the change in schedule of the Prince Rupert boat it is impossible to get the film back to Vancouver in time to ship it to Kootenay points and still retain dates with large theaters to the east of us. This will make it necessary for a wait of a little less than a month till the picture gets back to us. We trust that if you have not then lost interest in this picture serial, to take up the next episode on Tuesday, Dec. 28th. We are sorry to have to announce this delay, but you will realize, we hope, that in this instance, circumstances were entirely beyond our control. Now, all you "Diamond" fans, please let us know whether you want this serial resumed or not. Your preference in the matter will be our guide in either arranging for the resumption or discontinuance of the serial. Use our Patrons' post box, and please do it NOW. Yours, THE MANAGER.

Recently they had a Red Cross night when all persons who gave their names at the box office and paid a quarter were admitted free, the entire quarter being turned over to the Red Cross Society.

The last issue announces they will have newer films and better ones through an arrangement to circuit them. It was to be expected that they would land newer stuff if they could, for energy and hustle stick out all over the little program. Taken as a whole, it is as well edited as any issue that comes to our desk—and we see them all. It's not the size of a town that counts, for Trail is around three thousand population. It's the size of the man, and N. M. Trafton measures pretty tall.

Balancing.

Turn the paper sideways and take a look at the cut. In the first place it is a nice arrangement of program, getting all of bill in one



Strand Theatre
TUESDAY
December 11th.
The American Artiste
BENRIETTA CROSSMAN
In a fascinating story of a wealthy woman devoted to work in the slums, who loses her fortune and is forced to live there. Three comedy
"The Supreme Test"
A strong story with relieving humor.
FIVE PARTS.
THURSDAY
December 16th.
The Celebrated English Actress
BLANCHE FORSYTH
In a marvelously elaborate production founded upon the historic romance of beautiful Jane Shore.
"The Strife Eternal"
A veritable pageant of beauty
Five Parts
SATURDAY
December 18th.
The Popular Young Star
CYRIL SCOTT
In an adaption of the thrilling drama in which Julius Steger was starred upon the stage.
"Not Guilty"
An impressive story of heroism under the most dramatic circumstances
Equitable Production.
MONDAY
December 13th.
The Dainty Viennese Actress
EMMY WEHLEN
In the story of a wronged girl who made a fight for herself—and won.
"Her Reckoning"
or "Tables Turned"
Five Act Metro Play.
WEDNESDAY
December 15th.
The Beautiful Star of the Stage and Screen
MAUDE FEALY
In a powerful story of today
"Bondwomen"
a picture which gives the former Thanhouser star a splendid opportunity to display her histrionic ability
A Kleine Production
FRIDAY
December 17th.
A return of Thomas Edison's adaption of Balzac's story
"The Magic Skin"
with
MABEL TRUNNELLE
and
EVERETT BUTTERFIELD
One of those pictures best adapted by the people who are in doubt as to their production.

place. It is the back page of the Strand program, Montgomery, Ala., and feeds the sister house. But R. B. Wilby is too good a newspaper man and advertising hustler not to know that the printer slipped up, and that he is contributory. Look at the dated days. Monday and Saturday fall well away from the line where the other days stay up. Those two panels have not enough copy and the printer is trying to even things up. He gets each box set right, by itself, but the effect of the whole is not so good as it would have been had they been kept where they belonged. In the same way the black lines do not match. Maude Fealy and Blanche Forsythe start even, but the play titles do not match. A better effect would have been gained had the copy been written with the whole in mind that the companion boxes might be laid out to match, Monday being uniform with Tuesday, Wednesday with Thursday and Friday with Saturday. It is a little thing, but one of those little things that count. As a rule it is a good plan to have the paired panels matched, but to arrange each pair differently to vary the effect or else to match the top and bottom panels and give a different arrangement to the middle pair. It takes a little longer to match up, but it is little more trouble. We've picked Mr. Wilby as the horrible example because we know he knows we know how good he is, and so his feelings will not be hurt.

Warning.

Every one has seen the story of the man who thought the play was good only he could not hear a word the actors said. Let's lay it on the shelf or some day it will fall apart and the Board of Health will get busy. It was good, but——.

Slow But Sure.

Matter coming in is handled as promptly as possible, but if you send in some stuff this week and it is not in next week's paper, wait a couple more weeks. This is department stuff and must be set and paged early to leave the machines clear for news later in the week. It comes through slowly, but it most always gets there.

Don't Please.

A western program gives the details of a theater fire in another town and enlarges upon its own security. If there is no danger of a fire, do not talk fire. It doesn't help any. There was a fire in a New York theater the other day and they had to call a policeman to get one woman out because she had paid her money and would not go until she had seen a full performance. If all theater patrons were like her you would not have to worry, but they are not. Don't talk about fires. It does not pay.

Might Double.

A. E. Bayer, of the Opera House, Leighton, Pa., sends in a number of issues of the Operagram, the house organ. He asks for some suggestions. As can be seen from the reproduction of one of the inside sheets of the four pager, he runs three columns to the page and a day to the column. As the column is only a little more than an inch and a half wide, he gets small room for proper display. It would be better to rearrange the pages and regard the two inside pages as a unit 11¼ inches wide by 7½ inches deep. Now divide the space into three panels across and two deep, the day and date on a single line at the top of each panel instead of two lines as at present. This will permit the headline attraction to be set across the panel in a type that will show it off. The lesser items can follow or can be set side by side, where there are two, divided by a piece of rule set upright between the two. No rule work inside the panel should be carried clear across the space, completely cutting one part from the other, nor should any ornamental rule work be permitted inside any panel. The panels themselves can be six point border, but would look better if of three point rule. With the program as shown, no title can be set to run more than 1 11-16 inches, and now and then, even in the type used, the printer has to use single instead of double quotes for titles, which is akin to taking the paper from the wall to make more room. He should be told not to quote titles at all, but to set them straight. It will help keep his sort box full and it will look better. Quotation marks make it harder to read a title and quotation is not required in advertising matter.

The back page is used for house chat or talk about a feature. The former is the better used, for Mr. Bayer writes some smart stuff. He is a little weak in proofreading, though. He knows how to spell "Belasco" in that Tuesday announcement, but he did not watch the printer, who very evidently needs watching, for in another issue he twice drops the "h" from "Ghost."

If Mr. Bayer is the nice person we think he is, he'll write and tell us what P. F. W. K. G. means. He plays it up on several of the issues as representing "the touch of finality in Motion Pictures," but we'll have to pass. We wish, too, that he will tell us how the new program looks, if he adopts the suggestion above.

To All, Everyone.

Do not let the printer set your play titles in eight point Roman capitals just because he can set these on the machine. Make him set in job face even if you have to pay a little more for the work. It is worth while. Ninety per cent. of the programs that come in carry the titles in eight or ten point Roman, machine composition. It's a waste.

A NEW HELP FOR MANAGERS

Picture Theatre Advertising

By EPES WINTHROP SARGENT (Conductor of Advertising for Exhibitors in the Moving Picture World)

A TEXT BOOK AND A HAND BOOK, a compendium and a guide. It tells all about advertising, about type and type-setting, printing and paper, how to run a house program, how to frame your newspaper advertisements, how to write form letters, posters or throwaways, how to make your house an advertisement, how to get matinee business, special schemes for hot weather and rainy days. Mr. Sargent tells all he knows and this includes what several hundred successful exhibitors have told him. More than 100 examples. An introduction and then 299 pages of solid text. All practical because it has helped others. It will help you. Handsome clothboard binding. By mail, postpaid. $2.00

Moving Picture World, 17 Madison Ave., New York

THE PHOTOPLAYWRIGHT

Conducted by EPES WINTHROP SARGENT

INQUIRIES.

Questions concerning photoplay writing addressed to this department will be replied to by mail if a fully addressed and stamped envelope accompanies the letter, which should be addressed to this department. Questions should be stated clearly and should be typewritten or written with pen and ink. Under no circumstances will manuscripts or synopses be criticized, whether or not a fee is sent therefor.

A list of companies will be sent if the request is made to the paper direct and not to this department, and a return stamped envelope is enclosed.

Those Gymnastics.

ALTHOUGH something more than two hundred synopses were sent in response to an offer to comment on stories based on the premise offered in the issue of December 4th and titled German gold, but five evaded the trap set. It will be recalled that the suggestion was made that the reader try to write a story about a man who suddenly finds himself in London with nothing but German gold and notes.

Most of the writers jumped at the conclusion that the possession of nothing but German money would lead to the arrest of the possessor as a spy. Three of the heroes were shot at sunrise, many of them were saved by their sweethearts and a few escaped this awful fate (the shooting, not the sweetheart) by some elementary ruse. Only two persons seemed to realize that a man with German money in his pocket had only to go to the nearest bank to exchange the gold for sovereigns at a small discount, though a few had their hero visit a bank and get arrested there. In some cases men were mobbed for no other reason than that they tried to pay a cabman or a restaurant keeper with marks instead of shillings and only one writer of the entire number said that he could not see a logical story in the premise, after which he went and wrote one that was illogical in the extreme.

In one story the hero was a New York business man who had to make a visit to London and "forgetting about the war," took his family along. It was not strange that so absent-minded a man should have found that the bank had given him German instead of English money. In another case the possessor of important government secrets took a suspected spy home with him for safe keeping, instead of sending him to jail.

In one case a returning German reservist attempted to reach home by way of London, evidently having neglected to find out about passports, and there were no fewer than nine American citizens set up against the wall vainly demanding that they be permitted to see the American consul.

It would be possible to make a farcical comedy from the premise, though it would be weak in logic. It is not possible to make a convincing drama, and it was this point that we sought to make. We offered an attractive but unfruitful premise merely to see how many would jump at the conclusion that there must be a story there and work along the easiest lines, which were, of course, the spy idea. We think that the time spent by the writers has not been wasted, for more than one has written again to say that they can see now that the same lack of logic has operated against other of their stories.

Stories must be logical to find acceptance, either from editors or the public. We cannot accept, for instance, a man who forgets that there is a war. He might forget for a moment, but when he takes his family along it is only reasonable that they or their friends might remember that there is fighting in Europe. We could accept the single absent-minded man as the premise to a farce, but we cannot, even in farce, accept the remainder.

We are flattered by the remark of one author to the effect that he would write a story about a blue ruby if we told him to, but we would prefer to be told that rubies were red and not blue. He told how he would write such a story, and a story of a scientist who sought to change the color of the ruby might be accepted as a fact, granting that the scientist was mildly insane on that point, but when we are told that a man vainly pleads with Scotland Yard officials to be permitted to communicate with his consular representative, we cannot accept the suggestion that Scotland Yard, as a whole, is made up of men unversed even in the fundamental laws of international usage.

It was an interesting experiment and we want to thank those who sent in stories. To those whose synopses were returned unread, we offer no apologies. At least they have learned that all scripts must be typed, and that is a starter. There were only three pen scripts.

Another One.

E. J. Montagne, of the Vitagraph staff, turns up a funny case of theft accusation. Last summer he read a story at the solicitation of an acquaintance. He made some suggestions and forgot the incident. Six months later the friend came in with fire in his eye. The Vitagraph, through Montagne, had stolen his valuable idea. Would they settle with the author or with his attorney. Investigation showed that in both stories a college crew figured and in both a sawed oar was the device of the villain to spoil the chances of the crew. The same idea has been used in fiction and is about the first device an author thinks of in this type of story. It happened that the story had been written and produced before the amateur had displayed his script and there was a clear alibi, but it explains why so many editors and authors fight shy of people who want advice about stories. We quit last August and are going to stay quit. It is the only way when dealing with amateurs and some professionals. We'll bet that up in Heaven some angel with a sidewheel brain is whispering that George Washington stole the cherry tree stuff from him because once he cut down a palm.

No More Form Sheets.

Daniel Ellis, of the Lubin Company, asks that notice be given that the form sheets formerly supplied gratis by that company, have been exhausted and that a new edition will not be prepared. The Lubin Company was the third to offer a form sheet and probably has distributed a greater number than any other concern, but the form sheet was devised to educate the writers at a time when there was no other form of instruction available, and today the persons who ask for form sheets are seldom of a type who will ever make real authors. Real authors purchase text books and study them. The others get free form sheets and merely read them.

Scenes.

Anonymous writers are not entitled to replies, for that matter replies are given only when return stamped and addressed envelope is sent for the reply, and will the Philadelphia lady who loves to send loose stamps please take notice. But this is something that may interest others. "A Disciple" writes that he or she has a three-reel play with only sixty scenes and wants to know what to do with it.

If there really can be only twenty scenes to the reel, then the play is too draggy, if the footage is assured. If there are but twenty scenes, though, it may be possible to cut back and so get each scene into two or more pieces.

It's very simple.

More History.

Read this over. It is from a woman who has just put a $300 story on top of a $200 sale.

> Looking back I see that I advance a little each year—three years ago in December I sold my first scenario for $10, then a year later I sold one for $75—and this year I have sold the two for $500. I want to do more than that next year and the years to come. There has been many hours which did not seem to count, but I guess they went to make up the sum total. Your letters have helped, and your columns in the MOVING PICTURE WORLD, in fact, you and the WORLD have done it all. You cannot guess how gratified I am that I can do things that are at least worth while, and it certainly is not necessary to write rotten things to sell them, because as I sell them and as Helene of the North was there is nothing objectionable.

Now sit down and write us one of those nice little letters like you seem to love to write wherein you say that the business is rotten to the core, that editors do not buy stuff and that this department is nothing more than a bell cow to lead the betrayed ones in. Go ahead and write. We'll miss them if you don't. Of course, if you have real brains, you can do as this correspondent did; resting content with one ten dollar sale in about eighteen months and then collect the coin because she worked while she waited.

It Dosn't Help.

Here is a "helpful hint" from a beginner. He writes that if he has a newspaper insert, say of a divorce case, he clips such a paragraph from the local paper and affixes it to the script in such a manner that it can be detached for photographers.

That listens well, but suppose that you clip an account of the divorce of Mrs. Jones from her spouse, Mrs. Smith being named as the co-respondent. The item will, of course, give real names and possibly street addresses. And suppose some editor took the story and the slip by some chance was used. Wouldn't the company be real grateful some months later when Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Jones and Mr. Jones all sued for damages for mental anguish? They would not be likely to feel real gratitude.

It will be much cheaper and safer to have the item set by the company printer and run in proper form. It is these fussy little touches that stamp a script as being unworthy of reading because professional writers do not do such things.

Technique of the Photoplay

(Second Edition)

By EPES W. SARGENT

Not a line reprinted from the first edition, but an entirely new and exhaustive treatise of the Photoplay in its every aspect, together with a dictionary of technical terms and several sample scripts.

One hundred and seventy-six pages of actual text.

Special chapters on Developing the "Punch," Condensing the Script, Writing the Synopsis, Multiple Reel Stories, Talking Pictures, Copyrights, etc.

In cloth, two dollars. Full leather, three dollars.

By mail postpaid. Add ten cents if registration is desired.

Address all Orders to

THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD

17 Madison Avenue, New York City

Projection Department

Conducted by F. H. RICHARDSON

Operators' Union Directory, I. A. T. S. E.

NOTICE: Each union is entitled to have its roster of officers, meeting nights, etc., listed here once a year, free of cost. Preserve this list as it will not be republished. The mail address of the secretary should be included, and address of regular meeting place, if any.

Local Union No. 626, Nashville, Tenn.

James Dean, president; Herbert Smith, vice-president; J. I. Roberts, treasurer; L. V. Pilkerton, business agent; Fred Carter, secretary, P. O. Box 401; Harry Williams, sergeant-at-arms.

Manufacturers' Notice.

It is an established rule of this department that no apparatus or other goods will be endorsed or recommended editorially until the excellence of such articles has been demonstrated to its editor.

Important Notice.

Owing to the mass of matter awaiting publication it is impossible to reply through the department in less than two or three weeks. In order to give prompt service, those sending four cents, stamps (less than actual cost), will receive carbon copy of the department reply, by mail, without delay. Special replies by mail on matters which cannot be replied to in the department one dollar.

Both the first and second set of questions are now ready and printed in neat booklet form, the second half being seventy-six in number. Either booklet may be had by remitting 25 cents, money or stamps, to the editor, or both for 40 cents. Cannot use Canadian stamps. Every live, progressive operator should get a copy of these questions. You may be surprised at the number you cannot answer without a lot of study.

Question No. 121.

Best answer will be published, and the names of others sending in replies of excellence will appear in the Roll of Honor. Theater managers looking for high class men will do well to watch the Roll of Honor.

What is the limit of speed in an intermittent movement and why is it the limit? Is it important that the shutter be connected as directly as possible to the cam-shaft, and if so, why? Suppose you had a Power's Six or Six A and a 2½ inch E. F. objective, what would you do?

Roll of Honor on Question No. 115.

Question No. 115 brought out the largest assortment of correct replies we have had for quite some time. For the Roll of Honor we have selected the following: Joseph H. M. Smith, Fort Worth, Texas; M. W. Larmour, Waco, Texas; Ralph W. Martin, Los Angeles, California; Bert Carlson, Mineapolis, Minnesota; W. C. Crawford, Brooklyn, New York; Arthur H. Cuff, Gravenhurst, Ontario; Wilson Hays, Barton, Maryland; G. Betz, Osgood, Indiana; H. E. H., Lynn, Massachusetts; T. Richards, Blaine, Washington; Edward Marshall, Vancouver, British Columbia; A. D. Hotaling, Orlando, Florida; Walter E. Bryner, Springfield, Illinois, and Leonard Pagenhardt, Westernport, Maryland.

There were, however, two replies of more than passing excellence, namely, those of Bert Carlson, Minneapolis, and Ralph W. Martin, Los Angeles. The reply of Friend Martin is very complete, and extremely analytical. However, I think that for practical purposes operators will get more real meat out of Friend Carlson's reply, so I am publishing both of them, with the notation that I do not agree with Martin's statement that the star and geneva movement is a four to one. I know of no projection machine star and cam movement now in use having a ratio of less than five to one, and I believe most of them will exceed five and a half to one, whereas the new Edison Super can be set for almost anything.

Reply to Question No. 115.

By Bert Carlson, Minneapolis, Minn.

The Question:

Explain, in detail, the function of the revolving shutter of a projector. Is it possible to have as well-proportioned an inside shutter as outside shutter? Give full reasons for your answer.

The Answer:

The principal function of the revolving shutter is to cut the light from the screen when the film is in motion; so that the high lights of the picture will not show streaks on the screen, or so called travel ghost.

The shutter must also counteract the flicker these sixteen interruptions per second would make, and to this end one or more interruptions per picture are added. It is not only necessary to make the total light and darkness equal, i. e., a 50-50 shutter, but also the successive interruptions; i. e., each wing should be the same. If the cut-off wing is wider than the interrupter wings, there is flicker, because the longer span of darkness is periodic.

The new Edison, and best of all the Baird, are fine examples of perfectly proportioned shutters. Yes, we know about the one and one-half revolutions. Let us suppose our intermittent is a six to one. That makes sixty degree of the shutter passing the optical axis when the film is in motion. This leaves two interrupter wings of sixty degrees each, and three light spaces of sixty degrees, Fig. 2B.

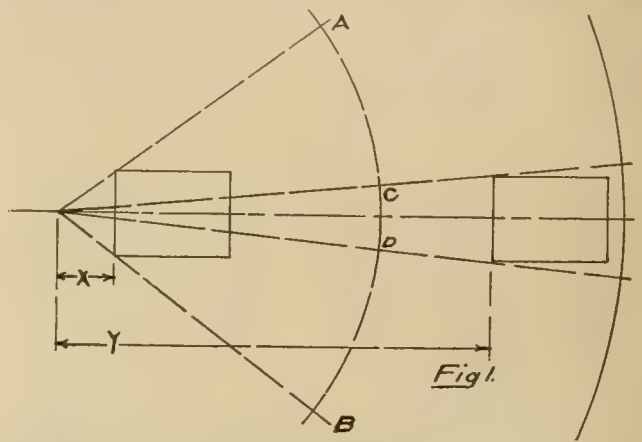

Fig 1.

But now comes something more: the shutter must cover the light before the film starts and after it stops. Let us call this part of the cut-off wing "allowance."

B in Fig. 2 represents an ideal shutter. In Fig 1 if the aperture were at X distance from the shutter shaft, AB would be the necessary allowance; were the aperture at Y distance, CD would be allowance. Thus we find the shutter should be as large as possible in diameter and not interfere with the stereo lens, to decrease the amount of allowance. (Beyond an 8 or 10 inch diameter the gain is very slight.—Ed.)

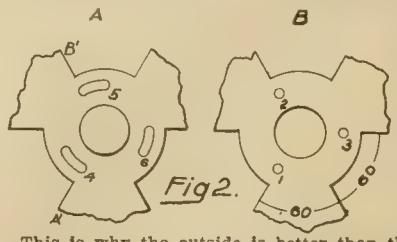

Fig 2.

This is why the outside is better than the inside shutter. Because it has more room than the inside shutter. The double Motiograph shutter, however, cuts the allowance in half; also it swings in a larger arc. However, the allowance spoils our ideal shutter, and I find the best remedy is the shutter shown in Fig. 2, plus more current.

Make two shutters, as shown at A and B, on one hub. One with holes 1-2-3, and the other slots 4-5-6 to fit the Power's hub. Adjust shutter B in the usual way, so as to just eliminate travel ghost on one side, then loosen the three screws, and adjust shutter A so as to just eliminate travel ghost on the other side. If the light spaces get too small it will be best to cut a little off wings A' B'. Of course the hub can be drilled to fit other shafts than the Power's. If we want results we will have to foot the bill, and the results must come first because it pays.

[I wish to compliment Brother Carlson on the excellence of his ideas and the facility with which he sets them forth. There is no reason why both or all three blades should not be made as per A. B., then all blades would be adjustable.—Ed.]

Reply to Question No. 115.

By Ralph W. Martin, Los Angeles, Cal.

The Answer:

The function of the revolving shutter on a projector is, primarily, to prevent travel ghost. The nature of travel ghost should already be well enough understood to need no further explanation with regard to defining the terms. The main blade of the shutter can easily be made wide enough to eliminate travel ghost, but this construction often involves and produces another fault called flicker.

The fundamental principle involved in the phenomenon called flicker is what? Who dares say? Here are a few facts:

(1) With the regular star and cam intermittent, which is nominally a four to one movement, the main shutter blade must have an angular measurement of at least 72 degrees in order to eliminate travel ghost; but with just one blade the flicker will be excessive to a prohibitive degree.

(2) If, in the above case, a second blade with a nearly equal angular measurement with the main blade, be placed opposite, as in the regular A. C. shutter type, the flicker is diminished, though still noticeable.

(3) If three blades are used instead of only two, and the blades are arranged around the circle so as to give as nearly as possible equal periods of light and darkness, the flicker will be still further diminished.

(4) If a true six to one movement is used, so that the main blade can be made exactly 60 degrees wide, and the two auxiliary blades are also made 60 degrees wide, and the light spaces between are also 60 degrees, then flicker will be reduced to its practical minimum.

(5) Any form of revolving shutter, no matter what the number, width, or arrangement of its blades, will practically eliminate flicker, provided it be revolved at sufficiently high speed.

(6) A shutter with only one blade, the same having an angular measurement of about 90 degrees, and revolving at the rate of 2,880 R. P. M., will practically eliminate flicker, provided it be given ample diameter, and provided the light beam is sufficiently narrow at the shutter position.

(7) The equivalent of paragraph 6 would be a shutter having a very large diameter and a large number of blades, each blade having a width of one-fourth that of the light spaces between the blades; in other words, a wagon wheel. (Handbook, page 223, lines 14-29.) However, it appears that lines 14-15 are contradictory with lines 26-29.

(8) To determine what constitutes "ample diameter" is very difficult. Increasing the diameter of the shutter (i. e., we mean twice the distance from the shutter shaft to the light beam, centers) has the same effect as diminishing the thickness of the light beam, because by this method the light spot on the shutter is made to occupy a smaller angular measurement of the whole shutter circle. This latter effect is always advantageous, since it allows the use of a narrower main blade and a consequently better arrangement of flicker blades, especially with a four to one movement. In this respect the large diameter shutter is particularly favorable.

(9) It can pretty nearly be put down as a sound principle that the larger the shutter diameter and the narrower the light beam, the better will be the all around conditions. Of course the size of the shutter is limited, for mechanical and other obvious reasons.

It is possible to have as well proportioned an inside as an outside shutter, but the growing tendency of machine manufacturers favors the before-the-lens type. The awkward mechanical construction required for securing an inside shutter of sufficiently large diameter has been against this type, and commerce travels along the lines of least resistance. The growing popular favor of the outside shutter has caused it to come into very nearly universal use.

Texas Is Right.

A. H. Cuff, Gravenhurst, Canada, encloses 25 cents for the question booklet, and says:

> I have read the World three years, and the more I see of it the more I need it, especially the projection department. I have been studying the questions and find them very helpful; also I think the Texas brother is correct when he says that "the ones he studies were remembered, but the ones he waits to see the answers to he forgets." Am having trouble with my light—blue spot in the center of the picture. Have looked the table over and cannot find anything to correspond with my conditions. Back focus is 3⅝ inches, objective 1¾ inches in diameter. For the last six months I have been using salted carbons, and find the light to be brighter and softer by reason thereof. I use an unsalted one in the top, and the salted one below.

Your lens diameter is too small. You may use a 1⅝ inch diameter lens with two 7½ inch condensers and not less than 22 inches from the apex of the front condenser to the film, or you may use a 1¾ inch daimeter lens with one 6½ and one 7½ inch condenser, with from 18 to 19 inches between the apex of the front condenser and the film. With your present lens you would probably get fairly good results with two 7½ inch condensers with about 26 to 28 inches between the apex of the front condenscr and the film—I say probably, but would not like to guarantee it.

Something Wrong.

H. W. Griggs, Milwaukee, Wisconsin, says:

> Do we get any more light ray dope? I have a Power's 220-volt, 35-ampere rheostat that gets a bright cherry Wisconsin red at 25 amperes A. C. on either 240 volts or 120-line, either whole or half cut in. I blew a 220-test bulb on a supposed 240-volt pump line—seems more like 500 volts, doesn't it.

You had better have those lines of yours tested, Brother Griggs. Something is very radically wrong. If all the coils in that rheostat get cherry red, why your line voltage is evidently a whole lot more than it is supposed to be. If only a portion of them get red then there may be something wrong with the rheostat itself, though a ground as heavy as that would certainly make itself evident. Have the lines tested is my advice—and do it quickiy too before somebody gets badly burnt or killed. You bet you will get more light ray dope—hot stuff, too!

Mercury Arc Rectifier Instruction Book.

The Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, East Pittsburgh, Pa., has issued an Instruction Book on mercury arc rectifiers for various purposes, including motion picture work.

This book contains considerable data on rectifiers, and may be had by addressing the Publicity Department, Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, East Pittsburgh, Pa.

That Punching Stunt Again.

S. M. Crocker, Louisberg, North Carolina, submits samples of film and says:

> Please express your opinion of the fellow who will punch > his film as per samples. Nearly every Fox feature we get has a variety of punch marks in it similar to these. Saw one of your Handbooks the other day, and it was great. Tried to get the other fellow to forget it, but there was nothing doing. Would you advise me as to the best color for the side lights of the auditorium, the ceiling being a light brown and the side walls a medium dark green.

The punch of films in this manner constitutes nothing short of an outrage, as as been pointed out before. Just why the Fox people allow their features to be butchered up in this way passeth understanding. It certainly does not predispose theater managers to ask for a "second helping." Would suggest that you put in an order for the third edition of the Handbook, which will be released in about five weeks. Don't know the price yet, but you may take it from me that it will be worth every cent we will ask. As to the side lights, well I am not a believer in side lights, except as a purely ornamental proposition, and in your case I would suggest the covering them with some sort of translucent glass, and both yellow and blue are complementary to green, so you cannot go far out of the way in choosing a combination of these two colors. You can get many kinds of ornamental fixtures designed for this very purpose.

Insufficient Data.

L. Stinnitt, Waterloo, Iowa, says:

> Am using an Edison Exhibition Model on a 55 foot throw, with a 6½ and a 7½ condenser. Can't get a round spot and am up a stump to know the reason why. Have used different makes of carbons, changed condensers, and shifted my lamphouse and carbons, but without result.

Why in the name of heaven don't you tell me the kind of current you are using? Also make a sketch showing the shape of the spot, and describe the condition with some reasonable degree of accuracy, and I will try to help you out. I am not a mind reader, however, much as I often would like to be. As to the patches you sent, why, what exchange did they come from? It is utterly useless to send me bad patches unless you tell which exchange is the guilty party.

Laid the Ghost.

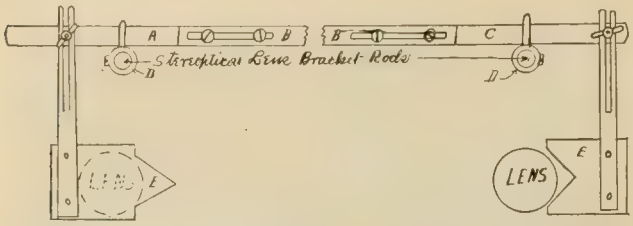
G. Betz, Osgood, Indiana, says:

> Enclosed find answer to Question 111. (Came too late to be considered. Ed.) By-the-way you caused the noise in the Powers Six B to beat it. Thanks. May you live long and keep up the good work! I have just run "The Mysteries of the Grand Hotel." The film has a sort of up and down motion and some titles look as if they had buckled over the aperture. Have tested my machine and find it O. K.

Probably the trouble was in the camera or printing machine. To all of which the Kalem folks will kindly take notice.

A Neat, Practical Dissolver.

F. J. Merklein, operator Sumner theater, Sumner avenue, Brooklyn, New York, is the inventor of a thoroughly practical, cheap, and very excellent apparatus by means of which one may produce a perfect dissolving effect, using the single stereopticon lens of two separate projection machines.



The details of Brother Merklein's invention, which will presently be placed on the market, are shown in the accompanying drawing. I have personally investigated this apparatus, watched it work, and can recommend it. In many theaters it is the wish of the operator to secure a dissolving effect, but the manager does not feel justified in going to the expense of buying a separate dissolver. In such cases as this the device, to be known as the Buttlein Dissolver, will fill the gap, and fill it perfectly too. The effect is precisely the same as is had with the regular dissolver.

The apparatus consists of a nickel plated bar in three sections, A, B, C, the same being adjustable in length, and long enough to reach from the stereopticon lens of one projector to the stereopticon lens of the other projector. This rod or bar is joined as shown in the diagram, and sets between two pins on two small castings D-D, which slide on to the end of either stereopticon bracket carrying rod, so that the whole thing may be installed in less than five minutes, and may be removed in less than five seconds, the latter operation consisting in merely lifting parts A, B, C out from between the pins. Parts A, B, C carry dissolving shutters E-E.

I think the whole thing is pretty fully explained in the sketch, and requires nothing further to make it understandable. It is one of the really simple, practical inventions which are evolved from time to time.

Look at the Tables.

E. E. Bair, manager and operator, Fayette theater, Celina, Ohio, says:

> Bet I am a new one on your list. Am manager and operator of a brand new show house seating 220. Have a gold fibre screen and latest model Simplex machine. Don't think because this is my first letter that I am not a regular reader of the department, and believe me our department sure contains some great dope. Will you kindly answer the following: 1. What distance should the condensers be spaced apart? I placed them ⅛ or 1/16 of an inch. 2. How would you set the carbons so as to not make a buzzing noise, and still maintain good light, for "Good Light" is my middle name. 3. What makes the terminals at the arc burn off so rapidly, and how would you fasten them? I use soderless screw terminals, but, at that, have to change them about once a week. 4. Would you recommend wood alcohol to clean the machine, or would gasoline be better? 5. Do you think there is any possible chance of there being "travel ghost" if the shutter is properly set—this to settle a dispute. 6. Recently I was discussing the two and three-wing shutter with a fellow operator. Here is my argument. I said that a three-wing shutter was all right with A. C. current ("A. C. current" is equivalent to saying "alternating current current." Ed.) provided the throw be a short one and the wings of the shutter not of the same width; also I said that for D. C. a three-wing shutter should be used, and the wings should be all the same width.

Well, Brother Bair, I will reply to your questions as follows. 1. Your distance is correct. See light ray articles in issues of September 18, 25, and October 2, 9, 16 and 23, which I would advise you to carefully study. 2. The set of the carbons has little to do with the "buzzing" noise. If you use an economizer see to it that it does not set near any sheet iron—no nearer than 18 inches or 2 feet, as the induction set up by the economizer will cause vibration in sheet metal if located near thereto. There is always some noise accompanying the use of the alternating current arc. 3. Rather a difficult question. Possibly you are working your wires right up to their capacity, in which case the added mechanical heat in the lamphouse would cause the wires to burn out more quickly. I would suggest that you double a piece of No. 6 solid copper wire and attach it to the lamp binding post, carrying it back two or three inches, so as to remove the connection from the immediate vicinity of the arc, joining your asbestos stranded to the end of the copper wire by means of a small bolt. I have always recommended the cutting off of the asbestos wires at the back of the lamphouse as soon as they begin to show signs of deterioration inside next to the binding post. This will mean probably as much as twice a week in some instances where an old fashioned, poorly ventilated lamphouse is used on an all day run. The two feet of wire amputated is worth about 25 cents, but it won't take long to waste 25 cents worth of current in the added resistance set up by burned wires. Briefly, the condition is due to excessive heat. It is up to you to discover the reason and remedy it. But take my advice and do not try to save too much on wires. Cut 'em off as soon as they show signs of deterioration. 4. Gasoline by all means. It is just as good, and cheaper. 5. Yes. The shutter may be set right, but not be of right proportions to fit the local conditions. 6. You are wrong. The width of the blades have nothing to do with the matter—that is to say as effecting the argument in hand. The three-wing shutter with blades and light spaces as nearly equal as possible is the thing for D. C., and for A. C., too, provided the speed is never high enough so that the blades would get into synchronism with one side of the alternations. In practice the two-winged is usually employed for 60 cycle A. C., due to the constant liability of synchronizing. See handbook for detailed explanation.

Led to Slaughter.

Seattle, Washington, does not like over-speeding the film. He sends in some verses which start off like this:

> "While looking for a place to go,
> I came upon a picture show.
> The show was called 'The Devil's Daughter
> And six good reels were led to slaughter."

I cannot spare the space to quote the rest of these verses, but the "led to slaughter" is distinctly good; incidentally I might say that good reels are literally led to slaughter in thousands of theaters every single day of the year.

Local Conditions.

New Albany, Indiana, says:

> This is the first time I have written the department, but would like to say a few words regarding local conditions; also to answer question 111. The theater where I am operating seats 1,000. We use two Powers Six A motor driven projectors, converting 220 volts A. C. by means of a mercury arc rectifier. Length of throw 110 feet, projecting to a white screen. Have recently installed a Fort Wayne compensarc, to be used in case of an emergency. New Albany has about thirty thousand inhabitants, but cannot boast of a local; wish it could. The reason I have not doped out any of the questions before lies in the fact that my duties consist of sign writing, advertising, and a few other things, as well as operating seven days a week, during which time we usually run from three to five matinees, therefore when not working I am usually either eating or sleeping. There are five theaters here, therefore you can see it is not only up to me to get the people here, but to send them away pleased, which I do by projecting a clear, steady picture, always in frame and by maintaining a clear, steady light. Of course the above probably don't interest you very much, but I wanted to let you know why I have not answered the questions, so you would not think I was a dead one. I cut the department out and paste it in a book in index form; also keep a dictionary close at hand in case some of the terms are above my head.

You are in error, brother, your letter is interesting. I firmly believe in publishing local letters of this kind, so far as space will allow. Am sure the conditions you work under will be interesting to operators in other sections of the country. Come again when the spirit moves. The "no local there" item is most respectfully referred to my good friends Charles Shay and Lemaster, with suggestion that they get busy.

All Gone.

Lewis R. Boyd, Syracuse, New York, writes:

> Slide coating receipt you sent is O. K. Many thanks. All the boys of Local 376 are striving to do their best, and projection is good. We recently added two more houses to our list. However, there is still a lot we can all learn, and for that reason I want to know if you can tell me where I can secure the first and second editions of the Handbook. Will get the third edition as soon as it comes out.

No use to ask. That particular question comes in very nearly every day, but the second edition is all sold, disbursed, vanished and gone, and so is the first.

I Certainly Would.

G. Betz, Osgood, Indiana, says:

> Table No. 1, October 16 issue, don't go far enough. My manager is thinking of installing a motor generator. We use 20 amperes, 220 volts D. C. through a Powers circular rheostat. Would you recommend it?

I certainly would. The use of 220 volt current through a rheostat is tremendously wasteful. As to the table, it goes far enough, but I suppose your lens doesn't. Your back focus is 4½ inches. Well, the least allowable diameter of your lens would be 1⅞ inches (see 4.52 in right hand column) with two 7½ inch condensers and 22 to 23 inches between apex of front lens and film, but a much better condition would be a lens 2⅛ inches in diameter, with one 6½ and one 7½ inch condenser with 18 to 19 inches between apex of front lens and film.

Light Trouble.

H. E. Gonder, Wichita, Kansas, writes:

> American Standard machine No. 2; 30 to 45 amperes A. C., through new Powers rheostat; get good white screen, with carbons close together when first starting the light, but in five minutes the spot has separated into two parts, elliptical in shape, when the carbons are only 3/16 of an inch apart. With carbons ¾ of an inch apart spots are separated by about 3 inches, the lower spot from the top carbon being the brighter of the two. After the two spots appear, closing the carbons until the spots merge, dims the light on the screen. Light flares badly. Have set the carbons in all possible positions. With 6½ meniscus in rear and 7½ plano in front the following distances give best results. Arc to rear condenser 2½ inches; front condenser to aperture 17 inches; projection distance 73 feet; picture 12½ feet. It is the first time I have called on you for help. It might be the carbons are too nearly perpendicular owing to the limitations of the lamp, but I am inclined to believe it is due to the condensers. The machine is operating nicely otherwise.

No, it is not in the condensing lenses, Brother Gonder. You have, I think, put your finger on a part of the trouble when you say the carbons are too nearly perpendicular. You will have to angle that lamp more. However, if that cannot be done the next best thing is to angle your lower carbon forward and bring the top one out to meet it, but this is not a good condition. It is only a makeshift. Also I would suggest that for the amperage you are pulling you use a ⅝ inch cored carbon above and a ½ inch, or 9/16 inch cored carbon below. The one-half inch size will needle badly, but that will be all the better so far as the light question be concerned, though it will make you a lot of extra work. Another thing: With 45 amperes A. C. your arc should not be more than about ⅛ inch long. You ought to use 60 amperes.

A Peculiar Condition.

Saranac Lake, New York, says that, up to a short time ago he had no trouble whatever, but all of a sudden the following fault developed:

When a figure moves straight across the screen it moves jerkily, and the effect continues until the projector has been speeded up to 80 a minute, when it very nearly disappears.

Of course, we all know what the effect is, but can anyone tell me why it should show now when it didn't show before. The screen is a satin-finish mirror screen, and according to the theater manager there has been no change made in any of the apparatus connected with projection.

Better Than Ever.

J. H. Marchand, Baton Rouge, Louisiana, says:

Have been a reader of the department ever since I began operating—four years ago. It has helped me all the time and I like it better than ever now. I want to thank you for conducting the light ray experiments for us. Am a user of two Simplex machines on 112-foot throw, and would like to know how my condenser ought to be. Have the convex sides one-half inch apart on both machines. On one machine I separated them just a little less than three-eighths of an inch and it improved the light some. If I put the condensers much closer together I get a blue spot on the screen. The back condenser is 12½ inches from the film tracks on aperture plate. Lenses 6⅝ E.F. with a 1½-inch opening in front. Condensers 7½ inches back and 6½ in front. Enclosed find reply to question 113.

Why don't you follow Table No. 1, October 16th issue, Brother Marchand? Measure the exact distance from the back of your objective lens to the film tracks on the aperture plate when the picture is in focus on the screen. Next measure the diameter of your objective; then look down in the right-hand column of Table No. 1 until you come to the figure representing your back focus, and following across the horizontal line containing that figure until you come to the last, or left-hand column, where you will find the least lens diameter of objective you can use on that back focus, and looking at the top of the right-hand column you will find that you must have two 7½-inch condensers, placed with their convex sides almost touching, with 22 inches between the apex of the front lens (the front lens is the one away from the light—next the mechanism), and the film. You will also find many other combinations which you can use. Or, if you send me the back focus of your objective when the picture is in focus on the screen, and its diameter, I will tell you what you need.

Up-to-Date Manager and Operator.

Recently F. J. Merklein, operator at the Sumner theater, Sumner avenue, Brooklyn, New York, asked the editor to come over and examine a dissolving apparatus which he had invented. While at the Sumner theater I met Manager Loeb, who, while not large in stature, makes up for that deficiency in breadth of thorough understanding of the amusement business. Friend Loeb is a broad gauged, painstaking, careful manager who studies his business, and once having made up his mind as to the advisibility of taking a certain step, promptly proceeds without any stuttering or hesitation to take it. Brother Loeb not only has ideas of his own, but also has the courage to put them into practice. The operating room, conducted by Brother Merklein, not only shows the application of energy, but of brains as well. As I have often said, any fool can twist a crank, but it takes something more than that to make a real operator. Merklein is a real operator; also Mr. Loeb is a genuine manager. That sounds like a bouquet, but is merely a statement of fact, based on what I saw at the Sumner. And here are a few of the things which brought about the foregoing note of appreciation.

The lighting system of the theater seems to be, as far as I could judge in the daytime, very well planned. The objectionable side lights are displaced by fixtures which are merely ornamental and, although illuminated, not used as an illuminant. The theater seats 1,100 on one floor, there being no balcony. Three hundred of the rear, center seats are reserved at an advanced admission price; the regular prices being 15 and 20 cents three days a week, and 10 and 15 cents on other days. The orchestra consists of five first class union musicians, headed by B. Mole, violinist. The program consists of Paramount, Metro, Fox and General. There are four Simplex motor driven machines, two in the auditorium operating room, and two immediately above in the Roof Garden operating room and, by-the-way, that Roof Garden is about the nicest thing of the kind I have seen up to date, with the single exception of the screen, which stands in need of a hood, but this, Friend Loeb tells me, will be erected this summer. The screen is held by heavy, steel I and T beams. Three hundred of the center section rear seats are painted white, and command a higher admission price. The Roof Garden operating room is of concrete. There is a direct connection between the operating room below and the one above, by means of a ladder. In the basement is an auxiliary fire pump apparatus, consisting of a 15 h. p. motor, with an automatic starter, which supplies four stand pipes and maintains a constant pressure of sixty pounds—this in addition to the regular fire connections with the city mains. The current is D. C. through rheostats, and in winter one of the rheostats is located in Mr. Loeb's office, where it supplies the place of a heating stove. Brother Merklein has a 4 c. p. incandescent inside his projector or mechanisms just in front of the lower loop, and an arrangement by which they may be instantly lighted and extinguished. These lamps furnish him the means of framing the picture accurately in the aperture while threading. Another clever stunt is the placing of a string of twelve small lights in a reflector just above the screen. By quick make and break, a storm or lightning effect is produced which is very realistic when accompanied by proper music.

In the operating room is a neatly framed card as follows:

ELECTRICAL.

1. Connections
   - Machine
   - Motor
2. Grounds
   - Line
   - Lamp
   - Rheostat

MECHANICAL.

3. Machine
   - Oil
   - Adjust
   - Belts
4. Motor
   - Bearings
   - Brushes
   - Commutator
5. Lamp
   - Terminals
   - Jaws
   - General Condition
6. Lenses
   - Condensers
   - Objective
   - Stereo

GENERAL.

- Operating Room
  - Sand pails
  - Extinguishers
  - Clean
- Entire Apparatus

1, meaning that on Monday the connections are to be looked over; 2 on Tuesday the line tested for grounds, etc. I would recommend that some operators of my acquaintance read this card over very carefully, and then make a copy for their own operating room, hanging it immediately above the observation port where it will be in constant view.

From Australia.

H. J. Dicconson, operator, Gladesville Theater, Gladesville, Sydney, Australia, sends in money for the two question booklets, and says:

I am over here on the opposite side of the planet, but am glad to see there is at least one country alive to the importance of betterment of picture projection, and things pertaining to the picture industry in general. I get every issue of the Moving Picture World and literally "eat" it from cover to cover, but the one part of it I particularly like is the projection department, as I am a handle grinder, who wants to know more of the finer points of projection. I enclose 2 shillings 6 pence for the question and answer books. Do you know we are practically without carbons over here? I am at present using 16 mm cored carbons bottom, and 22 mm cored top, pulling 45 amperes—cannot get any more. The throw is 87 feet, and am using a seven-year-old Pathe machine. Results are to the boss's satisfaction, but to myself—rotten. In closing let me wish both to yourself and the Moving Picture World every success, and all kinds of good luck to the boys across the Big Shark Pond.

There are no "question and answer" books. You will have to dig for the answers, except that one is published each week in the department. Yes, we are forging ahead in knowledge of projection over here, and improving in other matters pertaining to the business as well. Great Scott! Has Australia also still got the type of manager who clings to the antediluvian, prehistoric days type of projector? Seven years old? Well, that is worse than some of the managers over here would do. I think the limit in the United States and Canada is about five years. Even our rankest imitation of a manager is willing to admit that after five years' use it is really worth while putting in a new and modern machine. While it will reach you quite a good deal late, still I wish you a very "Merry Christmas and a Prosperous New Year," in which, I am sure, the 40,000 or more operators of the United States and Canada will join. Come again when you feel like it, and give us some detailed information concerning conditions in the Land of the Kangaroo.

From Alaska.

C. D. Payne, Ketchikan, Alaska, orders the question booklets, and makes inquiry concerning the Handbook. Says he wants something for a "student operator."

The question booklets have been sent, together with information concerning the new Handbook. However, we would be glad to have a note from Brother Payne setting forth some of the conditions of work in that part of Uncle Sam's territory, where snow and ice hold center of the stage for the greater part of the year.

Motion Picture Photography*

Conducted by CARL LOUIS GREGORY

Inquiries.

QUESTIONS in cinematography addressed to this department will receive carbon copy of the department's reply by mail when four cents in stamps are inclosed. Special replies by mail on matters which cannot be replied to in this department, $1.

Manufacturers' Notice.

It is a rule of this department that no apparatus will be recommended editorially until the value of such appliances has been demonstrated to its editor.

Title Making.

Lewis Wener, Canada asks:

1. Are all view finders on motion picture cameras the same size?

2. What kind of a lens is a Universal Focus F 6.3? Is it a good lens for taking local events?

3. Could you use the same developer for motion picture films as that used for developing Kodak films?

4. What is the cheapest way of making titles, and how are they made?

1. There are many types and sizes of view finders, but each is made so that it shows just the same field or view as is taken by the lens and camera with which it is used.

There are several types of view finders, the two most popular being the direct vision finder and the camera obscura or miniature camera finder.

The direct vision finder consists of a rectangular section of a negative lens which gives a reduced upright image. As the field of this type of finder varies with the angle at which it is viewed, it is provided with centering sights, much the same as a peep sight on a rifle, so that the correct view is given by aligning it through these sights. These view finders are, as a rule, made just the right size to show just the same angle of view as that of the camera lens with which they are used but they may be adapted for any lens of lesser angle by marking or blocking off the edges so that these new lines include the same view as the narrower angle of lens with which they are to be ussed.

The camera obscura type of finder is the miniature model of a camera with the ground glass protected from direct light by a shield or hood so that the image may be seen without covering the head with a dark cloth. The image, of course, is inverted just as on the ground glass of any other camera, but it has the advantage that the image is an actual one and remains the same at whatever angle it is viewed from. It is also advantageous from the fact that the angle of view of lenses of several different focal length lenses may be easily marked upon the ground glass with a pencil.

To check or re-adjust the lines of a view finder, attach it to the camera and with a piece of ground film in the aperture, place the camera about twelve or fifteen feet away from a window. Focus the camera on the window and turn the camera on the tripod until the image of the edge of the window coincides with the edge of the aperture plate at the side; now look through the view finder, and if the image of the window in the finder does not coincide with the edge of the finder make a mark on the glass with a pencil or a very small piece of gummed paper. Do this with the other side and the top and bottom and you have the finder checked for whatever distance you have set the camera from the window. This will be approximately correct for all distances beyond eight feet. The view finder should be attached to the camera as near to the lens as possible, so as to get as near the same point view of the lens as possible. As it is never possible to obtain exactly the same point of view for the finder as for the lense, close-ups will not register exactly the same in the camera as in the finder. A few makes of finders are equipped with a compensating device so that by turning a screw the angle of the finder is changed to make the view coincide with the camera at any determined distance.

2. A universal focus lens is a misleading term, as there is no such thing as a lens with a universal focus. A universal focus lens is a term used to describe a lens without a focusing device which is set so that objects at the usual distance from the camera, twelve to fifteen feet, are in sharp focus. These lenses are almost always of relatively small aperture and short focus which gives great depth of focus so that all objects, except very near the camera, are sharp enough without its being necessary to change the focus.

Such a lens cannot be used for taking close-ups, but might be all right for ordinary local event stuff and scenic pictures. While it is possible to develop negative films in ordinary prepared kodak developer, it is not economical to do so, and kodak developer is decidedly not suitable for developing positive cinematograph film.

*Copyright, 1916, by the Chalmers Publishing Co.

The formula which is included in every box of Eastman Cinematograph film is a very good one to use, and is not hard for any photographer to mix.

4. The cheapest way of making titles, where only one or two, or even a few, are wanted, is to have them printed or neatly painted by a sign painter on white cardboard and then photograph with positive stock in the camera with the emulsion side turned away from the lens. Take as many feet as you need and then develop them with a contrasty developer. The film is reversed in the camera so that when the titles are thrown on the screen they will not be reversed like the reflection in a mirror, as they would be if the film were not turned. If it is desired to make a number of titles by printing from the negative, you only have to make a positive print from a title made in this manner and then use this print as a negative for making further prints.

Positive stock is not nearly so sensitive as negative stock, so you will require rather a strong light and a slow turning of the handle to get the proper exposure. It is best to make several tests before going ahead to make titles in this manner, as, while they must have sufficient exposure, they cannot stand much over-exposure; as over-exposure tends to clog up the fine lines in the letters and make them show up very dark on the screen, and in case of very great over-exposure all of the finer lines in the letter will have been so blocked up that they cannot be distinguished.

A Correction.

Eric E. Mayell, editor of the Pathe News, writes as follows:

> I notice on page 246 of your issue for Janaudy 8, you give the address of the Pathe News wrongly. It is 1 Congress street, Jersey City, N. J.
>
> With reference to the query which is there answered, I might say we prefer topical negatives undeveloped, and our price is $1 per foot for all used.
>
> I enclose copy of a little booklet recently issued, which we shall be glad to send to anyone interetsed free, while the stock lasts.

We are glad to make this correction, and if anyone knows of other markets for negative film, this department will be glad to print any details for the many camera owners who are looking for ways to turn their cameras to profitable employment.

Glycerine for Static.

A. Lindmark, Chicago, writes:

> You claim that a brass handle on the crank of a camera will draw away static; I disagree with you, because I have tried it without result.
>
> The best way for me, brass handle or not, is to sweat the film the night before, use it and keep it pliable by having a piece of cotton saturated with glycerine in a lower corner of the retort.
>
> Some time ago on a rush job, had to work a Bell and Howell camera. I did not have time to treat the film in any way, took the outfit from a warm place out into the cold, stood in about eight inches of snow, ground off 400 feet without a bit of electric marking on it.
>
> Hope you will explain the reason if you can.

If I could explain the reason for the vagaries of static; why it occurs when you don't expect it and don't occur when you do expect it, I wouldn't have to do much more than sit back and draw my royalties from the concerns that use film.

Another Camera Aspirant.

Geo. H. Maissin, Conn., writes:

> I am at present working in the office of a machine shop and probably will be for several months to come. When I sever my connection with this company, I will be ready to take up learning how to become a cameraman, providing there is any cnance. What I want to know are the following: 1. Do the film companies take in young men to learn this line of work? 2. How long does it take to learn? 3. What are the commencing wages? 4. Is there always a demand for cameramen?

1. I do not know of any film company that hires young men with the view of teaching them the business.

2. Length of time to learn camera wok depends entirely on the ability and previous experience of the man who is learning. Not less than a year anyway.

3. Beginners wages in a film factory are about ten or twelve dollars a week for a young man.

4. There is always a demand for first class cameramen, but there are always a number of poor ones out of a job and once in a while even the best ones get out of work for a while, for various reasons, such as a cut down in the working force of a studio which finds itself overproducing.

Music for the Picture

Conducted by S. M. BERG.

INQUIRIES.

QUESTIONS concerning any phase of the work of the orchestra leader in a photoplay theater may be addressed to the Moving Picture World, and the answers of Mr. Berg will appear in a Question and Answer Department, which will be a regular feature of our Music Page.

MUSICAL SETTING FOR "THE LURE OF HEART'S DESIRE."

(Released January 17, by the Metro Pictures Corporation).

Suggestions Prepared by S. M. BERG.

By Special Arrangements with G. Schirmer, Inc., Music Publishers, New York.

This "Musical Suggestion Cue Sheet" is intended as a partial solution of the problem of what to play for the picture and to assist in overcoming that chaotic condition encountered when the film is not available until almost the hour of showing, resulting in the first performance being a mere rehearsal.

For the benefit of those readers of the Moving Picture World who are exhibitors of Metro films the following suggestions for an accompaniment to "The Lure of Heart's Desire" were prepared by the photoplay department of the New York music publishing house of G. Schirmer, Inc. This advance publication will afford to the progressive leader an opportunity to acquaint himself with the general character of the film story he is to portray with his orchestra.

The timing of the picture is based on a speed of 15 minutes to a thousand feet. The time indications will assist the leader in anticipating the various cues, which may consist of the printed sub-title (marked T) or by a described action (marked D).

Further inquiries concerning any phase of the work of the orchestra leader in a photoplay theater may be addressed to the Moving Picture World and the answers of Mr. Berg will appear in a Question and Answer Department, which will be a regular feature of our Music Page.

Dramatic story of Alaskan mining life alternating with New York City life. Scenes of Alaskan mining camp, saloon, dog-sledding, the wilderness, fashionable New York gambling house, parties, cabaret and dancing, New Year's Eve celebration in popular cafe with specialty dancing and Father Time appearing at 12 o'clock.

Scheduled time: Five reels (about 4,775 feet), 71¾ minutes.

The THEME selected is "A Love Song"—Bartlett.

Time.		Sub-titles or descriptive cues.	Music.
0	D	Opening.	Viennoise Waltz—Duval.
5¼	T	Ethel seeks relief from her financial worries.
6¼	T	A broken rudder and an inexperienced sailor.	Allegro No. 1.*
8	D	When Jim carries Ethel to his boat.	A Love Song—Bartlett. (Allegretto) (THEME)
11	T	"You are the first, the only woman in my life."
11½	T	"That boat will take you to shore."	Barchetta—Nevin. (Allegretto grazioso)
14	D	Alaskan mining camp scene.	Morris Dance—Noble. (Allegro moderato)
16¼	T	Little Snowbird takes her blanket to market.
17½	T	"Crazy Jake" tells the same old story.	Tarantella—Bohm. (Allegro molto con fuoco)
19½	T	When the lordly peaks like sentinels stand.
21¾	T	"The high card wins her boys."	Hurry No. 2.*
23½	T	"I guess you're the best man stranger—shake."	Intermezzo—Huerter. (Moderato grazioso)
24½	T	"She's yours."
25¾	T	Ethel pursues her social ambition financed by Martin.	The Tune they Croon in the U. S. A.—Lean. (Allegro)
28¾	T	A thief doth fear in every bush an officer.	The Bim-Bims—Adam. (Moderato)
32½	T	Next morning.
32¾	D	When Crazy Jake drinks from the flask.	Hurry No. 3.*
35½	T	Brotherhood of the trail.	Prelude—Jarnefelt. (Allegro)
37	T	"Crazy Jake" comes through for his pard.
37½	D	Shot.
41	T	"Crazy Jake's" legacy.	Aria—F♯ Minor—Schumann. (Andante cantabile)
42¾	T	Weary weeks of search and toil.
43¾	T	The Spider and the Fly.	Repeat: A Love Song. (THEME)
46	T	You may live in luxury or forfeit your liberty."
46¾	T	His dream of wealth realized, Carew returns.	Rachety Coo (Katinka)—Friml. (Animato con grazia)
48	T	The path forbidden.
48¾	T	New Year's Eve at Murrays.	Keep Going—Kleinecke. (Allegro)
49¼	D	Father time.	Bells striking 12 o'clock.
49¾	T	"Happy New Year."	Debutante One-Step—Herbert.
52¼	T	"I have made a fortune."
52½	T	Lonely and weary.	Repeat: A Love Song. (THEME)
53¼	T	The proposal.
54¼	T	Ethel determines to end.	Clarice—Loud. (Valse entr'act)
58	T	"Give him up or I will tell."
58½	T	"Behave, that gun is loaded."	Agitato No. 2.*
59¾	D	Shot.
62¼	T	After the trial.	Repeat: A Love Song. (THEME)
63½	D	When Carew thinks of Snowbird.
64	T	"Make out my bill"	Galop No. 2.*
68½	T	Knowing the dangers.	Repeat: A Love Song. (THEMS)
70½	T	Three years later. Devotion.	Go to Sleep My Baby (Lullaby).
71¾	T	The End.

For the convenience of our readers a price list on the above-mentioned numbers has been compiled, which can be found in the ad of G. Schirmer, Inc., on page 690.

HOW TO PLAY THEMES.

By S. M. BERG.

THE following is a summary of a letter addressed to the editor by a valued reader: "I am a leader of a small orchestra and have been trying to follow your musical suggestion cue sheets with the idea of the theme, but find great difficulty in arranging the music when I have only one copy of that special number. Please explain how to get back each time without causing the musicians to become confused. I think when one has each scene fitted properly he has enough to do to make quick and simple changes without having to go back for the theme a number of times. In attempting this I find my musicians get confused and are unable to follow me."

In connection with this, the editor fully realizes that it is not a difficult thing for one musician to tell another what to do and play, but that the real help lies in explaining how to do and how to play. The following may help to solve the problem.

The seating of musicians on the stage or pit is of primary importance. The leader should be placed on a platform high enough so that he is able to see all his musicians without the obstruction of lamps or stands. When the pianist is leader and is seated in the pit he should have a platform for his instrument and self at least twelve inches higher than the strings and wood-winds, so that all these musicians are able to see him clearly. The cello and brass should then be raised about six inches, enabling them to see over the strings and wood-wind. Of course, the string base, either stands or uses a high stool and the drummer has his usual platform.

Speaking of pianos, personal experience has proven that a small grand piano is far more practical than the upright so much in common use. When there is a director, or the violinist fills this position, such a piano can be turned so that the musician can see both the picture and director, which arrangement is almost impossible with the upright. The following sketch is a practical seating plan for small orchestra with either piano or violin director.

Sketch 1.

Some day serious attention will be given to the music stand used in motion picture theaters. What is required, is one with a frame almost twice the length of any on the market with the lights projected from each side instead of from the customary bulky frame on the top that also breaks the line of vision to the director. An excellent idea is to use amber tinted bulbs instead of white. This would prevent a good deal of unnecessary eyestrain, a trouble to which most picture musicians are subject. Some help on this stand question is to provide two manilla cardboard covers similar to those supplied by publishers for vaudeville artists to carry their music. Lay them on the stand, letting them overlap until they project about eight inches on each side. Then bend up the bottom edge about 1½ inches and attach them to the stand. The sketch shows the extra width gained by this device.

Perhaps some readers may recall that Biograph release, "Judith of Bethulia," directed by Griffiths. The theme selected was "My Heart at Sketch 2.

Thy Sweet Voice" by Saint-Saens, and this very problem was encountered; and it proved to be a pretty big one, too, until the widened stand proved to be its solution.

In all the earlier musical suggestion cue sheets prepared by the writer the opening paragraph recommends that one should be provided for each number of the orchestra. If this were carried out every musician would have some idea when the necessary changes take place in the picture. Then, with his stand widened, at the extreme left is placed the cue sheet. Next to this, the theme, and then the rest of the suggested music in the order of the playing.

A further assistance is to have a number of plain pieces of paper marked "theme," one of these to be placed between the music in each of the positions where the theme is suggested. By this means, as soon as the leader gives a warning signal to change the music, the musician will know whether it is to be the theme or the following number.

Sketch 3.

If a director with an orchestra of ten pieces were arranging a continuous program of music to fit a picture and during its progress he introduced a violin or 'cello solo which had no parts for the brass, he should place a piece of paper in the cornet or trombone parts which would read, "Cello solo. Brass tacit."

If the above suggestions are carried out the editor believes that no further difficulties will arise and the correspondent will realize the practicability of the theme as suggested in the Musical Suggestion Cue Sheet.

Flintom Sees Kane

Arranges to Handle the War Picture, "Somewhere In France" —Other Exchanges in Line.

A. D. FLINTOM of the Kansas City Feature Film Company spent last week in New York City. It was Mr. Flintom's first visit to the metropolis in many months as his rapidly growing film business in the middle west has occupied his entire attention. While here he circulated among the trade renewing old acquaintances and arranging for various supplies. One of the subjects for which he secured territory was the five-reel French war picture, "Somewhere in France," which Arthur S. Kane is distributing. Mr. Flintom will handle this in Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska and Iowa..

Other exchanges which have arranged with Mr. Kane to handle the subject in their territories are: Famous Players Film Company of New England, Boston, Mass.; The Wm. L. Sherry Feature Film Company, Inc., 126 West 46th Street, New York City; Famous Players Exchange, 71 West 23rd Street, New York City; Famous Players Film Service, Inc., Pittsburgh, Pa.; Famous Players Film Service, Inc., Chicago, Ill.; Famous Players Film Service, Inc., Cincinnati, Ohio; Progressive Motion Picture Company, San Francisco, Cal., and Progressive Motion Picture Company, Seattle, Wash.

"CALL OF THE CUMBERLANDS" (Pallas).

Staged in the mountain country of the well known Thousand Pines, a favorite elevation for Californian mountain climbers and known to painters the world over for its natural beauty, "The Call of the Cumberlands," starring Dustin Farnum and adapted from the well known book of the same name, bids fair to prove one of the most meritorious film offerings seen this season in point of scenic and photographic beauty. In the character of Samson South, Dustin Farnum, the popular screen idol, appears at his best. Opposite Mr. Farnum appears Winifred Kingston, the pretty little artist who has greatly endeared herself among photoplay audiences through her sterling work in the portrayal of sympathetic characters. As Spicer South, Herbert Standing presents a characterization that is conceded to display his most striking work in motion pictures. Dick LeStrange as Tamarack Spicer and Myrtle Stedman as Adrienne Lescott are others included in the cast who are called upon to present exceptionable ability. Other important parts are effectively handled by Page Peters, Howard Davies, Joe Ray and Virginia Foltz.

The interior scenes showing the wealthy artist's studio are exact reproductions from a prominent New York atelier, and display elaborate care as to detail. Other interiors of mountain cabins were taken in actual huts in the hills. In the presentation of these scenes a wonderful character is introduced in the person of an old lady of the mountains ninety years old. "The Call of the Cumberlands" will be released on the Paramount Program by Pallas Pictures January 24th. An elaborate advertising campaign has been prepared in connection with the exhibition of this film which introduces several new departures in film exploitation.

FLORENCE LA BADIE THE STAR OF CONSISTENCY.

When the Thanhouser Film Corporation starred Florence La Badie in "The Million Dollar Mystery" it was thought that about every means had been devised to give play to the versatility of this ever popular screen player. It is now definitely announced by Mr. Thanhouser that her legion of admirers may look forward to a real, smashing La Badie treat in a five-reeler which has been specially written for her by Lloyd Lonergan, the man who wrote "The Million Dollar Mystery." It is a La Badie production even to the title, which is, "The Five Faults of Flo." If such a thing can be imagined as an "abridged serial," this is it; the film alchemist would label it "essence of serial." In the cast with Miss La Badie are most of the featured players of the Thanhouser stock, including Harris Gordon and Grace De Carlton. The picture was released on January 20 as a Masterpicture de Luxe on the Mutual Program.

McMAHAN & JACKSON GET "NEPTUNE'S DAUGHTER."

McMahan and Jackson, the well known moving picture magnates and amusement promoters of Cincinnati, Ohio, have just secured an exclusive contract for the state rights of Indiana and Kentucky for "Neptune's Daughter," starring Annette Kellerman, Herman Brenon, Leah Baird, William E. Shay and many other screen celebrities. It will be remembered that these gentlemen bought the state rights of Ohio for this picture some time ago, and with the extensive advertising and high class manner in which this production was handled by them, they did a tremendous business in every theater they played. McMahan and Jackson have some very alluring propositions to make the exhibitors on the Kellerman Production, and this will be furnished upon request of a letter, wire or telephone message.

MARY MILES MINTER IN "DIMPLES."

In "Dimples," a forthcoming Metro feature production in which Mary Miles Minter has the stellar role, the character of Mrs. Riley, her aunt, is played by Charlotte Shelby. It has been noted that there is truly a remarkable resemblance between Dimples and Mrs. Riley. There should be, Charlotte Shelby, in real life is none other than Miss Minter's mother. Mrs. Shelby was formerly a well known actress, but has not appeared professionally for several years. However, she is always found with her charming little daughter around the studio, and when the company went south to make the exteriors, Mrs. Shelby went along. Director Edgar Jones induced her to take a part in the production. Mary Miles Minter's name was Juliet Shelby until after she made her biggest stage success in "The Littlest Rebel." She changed her name then on the theory that it sounded "too stagey."

PATHE'S "LIGHT THAT FAILED" COMPLETED.

Edward Jose, the Pathe producer, has now finished "The Light That Failed," the Gold Rooster play adopted from Kipling's famous novel. He says that in his opinion it is the best picture he ever made. An extraordinarily large company was employed, and many big effects obtained.

Modern Theater Construction

A Novel Form of Theater Where Depth Space is Limited—View and Plans of Nollendorf Theater, Berlin.

By Edward Barnard Kinsila.

Article V.

MOST, if not all, of the salient features described in my previous articles on modern theater construction, apply to the form of theater herein described. In fact, after thoroughly reciting the merits of one well-equipped theater there remains little to add, except to emphasize these points, supplying perhaps now and then minor suggestions.

View of Nollendorf Theater.

Some Form of Hollow Tile Best for Construction.

As stated in my initial article, heavy hollow building tile offers the cheapest and best material for exterior and division walls, with light tile partition blocks for mere partitions. Where the exterior or division walls are also bearing walls and steel structural framing is not employed, the vertical cells of the hollow tile must be well grouted with liquid concrete at the bearing points.

Textile, a recent innovation in hollow tile manufacture, with a finished rough surface made to resemble tapestry brick, is now made in half-height blocks of about six inches and are laid in the same manner as large brick or small stone, with each block overlapping the other. They do not require stucco, and when laid with carefully rodded joints, present a most artistic appearance.

Lobby and Basement Plan.

Appearance of Security Necessary.

As stated in previous articles, theaters should be constructed absolutely fireproof, and for obvious reasons there should be every appearance of stability and security. Although no other material equals hollow tile in its fire-resisting qualities, the interior walls should be finished in a concrete simulation of natural stone. Imitation Caen stone, relieved by bright upholstery, has a highly pleasing effect and comforts the timid with a sense of perfect security. Concrete slab floors, steel sash and doors, almost as cheap as wood, together with an advertised statement that no wood or inflammable material is used in construction, will materially aid in strengthening the feeling of security. Stairways with ornamental newel posts and iron railings, and imitation marble steps will also add. As a whole the entire extra cost for building a theater perfectly fire safe, without a particle of wood in it, is about nine per cent. more than it costs to build in the ordinary manner.

Provide Every Comfort.

This appearance of security sensibly affects the mental attitude of the auditor. A low price of admission and the provision of spacious cloak room accommodations, with ample polite attendants also has a receptive tendency. Separate lockers, with individual keys for each auditor, would be an ideal innovation. If the theater be well designed, this system could easily be installed without much loss of space. Liberal passage room between rows of low-backed comfortable chairs that permit the free passage of incomers or outgoers, which may be readily secured by a trifling increase of four inches, should never be neglected. Nor should the concealed lamps, that soothe and do not tire the eyes with their glare. In fact, everything within the playhouse should be planned to render the auditor's mind keenly sensitive to a favorable impression of all he sees or hears.

Artistic Decoration and Stage Setting.

The decoration of the auditorium should be of a simple design, calculated to form a frame for the scene depicted on the stage. There should be no clash between the architect and the scene painter. The scene painter should always be given preference. Where depth of stage allows, there should be an inner movable proscenium arch capable of diminishment or expansion, to properly accommodate the scene.

Ground Floor Plan.

To facilitate changes the scenes should be built realistically plastic, and mounted on a quietly revolving stage, or built upon rear and side platform carriages that may be quickly substituted, each for the other. This latter feature is often objectionable in America because of the extra space demanded.

The form and size of the theater are most important factors, and good acoustic properties are absolutely essential in a theater where singing or spoken lines form part of the program. None of the many minor features described at length in previous articles should be omitted to make the audience comfortable and acutely receptive. This includes proper heating and ventilation, a subject exhaustively treated in the second treatise of this subject.

A Novel Idea of Increasing Capacity.

Occasionally the depth of the site is too restricted to permit of both a stage and lobby on the same plane as the auditorium. This was the case with the Nollendorf Theater in Berlin, a cut of which is here shown. This theater contains most of the features shown on the present diagrams, and is conceded to be the finest theater in the world showing motion pictures, if not the finest theater of any description ever built.

Cathedral Windows of Unusual Size.

As indicated in the illustration the theater facade is pierced on either side of the main entrance by two narrow, long, brightly illuminated cathedral windows that reach nearly to the eaves line. These beautifully colored windows attract attention from a great distance.

Appearance of a Ground Floor Theater.

When one enters the spacious portals of this playhouse, he finds himself in a wide lobby. By descending several steps to a spacious basement he may deposit his outer garments with one of the many attendants standing behind broad counters on either side of the room, or if the picture then being shown in the auditorium above is not finished, he may take a comfortable seat at a nearby table and view the pictured news events of a busy world projected on a daylight screen.

In a few moments he emerges from this comfortable waiting room and ascends to the main auditorium by two short flights of steps that fail to impress him that the auditorium is really six feet above the sidewalk. Arriving within the salon, on either side of the stage, illuminated by tubular lamps hidden behind the ceiling cornice, he is somewhat amazed by the sight of the audience facing him, and pauses to reflect upon the location of his seats, are they in the orchestra, or are they the higher priced seats of the balcony?

A Front Approach to the Balcony.

He recalls that they are in the front balcony loges, and mounts the gently sloping stairway that ascends from the main entrance, on either side, to the balcony, halting for a moment on the rest platform underneath the so-called stage boxes that adorn either wall—for in this theater there exists no architectural ornamentation that might distract the auditors' attention from the scenes on the stage. He peers at the seated audience through the heavy plate glass partition that separates the balcony stairway from the main floor of the auditorium and then proceeds to his seats.

An Orchestra Above the Stage.

The strains of distant music reach his ear, and he looks toward the spot where the music is usually quartered. There is no sign of an orchestra pit there, and his gaze wanders to other parts of the house in a mystified manner. The sounds seem to come from above, and he at last locates the music in a semicircular gallery, just above the proscenium arch. He cannot see the band nor the leader, as both are concealed behind verdant foliage.

A Brilliantly Lighted Salon.

The curtain rises on a replica of the ancient forum at Rome. There stand the broken columns of this once noble gathering place. In the distance a Roman arch stands, more perfect in its preservation than the rest. The stage lights are lowered and the scene becomes enshrouded in gloom. Now, it is pitch dark. Then, between the columns of the Roman arch a pictured scene unfolds itself. The picture is one calculated to excite laughter.

The entranced auditor appears afraid to give full vent to his mirth. He looks about him in this brilliantly lighted hall. Others are laughing, and he boisterously joins them. Laughter is contagious. When a dramatic picture is shown the lights are dimmed, as if to aid in concentrating one's thoughts on the sad events pictured on the screen.

Emergency Exits Galore.

When the performance is concluded, a careful examination of the special features of this comfortable theater is made. Emergency exits galore abound. At both ends of the rear of the auditorium are self-enclosed stairways leading to the basement below, with doors leading from appropriate landings into the open. These stairways also extend to a floor above the balcony, and serve as an outside entrance to the projection room, which is constructed entirely separate from the auditorium. In case of a sudden fire in the projection room the operator finds it easy to escape without alarming the audience. The fire can burn itself out, the smoke and fumes escaping through openings made directly into the open, without the audience ever appreciating the danger.

There are other emergency stairways leading to the basement from the main floor of the auditorium; directly under the main balcony stairs, and separate emergency aisles leading to the lobby direct. All of these emergency exits are carpeted and housed in, and are a part of the theater used by the audience at all times.

Ordinary Emergency Alleys of Little Value.

Such means of exit are independent of the prescribed open alleys required by law. In time of panic people naturally rush in their excitement toward a means of escape with which they are familiar. A plunge into a darkened open alley, of which nothing is known, is not inviting and very rare. As most of the fatalities occur from panic, the legal methods of escape are of little value. But with ample emergency exits with which the audience has been made familiar, everyone may easiy escape in time of excitement.

Balcony Plan.

Ample Toilet Accommodations.

At the foot of the enclosed emergency stairs, in the basement, are arranged two commodious toilets, one for the ladies and another for the gentlemen, which also serve for the waiting room. At the front of the balcony on either side are arranged two similar toilets for those in the balcony.

Back upon the stage, which is reached by a stairway leading from an entrance platform of the lobby, is the usual arrangement of dressing rooms, toilets, etc. This stage also contains the scenic horizon described in detail in a previous article, and the scenery itself is set on a flat revolving platform. The musicians reach the high orchestra pit through a door from a bridge that extends above the proscenium arch, one that is also used to illumniate the horizon sheet to simulate cloud and storm effects by the aid of stereopticon slides.

Longitudinal Section.

There is nothing about this theater to fix its size. Its form of structure may be adapted to any plot that would answer for a playhouse. It is merely an illustrated example of economically employing limited depth space.

The next article will treat of small theaters, now so much in vogue as picture theaters.

Next Week's Vitagraphs

Several Good Subjects Will Be Offered in the Schedule for January 24—Two Features Included.

"The Island of Surprise," a five-part Blue Ribbon Vitagraph, written by Cyrus Townsend Brady, produced by Paul Scardon, featuring William Courtenay, Eleanor Woodruff, Zena Keefe, and other prominent Vitagraphers, head the films released by the Vitagraph for the week of January 24. On the same day, Monday, "The Cold-Feet Getaway," a one-reel comedy of the "Itsky Series," is scheduled for release; "Too Clever by Half," a Sidney Drew comedy, is offered on January 28; and the Broadway Star Feature, "The Ruse," is released on the 29th.

Scene from "The Island of Surprise" (Vitagraph).

"The Island of Surprise" is one of the most pretentious of recent Vitagraph productions and is a romantic thriller that is destined to become one of the most widely talked-about films on the screen. The hero is cast away on a South Sea Island with the girl he secretly married and the girl his father expects him to marry. An injury to his head causes a loss of memory, and he forgets the incident of his wedding. His real wife claims him, and the other girl, believing the wife "bluffing," also proclaims herself as his wife. The hero, mentally incapacitated, is apparently satisfied with either.

This tense situation on the island is broken by an attack by savages, and the three put up a desperate fight with the few weapons they have at hand. Marines from a gunboat arrive in the nick of time, while a blow from a spear restores the hero's memory and he clears away the mystery.

William Courtenay, long a favorite on Broadway, appears to splendid advantage as the hero and does effective work fighting off the savages and rescuing his sweetheart from a train wreck that is but a part of the thrills in the production. Eleanor Woodruff, as the wife, displays fine emotional acting in a difficult role and registers herself as a beautiful addition to the Vitagraph players. Little Zena Keefe does effective work as the other girl. Included in the cast are Charles Kent, Anders Randolf, Charles Wellesley, Denton Vane, Julia Swayne Gordon and Logan Paul.

Scene from "The Cold Feet Getaway" (Vitagraph).

"The Ruse," released on January 28 as a three-part Broadway Star Feature, is the first effort as a director of Eugene Mullin, who has picturized many notable successes for the screen. He is also the author of "The Ruse."

The story tells of the efforts of Dallas to wreak a revenge on Cottrell for a defeat suffered on the stock market. Dallas makes use of the secret knowledge that Mrs. Cottrell's brother is a criminal and forces her into a compromising position. Cottrell adopts the ruse of pretending an injury to his head that causes a loss of understanding and in due time discovers his wife the pawn of the villain and not his paramour. Joseph Kilgour, Harry Morey and Naomi Childers play the "triangle" with their usual skill, assisted by a capable cast including Denton Vane, Charles Kent and Helen Pillsbury.

"Too Clever by Half," a typical Sidney Drew vehicle, shows that comedian and his wife to good advantage.

"The Cold-Feet Getaway," written by Graham Baker, will be of interest to card-players, in that Itsky, the Inventor, shows a contrivance that enables a man to quit a poker game while ahead. The invention works at first and then causes a mix-up that shows that a successful getaway from a poker game is as impossible as perpetual motion. Harry Fisher is the inventor, and Albert Roccardi is the poker fiend.

EDITH STERLING AND MURDOCK MacQUARRIE JOIN SIGNAL FORCES.

Edith Sterling, who has been playing stellar roles in 101 Bison and Big U pictures, has been signed by Signal Film Corporation for its dramatic company. An exceptionally strong company will be gathered to Miss Sterling's support under the direction of Murdock MacQuarrie, who has been prominently identified with the film industry almost since its inception.

In addition to winning fame as a director, Mr. MacQuarrie has scored many character hits both in pictures and on the speaking stage. One of his biggest successes was playing the dual role of "Dr. Jekyl and Mr. Hyde," at the New York theater on Broadway, for a run of twenty-two weeks. He comes to Signal from the Universal, where, in the last eighteen months, he has produced eighty-eight thousand feet of dramatic features.

In the supporting company will be Millward Wilson, Norbert Myles and Francis J. MacDonald. The first picture, which will be a multiple-reel feature, will have in it the throb of a big city dealing as it will with problems created by congested and struggling humanity, graft, reform and "men higher up," around the activities of which will be woven a story of love with a good "punch moral" as a climax.

NEW VITAGRAPH PLAYERS IN WESTERN COMPANY.

Several new faces among the Vitagraph Players will be seen in a new release of the company at Hollywood, Cal. Corinne Griffiths, who has the distinction of winning more than one beauty prize in Los Angeles, and other California towns, is considered a valuable addition to the screen. Her beauty is of the appealing kind and in addition to this screen personality, she has a knack of facial expression that speaks well for her future as a film actress.

Lawrence Weingarten is another new player. Both will be seen in "Bittersweet," a one-reel drama, written by Daisy E. Smith and produced by Rollin S. Sturgeon. George Stanley, Anne Schaefer and Webster Campbell play important roles in the production.

Vivian Marshall, well known as a swimmer and diver, is to be featured in a new film now under course of production.

LAEMMLE PICKS PRIZE BEAUTY.

When the exhibitors of Los Angeles, Cal., gave their annual ball on New Year's eve one of the interesting events was the contest for the most beautiful girl, not a motion picture actress. To make the contest more interesting, Carl Laemmle offered to give the winner a position in one of the Universal companies at Universal City. The committee of judges consisted of Mr. Laemmle, Crane Wilbur and Hobart Henley and Miss Thelma Francis, who lives in Los Angeles, was the lucky girl. She is said to be nineteen years of age and to have had some dramatic experience, but has never worked in the pictures. She accepted Mr. Laemmle's offer.

"Purple" Pictures and Their Peril

By Walter W. Irwin.
(General Manager, V-L-S-E, Inc.)

A RECENT issue of McClure's Magazine presents some figures which merit the consideration of every serious thinking exhibitor and producer. They are a comparison of the earnings of the so-called "scarlet" or "purple" play with the box offce value of the more wholesome stage offerings. Following are the paragraphs from the McClure articles of exceeding importance to us of the motion picture industry:

In 1897 George Broadhurst produced his first big hit, "What Happened to Jones." A clean hero and a clean heroine earned him $100,000. For two years Charles Arnold, actor and manager, played the rollicking farce in Australia and South America, and cleaned up $150,000. As timely today as it was eighteen years ago, "What Happened to Jones" is still running in stock, and could be revived on Broadway with success and profit if Mr. Broadhurst were not more interested in new ventures. During the past year, the royalties for amateur performances alone netted the author more than sixteen hundred dollars.

After "What Happened to Jones" came "Why Smith Left Home," another clean farce which paid big profits. "The Man of the Hour" and "Bought and Paid For," with the women characters above suspicion, paid their author about $138,000 and $80,000 respectively. Mary Turner, in "Within the Law," who choked back the cry, "What's the use?" and fought her fight, paid Mr. Broadhurst, who had only a part interest in the royalties, more than $40,000 and its owners a quarter of a million.

Then Mr. Broadhurst turned his attention to the heroine who said, "What's the use?" and who flung her ideals and moral standards to the winds. As a result, the wife in "To-day" never earned the playwright manager a dollar, and the wife in "The Law of the Land" cost the price of production—and more. And now it is said that Mr. Broadhurst has gone back to his first line of success, the clean play and the clean heroine.

"Iris," the realistic Pinero heroine, portrayed by Virginia Harned and madly discussed by dramatic critics and students of sociology the country over, was only a season's sensation, but "Peg o' My Heart," a slip of a girl who never spoke a single erotic line, has paid her manager, Oliver Morosco, nearly a half a million and is doing extremely well in her third season, with stock and picture rights still to come.

"Mrs. Warren's Profession" invaded the white light of national publicity and the grim shadows of the courts; but "Shirley Rossmore," a girl who crushed "What's the use?" behind firmly set lips and fought her way through the most improbable situations ever devised by a playwright, turned "The Lion and the Mouse" into a success and made two men, Henry B. Harris and Charles Klein, rich.

"The Easiest Way," the most perfectly-constructed play ever turned out by an American dramatist, depicting a certain phase of theatrical life, and admirably produced by Mr. Belasco, provided Miss Frances Starr with a starring vehicle for two seasons, since which time it has been mildly in demand for stock. Its heroine cried, "What's the use?" and gave up the fight. "The Chorus Lady," a play purely episodic, built on clever character drawings and cleverer lines, also dealing with stage life, supplied Miss Rose Stahl with a star role for four seasons and was then played by Miss Edna Aug, and is still a big money-maker in stock. "Patricia O'Brien" fought to the finish the fight for her ideals, and the great public loved her for the fight she made.

"Sappho" carried Miss Olga Nethersole into a score of police courts and drew the dollars of the curious for several seasons. "Peter Pan," in its tenth season, still spells profit for Miss Maude Adams.

Remember that for France Starr in "Marie Odile,' the stage has also Ruth Chatterton in "Daddy Long-Legs"; and for Elsie Ferguson in "The Outcast," Patricia Collinge in "Pollyana." And while only one company is presenting "The Song of Songs," two are playing "Peg o' My Heart" to much larger audiences.

Dare we ignore the warning of such facts in the production and exhibition of photoplays?

At the present time motion picture features are dividing themselves more and more into two distinct types: Those which depend upon the suggestive and sensational to attract the public and those which appeal because of their inherent worth—the artistry of their theme, acting and photography. Which of the two roads is the exhibitor going to follow—which makes for the best interests of the industry as a whole, and which makes for the most enduring success of the exhibitor individually?

Let us measure the situation from a human standpoint as well as a commercial one. If, for instance, you believe that the virtues of our forefathers, which contributed more than any other influence to the upbuilding of this country, are entirely dead—if you believe that the tastes and natures of the greatest number of people are low and vicious and salacious—if you believe that respect for womankind, ideals of upright manhood, no longer exist—then by all means you should adopt your policy to the "new" spirit of American life.

If on the other hand, however, you are of the opinion, from past observation and experience, that such movements quickly run their course, leaving behind a brown taste of revulsion, then it is most desirable that you should guard now against creating a reputation for your house as one which specializes in risque productions; and concentrate upon building a name that will be a guarantee of wholesomeness, as well as of quality and intensity of interest. And bear in mind the moment you deviate from that course, you not only harm yourself, but you taint the entire industry.

Theodore Marston, a Director of Big Scenes

A BIG director is Theodore Marston, of the Vitagraph Company—big in proportions, and big in the things he has accomplished. He has a record of successful films produced that bespeak scene perception, dramatic instinct, film daring and persistence. "Mortmain," "The Caveman," "The 13th Girl," "The Surprises of an Empty Hotel," and many others are the product of his genius, and each film contains a scene tremendous enough to daunt the average man.

Theodore Marston.

Marston has proved his resourcefulness on many occasions. In filming a raid before the Long Island Railroad Depot in Brooklyn, recently, he found it impossible to keep the attention of the huge mob of bystanders off the camera. To obtain realism he must have them look in another direction. Accordingly, he had a man at that stop start firing a revolver just as the camera began to grind. The crowd, startled, gave the shooter their excited attention until they realized the hoax. Then it was too late. Marston had the film he wanted.

Still more recent was his filming of the curb brokers in New York, when he worked his camera from the window of a store while the brokers were waiting to mob the movie actors when they appeared. Not one of them faced the camera or destroyed the realism by their usual capers that have made them the most difficult body of men in the world to film.

Marston staged a fashion show in a Fifth avenue modiste's shop in "The Thirteenth Girl," that called for unusual technique. He engineered the blowing up of the steam yacht "Wayward" in "The Surprises of an Empty Hotel." He took Robert Edeson and other players to the Homestead Mills in Pittsburgh and photographed for the first time the interior of the vast Carnegie plant. He superintended an operation scene in "Mortmain," in which the hand of the man was grafted to another's. He filmed a political meeting that broke up in one of the most exciting scenes ever produced on the screen. All these things are but part of his day's work for the Vitagraph. He is at present working on a feature film, using Joseph Kilgour as his principal, and after the completion of this will undertake even bigger things.

PICTURES PERFECT ART OF DANCING.

In one of the big scenes of the "Ballet Girl," a five-reel feature picture dealing with life behind the scenes in which the World Film Corporation is starring Miss Alice Brady and Holbrook Blinn, a large section of the Metropolitan Opera House ballet was utilized. The dainty little toe artists were transported to the World Film's Fort Lee Studios in a train of automobiles and under the direction of their regular ballet master to perform a series of their most graceful evolutions before the flickering shutter of the motion picture camera. When the first tests of film were run off, it was seen that the original tempo of the dances was much too rapid to look well on the screen. In consequence, the test films were thrown on the screen before the entire ballet and the defects pointed out to them. The girls caught the idea immediately and with the music playing much slower time, the dance numbers were again filmed.

The results the second time were perfect, so good, in fact, that the Metropolitan Opera House ballet school has requested and been given permission to use sections of the film as part of their regular course of instruction. This is the first time that motion pictures have been used in the instruction of dancing, but the ballet masters of the Metropolitan are confident that the innovation will prove entirely successful.

Triangle Foreign Contracts

President Aitken Sells Australian Rights for More Than $200,000—Business of Corporation Said to Aggregate $6,400,000 a Year.

PRESIDENT H. E. AITKEN announces an important extension of Triangle Film Corporation service, not only in this country, but also and particularly in foreign lands. New contracts yielding income of $500,000 per annum have been signed, he states, since December 22, 1915. This, he says, makes an aggregate annual business of $6,400,000, thus far secured.

What is perhaps the most interesting part of President Aitken's statement, refers to the completion of the Australian and Canadian deals. The importance of the Australian field may be gauged from the fact that the corporation is to reveive a minimum guarantee of more than $200,000 a year for the showing of Triangle films in that territory, which includes not only Australia but New Zealand, Tasmania and the lesser British possessions in the antipodes.

Another interesting announcement is that the Triangle will immediately enter Canada in a big way. Arrangements have just been closed for a Dominion-wide service that will provide a substantial guarantee of profit to the corporation and likewise insure participation in additional profits. The names of the syndicate handling the Canadian service will shortly be made known. Tremendous drawing cards in the Dominion will be such Triangle stars of English nativity or residence as Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree, Mary Anderson de Navarro, H. B. Warner, Syd Chaplin, Bruce McRae, Frank Mills and others. The popularity of the best American stars across the border needs no demonstration, and the films showing Billie Burke, De Wolf Hopper, William S. Hart, Lillian and Dorothy Gish, Arbuckle and Miss Normand and the rest are bound to enjoy the utmost favor.

The great buildings and enlarging activities that have been going on at Griffithville, Culver City and Keystone, together with the constantly-increasing companies in the east, are an index of how the Triangle is preparing to meet the big demands.

V-L-S-E Staff Changes

Ten New Men Added to the Sales Organization of the Big Four.

THE sales force of the Big Four during the past week was augmented by the addition of ten new members and further increases in the staffs of the branch offices will be made immediately. The new representatives are attached to the Pittsburgh, Kansas City and Chicago offices. The enlargement of the forces of these offices followed a tour of inspection by A. W. Goff, assistant general manager, and were made necessary by the large volume of business which Mr. Goff found the organizations in those cities were handling.

General Manager Walter W. Irwin has also made several other noteworthy changes working toward increased efficiency in handling the ever-growing patronage of the Big Four. One of these, is the establishment of a sub-office in New Orleans, at the head of which has been placed R. King Evans, working under the direction of C. A. Meade, manager of the Dallas office. Mr. Evans has been associated with Mr. Meade at Dallas for some time past, and has earned his promotion through the splendid showing which he has made for the Big Four and the regard with which he is held by exhibitors.

It is also said that St. Louis, which is at present a sub-office of the V-L-S-E,. under the management of S. W. Hatch, will soon be converted into a branch office. At the present time, E. R. Pearson, manager of the Big Four's Kansas City office, has supervision of the St. Louis sub-branch. Mr. Hatch, however, has developed his territory to the extent that it is now necessary to make it a buying instead of a relay office.

The Detroit sub-office has been placed in charge of David Kline, the former representative of the Mutual Film Corporation at that city. This is one of the first vacancies which the V-L-S-E has gone out of its ranks to fill, and was due simply to the fact that Sydney E. Abel, Cleveland manager for the V-L-S-E, who has supervision of the Detroit sub-office, has such able lieutenants in his own territory that he did not feel he could spare anyone of them for the Detroit office. Mr. Abel now has associated with him also R. S. Shrader, who was formerly branch manager at Cincinnati—a change which was made necessary by the fact that the climate at Cincinnati did not agree with Mr. Shrader's health.

Mr. Shrader's place in Cincinnati as branch manager has been taken by C. E. Shurtleff, who was formerly in charge of the Detroit sub-office. Mr. Shurtleff's rise has been most rapid, he having only recently been promoted from assistant branch manager at Atlanta to the direction of the Detroit office, and now advanced to the head of the Cincinnati branch.

Music for Equitable Players

Temperament and Psychology Considered in Plans for Better Acting.

MUSICAL programs adapted to the play being shown on the screen are among the latest developments in motion pictures, and are welcomed by the spectators who appreciate the fact that good music, properly rendered, promotes enjoyment of the photo drama as much as it does the spoken play.

With this idea as a basis the managers of the Equitable Motion Pictures corporation have gone a step farther. They reasoned that if music affected a theater full of spectators it should also affect the people who are making the pictures. And now a piano, violin and flute are to be part of the equipment of the Equitable's big studios in Flushing, L. I., and Fifty-ninth street, New York. Music appropriate to the scene being enacted will be played "off stage," slow, dreamy, sensuous, for love making scenes, sharp, staccato movements where quick, violent action is called for, heavy, rolling chords where the villain is carrying out the dirty work of his plot, shivery, creepy tones where mystery and possible danger to the hero or heroine are the dominant charactertistics, and in short, every sentiment shown on the screen will have been interpreted to the actors by the musicians.

The psychological effect of this, it is believed, will result in much more harmonious work, a better appreciation of the subtleties and shades of emotion hidden in the action by the piece, and a fuller, freer exposition of the dramatic possibilities of both theme and actor. Of course, the music is not to be limited to the pieces named in case larger effects call for larger efforts, as the company plans to have enough musicians within call at all times to fill any requirement, and organs will be added to the equipment as soon as studio arrangements can be made.

Charles H. Prince

CHARLES H. PRINCE, who has appeared in more Metro feature productions than any other person, and who recently completed the "heavy" leading role in "The Turmoil," has been cast for a similar part with Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne in "Man and His Soul," now in process of production. Among some of the Metro features in which Mr. Prince appeared are "Satan Sanderson," the first Metro release; "The Flaming Sword," "The Right of Way," "A Royal Family," "The Bridge, or the Bigger Man" and "Emmy of Stork's Nest."

Charles H. Prince.

Before coming to pictures, Mr. Prince was well known as an excellent baritone singer, and began his professional career with the famous John A. McCaull Opera Company. He was afterward with the London Gaiety Company, the New Yorw Casino for three seasons, Weber and Fields, Russel Brothers, New York Roof Garden, Cohan and Harris companies, Winter Garden productions and countless other musical and dramatic attractions. Mr. Prince was in the original cast of "Forty-five Minutes from Broadway," also with the Frank L. Perley Opera Company, and was one of the prinicpals in "The Passing Show of 1912. Mr. Prince is an author and composer of songs.

Conditions in the Rockies

Exchange Management Said to Be Lax and Exhibitors Not Sufficiently Progressive.

By Howell Ernest Thurston.

THE motion picture business throughout the Rocky Mountain region is almost unspeakably bad, due entirely to mismanagement by picture house owners and lack of backbone among the exchange managers. This is the opinion formed by the writer after making a thorough canvass of the territory from Salt Lake to Kansas and including Wyoming, Colorado and New Mexico, with portions of adjoining states. The territory was covered in the time intervening between the close of the San Francisco fair and the present.

The situation from the exchange standpoint, is entirely due to the placing of twelve-dollar-a-week people in seventy-five-dollar jobs and expecting them to show mature business judgment when they were actually unable to make good at the smaller figure. Knowing this, the exhibitors have found no difficulty in dictating to the exchanges and ruining things not only for the manufacturers, but for themselves as well. An exchange manager able to say "NO" with a snapping thud is indeed a rarity in this section —although there are a few. And the exhibitors respect them, too. But, at the same time, they are carring the war to the banks of the Nile by writing letters to the big guns in New York and Chicago in an effort to discredit and have removed the ones who in reality stand for them and better times. No exchange can exist, no show succeed unless the business is improved in the very near future.

It can be taken as an absolute, gospel fact that the exhibitor who gets all he asks for and pays little or nothing for his service is headed on the downward grade, not alone in the earnings of his show, but in his manly qualities as well. He grabs because he can and forgets to boost his own game. On the other hand, the exhibitor who pays a fair price works to meet it. And he finds the game so profitable that he overworks and makes more money than he expected. He earns not alone dollars but self-respect. And he grows backbone and charges a fair price for his wares, too. He is not a 5-cent man. Neither is he a 10-cent fellow. He charges according to the value of the goods he offers and his people respect him and cheerfully pay the price. And he makes better and more satisfied customers. It is a sort of endless chain in growth and the few examples of this sort are the shining lights of the business. They have no time to worry with the small talk and the fussing and the sins of the weaklings who want to be given strength at the expense of everybody in sight.

In Salt Lake conditions are peculiar. There are only four large houses playing big programs. Three are controlled by one man and the other is handled or mishandled without any definite, fixed policy. The other houses in town are strictly second-run or older and do a nice business, mainly because they shoot at one target and not at the sun, moon and stars. There are rumors of a change in management in the three big houses which, if true, may alter the entire situation and bring a better feeling with less personality on the part of one dictator.

Utah and Southern Idaho as well as a portion of Montana are tributary to Salt Lake. High express charges interfere with getting films from Denver, but some of the houses are breaking away and syndicating on the expense. This is worrying Salt Lake exchanges not a little and they are cutting prices, offering outlandish and unreasonable inducements without limit and where the end will come nobody knows. It is simply not business. There is only one man in town who has learned to say "no," and he got his training in the one office that held conditions at a satisfactory point in Denver, during which time the exhibitors made money and were well satisfied and contented. His name is Moran—of the Mutual.

Western Wyoming is practically tributary to Salt Lake, but some of the exhibitors are breaking away and getting service from Denver with apparently satisfactory results. At Rock Springs Gilmore & Berta are the autocrats. Mr. Berta is an amateur sign painter, but the best I ever saw. He keeps his house filled more by clever advertising than anything else.

Rawlins is doing well by following a fixed policy. Laramie has several houses, but the Empress is the largest. J. W. King, the manager, does some unusual advertising and he has special nights for special makes and special favorites. He is an ardent disciple of Irene Fenwick and has educated his people to buy seats in advance when that actress goes on.

At Cheyenne conditions are unsettled. Fire destroyed the Capitol Avenue theater a week ago and people are a little timid about the picture shops.

Lander has the star show of Central Wyoming. George Harnsburger runs it at night and dabbles in oil during the day. Plays in the band the rest of the time. George has made a million in oil and is making more.

Douglas has the Princess, Ira Erdman, boss, with a fad for the heavy classics like "Julius Caesar," but he is following the Kleine-Edison programs very carefully as are also Barnes & Barnes, of Casper.

The towns between Douglas and Billings, Montana, are thrifty and the shows in fine shape. Carl Schmit runs a bully good place at Theomopolis and the people of Basin, the next town, invited him to come there and open another house. He will be ready for business in a week or two. Fine place with new equipment that looks like Broadway on a small scale.

Cody, the home of Buffalo Bill, also has a good house but while I was there I found the proprietor a trifle careless about prompt return of films. He will learn some day that holding reels will cause the other fellow to have a dark house and if the little fellows don't help each other out, who will?

Sheridan has a couple of good houses. Thomas Kerby books for himself and also Buffalo, but he can improve his programs a heap. Newcastle, Gillette, Cambria all have nice houses.

The theaters in the Black Hills are prosperous. A blind man runs the leading house in Deadwood. The Homestake company furnishes day and night shows for employes at Lead. Great stunt to come off shift and look at the latest films. Only the films are not late nor are they well chosen.

Western Nebraska has so much money in circulation the people just want to go to shows all the time. Northern Colorado is in like condition. In Greeley the houses have combined management with good results. Local censorship board has turned thumbs down on several makes of film. Fort Collins needs a new house and new management. Too much monopoly and folks are dissatisfied. It is "take this or go without"—a very poor policy. Loveland, Longmont, Berthoud and Boulder are doing nicely with plenty of money to draw from.

Denver is still fighting with internal problems. Baxter is showing fixed programs at the Isis and making all the money he can count. The other big houses are shooting around the bush and selecting programs after "inspecting" the offerings. One manager inspected a big film by looking at three reels at midnight and two reels the next morning. Of course he was grouchy and turned it down. Another manager down the street put the film on without inspection because he didn't have time—and did the biggest business of the week. And so it goes.

The Denver exchanges are bucking up a little on running their own business rather than permitting the unsuccessful small fry to do it for them. The General, under Cree, is hampered by rigid instructions from New York to keep out of trouble or arguments—give 'em anything they ask for. The Pathe is afraid to call an exhibitor's attention to the fact that a reel has been ruined. The Mutual is much better, but time is too short since Harry Lustig resigned to go to Los Angeles to tell what his successor will do. The V-L-S-E and Triangle and Paramount are burdened with too great expense for office rent. Too much lavish display which scares off the exhibitor when he stops to think that he will have to pay the bills. I've often wondered why young men without experience want to put on so much show and style at the other fellow's expense. Metro is better in that respect and is somewhat modest. Kleine-Edison is best of all. The money saved on rent in flashy quarters is spent on advertising and efforts to give service. And everybody must admit that Buckwalter knows the game and is not only a martinet in giving perfect service, but is the best advertiser ever in the game. His circulars are classics and have brought more business to the K-E combination than many times the amount spent could have secured in any other way. Buckwalter also has a hobby. He is asked all manner of questions and advice by exhibitors who are in trouble or in doubt and he answers to the best of his ability, whether the fellow is a customer or not. He stayed up all one night last week helping an exhibitor out of serious trouble and worked his pull with the powers at the throne without thought of reward. And the trouble was not a picture affair at all. While I was in Denver, Buckwalter told me of a new advertising stunt he is about ready to pull off. It is nothing less than going after people directly to patronize the shows running Kleine-Edison service and the first trial of the scheme was an astonshing success. It would not be fair to give details until the stunt has been worked for what success he can get out of it.

Colorado Springs has three pretty good houses. The Odeon is run by Loveland and is doing fairly well without definite aim. The Pike, owned by Jack McMahon, is a new house, not yet settled on policy. The Princess, managed by Tompkins, is doing a swell business.

In Pueblo the Grand has the cream of the trade not only because it is a monster house, but because Ed Anderson knows the game and plays it to the best of his ability.

In Trinidad the West has been doing the big business, but with a change in policy and playing punk road shows and the like, the picture patronage is drifting to the movie houses. Alamosa is suffering from too much monopoly and a new house would clean up well. Durango is well supplied. J. O. Taylor is a quiet, successful fellow who gathers in the coin while the others are fussing around.

Canon City is not doing so well. Efforts to get people to go to the opera house were not successful, because it is an old barn compared with the regular movie house. Salida needs competition. Leadville has a live one in E. W. Owen, who runs the Elks opera house. He is an advertiser from 'way back. Glenwood Springs is not flourishing. Higher class pictures might bring better business. Same is true of Grand Junction and the towns on the "narrow gauge." Paonia is an exception. Business is bad there when the roads are bad. But when the country people can come in they play the show game from all sides. Cripple Creek and Victor are jokes. Probably the best examples of what I said in the beginning. Proprietors got too cheap and then lost their push for trade. Central City broke my nerve. I found the biggest show in town running an old machine made before the days of automatic take-ups. Actually running valuable film into a barrel. Can you beat it?

Real Stories from Reel Studios

By Thornton Fisher.

FAMILIAR phrases: "Wish I'd had the chance to play his part. You'd a-seen something."

* * *

Otto Brautigan, of Thanhouser, one of the leading camera crank grinders—and camera cranks, brought back a lovely mark on his face from the mountains where Gene Nowland's company was working on "In the Name of the Law."

Everybody in the company received some injury, and Otto had to get himself covered with mud and glory, too.

* * *

Carl Laemmle figuratively walks "right in and turns around and walks right out again." In and out of the Universal offices, I mean, for Mr. Laemmle is in California for another visit.

* * *

Santa Claus visited the Screen Club in New York the other night and gave a present to each member. Santa, alias Billy Quirk, delivered a speech with each present as it was handed out. Some of the boys received little tin autos—aw no—of course not Phords—building blocks and toy dogs. One of the fellows got a cotton goat, but lost his nanny before he left.

* * *

A certain director I know eats stone-perch, brick cheese and marble cake, drinks hard cider with an occasional milk punch. He always has a wallop in his picture.

* * *

Wanted—A set of tires that will run over spikes, glass and tacks without puncturing. Apply at once to Bob Conness, of Edison.

All right, professor. Ta-ra-ra. Ladies and jumpmen, let us introduce Tom Powers, the cartoonist, who will draw for Hearst-Vitagraph. Good old Tom. Gee, Tom, they continue to print your face with those lilacs you used to balance on your chin. T. E. wears a smooth face now, except the mustache.

* * *

Don't see much of Ben Wilson since he moved to Jersey. How's crops, Ben, and is folks 'round the pust-office putty middlin'?

* * *

First Censor—Goodness save us, Horace, the actor is going to take off his coat to rescue the girl.

Second Censor—Horrors, Frederick, close your eyes. Isn't it awful? The public must never see such a sight. He may even remove his gloves. Are not the pictures disgusting? Both exit, protesting vehemently against it.

Harry Beaumont With Essanay

HARRY BEAUMONT, well known as an actor on the stage and in photoplays, and as a director, has joined Essanay as a leading man. His first play for Essanay which is now being produced, is "The White Alley," a three act drama by Carolyn Wells.

Mr. Beaumont has been in the film business four years, playing juvenile leads and directing. He also has had a wide stage experience. He played the title role in "Checkers," in "Under Southern Skies," "Captain Clay of Missouri," and "The County Chairman." He played in cities all over the country in stock, and was in vaudeville three years.

He is a writer as well as actor and director and has written and produced about seventy comedies and dramas for the screen.

Harry Beaumont.

Mr. Beaumont was born in Abilene, Kansas. He went on the stage at an early age and has lived in various parts of the country since.

Motion Picture Educator

Conducted by REV. W. H. JACKSON

PATHE EDUCATIONALS.

VERY much to their credit the Pathe Company continues a steady issue of educationals of a varied yet interesting class. While glad to commend these desirable films it is to be regretted that it is found necessary to release them so often as "split-reels," the companion film being out of place in most educational places; without doubt this plan robs the really educational film of much of its value; may the time soon come when a classification of these films will remedy this defect and so considerably enhance their value and usefulness.

Picturesque Holland.

This subject is seen in a beautiful Photocolor of Geithorn, which is often spoken of as "The Rustic Venice." The absence of streets and roads emphasizes the use of the canals as in the more famous Venice. Numerous bridges in all parts of the city to facilitate traffic are of quaint interest, trading by means of barges, even to the usual common necessaries of life, give an interest of more than an ordinary kind; the coloring increases the value and beauty of the picture.

How Winter Flowers Bloom.

This is the revival of a class of pictures always admired and of which we have recently had too few. The excellent, pleasing and instructive nature of this picture only cause a greater demand for more of its kind; here are seen the hyacinth growing in the few seconds on the screen the equal of several months of natural growth; truly, the patience of the photographer is rewarded in the pleasure of the beholder. Reports of the use of these pictures show that apart from their ready reception for educational purposes and interests, they are received with more than ordinary interest in every picture place, this is only natural, as most people love nature.

An Intimate Study of Birds.

This class of picture is always pleasing, all the youngsters like the bird pictures, while adults like flowers young people like birds. Wisdom personified is accorded in the bird world to the Owl:

"The wise old owl sat in the oak,
The more he saw the less he spoke;
The less he spoke the more he heard,
'Tis wise to be like that wise old bird.

Pathe's Owl series introduces the Barn or Screech Owl, which grows to a length of 15 to 18 inches. The impression of thoughtfulness and wisdom is easily accounted for when one looks into the large and luminous eyes of this bird. A larger species is shown in the Gray Owl, which sometimes grows to a length of 30 inches, and in common with the Forest and Barn Owl, is described as the farmer's friend, in that it feeds upon rats and mice and similar pests. The offensive and defensive uses of both claws and beak are illustrated. The familiar Barnyard Hen is made interesting as she is seen teaching her brood to select food and choosing between good and bad seed. The Pheasants laying their eggs on the ground in April, sometimes of orange-brown or pale-blue; later the young pheasants, in a brood, are shown scurrying for the fields where grain may be found. The Kestrel and the Sparrow-Hawk, on the outlook for prey along with their ungainly young, are pictured; a "closeup" picture, showing in detail their equipment for combat, is an added feature, making the pictures more instructive than otherwise. These bird pictures are part of a series which cannot be too long or too instructive.

Where the Trees Are Stone.

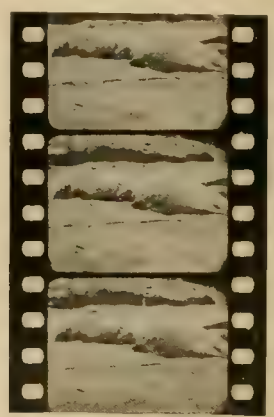
This is a new line of picture none the less interesting, giving remarkable pictures of the "Stone-trees" of Arizona.

In Navajo County there are almost two thousand acres covered with these remnants of a prehistoric woodland. Petrification has preserved all the beauties of grain and fibre in the wood, making it in appearance remarkably like onyx or marble in delicacy and color. These and various other details cause much of interest and educational value to appear in a short space. The picture will prove a valuable addition to any Picturesque America series, as it is also one of the best additions to any nature series.

SEA ELEPHANTS.

The Variety Films Corporation of New York is issuing another Natural History series, descriptive of the sea elephant, a monster denizen of the deep of which little is known. In appearance in its juvenile stages this sea animal is not unlike a monster seal, although weighing upwards of 3,000 pounds. The species was first discovered 500 miles southwest of Lower California, in Mexican waters. One of the young sea elephants is seen in the illustration as it is being "roped" for capture for the purpose of exhibiting it at the Panama Exposition, 1915.

"Roping A Young Sea Elephant" (Variety).



"Full Grown Sea Elephant" (Variety).

The name sea elephant does not seem appropriate until one sees the full-grown specimen. These animals grow to a length of from 20 to 30 feet, acquiring a weight of upwards of five tons; having reached maturity they grow an extended proboscis, which, being of the nature of a miniature elephant's trunk, earns for them the title of sea elephant. Being the largest of the proboscidean inhabitants of the sea, they have earned for themselves the title enjoyed by giants of the forest.

MOVING PICTURES TO EDUCATE POULTRYMEN.

Reviewed by Margaret I. MacDonald.

ONE of the most forcible arguments in favor of the moving picture as an educator can be found in the use of three excellent reels of film exhibited at Madison Square Garden during the recent poultry show. These pictures have been made by the Department of Agriculture to be used for educational purposes. Some of them have been taken on the Government Poultry Farm at Beltsville, Md., some on the game farm of Miss Helen Bartlett, Cassopolis, Mich., and on the Dictograph Poultry Farm, West Nyack, N. Y. The optical lessons on the care of poultry and various kinds of game to which poultrymen and others were treated are not easily forgotten. A thorough course in the breeding and care of poultry is given in the series of pictures taken at the Government Poultry Farm, from the placing of the eggs in the incubator to the separating and housing of the full grown fowl. Lecturers from the various State Agricultural Colleges delivered instructive talks pertaining to the subjects illustrated by the pictures, which sometimes were varied by the use of slides. The value of these pictures so thorough in detail can hardly be estimated in providing an impetus for the progress of the poultry industry toward a proper standard of science.

Among the Picture Theaters

News and Views of Photoplay Houses Everywhere

BROADWAY-STRAND THEATER, DETROIT, MICH.

After Three Dismal Failures by His Predecessors, Harry I. Garson Brings Photoplay House Into Limelight—Is Strongly Averse to Censorship.

THAT the management of a moving picture theater is the factor which decides whether it is to be a failure or a success seems to be well illustrated in the history of the Broadway-Strand theater, in the downtown district of Detroit. Three different managements failed to make this house a success, while during the past year under the management of Harry I. Garson, the box office is a busy place and crowds are on hand at all shows. In fact it is doubtful if any other picture house in Detroit has the crowds at matinees that the Broadway-Strand plays to each day of the week. It is not a Saturday or a Sunday crowd, but a crowd every day. In fact the attendance at the Saturday and Sunday shows has been so large on numerous occasions that the gallery has been thrown open and a few hundred people have viewed the picture and heard the music from this exalted position.

Harry I. Garson.

Discussing the popularity of the Broadway-Strand, Mr. Garson said: "I consider one of the features that makes or mars a picture house is the quality of the music. Of course, it is absolutely necessary to have good pictures, and the best are none too good for us, but in addition to this the people like to hear good music. We have here not only for the evening performances, but also for the matinees, an orchestra of fifteen pieces. Hugo Kalsow, musical director, is a keen observer of what the public likes in music, and he is receiving much applause for many of the selections that his orchestra renders each week. He makes a study of the pictures we put on and all his music is in keeping with the picture. His men are real musicians and they give patrons of our theater a rendition of many of the popular classics in a most pleasing manner. Many of the patrons of the theater have told us that the music is what brings them, because they know that whatever the picture is, it is going to be good.

"But even with this big orchestra, we do not rely upon it entirely for our musical program. We have a Wurlitzer Hope-Jones, two unit organ, probably second to none in Detroit, that is a pleasing factor in our musical program. Edward Benedict, the organist, has played at some of the largest picture houses in New York and Philadelphia, and he is often greeted with rounds of applause after an especially clever rendition of some stirring selection on the organ. We are also very careful in our selection of a soloist for each week, as the public never tires of a good song well rendered."

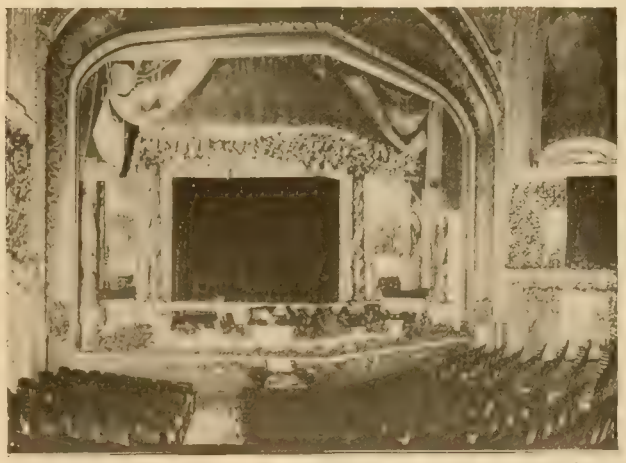
Many factors have probably worked together to make the Broadway-Strand a success after the three dismal failures that preceded the present management. One of these is undoubtedly the fact that Detroit has grown very rapidly in the past year and the "Broadway" district, that at one time was dismally quiet in the evening, is now a very busy thoroughfare day and night and the class of people in the neighborhood is much better than in former years.

The Broadway-Strand theater is showing high-class pictures, and its advertising is prominent in daily papers, in street cars and on the billboards. The program has also been made an artistic four-page leaflet, cleverly gotten up, and worth taking home by the patrons. The performances are continuous from noon until 11 p. m. seven days a week. Many people come early to enjoy the concert, which precedes the regular picture program at all hours. This keeps the theater well filled and yet does away with a great deal of the waiting in line that is so disagreeable for patrons of popular playhouses. Edwin H. Butcher, house manager, has been identified with the present management for more than a year and has had much to do with the success of the theater.

Under the new management, many changes have been made in the Broadway-Strand, and it has today one of the handsomest interiors in the city. All seats command a clear view of the stage. The lobby is spacious and double sets of plate glass doors break all draft in the back of the house. The ticket booth is entirely of glass and is located in the center of the lobby. An example of the up-to-the-minute management of this theater may be obtained from the fact that during a recent showing of "Carmen," the girl ushers all wore "Carmen" costumes. When "The Battle Cry of Peace" was shown early in December, military men in uniform were stationed in front of the theater, and all ushers were dressed as red cross nurses.

Manager Garson has made the patrons of the house understand that he is not alone responsible for their entertainment, but for their comfort, health and safety as well. In order to do this, the theater has been equipped with every possible safety device and fire-prevention plan that could be secured. Exits on the sides of the main floor are plainly marked and are opened after each performance, so that it takes but a few minutes to empty the house.

Conveniences such as a women's parlor, men's smoking rooms and comfortable seats in the rear of the main floor for persons waiting for friends are all found in this theater. Bubbling fountains are placed at convenient places. The ventilation system of the theater is of the very best, in fact the specifications of the engineers who installed it state hat the air is changed completely every 12 minutes. This is done by a large fan in the peak of the dome, which expels all air from the theater, while pure air is allowed in around the sides near the floor. The heating is uniform in all parts of the building and is automatically regulated.



Interior of Broadway Strand Theater, Detroit, Mich.

The interior decorations create a very pretty impression upon entering the building. There are no awkward looking boxes with stiff looking chairs at each side. Instead are placed flower-covered trellis work, behind which are placed colored lights. These are toned down, but are still very pretty during the running of the picture. All lighting is done by the indirect lighting system and the fixtures are ornate and in perfect accord with the rest of the furnishings.

A feature of the equipment of this house that is of interest is the fact that the projection booth is placed on the first floor instead of up in the top of the house. It is in the extreme rear of the seats, but no one entering the theater is aware of its location, owing to the decorations which blend with the walls and partitions surrounding it, nor does it take up any space that could be used for anything else. According to many observers this is of importance in presenting the picture on the screen at the right angle, and many patrons have remarked upon the clearness with which the pictures were screened in this theater.

Asked what his opinion was of the state or city appointing a Board of Censors, Mr. Garson was very positive in his opposition to such censorship. "We have never had the slightest trouble with any pictures shown at the Broadway-Strand and not the slightest criticism of their fitness has ever been heard anywhere, but at the same time I would not like to see censors in Detroit telling us what to show and what not to show. No board that could be appointed is in as close touch with the public as managers of photoplay houses, and as a large majority of the people are not only honest but decent, the proper pictures will in almost all cases be chosen by the management. There is certainly not nearly so much liberty taken in showing pictures as there is in some of the speaking plays billed in Detroit these days, and it would seem that if there are to be censors appointed they should go after the speaking plays first. The public and the managers are the best censors and no manager of a good theater is going to permanently blast the reputation of his house by putting on a disreputable picture for a week even if it would pack the house because in the end it would be a losing game. Boards of censors sometimes differ radically from the public in what is good and what is bad, and undoubtedly many splendid pictures produced at great expense would be barred, owing to their not just meeting the peculiar idea of this or that censor who happened to be somewhat of a crank on certain subjects."

Manager Garson's views of this subject seem to be those of practically all managers of first-class theaters, and it seems unnecessary to harm their business, even if a few theaters are stepping over the line in advertising or putting on objectionable pictures. The public will be the best judges and the trashy picture like the trashy book is short-lived and unprofitable.

STRAND THEATER, LEXINGTON, KY.

The Phoenix Company Builds $55,000 Photoplay House in City with 40,000 Population—M. Switow Heads New Corporation.

WHILE building a $55,000 theater in a town of 40,000 people means that every one of these 40,000 will have to spend a great deal more than $1 per before the building is paid for, the management of the new Phoenix Amusement Company, of Lexington, Ky., is finding it had the situation properly summarized in advance. Its new Strand theater there is making good from the start, and a two per cent. dividend was paid on all stock at the end of the first month it began operations.

The Phoenix Amusement Company, which owns the Strand theater, is incorporated with a capital stock of $40,000, owned by a number of Louisville and Lexington men. M. Switow, president of the Switow Amusement Company, of Louisville, is president. The other officers are J. H. Button, of Louisville, vice-president, and Louis Zahler, formerly of Chicago, secretary-treasurer and general manager.

An option was obtained on the old Horseman's Headquarters in Lexington by the Phoenix Company. The property is in a central part of the metropolis, and is 257 feet long and 60 feet wide. The Phoenix Company decided to use only 200 feet of the 257-foot lot for the theater proper, and a wall was built at a distance of 57 feet from the Short street side of the building, this partition wall served as the rear of the theater, while the space on the Short street side was converted into a store room. The side walls were adequately underpinned, and allowed to remain, while the front wall was removed, and a modern moving picture theater front built up, with the entrance on the Spring street side. Two tunnel exits, seven feet wide in the clear, were built out to each side of the stage, extending back to Short street.

For the facade the architects chose the Italian Renaissance style of architecture, with white enamel brick, trimmed in stone, and decorated with green to set it off. The lobby and foyer are of tile. A ledge was constructed eight feet from the floor of the lobby, and large panel mirrors are set in the tile, and extend up to this ledge. Above the ledge are a number of mural decorations painted on canvas. Numerous nitrogen lamps are used in the lobby, which is excellently lighted. The woodwork, both in the lobby and throughout the theater, is of mahogany. The word "Strand" is etched in green in the center of the lobby floor. A series of art glass pendants extend across the outer edge of the street entrance. The lobby is 22x22 feet in dimensions, and the foyer is 15x22 feet. The box office is placed between the two seven-foot doors at the front of the foyer, and is 6x8 feet. The elaborate cornice at the top of the outer wall is of glavanized iron, and is painted to match the brick work. Four large nitrogen lamps, set in glass globes are placed both to the right and left of the cornice.

The auditorium proper is 55x120 feet and is 40 feet high from the orchestra pit to the roof. The proscenium opening is 30 feet high by 35 feet wide, and the stage is 20 feet deep. The foyer is separated from the main auditorium by a handsome colonnade. Directly inside of the auditorium are two broad stairways which lead to the balcony. Two other stairways lead directly from the balcony to the street so that the balcony may be used independently of the rest of the theater, and also to provide extra exits. Under foot in the auditorium is solid concrete. This floor has an incline of six feet in a distance of 120 feet, from the foyer to the orchestra pit. Automatic seeps are placed near the orchestra pits and the entire interior floor may be flushed out and drained directly into the sewer. These seeps are so arranged that they automatically close, and there is no chance of sewer gas finding its way into the theater. Retiring rooms for men and women are placed at each side of the foyer, and a drinking fountain with iced water is provided for the patrons. A total of 1,000 Circassian walnut seats are installed in the main auditorium. These seats are of the twenty-inch pattern, and are placed thirty-two inches from back to back, thereby providing plenty of leg room.

Strand Theater, Lexington, Ky.

The balcony is 55x52 feet and seats 400. Mezzanine boxes to accommodate 200 persons are arranged in four rows of eight boxes each, extending back a distance of twenty-five feet from the edge of the balcony, and 200 other seats are provided. Renaissance furnishes the architectural key to the interior of the building. The decorations are of plaster and are finished in lattice effects. The heavy ceiling beams are also of plaster and are supported by heavy brackets of the same material. A ledge extends around the auditorium at a height of eight feet from the floor at the foyer entrance. The ledge is used to display many handsome boxes of flowers, and the electric fans are placed at intervals along it. Small side lights are also set at intervals. The second ledge is twenty-two feet from the floor at the entrance to the foyer, and more boxes of plants, vases of flowers, etc., occupy this shelf. The color scheme is green, which is light in color at the ceiling and gradually shades to an olive green at the floor. The decorative design is done in highly burnished gold, which sets off the green in a pretty contrast.

A large electric sign, twenty-five feet tall, has been erected at the top of the exterior of the building, and flashes the word "Strand," which is intermittently spelled out. The sign is a handsome affair and is in green and white. Heat for this theater is obtained from a central heating plant in the neighborhood, and is distributed by means of steam radiators placed at intervals throughout the auditorium, foyer and lobby. In ventilating the building, the gravity system and forced fan ventilation is used. Large ventilating ducts are placed on each side of the auditorium near the floor, and a number of large ventilators are placed in the roof, which carry away the fetid air. Four fans are in the roof. The semi-indirect system of lighting has been employed throughout the theater. There are fourteen large and handsome fixtures in the main auditorium, besides nine lights in the balcony, and the side lights.

Considerable attention was given to the operating booth. This room is fitted with automatic metal shutters, etc. Vents to the roof carry off all heat and odors. The booth is constructed of cement plaster on metal laths and the floor is of concrete. It is nine feet high, ten feet deep and eighteen feet long. The projection apparatus consists of a motor generator set, a rewinding system, which is equipped with motors, and two Power's 6B machines. The throw from the booth to the screen is 120 feet. A switchboard is placed in the operator's booth, so wired that the operator has control of all of the lights in the house. Arrangements have been made whereby the boxes are sold as reserved seats only, and people may purchase tickets in advance for any show to be given at the theater. Special attention is given to box parties. Regular performances start every day at the theater at 1 o'clock and continue without intermission until the close, at about 10.30 in the evening.

The three officers of the company make up the board of directors. In addition to the officers, other stockholders are Garret D. Wilson, of Lexington, owner of the property on which the theater is built, Desha Breckinridge, of Lexington, and R. A. McDowell, of Louisville. The operating force consists of Manager Louis Zahler; Julius Zahler, assistant manager and press agent; Miss Marie Bottnagel and Earl Morgan, organists; Robert Long and Thomas Hacker, operators and members of the Lexington Operators' Union. Music is furnished by an $8,000 pipe organ.

NEW WALLACE THEATER, BRADENTOWN, FLA.

Town With Only 3,000 Population Has $15,000 Photoplay House—Plays to Good Business—Furnished With All Modern Equipment.

ALTHOUGH Bradentown, Fla., has a population of only 3,000 souls, it can boast of a neat and well conducted moving picture theater with a seating capacity of 500. The name of the photoplay house is the New Wallace theater, and it is under the direction of F. A. Sutton, who is the manager and lessee. It was opened in July, 1915, and has been doing a capacity business since.

The New Wallace represents an investment of $15,000, and it is furnished with all modern equipment. The front is built of brick and concrete and has an inviting appearance. The Southeastern Underwriters Association pronounced the structure equal to any other amusement house in the state. The atmosphere in the auditorium is changed every four minutes, this assuring the removal of fetid air and the comfort of the patrons in this respect.

The operating room is equipped with a 1915 model motor-driven Motiograph and a Wagner converter. The projection surface is a Day and Night screen, and it is 9 by 12 feet in size. The program is changed every day and four shows are given daily. The New Wallace also draws its patrons from Manatee, a neighboring town which has a population of 1,500. With the exception of Saturdays when pictures from the regular programs are booked together with the feature productions for that day, the bill at the theater is usually composed of feature releases. When the house was opened it had to compete with two other picture places, but these have since ceased operation and the New Wallace has the entire field to itself.

New Wallace Theater, Bradentown, Florida.

"Direct Current" is the name of the little program which is put out by the management of the New Wallace. It gives the program for the week, scenes from productions to be shown at the theater with concise descriptive matter, and illustrated biographical sketches of well-known persons in the producing and acting ends of the industry. The program is printed on paper a bit better than that used by the daily newspapers, and bears a volume and a serial number. It also contains the date for the week it is released. The size of the program is 8½ by 11 inches, and the lay-out of the text matter and illustrations is effective. The width of the columns is the same as the daily newspaper, and the matter is set in eight point type, leaded. The program is a creditable method of advertising for a picture theater in a small town.

THE STRAND THEATER, VALLEJO, CAL.

One of the most up-to-date moving picture houses in the State of California is the Strand theater at Vallejo. As can be seen from the accompanying illustration it has a pretty entrance, and the name of the house has been worked into the three sides of the drop of the glass canopy, which is studded with incandescent lights and which extends to the edge of the sidewalk. An artistic lamp-post, surmounted with five big frosted globes, stands on each side of the entrance and adds to the brilliancy of the lighting effect of the exterior. The front of the Strand is faced with glazed brick.

Strand Theater, Vallejo, Cal.

There are 585 upholstered seats in the theater which was opened recently. The decoration of the interior is most pleasing to the eye, and the front row of seats has been placed at a respectable distance from the screen to obtain an undistorted view of the picture. Perfect sight lines, in fact, can be secured from any seat in the auditorium. The air in the house is changed every three minutes by the ventilation system which consists of five ventilators and one three-foot exhaust fan.

The operating room is spacious. Two Power's 6A, motor-driven machines are used and a dissolver. The Strand is also equipped with a motor generator. The program is changed from four to five times a week. P. J. Hanlon is the presiding spirit of the Strand theater.

Director F. J. Grandon Goes to Metro

FRANCIS J. GRANDON, one of the foremost directors in the country and a veteran in this branch of motion picture production, is the latest addition to the large staff of Metro producers. Mr. Grandon has just completed, in record time, his first Metro wonderplay, "The Lure of Heart's Desire," in which Edmund Breese, the eminent dramatic actor, is starred. It was produced for Metro by the Popular Plays and Players. Mr. Grandon's next feature will be "The Soul Market," by Aaron Hoffman, in which Mme. Petrova will be seen in the stellar role.

Francis J. Grandon.

Before joining Metro Mr. Grandon was a director with the Triangle Company. He began his career with D. W. Griffith, at the old Biograph company, and was associated with Mr. Griffith for several years. Mr. Grandon then received an attractive offer from Lubin, and went with that company as their first director. Later Mr. Grandon joined the Selig forces, and while with that concern directed and produced the first serial released in connection with syndicated newspaper stories. This was "The Adventures of Kathlyn," with Kathlyn Williams, the star.

Virtus Scott, until recently on the directing staff of the Famous Players, is another addition to the Metro and the Popular Plays and Players, being Mr. Grandon's assistant. Mr. Scott's last work with the Famous Players was with Mary Pickford in "The Foundling," and Pauline Frederick in "Bella Donna." Before that Mr. Scott was with the Equitable, and assisted in the direction of "Sealed Lips," in which Mr. Scott achieved individual distinction for his masterly handling for a big church interior scene, photographed in a well known Brooklyn edifice.

Through a factory accident, which delayed the release of "The Rose of the Alley," with Mary Miles Minter, Mr. Grandon and Mr. Scott were obliged to hurry through their first Metro release, "The Lure of Heart's Desire," but they met the emergency in good shape with a finished and artistic feature.

METRO IN NEW SOUTH WALES.

Negotiations were concluded between the Metro Pictures Corporation and B. T. Howells of Vogel & Howells, Sydney, N. S. W., Australia, by which the latter firm will have exclusive control of the distribution of Metro pictures for Australia. Vogel & Howells will release through the Co-operative Film Exchange, Ltd., of Sydney, and the Dominion Pictures Company, Ltd., of Aukland, New Zealand.

NEW GENERAL FILM BRANCH MANAGERS.

The appointment of two more branch managers was announced from the executive offices of the General Film Company, 200 Fifth avenue, this week. The appointees are W. J. Gilmore, who takes charge of the 23d street branch, New York, and T. Y. Henry, who heads the Salt Lake City organization.

The promotion of Mr. Gilmore is an example of how efficient and faithful service for the General Film Company is rewarded. A number of years ago, Mr. Gilmore, who was then the successful manager of a number of moving picture theaters, decided to go into the business side of films. He entered the 23d street branch in a very unimportant capacity in the distributing room. Gradually he worked his way upward until he became assistant manager. Now he is manager of one of the most important film branches in the world. Opportunity to give Mr. Gilmore his deserved advancement came as the result of the promotion from branch manager to division manager for the East of V. H. Hodupp.

T. Y. Henry, who became manager of the General Film Company branch in Salt Lake City, is an experienced and capable film man. He knows his territory thoroughly and has held important executive positions in exchanges throughout the West. Prior to taking charge of the General Film Company in Salt Lake City, Mr. Henry was manager of the World's Film Exchange in Kansas City.

CLARA WHIPPLE IN INGENUE ROLE.

Clara Whipple, the leading woman of the Equitable Company's stock organization, says that she "perfectly adores" playing ingenue roles. For the past few pictures in which Miss Whipple has appeared she has been cast for vampire roles, and she welcomes herself back again into the role of the debutante. In "The Pain Flower," Miss Whipple is playing the ingenue lead in support of Marguerite Leslie.

"I am enthusiastic about my role," says the pretty actress "with the green eyes." It has been a long time since I could play smiles and dimples. I prefer them to desperate deeds and heart smashing."

Miss Whipple is very pretty, with golden hair, and regular features, which screen to great advantage. She is lovely in her new role.

AMONG OUR VISITORS.

Visitors at the New York offices of the Moving Picture World last week included Frank J. Rembusch, leading exhibitor of Indianapolis, and Shelbyville, Ind.; Charles A. Megown, manager of the Cameraphone theatre of Cleveland, Ohio, and representative of the Exhibitors' League for the Northern District of Ohio; W. Clarence Beatty, proprietor of the Garden, and Cameraphone theaters of Pittsburgh, Pa., and William P. Herbst, president of the Circle Amusement Company of Washington, D. C.

Louise Orth

YOU have noticed the blonde beauty of the L-KO Komedies—the girl whose hair looks like spun yellow silk? Well, that is Louise Orth, and her complexion, which cannot be appreciated on the screen, is of the true peaches and cream variety, which ought always to accompany golden hair and so seldom does.

Louise Orth.

"Denver, Colo., is my birth-place," says Miss Orth, "and I'm not going to tell you the year of my birth—I'm quite grown up, and I'm married! That's a very damaging admission, but I'm too happy to keep it a secret.

"I studied for years at the Ainshaw Conservatory and then I went to New York to seek my fortune. I found it with Blanche Ring, who was playing "The Yankee Girl." I was engaged as her understudy and I got a chance one day at a matinee, and made good. Later I played second lead in "The Fascinating Widow," with Julian Eltinge. I was so impressed with moving pictures that I determined to try them, but after I had played in them for two months, Mr. Eltinge's manager requested the company to release me for two weeks so that I could resume my old part in order that they might open on time. They had tried five or six in my part without success. Wasn't that a nice compliment?

"Pictures are better than the stage, just the same, and I intended to stick to them as long as they stick to me."

There seems no immediate danger of Miss Orth's deserting the screen, in that case!

Helen Ware in "Secret Love"

HELEN WARE in "Secret Love" is the second release in the Bluebird series of multiple-reel features, and there is abundant promise that it will easily maintain the standard of moving picture excellence set by the initial Bluebird Photoplay—Mme. Sarah Bernhardt, in "Jeanne Dore," now being distributed for general release in fulfillment of large demands from all sections of the country.

"Secret Love" is set for release Jan. 31. The scenario was drawn from Mrs. Frances Hodgeson Burnett's widely read novel, "That Lass o' Lowries." Showmen best realize the value of a good title for theatrical promotion and they will realize that the book caption would not serve as a title for the film.

Helen Ware.

When the plot of the piece is unfolded it is strikingly realized that no better title than "Secret Love" could be supplied. There are three distinct love-stories running through the narrative and in filming the work these features are interspersed among the sensational events in a manner to sustain the "heart interest" and supply that motive of combined "thrill" and excitement that makes for general interest in a photoplay.

"Secret Love" tells a story of life in a coal-mining village and its characters are, with very few exceptions, the homely and hard-working men and women who are reared in the rugged life of the mines. Every element of human passion is expressed in the several characters, love, hate, vengeance, devotion, and the supreme sacrifice of woman's affection give plenty of opportunity for the awakening of interest and supplying the essentials that make for the popularity of the photoplay.

Helen Ware is in every essential fully equipped to carry the star role in "Secret Love." Her wide experience upon the stage has not alone given her the necessary qualifications to play the heavy emotional lead in the picture, but her popularity has become wide spread because of the number and importance of her stage engagements.

FROM COLLEGE PROFESSOR TO FILM DIRECTOR.

Edward Morrissey is now a Thanhouser director. It's a wide span from teacher of French and German in the University of California to the stage, but in his thirty-and-few years this San Franciscan has bridged the gulf. A university degree started him toward a life of learning and teaching, but a love for the stage gave him the determination that eventually landed Morrissey on Broadway. A few stock engagements, two years with the Shuberts, and he was ready to listen to the call of the camera. He became D. W. Griffith's assistant at the Biograph, and when he went West, Griffith made him a regular director on the Coast. Mr. Morrissey is gifted with a rare sense of humor besides his keen judgment of dramatic values, which fits him perfectly for the wide variation in the work required of Thanhouser directors.

ILLINOIS EXHIBITORS' CONVENTION CALLED.

At a regular meeting of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of Illinois, held Friday, January 7, formal application was made for admission to the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America and a charter applied for, thus harmonizing fully the exhibitors' interests throughout the state.

A state convention of the Illinois league was called for Tuesday, March 14, Chicago being named as the place of meeting. The following temporary officers were elected until the convention meets: G. M. Luttrell, Jacksonville, Ill., president; Julius A. Alcock, Chicago, vice-president; Wm. J. Sweeney, Chicago, treasurer, and Sidney Smith, Chicago, secretary.

EDNA WALLACE HOPPER WITH EQUITABLE.

Edna Wallace Hopper, for a number of years, a prime favorite among theater-goers of this country and Europe and who, for the past eighteen months has been serving in the British Red Cross behind the firing line in France, arrived in New York last Tuesday on the Lafayette and began work two days later at the studio of the Equitable Motion Pictures Corporation on Fifty-second street, where an especially elaborate film production is in the course of construction and a cast of special strength is being assembled to support the petite Edna.

Miss Hopper earned her laurels on the American stage in "The Girl I Left Behind Me," as Dolly Chester in "The Younger Son," Betsy in "Poor Girls," and then joined the company of De Wolfe Hopper, who she subsequently married. She appeared with Hopper in "Pajandrum" and later starred in "Yankee Doodle Dandy."

Her work in Chris and "The Wonderful Lamp" won fame for her and she was then chosen to play the principal part in "Floradora," a part she has played over a thousand times.

The story built for Miss Hopper has not, as yet, been named, but will receive its title from the strongest character of Miss Hopper's dual role.

FORMER EDISON DIRECTOR JOINS VIM COMPANY.

Will Louis, formerly director of the Edison Company, and a man who has made good in the studio, has joined the Vim Films Corporation, and is already installed in the studios in Jacksonville, Fla. Mr. Louis has a long and a very successful career as a comedy director, having been associated with Lubin Company for twelve years as a director, which organization he left to join the Edison Company. One of the features of Mr. Louis' work is in developing raw material, and some of the most successful screen stars to-day owe their discovery to Mr. Louis' ability to see real values.

The Vim comedies are the different type, but Mr. Louis has proven himself equal to the exacting demands of the Vim Company, and is engaged in turning out some masterly productions, which will add value to any theater program.

HORSLEY TALKS FOR PICTUREMEN'S RIGHTS.

During the recent agitation undertaken by the motion picture interests of Los Angeles, Cal., to secure immunity from senseless and sensational attacks by alleged reformers, David Horsley, president of the Centaur and Bostock studios, voiced the complaints of the picturemen in an emphatic manner on several occasions and with good effect.

Mr. Horsley spoke at some length at the meeting of the motion picturemen and the Los Angeles Motion Picture Conservation Association at the Council Chambers on January 4, and again before the Los Angeles Realty Board at a luncheon given July 5. At the latter meeting Mr. Horsley made specific charges of unfair treatment to which picturemen were subjected. Mr. Horsley's remarks were published at length in the Los Angeles papers and created a profound impression.

OCEAN FILM PRODUCING "DRIFTWOOD."

Company No. 3 of the Ocean Film Corporation, now engaged in the production of "Driftwood, or The Wrong Way," adapted from the stage success of the same name, written by Owen Davis, leaves Sunday morning, the 16th inst., for Savannah, Georgia, there to complete the exterior scenes of that production.

Marshal Farnum is the director in charge, assisted by Albert Dorris. Of those of the cast who are proceeding south there is Miss Vera Michelena, who is being starred in the production; Harry Spingler, Charles Graham and Joseph Daly. This production will be released about February 1.

FINED FOR DUPING KEYSTONES.

The Triangle-Keystone's vigorous campaign against the duping of Keystone films scored another substantial victory in the United States District Court of New York City on Friday, January 14, when Abraham George Levi pleaded guilty and was fined $100 by Judge Mayer. Levi was the first of those indicted for the duping which constitutes a violation of the copyright law. The indictments followed the raids planned by Walter N. Seligsberg and carried out by William H. Moore, in which several arrests were made at a Greenpoint duping factory and many thousand feet of pirated film were confiscated.

Sydney Mason

SYDNEY MASON, the popular young Gaumont leading man who will from henceforth appear in support of Marguerite Courtot in Mutual masterpictures, de Luxe Edition, gave up a possible chair in a college of chemistry to become an actor.

Mr. Mason was a particularly apt and conscientious student of chemistry, some years ago. He had a bent for dramatics, and just for amusement, joined the college dramatic society. They staged an amateur production of "Trilby." Young Mason was cast for "Svengali." He made such a hit as the weird hypnotist, that his ambitions were turned from the analyzing of compounds to the portrayal of dramatic roles. He commenced his professional career in stock, touring the New England States when he was twenty years of age. Finally, as it was so with most ambitious young players, the lure of the picture drama sounded in his ears. He gave up his life on the stage, and joined Famous Players. His first appearance was with James O'Neill.

Sydney Mason.

His real success in "The Builder of Bridges," the Frohman drama, drew the attention of the Gaumont Company to the handsome young juvenile. They offered him a contract which induced him to become a permanent member of their organization. He has played excellent roles in most of the Gaumont (Mutual) Rialto Star Features. His first appearance with Miss Courtot will be made in "His Wife's Double," the five reel feature in which the charming actress will make her Mutual debut.

LAEMMLE TO OPEN SOUTH AFRICAN THEATERS.

The Universal Film Manufacturing Company is going to invade South Africa with its motion pictures. At present in the mining districts, where motion pictures were formerly shown to mine Kaffirs, but the regulations which were placed upon these theaters by the mine management and their strict censorship caused the theaters to go out of business. President Carl Laemmle, of the Universal, will take hold of about fifteen closed theaters in Africa, and give the South African motion picture field more life than it has ever seen since the introduction of the photoplay. It is Mr. Laemmle's intention to start operations there within the next two months.

Scene from "Our Lady of Laughter" (Kleine-Edison).

A NEW PROJECTOR.

Samuel Stern, president of the Stern Manufacturing Company, Philadelphia, has given notice that a new motor driven projecting machine will shortly be put on the market.

The Stern Projecting Machine Company has been incorporated in Philadelphia, with a capital of $100,000, to promote this new machine, which when completed will sell for two hundred dollars complete. The entire building at 109 North Tenth Street, Philadelphia, is being thoroughly overhauled and equipped for taking care of the work. They promise a completed machine inside of two months.

CHANGES IN UNIVERSAL OFFICES.

In order to accommodate the ever-increasing forces of the publicity and advertising departments of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, the quarters of these departments are now being enlarged and rebuilt into modern, up-to-date and commodious offices. The offices of these departments, which sufficed for the work of those departments a few years ago, have outgrown their usefulness, and the new arrangement will be one affording all members of the different departments better facilities for accomplishing their work.

PATHE CLUB TO GIVE A BALL.

The Pathe Club, a social organization formed by members of the Pathe organization, having tried its wings at its first "beefsteak" last Saturday, is now preparing for something nifty in the way of a ball. New York clothiers and haberdashers report marked activity in "evening scenery," and those members of the club who are unmarried have become very popular with friends of the fair sex. The date and place have not yet been announced.

LUBIN BENEFICIALS MEET.

The first annual meeting of the Lubin Beneficial Association was held Wednesday evening, January 12, 1916, in Apollo Hall, Broad street, Philadelphia. Jack Pratt was unanimously elected president; Charles Hyatt, vice president; Isador Schwartz, re-elected treasurer; Donald Scott, financial secretary; Cossette Douglass, recording secretary. The association started the new year with a substantial balance in the treasury, and a new membership of 162 applicants. A rising vote of thanks was extended to Peter Lang, the retiring president, and a committee was appointed to read over the by-laws and suggest improvement of the same.

KLEINE FINISHES "THE SCARLET ROAD."

What is generally thought to be one of the strongest five-reel dramas released on the Kleine-Edison program was given its finishing touches at the big Bronx Studio last week. It is called "The Scarlet Road" and features two popular Broadway players in the persons of Malcolm Duncan and Anna Q. Nilsson. "The Scarlet Road" contains a magnificent cabaret set, which during its making, occupied the entire floor space of the mammoth roof studio, one of the largest under glass. Also, there is a New Year's Eve scene staged in this set that will, no doubt arouse memories of the recently passed holiday by its force and realism. The story has Broadway and its night life as its central theme. It is scheduled for release through the Kleine offices February 16th.

MUCH MYSTERY IN "SOLUTION OF MYSTERY."

Mystery—deep and dark and dangerous abounds in this newest of two-reel "Flying A" drama. "The Solution of the Mystery," for release on the regular Mutual Program. In fact the picture reeks with mystery. The stars are Vivian Rich and Alfred Vosburgh. Miss Rich, as Bessie Mitchell, is kidnapped after she has refused to marry James Willard (Roy Stewart). Her sweetheart, Franklyn Davis (Alfred Vosburgh) apparently has disappeared from the face of the globe. The flashing of sunlight on mirror reveals his whereabouts, however, and he is rescued from the clutches of a band of crooks. He makes short work of finding Bessie. The villains get their just deserts. The chain of mysteries is solved, and all ends happily.

"A FOOL'S PARADISE" TO BE IN SIX REELS.

The policy of the Ivan Film Productions to manufacture five reel photoplays will be departed from when "A Fool's Paradise" is released February 1. The production being completed, Director Abramson and his staff commenced cutting and assembling the negative. It was found that the strong dramatic value of the story would lend itself better to six reels than the common feature length, thus giving the artists who portray the various roles a better opportunity to display their versatility.

Reviews of Current Productions

Exclusively by Our Own Staff

"The City."

Clyde Fitch's Famous Drama Is Done Into Photoplay—Produced by Theodore Wharton—Released by World Film.

Reviewed by Lynde Denig.

TO THE question, "What's in a name?" the powers that direct the World Film Corporation probably would reply, "That depends." Seemingly they have great faith in the advertising value of the names of Clyde Fitch and his sensational drama, "The City," for the photoplay inspired by the stage success is hardly strong enough to stand on its own merits. It lacks the very qualities that made for the vital appeal of the original production—dramatic scenes working up to tremendous climaxes and characters that really seemed to reflect the influence of a great city.

Few pictures of recent issue have offered more inviting opportunities to exhibitors for extensive advertising that should bear fruit in large audiences, but there remains the danger of alienating patrons by sending them away with promises unfulfilled. It is to be feared that they will wait and wait in vain for the thought-provoking shock expected in Fitch's dramatic treatment of the abnormal conditions developed by New York's tempestuous social and financial life. There is a reflection of the original, to be sure, but with occasional exceptions it is all too pale.

Scene from "The City" (World Film).

The F. Ray Comstock Photoplay Company is credited with making the picture, under the direction of Theodore Wharton, who selected an able cast, headed by Thurlow Bergen as Rand, Jr.; William Riley Hatch as the father, Richard Stewart as George Hannock and Elsie Esmond as Emily Rand. The story adheres closely enough to the outline of the play, without—let it be said in commendation of the producer — emphasizing scenes that might offend. The character of Hannock, the drug fiend, for example, made so memorably realistic by Tully Marshall on the stage, is portrayed in a milder vein by Mr. Stewart. His art is sufficient to suggest the moral and physical degeneracy of the youth, without going into unnecessary details. The twitching of his face and fidgety movements of his hands are enough to suggest the nervous derangement from which he suffers.

Probably in scenario form "The City" read very well, presenting in reasonably logical sequence the events accompanying the rise of the Rand family in a small town and their subsequent decline when caught in the turmoil of a great city; but the elusive spark of life, without which a photoplay leaves a vague impression of something lacking, is all too seldom caught in the present production. And the criticism of audiences is likely to be the more exacting owing to their remembrance of the great power of the original play. Probably we come closest to the real Fitch in the forceful speeches culled from the stage dialogue and thrown on the screen in the form of speaking titles.

Mr. Bergen gives an expressive performance, Miss Esmond makes a vivacious, winning girl of Emily Rand, and Mr. Hatch, always a reliable actor, is thoroughly in character as Rand, Sr. The settings for the picture suffice, whereas the photography is of varying merit.

"Madame X."

Henry W. Savage, with George Marion Directing, Produces Six-part Adaptation of Alexander Bisson's Famous Drama for the Program of the Pathe Exchange, Inc.

Reviewed by Margaret I. MacDonald.

OF THE screen adaptations of stage plays which we have seen none has appeared which contains a stronger human appeal. The great French play will be remembered as a marvelously told story of the woman who left her husband and child to tread the "primrose path," her struggle to rise again, and her final fall to the bottomless pit that awaits the weaker victim.

The Pathe Gold Rooster play features Dorothy Donnelly, with a supporting cast which includes Edwin Fosberg, Ralph Morgan, John Bowers, Robert Fischer and Charles Bunnell, and has been directed by George F. Marion, the well-known stage director. With all due respect to the production, which is in many respects a spelndid one, neither Miss Donnelly nor Mr. Marion have been able to extricate themselves entirely from the artificiality of the legitimate stage. During the screen performance one is strongly conscious that Miss Donnelly has played and replayed the role of Madame X until the interpretation of the character has become a bit mechanical, and is thus retarded in stamping the unhampered realism which the screen version requires. The director is also to be taken to task for allowing his players to "pose." He will do well to remember that where color and voice, two of the greatest of stage attributes, are absent, the technique of dramatic action, as we know it on the legitimate stage, must also, to a large extent, cease to be. The psychological, sociological idea, or whatever the intent of the play may be, must be interpreted through a series of impulsive, or rationally guided acts, which must be as free from any appearance of effort or premeditation as the interpretations of the virtuoso of any musical instrument.

Scene from "Madame X" (Pathe).

"Madame X" will please the majority of audiences; but it is not as great a screen play as it might have been.

Clara Kimball Young to Go to Cuba.

Clara Kimball Young, the World Film star, will go to Cuba as soon as she finishes the new Russian picture now being produced at Fort Lee under the direction of Edwin August. In the tropics Miss Young and her supporting company will prepare a big picture adapted from a noted French novel, the name of which is being kept a secret for the present.

Coming Biograph Dramas

"Stronger Than Woman's Will," a Three-reel Production. "The Chain of Evidence," in Two Reels.

Reviewed by Lynde Denig.

THE final reel of "Stronger Than Woman's Will" brings distinctly the best action in the picture, owing to the force of the climax developed and the sincerity of the acting of Charles H. Mailes, G. Raymond Nye and Vera Sisson. Starting on quite conventional lines, the story takes an unexpected turn with the development of the character of the young woman, who eloped with a worthless count, and after his death and the death of her father became the owner of large mills.

Scene from "Stronger than Woman's Will" (Biograph).

There is little attempt to attract sympathy for the foolish girl, whose career becomes that of a hopelessly selfish woman. In the early scenes of the picture the producer is careful to show the mill owner in the light of a kindly man ready to deal fairly with his employees. The request for an advance in wages is promptly granted, and there is no thought of discontent until the selfish daughter decides that she needs more money to lavish on herself and her precious son. Ignoring the protests of the mill manager and the minister who exerts an important influence for good in the community, Ann is willing to have the mill shut down rather than concede to reasonable demands.

It is here that the big situation of the story is introduced with the disclosure of a note that would seriously embarrass the young woman if published, and only through the threat of unwelcome publicity is she persuaded to leave the wage scale untouched, thereby avoiding a strike. The picture was carefully produced by J. Farrell Macdonald and realizes some excellent dramatic moments in the final scenes.

Circumstantial evidence, always a fertile theme for scenario writers, is made the basis of a deftly arranged plot in "The Chain of Evidence," a two-part drama acted by Jack Drumeir, Jack Mulhall, Vola Smith, Claire Macdowell and Ivan Chrystie. Director Walter Coyle, in drawing typical country characters for the chief figures in his drama, and in placing them in an appropriately rural environment, showed excellent judgment. There is enough genuine characterization to keep the picture from becoming a mere arrangement of situations. The village miser, his nephew, the poor widow threatened with eviction, are recognizable types, and there is a pleasing touch of youthful romance in the attachment of the ill-treated nephew for the pretty village girl, played by Miss Smith.

Scene from "The Chain of Evidence" (Biograph).

Trouble comes with the youth's assertion of independence, and his departure for the city, which happens to be coincident with the death of his uncle. Evidence points to murder and robbery, but at the conclusion of a trial scene the innocent prisoner is exonerated. "The Chain of Evidence" is in all respects a creditable two-part offering.

"Marta of the Jungle"

Unusually Entertaining Two-Part Centaur, Featuring Margaret Gibson and the Famous Bostock Animals.

Reviewed by Margaret I. MacDonald.

ONE of the most entertaining of the Horsley productions that have thus far appeared has been made from the scenario of Theodosia Harris, and features pretty Margaret Gibson with Stephen Batty, Roy Watson, and Captain Jack Bonavita in the supporting cast. "Marta of the Jungle" as it is named is a well directed picture. The story is not by any means a big one, but it is a logical one, and has been treated sympathetically. One of the most attractive attributes of the picture will be found in the beauty of some of the locations. The jungle atmosphere has been obtained and maintained in a remarkable manner, considering that the production was made in California. A couple of lion cubs together with their irate parents add their mite to the entertainment of the picture, snarling ferociously as the camera persists in recording their movements.

Margaret Gibson as Marta the adopted daughter of a diamond smuggler gives a delightful impersonation of the character; and it may not be too much to add that she is one of the most attractive little actresses on the screen. Miss Gibson has a personality, and an appearance of extreme youth that cannot be overlooked in the portrayal of youthful roles, together with an intelligence and keenness of perception, all of which make for a delightful combination of results.

Scene from "Marta of the Jungle" (Centaur).

The production has been splendidly photographed, presenting altogether a picture that is a fitting offering to place before any audience, adults or children.

"The Ransom"

Julia Dean Gives Telling Performance in Impressive Equitable Drama Produced by Triumph Corporation.

Reviewed by Lynde Denig.

IF the character of Janet Osborne in "The Ransom" had been written especially for Julia Dean it could not have suited her more completely. It demanded a mature woman capable of emotional feeling and an actress competent to pass from youth to middle age and finally to the last years of a broken life.

Miss Dean is notably successful in portraying each phase of a woman who alters materially during the progress of one of the most satisfactory photoplay stories included on the Equitable program. First she is a normal wife and a devoted mother, a victim of the puritanical narrowness and gossip in a small town; next, through force of circumstances rather than inclination, she becomes the companion of a theatrical "angel" and during the last two reels of the picture her art is at its best in the depiction of an aged, disillusionized woman ready to sacrifice what remains of her life to save her daughter from a like fate.

Beyond the acting of Miss Dean, "The Ransom" offers much of interest, for other characters are well drawn and there is a plot of good quality, terminating in dramatic scenes of certain effectiveness. James Hall portrays a husband of uncompromising severity, whose stern notions of right and wrong are ably seconded by his spinster sister. In the cold atmosphere of this household Janet is ill at ease. An entirely proper craving for life and pleasure finds a partial outlet in the friendship of an actress, and through this actress she meets a wealthy theatrical promoter, who inflames her latent ambition to win fame on the stage.

The usual story of deception, desertion and subsequent humiliation and poverty is developed with no little ingenuity, and becomes more intense with the introduction of Janet's daughter, a promising young actress endangered by the pitfalls, made familiar to the mother through bitter experience. Marcia never dreams that the poor old woman, her maid at the theater, is in reality her mother, nor does she know why "Crazy Jane" shoots the theatrical "angel" when he attempts to repeat the game that he has played so successfully in the past. The climax is nicely prepared for and the picture terminates with its strongest scenes. Louise Huff as Marcia, Kenneth Hunter as Geoffrey Allen and Ethel Lloyd as Sarah Osborne give Miss Dean the best kind of support.

Scene from "The Ransom" (Triumph-Equitable).

"Green Stockings"

English Comedy is Brightly Produced by Vitagraph Company—Lillian Walker Well Cast.

Reviewed by Lynde Denig.

THE comedy of English life, "Green Stockings," written by A. E. W. Mason and produced on the stage several years ago with Margaret Anglin in the leading role, makes a far better picture than one might expect. The point of the story, rather an unusual one for photoplay treatment, is brought out in clear and entertaining fashion and several of the situations are capital. "Green Stockings" may be called polite comedy of the kind most acceptable to audiences that appreciate clever characterization and intelligent humor.

For those not familiar with Mr. Mason's play, it may be mentioned that his characters are taken from the upper class of English society in which the conventions are punctiliously observed. One of the conventions, Mr. Mason tells us, is that the eldest daughter in a family, if she is still a spinster, shall wear green stockings at the wedding of a younger sister. One of Celia's sisters is already married, another is about to be, and the oldest of the daughters remains a very useful, but unappreciated member of the household. In the early scenes of the picture, Miss Walker depicts Celia as a young woman free from feminine wiles and not over attractive in appearance, with her hair drawn tight back in unbecoming fashion.

Scene from "Green Stockings" (Vitagraph).

Then all of a sudden she tires of being either patronized or ignored and invents a soldier lover to whom, she declares, she is engaged. To play the part correctly she writes letters which reach a Colonel Smith, stationed in South Africa. Complications come thick and fast with the appearance of Colonel Smith, who poses as a friend of the officer, reported to have died. Miss Walker as Celia and Stanley Dark as Colonel Smith are at their best in the scenes subsequent to their first meeting, when each is acting up to an odd situation.

Most of the picture is kept in a true comedy spirit and because of this, the intoxication of Celia's aunt in scenes toward the close appears a bit out of keeping. The story would be equally entertaining without resorting to farcical methods. Charles Brown shows a tendency to burlesque the character of a foolish young Englishman with political ambitions; but this need not be reckoned as a fault in a production of such excellent caliber. Wilfrid North directed from a scenario by Eugene Mullin.

"Bill Peters' Kid"

Three-Part Vitagraph Western Subject, Staged on a Mountain-Rimmed Desert, Will Interest.

Reviewed by George Blaisdell.

THE Vitagraph Company will release on February 5 "Bill Peter's Kid," a three-part western subject featuring William Duncan and Mary Anderson. It is a story of the real desert, a rolling waste with mountains in the background. Marie E. Wing is the author and Rollin Sturgeon is the producer. Although not marked by particular strength the picture will make good entertainment. The denouement, however, is strong and will stir. It is a good ending and also a logical one. The series of scenes, two or three in number, in which Winnie, the Kid of the story, shoots a rabbit and in plain view slams the carcass against the wall and proceeds to remove the hide, may contain a jolt for the susceptible. Certainly there is convincing reason why the eastener, seeing the freshly skinned rabbit on the table, should a few minutes later experience a sudden failure of appetite when a freshly cooked hind leg is placed in front of him.

Scene from "Bill Peters' Kid" (Vitagraph).

Mr. Duncan gives a good performance in the role of Dick Stowell, the easterner who comes to the west to assume the superintendency of a desert mine and falls in love with the untutored and wild daughter of a miner. William Bainbridge as Bill Peters, the miner, in type and manner adds to the atmosphere of the story. Miss Anderson has a difficult role, one requiring large experience for successful portrayal. Measured by her experience she does well.

The story turns on the growing affection between Dick and Winnie. Dick is overcome in a sandstorm and is by Peters taken into his hut. Here he meets the Kid. The meeting is not auspicious. There is an amusing moment later on when Dick returns to his camp and discovers Winnie, on a surreptitous tour, hiding under his bed. It is when Sam, a hard character, sees the two in Dick's cottage that he tries to start something in the way of trouble for Dick, but in turn is compelled to apologize to the girl and is run out of camp—and without a canteen. Peters is killed in an accident, the girl is sent to a convent, and upon her return wiser in the ways of ordinary "folks," the expected happens. Dick calls at the hut, now furnished comfortably, only to be found there by Winnie on her return from a trip with her gun. Dick is compelled to admit that he does like girls who kill rabbits and who do other things done by girls of the desert.

Lottie Pickford in American Drama.

Lottie Pickford is soon to appear in a specially written five-part drama, the title of which the American Film company has not yet announced.

"The Misleading Lady"

Essanay's Fine Production of H. S. Sheldon's Adaptation of the Goddard-Dickey Play, With Henry B. Walthall and Miss Edna Mayo in the Leading Roles.

Reviewed by James S. McQuade.

I VIEWED Essanay's production of "The Misleading Lady" twice—once in the firm's projection room at the plant and again, the same day, at a night presentation in the Ziegfeld Theater, on Michigan avenue, where it was making it's first run, the second viewing being especially made in order that I might compare my own opinion of the photoplay with those of patrons, who had turned out on the most inclement night of the season to see the Ziegfeld program. It need scarcely be said that the "opinions" in this instance were expressed by the attitude of those present towards the picture, as shown by deep attention to the screen and in quiet ripples of merriment over the comedy element in the photoplay. Before dismissing the Ziegfeld presentation, I must congratulate the management of that house on the excellent projection of the picture.

Scene from "The Misleading Lady" (Essanay).

This compelling romance of the primitive methods adopted by Jack Craigen (Henry B. Walthall), the dominant character of the photoplay, to win the love of Helen Steele (Miss Edna Mayo), a young society bud who is already engaged to Henry Tracy (Sydney Ainsworth), a prominent man in her own set, might have become harrowing, harsh and forbidding to modern eyes had the role of Jack Craigen been assigned to an artist less gifted than Mr. Walthall. There is so much latitude for the display of brutal force by this character, such fine opportunity to resort to the methods of the cave man in taming the seemingly heartless Helen, that the production might easily have been made shocking to the sensibilities of refined people. Not so with Mr. Walthall in his conception and treatment of the part of Craigen. There is an abundant showing of brutality in his methods—yes; but it is brutality held in artistic restraint, and yet of sufficient force to satisfy the spectator without weakening the strong personality of the character impersonated.

Indeed, I was amused to find that some of the strong-handed scenes in Craigen's mountain lodge, where Helen is subjected to Patagonian civilities (?) by that worthy, caused suppressed merriment among the spectators at the Ziegfeld. And in these cases the fine "team" acting of Miss Edna Mayo contributed largely to give the scenes a comedy tinge.

The essential harshness of these scenes has also been effectively lightened by the introduction of Boney, a harmless lunatic, who has escaped from the asylum nearby the lodge and who has broken into it just in time to forestall the arrival of Craigen and the abducted Helen. Boney is admirably taken off by Harry Dunkinson, whose character acting it has been my pleasure to commend on many occasions. I cannot recall a characterization by Mr. Dunkinson that has been more happily sustained than this one. He succeeds in losing his own entity in that of the good-natured bedlamite, who imagines himself to be Napoleon, and never once betrays that he is conscious of his real self. Boney's exclamation, "Say, you must be awful crazy; they never chained me up," when he sees that Helen is chained to a staple in the floor, is delivered with all the unction of a real crazy man, and cannot fail to raise smiles and laughter wherever the picture is seen. Another apt subtitle is, "I make you a field marshal of France," which is put in the mouth of Boney when Craigen presents him with a large sword to which he has taken a liking, just before the keepers take him back to the asylum.

Henry Tracey (Helen's fiance), Sidney Parker (theatrical manager), John W. Cannell (owner of the house from which Helen was abducted) and Mrs. Cannell (his wife) are cleverly impersonated by Sydney Ainsworth, Edwin Arnold, John H. Cossar and Frances Raymond, respectively, while minor characters are fittingly represented by John Junior, Grant Mitchell and Renee Clemmons.

The direction of the photoplay has been ably done by Arthur Berthelet. The house party at the Cannell home reveals many fine interior sets. It is a home of luxury, and the settings are in full harmony. The garden scene by night, in which Helen paves the way to win her wager that she will make Jack Craigen propose to her in a given time, is just the place for a man to lose his heart to a fair and designing maiden. The interior of the Craigen mountain lodge is another bit of stage craft that impresses one by its atmosphere and fittingness, and interiors showing the working den and a sitting room in the home of Sidney Parker show artistic conception and finished effort.

The release was announced for Jan. 3, through V-L-S-E, Inc.

"The Unwritten Law"

California Company Presents a Good Adaptation of Boyle's Play—Carefully Acted and Staged.

Reviewed by George Blaisdell.

THE California Motion Picture Corporation has produced from a script of Captain Peacocke "The Unwritten Law," the play by Edward Milton Royle. It is in five parts. The subject is well acted and well staged. The picture will interest all the way. There are situations of real strength, and these are handled in a manner to bring out their power. The story is clearly told. At the head of the cast is Beatriz Michelena, and she is well supported by among others William Pike, Andrew Robson, Irene Outtrim and Matt Snyder. The play treats strongly of the drink evil. In the exposition of this phase of the story there is no attempt to sermonize; the action is permitted to carry its own lesson.

Miss Michelena has the role of Kate Wilson, the wife of a promising lawyer. Neither husband nor wife drink. When Wilson is defeated for the governorship through the secret opposition of Larry McCarthy, one of the powers of his party whom he has offended by somewhat spectacularly refusing to join in a drink he starts on the downward path. The wife does her best to bring Wilson back to the ways of industry, but fails. McCarthy aids the wife, in little ways at first. When the husband deserts his family McCarthy presses his suit and wins the affections of the wife. It is after the divorce and the marriage of the two is arranged that McCarthy changes his mind and decides to depart with a former love. He is shot by Kate. Wilson, returning to his home, is found by the police in the same room with the body and is arrested. It is only after the jury has agreed on his guilt that the wife is restored to normal mentality; her story on the witness stand clears the husband; the district attorney refuses to prosecute the wife. The two are reunited.

Scene from "The Unwritten Law" (California).

Miss Michelena has a strong role and she plays it with earnestness and feeling. Mr. Pike as the husband and Mr. McCarthy as the saloon keeper with such remarkable power in state politics give careful, finished performances. Miss Outtrim as Estelle, the "lady friend" of McCarthy, who in the backroom of the saloon smokes and drinks with the proprietor, stands out. Her interpretation of this role is unusual. She shows how to be unconventional and to be charming, too. Matt Snyder as the judge is dignified, impressive.

The picture contains some surprises. McCarthy, in spite of the dislike he creates in the opening scenes, as the protector of the deserted wife gradually wins the sympathy which is lost only by his unexpected reversion to Estelle. The identity of the one firing the fatal shot, too, is successfully concealed until the declaration of the wife in court.

"The Unwritten Law" should be a popular picture.

"The Mishaps of Musty Suffer"

George Kleine Completes Series of Ten Single-Reel Comedies in Which Harry Watson Is Featured.

Reviewed by George Blaisdell.

GEORGE KLEINE has completed a series of ten single-reel comedies featuring Harry Watson, in which that nimble comedian is supported by George Bickel, the other half of the well-known team of Bickel and Watson; Dan Crimmons and Rose Gore, otherwise Crimmons and Gore; Alma Hanlon, Cissie Fitzgerald, Maxfield Moree, H. H. McCullum and Snitz Edwards. All of these are now being shown at the Kleine offices for the benefit of those exhibitors who may be interested in the Kleine offer to grant exclusive territory on these ten subjects in advance of the time set for their regular release. For the restricted period it is intended to issue and to bill the comedies as features.

Scene from "Cruel and Unusual" (Kleine).

The ten subjects are frankly "adapted from nothing, founded on fancy, produced with one ambition only—to make you smile." If the first half of the series, which the writer saw on Sunday, may be considered a criterion the producer has amply succeeded in just what he set out to do. There are laughs in them—aplenty. Mr. Watson brings to the screen a personality. He is an adept in farce comedy. He has a striking physiognomy, and over it he exercises large control. He possesses an amazing power of endurance, he displays an ability in taking blows far from soft that well qualify him to belong to the graduate class in rough and tumble. He achieves his ends without recourse to the vulgar. Throughout the five subjects there was an absence of the off-color, thinly veiled or otherwise.

Scene from "Hold Fast" (Kleine).

"Cruel and Unusual" is the title of the first of the series. In this subject Musty Suffer, as Mr. Watson is known, is seen as a caddie. Musty indulges in a little research in the ancient game of golf and has some strange experiences. By the use of his horseshoe charm he does stunts not contemplated by the founders of St. Andrews. He takes a chance as a subject for experimentation in the Hook Worm Sanitarium. It requires Musty not many moments to learn that such an institution is no place for a tramp, but there is no escape. The X-ray shows the existence of a most pronounced Worm; it is removed, however, before Musty gets through the prescribed regimen. The various operations are more than successful, because the patient survives, singularly enough.

"Keep Moving" is No. 2. For backgrounds there are a grocery store, a barber shop and a saloon. The tramp applies for the job of "boy wanted, partly inside and partly out." So many various adventures befall him and those with whom he comes in contact that not many moments elapse before he is permanently out. What interest in common a tramp should have with a barber's shop is not clear. Musty sees his mistake only too late. He is bound into the chair even as a tall, slender, serious person much resembling an undertaker makes mysterious measurements of his chief physical characteristics. His terror automatically fades as the barber wields a magnified hypodermic syringe and injects a sleep accelerator. That Musty is no thin-skinned person is demonstrated by his survival of the strong-arm scraping administered by the doughty operator equipped with a weapon that in a close-up more resembles a sick saw than a razor. The application to the seared face of Musty of a marvelous "hair restorer"—surely a most unethical proceeding—is the unkindest cut of all. You can see the whiskers grow until the upper front elevation of the tramp reminds one of the rural New England conception of a Mormon elder. However, a little later in a saloon, the hirsuite adornment, if we may speak in the language of the new reporter, is separated from Musty even more quickly than it is acquired. In an unguarded moment—that is, the free lunch counter is unguarded—Musty has inadvertently permitted the tip of his newly acquired and wildly waving manly charms to become contaminated with the soup. He uses considerable gasoline in lieu of the contents of a finger bowl. He leans over the gas stove. That's all.

Scene from "Keep Moving" (Kleine).

There are three others seen at the aforementioned showing, the review of which a lack of space forbids. They are "Hold Fast!", "Going Up!" and "Look Out Below." They are fast and mirthful, and will well repay those exhibitors who have presented the opportunity.

"The Villain Worshipper"

Tenth Episode of Kalem's "Stingaree" Introduces a Would-Be Double to E. W. Hornung's Famous Hero.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

IT WAS a happy inspiration that made E. W. Hornung devote one of his episodes to the doings of a double of his famous highwayman. The ambitious young chap who is fired with a desire to emulate the deeds of hero of the "Stingaree" tales brings an element of novelty and large comic possibilities into this two-reel instalment. One of the best scenes is where the valiant Oswald, made-up to resemble the real highwayman in everything but size, holds up "Stingaree" himself. The amusement of that ever humorous gentleman at the situation, is contagious. Later on, he gives the young chap a practical lesson in the gentle art of relieving one's fellowmen of their valuables, by showing him how to hold-up a stage coach. The episode is not without its serious side, and "Stingaree's" better nature is vindicated when the boy is captured and his mother almost dies of grief. The highwayman effects the escape of his pupil and is himself again landed behind the bars.

In variety of incident, humor of situation and dramatic interest this number is one of the best of the series. True Boardman and his white horse are as effective as ever during the action of the picture, and Paul C. Hurst, Frank Jonasson, Edward Clisbee and James W. Horne are familiar and welcome members of the cast. One of the best features of the series is the excellent reproduction of Australian scenes and characters.

Triangle Program

Billie Burke Delightful in "Peggy." Sam Bernard Amusing in "Because He Loved Her."

Reviewed by Louis Reeves Harrison.

GIVEN a clever and attractive artiste, Billy Burke's fine comedy opportunity, such as Gardiner Sullivan can provide, and the capable directing of Thos. H. Ince, what else than delight could be expected at this stage, when good scientific work is taken for granted? Billie Burke is a born screen actress—she was probably a tomboy earlier in life. Back of her fascinating vivacity are the high spirits of sound health—she is a fountain of natural energy and seemingly exhaustless vigor. Every movement, however nicely balanced by training, springs from the natural impulses of a woman to whom mere existence is a pleasure. Such, at least, is the impression she conveys to those who rejoice with her, whether she is merely amusing herself, or whether she is shattering some old-world pessimism.

Scene from "Peggy" (Triangle).

Peggy is called upon to leave America and visit her uncle in Scotland, and the most amusing part of the whole story is that of her arrival on Sunday. The good people are all at church, a group of hard, undemonstrative, sanctimonious, just-but-not-merciful Puritans, like those who settled New England and left their sturdy impress on our race. In the distance is seen a whirl of dust and white streak, Peggy speeding the limit in her raceabout. Chickens, geese and humans are scattered like autumn leaves along the village street, and Peggy hits the center of religious activity like a meteor just as the kirk is letting out.

Scene from "Because He Loved Her" (Triangle).

Such is warm-hearted and impulsive Peggy. She becomes modified—the characterization is very subtle—but she dares in the end to smash provincial egotism when an erring girl, one who loved not wisely but too well, is brought to harsh social judgment. Peggy's character is the sweet and lovable one of our Southern girl, one whose purity springs straight from the heart, along with that tender commiseration which sometimes makes this hard old world of ours a little heaven in itself.

Sam Bernard promised at the outset to be disappointing, but he soon rose to his opportunities—a season at Sennet's studio is probably quite as strenuous as one at Muldoon's farm—it knocks all the decadence out of a man, even when he has become partially saturated with Broadway theatricalism. A large number of our stage favorites would be improved, if not given a new lease of life, not depend wholly on past reputation, if they would spend their vacations at the Keystone. "Because He Loved Her" is a genuine farce-comedy, depending almost entirely upon activity of movement and ingenuity of incident, but it soon has the audience going and holds them amused to the end.

"My Lady Incog"

Hazel Dawn Is Featured in a Famous Players Subject That Starts Slowly but Picks Up Much Speed.

Reviewed by George Blaisdell.

THE Famous Players released on January 17 "My Lady Incog," a five-part drama featuring Hazel Dawn. It is a story with an amateur detective twist, and the young woman crime detector gets badly twisted herself before the guilty person is found out. The interest does not pick up strongly in the beginning, nor is it marked for that matter perhaps in the first two thirds of the story. There is real drama in the latter part, however, culminating in the thrill where the thief is discovered and captured.

Miss Dawn has the role of Nell Carroll, a young woman who on the death of her guardian finds her chief possessions a rather extensive wardrobe and a mortgage on what she had assumed to be her home. Her lawyer advises her to accept an offer from a southern hotel to assist in the uncovering of a most troublesome thief. The story shows how the criminal is in partnership with the hotel detective, the latter of whom through his intimacy with the chief of police is kept informed of the doings of the newcomer. There are stirring incidents following the adoption by the thief of the same name as that under which the heroine is masquerading and his appearance at a function, intending to denounce the detective for using the name of his wife the baroness.

Scene from "My Lady Incog" (Famous Players).

George Majeroni as the thief gives a strong performance. It is a well drawn characterization, whether as the crippled thief or the polished impostor who is captured under such dramatic circumstances. Dora Mills Adams, as Mrs. De Veaux, society matron, the entertainer of the young woman she believes to be a baroness, is convincing. Robert Cain as young De Veaux, in love with the amateur detective, and through whose reported difficulty in the market and his successful secretive midnight excursion to recoup his losses at a poker game is brought under suspicion, does well. Franklyn Hanna and Frank Wunderlee as the police chief and the house detective are well cast and look the parts. Particularly well portrayed is the minor role of the family lawyer of Nell.

The exteriors are of Florida and are notable. The interiors are lavish and of unusual depth. Sidney Olcott is the director, and he has got out of his story all the meat in it. Particularly well handled are the scenes in the De Veaux mansion—the consternation of the amateur detective when she is handed the card bearing the name that she has assumed, her decision to accede to his demand that she introduce him as her husband, the dilemma when the hostess shows them to their adjoining rooms and her hasty locking of the intervening door; the secret departure of the thief and his capture just as he finishes robbing the safe.

The Lubin Releases

"The Evangelist," a Four-Reel Unit Program Drama, and "The Law's Injustice," a Three-Reel Photoplay by Julian Louis Lamothe.

Reviewed by Edward Weitzel.

"The Evangelist."

"THE Evangelist" is a screen version of Sir Henry Arthur Jones' stage drama of the same name, adapted by Clay M. Green and produced by Barry O'Neil. In its original form this work of the celebrated English dramatist stoutly maintained its creator's reputation for dealing with vital subjects, without fear or favor. None of the strength of the spoken drama has been lost in transferring it to the screen. It is a story of guilty love and of a woman's redemption through the influences brought to bear upon her and her husband by Sylvanus Rebbings, an evangelist. Christabel Nuneham is married to a man who loves her sincerely, but interest in his work causes him to neglect her. Rex Allen, a young officer, who is infatuated with Mrs. Nuneham, persuades her to accompany him to Southampton, when he is ordered to sail for India. She remains over night in his company, is injured the next day in an automobile accident, and is assisted by Rebbings. Later the Evangelist meets Mrs. Nuneham in her own home and recognizes her. The woman attempts to deny that they have met before, but Rebbings is not to be deceived and, when her husband learns the truth, is the means of bringing about a reconciliation. There is a skillfully devised underplot to the story, which the screen dramatist has utilized, and the result is a powerful and engrossing photoplay.

Good judgment is shown by the producer in his choice of locations and his direction of the many diversified and intensely dramatic scenes. The English atmosphere is reproduced with commendable fidelity, except in a few minor cases; and the settings have been made with a liberal but judicious expenditure of effort and means.

Gladys Hanson is the star of the cast and justly so. She proves her right to having her name in capital letters by giving a beautifully sincere performance of the erring wife. She makes her reformation thoroughly convincing. George Soule Spencer is an impressive but somewhat too theatric exponent of the Evangelist, and Jack Standing is a dashing young lieutenant of the Guards. Rosetta Brice acts Phoebe Ransford with her usual command of her art, and George Clarke, Peter Lang, Arthur Matthews, and Eleanor Dunn vindicate the wisdom of their choice.

Scene from "The Evangelist" (Lubin).

"The Law's Injustice."

The heroine of this three-reel drama is an Italian girl, and the injustice which she suffers at the hands of the law is convincingly set forth by Julian Louis Lamothe, the author of the scenario. A worker in a factory, Nina, who is also supporting her sick brother, is forced into the clutches of a loan shark, by her employer. This leads to her getting deeper into the toils, and she is finally forced either to yield to her pursuer or go to prison. She chooses the latter alternative, serves her sentence, and on her release, meets the son of her old employer. The younger Morris is an honorable man, and Nina grows to love him. When the opportunity to get even with his father presents itself, she cannot resist, and sacrifices her hopes of happiness in order to defeat Ashton Morris' political aspirations.

Mr. Lamothe's method of working out his story is along well approved lines, and he has had able assistance from Edward Sloman, the producer. The members of the cast have, without exception, also been of real benefit to the picture. Helen Wolcott plays the Italian girl, and Geergo Routh, L. C. Shumway, Adelaide Bronti, Mercedes Diaz, Wm. J. Spencer and Milton Flynn comprise the rest of the cast.

"As a Woman Sows"

First Contribution of the Gaumont Company to the Edition de Luxe of the Mutual Masterpictures.

Reviewed by Margaret I. MacDonald.

IN THE five-reel melodrama which the Gaumont Company presents as their initial offering to the Edition de luxe of the Mutual Masterpictures, Gertrude Robinson, a former screen star who appeared again recently in a Biograph reissue of an adaptation of Robert Browning's "Pippa Passes," is seen to advantage. Playing opposite her is Alexander Gaden, who is also favorably known in screen circles.

The story which is entertaining is rather short of material for a five-reel picture. W. F. Haddock, Gaumont director, has however, done good work in covering the defects of the story that is neither new nor entirely probable. Many times the sanest characters of the play are made to act with irrational haste, thereby giving an impression of overdrawn situations; and one or two of the characterizations are not well balanced.

A brief outline of the plot suggests a jealousy on the part of an aunt and cousin of the young mayor of Lynboro toward his wife. This condition causes them to take advantage of his seeming neglect of his young wife for the political duties with which he is engrossed. The wife is influenced through the other two women to flirt with a society man in order, according to their logic, to rouse the husband to recognition of the fact that his wife is "alive." The man taking advantage of the young wife's attentions oversteps the mark, and the husband finding his wife in the other man's arms, leaves the house taking their baby with him. Intermingled with this are some incidents of a political intrigue, during which the wife and her husband become reconciled.

Scene from "As a Woman Sows" (Gaumont).

The work of the players will be found entirely satisfactory, and the production although not up to the standard which we would like to see arrived at in the Mutual Masterpictures, is good entertainment for the average audience.

"Wild Oats"

A Kleine-Edison Production in Which There Are Many Dramatic Moments—An Efficient Cast.

Reviewed by Lynde Denig.

THE dramatic conflict in this five-part drama, produced by George Kleine, for release through the Kleine-Edison Feature Service on January 19th, begins in the very first scene. An audience may well be startled into attention by the sudden introduction of an argument such as generally comes as the climax of two or three reels of preparation—a dissipated youth's appeal to his sister for money. He must have cash with which to meet I O U's and his sympathetic sister is the only person likely to aid him in the emergency. The scene is a good one with which to introduce the checkered career of Roy Wilson, who spends his days and more especially his nights, in the distribution of wild oats.

It was not considered necessary to show how Roy became a victim of evil habits. We are spared the usual details of a gradual degeneration and meet him just as he is about to reap the whirlwind. The pressing need for money marks the beginning of the end, for he is involved not only with his father's business rival, but with that gentleman's mistress as well, and the burden is beyond his capacity. If an audience wants quick action and a story free from superfluous scenes, it will find them here, also it will find competent acting with Malcolm Duncan interpreting the black sheep, Alma Hanlon displaying a pleasingly youthful sister, Herbert Hayes as her admirer, William Anker as the kindly father who dies of heart failure and Ruby Hoffman as the dangerous Cleo. Then there is some faithful characterization in Frank Belcher's playing of Madison, the unscrupulous architect, who hopes to profit by the plans stolen from his rival.

The youth, presented with commendable naturalness by Mr. Duncan, is obviously weak rather than evil in intent, and as the story progresses we see how he is virtually forced to resort to criminal means. Only by stealing his father's estimate on an important contract is he able to pacify Madison, and then, thinking to please the woman who has infatuated him, he takes the jewels from the family safe. The plot is so arranged that suspicion falls on the architect's secretary, Jessie's suitor, but of course he is eventually cleared by Roy's confession. "Wild Oats" is the kind of a picture that an exhibitor need feel no hesitancy in booking.

Scene from "Wild Oats" (Kleine-Edison).

"The Path of Happiness"

Violet Mersereau Adds to Her Reputation in Red Feather Offering of Five Reels, Written by Elaine Sterne.

Reviewed by Robert C. McElravy.

THE girl of the woods is no longer a novelty in film stories, yet Violet Mersereau succeeds in infusing fresh interest into the part of this offering. In fact it is difficult to remember a screen performer whose appearance as a child of nature has been more attractive and convincing. Her ingenuous and child-like acting are particularly fitted to this role.

The presentation of this story has been carefully looked after and the wood views are full of sunshine and scenic charm. There is a noticeable freedom from the over-sentimental, although the innocent girl meets some severe trials as the piece develops. She is first seen living in the woods with her father and Grekko, a misshapen youth adopted some years before. She has no knowledge of the world and is a close friend of the birds and squirrels. Her father's death comes as a rude awakening. This is well pictured; the girl knows nothing of death and cannot at first understand what it means. The finding of the doll is also an excellent touch. The observer can see the fascination it has for her and understands the joy with which she carried it home. The bathing scenes were overdone, and will probably be cut.

Scene from "The Path of Happiness" (Red Feather).

Then comes the city man, in search of health and forgetfulness, having just been disillusioned in a love affair. He meets Joan and is attracted to her. He teaches her how to read and the meaning of love. Grekko becomes jealous and makes two efforts to kill the intruder. In the second effort, he shoots the girl by mistake, but she recovers and the close is a happy one.

Harry Benham, Sidney Bracey and Florence Crawford also appear in the cast.

The photography is unusually good, adding much to the pleasing character of the production.

"The Bait"

Five-Reel Mutual Produced by David Horsley—Able Cast Works Under Difficulties.

Reviewed by Louis Reeves Harrison.

POORLY constructed, lacking in sympathetic interest and not built of five-reel material, "The Bait" is interpreted by an extraordinarily fine cast, mainly a vigorous lot of men who put forth their utmost energies to make the story a success. It is a case of splendid types trying their very best in a weak medium. The story gradually develops as that of the old-fashioned theatrical villain of the deepest dye, a human being without a redeeming trait, who triumphs to the last scene. He uses a pretty girl as bait in his border joint, though their relations are not made known until later on. Just before she is presented as the wife of an honest paymaster it is discovered through the dying confession of her father that he consented to a mock marriage between his daughter and the villain. The latter robs the honest paymaster; the victim is unjustly accused, and such is the outworn material regularly used in bygone one-reel photoplays, amplified into five reels by questionable means.

Scene from "The Bait" (Centaur).

A large amount of the padding consists of some ugly views of human life at its lowest, scenes between rough men and vile women in the combination bar, dance hall and gambling joint owned by the villain, scenes which need only be glimpsed for dramatic purposes. Here attention is fixed at the outset upon an attractive young rancher who is fleeced, but he soon vanishes, not to reappear until the last scenes. Interest is scattered here and there; two men not easily identified start out on horses from different places for different purposes, and one is later seen riding hard in the distance—which is he? The lack of clarity at times causes a confusion that is deadening to interest, and there are even scientific faults beyond reasonable excuse. One lighted interior at night is without color, while another, immediately following, is tinted a fiery red. Such is the five-reel example of what is denominated an "Edition de Luxe," a "Masterpicture," a challenge of comparison with the best.

"The Trail of the Wild Wolf"

Two-Reel Universal Program Feature Pictures Fine Winter Landscape and Tells Pleasing Story.

Reviewed by Robert C. McElravy.

WHETHER it is contrast with so many drawing room and beach scenes, or whether the mere sight of pure, white snow gives an added zest to a screen story, it is certain that winter pictures from the opening scenes have much in their favor. There is something about them that suggests robust adventure and perhaps unconsciously stirs the blood of the observer. For one thing, they are not apt to be overdone, for producing companies are not always so situated that they can fit the story and the storm together.

This two-reel number, by Robert F. Hill, has a characteristic plot, such as one anticipates in stories of the great Northwest. But it is a well-constructed tale and strongly presented. It pictures the final episode in the career of one Garrier, known as "the Wolf." He is a notorious despoiler of women, and in the early part of the story is shown making away with the dead body of a girl who met death in his cabin. He then abducts one of the daughters of an honest trapper, having left and father helpless in the clutches of a steel trap.

The hero arrives at the cabin shortly after the abduction, together with the girl's younger sister. As the snow is heavy on the ground, they are able to track the Wolf without difficulty. The pursuit works up a pleasing suspense, which continues through a long hand-to-hand struggle between the two men. This results in the Wolf's death. In the meantime the father of the girls has been released from the trap and is present to rejoice in the safety of his daughter.

Scene from "The Trail of the Wild Wolf" (Universal).

The action is well knit and free from padding. The cast is a pleasing one and includes Sydell Dowling, Edith Roberts, Willis Clarke, Paul Panzer and Frank Smith.

"His Vindication"

Good Melodrama in Four Reels by Cosmofotofilm—the Action Is Almost 100 Per Cent and the Love Story Tender, Wholesome and Convincing.

Reviewed by Hanford C. Judson.

IF THIS reviewer were booking a film for a picture theater, he would take "His Vindication" without a single doubt. The reviewer has had some experience helping to run a village theater and this exciting and absolutely wholesome melodrama, four reels of it, all good, is just the kind of offering to please the doctor's family, the school teacher's family and the cobbler's family. There is no lagging in it, no sensations dragged in by the throat, no appeal to the lower instincts, no untruthfulness to our common human nature and no lack of interest. It is a thoroughly satisfying offering

Scene from "His Vindication" (Cosmofotofilm).

The setting is in England. The leading player, Charles Rock (he is ably supported by a large cast), has the part of a rich squire and most of the action transpires at the Hall, or the village inn or between the two. The story opens at the inn. There's a character there who seems to the young squire and his brother to be a gentleman; but we, the spectator, know that he is a crook. He meets the two who come to the inn after a morning's shooting and it ends by his being invited to come to the Hall to dinner. By a freshly conceived and cleverly played ruse (and convincingly enough for a melodrama) he robs the house, kills the younger brother and contrives it so that, with himself entirely unsuspected, the squire is sent to prison for life. Just here there is a skip in the time. The squire's son has grown up and is rich. The old man escapes from prison and comes back to the village as a tramp fiddler. A charming heroine is skilfully introduced. She is the daughter of the inn keeper and her real sweetheart is the village blacksmith; but she is flattered by the attentions of the young squire. He means well at first; but comes under the influence of the same villain who wronged his father and designs a mock marriage. The closing of the drama shows how the old man frustrates this scheme, nearly gets captured; but discovers evidence that the crime for which he suffered was done by the villain. One of the picture's pleasant qualities is its characters. The inn keeper, the smith, the villagers, the servants, police officials, etc., are well played roles.

"THE SALAMANDER" STATE RIGHTS GOING RAPIDLY.

Always a firm believer in the state right method of disposing of motion pictures, B. S. Moss' faith has been justified through the wonderful sale of his latest release, "The Salamander" which is taken from the book by Owen Johnson. This great story, successful as a "best seller" bids fair to eclipse its previous triumphs and achieve a distinct success on the screen.

During the past week, Mr. Moss disposed of fifteen states. Among the prominent film concerns who purchased territory were the Amalgamated Feature Photo Company, who secured New York City, New York State and Northern New Jersey; Union Film Supply Company of Boston, the New England States; Central Film Company, Chicago, Illinois and Indiana; L. Santikos, Texas and Oklahoma, and Edwards Nussbaum, California, Nevada and Arizona.

The rights for Australia and New Zealand have been absorbed by the Australasian Film Company, Ltd. Millard Johnson, the New York representative, engineered the deal, and incidentally, although Mr. Moss will not divulge the figures, a record price was achieved.

MISS BARRYMORE IN "THE KISS OF HATE."

Metro's next offering, with Ethel Barrymore in the stellar role, will be "The Kiss of Hate," a powerful story of romance, intrigue and politics in Russia, according to an announcement just made in the Metro offices in the Longacre Building. This five part feature will be put into production immediately by the Rolfe Photoplays, Inc.

Miss Barrymore will have an unusually strong supporting cast, including H. Copper Cliffe, the noted dramatic actor, who was recently starred in a big production. Mr. Cliffe was last seen on the Metro program in support of Miss Barrymore, in "The Final Judgment."

William Nigh, one of the youngest directors on the Metro staff, but who has gained nation-wide fame recently with his artistic triumphs, "A Yellow Streak," in which Lionel Barrymore is starred, and "Emmy of Stork's Nest," with little Mary Miles Minter in the stellar part, will direct the new Ethel Barrymore feature.

"HAM" ON LONG-TERM CONTRACT.

The Kalem Company announces that Lloyd V. Hamilton last week affixed his signature to a long-term contract that assures his continuing as a star in the "Ham and Bud" comedies for a long period. This announcement sets at rest rumors that "Ham" might be giving consideration to luring offers from other companies which he is known to have received since returning to active screen work recently.

"Ham" at present boasts of one of the largest individual followings of any player in the comedy field, and though no figures are stated it is certain that the new contract calls for a salary that makes him one of the highest priced of picture stars. The comedian's following showed its strength by the flood of letters that came into the Kalem office all during his recent illness requesting information as to his condition. Since his return "Ham" has completed three or four subjects so that he will make his return bow on the screen some time in February.

TERRISS ENGAGES A NEW COMPANY.

Tom Terriss has taken the Marion Leonard studio in Brooklyn for the production of his next feature, on which he will begin work on Wednesday, Jan. 19. Terriss will play the leading role himself and will direct the picture, assisted by Frank G. Kugler, who will also have charge of the camera, and Joseph Baker. Betty Holton, formerly of Famous Players, the Biograph, the Reliance and the Metro, will play opposite him as leading woman. The other members of the cast are Mr. Baker, Alfred Heming, John Hopkins and Jill Woodward. The picture will be a strong drama with a big heart interest. It was especially written for Mr. Terriss.

Comments on the Films

Exclusively by Our Own Staff.

General Film Company

IN THE AISLES OF THE WILD (Biograph), Jan. 10.—A dramatic sketch produced by Griffith several years ago and well worthy of reissue. All of the scenes are laid in picturesque locations and the acting is up to the usual standard of these early Biographs. Lillian Gish, Harry Carey, Henry Walthall, Claire McDowell and Alfred Paget are in the cast.

SELIG-TRIBUNE NEWS PICTORIAL NO. 3, 1916 (Selig), Jan. 10.—Teddy, the $10,000 sheep dog, rounding up a flock of sheep, Jerome, Ariz., opens the reel. Other items include race meet at New Orleans; jungle beasts in death grip, Los Angeles; Harvard track-meet candidates training; gridiron war by U. S. soldiers, El Paso; new City Hall, San Francisco; D. C. Meyer, Socialistic representative at Washington, D. C.; German field hospital at Lille, France; eleven killed in explosion on steamer Aztec, Brooklyn, N. Y.; war on vice, Juarez, Mexico; training ship arrives at New York.

WHEN LIN CAME HOME (Vitagraph), Jan. 10.—This one-reel photoplay is a fine example of enforced pathos and dramatic strength. The author, L. Case Russell, has written a story that abounds in human interest and is well out of the beaten track. William Wolbert has given it an excellent production. George Holt, J. Carleton Weatherby, Miss Wolbert and William Western comprise the proficient cast.

GUARDIAN ANGELS (Kalem), Jan. 11.—Bud Duncan and Jack MacDermott are the "Guardian Angels" in this one-reel burlesque comedy, written by Howard Irving Young. The object of their devotion is a nice, healthy looking little girl, and Ethel Teare fills the part from every point of view. Chas. Mulgro is her wealthy old father, and the entire cast skip merrily from point to point of the comic business. Diverting nonsense throughout most of the reel.

THE FABLE OF THE TWO PHILANTHROPIC SONS (Essanay), Jan. 12.—The moral of this George Ade fable has much food for thought. In scattering Seeds of Kindness, do it by Hand and not by Machinery. As set forth in the fable this means buy a library for your native town and ask the population to stand a small portion of the cost and no one has a good word for you; buy all the male members a five-cent cigar and they will look upon you as a real benefactor. The reel is full of the Ade brand of humor, and its two principal parts are played by Harry Dunkinson and Charles J. Stine.

THE TRICKSTERS (No. 12 of the "Ventures of Marguerite" Series) (Kalem), Jan. 14.—Marguerite just escapes, in this one-reel instalment of her eventful career, from being married to the wrong man. Otto Hoffman, the author of the scenario, has used an amateur theatrical performance to entrap Miss Courtot. The picture is not one of the strongest of the series. Roland Bottomly, Robert Ellis, Richard Purdon and Homer Buress are members of the supporting company.

A BATHTUB MYSTERY (Lubin), Jan. 12.—Edwin McKim, the author and producer of this one-reel comedy, has managed to unearth some new material for his picture. This fact alone will cause the reel to be watched with interest, and the acting of D. L. Don, Florence Williams and George Egan is sufficiently humorous to bring out the laughs, which occur at frequent intervals.

LITTLE BROWN HEN (MinA), Jan. 13.—Another lively picture in line with the latest output of the MinA company, this one-reel comedy has for its chief funmaker the unctuous William Parsons. There is a well-defined plot and the complications are all laughable.

SELIG-TRIBUNE NEWS PICTORIAL NO. 4, 1916 (Selig), Jan. 13.—Camel riding at the Selig Zoo is the feature item of this number. Other interesting happenings: President Poincare at Nice, France; sparring at Harvard; delegation at Washington; Field Marshal Von Hindenburg at Nish, Serbia; San Francisco cross-city race; Secretary of War Garrison leaving House of Representatives; Juan Domenjos, of Brazil, flying at Washington; Samuel A. McCall installed as Governor of Massachusetts; reign of terror, Youngstown, Ohio; baby monkeys and bears, Selig Zoo; winter sports at Winchendon, Mass.

CHICKENS (Vim), Jan. 14.—"Needles and pins, needles and pins! When a man starts flirting his trouble begins!" This slight change in the old saw gives the keynots to the plot of "Chickens." Pokes and Jabs keep up their reputation as comic despoilers of domestic happiness, and the picture has the requisite quantity of Vim comedy.

WHEN TWO PLAY A GAME (Vitagraph), Jan. 14.—When two play a game and that game happens to have several humorous complications and Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew happen to be the persons who indulge in the aforesaid game, the result is absolutely certain to be a first-class high-class moving picture comedy. A word to the wise exhibitor is sufficient. One reel.

THE HAUNTED STATION (No. 62 of the "Hazards of Helen," Railroad Series) (Kalem), Jan. 15.—A lift bridge furnishes the object upon which Helen performs the thrill that goes with this number of the series. It's a full-sized thrill from start to finish, and most beholders would rather exclaim, "There she goes!" than "Look at me!" The other portions of the reel have plenty of action and interest. Robyn Adair and Clarence Burton are Miss Gibson's leading support.

A SKATE FOR A BRIDE (Lubin), Jan. 15.—The title of this one-reel comedy does not refer to the age or physical aspect of the lady in question. The Mark Swan title is to be taken literally. The author has hit upon a novel and decidedly amusing plot, and Billie Reeves, assisted by Carrie Reynolds, Arthur Mathews, Jack Delson and John Shermer, carry it to a successful and highly laughable finish.

General Film Company Specials.

THE HOUSE OF REVELATION (Essanay), Jan. 8.—The action in this three-reel photoplay opens in England, during the present time, and is then placed back in days of white wigs and knee breeches. The story is very romantic, and swords are crossed and a fair lady's name defended in proper style. The atmosphere of an earlier period is cleverly maintained, and John A. Lorenz, Elizabeth Burbridge, Dexter McReynolds and Jack Milton sustain the leading parts with decided skill.

TRIED FOR HIS OWN MURDER (Vitagraph), Jan. 8.—The incidents used in this three-reel drama, written by Agnes Christine Johnston, are the reverse of commonplace. The situation that gives the picture its title is brought about very plausibly, and the role of the heroine is very sympathetic. Van Dyke Brooke has directed its production in his best style, and Maurice Costello, Leah Baird, Mr. Brooke, George Stevens, Harry Fisher and Mrs. Phillips are judiciously cast.

THE BLACK CROOK (Kalem), Jan. 10.—The five-reel screen version of this celebrated spectacular drama, which marked the introduction of the ballet on the dramatic stage in this country, has many points in its favor. A review of the photoplay appeared in the issue of Jan. 1, page 91.

THE DEVIL-IN-CHIEF (Selig), Jan. 10.—As a study of the primitive passions, nothing since the publication of Jack London's "The Sea Wolf" has approached in power and sustained interest this three-reel photoplay, written by Lanier Bartlett. The theme just escapes being repulsive, and without the skill of Director Colin Campbell and the masterly acting of Tyrone Power in the title role the picture would not be acceptable to many people. In the hands of Messrs. Campbell and Power it has the weird fascination of a story by Poe, and bares the workings of the mind of a murderer with keen psychologic insight. Eugenie Besserer, Edith Johnson and Wheeler Oakman are valuable members of the cast.

THE SURPRISES OF AN EMPTY HOTEL (Vitagraph), Jan. 10.—Charles Richman is the star in this mysterious play; quite interesting and thrilling are the scenes. Mr. Richman is excellently supported by a good cast. Praise must be given to the settings as well as the photography.

ANGELS UNAWARES (Essanay), Jan. 11.—The imitation that Ruth Stonehouse gives of Charlie Chaplin in this two-reel drama, while clad in pajamas, will delight her admirers. The picture offers her an opportunity of acting one of those little street waifs that she does so well. The story is excellent, and Miss Stonehouse's command of unforced humor and quiet pathos find a fitting medium in the character of Freckles. Edmund F. Cobb, Madge Kearns and Grant Foreman are members of the cast.

THE OLD WATCHMAN (Lubin), Jan. 11.—Julian Louis Lamothe has written a melodramatic story for this two-reel photoplay. The scenes are modern and the incidents might easily have been taken from real life. Put into a moving picture they possess a compelling interest, and Mr. Lamothe's skill at construction has built them into a well-made screen drama. Melvin Mayor is human and forceful in the title role, Helen Eddy acts with her customary aptitude, and Jay Morley, Robert Gray, George Routh and L. C. Shumway are admirable selections. Leon D. Kent made the production.

THE WAR OF WEALTH (Biograph), Jan. 12.—Lacking something in dramatic force, the best assets of this three-part drama is found in attractive settings. After the opening, presenting a skirmish in the Civil War, the action shifts to the present day and shows the results of the dishonesty of a bank official. The cast includes George Pierce, John Bramall, Charles Perley, Robert Drouet and Clara Bracey.

THE PURIFICATION OF MULFERA (Kalem), Jan. 12.—The eighth of the Stingaree series contains a good combination of comedy and melodrama. In this episode Stingaree holds up a bishop and his chaplain on their way to reform a particularly notorious settlement. In the ministerial garb Stingaree and his partner proceed to hold up Mulfera, but are compelled to make a hasty getaway when the bishop appears. There are some exciting incidents. The subject was reviewed at length in the issue of January 8.

THE CITY OF FAILING LIGHT (Lubin), Jan. 12.—A Unit Program four-reel drama, this photoplay was written by Anthony P. Kelly and produced by Geo. W. Terwilliger. It is a tale of the struggle between capital and labor, and has a number of strong scenes. The able cast includes Herbert Fortier in a dual role, Leslie Austen, William H. Turner, Octavia Handworth and Mrs. William Carr. A review of this picture was printed in the issue of Jan. 15, page 438.

THE BOND WITHIN (Lubin), Jan. 13.—Novelty of plot and excellence of acting mark this three-reel drama, written by Julian Louis Lamothe and produced by Edward Sloman. The scenes are laid in the South and in Mexico, and the play has strength and vigorous action. The taking of Vera Cruz is one of the main incidents. Adda Gleason is the most effective member of the cast. A review of this picture appeared in the issue on Jan. 15, page 438.

A DAUGHTER OF THE WOODS (Knickerbocker), Jan. 14.—Jackie Saunders, the star of this three-reel photoplay, impersonates a young girl brought up in a log cabin, a child of nature. When she is found to possess a fine singing voice she goes to the city and becomes a famous opera singer. Her career is well worth following, and Miss Saunders looks and acts the different phases of the character in a highly satisfactory manner. The picture was produced by the Horkheimer Brothers.

BY LOVE REDEEMED (Vitagraph), Jan. 15.—There are many tense moments in this film which holds the interest throughout. The acting is clever and is in good keeping with the play. The directing is unexceptionable.

NO SIREE, BOB (The "Chronicles of Bloom Center," No. 8) (Lubin), Jan. 15.—Maibelle Heikes Justice has given this two-reel chronicle a plot that is original, amusing and smacks of the soil of Bloom Center. The efforts of the village storekeeper to obtain a pension, and the means of his undoing, have real humor. The excellent character sketches contributed to the series by John Lancaster, Wm. Hutchison, Martha Mattox, Lee Morris, Ralph McComas and Sidney Smith are greatly to the picture's advantage.

Fox Film Corporation.

A PARISIAN ROMANCE Jan. 9.—No work of the director or of the players could make good entertainment of this subject for the average photoplay house. If it has appealed, it is to those who take pleasures sadly. Baron Chevrial drags out his slimy disgusting trail across five reels. It strains the credulity to suggest that in life it would be possible for a young woman of position to tolerate for a moment the embraces or endearments of this doddering old rascal. In its form of presentation there is nothing outwardly to offend. The story simply lacks screen availability. It neither stirs nor moves; it is devoid of jolts or gulps. The picture is beautifully staged and in the main well played. The cutter has overchopped some of his situations making the story at times seem jerky although the plot is clearly outlined. H. Cooper Cliffe as the baron is skillful. The young woman who is doomed by her father to be the wife of the baron well portrays the misery that follows the wedding, a gloom that is symptomatic of the whole action.

Kleine-Edison Feature Service.

THE CATSPAW (Kleine-Edison).—Marc Macdermott and Miriam Nesbitt give interesting performances in the characters of the two crooks figuring prominently in a picturesque melodrama, written by William Hamilton Osborne and directed by George A. Wright. Mr. Macdermott plays a dual role, that of a gentleman burglar and the actor engaged to impersonate him. The picture is very well staged and there is no question about the interest of an audience being held.

WILD OATS (Kleine), Jan. 19.—A satisfactory five-part drama, in which the story is smoothly developed and intelligently acted by Malcolm Duncan, Alma Hanlon, William Anker, Herbert Hayes, Frank Belcher and Ruby Hoffman. The plot follows the difficulties of a dissipated youth, who is forced to resort to theft to meet debts incurred by gambling and riotous living. A review appears on another page of this issue.

Mutual Film Corporation.

A BUM STEER (Vogue), Jan. 12.—A good comedy, in which a chase after a woman in a coin spot dress who, according to the newspapers, has stolen $10,000 worth of diamonds, leads to various funny complications. The majority of audiences will like this picture, in spite of its rather ambiguous title.

MUTUAL WEEKLY NO. 54 (Mutual) Jan. 13.—Interesting incidents of this issue are King Alfonso's artillery in action at Barcelona, Spain; the dedication of the new City Hall at San Francisco, Cal.; Boston winter carnival, Harvard athletes starting first outdoor winter practice; 5,000 gallons of liquor being destroyed by Sheriff Batson at Birmingham, Ala., and other attractive scenes.

JERRY IN MEXICO (Cub), Jan. 14.—This is a very acceptable farce comedy featuring George Ovey. A few rather vulgar touches might well be eliminated, but barring these the picture will be found to be a good one. It treats of Jerry's journey across the border line of Mexico to rescue the daughter of a farmer, who has been kidnapped by bandits. Jerry falls in love with a pretty Spanish dancer, but in trying to elope with her makes a sad mistake and gets the homely daughter of the farmer instead of his sweetheart.

HAM AND EGGS (Casino), Jan. 16.—A comedy novelty, by Harry Palmer, featuring Budd Ross. The artist dreams he is commissioned to paint ham and egg signs all over New York City. He decorates the Woolworth building and other structures with signs. This is different and proves quite entertaining in its way.

THE SILENT TRAIL (American), Jan. 18.—Nan Christy, Chas. Newton, Ashton Dearholt and Jack Prescott have the principal roles in this two-part production. The picture is in many respects an entertaining one but suffers by comparison with some other American productions in that painted landscapes have been used as substitutes for out-of-doors as seen from the interior of the trapper's cabin. The story of the production is not new and is based on the old theme of a young woman's unwise choice in marriage.

JOHNNY'S BIRTHDAY (Beauty), Jan. 19.—We cannot recommend this picture for the reason that it presents very little else from beginning to end than a drunken debauch. As regards the technical end of the production, no fault can be found with it. The action of the play is good.

PETE'S PERSIAN PRINCESS (Falstaff), Jan. 20.—A comedy number, featuring Claude Cooper and Ethel Jewett. The tramp is commissioned by the princess to guard her sacred rug. The development is rather vague and uncertain, though the latter scenes are quite entertaining. This is only fairly strong.

MISCHIEF AND A MIRROR (Beauty), Jan. 23.—One of the prettiest offerings in comedy that we have seen. The story is original and introduces the telling of a ghost story on Hallow E'en. In the Hallow E'en story some remarkably charming effects have been obtained. The comedy of the picture is also good and is based on the effort of a young girl to choose between two lovers.

LUCKY LARRY'S LADY LOVE (Falstaff), Jan. 25.—A comedy offering, featuring Boyd Marshal as a rather slow chap who wears glasses. He manages to outwit the other suitors, for all his slowness, and restores the girl's stolen jewels at the close. This is quite pleasing.

SOME NIGHT (Beauty), Jan. 26.—This picture cannot be highly commended. It might easily be termed a nightgown parade. We do not see what profit there can be in making pictures of this kind. The principal scenes take place in a boarding school, and originate in an escapade of one of the girls when a young man secretly visits her in her room.

BEATEN AT THE BATH (Falstaff), Jan. 27.—A comedy number, featuring Arthur Cunningham and others. Some of the scenes occur in a Turkish bath and are quite breezy in their display of masculine pulchritude. The plot itself is only fairly strong.

Mutual Film Corporation Specials.

MARTA OF THE JUNGLE (Centaur), Jan. 13.—This excellent production of two parts features Margaret Gibson, with a supporting cast consisting of Stephen Batty, Roy Watson and Jack Bonavita. A couple of lion cubs are an added attraction. The picture is an unusually attractive one, well produced and artistic in its treatment of a story of diamond smugglers.

WILD JIM, REPORTER (Mustang), Jan. 21.—An entertaining Western number, featuring Jack Richardson as a bandit with a bad record for killing men. His shotgun has a long row of notches numbering the men he has slain. The story goes back over his career and shows how his reformation was brought about by a pretty school teacher. The coach holdup was accomplished in a novel way. The number is stronger than the average Western offering and tells an interesting story. Lizette Thorne and E. Forrest Taylor are also in the cast.

AS A WOMAN SOWS (Mutual Masterpicture de Luxe-Gaumont—No. 59), Jan. 24.—A five-reel production made at the Gaumont Studios and featuring Gertrude Robinson and Alexander Gaden. The story takes the form of a thrilling melodrama based partially on a matter of political intrigue, and partially on a domestic triangle. The production has been well produced by W. F. Haddock, and is fairly interesting.

THE SMUGGLERS OF SANTA CRUZ (Clipper), Jan. 28.—A three-reel offering, featuring Wm. Russell, Roy Stewart and Charlotte Burton. The story itself follows familiar lines, picturing the work of a revenue officer in rounding up a gang of smugglers. The close is tragic, both the hero and chief of the smugglers being shot and the girl jumping from a cliff into the sea. The episodes seem a little drawn out, and the strongest feature of this production is the charming stretch of sea coast it pictures. The cave settings are also very good.

BETRAYED (Mutual Masterpicture de luxe Thanhouser—No. 61), Jan. 29.—This five-part production is based on a race problem. The story of the picture has been written by Philip Lonegran, and is interesting even if it does seem at times improbable. A number of the scenes on the picture have been photographed on the Indian reservation at Salamanca, N. Y. The Indians of the production happen to be nearly all white people, a fact that is somewhat detrimental to the enjoyment of the picture. It must be admitted however, that R. L. Whittier, who plays the masculine lead, is an excellent type, and does good work.

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

PATHE NEWS NO. 1, 1916 (Pathe), Jan. 1.—The most remarkable series of scenes in this issue are those taken by the Pathe cameraman aboard a French submarine. These scenes are taken at close range, some of them apparently from the top of a submarine that is within a few inches of being totally submerged. The taking of these pictures implies considerable daring on the part of the cameraman.

PATHE NEWS NO. 2, 1916 (Pathe), Jan. 5.—Some interesting items of this issue are scenes of the destruction by fire of a huge Chicago oil plant; an Oregon shipment of 32,000 geese for the markets of the east; the destruction of Ocean Park, Los Angeles, by fire; some attractive spring fashions, etc.

FROM KABYLIA TO CONSTANTINE (Photocolor), Jan. 10.—A beautiful colored scenic which takes us through a portion of lovely Algeria. A more attractive scenic film could not be desired. This is on the same reel with "Unfamiliar Fishes."

UNFAMILIAR FISHES (Globe), Jan. 10.—In this interesting treatise on fishes from foreign climes there appear many rare, beautiful and also grotesque specimens known only to the waters of the tropics. On the same reel with "From Kabylia to Constantine."

FROM BAD TO WORSE (Starlight), Jan. 15.—Herein Aubrey and Kendig have difficulties which accrue from the rescue of a pretty woman.

Her husband objects to the affectionate demonstrations of the rescuers. The film is very entertaining as farce comedies go.

Pathe Exchange, Inc., Specials.

MADAME X (Gold Rooster Play), Jan. 14.—The Henry W. Savage production of "Madame X" has been directed by George F. Marion, with Dorothy Donelly playing the title role. In many respects the picture version of the famous drama by Alexander Bisson is a fine one. A slight staginess on the part of some of the players detracts considerably from the enjoyment of the picture, however. The supporting cast consists of Edwain Fosberg, Ralph Morgan, John Bowers, Robert Fischer and Charles Bunnell. The production is in six parts. A review appears on another page of this issue.

THE RED CIRCLE, NO. 6 (Balboa), Jan. 22.—The series continues to be interesting. Episode No. 6, entitled "False Colors," is even more remarkable in its faculty of setting us guessing than some of the previous episodes. In it another young woman enters the story who proves to be an adventuress. She is seen to paint a red circle on the back of her hand, and is the thief of much jewelry at a ball, which is also attended by Lamar and June Travis. The woman is seen to steal a costly necklace from June's neck while she is seated beside Lamar. The next episode will probably solve the riddle with which we are left at the close of episode 6.

Signal Film Corporation.

HELEN'S PERILOUS ESCAPE (Signal), Jan. 17.—Chapter 4 of "The Girl and the Game" series. In this number Helen gains possession of the survey of Superstition Range and makes a desperate effort to get it into the hands of the rightful owners. The chase scene, featuring a motorboat, an automobile and a passenger train, was well staged, though not quite so convincing in some respects as other episodes have been. At the same time the action is brisk and effective. The survey is lost, but the girl cleverly saves the situation by producing a tracing of it, made on some canvas on the motorboat.

Triangle Film Corporation.

THE WOOD NYMPH (Fine Arts), Jan. 23.—The story of a girl brought up in the supposed seclusion of a forest where she sees no men until her father, brother and lover-to-be, to say nothing of two tramps, arrive and break the seclusion. There is a forest fire, but interest centers entirely on the accomplished performer who carries the lead, Miss Marie Doro.

Universal Film Mfg. Company.

ANIMATED WEEKLY, NO. 201 (Universal), Jan. 12.—A diversified number, showing Harvard's track squad in training, boosters' parade in Syracuse, races in New Orleans, survivors of the Thessalonika and other scenes of current itnerest.

HER DREAM MAN (Laemmle), Jan. 23.—A bright little comedy plot, featuring Myrtle Gonzales and Frank Newburg. He buys her country estate and visits it one night. He is mistaken for a burglar and she agrees to give him a chance to be straight. He takes a job as butler and amusing complications follow. Good comedy number.

HIRED, FIRED AND TIRED (Imp), Jan. 25.—In this number Victor Potel hires out as a piano mover and his fellow employe makes him do all the work. This idea has done yeoman service in the films, but it will strike new observers as funny.

ACROSS THE LINE (Victor), Jan. 26.—No. 3 of the "Little Stories from Real Life." An adventuress, portrayed by Peggy Coudray, traps the young man's father to gain his consent. She then relents and gives up the son. This is not very convincing in several scenes, but tells a fairly interesting story.

"SAMMIE" JONSIN (Powers), Jan. 27.—P. Sullivan, the artist who drew these animated drawings, has achieved some new effects in the adventures of this little colored boy. The result is very humorous. A good half reel.

FISHING RIVER LAMPREY (Powers), Jan. 27.—On same reel with above. These Danish fishing scenes are interesting and instructive, showing the way fish are caught wholesale and prepared for the market.

NAN GOOD-FOR-NOTHING (Big U), Jan. 28.—A pleasing little comedy, featuring Edna Flugarth and some English players. This shows the manner in which a poor, adopted girl pays the rent from her savings, then receives a reward from a wealthy gentleman for saving his boy's life. The plot is not strong, but there is considerable novelty in the cast and manner of development. Well up to the average.

UNCLE SAM AT WORK, NO. 6 ("Saving Wealth and Building Health") (Powers), Jan. 29.—This takes up the work of the Department of Agriculture. Shows how garden seeds are distributed, pictures work on government highways, care of forest reserves, reclamation of arid lands, construction of big dams, etc. Instructive and interesting throughout. Photography not up to standard in places but generally acceptable.

CUPID AT THE POLO GAME (L-KO), Jan. 30.—A particularly good knockabout comedy number, featuring Louise Orth, Ray Griffith and others. The settings are fine and the photography good. The scenes are taken during a real polo game and the humor is the best of its kind.

Universal Film Mfg. Company Specials.

MR. McIDIOT'S ASSASSINATION (L-KO), Jan. 23.—A two-reel number, featuring Ray Griffith, Dan Russell and Louise Orth. This is a purely nonsensical production and brings out numerous laughs. The main situation has a grim aspect in the telling, but seems merely amusing as pictured. It concerns a despondent young man who desires to die, but hasn't the nerve to commit suicide. He employs a professional assassin to kill him. Then the girl forgives him and he desires to live. There are many laughable scenes in this and it is free from offense of any sort. Reviewed on page 93 issue of January 1.

A SOUL ENSLAVED (Broadway-Universal), Jan. 24.—A five-reel production, based on a novel by George Bronson Howard. It features Cleo. Madison, Thomas Chatterton and others. This goes deeply into sex problems, which it handles frankly, but sincerely. It shows how two people who have greatly sinned finally find happiness together. The story is handled with strength and should not offend thoughtful people. It is not a pleasant type of story, but gets up an intense interest and maintains it successfully throughout.

AMERICA SAVED FROM WAR (Universal Special), Jan. 24.—No. 7 of the "Graft" series. In this number, which follows the general style of its predecessors, Tom collides with the Steel Trust, the chief magnate being played by Rex de Rosselli. There is no particular depth of feeling, but the number makes fair entertainment. The hop joint makes a good setting and the concluding events are quite exciting.

DISCONTENT (Gold Seal), Jan. 25.—A two-reel number, by Lois Weber, featuring "Doc" Crane as a discontented old veteran who leaves the Soldiers' Home to live with his rich nephew and family. He is cross and critical and temporarily upsets the family's happiness. Later he returns to the Home and his comrades of his own accord, and all concerned are happy. The theme is not altogether pleasant, but has the best of intentions; it is, perhaps, a little too true to life. The production is excellently put on.

KNOCKS AND OPPORTUNITY (L-KO), Jan. 26.—A two-reel low comedy, featuring Louise Orth, Billy Ritchie, Reggie Morris and others. The opening scenes are given up to picturing a rivalry over the girl and witness Billy's regeneration from a bum to a gentleman. The humor is not very strong until the incident at the wedding reception, when Billy puts all the guests to sleep by pouring ether on the bride's bouquet. The latter part of the production is very funny.

THE INNER SOUL (Laemmle), Jan. 28.—A two-reel number, by F. McGrew Willis, featuring Constance Johnson, Malcolm Blevins, Jack Livingston and Ray Hanford. This pictures the way in which a girl twice marries the same man. After the first marriage she shows signs of returning to the butterfly life. Her husband is shot by her first admirer. When he recovers, he pretends to have lost his memory. The girl, now repentant, weds him a second time, and a happy ending is reached. This is too improbable to get up much real feeling. At the same time the cast is pleasing and the plot has entertaining qualities.

A DAUGHTER OF PENANCE (Bison), Jan. 29.—A two-reel number by Chas. Saxby, featuring Edna Maison, Phylis Daniels, Douglas Gerrard and others. The girl's father and mother have for years been separated and the girl lives on a Mexican ranch with her foster mother. Her real mother, known as a woman of mystery, kills every wooer who seeks the girl's hand. Later the father appears and the girl is reunited with her parents. She then marries her artist lover. The picture leaves much to the imagination, so far as the plot is concerned. At the same time the settings are very beautiful and the photography excellent. A pleasing story of a vendetta which comes to a happy termination.

V-L-S-E, Inc., Specials

GREEN STOCKINGS (Vitagraph), Jan. 10.—An adaptation of an English comedy by A. E. W. Mason, in which Lillian Walker gives an excellent characterization of the eldest sister in a family, who casts off her self-effacing reticence and becomes a very attractive young woman. Miss Walker is well supported by Stanley Dark, Frank Currier, Louise Beaudet and others. The picture makes intelligent comedy that never fails in being entertaining.

World Film Corporation.

THE RANSOM (Triumph), Jan. 17.—Julia Dean is finely suited to the role of Janet Osborne, the principal character in an interesting five-part drama directed by Edmond Lawrence for the Triumph Film Corporation. The story is well constructed, carefully directed and at all times adequately acted by Miss Dean, Louise Huff, James Hall, Ethel Lloyd and Kenneth Hunter. Scenes of life on the stage are presented with considerable detail.

Miscellaneous Specials.

THE UNWRITTEN LAW (California), January.—A five-part adaptation by Leslie Peacocke of Edward Milton Royle's play. It makes a good story, at times developing marked strength and is well staged. In the cast are Beatriz Michelena, William Pike, Andrew Robson, Matt Snyder and Irene Outtrim—and all do good work. The subject is reviewed at length in this issue.

EDISON'S "MARTYRDOM OF PHILLIP STRONG" FOR RELEASE FEBRUARY 9.

"The Martyrdom of Phillip Strong," founded on the Rev. Charles M. Sheldon's famous novel "The Crucifixion of Phillip Strong," has been definitely set for release on the Kleine-Edison program February 9th. Exhibitors are looking forward to this release as a capacity house feature because of its well-known possibilities for picturization and the remarkable cast of Edison players that will support Robert Conness and Mabel Trunnelle in the leads.

Manufacturers' Advance Notes

PATHE'S "HAZEL KIRKE."

Ask any one to mention the most famous American plays and he will give without hesitation the names of three or four, two of which will inevitably be "Uncle Tom's Cabin" and "Hazel Kirke." It is significant that all the plays mentioned will be found to be based upon American rural life—that they preach a uniform lesson of the beauty of parental love, the importance of living a clean life and the unhappiness and ruin that result from doing evil.

Scene from "Hazel Kirke" (Pathe).

"Hazel Kirke" has shown a phenomenal vitality which has endured for over thirty years. It was written by the late Steele MacKaye, the well-known actor and playwright. In the original production were featured Charles W. Couldock and Effie Ellsler, who as the old miller and his daughter took the country by storm and played their parts for years.

Pearl White, in the title role, finds an opportunity for serious expression denied her in the past. As Hazel, she is always convincing and does perhaps the best work of her career. Bruce McRae, whose art has been ripened by years of starring on the legitimate stage, is an ideal Squire Rodney and draws to his character all the sympathy and admiration due that lovable character. William Riley Hatch as Dunstan Kirke most ably portrays the stern, yet loving, old miller. Allen Murnane, a most excellent actor, is worthy of mention as Carringford, Creighton Hale as Pittacus Greene, and Florence Edney as Mrs. Carringford. This Gold Rooster Play is deserving of being ranked as one of the best features of a twelve-month.

"THE WHITE ALLEY" (Essanay).

The "White Alley" has been filmed. The famous mystery story written by Carolyn Wells has been made into a photoplay by Essanay and is one of that company's latest productions. Syndicated in magazines and newspapers throughout the country, the story is known to many. It tells of the happenings at a house party given by Justine Arnold, a wealthy man, at his summer home. Among his guests are Ernest Chapin, Emery Gale, his law partner, and Campbell Grosby, Arnold's cousin. All three of these men fall in love with Dorothy Duncan, Arnold's fiancee, who is a bit of a coquette. Complications grow out of this. Arnold is murdered, the body concealed by the murderer and found again. The girl is accused. There are situations unique in photoplays and life. There is an attempted sacrifice to save her, a weight of circumstantial evidence against her and her final escape through the agency of a common little white alley.

Harry Beaumont, one of the best known juvenile leads in the photoplay world, appears in this picture, his first under the Essanay banner. Elizabeth Burbridge acts opposite him as the innocent coquette who precipitates the tragedy. The play is gripping and full of heart interest, the action never flagging and the love element is so strong that it holds from first to last.

JACCARD TO DIRECT SYDNEY AYRES.

Jacques Jaccard, former director of Kerrigan features and later producer of Harry Carey features, is soon to take over the direction of Sydney Ayres in the production of 101 Bison western pictures. The first of these new Jaccard pictures in which Ayres is to be starred is a filmization of the well known novel by Frederick Remington entitled "John Irminie, of the Yellowstone," in which Ayres will play the title role. Jaccard at present is working on the production of an original two reel western picture with Olive Fuller Golden and William Gettinger in the leading roles. The story was written by Jaccard and is entitled "The Girl and the Breed."

BUFFALO TIMES SYNDICATES "LOVE PIRATES."

"The Love Pirates," Kalem's big new series by George Bronson-Howard, is to be syndicated by the Buffalo Times Syndicate, which recently opened offices in the Times Building, New York. The Times Syndicate, which is directed by Norman E. Mack, has handled this important feature of many of the best known series successes of the past year. "Love Pirates" is now being given the personal attention of Mr. Mack, and it is believed that the Kalem series will set a new mark for successful syndication.

FANNIE WARD IN "TENNESSEE'S PARDNER."

Miss Fannie Ward, the popular comedienne, who has given up her work on the legitimate stage to appear exclusively in photoplay productions of the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company, will be seen in her third photoplay production by that firm on the Paramount program, Feb. 3, in a picturization of Scott Marble's play, "Tennessee's Pardner," suggested by Bret Harte's story.

"Tennessee's Pardner" is entirely different from either of Miss Ward's previous photoplays. The scenes are laid in the far West in the days when the "forty-niners" crossed the continent, lured by the promise of great riches in the gold regions. Miss Ward will play the role of "Tennessee," a child whose parents are separated during the journey across the desert and who is left in care of her father's friend when her father is killed.

Some of the scenes in the production were taken in San Fernando Mission, a Jesuit mission built about 1800, which is one of a string of missions extending from Mexico to Monterey and situated about a day's journey apart. Other portions of the production were made on the great American desert and one of the interesting features of the picture is the use of an old-time stage coach which was obtained by the Lasky company in a little village in Nevada.

Scene from "Tennessee's Pardner" (Lasky).

In addition to the star the cast will include Jack Dean, Charles Clary, Jessie Mae Arnold, Raymond Hatton and William Bradbury.

"THE BALLET GIRL" (World Film).

Two luminaries of the screen of no less magnitude than Alice Brady and Holbrook Blinn are seen in the current release of the World Film Corporation, the William A. Brady feature "The Ballet Girl," which is based upon the Grace George succecc "Carnival." The "Ballet Girl" has been given a lavish investiture both scenically and as regards the case which is quite noteworthy even in these days of splendid stellar support. "The Ballet Girl" with "La Syrena" a beautiful and famous dancer and her lovely young daughter in whose blood is a craving for stage fame. Miss Brady enacts both parts with consummate skill drawing a sharply distinguishing line between them yet indicating the influence of heredity in a striking manner. She also brings to the twin roles all the charm and sympathy of interpretation which are such marked characteristics of this most delightful of young emotional actresses.

Holbrook Blinn, does splendid work as a stern and puritanic old Quaker, who views with horror the young girl's passionate desire for the stage. A distinct touch of originality is lent to this production by the introduction of the Metropolitan Opera House ballet, in beautiful and interesting classic dances. Included in the supporting cast that appear with the two stars such noted players as:—Robert Frazer as Fred Pearl, husband of the dancer, Alec. B. Francis as Jerry Vergoe, a philosophical old clown, and Julia Stuart, Harry Danes, Laura McClure, Jessie Lewis, Fred Radcliffe, Robert Kegeris, and George Ralph.

"IN THE NAME OF THE LAW" (Thanhouser).

The life of the southern mountaineers, of moonshiners and illicit stills hidden in the hills, affords a rich field of romance for photodrama. One of the perfect plays of its kind is "In the Name of the Law," scheduled for release on the regular Mutual Program January 11. Gladys Hullette, the youthful star whose intelligence and piquant beauty are strong factors in her rapid rise to fame, plays the part of Daisy Rudyard, the mountain girl, whose love for a young secret service man, Philip Dryden, proves a near-tragedy.

Scene from "In the Name of the Law" (Thanhouser).

MAY ROBSON IN "A NIGHT OUT," VITAGRAPH FEATURE.

The Vitagraph company announces the completion of a new feature film showing May Robson, whose name is high in the ranks of histrionic fame, in a vehicle that splendidly suits her style of character portrayal. "A Night Out" was written by Miss Robson and Charles T. Dazey, who is noted as the author of "In Old Kentucky," which has had more performances than any other single play.

Miss Robson needed just such a vehicle as this and the picture needed Miss Robson. Both are so admirably well suited to one another that the combination is eminently successful. Miss Robson refutes the old saying "that a woman is as old as she looks," for she rivals the youngest and most athletic film stars as she skips and scampers through five reels and yes—even dances the tango with Hughey Mack. She is assisted by a capable corps of Vitagraph comedians, including Kate Price, Flora Finch, Hughey Mack, Arthur Cozine, William Shea, Ethel Cocoran, George Cooper, Belle Bruce, Eva Taylor and Charles Brown. The film was produced under the direction of George D. Baker, and is released through the V-L-S-E.

PATHE'S "HORRORS OF WAR" FOR JAN. 24.

"The Horrors of War," the marvelous three reel war picture of Pathe, has been postponed for release until January 24th. The reason for the postponement is the arrival from Europe of some remarkable scenes from the Italian front, which are to be incorporated into the picture.

"WATER STUFF" (Mustang).

Art Acord, the original "Buck Parvin," starring as his counterpart in Mr. Van Loan's amusing series, wins our affections as never before in "Water Stuff," released under the Mustang brand, on the regular Mutual Program, January 15.

In this chapter, "Buck," the serio-comic hero about whom revolve the fortunes of "Jimmy Montague's player folks," gets into deep water,—all on account of a girl. She is a flaxen-haired "extra" who cannot swim, coyly impersonated by Queenie Rosson. Lawrence Peyton is seen as usual in the role of the big-hearted, if gruff, Director Montague.

Scene from "Water Stuff" (Mustang).

"THE SOUL'S CYCLE" (Centaur).

The third of David Horsley's five reel features designated as Mutual Masterpictures, de luxe edition, to be released is "The Soul's Cycle." It is a drama of a soul's re-incarnation and features Margaret Gibson, the beautiful young star, who makes in this her first appearance as a featured player.

"The Soul's Cycle" by the nature of the story is an unusual photoplay. Its theme is based on the assumption, according to the ancient philosophies and religions, that each time man defiles the divine law his soul descends to a lower level and that to attain its former estate he must relive a complete cycle.

In the treatment of this theme two episodes have been evolved. The action of the first part takes place in ancient Greece. Here, through the influence of a bad character, two souls are transmigrated to another world. The action then transfers itself to the current day.

The bad character meanwhile assumes the form of an animal, his soul having reached the lowest level. The lives of the two whose sphere has been changed by the bad character's actions is then overcast by a great impending shadow, the removal of which lays in the power of the bad character.

Scene from "The Soul's Cycle" (Centaur).

This accomplished, the soul of the bad character relives its cycle and returns to the first point in its estate.

The story has an unusual number of big moments and set, as it is, in Grecian and modern times, many lavish scenes have been obtained, adding much interest to the production.

Besides Miss Gibson the cast contains John Oaker, Roy Watson, George Clare, Jr., George Stanley and a host of others.

"The Soul's Cycle" is scheduled for release February 12.

Two Striking Biographs

"The Iron Will" a Three-Reel Adaptation of a Famous Novel —"Chance Deception" a Griffith Drama.

A delicate problem in artistic production has been solved by Biograph in a forthcoming three-reel feature, "The Iron Will." The plot hinges upon the identity of a wealthy man, who covets the hero's sweetheart and forces her into a loveless marriage. The source of his wealth is finally revealed when his wife sees the face of a notorious masked bandit and recognizes her husband. The remarkable story is adapted from "Poor Plutocrats," a famous novel by Maurus Jokai. In the novel the unmasking comes as a thundering surprise, and the problem was to produce the same desirable effect with the mechanics of the screen. It is a striking climax artistically contrived, and reflects great credit upon the director, the editor and the actor who played the double role.

Scene from "The Iron Will" (Biograph).

On the same program with "The Iron Will" is scheduled "A Chance Deception," an unusual single reel Biograph re-issue directed by D. W. Griffith. Blanch Sweet is shown in the role of a wife who innocently arouses her husband's suspicions in a restaurant, where a man tries to flirt with her. Sinister circumstances lead to her loss of mind and subsequent recovery on being reminded of her unborn child. In this exacting role Blanch Sweet wins high honors, being admirably supported by Harry Carey, Charles H. Mailes and Mildred Manning.

"TO HAVE AND TO HOLD" (Lasky).

Employing more than one thousand "extras" in the roles of early Virginia settlers and American Indians will lend atmosphere to the picturization of "To Have and to Hold" from Mary Johnson's novel of the same name, which is now being made at the studios of the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play company at Hollywood, Cal.

This photoplay, which is a picturization of one of the widest read and best known novels in the last ten years, will serve to introduce Miss Mae Murray as a photoplay star. She will divide the stellar honors with Wallace Reid, who recently appeared with Cleo Ridgley in "The Golden Chance."

On the Lasky ranch in southern California, they are building an entire village representing Jamestown, Va., as it was in the days of the early seventeenth century. When the Lasky company decided to make this photoplay several months ago, a search was made for early American histories and the village being built on the Lasky ranch has been designed from a sketch of Jamestown as it appeared in an English publication about the time of the story of "To Have and to Hold."

Among the historical features which will be a part of this production, is a representation of the council meeting of the Jamestown Settlement, based on authoritative records now in possession of the Congressional Library. The stockade village is perfect in all its details and during the several weeks in which the photoplay is being made, the houses of this village are being used by the big cast of people as residences.

ESSANAY MAKING "VULTURES OF SOCIETY."

Work now is well under way for Essanay's five-act feature, "Vultures of Society," which will be released in February through the V-L-S-E. This photoplay, written by Richard Goodall, deals with a problem of the present day. It treats of two angles of the social problem; with the men well established in society, who hunt down young girls in the lower walks of life, and with those who have gained entrance to society through false letters or shady means in order to prey on the wealthy victims at whose homes they are guests.

Types of the underworld from the cocaine fiend to the genial colored porter are being chosen by Director E. H. Calvert. Mr. Calvert has been combing the slum districts of Chicago to find the types he wants. Many of these have proved so undependable that Mr. Calvert has corralled those needed to appear from day to day, placed a guardian over them who accompanys them to and from their hotel and sees that they do not escape nor get more than a rational share of the cup that cheers.

The play will feature Lillian Drew, Marguerite Clayton, E. H. Calvert and Ernest Maupain.

"THE BROKEN WIRE" (Kalem).

Devising thrills and having them carried out with Helen Gibson is not the most difficult part of the task that faces Director James Davis of the "Hazards of Helen" railroad pictures produced by Kalem. The authors of these pictures have yet to devise a practicable feat that Helen refuses to perform. But the director finds his biggest problem in placing the camera so that the exploit will register perfectly on the screen and the girl's courageous effort not wasted. A movable platform which enables the director to place the camera at a great height has been found useful, while two cameras are frequently called on to get all angles on the scene. Occasionally, when it is necessary to place the camera very close to the action the man at the crank must show almost as much nerve as the heorine.

Such a problem met the director in filming "A Broken Wire," a thrilling "Hazard" promised for release on February 5. It was solved by letting the camera man climb to the perilous perch atop the platform. The action called for Helen to struggle with two crooks at the top of a telegraph pole, after which she crawls out on the swaying messenger wire which crosses the tracks. One camera caught this action up to the point where the wire snaps because of her weight, while another operator on the tracks below caught the action here as she swings across the tracks brushing by inches past an onrushing train. It was this second camera which also registered the tense action as she swings back and is thrown against a freight car and into a huddled heap on top of the speeding train.

"THOU SHALT NOT COVET" (Selig).

In the Selig Red Seal play, "Thou Shalt Not Covet," written by James Oliver Curwood, and featuring Tyrone Power and Kathlyn Williams, supported by Eugenie Besserer and Guy Oliver, to be released through V-L-S-E on Feb. 7, there are a succession of photoplay punches which are guaranteed to make the photoplay public enjoy the much-wished-for-thrills. There is a true-to-life ship wreck in which an ocean-going liner strikes a derelict and thousands of men, women and children plunge headlong in their night clothing from the various decks into the dark waters below. Miss Kathlyn also plunges headlong from the back of an infuriated horse; there is a battle to the death betwen a Royal Bengal Tiger and a monster leopard which wishes to defend its young; there is a desperate conflict between white hunters and a horde of African tribesmen.

Here is an extract from the dairy of the man, a sensationally strong role enacted by Tyrone Power: "As the great ship shivered and groaned like a thing alive— I thought of my neighbor's wife. I rushed to her state room and there found her helpless. I gathered her into my arms and with her I leaped into the sea. When she awoke her mind was deranged from the shock and she thought I was her husband. In her strange madness, she called me by her husband's name and gave me all the love she had for him. In the jungle we made our home and she came to me as she had always come to her husband, and I prayed for strength in my hour of dire temptation."

Scene from "Thou Shalt Not Covet" (Selig).

And did the man who madly loved his neighbor's wife overcome temptation? Did the woman who later came to a realization of her situation again find the husband she so dearly loved, or did she succumb to fate? "Thou Shalt Not Covet" divulges the story.

"Houses of Mystery"

"Houses of Mystery" is the title of a three-part feature drama of the Knickerbocker Star Features release for January 21, on the General Film program, featuring Paul Gilmore. This is a detective story, with Paul Gilmore as a secret service man, whose self-appointed assistant is his fiancee. The drama abounds in thrills and startling scenes. Two terrific fights on the high cliffs together with cunning attacks of the diamond smugglers on the two houses of mystery, make a feature that will appeal to those who like excitement. In the story is also a thread of heart interest that is felt from the start to the last flash.

Scene from "Houses of Mystery" (Knickerbocker).

Gorgeous scenery of the South California coast adds to the artistic value of the picture, while the photography is the best. Peggy Hamilton, as the fiancee of the U. S. Secret Service officer, does daring work in the guise of a fisherlad, and shows the value of a woman's wits and genius, when professional skill does not count.

A strong release for an exacting exhibitor, and one destined to be a winner. January 21st is the date of release.

"EXPIATION" (Lubin).

The five-reel feature photoplay written by Frances Melbourne and soon to be released by the Lubin Manufacturing Company under the title "Expiation," gives promise of fulfilling the demand for that long sought for and seemingly unobtainable thing called "novelty in motion pictures." The story in brief is as follows: Cagan, an aristocratic Russian nobleman, is forced into the army against his will, and in one of the raids made by his fellow officers upon a captured village, goes through an experience the memory and results of which follows him through the rest of his life. In a moment of folly, he commits a crime which he bitterly repents ever after and his whole life is spent in trying to right the wrong which he has done to innocent people. E. K. Lincoln is featured in this thrilling production and Director George Terwilliger has instituted several original effects of his own devising in the making of this picture. Among the supporting cast is Miss Margaret Adaid, who portrays a child of the tenements that is afterwards adopted by Cargan, and finally becomes through education and refining influences to occupy a foremost place in society. This powerful story is being interpreted by one of the greatest casts ever assembled in the Lubin Company's studios and Director Terwilliger is enthusiastic and tireless in his efforts to make this picture as big a drawing card as was his recent production entitled "The City of Failing Light." The exact date of release will be known later.

"MARVELOUS MACISTE" A WINNER.

The Hanover Film company is one of the few organizations in America that is in the market to buy real features of merit from five to twelve reels wherein the producer can obtain cash money for his products. At the present time they are handling a novel, thrilling and very amusing picture entitled "Marvelous Maciste," the great giant of "Cabiria," one of the best laugh pictures without slapstick since, "Tillie's Punctured Romance."

They sold ten states for "Marvelous Maciste" on the strength of private screenings of the film which were so interesting that investors bought it without formal advertising. It has already been sold in all of the eastern territory except Ohio and in part of the western territory. "Marvelous Maciste" has already been featured in the New England States and in Pennsylvania, and the press notices announce that it received a very glorious welcome in both of these towns. Captain Charles E. Kimball and Mr. Samuel Grant are managing the New York office, at 904 Columbia Theater Building.

"THE INNOCENCE OF RUTH" (Kleine-Edison).

One of the cleverest and most thoroughly satisfying five reel features on the Kleine-Edison program for January is "The Innocence of Ruth" featuring Viola Dana and Edward Earle. It is a story replete with dramatic situations and characterized by some of the best work of Miss Dana's career.

On the death of Reginald Travers, his daughter, Ruth Travers given in keeping to his young friend Jimmy Carter, a bachelor millionaire on Carter's promise to raise her as his daughter. Innocent Ruth soon develops a wifely attitude toward the youthful Carter, and he finds great difficulty in maintaining a paternal feeling for her. When the guileless child is told by an enemy of Carter that every one thinks she is living on his bounty, she leaves the house and seeks refuge with a woman of doubtful morals, mistress of Mortimer Reynolds a dissolute stock-broker who covets the pretty child.

How she is saved in the nick of time, and how Reynolds in trying to encompass her ruin destroys himself, are woven into a story of rare charm and power. Miss Dana will undoubtedly add vastly even to her present great popularity in the role of the childishly innocent and pure-hearted Ruth Travers. It is scheduled for release on the Kleine-Edison program January 26th.

MARJORIE ELLISON NOW WITH UNIVERSAL.

Marjorie Ellison, who for more than two years played leads and heavies with the Edison Company and recently left New York for Los Angeles, has joined the Universal and is now working in her second picture for that organization under the direction of Joseph De Grasse. Her beautiful array of dresses and gowns has created no little sensation around the big west coast studios of the "Big U." She is now playing the part of "Enid Hammond" in the five-reel feature picture, "The Altar of Friendship;" a part that calls for an outlay of more than twelve elaborate dresses, gowns and suits.

IVAN DOUBLES ITS OFFICE SPACE.

In an endeavor to keep pace with their constantly increasing business, the Ivan Film Productions have extended their office space so that they now cover the best part of the ninth floor of 126 West Forty-sixth street. The new suites contain the offices of Mr. Chadwick, the vice-president and general manager; Mr. Abramson, the director general of productions, and Mr. H. Samwick, the president. The office of Jacques Kopfstein, the director of publicity, is also situated in the new wing. A special room has been set aside for the Ivan Exchanges and this will be the headquarters of Ivan Exchange owners when in New York.

"THE UPSTART" (Metro).

"The Upstart," released on the Metro program Feb. 7th, in which Marguerite Snow is starred, and George Le Guere is featured, is a novelty worthy of George Bernard Shaw, because it is whimsical, light of touch and calculated to set motion picture audiences thinking and talking. It deals with divorce and unhappy marriages, and points out a quaint moral, which is applied in the play itself. The feature was made from the play of the same name by Thomas Barry, which had Scene from "The Upstart" (Metro).

a successful run at the Maxine Elliott theater, New York, and on tour.

"The Upstart" was directed by Edwin Carewe, and he has excelled himself with a finished artistic production. Both Miss Snow and Mr. Le Guere are provided with roles that require downright ability. It is predicted that both will greatly add to their reputations by their work in "The Upstart." There is a good all-around supporting cast, including James Lackaye, one of the best comedians of the stage or screen.

Manufacturers

I Have Immediate Markets for Five Reel Dramatic Productions of the Highest Class, Supreme Quality.

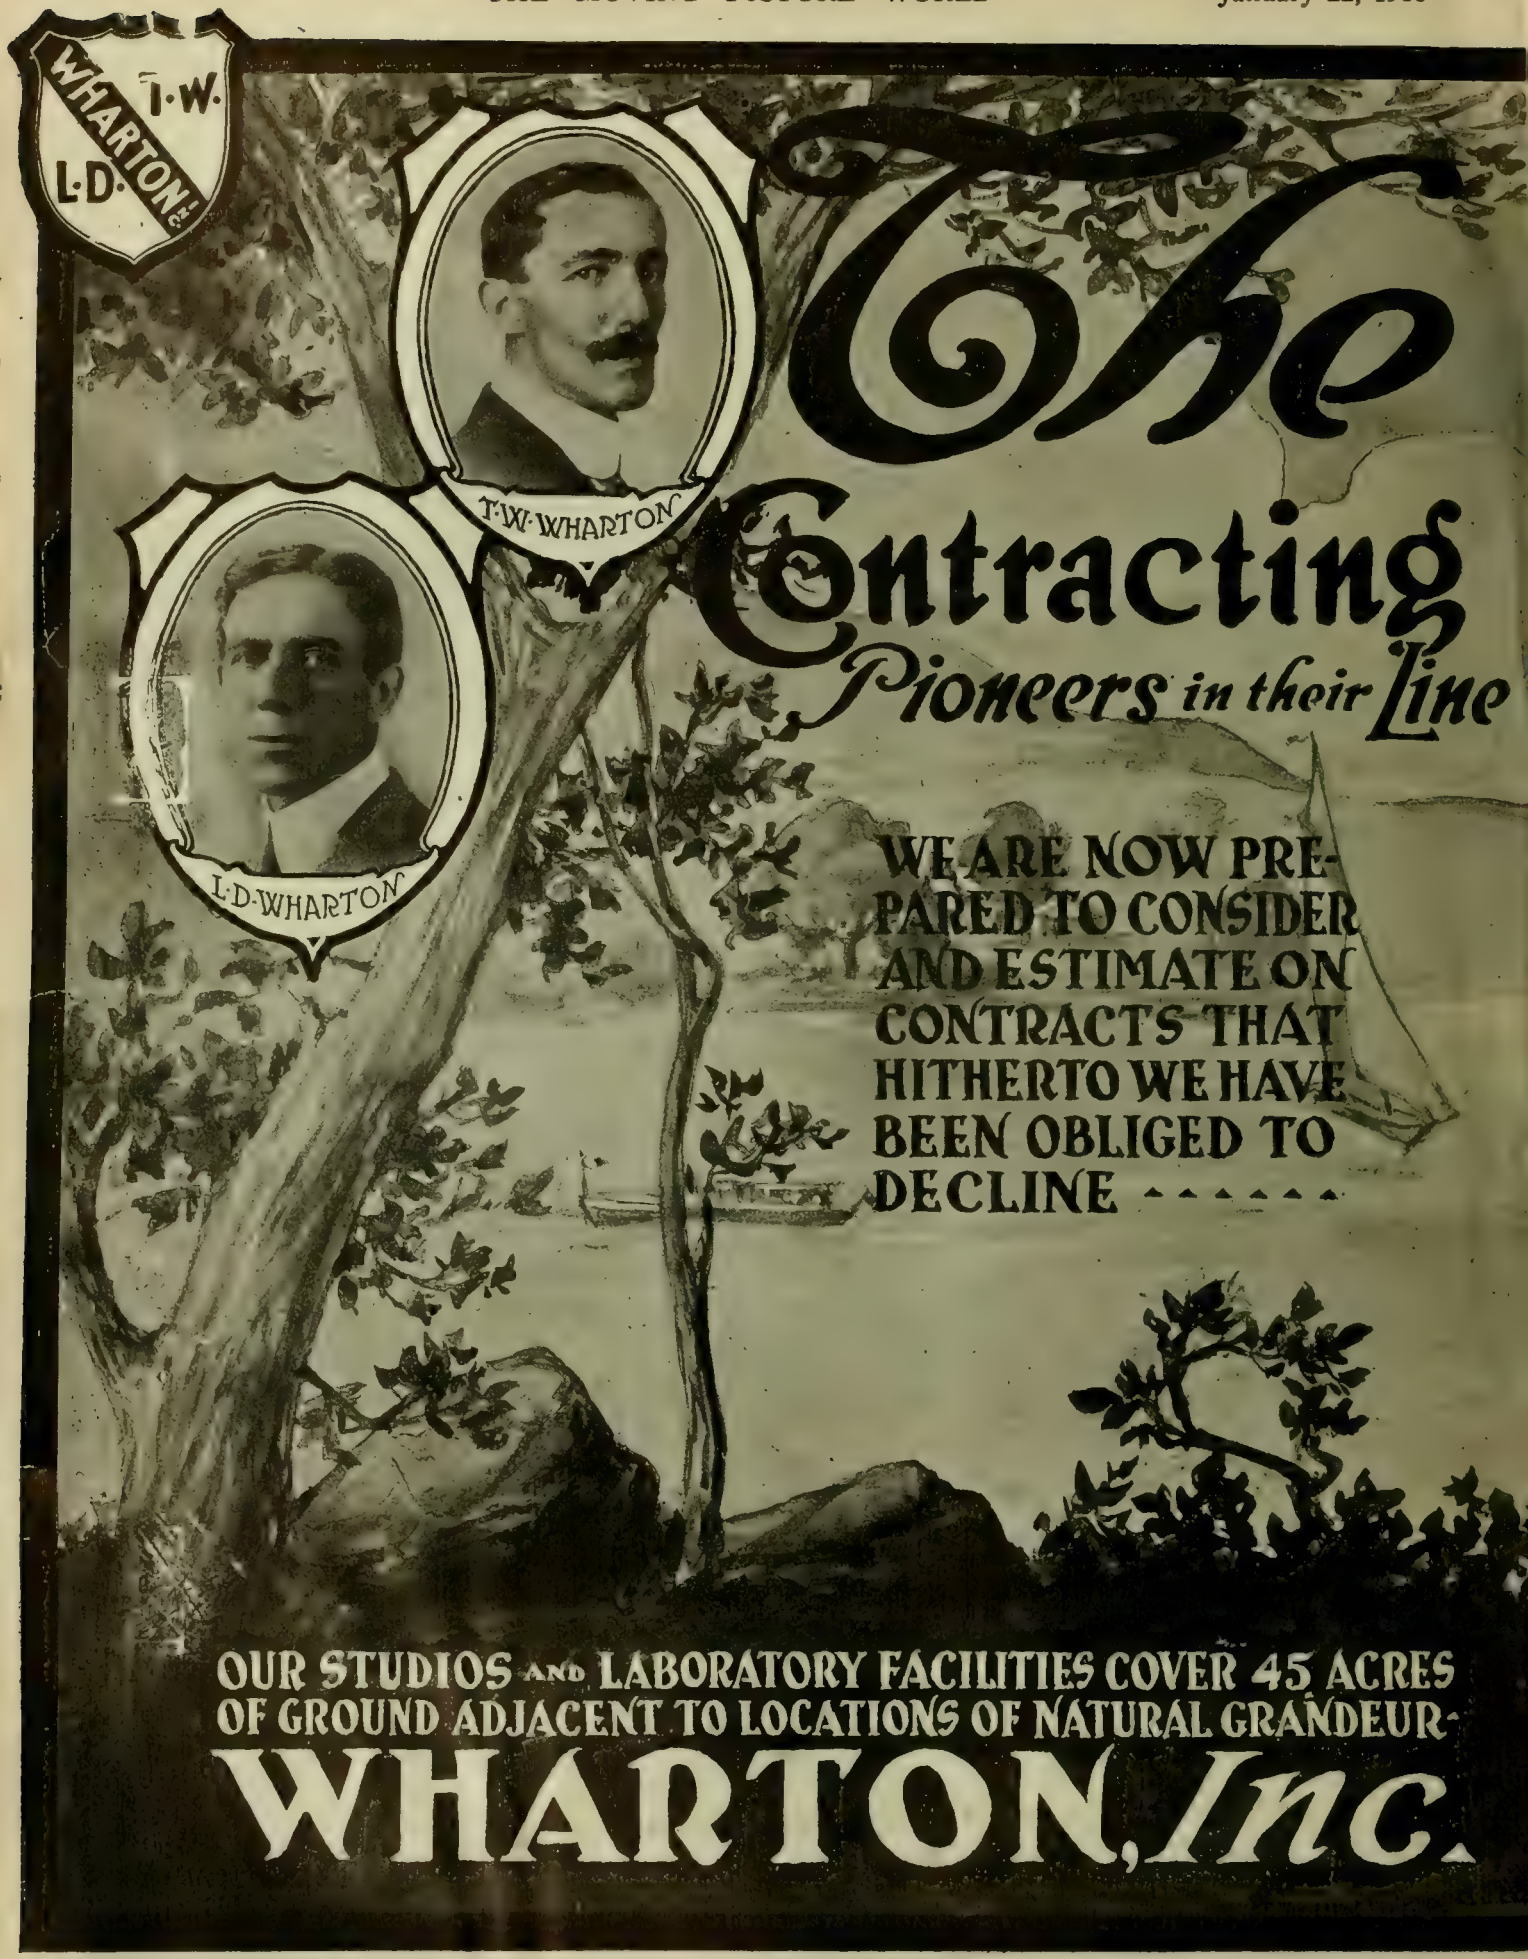
American or World Rights Disposed of. Make Me Your Representative.

Attractions of the Highest Standard Measuring Up to the Greatest Programs.

Arthur S. Kane

901 Candler Building, 220 West 42nd Street, New York City

Telephone, Bryant 9725



WHARTON Inc.
I·W·
L·D·
T·W·WHARTON
L·D·WHARTON
The Contracting
Pioneers in their Line
WE ARE NOW PREPARED TO CONSIDER AND ESTIMATE ON CONTRACTS THAT HITHERTO WE HAVE BEEN OBLIGED TO DECLINE
OUR STUDIOS AND LABORATORY FACILITIES COVER 45 ACRES OF GROUND ADJACENT TO LOCATIONS OF NATURAL GRANDEUR·
WHARTON, Inc.

T·W·
WHARTON Inc
L·D·
Wharton's
Producers
In the Garden Spot of the East
LET US RELIEVE YOU OF THE HEAVY RESPONSIBILITY OF PRODUCING YOUR PICTURES. WE SET A PRICE SO YOU MAY KNOW THE COST FIRST
IN OUR EXPERIENCE WE HAVE PRODUCED EVERY KIND OF FEATURES FROM THE 72 REEL "ELAINE" TO ONE REEL COMEDIES ITHACA, N.Y.

STATE RIGHTS BUYERS

A proposition on purely a live and let live basis, wherein the making of money for you is assured, and the making of money for us is dependent entirely upon what merit we hand you in our product.

If you're alive and will bear a rigid investigation, you are the man for us.

We plan a five-reel motion picture attraction every month beginning at once.

Now Ready---

The Awakening of Bess Morton

With Inimitable Gertrude Bondhill

Five Reels of Picture Value

Gertrude Bondhill

Star in Lariat Films

The cleverest little woman in pictures, the star of "SWEET CLOVER" which she played from Coast to Coast, and stock leading lady in Portland, Boston, Detroit, Baltimore, and Washington.

LARIAT FILMS

TO BE DISTRIBUTED EXCLUSIVELY BY

JOS. W. FARNHAM ROOM SIX HUNDRED AND SEVEN

220 W. FORTY-SECOND STREET, NEW YORK CITY

"BETTY OF GRAYSTONE."

Dorothy Gish, charming in "Old Heidelberg" and wistfully appealing as the bandit's daughter in "Jordan is a Hard Road," will soon be presented by the Triangle Film Corporation as the heroine of a New England romance—not the airy flighty kind but of the quaint, semipoetical realism that characterizes the Wilkins and Wiggin novels. Miss Gish in the play is a caretaker's daughter wandering in and about Graystone Gables, the Summer home of a young New York dilettante and dabbler in art. Her home life is particularly hard after the death of her amiable father, for the mother re-weds and the step-father and his two grownup sons are of the brutal type. The later scenes of the play show Betty Lockwood, the heroine, transferred to New York, and getting an insight into the life of artists and models. The pretty story ends happily in the marriage of Betty and the owner of Graystone Gables, ending with Betty's reconciliation to her mother.

Scene from "Betty of Graystone" (Fine Arts).

Allan Dwan staged the play at Riverdale and Fort Lee and on up-state and Connecticut locations. It is rather remarkable—but not unduly remarkable to careful students of the progress of pictorial drama—that "Betty of Graystone" is more strongly cast than almost any "legitimate" play on Broadway this season. For example George Fawcett, himself a star, appears in the role of Betty's stepfather. Owen Moore is the hero. Grace Rankin, Macey Harlam, Eugene Ormonde, Leonore Harris, Kate Bruce, Albert Tavernier are seen in various of the other roles. Even the illustrious Kid McKoy, who gained his first fame by battering the human countenance and latter added much to the gaiety of the nation as cafe proprietor and vaudeville comedian, is congenially cast in the role of "Betty's pugnacious step-brother."

RAVER THINKS HIS POLICY BEST.

The policy instituted by Mr. Raver, president of the Raver Film Corporation of not disposing of any rights on his photo-feature "The Other Girl" before his production was finished is bearing its fruits in a big bulk of applications and bids for the territorial rights that are being received every day at the offices both thorugh the mail and by personal calls. While many were desirous of purchasing the rights of the picture for their districts when Mr. Raver announced the making of this Augustus Thomas play into motion picture form, none of the offers were accepted as he wished that every purchaser have the opportunity of viewing the picture before they bought it. The result is that he has established a broader confidence in his product and is not connecting the name of his company with the sale of "disappointments."

While this might be an unusual avenue to pursue in the motion picture business, it is proving its worth because of its thorough business atmosphere. In their anxiety to buy the film for their territory before the production was finished many buyers advanced the argument that the film was positive of making money regardless of its production because of the big names it had connected with it.

Mr. Raver, however, feels that he has done the wiser thing in adhering to his first decision as he now has beside these things to offer a pleasing novelty that registers itself a somewhat different production from the ordinary run of photo-features with its accident on crowded Broadway, night scene of Times Square, James Corbett's actual training pictures for his battle with John L. Sullivan and scenes at Muldoon's health farm with Mr. Muldoon's millionaire patients.

To conform with the picture the Raver Film Corporation have supplied it with advertising matter that is in keeping with the production. Several styles of one and three sheets, a six sheet with the Broadway accident and heralds and photos.

"THE SPOILERS" STILL RUNNING STRONG.

What "The Old Homestead," "Way Down East" and "Uncle Tom's Cabin" are to the American stage, so is the Selig play, "The Spoilers," to the American motion picture screen. Notwithstanding the fact that this great motion picture drama was released to the world several years ago, yet it continues to gain rather than to decline in popularity. In every section of the civilized world "The Spoilers" has been seen and has been praised. It is being planned to reissue this wonderful drama of American life, increasing the number of reels from nine to twelve. In other words, in response to popular demand, William N. Selig, president of the Selig Polyscope Company, may issue a de luxe presentation of "The Spoilers." Be it known that when the original drama was released at least four thousand feet of red-blooded action was eliminated in order to bring "The Spoilers" to what was then commercial length. This exciting and spectacular action depicting the all-star cast including Wm. Farnum, Kathlyn Williams, Thomas Santschi, Bessie Eyton, Wheeler Oakman, Frank Clark and all the rest of the popular favorites will appear in the de luxe presentation.

ENGLISH ACTORS IN PATHE'S "THE LOVE TRAIL."

In Pathe's "The Love Trail," adapted from the very sucessful English novel, "The Dope Doctor," by Richard Dehan, appear two young actors who have parts requiring skillful interpretation and who handle their roles in a manner leaving little to be desired. They are Bertram Burleigh who plays "Lord Beauvayse" and Fred Paul who is cast for the "dope doctor," English actors of note.

Mr. Burleigh is only twenty-five years old and was intended for the law, but ran away from home and secured a very silent part in a road show. Mr. Burleigh considers acting in pictures a higher art than on the stage because the story one has to tell must be told without the aid of the voice.

Fred Paul has had years of experience as photographer, actor and producer, a happy combination for a motion picture player. He was with Cyril Maude for four years, and was stage manager for Weedon Grossmith. His London experience includes stage management at the New Theater, The Garrick, and The Playhouse.

"THE GIRL OF HIS DREAMS" (Cub Comedy).

Rapidly occurring comedy scenes, intermingled with thrilling incidents, and set in locations that range from a modern back alley to all the splendor and lavish gorgeousness of a Roman court in the days of Caesar, together with the unaffected humor of George Ovey are dominant factors in making "The Girl of His Dreams," a one reel Cub Comedy which is to be released January 21 on the Mutual program, a picture of more than ordinary interest.

The story revolves around Jerry (the character created by George Ovey) who, smitten with the beauty of a Miss Gladys, dreams of his lady love while lying asleep in a straw-filled packing case. It so happens that Jerry's bunk adjoins the cache of burglars which contains their collected loot. Officers happening by find the booty and arrest Jerry as the burglar. However, he proves an alibi, is released and then proceeds on a plan to run down the malefactors. After a series of exciting adventures, in which he suffers much buffeting, his efforts are crowned with success and he hands the burglars over to the policeman. To his delight he learns that the loot, which he recovers, is the property of Miss Gladys, and its return to the rightful owner tends to make him more solid in the affections of the girl.

Scene from "The Girl of His Dreams" (Cub).

The regular Cub stock company including Jefferson Osborne, Belle Bennett, Louise Horner and Janet Sully support Ovey in this release, which was directed by Milton Fahrney.

Notes of the Trade

Argyle Campbell, for several years assistant to Lawrence Marston, the eminent stage and picture producer, has accepted a position with the Mirror Films, Inc., for which organization Mr. Marston will begin production in the Glendale Studio this month. Mr. Campbell was Mr. Marston's assistant as far back as the stage production of "Thais" in this country.

* * *

Winnifred Greenwood and Edward Coxen once more are appearing together in "Flying A" films. Illness of Mr. Coxen forced his retirement for a period of three weeks. He is fully recovered.

* * *

Thomas Commerford, who plays the part of the judge in Essanay's production, "The Prisoner at the Bar," is sixty-five years of age. Mr. Commerford has been in the theatrical business for more than forty years, and from his present appearance has many more years ahead of him. He has snow white hair and is as active as a man half his years. As for a judge a more suitable type could not be found. He is strong in all character portrayals.

* * *

Announcements are going to the trade from the offices of the Radio Film Company, Inc., New York, to the effect that their production, "Defense or Tribute," is ready for release.

PICTURE THEATERS PROJECTED

LOS ANGELES, CAL.—The Melrose theater, situate at the corner of Melrose and Heliotrope avenues, is being conducted by Marshall Cruz.

Watsonville, Cal.—The Lyric theater, formerly conducted by Englehart & Rapp, is now being operated by J. Gortenberg.

Atlanta, Ga.—Extensive improvements are being made to the Majestic theater.

Belleville, Ill.—Carson & Grandcolas plan to erect a commodious moving picture theater, to be known as the Hippodrome. It will have seating capacity for 2,000 persons and cost approximately $30,000.

Moline, Ill.—A. F. Shallbarger plans to erect a modern fireproof moving picture theater.

Waukegan, Ill.—Strand Theater Company will expend about $15,000 for improvements to their theater building.

Casselton, Ind.—Metcalf & Houghland have leased the opera house.

Frankfort, Ind.—Perry Davis, who now operates the Greentown theater, has had the house repainted and redecorated.

Hobart, Ind.—The Gem theater has been thoroughly overhauled.

Indianapolis, Ind.—The Pioneer theater on Indiana avenue is now being conducted by G. H. Frye.

Indianapolis, Ind.—The Northwestern theater, situate at the corner of Twenty-sixth street and Northwestern avenue, recently taken over by Grant Heth, has been remodeled and the seating capacity increased.

Marion, Ind.—Extensive improvements have been made to the Royal Grand theater and the seating capacity increased.

Mulberry, Ind.—Dana Hoch has added 200 opera chairs to the seating capacity of his moving picture theater.

Hamburg, Ia.—The opera house which was recently taken over by Stephen Green has been redecorated.

Alexandria, La.—The Pass Time theater is being remodeled.

New Orleans, La.—De Soto Building Company, H. and B. Beer and M. W. Newman & Sons will erect a large moving picture theater and seven stores at the corner of Baronne and Gravier streets; theater to be of fireproof construction; seating capacity 2,000; exhaust fans and roof ventilation; steam heat; electric lights.

Baltimore, Md.—P. H. Willis, 3814 Reisterstown avenue, is having plans prepared for a one-story moving picture theater, 33 by 96 feet; cost about $10,000.

Baltimore, Md.—J. T. Langville, 1220 Light street, plans to build a one-story moving picture theater, 40 by 100 feet; cost approximately $15,000.

Baltimore, Md.—George Kirschenhofer, 1517 East Eager street, plans to erect a one-story moving picture theater at 1517-21 East Eager street, 42.6 by 70.3 feet; cost $3,500.

Baltimore, Md.—Management of the Gem theater, at 174 East Baltimore street, plans to make extensive improvements to the house. These will include new exits, flooring, ticket office, rearrangement of entire electrical work.

Boyne City, Mich.—Extensive alterations have been made to the Bellamy opera house.

Detroit, Mich.—The Boulevard Theater Company plans to erect a fireproof theater, store and office building on the north side of Gratiot avenue, with a seating capacity of 2,000.

Detroit, Mich.—Lichty & Bell, who recently leased the Grand theater, have had the interior of the house redecorated.

Brainerd, Minn.—The Best theater is now being conducted by C. E. Baker.

Ionia, Mich.—The Family theatre is now being operated by Frederick Jacobi.

Ishpeming, Mich.—The new moving picture theatre being constructed on Main street, for Edward J. Butler, is nearing completion.

Iron Mountain, Mich.—The seating capacity of the Bijou theatre has been increased.

Jackson, Mich.—The new Orpheum theatre erected on West Main street has been completed. It is being equipped with a $7,500 pipe organ.

Manistee, Mich.—The moving picture theatre erected by Gus Kitsinger on River street has been leased by the Chicago Amusement Company. It has seating capacity of 800.

Pontiac, Mich.—A. J. Kliest & Son are erecting a new moving picture theatre at the corner of South Saginaw and Water streets, 100 by 160 feet. It will have seating capacity for 1,800 persons.

Duluth, Minn.—Andrew Wilson has leased a building on Commonwealth avenue which he will remodel and conduct as a first-class moving picture theater.

Eveleth, Minn.—Schermer & Sher have disposed of their interest in the Strand theater to Walter Broms.

Lamberton, Minn.—Carver & Groebner, who own the Scenic theater, plan to build an attractive new front to the house.

Montevideo, Minn.—A new addition has been built to the Star theater.

St. Paul, Minn.—American Seating Company plans to build a one-story moving picture theater, 40 by 125 feet.

Westbrook, Minn.—Joseph Bauer, who recently purchased a store property here, has converted the building into a modern moving picture theater.

Helena, Mont.—The Liberty Theater Company has taken over the Liberty theater, formerly conducted by Steege & Penney.

Omaha, Neb.—Jacob E. Schlank and others are interested in a project to erect a $60,000 moving picture theater.

Hoboken, N. J.—John Campomenost has taken a five-year lease on the moving picture theater at 259 First street.

Albany, N. Y.—A commodious moving picture theater will be erected by Louis Mann and Harry Hellman at the corner of Quail street, Elberon place and Western avenue, 114 by 73 by 73 feet; seating capacity 1,000.

Niagara Falls, N. Y.—Harris Lumberg plans to expend about $20,000 for alterations and improvements to his moving picture theater.

Utica, N. Y.—John Augur & Company will erect a modern fireproof moving picture theater and store building, to cost approximately $18,000.

Dickinson, N. D.—The opera house has been leased by Flurry & Kronschnabel. Vaudeville will be featured in conjunction with high-grade moving pictures.

Cleveland, O.—Mary A. Fritz, 459 East 124th street, is having plans prepared for a one and two-story moving picture theater, to cost $40,000.

Ironton, O.—Joseph Clorain, 129 Railroad avenue, contemplates constructing in the early spring a three-story moving picture theater and lodge building, 48 by 121 feet, to cost $10,000.

Lorain, O.—George Schenker plans to erect a 1½-story moving picture theater, 48.6 by 115 feet, to cost $13,000.

Piqua, O.—Fred Adams has sold the Favorite moving picture theater on North Main street to H. U. and Frank Yount.

Palmerton, Pa.—Louis Lavinsky is having plans prepared for a two-story moving picture theater and apartment building, to cost $10,000.

Scranton, Pa.—Hippodrome Amusement Company plans to make alterations to their theater building, to cost $70,000.

Aberdeen, S. D.—A number of improvements have been made to the Lyric theater.

Chattanooga, Tenn.—The handsome new moving picture theater, the Royal, situate at 233 East Main street, erected at a cost of $15,000 by Weiner & Block, has made its initial bow to the public.

Spokane, Wash.—B. W. Copeland is the new owner of the Rex theater.

Rhinelander, Wis.—The Bijou theatre is now being operated by J. H. Morgan.

Superior, Wis.—The Odeum theater, at the corner of Seventh street and Tower avenue, has been reopened by R. Palm.

Waukesha, Wis.—The Frellson Amusement Company has leased the Unique theater, on Main street.

Send for catalog of Niagara Gem Slides, any sample 10c., any dozen $1.75. Now is the time you need slides. Why not take advantage of this offer and order today?

Niagara Slide Co., Lockport, N. Y.

Trade News of the Week

Gathered by Our Own Correspondents

MONTREAL NEWS LETTER.

By Gerald Gallagher, Montreal Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

Prospects for the Coming Year.

MONTREAL, QUE.—The New Year will see much improvement in the local field. Some fine big new houses will be opened in the province during January, and there are two mammoth houses now under consideration for this city. Among the exhibitors a ray of hope can be seen through taxation troubles inasmuch as a protest in the form of a petition has been presented to our legislators at the City Hall. The prices of admission are being generally raised in the West End of the city, and this, with a good deal more recognition by the local press, will help materially to place the photoplay higher in the regard of the public.

A marked improvement in the exhibition of the screen stories, in the way of music, projection, prices, publicity and service is already in evidence, and those who have not sought to improve their shows will soon have to drop into line. There is no good reason for pessimism.

Manager Herring's Patriotic Benefit.

Manager Herring of the Mount Royal theater recently devoted two days to patriotic purposes. A special program of features, including several reels of photoplay and turns by local talent, was put on, and the prices were raised for this special occasion. The gross profits were devoted to the purchase of good warm socks for those unfortunates whose duty it is to live in these vest-pocket edition canals, commonly known as trenches.

George Nicholas Gets Present.

George Nicholas, general manager of the Independent Amusements, Limited, was the happy recipient at Yuletide of a handsome handbag, the gift of the staff of the Strand theater, one of the houses owned by the company.

Ben Smith a Daddy.

Ben Smith, shipper in the Fox Film's local branch, is now a proud possessor and father, of a lusty young baby. Both mother and child are in good health.

The Universal Twins.

The local Universal office since the last few days of November has been in charge of two gentlemen who are commonly known as the Universal Twins. The owners of this alias are Messrs. S. B. Taube and T. O. Byerle. Mr. Byerle has been in Montreal before in the capacity of local Universal manager. Since these two men have taken charge big changes have been wrought in the local office. An entirely new system has been installed so as to meet better with local conditions. Mr. Taube was very optimistic when interviewed by the Montreal representative of the Moving Picture World.

Manager Conover's New Policy.

The new policy which has been in operation at the local Imperial theater for some time now is meeting with much success. The prices have been raised and a high-class show put on in keeping with every tradition recorded by its manager, Mr. H. Conover. Music is by an orchestra, supplemented by a Hope-Jones unit orchestra.

Want National Board

Canadian Film Men Will Welcome Single Board of Censors—Present Provincial Boards Felt to Be a Hindrance—Much Time, Labor and Money May Be Saved in the Dominion by Federal Board.

By W. M. Gladish, Toronto Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

TORONTO, ONTARIO.—According to W. A. Bach, of the Canadian Universal Film Company, Limited, Toronto, Canada wants national censorship, and the sooner this arrangement is secured the better will the moving picture people of the Dominion find themselves situated.

Mr. Bach sizes up the situation as follows:

"The demand for a national board of censors in Canada is rapidly gaining strength, and there is little doubt that before many months have passed some sort of national petition will be presented to the Federal Government in the effort to induce a radical change. Among the film exchanges and exhibitors at large the feeling is practically unanimous that the present system is altogether inadequate and out of date, and that time, money and great labor could be saved by the establishment of a national censor body. It is also believed that such a move would draw the various branches of the business into a closer, better and more harmonious relationship with the government. Unquestionably, censorship is the big question before the film people in Canada today."

AMALGAMATE FOR WINTER.

An arrangement has been entered into whereby three moving picture theaters in Port Arthur, Ontario, will be "amalgamated" for the present winter season. The houses affected by the unusual move are the Princess, Gaiety and Colonial. The two former have been closed down and the interests of all three have been concentrated in the Colonial, the direct management of which is in the hands of A. J. Baird. The union will be effective only for the winter months, as all three places are to be in operation next spring when the city will have its usual business activity in connection with marine trade. There is only one other picture house in Port Arthur in addition to the three mentioned above, but it is not included in the arrangements.

HIGHER LICENSE FEES.

The City Council of St. Catharines, Ontario, has increased the local license fee for moving picture theaters from $100 to $150 per year. The same fee will be collected from the so-called legitimate theater in that city. This is in addition to the annual fee of $200 collected by the Ontario Provincial Government.

They Sat Through It.

When fire broke out in the machine booth of the Majestic theater, Montreal, one evening recently, not one person in the audience left a seat, even though the fire department was summoned to extinguish the blaze. The show was continued after a short delay.

Toronto Looking to Ventilation.

Owing to epidemics of measles and grip, the health authorities in Toronto are paying considerable attention to the ventilation of moving picture theaters throughout the city. The people have been advised not to patronize those theaters in which the atmosphere is not purified constantly, and the civic officials are taking steps, it is understood, to compel the managers of a number of houses to increase ventilation arrangements.

Films in Toronto.

Toronto had moving pictures in every one of its theaters, with the exception of the two burlesque houses, during one whole week recently. The two legitimate theaters offered film features, while each of the three vaudeville theaters had pictures on their bills.

Walkerville Theater Sold.

The first and only moving picture house in Walkerville, Ontario, the Temple theater, which was opened only last month, has passed into the hands of Mr. Clyde W. Curry, who operates the Favorite theater at Windsor. He will look after both places. The Temple, which seats about 360 people, was built by John Scott and John Ballantine, and the latter started as manager of the theater.

Appointed Theatrical Chaplain.

Rev. Canon Powell, rector of Holy Trinity Church, Toronto, has been selected for Toronto's first theatrical chaplain. There are 1,600 theater employes in Toronto, it is estimated, of whom half are directly connected with the moving picture industry. Canon Powell will minister to the spiritual needs of these people.

New Feature Pictures.

Considerable interest is being taken in Canada in the new Universal release, "The Nature Man," a five-reel educational picture. In several places the picture is being shown free to children under the auspices of a newspaper. In Toronto the film has received special commendation from censors and other officials.

Attractive Christmas cards were issued to all friends of the Universal in Canada by Claire Hague, general manager of the Canadian company. The pretty cards bore the autographs of Mr. Hague and various local managers.

A recently printed list shows that the Universal is supplying pictures to thirty-seven theaters in Montreal. Over fifty Toronto theaters are also exhibiting Universal photoplays.

The Famous Players Service of Toronto have made releases of two new brands in Toronto. "A Gentleman from Indiana," the first of the Pallas productions, was released to His Majesty's and the Madison theater during Christmas week, while Loew's also took the first "Topical News Weekly" during the same week.

The Ontario censors raised some question about "Mr. Grex of Monte Carlo" owing to the international complications depicted, but, after some slight changes in titles, the exceptional picture was allowed to pass.

Minors in the Business

Massachusetts State Board of Labor and Industries Recommends Extension of Anti-Juvenile Hazardous Employment Law to Cover Children in the Picture Business—Very Few Minors Now Employed.

By William Flynn, Boston Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

BOSTON, MASS.—The State Board of Labor and Industries of Massachusetts in its annual report to the egislature, recently filed with the clerk of the House of Representatives, recommends the extension of the anti-juvenile hazardous employment law to moving picture theaters and the moving picture industry in Massachusetts. The bill submitted by the board prohibits the employment in moving picture houses of all minors less than sixteen years of age. It is doubtful if this bill becomes a law whether it will have any effect on the industry in Massachusetts because from all available information there are few, if any, children undersixteen years of age employed in the business in the Bay State at the present time, in any capacity.

AGAINST FEDERAL CENSORSHIP.

John Casey, Boston's official censor, went to Washington, D. C., last week and spoke before a Federal legislative committee in opposition to the Federal Censorship Board bill. Mr. Casey was acting under instructions from Mayor James M. Curley, of Boston, who is very much pleased with the existing methods of censorship in Boston and who is decidedly opposed to experimenting with any new form of censoring films that are to be shown in Boston. Films to be shown in Boston must first be passed by the National board of censors. According to the mayor this method has worked very well so far, and until it is found wanting he asks the Federal people to keep their hands off where Boston is concerned.

"BLUE BIRD" COMES TO BOSTON.

The Blue Bird features came into Boston this week and established headquarters in the Kriterion offices in Pleasant street. Frank Jacques, formerly with the Globe theater, Brockton, will handle the affairs of the new comers in this territory. Mr. Jacques was with the Universal people at one time.

DAVENPORT CO. GETS ANOTHER.

E. D. Davenport, of E. D. Davenport & Company, of New Bedford, who was in Boston last week, said that his company has just leased the Royal in New Bedford from the owner, Mr. O. Tessier. This makes three theaters in New Bedford, which are now operated by Mr. Davenport or his company, the Royal, the Casino and the Savoy.

SEVERAL NEW THEATERS.

A new theater with a seating capacity of 900 is expected to open in Holyoke, Mass., soon. The new house is to be owned by Alec Cameron. The Imperial, another new theater in Pawtucket, R. I., is practically finished and will be thrown open to the public in a short time. The Arlington theater, at Arlington, Mass., is nearly ready and plans have been drawn and the foundation dug for the new Belmont theater at Belmont, Mass. The New Central Square theater opened auspiciously in East Boston last week.

Thomas Murray, whose Empire theater at Holyoke, Mass., burned down several months ago, was in Boston last week and announced that he had secured additional land adjoining the site of the old theater upon which he intends to erect a new structure with a seating capacity of 1,800.

MANCHESTER THEATER OPENS.

Frank Vine, New England head of the World Film, took flying trip to Manchester, N. H., last week to be present at the opening of the Eagle theater, the new playhouse built by the Pariseau Brothers, which is said to be one of the finest picture houses in New Hampshire. The theater has a seating capacity of 900 and on the opening night Mr. Vine declares 500 persons were turned away. Mr. J. Charbonneau, the manager of the new house is booking World and Equitable features.

Geo. Lawrence Goes to Albany.

George Lawrence, until recently connected with the Pathe office in New York, assumed the management of the Albany, N. Y., office of the United this week, according to Mr. Fred B. Murphy, who expects great things from his new executive. Mr. Murphy will drop in on Mr. Lawrence on his trip around the circuit this week.

World Film Corporation Notes.

Manager Frank Vine's list of clients is increasing every day, he says. C. H. Cowan, Jr., of the Princess theater, Westerly, R. I., is booking World and Equitable features; N. N. Brooks is using Equitable in the Comique and Premier houses in Boston; the Palace theater at Cranston, R. I., is using World Film; the Strand, at Gardner, Me., World and Equitable; Joseph F. Shea has both features in Shea's at Valley Falls, R. I. H. D. Perry has introduced Equitable into Bellows Falls, Vt., and H. H. Durgin is booking World features at the Spa theater, Pittsfield, Mass.

Mr. Joseph Mack, who was formerly connected with the New England office of the Kline-Edison Company is now associated with Frank Vine in the Boston office of the World Film Company. Mr. Mack joined the World forces in December and is apparently well pleased with his new berth.

H. F. Campbell Has Big Territory.

One of the busiest of all the busy managers in this territory is Harry F. Campbell, the New England boss of the Fox corporation. Mr. Campbell also has the cares of the Canadian field upon his mind and between the two territories he is spending much of his time on trains. All he has to do is run all over New England and then chase around four or five provinces in Canada for a change now and then, looking after the multitude of Fox interests that are entrusted to his care. Mr. Campbell has a man's size job. He left this week for Canada intending to open a new office at St. Johns, N. B.

In view of his many duties Mr. Campbell will be unable to devote as much time to the legislative affairs of the Exhibitors' League as he did in former years, although he says he will try to keep in as close touch with moving picture affairs at the State House as possible. While Mr. Campbell is away the New England office of the Fox corporation will be under the direction of Mr. Charles Phillips, his able assistant.

Has a Right to Crow.

Samuel Bernfield, the big chap who handles the reins in the New England office of the Pathe exchange, is enthusiastic over the way the Gold Rooster films are going here. The Boston theater which has a seating capacity of 2,800, put on a double bill of Gold Roosters during the week of Jan. 10. Florence Reed in "At Bay" and Clifton Crawford in "The Galloper" were shown during the first half of the week and during the last half the attractions were Henry W. Savage's "Excuse Me" and the "Beloved Vagabond."

At the New Triangle Office.

The members of the New England Triangle staff moved into their new building at Nos. 48 and 50 Melrose street, South End, this week. Mr. W. H. Bradley, who directs the Triangle destinies in New England is very much pleased with the new quarters, which are located in that part of Boston which has come to be known as "Exchangeable." His work has piled up to such an extent that he has taken on a new solicitor, W. H. Dunbar, an old Kinetograph man, who is expected to take much of the road work off Mr. Bradley's hands.

Fred B. Murphy Visiting Branch Offices.

Fred B. Murphy, proprietor of the United Film Service, left this week on one of his regular bi-monthly tours of his six branch offices. Mr. Murphy is one of the busiest exchange men in the East and incidentally is one of the most popular. Things are apparently booming in the Murphy camp judging from the heap of correspondence that continually litters his desk and his office is a mecca for a host of visiting exhibitors every week.

The largest staff of experts in all departments makes the MOVING PICTURE WORLD the one paper in the trade that fully fills the requirements of every reader.

MANAGER BOGRETT PATRON OF MUSIC IN BANGOR.

Gives Two Nights at Park Theater as Benefit to Local Chorus.

By John P. Flanagan, Maine Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

BANGOR, MAINE.—Manager Stephen Bogrett, of the Park theater, Bangor, Me., has a novel idea for making his theater popular with the musical element in the community. The Festival chorus association, the large local musical organization, needed money for its work, and to assist them, Manager Bogrett gave two benefit concerts on Wednesday and Thursday nights the first week in January. The chorus provided a 12-piece orchestra and soloists. Twelve reels of fine photoplays, including Mary Miles Minter, in "Barbara Frietchie," were shown. The price of admission was increased from 10 to 25 cents. The chorus was given 50 per cent. of the sale of all tickets disposed of in advance, the management retaining all money taken at the door. This plan, first tried at the Park last year, again proved to be successful this year

Resumes Control of Ellsworth Strand.

Mrs. Imogene Pettengill, who recently leased the Strand theater, Ellsworth, to a Massachusetts man, has resumed control of that theater, and is now operating it.

MAINE SHOW LICENSE ONLY $10.

A question recently arose in Bangor, as to whether the city government had the right to charge the photoplay houses more than $10 for their annual licenses. Previous to 1916, the charge has been $50 a year. As related in a recent number of the Moving Picture World, John Hone, of Presque Isle, had a bill passed in the Maine legislature making it illegal to charge more than $10 for any moving picture theater license in the state. The city solicitor of Bangor, when asked for an opinion, wrote the city clerk that in his opinion, Bangor cannot now charge more than $10. In other words, the law must be obeyed. If any other Maine exhibitors are paying more than $10 it is their own fault.

United Film Busy.

Manager William White, of the Bangor branch of the United Film Company, is making good, having increased the business of the Bangor branch 60 per cent. since he took it over. He will supply Morse's Winter Garden, Bangor, the new house, with pictures. He finds that the houses in Maine are now finding the "double feature" program, consisting of two three-reel features and a single are very popular with patrons.

Pine Tree Items of Interest.

"The Birth of a Nation" is enjoying big business in the small towns in Maine.

Thirty-eight students from the Maine school for the Deaf were the guests of the management of the Empire theater, Portland, on a recent afternoon.

Triangle pictures made a hit with Lewiston patrons at the Empire theater recently. Mayor and Mrs. Brann were guests of honor on the opening night, and a seven-piece orchestra added much to the enjoyment of the program. There is no advance in price at the Empire for these pictures.

NEWARK'S IDLE HOUR OPENS.

By Jacob J. Kalter (501 Century Bldg.), Newark Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

NEWARK, N. J.—The Idle Hour, a motion picture theater at 507 South Orange avenue, Newark, was opened last week by M. Gelsime. The house will run Universal program.

ANOTHER JERSEY CITY HOUSE.

A new motion picture house will be built at the southeast corner of Sip avenue and Enos place, Jersey City, by Harry J. Max, after plans drawn by Nathan Welitoff of Newark. The building is a one-story brick affair, 47 by 120 feet in ground dimensions. The motion picture theater will seat 300, and the estimated cost of the entire building, which will also include four stores, is $20,000.

PROCTOR'S LYCEUM TO OPEN.

The roof garden theater attached to Proctor's Palace theater, Market street, Newark, will be opened to the public within one week, it was learned. The house will be under the management of Lewis H. Golding, who will have as his assistant R. J. O'Crowley, Jr. This is the same management as the Palace theater. The roof garden theater will be known as Lyceum-atop-the-Palace. Although it is not definitely known what sort of attractions will be offered, it is generally understood that feature films will be shown. The showhouse has a seating capacity of 1,400, and is thoroughly equipped.

PAPER'S NEWARK OFFICE.

The Newark correspondent of the Moving Picture World announces that he is now located at room 510 Century building, 142 Market street, Newark. Mr. Kalter will always welcome visits from out-of-town exhibitors and exchangemen as well as the local film men. If you have any items of general interest bring them along with you, but if you are inconveniently situated from Newark, your news will receive attention if sent by mail. Copies of the World will be on hand, and subscriptions received and renewed at our Newark office.

SAMUEL SINGER WITH ROYAL.

Samuel Singer assumed the active management of the Royal Feature Film Exchange at 228 Market street, on Friday, Jan. 14. Mr. Singer is a brother of Leo Singer, who will retain a passive interest in the exchange. The new manager is a former exhibitor, one of the first in New Jersey. He was also connected with the Knickerbocker and Proctor interests in New York. He has made a flying start, booking the New York World's war pictures, "Fighting in France," and "The Melting Pot," exclusively for this state.

Leo Singer, the former manager of the Royal, has become associated in an entirely new line. He is now a member of the General Reducing Company, Inc., of 86-92 Frankfort street, Newark. The new concern deals in pyroxlin products and chlorides of gold, silver and platinum. Mr. Singer, however, will not give up his film exchange.

RAMBONNET QUITS WURLITZER.

Mr. Edwin A. Rambonnet informed the Newark correspondent of the Moving Picture World Saturday that he had severed all connections with the Rudolph Wurlitzer Company. Mr. Rambonnet has been a successful moving picture exhibitor, and has been exceedingly successful with the theater orchestra interests in this territory. His future plans are not known, but he is considering several offers from producing companies to assume the local management of their offices here.

NEW LINDEN THEATER.

The Linden opera house, Wood avenue, Linden, N. J., has been turned into a moving picture place by J. Tannebaum. This place is now the sole moving picture house in Linden. Universal pictures are shown exclusively.

The Big New Theater

Philadelphia Visited by Rumor Which Promises a Magnificent New Theater on Corner of Forty-second and Chestnut Streets—She Says the New House Will Be Valued at Half a Million and Seat 3,000 Persons.

Special to Moving Picture World from Philadelphia News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—Moving picture interests in this city are stirred by the rumor that there is to be a colossal moving picture theater erected upon the southeast corner of Fifty-second and Chestnut streets, which theater will be the grandest in this city and will be modeled on the lines of the Strand of New York. The ground upon which the structure is to be erected is the property of George H. Earle, Jr., and has dimensions of 120 by 175 feet. The street at that point is promenaded each night by thousands of people.

The firm of Hoffman & Company, well known architects, who drew the plans for the Stanley, Globe and other leading moving picture theaters, have been, so it is said, assigned to the task of designing the new structure, and it is rumored that Cramp & Company, contractors, will be awarded the contract for the erection of the building at a cost of $350,000. The ground cost in the neighborhood of $150,000.

Many different opinions are being expressed as to the veracity of the rumor, but it seems to be the general concensus of opinion that it is true to a certain extent. While there are already many moving picture theaters in that locality, a house of such enormous proportions, as it is claimed that the new theater will seat 3,000, may perhaps apeal to the West Philadelphians and predictions to the success of such an enterprise are mere prophecies.

BUY TWO THEATERS.

The Felt Brothers, proprietors of the Locust, West Philadelphia's leading moving picture theater, recently added to their place in the local field by taking over the Fifty-second street and Belmont theaters, which were formerly conducted by Samuel H. Wheeler. With the acquisition of these properties by the Felt Brothers comes a change in the management policy of both houses. Henceforth in the afternoon the price of admission will be five cents at the Fifty-second street theater and ten cents at the Belmont. In the evenings the prices will be fifteen cents at both establishments. It is planned to show nothing but first class pictures and Messrs. Felt and Felt, who have already made themselves known in Philadelphia moving picture circles, expect to meet with their usual success in this enterprise.

FIFTY-SIXTH STREET THEATER OPEN JAN. 17.

Walter Jacobs, former manager of the Imperial at Sixtieth and Spruce streets, has recently been engaged to manage the new Fifty-sixth street theater, which will open to the public on Monday, January 17th. This house, which is of the latest and most modern structure possible and is handsomely furnished and equipped throughout, is the property of Mr. Yonkers, who is most optimistic concerning his investment and declares that he feels sure that when the people realize the class of the productions offered and the first-class service offered them he will experience little difficulty in exhibiting to large audiences. A large proportion of the equipment has been purchased from the Swaab Film Service, 1327 Vine street.

TAUGHT HIM A LESSON.

What trouble and expense is often saved by several moments spent in deep, earnest, honest-to-goodness thought! Some days ago a certain gentlemen began to have the Family theater, 1326 Ridge avenue, renovated for the opening once more as a moving picture house. He spent a good deal on painting and cleaning and several other minor details and never thought about a small matter like obtaining a license. When he applied for the aforesaid license he was nonplussed to discover that he would be unable to obtain the desired document. When asked to explain why a license could not be given those in authority declared that the theater was a menace to public safety and that, while it was all right years ago, it did not meet with the modern opinion as to what constitutes a first-class moving picture theater.

WILL TRY AGAIN.

The Orthodox theater, 1618 Orthodox street, which has been closed for some time past, has once more opened its doors to the public. This time it is under the management of Mr. Chapman, thus making the second time that he has endeavored to make the theater a success. Well, he certainly has the best wishes of his brother exhibitors and it is universally hoped that he meet with success.

Philadelphia Business Notes.

G. D. Brown, well-known exhibitor of Eastville, Virginia, was a recent visitor to Philadelphia and spent considerable time in visiting local supply houses. Before returning to his home town he purchased a new 6A machine at the Swaab Film Service.

It has been announced that the Calehuff Supply Company, 1301 Race street, have obtained the local agency for the Edison Superkinetoscope machine, the highest priced machine on the market, retailing at $600. The machine is now on exhibition at the company's headquarters and local exhibitors are invited to inspect its wonderful qualities.

Mr. Schlichter has opened a new theater in Royersford, Pa., and reports having accomplished a remarkable volume of business to date. Mr. Schlichter is an experienced exhibitor and knows what the people want and when they want it. This accounts for his success.

Screen Club Meeting

Pittsburgh Film Men's Club Holds First Meeting in New Quarters—President Kester in Chair—Messrs. Lande, Aronson, Levison and Cross Report—J. C. Kormblum and C. B. Nelson Added to Press Committee.

Special to Moving Picture World from Pittsburgh News Service.

PITTSBURGH, PA. — The Pittsburgh Screen Club held its first meeting in their new headquarters Sunday afternoon, January 9, and most enthusiastic crowd was in attendance. Reports were heard from the various committees on the coming Screen Club Ball to be held on the 14th of February, and the by-laws were up for first reading.

The meeting was called at :15 with President Kester presiding. A letter from Mr. Lande, who was sent to New York to secure screen stars for the affair, was read. Mr. Lande stated that he found it very difficult to see the various managers, as appointments had to be made with nearly all of them. However, Mr. Rowland of the Metro, assured Mr. Lande that his company would send several of its stars.

Mr. Aronson, of the finance committee, reported that $300 of the $500 subscribed had already been paid.

Mr. Levison, of the furniture committee, called attention to the elegant way in which the room was furnished with table, chairs, desk, etc.

Al W. Cross reported for the publicity committee. He reported that work was progressing rapidly and that his committee is on the job all the time. Leo Levison, who is also on the same committee, stated that he is about to leave for New York and while he cannot be of any assistance locally, he will be in the east and helping to secure stars and looking after other matters of interest to the club in New York.

Mr. Cross asked for additional members on the publicity committee to fill the vacancy caused by Mr. Levison's removal. The chair appointed J. C. Kormblum and C. B. Nelson.

At this meeting it was decided to make the initiation fee $10 after the first of March; that the annual dues for active and associate members be $6 per year and that the regular meetings be held the second Sunday of each month. The annual nomination of officers will be held in June and the election in July.

NEW CONNELLSVILLE HOUSE.

Charles Freeman, a well-known moving picture man of Pittsburgh, and Steve Canellos, proprietor of the Manhattan Cafe, Connellsville, Pa., have leased a storeroom on Main street, Connellsville and will remodel the same into a moving picture house, beginning work April 1st. The room is 32x165 feet and when completed is expected to seat about 700 people. Plans are now being prepared for the remodeling at a cost of about $12,000.

PITTSBURGH LEAGUE GROWS.

James Delves, secretary of the Pittsburgh local of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, reports that the organization is enjoying a healthy growth in membership and that it is in better shape than at any time in the organization. Every meeting sees new members added and three applications for membership will be acted upon at the next meeting Thursday, January 20.

NEW FILM EXCHANGE BUILDING.

C. C. McKalip & Company, by Edgar E. Wertheimer, have concluded leases to the various film companies in Pittsburgh, Pa., for the changing of the six-story fireproof building, at 938-40 Penn avenue into a film exchange; the lot being 40 x 110 feet in size. The property belongs to T. J. Keenan and leases have been made with the following tenants for a long term of years: Exhibitors Publishing Company, Feature Film and Calcium Light Company, Metro Picture Service, Inc.; Independent Film Exchange, Pathe Exchange, Inc., and the Liberty Film Renting Company.

Contracts will be awarded in a few days for extensive alterations to the building which will make it the finest film exchange building in the country. An addition of two more stories in the building is contemplated to take care of additional applications for space.

A. J. HANNA HONEYMOONING.

A. J. Hanna, proprietor of the Palace theater on the North Side of Pittsburgh, and treasurer of the Pittsburgh Screen Club, is given credit by his friends as having started the new year right. He signed the benedict list at the beginning of the year and is now on a honeymoon. His partner was the happy Miss Lulu Senora Mosby, grand-daughter of a Confederate general of the Civil war and daughter of Col. O. A. Mosby. Mr. and Mrs. Hanna will be at home after February first in their finely-furnished new home at 6363 Jackson street, East End, Pittsburgh.

NEW NORTH SIDE HOUSE.

George Logue, proprietor of the Seemore theater, Irwin avenue, North Side, Pittsburgh, states that a company has been formed by Aaron Chatkin, David Chatkin and himself, for the purpose of erecting a large picture house at the corner of Irwin avenue and Jarvella avenue. The lot on which the theater will be erected is 50x185 feet and according to the plans which have been prepared it will have a seating capacity of 1085. Work will be started about the first of February and it is expected that the house will be finished for opening in about six months. The estimated cost of the structure will be $40,000.

RUFFIANS DAMAGE THEATER.

Manager Swanson of the Imp theater of Irwin, Pittsburgh, Pa., lost his share of the holiday business when some person broke into the theater just before Christmas Day and smashed the motion picture machine and did other damage that forced the manager to close up the house during the holiday season.

NEW CASTLE'S PARK SOLD.

Jake Jenkinger has sold his Park theater in New Castle, Pa., to Charles Freeman, of Pittsburgh and Mike Marks, of the Star theater, New Castle. The house was closed last week for a period of six weeks during which time it will be considerably enlarged and remodeled at a cost of $8,000. A new pipe organ will be installed, a marquise erected over the sidewalk and the place will be generally improved in appearance. When it reopens the seating capacity will be 600.

BIG FILM AT THE IMPERIAL.

The Imperial theater, Beaver avenue and Juniata street, North Side, Pittsburgh, Pa., revolutionized its entertainment methods last week. The best motion picture plays have been substituted in the place of vaudeville.

Thomas A. Gilbert, manager of the popular house contracted for features from Fox, Paramount, Metro and V-L-S-E. The program for each day is certain to be composed of none, but the most select and notable up-to-date films, making every day a feature day. Admission to the Imperial under the new arrangement will be 10 cents for adults and five cents for children.

BLUE BIRD'S LOCAL OFFICES

Blue Bird Photoplays, Inc., the newest local feature concern, is already established at 414 Ferry street, with Charles F. Miller in charge. Mr. Miller was formerly manager of the Broadway Universal Features and serials for the Independent Film Exchange, which will hereafter be looked after by Mr. Davis, general manager of the exchange.

T. W. Westbrook Managing Gamble Theater.

T. V. Westbrook, is now running the Gamble theater in Huntingdon, Pa., the former manager Andy Gamble, having given it up the first of the year.

New Theaters.

J. C. Boyer, the owner of the Ideal Photoplay, Altoona, Pa., is putting that theater under an extensive remodeling process. A new front is being put in, the house is being re-decorated and new equipment is being added at an expense of $10,000. The Ideal has a seating capacity of 500.

Rowland & Clark's new Oakland theater, the Strand, will be ready for opening about the first of next month.

J. B. Orr, owner of the new Lyric in Altoona, Pa., was in Pittsburgh last week, ordering equipment for the house. He says he expects to open about February 1st. The Lyric has a seating capacity of about 600.

Pittsburgh Business Notes.

Mayer Silverman, of the Liberty Film Renting Company of Pittsburgh, expects to make a trip to New York the latter part of the week. Mrs. Silverman will accompany him.

Ben. S. Cohen, manager of the Eastern Central Division of the World Film, was in Pittsburgh last week with Manager Scherwin, of the local office. Mr. Cohen was well pleased with the progress being made by the Pittsburgh office and stated that his company has some exceptionally good productions coming.

Manager Pearce, of the H. & B. Film Rental, reports that his business is increasing at a rapid rate and that he is supplying quite a large list of customers with daily service.

Al W. Cross, of the Hudson Feature Film Company of Pittsburgh, has purchased an additional print of "Thou Shalt Not Kill."

MANAGER FARRELL ARRIVES.

Southwestern Manager of General Film Has Offices in Rhodes Building.

By A. M. Beetly, Atlanta Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

ATLANTA, GA.—E. J. Farrell, former Boston manager of the General Film, has moved to Atlanta to assume the duties of southeastern manager of the company with Atlanta as headquarters.

The offices of the southeastern division headquarters have been installed in the Rhodes building, where J. L. Marentette has his office as manager of the Atlanta branch of the General Film. Mr. Farrell and his family have moved into a home on Lucile avenue.

The district comprises Washington, D. C., Charlotte, N. C., Atlanta, Memphis, Tenn., Tampa, Fla., New Orleans, La., Dallas, Tex., Houston, Tex., and Oklahoma City, Okla., with the adjacent territory and cities, with Atlanta as headquarters over which Mr. Farrell has charge. This will mean the enlargement of the office force of the General Film company here.

"The Convict King" Shown.

"The Convict King," a photoplay far out of the beaten track of pictures, a play that was written by Dudley Glass, an Atlanta newspaper man, was shown at the Alamo theater, Monday.

Lillian Cook's Work Seen.

Many of her Atlanta friends were pleasantly surprised Monday to see Lillian Cook, a young Alabama actress, supporting Clara Kimball Young in that star's latest success, "Camille," which was shown at the Strand theater.

Miss Cook has been a frequent visitor to the city, and in many instances entertained here. On New Year's eve, 1914, she was crowned queen of the celebration in the Piedmont hotel cafe. She only recently left the speaking stage for the moving pictures.

She portrays the role of Cecile, the sister of Armand in "Camille."

Georgia Atkinson to Be Film Player.

Members of the family of Georgia Atkinson, daughter of the late Governor William Y. Atkinson, of Newnan, Monday confirmed the report that she will soon accept one of the offers that have been made her by prominent moving picture studios in the north and east.

For years she has been a devoted student of dramatics and of pantomime. She was studying abroad in Paris at the outbreak of the European war, but, forced to return to America, resumed her studies at home. She is singularly fitted for the screen. Her blonde beauty, symmetry of features and charm of personality equip her for this work.

She is one of Georgia's most popular young women, and has many friends in Atlanta who will take a keen interest in her progress.

Hank Cassidy Heads the Georgian.

Hank G. Cassidy, one of the best known men in Atlanta's theatrical world assumed charge of the Georgian theater Monday, after an absence from the city of several months. Until his appointment to the Atlanta amusement house he had been at the head of a chain of moving picture theaters in Jacksonville.

Mr. Cassidy was formerly manager of the Grand theater and also the Lyric. He was advertising manager of the Forsyth at one time, and has had varied experience with road theatrical enterprises. A few years ago he was prominently identified with the Jake Wells amusement interests in Chattanooga.

He has announced a new policy for the Georgian, a-feature-a-day.

New Atlanta Film Ordinance.

The city clerk is busy sending out copies of the new film ordinance which was one of the last laws adopted by the council of 1915.

The ordinance as passed provides for the manufacture, storage and handling of films and makes some drastic changes in the former regulations. Many of the film concerns, it is said, have made arrangements to secure new Atlanta headquarters so that the law can be complied with.

C. R. R. Flag at Lyric.

A new kind of official international passport, recognized as uniformly as the Red Cross emblem, is one of the interesting exhibits in the lobby of the Lyric theater in connection with "Fighting for France," the war picture being shown all week. This passport attracted the attention of hundreds in the lobby of the Grand Sunday. It is a large piece of canvas, with the big figures 1302 and the letters C. R. R. stamped upon it. In the rivers and harbors of Belgium this piece of canvas is recognized by all nations and given right of way as being the emblem of the commission of Belgium Relief. Giant warships make way for the tiny barges flying this flag.

Ohio Sunday Laws

Court of Common Pleas Dissolves Wind-a-meer Injunction Against Closing by Police—Cleveland Faces Tight Sunday—Exhibitors' League Will Combat Old-Time Blue Laws—Need for Sunday Shows.

By Hubert Parsons, Cleveland Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

CLEVELAND, OHIO.—This city is facing the possibility of being without motion picture shows on Sundays. Judge P. L. A. Lieghley of the court of common pleas has ruled that Sabbath motion picture exhibitions are illegal and Cleveland theater owners are anxiously waiting to see what attitude the Cleveland police will assume in the matter. Heretofore there has been no disposition on the part of the Cleveland authorities to interfere with Sunday motion pictures.

Wind-a-meer Injunction Against Closing.

Judge Lieghley's ruling was made in the injunction suit of the Standard Building Company, operating the new Wind-a-meer theater, Euclid and Holyoke avenues, East Cleveland. That company recently obtained a temporary restraining order from Judge Manuel Levine, preventing the police of East Cleveland from closing the theater on Sundays in accordance with an East Cleveland ordinance. Arnold Goodman, manager of the Wind-a-meer recently submitted to arrest an effort to test the ordinance and referendum petitions to revoke the ordinance were circulated.

For several Sundays the Wind-a-meer was operated and the public admitted without an admission fee. The crowds which responded to the invitation of the management, indicated a strong demand for Sunday shows.

Judge Lieghley's action dissolves the temporary injunction in the East Cleveland case and calls the attention of the Cleveland authorities to the fact that they have the legal authority to close all picture houses. This would affect more than 150 theaters and if enforced, it is declared many of the theaters would be compelled to suspend altogether.

Exhibitors Will Combat Closing.

Any attempt to enforce the law pointed out by Judge Lieghley will be met with strong opposition on the part of the Cleveland exhibitors, however, on the ground that Sunday picture shows have become a public necessity. Film men are expected to join with members of the Northeastern Ohio Motion Picture Exhibitors' League to combat the effect of the decision, and the exhibitors are unanimous in expressing the intention of continuing Sunday shows as usual until forcibly stopped.

People Want Sunday Shows.

"I believe the sentiment of the people of Cleveland is overwhelmingly in favor of Sunday picture shows," W. H. Horsey secretary of the League and proprietor of the Carlyon theater declared. "I expect to run my theater as usual and I believe every other member of the League feels the same way."

Frank Kenney, proprietor of the Clark theater and a vice president of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, expressed similar sentiments and declared his house would be open as usual.

"Public sentiment demands that the film theaters run on Sunday," Samuel E. Morris of the World Film declared. "The same question has come up in other cities. When a few people in Warren, Ohio, demanded that the theaters be closed, the matter was soon dropped when some seventy-five warrants were issued against choir singers for singing on Sunday and the proprietors of drug stores who kept open.

Blue Laws Not Meant for Modern Times.

"The 'blue laws' were not meant for modern times, but if they are to be strictly enforced there are enough Sunday institutions and businesses that we could close to make it uncomfortable for the anti-Sunday picture people."

E. N. Downs, manager of the Knickerbocker theater, Euclid avenue, and E. 82d street, believes 95 per cent of the picture theaters in Cleveland would be forced to suspend entirely if compelled to close their doors on Sundays.

"The fact that the public wants Sunday pictures is best illustrated by the fact that Sunday receipts are far larger than on other days," Mr. Downs said. "Why we have to make the show continuous on Sundays to handle the crowds.

Sunday Profits Needed.

"I would venture to say that not more than five per cent. of the motion picture houses could continue to run without Sunday profits. Expenses are so heavy for the music and film service that the Sunday receipts are depended on to pull us out of the hole."

J. R. Johnson, of the Pathe film exchange, points out that with picture theaters closed on Sundays thousands of people would be forced to hunt recreation in other ways not so wholesome.

"A Sunday motion picture show, properly conducted, is beneficial to the whole public," Johnson declared. "What will become of the thousands of people who have no place else to go on Sunday?"

Ministers Oppose Opening.

A group of clergymen are the only persons who have thus far expressed the hope that Judge Lieghley's decision will put an end to all Sunday amusements. Rev. A. L. Moore, pastor of the East Cleveland Baptist Church, has announced his intention of appearing before the East Cleveland council at its next meeting in an effort to prevent any attempt to rescind the ordinance prohibiting Sunday shows. Eight thousand persons petitioned the council to revoke the measure.

Judge Lieghley's opinion was based on the Ohio law making it a misdemeanor to engage in common labor on Sunday.

"Inasmuch as the Supreme court has held that the keeping open of the corner grocery store and the corner bakery is illegal on Sunday, then it follows that opening a theater on Sunday is a violation of the law also," Judge Lieghley said.

Of the East Cleveland ordinance which it was sought to enjoin, the court said:

"The petitioners plead that the ordinance compelling the closing on Sundays was not legally passed. The ordinance is not concerned in this case, as there is a law on the statute books which expressly forbids the acts the ordinance was intended to prohibit."

World Film Projection Room.

A model picture theater for the use of exhibitors and visitors is a feature of the new quarters of the Cleveland World Film branch just opened in the Belmont building, Prospect avenue. The new offices occupy the entire third floor of the building and are declared to comprise the largest film office west of New York City.

"PEACE" FILM IN LYNCHBURG.

Manager Barrett of the Belvedere Books Big Preparedness Feature.

By J. T. Baker, Lynchburg Correspondent of the Moving Picture World.

LYNCHBURG, VA.—After several of the larger theaters had declined to take "The Battle Cry of Peace," Manager Guy Barrett of the Belvedere, one of the smaller houses catering to the elite, seized the opportunity to land this big feature and will exhibit it here during the week of January 24. The Belvedere is now showing the Metro and Paramount programs and is one of the few exclusive picture theaters that are making money.

Forbids Giving Prizes

In Louisville, the Commonwealth's Attorney Has Given Notice to Local Theater Managers That the Giving of Prizes Is in Violation of the Lottery Laws and Must Cease—May Make Law Against Trading Stamps.

By G. D. Crain, Jr., Louisville Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

LOUISVILLE, KY.—Joseph M. Huffaker, Commonwealth's Attorney of the Circuit Court at Louisville, has notified the proprietors of all local moving picture theaters that giving away of prizes at the houses under their control must cease.

It has been the practice of many of the moving picture theaters, especially those in outlying districts, to give away tickets with each admission, entitling the holder to one chance on the prize distributed. The attorney states that this practice is a violation of the lottery laws and must cease at once. Prizes such as turkeys, candy, household articles and on occasions money, have been given away in these drawings. A number of the houses have special nights upon which trading stamps, merchandise, etc., are given away to every patron, or the women patrons of the theaters. Of course the regulation could not interfere with any general distribution of such merchandise, as there would be no chance involved.

Giving trading stamps may be abolished shortly, as several mercantile organizations of the state are framing a legislative bill to be introduced at the present session of the legislature in an attempt to place a ban on stamps.

WANT CHILDREN'S FILMS.

Organize a Broadside Request to Producers for More Pictures for Young Folks.

Nation-wide efforts to induce film manufacturers to make moving pictures especially for children were inaugurated at a meeting of the Louisville Board of Censorship of Motion Pictures for Children, at a meeting of the organization held at the Library building on Monday, January 10. According to Mrs. Fred Levy, president of the organization, and one of the leaders of the country in the movement for special performances for children, the local board has had a great deal of trouble in finding one film each week which is especially suitable for children, and no studio turns them out for that purpose alone.

Mrs. Levy started the movement in Louisville whereby children's shows were inaugurated at the Mary Anderson theater, one of the Keith houses. Mrs. Levy reports that she has received sixty-five letters, from various cities throughout the country, stating that they were desirious of following Louisville's lead in censoring pictures and sponsoring pictures for children. In view of the nation-wide interest in the Louisville method it has been suggested that the board write to each organization which has sent in such inquiries, and direct them to write to the various film manufacturers and request that children's films be made. This suggestion was later placed in the form of a motion, and was adopted. Each organization will be asked to time its request so that the letters will reach the film manufacturers on February 15, in order that all of the manufacturers may consider the requests at one and the same time.

"We censor pictures only for one show a week in Louisville, but we have to scour the country to secure enough films for that," Mrs. Levy said. "This movement has proven successful in Louisville and other cities are now following our lead. By concerted action we may be able to cause the film manufacturers to realize the importance of the movement and thereby manufacture a sufficient number of films solely for children." The request for information came from the heads of organizations who had read in the newspapers and magazines of the Louisville system. A writer from Columbus, Ga., said she had read a list of such films approved by the Louisville board and wished to know the names of others. In this connection it is interesting to state that the Moving Picture World, last spring ran a list of all films which were shown at the Mary Anderson during the 1914-15 scholastic season. Beginning at once the Louisville board will have two members to act as hostesses at the children's shows.

FILM COMPANY CHANGES NAME.

Children's Feature Film Becomes Aladdin Film Corporation.

Amended articles of incorporation have been filed by the Children's Feature Film Company, changing the name of the company to the Aladdin Film Corporation. The articles are signed by N. M. Sweet, T. J. Morrow, Jr., Kendrick Lewis and R. W. Conant. The latter is manager of the company which expects shortly to begin active operations in Louisville.

The Aladdin interests are now negotiating for a twenty-acre tract of land near Louisville upon which they propose to erect a studio. Mr. Conant recently returned from the East and has a quantity of good material with which to start producing photoplays.

NEW S. & P. FILM MANAGER.

A change has been effected in the S. & P. Film Supply Company, whereby W. E. Caroll, who for a number of years was connected with a local wholesale house, has purchased an interest in the company, and becomes the active manager. Charles Pressy, president of the company, will retain his interest, however. The company is arranging to carry a larger stock of exhibitors' supplies, and is also arranging to buy a lot of new film material.

SUNDAY EXHIBITORS FINED.

Moving picture exhibitors of Lexington, Ky., will probably take the Sunday closing regulations of the city before the Court of Appeals during the next few days. Fines of $10 each were assessed against four moving picture exhibitors on January 10, in connection with the verdicts returned by the grand jury after trying the indictments returned last summer, charging the exhibitors with violating the old blue law forbidding the operation of amusements and also working on Sunday. The exhibitors each pleaded guilty to the original charge. Judge Charles Kerr, following the assessment of the fines, stated that each exhibitor was liable to indictment for each offense if the matter is brought to the attention of the grand jury.

Monte Craig Looking for Theater.

Monte Craig, manager of The New theater, of Staunton, Va., was recently in Louisville looking over the moving picture field with the intention of establishing a house or purchasing an established house either in Louisville or vicinity. Mr. Craig stated that he had had a number of years' experience in the business, and had spent a good deal of time in the South.

Fred Hurst Leases the Ruby.

Fred Hurst, of Louisville, has rented the Ruby theater, a colored show house on Walnut street, and has taken over the active management.

Star at Paducah Not Sold.

Newspapers of Paducah, Ky., have retracted a statement to the effect that the Star theater was included in a block of property sold by the Friedman-Keiler Company to George H. Goodman. The Star property has not been sold, but remains in the ownership of Judge James, Campbell, of Paducah.

Expects to Show "Nation" Film.

Pressley L. Hamilton, treasurer of Macauley's theater, which is booked to show the film "The Birth of a Nation," stated that the objections which had been raised to the showing in Louisville would undoubtedly be overruled and that he was confident that the film would be shown for two weeks starting February 14. Mr. Hamilton stated that there were too many people in Louisville who were anxious to see the film, and that the city authorities were too broad-minded to rule against the showing of such a production. In fact Mr. Hamilton is of the opinion that the objections raised will prove excellent publicity for the show.

Prints Its Weekly Program.

The Cherokee theater, of Louisville, is getting out a weekly program of films to be shown at the popular outskirt theater. This program is delivered throughout the residential district surrounding the theater. The plan has exceptional advantages in that it gives the people a line on the shows to be seen, and prevents the disappointment in seeing unexpectedly second run pictures which have previously been seen at the down town theaters.

Stuart W. Cayce Teaches Y. M. C. A. Classes.

Stuart W. Cayce is in charge of the classes in photoplay writing at the Louisville Y. M. C. A. this year. Mr. Cayce was active in handling them last season.

Ben Ali Theater at Lexington Burns

Damage of About $80,000 Caused by Fire That Started Above the Stage—Partly Covered by Insurance and Will Be Remodeled.

LEXINGTON, KY.—Fire, believed to have started from defective wiring, practically destroyed the Ben Ali theater of Lexington, Ky., early on the morning of January 11. The damage is estimated at $80,000. The fire, which broke out in the flies above the stage, was discovered by Hamilton Brown, advertising manager of the theater, who maintained apartments on the third floor, and who had a narrow escape. The fire department after a hard struggle succeeded in confining the fire to the walls of the building. The interior of the main auditorium while remaining intact, was badly damaged by smoke, water and heat.

The Ben Ali theater was built by a Lexington stock company, headed by the late James B. Haggin, at a cost of about $2,000,000.

For the past few months the house has been running nothing but pictures. At present it is owned by the Berryman Realty Company, and Charles Scott, formerly of Louisville, is manager.

A velvet curtain, valued at $10,000, was destroyed along with the other stage properties. C. H. Berryman, head of the company, stated that the company carried $70,000 on the building, and that it would be remodeled and opened again in about two months. The Phoenix Hotel, the City Hall and several other buildings were in imminent danger for a time. The theater is without a doubt the handsomest structure of its kind in the state outside of Louisville.

CINCINNATI NOTES.

Some Local Hits.

The extraordinary and growing popularity of good features was never better illustrated in Cincinnati than on a recent typical Sunday, when Manager I. Libson, with three of the biggest houses in Cincinnati devoted to moving pictures, within two blocks of each other, was turning people away all day. At the Family, until recently a five-cent house, the Triangle-Keystone program was drawing big crowds; at the Strand Mary Pickford, in "The Foundling," A Famous Players release on the Paramount program, kept the house filled and the lobby crowded with a waiting list, while at the Walnut "Green-Eyed Monster," a Fox release, was equally successful. Other features showing downtown have been doing well also, and there is no apparent let-up in the eagerness of the public to see and pay for first-class productions of this nature.

Gets First Riot Films.

Manager C. W. Deibel, of the Dome theater, at Youngstown, Ohio, was the first exhibitor in that city to show pictures of the recent destructive strike riots in East Youngstown, the adjoining industrial village. The interest in these pictures was naturally great in Youngstown, and as Manager Deibel was fortunate enough to get them almost while the ruins were still smoking, he drew houses with them.

Despite an attack of pneumonia and various other handicaps. Director Rex Weber, of the Moon Film Company, and the Five-A Studios, has completed the production of another of his one-reel pictures, under the title of "Safety First." The theme of the picture is the work of the reckless joy-rider, and some first-class work was handled on the downtown streets, although some of the scenes were barely finished ahead of police interference.

Wants Cincinnati's Zoo

Animal Exhibition Has Been Losing Money and May Be Dispersed—Highland Film Company Has Offered to Take Over Property—May Make Big Amusement Center as Well as Picture Studio Plant.

By Kenneth C. Crain, Cincinnati Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

CINCINNATI, OHIO.—A plan which makes a decided appeal to the entire city of Cincinnati has been proposed by the Highland Film Corporation, of this city, bringing that company into the warm glow of the limelight in striking fashion. For some months the ultimate fate of the Cincinnati Zoo, the pride of the city, has been hanging in the balance, inasmuch as the company operating it declared that it is losing money and must be disposed of in some manner.

A commission of leading citizens, headed by August Herrmann, of baseball fame, was formed to consider ways and means of saving the famous institution to the city, but so far no satisfactory plan for that purpose has been evolved. Then the Highland Film Corporation came to the front last week with an offer to take over the property at a fair valuation, with ten acres of land adjoining it, and to use the whole for moving picture purposes. The proposition made a deep impression at once, on account of its obvious feasibility, and of the chance it offers to keep the Zoo intact and open to the public.

President James T. Ford, of the Highland, stated that if suitable arrangements for the purchase of the Zoo by his company could be made he would close the deal at once, releasing the options which he now holds on a site at Ft. Thomas. From the standpoint of the Highland company the plan offers many attractions, as the location of the Zoo is very favorable, from every standpoint, while the ten-acre tract adjoining gives ample room for the necessary buildings to complete the plant. Moreover, the plan is to add to the attractions of the Zoo itself such amusement devices as skating rinks, a swimming pool, a large moving-picture theater and other entertainment features which would make the place as a whole a big drawing-card and a probable revenue-producer.

Adequate financial assistance from the city and leading business men is also promised, on account of the determination in all quarters to prevent the sale of the property and the shipment to other points of the splendid collection of animals there; and it is therefore a present probability that the Highland Film Corporation will presently be possessed of a plant and a zoological collection second to none in the country.

Theaters and Grip Epidemics.

The epidemic of grip and kindred diseases which has been raging in the Middle West, not to mention the rest of the country, during the past month or so, has called for every possible effort on the part of the health authorities; and in Cincinnati and Hamilton special efforts have been devoted to the cause of good ventilation, the lack of which in public places is declared to be largely responsible for the spread of the disease.

At Hamilton a general communication was issued last week by the health department to exhibitors, embodying a series of rules for the prevention of disease. Thorough airing of every house at the conclusion of each performance is required, with due warning in advance to patrons; the prevention of expectoration and the arrest of people guilty of this sort of thing, and other means of preventing contamination, are set forth in the letter.

The Cincinnati Board of Health, on the request of the City Club and other civic organizations, is contemplating similar measures, as the spread of grip, pneumonia and even tuberculosis, has been alarming lately.

Lack of State License Hinders Film Company

Interstate Amusement Company Could Not Sue Exhibitors in Chattanooga for Lack of State License—Important Decision.

By G. D. Crain, Chattanooga Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

CHATTANOOGA, TENN.—An interesting decision was handed down at Washington on January 10 which has a strong bearing on future theatrical contracts in the state of Tennessee as well as elsewhere. The Supreme Court of the United States in the case of the Interstate Amusement Company, a theatrical booking agency, of Chicago, against Catron and Albert, managers of a Chattanooga theater, held that foreign firms doing business within a state are subject to the state's laws requiring them to be licensed.

The Tennessee courts reached the same decision when the issue was tried, but the case was taken to the higher courts. The lower courts held that Catron and Albert could not be sued because the booking agency was not licensed to do business in Tennessee, and this decision was upheld by the highest court.

The Chicago concern contended that it was doing business only in an interstate way, and was not subject to the state law.

According to the purport of this decision, lawyers say, all film companies would be forced to hold state licenses in order to be able to go into court and enforce any contracts which might have been entered into with exhibitors. The matter has been of a great deal of interest to theatrical people generally since it was originally taken up in the lower courts.

NEW NASHVILLE HOUSE READY.

W. H. Wassman, of Nashville, Tenn., is preparing shortly to open the new Knickerbocker theater, which will be arranged with entrances on Capitol boulevard and also on Sixth avenue. The new house will be complete in every detail, fireproof, and commodious. The best film service obtainable will be used in this theater, which will class with the best in the South. Mr. Wassman will give the theater his personal attention, but will not neglect the Crystal theater, which is handling capacity business. Mr. Wassman has been in Nashville for ten years and has been very successful in the moving picture business. He attributes his success to the policy of giving the best obtainable pictures for the price of the admission, regardless of cost or competition.

Tennessee Chosen Items.

Seven exhibitions are being given daily by the Gay theater, of Knoxville, Tenn., which is running the Triangle program. A special orchestra is supplying music for all of the films shown. The Fox program is also run at this house in connection with the Triangle films.

The Bijou, of Knoxville, has completed a week's run of the great film production "The Battle Cry of Peace." Prices for this show were 15, 25 and 50 cents for night and 25 cents for matinees. One performance was given each afternoon and night.

The Lyric, of Chattanooga, booked Clara Kimball Young, in "Camille," for a three-day run, starting January 20. Miss Young has proven a very popular actress with the theater goers of Chattanooga, and can always be depended upon to draw good crowds.

In spite of heavy rains an unusually large crowd visited the Queen theater, of Knoxville, Tenn., to see a return engagement of the famous photoplay "Hypocrites," which drew capacity crowds at its first introduction to the city.

C. E. Shurtleff Heads Local V-L-S-E.

R. S. Shrader, for some months head of the Cincinnati office of the V-L-S-E combination, establishing that exchange in this city, has again moved on, being sent to Cleveland office of the company. He has been succeeded in Cincinnati by C. E. Shurtleff, formerly manager of the Detroit office of the company, P. B. Elliott continuing as assistant manager at the Cincinnati office. Mr. Shrader has established the "Big Four" goods firmly in popular favor in Cincinnati, and his friends among the exhibitors regret keenly his leaving.

Pathe Man Sees Good Business.

Returning last week from a trip over the entire territory served out of the Cincinnati office of the Pathe company, Manager C. E. Holah reports that prospects could not well be better, both for the Pathe program and for business in general. He visited Louisville, Lexington, Charleston, Huntington, Columbus and Dayton, besides several smaller places, and in all of them exhibitors stated that business for 1916 had opened up splendidly. D. F. Faralla, who has been for the past eight months cashier of the Cincinnati Pathe office, has been placed in the office force of the Pathe company in New York

The Atlas Theater Company recently organized at Toledo, Ohio, by George Fleischman and others, with a capital stock of $10,000, will construct a moving picture house in that city at once.

Avenue Theater Leased

Detroit Legitimate House Taken by Pliny P. Craft, Fred M. Randall and Kenneth H. Kolpein—Renamed the Triangle—Opened Sunday Morning, January 9, as an Exclusively Moving Picture House—Managed by James Rutherford.

By Jacob Smith, Detroit Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

DETROIT, MICH.—The Avenue theater, Woodward and Jefferson avenues, one of the oldest amusement places in the city and for the past three years playing stock, has been leased to the Triangle Theater Corporation by Frank Drew, capitalized at $1,000 the principal stockholders being Pliny P. Craft, Fred M. Randall and Kenneth H. Kolpein. The theater closed with stock at eleven o'clock Saturday night, Jan. 8, and 12 hours later reopened as an exclusive motion picture house playing Triangle films, downtown first run.

The house manager appointed is James Rutherford, for the past seven months he was assistant manager and press agent of the Miles-Detroit theater. The name of the theater has been changed to the Triangle. Prices are 10 to 25 cents for matinees and 10 to 50 cents at night.

SOME J. H. KUNSKY CHANGES.

From the office of John H. Kunsky, Inc., 2206-2212 Dime Bank building, emanated last week a number of important items of news, as follows:

Harry I. Irons Goes South.

Harry I. Irons has recently resigned as manager of the Liberty theater, on account of his health, and will go South. Mr. Irons has been associated with Mr. Kunsky on and off for a number of years and was a valuable manager. He has managed theaters in other cities and has nearly all his life been connected with the theatrical business. Mr. Irons will go South before Jan. 15, where he expects to take the management of some theater, although at this particular time he has nothing definite in view. Mr. Irons regrets leaving Detroit, but his health demands it.

L. H. Gardner to Manage Royal.

L. H. Gardner has been appointed manager of John H. Kunsky's Royal theater on Monroe avenue. Mr. Gardner for the past seven months has been managing the Strand theater in Saginaw. Previous to that time he was manager of the Rosedale in Detroit.

The New Theater.

Work will start before February 1 on the new Kunsky theater at Witherell and Broadway, facing Grand Circus Park, which will be one of the largest and most beautiful photoplay houses in the country. C. Howard Crane is the supervising architect, and with him in the designing of this playhouse will be Arthur Lamb, who designed the Strand theater in New York. Further details regarding this enterprise will be announced later.

Advertisement on Screen.

The "Weekly Film News," the house organ of the John H. Kunsky enterprises, contained two splendid articles in the January 2 issue. One was on censorship and the other on "advertising films." Howard O. Pierce, who edits this publication, gave the 50,000 readers of the "Weekly Film News" some tangible reasons why too much censorship of motion pictures was a bad thing for the industry. As to advertising films, he said, in part: "Advertising is all right in its place. But as to advertising matter projected upon the motion picture screen, that is another matter. We maintain that the patrons of any theater come to be entertained—that's why they pay money—and they expect the kind of entertainment they pay for—not to be regaled with an ill assortment of advertising matter for which they care nothing. We have been offered considerable sums of money to exploit commercial films in the Kunsky theaters, but have refused under all conditions."

The William Penn Closes.

The William Penn theater on Woodward avenue, Detroit, is closed again. Lack of patronage is the reason. It is a beautiful theater, but competition is too keen in that particular section of the city.

New Companies in Detroit.

The latest incorporations in Michigan are as follows:

Peerless Film Company, Detroit, $2,000; Otto A. Seestedt, Ralph E. Peckham and Charles J. Welsh. This firm will carry on the exchange formerly operated under the name of the Detroit Kriterion Film Company. Mr. Peckham will continue as general manager.

The Northeastern Detroit Amusement Company, capital stock, $70,000; stockholders, John M. Fuchs, George H. Fleischhut and Joseph Miller. A motion picture theater is planned.

Official War Films company, Detroit; capital stock, $20,000. Principal stockholders, Andrew H. Green, Jr., August Frobel and Arthur H. Blankmeyer. The latter is president of the Grand Circuit Theater Company.

Picture House Pickpockets.

An unusual number of complaints have been made to the Detroit police department during the last sixty days by people who claimed they were robbed in motion picture theaters. Just last week two detectives caught several men working the crowds at the Monroe avenue picture houses, their stunt being to move from one empty seat to another. Police Commissioner Gillespie says that many of these theater robberies could be avoided if the managers and ushers would keep a closer surveillance on the audience.

Chosen Detroit Items.

Adam J. Orth, who operates the Parkview theater, Parkview and Kercheval avenues, Detroit, is interested in the new theater which is in contemplation of being erected at the opposite corner. It is to be a large house, seating over 1,000.

The Vendome theater on Grand River avenue, owned by William F. Klatt, is to be enlarged.

The Gladwin Park theater is increasing its weekly receipts materially by giving matinees as often as three times during the week days. This applies particularly to the days when big features have been secured.

C. G. Kingsley, formerly in the Cincinnati office, has been appointed assistant manager of the Detroit office of the Fox Film Corporation.

The Parkview theater at Parkview and Kercheval avenues, is for lease. Since built it was operated by C. M. Orth, who is now promoting a new theater which will be erected on the opposite corner, to seat about 1,000.

At the annual meeting of the Gilligham & Smith enterprises, which operates a chain of theaters in Grand Rapids, the following officers were elected: A. J. Gilligham, president and managing director; vice-president, H. C. Cornelius; secretary, W. J. Clark; Charles H. Seaman, treasurer and general manager; Tom Parker Junkin, assistant manager and press representative. Mr. Gilligham resides in Detroit where he owns the Empire theater.

Detroit's Mayor Says Local Censorship May Come

Asks Board of Estimates to Appropriate Fund So That Recreation Commission Can Employ Officials to Censor Films.

DETROIT, MICH.—The following is an excerpt from the annual address of Mayor Oscar B. Marx, of Detroit, delivered to the common council on Tuesday, Jan. 11, and is of particular importance to motion picture exhibitors of Detroit.

"Detroit is not narrow or pruddish in its judgment of the theater, yet wishes to have its performances up to the highest standard of decency. To this end I request that your honorable body allow the Recreation Commission sufficient funds to engage such employes as may be necessary to obtain capable and intelligent censorship of all theatrical performances in this city of Detroit."

That there will be local censorship there is not the least doubt unless the exhibitors bring action to bear. The Board of Estimates is said to be in favor of granting the necessary appropriation, which means that inside of one year there will be censorship carried on under the supervision of the Recreation Commission.

New License Fee Ordinance.

Eddie Barnett, the trouble-making alderman, is preparing an ordinance which he will introduce into the Detroit common council, compelling all theaters over 600 seating capacity to pay a yearly license fee of $100. Some time ago an ordinance was passed reducing the license fee to $25 in order to permit the smaller theaters to install fire alarm boxes. Managers who paid $50 before the ordinance was passed are now asking for a refund.

New House in Pontiac.

Plans have been drawn for a $50,000 theater building to be erected in Pontiac, Mich., by August Kliest and his son, Julius Klist, now owners of the two playhouses in that city.

More Business at Higher Prices.

That it is just as easy to get more money for good features is proven at the Washington theater, Detroit. A year ago the parquet prices were 10 and 15 cents. M. Harlan Starr, manager, prevailed upon the owner, John H. Kunsky, to advance the price to 25 cents for parquet seats at evening and holiday matinee performances. A few people "kicked" at the start, but today the Washington is doing more business at its advanced prices than it did formerly when the prices were less. "It just requires backbone to advance your prices," said Mr. Starr. "But when the public realizes the big show you are giving them for the money, in comparison to what the same money can buy in other amusement lines, there will be no trouble."

Big Benefit Week at Detroit.

One hundred Detroit motion picture theaters gave benefit performances for half of the week of December 12 to aid the building fund of one of the crippled children's hospitals.

Buys Theater in Flint.

E. J. Stanton and wife have purchased the Lyric theater, Flint, Mich. It is located at Saginaw and Water streets. The Stantons now own the Royal theater. Extensive improvements will be made in the spring to the Lyric.

Current Illinois Notes.

Thomas B. Henderson, 58 years old, owner of the Apollo theater at Princeton, Ill., is dead.

Manager Jules Ruben of the Strand theater at Aurora, Ill., is using in connection with each show a marvelous electrical effect, "The Tempest," upon which he has been working for some time. The Strand has a new policy, changing three times a week, on Sunday, Tuesday and Thursday.

"How Mollie Made Good," Burns Mantle's story of stage stars at home, had its first down-state showing at the Hippodrome in Peoria, where it ran four days.

Manager Lamb of the Palm theater at Rockford, Ill., used "The Kingdom of Noseyland," with Elsie Albert, for a special show for children.

Manager Hill of the South Side theater at Aledo has a new policy of showing but three days a week, but giving high-class features. The first of these was George Kleine's "The Spendthrift."

"Request after request," said the Orpheum at Rockford in returning "At Bay."

Michigan Short Items.

"The Lion and the Mouse" was shown at the Rex theater in Three Rivers, Mich., under the auspices of the King's Daughters.

Manager McDonald of the Orpheum theater at Flint, Mich., has booked the Fox film service, to run in conjunction with Paramount and World Film features.

The Powers theater at Grand Rapids, Mich., will have "The Birth of a Nation" for a return booking as soon as the Detroit engagement is ended. The Ramsdell theater at Manistee, Mich., announces it will have the picture soon.

Manager L. C. Barnes of the Elite theater at Kalamazoo contemplates establishing a rest and reading room, where patrons may wait until the next performance.

Michigan Changes.

The Pastime theater at Oxford, Mich., has gone out of business, leaving the field to Manager Rann of the Oxford theater.

Newman Fitzgerald and J. E. Adams have opened a moving picture theater at Black Lake, Mich.

L. D. Mickam has opened a new moving picture theater at Mesick, Mich., which he will operate three days a week.

George Finch has opened a moving picture theater at Columbiaville, Mich.

Quincy Censor Resigns

Civic Conscience Leads George Luther, Quincy, Illinois, Censor to Quit Board—Finds That It Is Not the Function of a Community to Prohibit Exhibition of Moving Pictures That the People Want to See.

By Frank H. Madison, Illinois Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

QUINCY, ILL.—"I have come to the conclusion that it is not practicable and not the function of a local community to prohibit the exhibition of pictures which the people want to see."

This significant statement is from a letter by George Luther in presenting to the mayor of Quincy, Ill., his resignation from the local board of censors. Mr. Luther was one of the most active members of a board which ran the gamut of local censorship ideas and then relaxed until it may now be said to be in a natural process of disintegration. It has been unable to secure a quorum recently for its meetings. There is before the city council which created the body a plan to formally dissolve the board. This movement took the form of a motion to discuss the situation at a conference. In this conference would be the city council, sitting as a committee of the whole, the censors and the local exhibitors.

Activities of the board which made it obnoxious were decisions that a member, unable to attend a session, might pass upon a picture by telephone and a request that it be allowed to supervise other forms of amusement.

The Quincy Herald thinks Mr. Luther's statement as to "pictures which the people want to see" is a trifle broad, but concludes that "more and more, however, the thought is crystallizing that the extent of censorship should be the prohibition of pictures admittedly immoral, demoralizing to the youth or calculated to stir up serious civil, racial or religious strife. Going beyond that, the power of censorship becomes undemocratic and an institution of oppression rather than justice."

"Nation" Film Fills Hotels.

"A four days' engagement of a circus" is the description given of the return engagement of "The Birth of a Nation" to the Temple at Alton, Ill. The out-of-town business was reflected in the hotel patronage, local papers declaring nearly every room was filled. The Sunday shows played to 2,100 persons. In the course of the engagement the Chicago and Alton ran a special train from Jacksonville, the C. P. & St. L. one from Grafton, and all steam and electric lines held trains for the night shows.

Vaudeville was laid off for a week at the Empress theater in Decatur to play the Griffith film.

The Gaiety theater in Kankakee has booked the picture for February 16-18.

Retaliation in Sunday Closing.

The Sunday show controversy has broken out again in Illinois—at East St. Louis, Ottawa and Virginia. In the first two cities the old retaliatory tactics in a saloon fight are responsible. The same old threats, "If the saloons are shut the moving picture theaters also must be closed." At Virginia the opposition by three churches and the various women's auxiliaries and temperance societies is active. McDaniels & Long of the Truman theater had promised to run religious pictures and give sacred music if allowed to operate on Sundays.

Theaters and Quarantine.

After seven and a half weeks of quarantine because of diphtheria, children under fourteen years of age in Belleville, Ill., are now allowed to attend moving picture shows.

Children under eighteen in Litchfield, Ill., are barred from photoplay houses, church and school by a recent ruling of the city council which was coping with a number of contagious diseases.

Rex in Petersburg Burned.

Fire destroyed the Rex theater at Petersburg, Ill., owned by Arthur Simons and W. W. Watts of the Vaudette Amusement Company of Springfield. The loss was $5,000. Crossed wires in the operating room are blamed for the fire.

New Incorporations.

Secretary of State Stevenson at Springfield has issued certificates of incorporation as follows: The Frank Calder Amusement Company of Chicago, capital stock, $2,500; the incorporators, Charles J. Martin, Edward W. Weiss and Asher J. Goldfine. The Harry Culbertson Company of Chicago, capital stock, $25,000; to conduct and operate places of amusement; incorporators are Harry Culbertson, Elbert Ferguson and Edward R. England.

Makes Open Benefit Offer.

Managers may not agree upon the value of benefits, but Manager M. Higgins of the Higgins opera house at St. David, Ill., has offered his house free one night a week to any lodge or society. All the organization is to do is to furnish the films and the crowds.

Illinois Changes.

Hedrick & Vanblair have opened a moving picture show at Loraine, Ill.

A new moving picture theater has been opened at Ellis Grove, Ill.

Bennett & Messinger of the Variety theater at Westfield, Ill., have purchased the building in which their show has been located and will make extensive improvements.

The Photoplay theater on Magnolia street in Elmwood, Ill., formerly operated by H. C. Hatcher, has been reopened by J. A. Vance, with Mr. Hatcher as manager.

Frank H. June has sold the Playhouse on South Boulevard in Oak Park, Ill., to H. M. Gollos, manager of the Plaisance theater in Austin, Ill. The house has been remodeled by the new owner.

Michigan Board of Health Advises Seeing Films

In a Bulletin It Discusses Eye-strain and Tells How to Avoid It—Says It Is Desirable to Attend Shows Occasionally.

Special to Moving Picture World from Midwest News Service.

LANSING, MICH.—"A subdued light in the theater is much less irritating than when the only light visible comes from the screen," says the Michigan State Board of Health in a bulletin designed to encourage attendance at picture shows.

"The progress made in the character of subjects presented in the picture shows today makes it desirable for all enquiring people to attend at least occasionally," it says. "Annoying after-effects on the eyes of many prevent them from enjoying the social diversion and often the educational advantages thus derived. The great majority of those who suffer from eye strain after watching moving pictures can find much, if not complete relief, in perfectly fitted glasses. The picture may not be quite so sharp, but this is more than compensated for by the increased comfort. For those with very sensitive eyes, a colored glass, either amber, yellowish green or amethyst, may be necessary to give complete relief. There have been put on the market recently several varieties of colored glass, each of which has some advantage, so that some suitable color can usually be secured. A subdued light in the theater is much less irritating than when the only light visible comes from the screen. It is also advisable to avoid sitting in a place where it is necessary to look upward, as the additional strain becomes very tiresome, and frequently leaves a headache."

To Build in Grand Haven.

Nathaniel Robinson of Grand Haven, Mich., has had plans drawn for a new moving picture theater. It will be 35x107 feet, hollow tile and cement construction, and absolutely fireproof. The front will be in Doric style built brick and tile. A feature will be the lighting, which will be through a concealed system, and there will be no visible fixtures. All radiators are to be placed in the wall. The seating capacity will be 500.

A moving picture theater has been opened in the Weigland building at Biggsville, Ill. It will operate three nights a week.

Chandlerville, Ill., is without a moving picture show for the first time in four years, Robert Harbison having ceased to operate the Pastime theater

Credit in Kansas City

Local Exchange Men Interested in Arranging a Credit Association and Interchange Bureau—Universal's Credit Man Discusses the Matter—What Such a Bureau Would Accomplish in the Way of Co-operation.

Special to Moving Picture World from Kansas City News Service.

KANSAS CITY, MO.—Considerable interest has been expressed in Kansas City concerning the Minneapolis idea of organizing credit associations among the exchanges. G. B. Howe, credit man for the Universal here, has been thinking—and hoping—on this subject for some time, and he is one who is ready to participate actively in the organization of a credit interchange bureau here. Two or three months ago Mr. Howe outlined the advantages of such a project to a Kansas Citizen who is in touch with the local Association of Credit Men, and the matter was taken up with them; but the Association was not then ready to "take on" the moving picture men as a class. Meanwhile, the project has been simmering in Mr. Howe's brain, where the spark of the Minneapolis action kindled a fire.

"All the exchanges should be glad to get into such a movement, which would be their common advantage," said Mr. Howe. "Other lines of business cooperate beautifully in this respect. The exchanges now have a very agreeable atmosphere of mutual good will and general cooperation. This is the chance to make the good feeling practically effective.

"It is a mistake to presume that the chief purpose of a credit association is to discover and punish the bad debtor. Its purpose, as proved in these other credit organizations, is to discover and reward the good customer, cooperation giving him his dues much more quickly, and with less red tape and time, than individual inquiry. Credits are so much a matter of character and human qualities, that the mere data on a customer's past business is only one feature; what we want is the opinions of other credit men."

HOUSE IN INDEPENDENCE, MO., BURNS.

Lewis Theater Building Destroyed—Partly Covered by Insurance.

INDEPENDENCE, MO.—The building erected by John E. Lewis in 1912 in this city and occupied chiefly by his Lewis theater, was destroyed by fire early in the morning of January 10. This was the largest structure in Independence except the court house, and represented an investment of $50,000. Mr. Lewis at once made arrangements to operate a picture show in the Keystone theater, until recently used by a group of young ladies for a picture enterprise, and will rebuild his theater.

The building was a two-story structure, occupied on the ground floor by the theater, and on the second floor by a dancing club. The theater had a seating capacity of 1,000. Mr. Lewis had in past years occasionally given vaudeville programs, but recently was putting on a very high class picture show, with serials and features. He maintained a large orchestra. An airdome adjoining the building was used in the summer, and this also was destroyed.

Mr. Lewis had $32,500 insurance on the building, and $4,350 on the contents. The moving picture machine, however, was not insured. Mr. Lewis was overcome by smoke while trying to save the machine, being unsuccessful in the attempt.

LOCAL UNIVERSAL CONVENTION

A meeting of road men and department heads of the Universal exchange at Kansas City, was held January 10. The business session, at which "the good of the order" was discussed, and definite suggestions made for improving the service, and for cooperation, took place at the offices, from which adjournment was had to the Pennant cafe and a seven-course dinner. R. C. Cropper, manager of the exchange, presided at both business and festive affairs, and the others present were: G. B. Howe, credit man; H. G. Gill, publicity agent; G. L. Heinrich, booker, and Roadmen C. W. Potter, Herbert Thacher, "Red" Jones, Wm. Parsons and J. E. Dodson. C. A. Nichols, Blue Bird representative, was a guest.

At this meeting Mr. Cropper announced his establishment of a prize contest, the principal sum being $25 which is to go every four weeks to the man whose accounts produce the most business. The race is now very close, and the men are exerting unusual efforts to win. They all thought they were working as hard as they could anyway, but the filip of the bonus does as a matter of fact make them think a little faster when a possibility and a prospect looms up.

Richard Robertson at World Film Helm.

T. Y. Henry, who was manager of the World Film exchange at Kansas City, has been appointed manager of the Salt Lake City office of the General. Richard Robertson, previously a traveler from the Kansas City office of the World Film, and well-known as a film man, has succeeded Mr. Henry.

W. G. Parsons Goes to the "U."

Wm. G. Parsons, formerly booker for the World Film Corporation at Kansas City, is now on the road for the Universal. Another new Universal man on the road is J. Dodson, also an experienced traveler.

Getting Film Matter in Newspapers.

The use of moving picture pages by newspapers is spreading in the Kansas City district like the proverbial prairie fire. The Kansas City Post and the Star are publishing weekly pages, which every week become better. Now the Journal will publish a page, at least once—and it is expected that it will look so good that the practice will become established. This first Journal page is one based on the appreciation of Sarah Bernhardt. H. G. Gill, publicity manager for the Universal exchange at Kansas City, has now 27 newspapers in the district using the service he supplies for their moving picture pages. Some of these papers are published in towns where Universal service is not taken. The reading matter is not exclusively Universal.

"Won't the other exchanges now try to get the privilege of supplying the matter for papers in some of these towns?" was asked.

"Sure, and no objections," said Mr. Gill. "What we want to do is to get the papers started publishing the moving picture material. And if it is good stuff, it doesn't matter so much who furnishes it."

The Glory theater, Thirty-Ninth and Troost, "pulled off" a new one last week in running a full week of Broadway Universal Features. The house had been running these features occasionally, but managed to get a full seven days of them. And they are making good for the owner, Mr. Van Zandt. The regular prices prevail, 10 and 20 cents.

Several private showings of Blue Bird features have been held at Kansas City, in the headquarters ot Twelfth and McGee streets, with much delight to the spectators. The pictures shown were Sarah, the "Divine," and "Undine."

PRAIRIE STATE NEWS LETTER.

Special to Moving Picture World from Midwest News Service.

Managers Guests of Operators at Dinner.

CLINTON, IOWA.—The willingness of managers and employees in Clinton, Ia., to meet each other half-way was assigned as the reason for the prosperity in Clinton moving picture houses by speakers at the annual banquet of the operators and stage employees in that city. Local managers were guests of the operators.

No request made by the Clinton union has been refused. This was due, said George Otterbach of the union, to the fact that the employees made requests for what they actually needed, not demanding much with the expectation of getting a little. Speakers were William E. Hayes, Dan Winget, Otto Korn, Dr. M. Henle, Paul Hart, Glen Lambertson, Henry Pahl, Harry Killean, Ed. Schaller, Charles Chell and Ed. Lorenzen. George Otterbach was toastmaster.

Buys Theater in Sioux City.

Miss Lucille Brothers of Sioux City has purchased the Photorun theater, 4010 Morningside avenue, in that city, from Fred B. Phipps. Her brother Norvin will assist her in operating it. Her father owns the building in which the theater is located.

Operators' Association in Mason City.

Moving picture operators of Mason City, Ia., at a dinner at the home of Frank Cota, formed the North Iowa Operators' Association. The following officers were elected: Charles Armstrong, president; Frank Cota, vice-president; Ray Tourney, secretary and treasurer.

Those present were Frank Cota, Bijou; Charles Armstrong, Regent; Ray Tourney, Star; George Bowling, Casino; Frank Cawley, formerly of the Star, and Roy Starr and Glen Childers.

New Des Moines Theater Company.

The Strand Theater Company of Des Moines, Ia., has filed articles of incorporation in the office of the county recorder at Des Moines. The object of the concern is to furnish public amusements. The capital stock is $10,000. The officers are as follows: A. A. Hamilton, president; F. O. Davis, vice-president, and H. E. Evans, secretary and treasurer. All are of Des Moines.

Iowa Changes.

Construction has begun on the new Model theater at 917 Fourth street in Dubuque, Ia., which will be operated by I. Wigodsky & Co. It will be of glazed terra cotta and tile, and will cost $13,000.

J. E. Boyle, owner of Dreamland theater in Dubuque, has taken a lease on a building at Fifth and Main streets which will be remodeled into a modern photoplay house.

M. D. Baldwin sold the Star theater at Knoxville, Ia., to C. L. Elder of Des Moines.

Otis Palmer, who sold the Princess theater at Victor, Ia., to Fred Safkin and Homer Grier, has purchased the Latona house at Williamsburg.

C. A. Crorey has sold his moving picture theater at Wyoming, Ia.

Gustafson & Frederickson are now owners of the Lyric theater at Albia, Ia.

Ralph E. Kent has taken a three-year lease on the new I. O. O. F. opera house at Tipton, Ia.

H. A. Beanblossom of Grinnell has purchased the Star theater at Newton, Ia., from F. N. Walters.

Edgar Stewart has purchased the moving picture theater at Montour, Ia., from Frederick Young.

S. H. Boeke, Jr., has purchased the interest of Victor Knowles in the Electric theater at Hubbard, Ia.

Ress & Hanner have purchased the Dreamland theater at Oelwein, Ia., from O. C. McLean.

Gus and Louis Thaves succeed their brother Edward in the operation of the moving picture theater at Germania, Ia.

Alpha Barrett has sold his moving picture theater at Mt. Ayr, Ia., to Artie Allen and Bert Smith.

Chris Skowsgaard and Oscar Boose are now managing the Peterson opera house at Elk Horn, Ia.

C. F. Schnee has purchased the Princess theater at Humeston, Ia.

Ellswerth Folz of Ollie, Mont., has purchased the Grand theater at Nashua, Ia., from M. Larson.

IN THE DAKOTAS.

J. J. Schuster of Bryant, S. D., is now manager of the Cozy theater at Wagner, S. D.

Charles Lampland and Joseph Halverson have opened a moving picture theater at Reeder, N. D.

L. T. Darling who sold his moving picture theater at Ambrose, N. D., has purchased the Lyceum theater at Kenmore, N. D.

Frank Strobbelm has purchased the Cozy theater at Wagner, S. D., from F. A. Nance.

INDIANA NEWS LETTER.

Special to Moving Picture World from Indiana Trade News Service.

Pictures Hurt Saloon Business.

JEFFERSONVILLE, IND.—The complaint comes from Jeffersonville, Ind., that high license and moving picture shows are responsible for the falling off in receipts of local saloons. Two saloons in Jeffersonville failed to renew their license when they expired. It is thought that others may drop out when it comes time to renew.

Music at Strand of Indianapolis.

Warde Johnston, general musical director of the Strand theater, Indianapolis, has engaged Albert E. Short of Indianapolis as conductor of the Strand Symphony Orchestra in the theater which is to open Jan. 15.

W. S. Mitchell was named manager of the orchestra. Both Mr. Short and Mr. Mitchell are musicians of more than average ability and experience.

The Strand theater company used a page advertisement in the Sunday papers to announce the opening of the house.

Terre Haute Operators Elect.

The Terre Haute moving picture operators' local named Lodi G. Murray, president, for 1916; Harry Prentice, vice-president; B. Steinhauser, recording secretary; Walter Nisbet, financial secretary; George James, sergeant-at-arms; Ed Pullen, trustee. Roy Dempsey was named business agent.

Princess Gives a Party.

The La Porte Herald and Manager Esch gave a theater party for the children of La Porte at the Princess theater. According to Manager Esch it was an awful mob that gathered in the house, some of the kids sitting two in a seat. The play was "Kingdom of Nosey Land."

Chosen Indiana Briefs.

"Pop" Fuller of the Angela theater, Alexandria, Ind., has signed a contract to run the Paramount pictures.

Managers Coyle and Paff of the Vaudette theater, Michigan City, hereafter will open the theater only on Saturday and Sunday.

The "Romance of Miss Frankfort" crowded the Royal at Frankfort, Ind., for three days and nights. Hundreds of local people were caught on the picture film.

The Orpheum theater, Mitchell, Ind., is giving a free show every Friday afternoon from three to four o'clock for the benefit of those who do not feel able to pay and for those who have never seen a moving picture.

Minneapolis Wants Board of Film Approvers

Some Pictures Ought to Be Boosted—The Censors Do Their Work, But There Is No One to Help Films That Are Valuable.

By Grace L. Polk, Minneapolis Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—The formation of a Board of Approval to boost high class motion picture films is recommended by the recently formed censor board of Minneapolis. Their own work, members of the board explain is necessarily limited to that of a destructive nature. They are to inspect films which might be questionable, and take no notice of those of particular merit. The function of a board of approval such as they suggest, would be, on the other hand, to foster the presentation of the highest class of motion pictures, to keep its patrons informed as to where such films could be seen, and to demonstrate to producers the existence of this class of patrons in sufficient numbers to justify the creation of theaters which shall cater particularly to them. Further efforts of such a board if organized would be directed to obtaining the endorsement of as many organizations as possible for the better class of films.

Censors to Meet in Mayor's Office.

Films that the newly organized board of censors in Minneapolis regard as suspicious are to be shown hereafter in the Mayor's office where a special picture machine will be installed. This municipal picture house was suggested by George Guise, Mayor Nye's secretary, as a means of offsetting the difficulty of getting the new board together when the films are shown at the regular theater. So far, about half a dozen films have been inspected by the board.

OUR COUNTRY FILMS CORP.

An innovation in motion pictures has originated in Minneapolis. It is to be called the "Our Country" series and will show the resources beauties and scenery of the various states of the United States beginning with the original colonial states. The scenarios are being written by Judge Willis Brown, of Salt Lake City, head of the National League for Wholesome Moving Pictures.

The pictures for Minnesota have already been taken. They show the early history of the state, the principal historical events in its development, and the industries and activities and scenery of the state as it is today. The statue of Hiawatha at Minnehaha Falls come to life and will act as a guide for the touring party which is to go through Minnesota.

Officers of the new "Our Country" Films Corporation are Harry A. Sherman, Minneapolis, president; Fred Lincoln, Chicago, vice president, and John Elliott, Minneapolis, secretary-treasurer.

FILLING MANY DARK NIGHTS.

Moving pictures have proven a boon to three Republican clubs in Minneapolis which, prior to their advent, had been threatened with evil days and hard times, if not eventual bankruptcy.

Three of these ward clubs own "wigwams" which were built during the enthusiastic days before non-partisanship became the rule. Now all three are rented for moving picture houses, the clubs have graduated into the landlord class, and have paid for their property, valued at $20,000. They pay taxes, are incorporated and maintain an existence which would probably be absolutely impossible were it not for the movie houses.

WHAT CYRIL MAUDE LEARNED IN MOVING PICTURES.

"The first time I ever saw myself in moving pictures I had a sensation as though I were looking at my own ghost," said Cyril Maude, appearing in Minneapolis recently in "Grumpy," after he had witnessed for the first time his own five-reel production of "The Greater Will."

"I've discovered two things that I will never do again in acting either before the camera or the footlights," continued Mr. Maude. "I'll never again cast my eyes heavenward in that sanctimonious manner. It shows the whites of the eyes too plainly. It's quite ugly.

"The other thing I'll never do is to play for a film without first seeing myself in 'makeup.' Those eyebrows are impossible."

Wild Animal Film Made.

About 200 feet of film showing wild animal life were taken in the Superior reserve by a party sent out by the University of Minnesota in the northern part of the state. They brought back some remarkable pictures, those of the moose, elk and bear being especially notable. The film is now being devoloped and screened in Philadelphia at the expense of James F. Bell, who backed the expedition into the northern woods, and when complete it will be shown to the public in connection with courses in natural history.

Railroad Men's Midnight Show.

Midnight movies for railroad men is the idea of H. A. Nelson, enterprising manager of the princess theater in St. James, Minnesota. St. James is not a metropolis. It claims only 2,000 inhabitants or thereabouts, but it has midnight pictures just the same. Three times a week, Mondays, Tuesdays and Saturdays, the pretty little theater is thrown open and as the magic hour strikes and there files in what is probably a unique audience in the picture world. It is made up of switchmen, yard men, inspectors, roundhouse employes, telegraphers, all sorts of workers, in short that go to make up the night shift in a railroad town.

Gary School System in Films.

Four moving picture exhibits of the operations of the famous Gary, Ind., public schools were given in Minneapolis during the first week in January by the Minneapolis Tribune, invitations being sent to all the teachers in the local schools, the members of the Parents' and Teachers' Association, and others interested in educational affairs.

The films originally formed a part of the Gary exhibit at the San Francisco exposition. The Tribune does not advocate the adoption of the Gary system, but showed the pictures on account of the widespread interest which that system has aroused among educators.

The Northwest News Weekly's success has not all been due to luck, and the weekly, the only one between Chicago and the Western coast, is now well enough established. There's a continual demand for stock, despite the fact that there's no stock on the market, and that's one test. The Northwest News Weekly came into being the first of last April. It was a newspaper man's scheme and newspaper men own it. William A. Lochren, newspaper advertising man, is president, and Charles G. Branham its general manager. Harold P. Brown, staff photographer at one time for The Chicago Tribune, and Fred T. Place, formerly photographer for Chicago papers, and later for the Minneapolis Journal, are director and news editor for the weekly.

But luck plays a big role in the camera man's success. Fred Place says so. Fred Place is camera man, jointly with Harold P. Brown, for the Northwest Weekly. His picture of the Madison football game last November was commented on in many of the trade papers as the best sport picture ever taken with the moving picture camera.

New Orleans Development

Three Notable Undertakings Are Attracting Attention in Crescent City—Expansion of Boehringer Interests—Reopening of the Crescent Theater as a Paramount House—Big New Theater on Baronne Street.

By George M. Cheney, New Orleans Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.—Introduction of the Triangle program into New Orleans; the opening of the Crescent theater, big K. and E. legitimate house, with exclusive Paramount program; and the prospect of the erection of a picture house of metropolitan proportions in Baronne street by the Newman interests, are the big developments of the week in New Orleans.

Boehringer Books Triangle.

Ernst Boehringer, moving picture magnate, with a string of moving picture theaters in Louisiana, has contracted for the Triangle program. He has announced that he will show the first-run in one of the big legitimate houses, to be named later. His contract for the pictures begins shortly after January 15.

The second-run will be shown in the Columbia theater, which he recently added to his string, spending $15,000 in remodeling part of the lower floor of the Audubon building, in Canal street, for the purpose. It is stated Mr. Boehringer will send the pictures out to his Louisiana houses after the city runs.

Mr. Boehringer's interests have centered previously chiefly in Baton Rouge, the state capital; but he has extended more and more through the country districts, gathering strength all the time, till he is ready now to go after the big ones in the Crescent City. He incorporated his interests in December, under the name of the Columbia Amusement Company.

Crescent Opens With Paramount.

Remodeling of the Crescent for the showing of the Paramount program is proceeding with all speed under the direction of W. F. Bossner, exhibition specialist from the Strand theater, New York. Twenty thousand dollars is the amount which will be expended on this work.

It is recalled in connection with the signing up of the Crescent for pictures that the Crescent was very near to being made a picture house more than a year ago. At that time it was freely stated in the row, authoritatively, that it was only through the efforts of one of the big Canal street exhibitors that the plan fell through. At that time he signed up for the Paramount pictures, allegedly at a rate not to his liking, rather than have such grave competition on his hands.

The Baronne Street New House.

Details of the deal for erection of the projected Baronne street house are not available at this time, though it is stated that a definite announcement will be made by February 1, perhaps sooner. As far as could be learned, it is not definitely closed, but is practically so.

Harold Newman, of the wealthy banking family of that name, told the New Orleans representative of the Moving Picture World that both his interests and that of capitalists from elsewhere are involved in the deal on which the erection of this house depends.

The site is in the second block above Canal street, or one block above the Crescent, the K. and E. theater, fronting 167 feet. It is stated that plans for the house are being sketched now. From all that can be learned, the house, if erected, will put New Orleans in the front rank from the moving picture exhibition viewpoint.

H. A. Segrave Opens Exchange.

H. A. Segrave, well known in exchange circles, branched out for himself on January 1 as manager of the Southern Film Service, with offices at 740 Union street. He has Louisiana rights on "Guarding Old Glory," a picture which is going strong in this territory.

Al. Durning Advanced.

Al. Durning, former manager of the Greater New York Film Rental, has been named local general representative of the Mutual, now under the management of S. T. Stephens, formerly Fox manager here. Mr. Durning's appointment comes in the nature of an advancement, since he has taken charge of the Mutual Master Pictures.

Herbert Bozman to Manage Exchange.

Following the resignation of Al. Durning, Herbert Bozman has been named manager of the Greater New York Film Company for New Orleans.

Bart King Now Assistant Manager.

At the Baronne street offices of the General Film Co., Manager H. G. Morrow announced this week the appointment of Bart King as assistant manager. Mr. Morrow and Mr. King for years have been film associates, both of them occupying similar positions at the General Office in Jacksonville, Fla.

F. S. Laubert and J. O. Ford Join General Staff.

F. S. Laubert, formerly with the Mutual and the World offices in this territory, and James O. Ford, formerly with Pathe's local office, are recent additions to the traveling staff of the General Film Co.

F. E. Garner Back.

F. E. Garner, in charge of the General's feature department, has returned from a vacation passed on the Gulf Coast, where he went to recuperate from a severe illness.

J. V. McStea in Monroe.

J. V. McStea, well-known theatrical and film manager of New Orleans, has been engaged as manager of Sugar's theater at Monroe, La.

Gulf States Notes.

State authorities of Louisiana have about agreed that moving picture reels are to be used in every country school in the State. They will be used in explaining many practical farm lessons, care of live stock, seed selection and the like, and will be worked on a bicycling system, certain reels being sent to one school each week.

The Dixie theater, Galveston, Tex., was closed recently for the purpose of installing a new pipe organ and a few other new features. A. Martini, the manager, will soon have one of the best houses in Galveston.

Heywood Bros. and Wakefield, seat manufacturers of Baltimore, Md., have been awarded the contract for furnishing the seats for the new municipal auditorium now in course of construction at Albany, Ga.

NOTICE TO THE TRADE.

The New Orleans representative of the Moving Picture World, George M. Cheney, who may be addressed at 132 North Jefferson Davis Parkway, New Orleans, will be glad to receive any news items from the trade in the Gulf States. Notes about new theaters or projects or about exhibitors or exchange men gladly received.

IN NEBRASKA.

Theater Changes.

CAMBRIDGE, NEB.—Howard Hewett has purchased a moving picture theater at Cambridge, Neb.

Hoffman & Halliday made arrangements to open the Alyce theater in the Storz building at Papillion, Neb.

Wendell Bemis of York has opened the Gem theater at Waco, Neb.

Charles Robinson has moved his moving picture show to the opera house at Hyannis, Neb.

The Crystal theater at Humboldt, Neb., has been opened.

W. L. Mathews of Lexington, Neb., has purchased the moving picture theater at Bertrand, Neb., from Schroeder & Son.

John Wickstrom has leased his moving picture show at Riverton, Neb., to Charles Pugsley.

L. G. Viox has opened a moving picture show in the opera house at Talmage, Neb.

NEW TEXAS FILM MAKING CO.

Masterpiece Photoplay Corporation Organized by F. M. Sanford of Dallas.

By S. A. M. Harrison, Dallas Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

DALLAS, TEX.—A new producing company has been organized and work of construction of the studios in El Paso, Texas, will be started at once. F. M. Sanford, formerly manager of the World Film offices in Dallas, is behind the enterprise. The proposed name of the corporation is the Masterpiece Photoplay Corporation and features of the popular length and class will be the principal output.

Mr. Sanford is well-known in the trade in Texas. Previous to his connection with the World offices he was in business for himself, and made a number of friends over the territory, who predict success for the new venture.

El Paso is admirably suited to the work. Eastern producers have frequently had companies at various times. The climate is dry and cloudiness is almost unknown. The city is situated on the Rio Grande, just across from the Mexican city of Juarez, and the llanos in the vicinity will furnish some fine exteriors.

The Masterpiece company's studios will cover two acres of ground, and 120 people will be employed at the start, additions being made as necessary. Directors, cameramen, etc., have not yet been decided upon.

McHENRY GOES ALONE.

Former Manager of World Dallas Office Will Handle State Rights.

L. C. McHenry, formerly manager of the World Film Dallas exchange, is now in business for himself and will handle state rights features and exclusive service, working entirely on a percentage basis. As a starter, Mr. McHenry has "Cabiria" for the State of Texas and will add at once "Guarding Old Glory," "Manger to Cross" and others.

When the Moving Picture World's representative called on Mr. McHenry at his new quarters at 1919½ Main street, he found that gentleman comfortably seated on the floor folding "Cabiria" one-sheets. Desks and other office paraphernalia were piled up waiting for floor coverings. The entire office force, even the negro porter, were helping the "boss" in his efforts.

Ed Sims, formerly booking clerk for the World films, and F. J. Boyer, advertising man for "Quo Vadis?" are with Mr. McHenry, the former as routing agent, the latter as advertising manager.

MAX GRAF HEADS LOCAL OFFICE.

Max Graf, a film man of some experience, has been appointed manager of the Dallas offices of the World Film, vice L. C. McHenry, resigned. Almost the entire office force has also undergone a change, and a revolution in system will be made.

Mr. Graf, although a young man in years, is experienced in the work. He was at one time connected with the Pathe exchanges on the Pacific coast, traveling for the San Francisco and Salt Lake City offices. More recently he has been South Texas representative for the World corporation.

During the activity of making the change, J. Klein, southwestern manager of the World company, was in Dallas, and expressed extreme optimism over the business outlook in this territory.

Among Local Exhibitors and Exchange Men.

So many changes and removals are taking place in Dallas film circles that those offices where quiet prevails are almost lost sight of in the shuffle, but none complains of bad or even slack business. Among other good barometric registrations shown this correspondent recently by E. J. Moskowitz, Dallas manager for the Kleine-Edison interests, was a most optimistic letter from J. L. Olive, manager of the Sugg theater at Chickasha, Oklahoma, describing a fine opening. Mr. Moskowitz said the force welcomed the additional work entailed by the transference of the Edison program to them.

C. J. Musselman of the Grand and other theaters, Paris, Texas, was in the city recently on a general business visit.

C. C. Ezell, ex-manager of the General Film at Dallas, is now special agent for Texas for the Essanay company.

C. R. Scott has been appointed sales manager for the Paramount company. Mr. Scott resigned as head of the Film Service Association to take this position.

LeRoy Bickell, late of the Paramount Dallas office, will have charge of the Blue Bird films for this territory, it is reported. Mr. Bickell is at present out of town and could not be reached to confirm this.

Among the visitors in town this week were A. V. Wade of the Dreamland, Louisville, Texas; T. E. Burns, Bungalow, Durant, Oklahoma; J. C. Clemmons, Tivoli, Beaumont, Texas; and A. Z. Xydias, manager of a couple of theaters in Houston, Texas, and champion "goat" for the Houston censors.

"As good as gold." "As white as snow." "As fine as silk." Why do other papers in this field invariably try to compare with the standard of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD? There's a reason.

Business Notes in Dallas.

The Western Automatic Music company will move February 1 to 1604 Elm street and will add a line of pianos and players for the general trade.

The R. D. Thrash film company, general supply dealers, will move into more commodious quarters about February 1, which are located in the Dallas opera house building, 1901 Main street.

The Paramount theater at Victoria, Tex., is now under the management of Dayvault Brothers. New equipment is being installed and a change of name is anticipated.

The Seanger Amusement company has added two more houses to their already long list, these being the Hippodromes at Shreveport, La., and Texarkana.

Mr. J. W. Scroggs, the director of the Oklahoma State University, was so well pleased with the original order of Gold King Screens purchased recently from the Gold King Screen company of Altus, Oklahoma that he placed an additional order for ten more screens to be delivered at once.

Great Western Film Co. Opens Office. in St. Louis, Mo.

The Great Western Film Company have opened an office in the Princess theater building, St. Louis, Mo., and will handle new and second features, and are in the market for about 100 features.

Theaters on Olive Street

St. Louis Moving Picture World Man Wanted to Visit Houses Near the Water Tower—Hard Rain Made Section Unattractive to Him, So Turns Down Olive Street and Calls on Theaters and Managers.

By A. H. Giebler, St. Louis Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

ST. LOUIS, MO.—We started out with the determination of visiting the theaters of the North End, up in the water tower neighborhood this time. Then it began to rain, and we decided that there was no earthly use of our going to the water tower when we had more water than we knew what to do with right where we were, and more of it coming down in bucketsfull every minute, and besides, there was a hole in our umbrella, so we concluded to give the exhibitors on Olive and Market streets a rare treat by showing ourself to them.

Visits E. Pohlman at Mutascope.

Our first stop was at the Mutascope, at 3035 Olive street. Edward Pohlman manages the Mutascope, and is at the same time president of the Theater Managers' and Motion Picture Exhibitors' Protective Association of St. Louis. (If we didn't get paid at space rates for these letters, we would call it the Exhibitors' League and be done with it.) In addition to this, Mr. Pohlman is a most affable and interesting person to talk to, with many entertaining reminiscenses gained through years in the picture business.

The Mutascope is a comparatively new house, and was built to replace the old Mutascope a block or so further west, which was torn down several months ago. The new house is strictly modern in every way and is one of the best houses in this end of town. Pohlman is an optimist. He says the picture business is getting better all the time. "The pictures themselves have improved vastly, and the patrons have improved," says Pohlman. "There is not a theater in town that gives anything like good service, but has its regular seven days a week, thirty days a month patrons, that are as regular as clock work. The pictures are a Godsend to the people, and particularly the old people. Many an old man and woman, whose children are married off, would have to sit by the fire and nod if it were not for the pictures to entertain them. Many an old man and woman comes to the theater and lives over again the romances of their youth with the heroes and heroines of the screen."

Pohlman is very eloquent on this subject.

We went up in the operating booth at the Mutascope, and talked to H. S. Martin, who is justly proud of one of the most completely equipped booths in the city. There are two Simplex motor driven machines, that sparkle like silver in their cleanliness, a mercury arc rectifier, and many other things too deep for a lay member to talk about, but Martin says there isn't anything in the way of equipment that he hasn't got, and we believe him. It surely looked like it was all there. The best thing about it, though, was the size. The average booth is about big enough to whip a cat in, but in Martin's place you could stage a big cat fight with two or three dogs thrown in for good measure over in one corner, without interfering with the protection. (Editorial note. We might question that last statement; but we don't know Martin.

The Royal a Neat House.

We paddled through the water to Market street from the Mutascope, and found John Karzin, who owns and operates the Royal, at 1629 Market, and the Casino, just across the street, at 1618. The Royal is a neat little house that has been running for several years, but Karzin doesn't think much of the Royal now, since the Casino has been rebuilt.

The Casino.

The Casino opened January 8th in its new form, and it is a beautiful place. There has been absolutely no single little thing forgotten to make this house complete. It is fireproof throughout, has the latest model exits, a big roomy, steam-heated box office, a wide lobby, a fireproof operating booth as big as a parlor, and as clean, with a system that will automatically close every door, window or aperture in the operating room in case of fire, two Power's 6A machines, spotlight, transformer, and a tall and graceful operator in the person of John Kahl, who knows his machines like a book and is as proud of them as a mother with new twin babies. Mr. Karzin not only exhibited his new house for us, showed us the new fire doors and how they work. He also explained the economy and seat saving of his steam radiators on the wall above the patrons' heads.

Besides owning the Casino and the Royal and the Paradise airdome on 18th and Chestnut, Karzin is president of the McKinley Amusement Company, who operates the Majestic theater on Franklin Avenue.

Olympia as Manager Skouras Runs It.

The Olympia is two blocks east from the Casino, at 1420-22 Market street, and we found Charles Skouras deep in bookkeeping when we climbed the stairs to the second floor balcony, where his office is situated. Mr. Skouras has a very fine house, that accommodates 1,000 persons, a tunefully inclined orchestra, and all the other equipment that goes to make up a modern theater. Mr. Skouras has built up a splendid patronage in the district by studying the people. When he first opened the house he says he was told that the people in the neighborhood would not stand for high class films, that nothing but blood and thunder stuff would please them. He thought he knew better than this, and his experiences have proved him to be correct. He gave his patrons classical features, and they liked them and demanded more. The Olympia is one of the most prosperous theaters on Market Street, and runs a continuous bill all afternoon and evening till 11 p. m.

Takes a Peep at "Stingaree."

After leaving the Olympia, we steered west with the intention of visiting the Comet and the Retina. The Retina was as far as we got, however, and there we had bad luck. John Gentner, the manager, was out. We made ourselves at home just the same, and enjoyed a reel and a half of "Stingaree" with the big audience. The Retina was one of the first houses in St. Louis, and John Gentner might almost be called the Dean of St. Louis exhibitors. He started the Retina with a small seating capacity, has enlarged the house several times, and runs a continuous performance, like most of the houses on Market street. The Retina is just west of the Union Station and is a very popular place for tourists and those passing through the city who have an hour or so between trains.

WM. SELIG IN ST. LOUIS.

Wm. Selig, of the Selig Polyscope Company, was in St. Louis last week looking over the city for locations to be used in a coming production, "The Crisis." Mr. Selig was entertained by Wm. Sievers of the New Grand Central Theater, who took the party of which Colin Campbell, director, and G. Pollack, technician of construction, were members, to all the places in St. Louis made famous in Winston Churchill's novel. Mr. Selig said that a company of players would probably come to St. Louis in March for the filming of scenes in the play, and that the play itself would probably be released in June.

Denver's Dime Shows

Instructive Lesson in Change of Picture Business in Mountain City—Had Been Widely Known as a Jitney Town—Material Change During Past Year—How Public Has Responded to the Increased Rates.

By E. C. Day, Denver Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

DENVER, COLO.—Denver is fast passing into history as once a 5-cent moving picture town. A year ago Denver's 10-cent photoplay house and the remainder of her half hundred theaters were what is known as "Jitneys." Today every one of the leading theaters has a minimum admission price of 10 cents, and 90 per cent of the neighborhood houses have from two to five 10-cent nights each week.

To Charge Dime Counted Absurd.

The evolution is one which at the beginning of 1915 was scorned as an absurdity and an impossibility. One by one, however, the downtown theaters changed their policy, until now the nickel show is the exception rather than the rule.

The Paris theater was the last to desert the "jitney" ranks. Following a protracted run of the Battle Cry of Peace, at prices ranging up to $2, the management announced a minimum admission of 10 cents. Denver now has six first-class motion picture houses that charge from a dime up, according to the nature of the attraction.

Dime Becomes a Recommendation.

Whereas a year ago the film patrons resented the 10-cent admission price, they now refuse to patronize anything else. The experience of the John Thompson theater management is a good illustration of this. The house is located in the fashionable residence district and was only recently opened. Fearing that the displeasure of its patrons might be incurred by an admission price greater than they had been accustomed to, the owner started with a 5-cent program. He had only ordinary success. He advertised a 10-cent night the second week, and was unable to take care of the crowds. The next week he put in two 10-cent nights, and these were the only nights on which his patronage justified his remaining open. When he added a third feature night and the crowds came again he became convinced that the nickel show is dead in Denver, and is now running seven nights a week with three matinees and is getting 10 cents for each admission.

ADDITIONS TO MUTUAL STAFF.

An important change, as we noted some weeks ago, made in the management of the Denver branch of the Mutual, but so quietly was it brought about and so smoothly has the work of the exchange gone on that few not readers of this magazine are aware of it. W. E. Scott, formerly an exhibitor and for the past year booking clerk in the same office, was made manager.

Mr. Scott is one of the most popular exchange men in the Rocky Mountain region. One of the first additions he made to the Denver Mutual staff was Harry Cassidy, a pioneer in the motion picture game. He has been engaged as road man with Colorado and Wyoming as his territory.

Cassidy established one of the first residential picture houses in Denver. He later installed theaters in a half dozen towns in Colorado. Until recently he was manager of the Universal Exchange in Salt Lake. He played ball on the Denver Western League Club for years and is extremely well known and popular.

South Broadway Theater Sold.

The South Broadway theater located in South Denver was sold this week to E. J. Freeman of Mancos, Colo. This is Mr. Freeman's first venture in the theatrical business. Lavin & Sunderland, retiring owners, will devote their time to tilling the soil on a Colorado farm.

E. A. Fehr With General Film.

E. A. Fehr, who as a business agent has the reputation of having bought and sold more theaters than any man in Colorado, became associated with the distributing end of the film game this week when he joined the staff of the General Film Company as road man.

T. Hyneman and H. B. Fish Join General Staff.

Thomas Hyneman and H. Bradley Fish are other new attaches of the General Exchange in this city. Hyneman is on the road while Fish has charge of the bookings on the new serial, "The Strange Case of Mary Page." This picture will be introduced to Denver in a run of one week at the Empress theater.

Muriel Lee Elsasser Goes to Chicago Paper.

Mrs. Elsasser, formerly special Denver correspondent of the Moving Picture World, has accepted a position on the staff of the Chicago Evening Post, where she will have charge of Film News. Her position has been filled by E. C. Day of the Denver Times, who will be glad to receive any news items of the trade in this district.

FIRE SHOWS VALUE OF CODE IN WISCONSIN.

Perfect Booth Protects Watertown Theater from Burning Films.

Special to Moving Picture World from Midwest News Service.

MADISON, WIS.—The value of the Wisconsin State building code to moving picture managers is set forth in a statement by the Wisconsin Industrial Commission:

"A fire in the moving picture booth of the Majestic theater at Watertown, Wis., destroyed six valuable films and smoked up the auditorium so that the theater had to be closed two weeks for redecorating. A film lying on the shelf was ignited by a hot carbon from the machine and burned so fiercely that other films in metal cases were also destroyed.

"The exits fortunately were ample, and the audience filed out without difficulty. The fire probably would have spread throughout the building, the proprietor says, if the booth had not been fireproofed a few days before by order of the Industrial Commission's building inspector. This kept the flames from spreading, but enough smoke escaped to ruin the decorations.

"As rapidly as possible the Industrial Commission is requiring moving picture theaters to comply with regulations of the State building code regarding the proper housing of moving picture machines."

MILWAUKEE'S MERRILL OPENS.

The Merrill theater, at 211 Grand avenue, Milwaukee, has been opened with a Triangle program. Some of the features of this praiseworthy house epitomized are:

Seats 1,500. Color scheme of brown and tan carried out even in box office and ushers' uniforms. Triple colored lighting system, allowing imperceptible lowering of lights through combination of color. No lights or fixtures visible. Has the only echo pipe organ in city. Harry Graham, one of youngest managers in city, is at the helm. Eight-piece orchestra, led by Nicholas Semaschko, will play alone and also accompany organ. Electric sign of same type as Tower of Jewels at Panama Exhibition—each jewel backed by small mirror. Continuous, noon till 11 p. m. Changes Sunday and Thursday. All seats 15 cents. Perfect angle of vision from all parts of house. Two Motiograph projectors and Enterprise double dissolving steriopticon furnished by Wisconsin Theatrical Supply Company of Milwaukee. Cost of theater, $125,000.

Prior to the formal opening, Manager Graham had a dress rehearsal, at which he had as his guests Mayor and Mrs. G. A. Bading, members of the Press Club, the Wisconsin Dramatic Club, the exhibitors of Milwaukee and newspaper men.

Sullivan & Considine Move Out of Salt Lake City

Louis Marcus Takes Over the Empress Theater—Will Be a Film House—New Pipe Organ—A Twenty-five Year Lease.

By H. W. Pickering, Salt Lake Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH.—A deal involving approximately $80,000 was consummated on January 5 by which a company, to be incorporated in the near future, will convert the Empress theater in Salt Lake City, at present occupied by the Wilkes stock company, into a motion picture theater for the exclusive showing of Paramount pictures.

The new company will take charge of the house on February 1 and will immediately begin the showing of pictures. The opening bill has not yet been decided upon, but will probaby be the Lasky production of Geraldine Farrar in "Temptation."

The deal was engineered by Louis Marcus, president of the Notable Feature Film Company, representing Eastern interests, and John W. Considine, representing the Sullivan & Considine interests. The matter has been pending for some time between Mr. Marcus and Roger W. Powers, vice president and attorney for the Empress Theater Company of Salt Lake.

The conversion of the Empress theater to a motion picture theater will mark the launching of one of the most important ventures in the realm of motion pictures in this section. First of all the location of the Empress theater makes the move something of a "pioneering" stunt, as it will be fully two blocks away from the "zone" of moving pictures, its nearest competitor being a small house a block away.

The feature of the deal was the purchase outright of the Sullivan & Considine interests, thus marking the departure of the famous vaudeville concern from Salt Lake after several years of varying fortune. An order for a $10,000 pipe organ has been placed by Mr. Marcus for the Empress, which will probably be renamed. According to Mr. Marcus, the house will be "under the management of one of the most progressive motion picture theater managers in the country," though he declines to divulge the name of the gentleman in question. In view of the large seating capacity of the theater, the prices will not exceed 15 cents.

The interior of the theater is to be redecorated, a free check room and rest rooms installed, the latest thing in screens and artistic stage decorations will be in order, while the orchestra will be invisible, thus doing away with lights which detract from the presentation of the picture.

Under the deal the company takes over the theater for twenty-five years with option of renewal and the prospects are bright for marked prosperity.

IN CALIFORNIA.

Pictorial News Happenings.

E. W. Castle, the Gaumont representative, who has made his headquarters in the Mechanics Bank building for some time, has removed his offices to the fourth floor of the Bulletin building, in order to be in closer touch with the live happenings of the day.

Harry Birsch, of the Selig-Tribune, arrived here a short time ago to take up his duties as cameraman in this field and is making his headquarters at the Hotel Turpin. Mr. Birsch is well known in California, having formerly lived at Fresno, and until recently was with the Industrial Motion Picture Company of Chicago.

The Press Club of San Francisco is to go to Truckee shortly on an outing and representatives of the various pictorial news weeklies will accompany the party.

Left to Right—N. E. Edwards, of Hearst-Vitagraph; Pell Mitchell, Editor of Mutual Weekly, and Lawrence Darmour, of Mutual Weekly Staff.

California Business Pointers.

Frank Witfield, a moving picture operator of San Francisco, has opened a theater at Walnut Grove, Calif.

A. W. G. Nevills has opened a moving picture theater at Eureka, Calif.

Owing to a disastrous fire at Winters, Calif., the Winters theater has been closed for a time.

Leroy Baldwin has leased the Opera House at Orisi, Calif. from N. J. Westman.

A. Roy is conducting a moving picture show one night a week at Cutler, Calif.

W. E. Pelly has taken a lease on the Posey theater at Davis, Calif.

W. Talley has leased the opera house at Gridley, Calif. and will renovate the place throughout.

San Francisco Pointers.

Sam Davis, of Davis Bros., has taken over the Elite theater on Market street, opposite Seventh.

The State Commissioner of Corporations has granted a permit to the Western Theater Company of San Francisco to take over the lease on the American theater on Market street and to issue stock to various persons. Work is progressing rapidly in the remodeling of this house.

A fire occurred this week in the motor room of the Verdi theater on Broadway, but the damage was confined to the room in which the fire originated.

Fred Dahnken, Jr., of the Turner & Dahnken Circuit, is making a trip to the leading cities of Southern California to look over the field with an idea of expanding the operations of this concern.

Manager J. L. Partington of the Imperial theater scored a decided hit this week with a stage setting reminiscent of the Exposition.

Mike Rosenberg, formerly of this city, but more recently of Seattle, was here this week on his way to Washington D. C., to take charge of a campaign on the "Spoilers," having taken over the rights to the District of Columbia, North and South Carolina, Virginia and West Virginia.

Censorship Talk Rampant

San Francisco and Neighboring Cities Have Another Attack of Censorship—Some Temperature, But Trouble Will Probably Not Prove Fatal—Doses of Commonsense from Newspapers—Local Board in San Jose?

By T. A. Church, San Francisco Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.—The return of the "Clansman" to the Savoy on McAllister street, San Francisco, closely following a run of thirty weeks in this city, has stirred up a veritable hornet's nest and the owners of this production have not only lost three performances during the past week but are facing a situation that may mean that future presentations of this and similar films will be prohibited here. An amendment to the present ordinance regulating the showing of moving pictures was drafted and it was a part of the official program that this measure was to be adopted at a meeting of the Board of Supervisors this week. However, there was a slip in the plans and the matter will not come up again for discussion for two weeks.

Despite the assurances of city officials that an amendment to the present ordinance will be made to prevent the presentation of pictures reflecting on any race or tending to incite race hatred it may be asserted with safety that such an ordinance will not be placed into effect, and it is doubtful if it is passed. The daily press is opposing the proposition with unusual vigor with editorials and cartoons and is making a firmer stand than ever before on any measure affecting the moving picture industry.

Trouble in San Jose.

At San Jose, a city near San Francisco, a more threatening situation exists than in the metropolis and the aid of San Francisco exhibitors has been enlisted to help fight the proposed censorship measure. It is planned to enact an ordinance there prohibiting the showing of any film until it has been passed by a board of censorship. E. B. Johnson, of the Turner & Dahnken Circuit, went to the Garden City this week to assist in opposing the measure.

DAILY LUNCHEON SERVED.

The Screen Club of San Francisco has inaugurated several changes of late. A new manager well versed in club work has been secured, the buffet has been moved to the front of the rooms and the experiment is now being tried of serving lunch each day. E. H. Emmick, manager of the local branch of the Picture Playhouse Company, has been elected a director of the club and the membership is steadily increasing.

APEX EXCHANGE IN NEW HANDS.

The Apex Feature Service, located in the Pantages theater building, has been taken over by Morris Levison and Marion H. Kohn, well known in local film circles, and both recently from New York. A large stock of new subjects has been secured and the new owners are going after business in an energetic manner. Arrangements have been made for removing at an early date to 116 Golden Gate avenue, in the heart of Film Row. J. Simmonds, the former owner of the Apex, was represented in the recent transaction by Ernest Bru, who has had charge of the exchange for some time.

NEW EXCHANGE ON FILM ROW.

The New Film Corporation has opened for business at 120 Golden Gate avenue under the management of J. L. Warner, widely known here through his former connection with the local branch of Warner's Features, the Standard Film Co., the All Star theater, and popularly known as the Beau Brummel of the film exchange district. A stock of one hundred feature subjects, ranging in length from three to nine reels, is now in place, as well as a similar number of single reel comedies.

SUPPLY BUSINESS TRANSFERRED

The formal transfer of the old established supply business of George Breck to the recently formed Breck Photoplay Supply Company was made this week. While Mr. Breck retains an interest in the concern its active management is vested in Thomas Maguire, an old time film exchange and theater man of Portland, Ore., and the former owner will confine his attention largely to one or two special lines. It is planned to enlarge the scope of the business materially in the near future.

GEORGE SMITH MANAGING OAKLAND FILM CO.

George Smith, recently connected with the Commercial Film Company of 125 Market street, San Francisco, has severed his connection with that firm and is now successfully managing the Oakland Film Company, whose office is in the Commercial building, Oakland, California.

District Manager Visiting Exchanges.

H. H. Hicks, district manager of the Pacific Coast for the General Film, with headquarters at San Francisco, is making a trip of inspection to the different branches in this territory and will be absent for about five weeks.

Gurney Visits the Coast.

E. O. Gurney, the Universal Exchange accountant, reached San Francisco this week on a trip of inspection covering all the Coast branches, coming by way of Portland, Ore. He will leave shortly for Los Angeles and will be accompanied by Morris L. Markowitz, manager of the Universal exchanges in California and Arizona.

Fox-Burgh Syndicate Opens Office.

F. W. Burgh, of the Fox-Burgh Syndicate, makers of comedy cartoon advertising films, arrived here recently from Chicago, making the trip by automobile. He has opened an office at 100 Golden Gate avenue and already has considerable film in use, with five men visiting the local and nearby theater trade.

Take Pictures to China.

Charles Gifford, of the Angelus Film Company, and a party of nine, sailed from San Francisco the first of the year for China on an educational enterprise. He intends to introduce a system of moving pictures for educational purposes in the interior of China, the films taken on the trip illustrating the industrial, educational and political advancement of the United States. The base of operations will be at Kiu Kiang, 500 miles from Shanghai. He will also take several thousand feet of film showing the Chinese in their native surroundings.

California Theater Changes.

P. P. Bladt has purchased the Opera House at Gustine, Cal., and will make alterations and install a heating system.

The Kenyon theater property at Stockton, Cal., has been sold to E. Fontana and A. Delucchi, who plan to make improvements to cost $15,000.

The Sequoia theater at Eureka, Cal., has been taken over by Eva Ricks and is now being conducted as the Grand.

W. W. Fa Mar has reopened his theater at Cottonwood, Cal., and is showing twice a week, featuring a Golgate service.

A Portland Screen Club

Screen Club with a Purpose Formed by Picture Men in Portland, Oregon—Campaign Against Non-Appealable Ordinance Starts—Exhibitors Will Put Their Case Directly to the People, Unless Appeal Is Granted.

By Abraham Nelson, Portland Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

PORTLAND, ORE.—Six months ago the film men of Portland commenced a campaign against censorship and particularly against non-appealable censorship as it faced them in their business. The newspapers supported them, and with the exception of a few small organized bodies the people of Portland were with them in their fight. But the film men themselves lacked the organization to see the campaign through to a finish, and though auspiciously inaugurated, it faded away through lack of interest when the censor board became less vicious in its attacks upon the exchange men's films.

Another movement against non-appealable censorship has started, this time by a body of film men organized and determined, and the indications are that they will not quit until they have won. The new organization is the Portland Screen Club, a union of exchange men and exhibitors. Its officers are: Edwin James, president; H. C. Stevens, treasurer, and I. Leeser Cohen, secretary, and besides the officers, the directors are A. S. Kirkpatrick, Walter Wessling and Gus Metzger. Able counsel has been employed.

The first move of the organization was to go to the city commissioners in a body with their request for an ordinance providing for a board of appeals. Twenty-one of the Screeners appeared at the City Hall. The daily papers have pledged themselves to support the film men in their fight for the right of appeal.

PORTLAND CENSORSHIP NOTES.

Pathe Manager Resigns from Board of Censors.

The Mayor accepted the resignation of Walter Wessling, Portland manager of the Pathe exchange, as a member of the censor board. Since making the Portland Pathe office a full fledged exchange, Mr. Wessling found it impossible to attend the many meetings of the board that have been called recently.

A Central Viewing Place.

The City Attorney has handed down an opinion that it would be legal for the city to have a central viewing place to which film men could be compelled to bring the reels they desired to have censored and that the owners of the films could be excluded from the room while the censoring process was being carried on.

What Mrs. Colwell Thinks of National Board.

The attitude of the local censor board toward the National Board of Censors is evidenced by the fact that the local board has ordered the bulletins from the National body, which formerly have been sent to Portland, stopped. "We know the National Board now to a 'T'," commented Mrs. Colwell on the board's action.

WORLD FILM NOW IN PORTLAND.

The World Film Corporation has acquired spacious quarters in the building occupied by the Standard Feature Film Company and Fred Locher, who has been with the corporation in the big cities on the coast, came from Seattle to take charge of the new office. The exchange will serve the Williamette Valley, southern Washington, and all of Oregon. W. H. Rankin, of Seattle, will serve as road man in this territory.

AN ERROR CORRECTED.

In our issue of January 1, 1916, we were wrong in a statement that the Rose theater, in Regina, was to show the Lasky "Carmen." Manager D. W. Fisher of the Rose writes to us that he did not book the film, but that it was run in the Rex, in Regina, for four days.

New Theaters and Changes.

Charles Willard, Jr., sold the Opera House, Etna Mills, in northern California, to Isaac B. Sofy.

The Baker theater, Baker, Ore., a new house, is nearing completion and will open Feb. 2 with "The Girl and the Game." L. Pefferle is the owner.

The Star theater, Grants Pass, Ore., has been sold by Paul F. Moore to Ryan and Schank.

E. R. Lawrence has closed the Lyric in Ashland, Ore., and will open a house in Grants Pass.

R. A. Redifer has sold the Star theater, Heppner, Ore., to the former owners, Sparks and Hale, and purchased the Star at Condon.

Among Exhibitors and Exchange Men.

J. D. Jameson, manager for George Kleine in Seattle, was a visitor in Portland, bringing with him a large assortment of Kleine-Edison's recent releases to show to Portland exhibitors.

A. J. Smith, booker at the Mutual, has gone to Seattle to occupy a similar position. R. R. Nave, who was booker in Seattle, has been transferred to Portland.

W. B. Ayers, of the Sunnyside theater, Portland, has purchased a Powers 6B machine from the Service Film Company. This is one of the first machines of this type placed in this territory.

The Peoples theater, Portland, has started a souvenir photo campaign and 150,000 photos of Paramount stars are being distributed to patrons of the house. As a prelude to "Temptation," in which Geraldine Farrar was featured in this house, selections from some of the operas in which she has appeared were played on a large Grafonola with excellent effect.

"With "The Spoilers."

Sam W. Whitehead has left Vancouver for the Crow's Nest country, where, after playing several dates with "The Spoilers," he will proceed to Winnipeg. George L. Broy will remain in Vancouver for about two weeks. Mr. Whitehead reported a re-

What Spokane Exchange Managers Are Doing

World Representative Visits Offices of Pathe, Mutual and Universal—Big Features That Are Attracting Notice.

By S. Clark Patchin, Spokane Correspondent of Moving Picture World.

SPOKANE, WASH.—Local exchange representatives of film companies have put in what they term a successful week and made a good start for the new year.

Some of the Notable Booking That Has Been Consummated During the Last Few Weeks.

In Gold Rooster Office.

F. C. Quinby, district manager of the Pathe Exchanges in Seattle, Spokane, Wash., and Butte, Mont., spent several days in the city while en route to the Butte office, and with P. C. Carroll, manager of the local exchange, announced that the first of the Henry Savage and Al. Wood productions to be released here on the Gold Rooster program would be "Excuse Me," to be shown at the Casino theater, starting Sunday, January 9, and followed by "Madame X," just shown in stock here the week starting January 2, and "The Yellow Ticket," shown here last season by a road company.

"Business has increased so much in the local office," said Mr. Quinby, "that we have been obliged to give Mr. Carroll extra help, and are securing additional room from the adjoining building." Mr. Quinby also arranged for the installation of a vault in the office.

Mr. Carroll further announced that C. W. Logan, manager of the Columbia theater, Malden, Wash., had signed for the full weeks' Pathe program; that W. F. Kienitz of the Libby theater, Libby, Mont., had signed for Pathe productions, and that Robert Clendinning, manager of the Bungalow and Pastime theaters, Colfax, Wash., had transferred the Gold Rooster "Wallingford" and "Neal of the Navy" pictures to the Pastime theater. He also announces that the "Wallingford" and "Exploits of Elaine" are being shown by R. R. Belcher in the Star theater, Lewiston, Idaho, and that the Gold Rooster plays are being released in the Grand theater, Lewiston, operated by A. H. Hilton.

At Mutual Exchange.

A. R. Patton, traveling representative of the Mutual Film Corporation for the Spokane territory, announces that Robert Clendinning is remodeling the Bungalow theater, Colfax, Wash., and will reopen it with the Mutual masterpictures.

With Big "U" People.

W. Potter, new manager of the Universal Film and Supply Company exchange, has just returned from a business trip to Missoula to confer with G. A. Hager, his predecessor here, and stopped in Missoula and intermediate points. While in Missoula he placed the exclusive Universal service with J. R. McDermott, manager of the Alcazar theater. He has also booked the Broadway Features with the American theater, Dayton, Wash.

Recent Feature Hits.

Pictures which drew well at the moving picture theaters were "Idols of Clay," in which Ella Hall appeared, at the Rex; "The House of Tears," featuring Emily Stevens in the leading role, at the Class A; "Checkers," at the Majestic; "The Winged Idol," with Katherine Kaelred, at the Liberty; "The Cheat," featuring Fanny Ward in the title role, at the Clemmer; and "The Valkyrie," at the Lyric. "The Beloved Vagabond," at the Casino; "Jordan Is a Hard Road," with Sarah Truax, Frank Campeau and Dorothy Gish, played to large houses at the Liberty.

C. E. McBroom Is Censor.

Commissioner of Public Affairs C. E. McBroom was appointed as the official censor of the moving picture shows, succeeding E. W. Stutes, January 3. He sent letters to all theaters using motion pictures and film agencies announcing that he stood on the decrees of the National Board of Censors and that cordial relations will continue if the distributors and exhibitors will stick to this guide.

A Ulysses at the Gates.

Frank Saunders, doorkeeper and ticket taker at the Clemmer theater, Spokane, Wash., has traveled all over the world. He sees the multitude come and go daily and the bit of street scenery his post commands. That prospect might become monotonous in some instances, but not to Saunders. He has looked frequently upon about all the world has to offer in variety of garb, custom and activity.

Thomas A Edison

Presents the Ideal Pair

VIOLA DANA

"The Biggest Little Broadway Star" and the finished favorite

EDWARD EARLE

In the 5-act Kleine-Edison Masterplay

"The Innocence of Ruth"

by William Addison Lathrop

A play of rare charm, of wholesome power, of constant change and variety A feature in which the petite winsomeness of the lovable Viola Dana is prettily brought forth, and offering a role which fits Edward Earle with admirable grace. An entertaining and full measure of thrill as well as charm—an unusual feature, indeed. Released Wednesday, January 26th.

Released Through the Kleine-Edison Feature Servic

GEORGE KLEINE

805 East 175th Street, New York and Everywhere

Calendar of Daily Program Releases

Releases for Weeks Ending January 29 and February 5

(For Extended Table of Current Releases See Pages 682, 684, 686.)

General Film Company.

Current Releases

MONDAY, JANUARY 24, 1916.

	Serial No.
BIOGRAPH—An Adventure In the Autumn Woods (Drama) (Biograph Reissue No. 34)	19933
LUBIN—Two News Items (Drama)	19934
LUBIN—The Evangelist (Four parts—Drama) (Unit Program)	U-104
LUBIN—Fooling Uncle (Comedy) (Unit Program)	U-104
SELIG—Tom Martin—A Man (Three parts—Drama)	19928-9-30
SELIG—Selig-Tribune News Pictorial No. 7, 1916. (Topical)	19932
VITAGRAPH—The Cold Feet Getaway (Comedy)	19931

TUESDAY, JANUARY 25, 1916.

ESSANAY—Folly (Two parts—Drama)	19935-6
KALEM—Snoop Hounds (Comedy)	19937
LUBIN—The Dragoman (Two parts—Drama)	19938-9

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 26, 1916.

BIOGRAPH—Stronger Than Woman's Will (Three parts—Drama)	19943-4-5
ESSANAY—The Fable of "Flora and Adolph and a Home Gone Wrong" (Comedy)	19942
KALEM—The Villian Worshippers (No. 10 of the "Stingaree" Series (Two parts—Drama)	19940-1

THURSDAY, JANUARY 27, 1916.

LUBIN—The Embodied Thought (Three parts—Drama)	19946-7-8
VIM—A Special Delivery (Comedy)	19950
SELIG—Selig-Tribune News Pictorial No. 8, 1916. (Topical)	19949

FRIDAY, JANUARY 28, 1916.

KALEM—The Fate of America (No. 14 of the "Ventures of Marguerite" Series (Drama)	19954
KNICKERBOCKER STAR FEATURE—The Heart Breakers (Three parts—Drama)	19951-2-3
VIM—Busted Hearts (Comedy)	19956
VITAGRAPH—Peace At Any Price (Comedy)	19955

SATURDAY, JANUARY 29, 1916.

ESSANAY—Destiny (Three parts—Drama)	19957-8-9
KALEM—Tapped Wires (No. 64 of the "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series) (Drama)	19964
LUBIN—Cured (Comedy)	19960
SELIG—Apple Butter (No. 10 of the "Chronicles of Bloom Center") (Comedy)	19965
VITAGRAPH—The Ruse (Broadway Star Feature—Three parts—Drama)	19961-2-3

General Film Company.

Advance Releases

MONDAY, JANUARY 31, 1916.

BIOGRAPH—When Kings Were the Law (Drama (Biograph—Reissue No. 35).
LUBIN—A Reformation Delayed (Comedy).
SELIG—Diamonds Are Trumps (Three parts—Drama).
SELIG—Selig-Tribune News Pictorial No. 9, 1916. (Topical).
VITAGRAPH—James Bashful Hero (Comedy).

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 1, 1916.

BIOGRAPH—The Chain of Evidence (Two parts—Drama)
ESSANAY—Title Not Yet Announced.
KALEM—Artful Artists (Comedy).

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 2, 1916.

BIOGRAPH—The Smugglers (Three parts—Drama).
ESSANAY—Title Not Yet Announced.
KALEM—The Moth and the Star (No. 11 of the "Stingaree" Series) (Two parts—Drama).

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 3, 1916.

LUBIN—A Modern Paul (Three parts—Drama).
SELIG—Selig-Tribune News Pictorial No. 10, 1916. (Topical).
VIM—A Sticky Affair (Comedy).

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 4, 1916.

KALEM—The Lurking Peril (No. 15 of "The Ventures of Marguerite" Series) (Drama).
KNICKERBOCKER STAR FEATURE—The Crime of Circumstance (Three parts—Drama).
VIM—The Getaway (Comedy).
VITAGRAPH—The Wrong Mr. Wright (Comedy).

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 5, 1916.

ESSANAY—Title Not Yet Announced.
KALEM—The Broken Wire (No. 65 of the "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series) (Drama).
LUBIN—The Election Bet (Comedy).
SELIG—The Desert Calls Its Own (Western—Drama).
VITAGRAPH—Bill Peters' Kid (Broadway Star Feature) (Three parts—Drama).

COMPLETE AND ACCURATE LISTS of Regular Program and Feature Pictures Can Always Be Obtained from the Pages of the Moving Picture World. These are Published Two Weeks in Advance of Release Days to Enable Exhibitors to Arrange Their Coming Programs. The Stories of the Pictures in Most Cases are Published on a Like Schedule. Each Synopsis is Headed by a Cast, the Players' Names Being in Parenthesis. Lay Out Your Entertainment From the Information in the Moving Picture World and You Will Not Go Wrong.

You can have A PERSONALLY PICKED PROGRAM from

THE GREATER VARIETY
RELEASED WEEKLY IN THE
REGULAR SERVICE
by the Biograph, Edison, Essanay, Kalem, Lubin, Selig and Vitagraph studios.

Our experience, dating from the very infancy of the motion-picture industry, enables us to give you the program best suited to the needs of your theatre.

Come to our office at your first opportunity and let us show you how our units are chosen and how our new big plan of closer co-operation means GREATER profits for you.

A Special Department gives its entire attention to a correct list of releases.

BIOGRAPHS ARE DIFFERENT

That's one of the reasons why they are in demand.

There is nothing sensational or overdrawn about them.

The stories are such as appeal to the people who want to be entertained.

They are just real.

And they are produced up to a standard that makes them the more welcome.

You owe it to yourself and your patrons to see them on the screen at your exchange.

BIOGRAPH COMPANY
807 EAST 175TH STREET
NEW YORK, N. Y.

Monday, January 31

When Kings Were The Law

A strong human story carrying an unusual surprise.

Dorothy Bernard Wilfred Lucas Claire McDowell

The Biograph Re-issue

Tuesday, February 1

The Chain of Evidence

A mystery drama replete with strong situations.

Claire McDowell Vola Smith Ivan Christy
Jack Mulhall Jack Drumeir Charles Perley

The Two Reel Biograph

Wednesday, February 2

The Smugglers

An adaptation of the well known play.

Linda Arvidson Robert Drouet Charles H. West
Charles Perley Alfred Paget W. J. Butler

The Three Reel Biograph

For casts and descriptions of all Biograph releases refer to your copy of PROGRAMS

Calendar of Daily Program Releases

Releases for Weeks Ending January 29 and February 5

(For Extended Table of Current Releases See Pages 682, 684, 686.)

Universal Film Mfg. Co.

	Serial No.
SUNDAY, JANUARY 23, 1916.
LAEMMLE—Her Dream Man (Drama)	01137
L-KO—Mr. McIdiot's Assassination (Two parts—Comedy)	01138
REX—No release this day.
MONDAY, JANUARY 24, 1916.
BROADWAY UNIVERSAL FEATURE—A Soul Enslaved (Five parts—Drama)	01141
NESTOR—Her steady Carfare (Comedy)	01142
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL FEATURE—Graft (No. 7 "America Saved From War"—Two Part Drama)	01158
TUESDAY, JANUARY 25, 1916.
GOLD SEAL—Discontent (Two Parts—Psychological—Drama)	01143
IMP—Hired, Tired and Fired (Comedy)	01144
REX—No release this day.
WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 26, 1916.
ANIMATED WEEKLY—Number 203 (Topical)	01147
L-KO—Knocks and Opportunities (Two parts—Comedy)	01146
VICTOR—Across the Line (Drama)	01145
THURSDAY, JANUARY 27, 1916.
BIG-U—No release this day.
LAEMMLE—The Red Lie (Three parts—Mystery Drama)	01148
POWERS—Sammie Johnsin, Hunter (Cartoon—Comedy)	01149
Fishing River Lampreys (Educational)	01149
FRIDAY, JANUARY 28, 1916.
BIG-U—Nan Good for Nothing (Drama)	01151
LAEMMLE—The Inner Soul (Two parts—Society—Drama)	01150
NESTOR—Flivvers in the Dance of the Shivers (Comedy)	01152
SATURDAY, JANUARY 29, 1916.
BISON—A Daughter of Penance (Two parts—Mexican—Drama)	01153
JOKER—Mrs. Green's Mistake (Comedy)	01155
POWERS—Uncle Sam at Work (No. 6 "Saving Wealth and Building Health"—Educational	01154
SUNDAY, JANUARY 30, 1916.
LAEMMLE—No release this day.
L-KO—Cupid at the Polo Game (Comedy)	01157
REX—In His Own Trap (Three parts—Drama)	01156
MONDAY, JANUARY 31, 1916.
NESTOR—When Aunt Matilda Fell (Comedy)	01160
RED FEATHER PHOTO-PLAYS—The Path of Happiness (Five parts—Drama)	01159
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL FEATURE—Graft (No. 8 "Old King Coal") (Two parts—Drama)	01176
TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 1, 1916.
GOLD SEAL—Lord John's Journal (No. 3 "Three Fingered Jenny") (Three parts—Drama)	01161
IMP—No release this day.
REX—In Dreamy Jungle Town (Comedy)	01162
WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 2, 1916.
ANIMATED WEEKLY—Number 204 (Topical)	01165
L-KO—Sea Dogs and Land Rats (Comedy)	01164
VICTOR—Son O' The Stars (Three parts—Western Drama)	01163
THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 3, 1916.
BIG U—No release this day.
LAEMMLE—The Wise Man and the Fool (Two parts—Human Interest—Drama)	01166
POWERS—Building Up the Health of a Nation, (No. 3) (Educational)	01167
—Caged With Polar Bears (Vaudeville Act)	01167
FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 4, 1916.
IMP—The Soul Man (Drama)	01168
NESTOR—Flivvers, in the Still Alarm (Two parts—Comedy)	01170
REX—The Little Thief (Drama)	01169
SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 5, 1916.
BISON—Phantom Island (Two parts—Mystery—Drama)	01171
JOKER—"Wanted, A Piano Tuner" (Comedy)	01173
POWERS—Uncle Sam At Work No. 7 "Uncle Sam's Children (Educational)	01172

Mutual Film Corporation.

	Serial No.
SUNDAY, JANUARY 23, 1916.
BEAUTY—Mischief and a Mirror (Comedy)	04419
GAUMONT—See America First, No. 19 "The Dells of the Wisconsin" (Scenic)	04418
Keeping Up With the Joneses (Cartoon—Comedy)	04418
VOGUE—A Baby Grand (Comedy)	04420
MONDAY, JANUARY 24, 1916.
MUTUAL MASTERPICTURE DE LUXE—As a Woman Sows (Gaumont—Five parts—Drama—No. 59)	04421-2
TUESDAY, JANUARY 25, 1916.
AMERICAN—The Man in the Sombrero (Two parts—Society—Drama)	04421-2
FALSTAFF—Lucky Larry's Lady Love (Comedy)	0423
WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 26, 1916.
BEAUTY—Some Night (Comedy)	04427
THANHOUSER—The Burglar's Picnic (Three parts—School—Drama)	04424-5-6
THURSDAY, JANUARY 27, 1916.
FALSTAFF—Beaten at the Bath (Comedy)	04429
MUTUAL MASTERPICTURE DE LUXE—Lord Loveland Discovers America (American—Five parts—Society—Drama—No. 60)
MUTUAL WEEKLY—Number 56 (Topical)	04430
VOGUE—Bungling Bill's Burglar.
FRIDAY, JANUARY 28, 1916.
AMERICAN—A Sanitarium Scramble (Comedy)	04434
CLIPPER—The Smugglers of Santa Cruz (Three parts—Seacoast—Drama)	04431-2-3
CUB—Around the World (Comedy)	04435
SATURDAY, JANUARY 29, 1916.
MUTUAL MASTERPICTURE DE LUXE—Betrayed (Thanhouser — Five parts — Race — Drama—No. 61)
SUNDAY, JANUARY 30, 1916.
BEAUTY—Walk This Way (Comedy)	04437
GAUMONT—See America First, No. 20 "St. Paul and Minneapolis (Scenic)	04436
GAUMONT—Keeping Up With the Joneses (Cartoon-Comedy)	04436
VOGUE—He Thought He West to War (Comedy)	04438
MONDAY, JANUARY 31, 1916.
MUTUAL MASTERPICTURE DE LUXE—Vengeance Is Mine (Centaur—Five parts—Drama) (No. 62)
TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 1, 1916.
AMERICAN—The Broken Cross (Two parts—Society Drama)	04430-40
FALSTAFF—A Clever Collie's Coming Back (Comedy)	04441
WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 2, 1916.
BEAUTY—Billy Van Deusen's Wedding Eve (Comedy)	04445
THANHOUSER—The Knotted Cord (Three parts—Detective Drama)	04442-3-4
THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 3, 1916.
FALSTAFF—Harry's Happy Honeymoon (Comedy).	04447
MUTUAL MASTERPICTURE DE LUXE—"The Idol of the Stage (Gaumont—Five parts—Drama) (No. 63)
MUTUAL WEEKLY—Number 57 (Topical)	04448
VOGUE—Sammy versus Cupid (Comedy)	04446
FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 4, 1916.
AMERICAN—Mammy's Rose (Southern Drama)	04452
CUB—Title Not Yet Announced	04453
MUSTANG—The Extra Man and the Milk Fed Lion (Three parts—Comedy Drama)	04449-50-1
SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 5, 1916.
MUTUAL MASTERPICTURE DE LUXE—The White Rosette (American—Five parts—Drama) (No. 64)

BIG FOUR
V L
S E FEATURE PLAY

V L

Your Interest Is Ours

JUST like "Bobby", your public, absorbed in its activities, needs to be urged to vary from its round.

For this purpose, with every feature play released through V. L. S. E. Inc., is prepared the best we can obtain of all forms of advertising matter for your use to bring the people into your house. Every member of our sales organization is trained and anxious to help you use it to your best advantage.

This is why V. L. S. E. service is particularly valuable to you—our interest lies not only in renting our films but also in helping you to stimulate the public's interest in each one of our plays.

And it is proven over and over again that they are so vitally interesting that seeing one creates a desire to see another.

V. L. S. E.
Inc.

BIG FOUR
V L
S E
FEATURE PLAY

Stories of the Films

General Film Company

KNICKERBOCKER STAR FEATURES.

A DAUGHTER OF THE WOODS (Three Parts Jan. 14).—Melody Jane, a waif, adopted by David, the blind hermit, goes to sell his baskets to the occupants of John Warham's shooting lodge. The Maestro, who, with his wife, is a guest, hears her sing, and says her voice is like that of the famous prima donna's, Jane Hope. He meets David, hears Jane's history, and finds she is Jane's child. He takes her to his home (although David is heartbroken) and he, himself, trains her voice.

Warham falls in love with her, they become engaged and his mother insists upon utting up her apartment. A year and a half later she makes her debut in "Madam Butterfly" and scores a triumph. She receives a letter from David wishing her every success. It sets Jane thinking.

She resolves to go to David—catches the midnight train and arrives at David's home at dawn. They meet, each confess love and when David, hesitating, asks what the world will do without her glorious voice, she naively suggests using it for singing lullabies.

HOUSES OF MYSTERY (Three Parts—Jan. 21).—The cast: Crile, U. S. Secret Service officer (Paul Gilmore); his fiancee (Peggy Hamilton); leader of smugglers (Philo McCollough); "Gypsy Nell" (Dick Johnson); mother of the leader of smugglers (Adelaide Woods).

Crile, a U. S. Secret Service officer, is ordered to break up a gang of treacherous diamond smugglers on the California coast. His fiancee, Grace Girard, determined to assist him, declaring herself gritty enough to wear an officer's badge. The smugglers are located by Crile, while a murderous assault on Crile is frustrated by witty Grace. The assaulting smuggler is dashed to death from a lofty cliff. Sam, another smuggler, carrying a consignment of diamonds in a fish basket, finding the body of the dead, takes from it the telegram from Secret Service headquarters that had been stolen from Crile.

Grace trails Sam, and by her wits unearths the scheme of the smuggler, while Sam goes to the shack of "Gypsy Nell," a disguised smuggler, who believes Sam a spy. A hard fight follows. Sam made prisoner and the telegram to Crile found, which throws all suspicion upon Sam. Grace and Crile trace Sam to the shack; as Crile frees Sam he is attacked. Out of revenge, Sam turns state's evidence, which is the beginning of the end of the smuggler's reign.

The leader of the gang, in the guise of an artist, holds forth in a mansion, a second house of mystery. The house is attacked. Grace secretly precedes the detectives, posing as a model; she is soon in the grip of the treacherous men. The attack of the detectives is frustrated, and Grace left in a dying condition in the vaults under the mysterious house. The gang makes its escape, Crile prepares for a final encounter. Then follows a terrific fight on the cliffs, hand-to-hand battle with the smugglers, the discovery of dying Grace. The smugglers elude the detectives finally, but witty Grace, meets the boatload in the sea, captures the entire gang and proves her right to a detective's hand, and a star of the revenue service.

LUBIN.

TWO NEWS ITEMS (Jan. 24).—The cast: Katie Fagan (Adda Gleason); Dan Fagan (Jay Morley); John Rockland (L. C. Shumway); Italian woman (Adelaide Bronti); Collector (Wm. L. Spencer). Written by Julian Louis Lamothe. Produced by Edward Sloman.

The managing editor of the Daly Bugle was in his office with the cub reporter. "Hall," he said, "you have no sense of news value. The story of an ordinary laborer may be told in three lines, but news about a very prominent person is worth front page headlines."

The reporter's first item in the paper the following day was: "The body of a white woman found floating in the East River last night was later identified as that of Katie Fagan, 650 Barren alley. No reason was given for the suicide."

And this is the rest of the story, which the reporter failed to write. Katie was a typical product of the tenements. Life held no joy for her, and meant continual work. Her husband, Dan, was a good man of his kind. He worked in the great factory of the millionaire, John Rockland, who also owned the tenement in which they lived. If Dan drank a bit too much on Saturday nights who was to blame him? It made him forget his grim struggle for existence. One night while intoxicated he went to strike Katie, but the news she imparted stayed his hand, for Katie was to become a mother. Dan, repentant, helped her in her efforts to save—for baby's sake.

Then Rockland reduced the wages of the men twenty-five per cent. and a strike resulted. Cheerless days followed for Katie. The collector was always on time for the rent, and finally baby's savings had to go. Dan appealed to Rockland in his beautiful home, but was thrown out for his insolence.

Rent day came again. The Fagans were told that if they didn't pay by five o'clock they would be dispossessed. Dan learned of a janitor's position vacant at the Children's Outing Association and he managed to secure it. But Rockland entered shortly afterward and had him discharged. Dan, desperate, and thinking only of Katie, entered Rockland's home to steal the money that was rightly his. Rockland saw him as he left.

At home Katie was happy at Dan's story of the job and the money already procured until Rockland entered, and had Dan arrested. Katie was wild with grief, and at five o'clock the men came to dispossess her. She told them to take everything, and holding her baby's things tightly to her, she made her way blindly to tue river, a victim of John Rockland.

The same paper also contained the reporter's other bit of real news. It was on the front in double column headlines—John Rockland again contributes to Children's outing Assn. Noted philanthropist gives check for $50,000. Ten thousand children to be made happy by week in country."

THE DRAGOMAN (Two Parts—Jan 25).—The cast: Mohamed (L. C. Shumway); Marjorie Hall (Adda Gleason); Edward Wright (George Routh); Allouma (Violet MacMillan). Written and produced by Edward Sloman.

Mohamed is an Arab guide in Egypt. Edward Wright, a tourist, engages him, and meets Mohamed's sister, Allouma. An attraction springs up between the two, and secret meetings are held. Wright also meets Marjorie Hall, an American girl, with whom Mohamed falls deeply in love after saving her life. Allouma trusts Wright implicity, and one night readily believes his statement that he will marry her on the morrow. She waits in vain for him, but Wright is called away by the death of his father. Days of bliss follow for Mohamed, as Marjorie now engages him as dragomau, but his sun sets when she leaves for America. Then one day, Mohamed learns the dread truth of Wright's duplicity for Allouma. He is about to strike her, but pity enters his heart. Meanwhile in America, Marjorie consents to marry Wright. Allouma dies when her child is born, and Mohamed, frantic in grief, prays to Allah to guide him to the man who has done this wrong.

Five years later, Mohamed is in America searching for Wright. Once he thinks he has found him, and is about to wreak vengeance, when Mohamed realizes his mistake. He is pursued by an excited mob, but a charming little four-year-old saves him. Mohamed kisses her tenderly, as she is just the size of his Allouma's little one would have been. At last he finds Wright. The latter is giving an Egyptian Masked Ball at his home. Mohamed reads the announcement. He gains entrance to the house by wearing his mask and his dragoman costume. Meeting Marjorie, he discloses his identity to her, but remembers his vengeance. Twelve o'clock comes, Mohamed is seated alone in the anteroom. Wright enters and tells him it is time to unmask. Mohamed answers that he is going to unmask him before the guests, and then disclose his identity. He tells Wright the sad story of Allouma, and starts to throttle him. But at the door stands a little child. She places a tiny hand on Mohamed's, and lokoing up trustingly, says, "I didn't let the men hurt you, now don't hurt my daddy!" Mohamed releases his hold, and gazes at the little girl who had saved him. Marjorie enters the room to see what is keeping them. Mohamed bows and says, "I have just been paying my respects to your husband before leaving for Egypt tomorrow."

THE EMBODIED THOUGHT (Three Parts—Jan. 27).—The cast: David Goodman (Edward Sloman); Ruth, his sister (Hazel Neece); Mrs. Goodman (Adelaide Bronti); Max Rosenthal (Melvin Mayo); Jimmy Rolfe (L. C. Shumway); Isaac Cohen (George Routh). Written by Julian Louis Lamothe. Produced by Edward Sloman.

The basis of this story is the following extract from "The Law of Psychic Phenomena" by Thomas Jay Hudson.

"A phantom, or ghost, is the embodiment of an idea or thought.

"The power to create phantasms resides and is inherent in the subjective mind, or personality, of man.

"The power becomes greater as the body approaches nearer to the condition of death.

"All phantasms of the dead are of those who have died under circumstances of great mental stress or emotion."

David Goodman and Max Rosenthal are partners in the cloak and suit business. Rosenthal is the typical Jewish merchant. Goodman is more idealistic. He has never married. The partners secure a loan from Cohen, a Jewish banker, and enlarge their business. Goodman meets Nanon Laval, an adventuress, and forgets everything else. Nanon is hired as a model, and Rosenthal often censures Goodman for neglect of business. To save Goodman from himself, Rosenthal discharges Nanon. Goodman raises a scene when he hears of it. He calls upon Nanon, and she shows him a pathetic letter from his mother, pleading that her son be given up. Goodman, blind to everything save the wiles of Nanon, angrily berates his mother for her interference. He learns that Rosenthal intends to restrain his reckless expenditures by withdrawing all their money from the bank. Goodman circumvents this plan by getting the money himself, and invests it in bonds, which he hides in his library. He gleefully tells Nanon how he has tricked the meddlers, and she learns that the method of opening the secret panel is written on a card in his pocket.

Rosenthal discovers what Goodman has done, and is frantic, as the loss of the money means ruin. Goodman scoffs and tells him that he has merely beaten him to it. Goodman goes to call on Nanon, and is fatally injured when the elevator in her apartment house falls several stories. Nanon has him brought to her apartment to await the arrival of the ambulance. Her lover, Jimmy Rolfe, is present, and after Goodman has seemingly died in her arms, she leaves him on the couch, and tells Rolfe excitedly about the bonds. Goodman awakens to consciousness, and learns the base nature of the creature he loved. His one idea is to right the wrong he has done his loved ones. Nanon must not get possession of the card of instructions. He manages to hide it. When Nanon and Rolfe come to search him, he is dead, and they do not find the card.

The last thought of Goodman's lives, and as a phantasm tries ineffectually to communicate to Rosenthal, Ruth and Mrs. Goodman the hiding place of the bonds, which means so much to them.

By accident, Rolfe and Nanon discover the card under the couch, and plan to get the bonds by entering the library that night. Ruth has fallen asleep at the bedside of her mother. The phantasm leads her in her sleep to the library. Nanon is at the panel, removing the bonds. Ruth awakes, a struggle ensues, in which she is finally victorious.

CURED (Jan. 29).—The cast: Dr. Curtiss (Arthur Matthews); Wilkens (Billie Reeves); Madge Carlton (Carrie Reynolds); Bob Carlton (Jack Delson). Written by Mark Swan. Produced by Earl Metcalfe.

Curtiss is a physician with the usual cranky patients. Wilkens, a young lawyer, calls on him to bring money he has collected for him (most of which he retains as his fee). Wilkens sees a photograph in Curtiss' office of a girl and falls in love with it; but Curtiss laughs at him and won't tell who the girl is. Wilkens then sees Curtiss cure a hypohondriac who imagines he is ill by giving him a powder of powdered sugar and a glass of water. He says it is a cinch to be a doctor. Curtiss, being at this moment called out, tells Wilkens if it is such a cinch, to stay and run his office while he is out. Wilkens laughingly accepts and puts in his time making love to the photograph of Madge.

Madge has a pain in her ankle and passing Curitss' office decides to stop in. When Wilkens sees her he is delighted to discover the original of the photograph. When Madge learns Curtiss is not in she is about to leave, but in order to detain her, Wilkens tells her he is in charge of the office and lies and says he is a doctor. His bluff at being a doctor is amusing, but when he prescribes absent treatment she leaves in a huff. Outside she meets Curtiss and her brother and learns Wilkens is a pretender. She is angry and plans a practical joke in revenge with her brother Bob.

The latter goes in and sees Wilkens who gives him several powders of the sugar. Bob, thereupon, pretends to die. Curtiss enters and changes the sugar powders to a box marked poison and convinces Wilkens that he has killed Bob. Then Madge enters pretending illness and as Wilkens gave her a powder for her ankle, he thinks that he has also killed her. Presently Madge discovers her "dead" brother and reproaches Wilkens bitterly. Wilkens is heartbroken and picks up a bottle marked poison and drinks it. Curtiss, Madge and Bob are now horrified as it seems their "joke" will cause Wilkens' death. It is discovered, however, that the bottle contained only distilled water and the picture ends with Wilkens being introduced to Madge, who is having her ankle bandaged, and the audience knows that some day—Oh! well, why mention it.

A REFORMATION DELAYED (Jan. 31).—The cast: Peter Norwood (Wm. J. Spencer); Margaret, his daughter (Francelia Binnington); Jim Hartley, the crook (Ronald Bradbury); Dollie Dexter (Helen Wolcott); Written by Julian Louis Lamothe and Melvin Mayo. Produced by Melvin Mayo.

Peter Norwood, a wealthy old gentleman, is forgetful and careless. His daughter, Margaret, often reproaches him, but to no avail. Margaret conducts a refuge in the slums, and is greatly beloved by the poor people, who know her only as "Our Lady Margaret." One day Margaret is saved from the advances of several ruffians by Jim Hartley. Margaret is greatly attracted to him, but he is not of her station, so she allows the friendship to grow without divulging her real identity. Jim is really a crook, and when his accomplice, Dollie, who loves him, sees him with Margaret, she is furious.

Jim tells her he is going to marry Margaret. Dollie is desperate. She informs Margaret of Jim's true character, and Margaret sadly tells them they must part. Dollie leads Jim away, and finally makes him realize that Margaret is not of his class. They leave the city. Margaret is heartbroken.

Two years pass. Margaret has never forgotten Jim. She does not know that he and Dollie have prospered, and have returned as Mr. and Mrs. Brownley-Smythe, in order to continue their operations in high society. Jim meets Norwood at the club, is of service to him, and Norwood tenders him an invitation to the ball. Jim is pleased, feeling sure that he can make a good haul. At the ball, Jim and Dollie are not recognized by Margaret. Norwood has left his safe unlocked and Jim and Dollie, seeking privacy in the library, notice this. They are seen with their masks off by Margaret, and she is much affected at the thought that Jim is still a thief.

Jim and Dollie rifle the safe; the butler catches a glimpse of them. He immediately notifies Norwood of the robbery. Margaret, greatly alarmed at the turn of events, slips back of the curtains separating the rooms. Jim consents to a search, but nudges Dollie to take the jewels. A hand from behind the curtain gets them instead. Just as the butler is about to search Jim, Margaret steps out with jewel box in hand, and says, "It was just a little trick of mine, you careless old dad, to show how easily your safe might be robbed!" Jim and Dollie stare at her in amazement, and realize how they have been saved.

A MODERN PAUL (Three Parts—Feb. 3).—The cast: Paul (Melvin Mayo); the woman (Helen Wolcott); the murderer (George Routh); the thief (Alan Forrest); the politician (Ben Hopkins); the victim (Jay Morley); the woman's friend (Dot Dufee). Written by Julian Louis Lamothe. Produced by Melvin Mayo.

In modern times there lives a prototype of the disciple Paul. He goes to the mountain fastness and preaches to the rugged people there. One day he comes to a lone hut, wherein is one who, dying, curses all mankind. Paul is so sympathetic that the man, Joe, tells his story.

In a tough dance hall he met the woman, and fell in love with her. He tried to lead her from her old life, but his efforts were fruitless. She was too taken up with two others—the thief and the murderer. But when she discovered how base the murderer really was, she listened to Joe's pleadings and went away with him.

They were married and a baby blessed the union. The woman soon tired of her monotonous existence. It was an easy matter for the murderer to win her back to the dance hall. Joe followed and demanded her return, but she scoffed at him. And during the darkness of a "twilight dance," the murderer stabbed him. For weeks he lingered in the hospital and when he came out, it was to discover that the woman had left with their child. So then he came to the mountains and finally struck it rich.

Paul brings the message of Christ to the dying man and soon has him repentant. He gives Paul the money he has accumulated and commissions him to find his wife and child. The good man turns to the city. He enters the dance hall and starts to preach. The revelers greet him with jeers and throw missles at him. Paul sinks to the floor, unconscious. During that time the woman steals the money, meaning to keep it for her child, the love of whom is her one good trait. At home the woman gazes at the stolen money remorsefully, but is afraid to return it. The thief oversees this and immediately informs the murderer. When the woman arrives at the dance hall, they demand their share, but she refuses. The murderer vows to get the money, even if he has to kill.

When the woman reaches home she discovers that her child has met with an accident and is badly injured. She immediately thinks of Paul and brings him to the child. He exerts his healing power, and soon the child is asleep. The woman repents and returns the money, which Paul promises to keep a little longer. He seats himself in the next room with the money in his hand. The thief and the murderer enter. The murderer lifts his knife; Paul turns and faces them. The woman rushes in to see what is the matter. And then Paul tells them of the Christ; how he came into the world to save mankind; how he saved a woman from being stoned; and of how the thief on the cross won forgiveness. Paul shows them the error of their lives.

THE ELECTION BET (Feb. 5).—The cast: Wilkens (Billie Reeves); Walker, his friend (James Cassady); Mr. Slim, the referee (Arthur Matthews); O'Hara (Pete Lang); Annette (Carrie Reynolds). Written by Mark Swan. Produced by Earl Metcalfe.

Wilken is so sure that Jones will win the election that he makes an election bet with his friend, Walker. The loser is to roll a walnut from the Boulevard to City Hall. It must not be broken, nor touched with the hands, nor must the loser speak or write to anyone until the bet is paid, and the agreement must be kept secret. Forfeiture means the loss of $5,000.

Wilkens starts to roll the walnut and his queer antics lead O'Hara, a policeman, to think he is crazy. A newsboy picks up the walnut and is going to eat it and Wilkens has to buy it back. A large fat woman is about to step on it and the only way in which Wilkens can protect it, is to put his feet beside it and she walks on his feet. He talks to her on his fingers and she thinks he is deaf and dumb.

Annette, Wilkens' sweetheart, knows nothing of the wager, but Wilkens was so sure he would win, he told her to come to the City Hall and see something funny; so with her chum, Grace, she goes along the street. When Annette finds Wilkens, he cannot speak or write to her according to the terms of the wager. Therefore, she tells O'Hara her lover is crazy and when they look for him they find him under a truck which is standing over the walnut.

O'Hara takes charge of Wilkens. Stout is going to quit, but Wilkens pays him a large sum of money to stay by the walnut. Stout gets a chair, an oil stove, and umbrella and has lunch served on a folding table and sticks by the walnut all night. Next morning Wilkens manages to escape from the hospital where he has been taken, sees a street sweeper in his white overalls, bribes the man to give him his overalls and brush and sweeps the walnut to within a block of City Hall where it is run over by a street car and Wilkens loses his bet.

BIOGRAPH.

THE MISER'S HEART (Biograph Reissue—Jan 17). An old miser living in an east side tenement forms quite an attachment for a little child in the same house. The old miser is reputed to keep a large amount of money in a safe in his room, and a couple of crooks decide to take a chance to get it. They enter his room by way of the fire escape, and tying him to a chair, try to force him to tell the combination of his safe.

The little child happens in the room, and to further compel him, they suspend the child out of the window on a rope, threatening to let her drop if he does not give the combination. A tramp sees the child hanging from the window and hastens to the police station for aid. On his way he passes a baker boy from whom he stole a bag of rolls, and the boy, following, has him locked up without giving him a chance to explain the object of his errand. The captain, however, consents to hear the tramp out, and sends a quartette of incredulous policemen, who receive a shock when they find the truth of the tramp's story. The child is saved and the crooks taken into custody.

THE ANGEL OF PIETY FLAT (Two Parts—Jan. 18).—Jack Raymond, a shiftless Easterner, forms a mining partnership with Putney Chadwick and later robs him. With the stolen gold he gambles in a saloon, is caught cheating at cards and receives a mortal wound in the fracas that follows. Chadwick discovers among his effects a letter signed "Your affectionate sister," which states that the writer will shortly arrive in Piety Flat.

When the girl arrives, Chadwick and the boys, whom he has posted, inform her that Jack has gone prospecting and will soon be back. Chadwick takes her to his cabin, which he represents as Jack's, and the boys bring gifts of provisions which they declare they borrowed from Jack. Dorothy becomes known as the Angel of Piety Flat. Riding out in the hills, she takes a snapshot of a little Indian boy, who later disappears. The Indians, believing that the boy has been spirited away by the magic of the black box, ride after the girl.

Chadwick, who is with her, makes her throw the camera away, and the Indians riddle it with bullets. Captured, the girl is condemned to die at dawn unless the child is found. Chadwick, going to get help, is forced to shoot his horse when the animal breaks a leg, and while staggering across the desert he finds the Indian boy, who has wandered away and got lost. He returns in the nick of time to save the girl. Later, when he learns that she loves him, he breaks the news of her brother's death, but explains the event so as to make Jack a hero instead of the cur he really was.

A LIFE CHASE (Three Parts—Jan. 19).—Bouval, the banker, cancels a theater engagement with his wife and their good friend, Vaubert, because of business. Vaubert accompanies Madame Bouval to the matinee. As they leave the house they meet Bertrand Alvimar, who comes to keep a business appointment with Bouval. A beggar, Meloit by name, asks alms and is refused. Returning from the theater, Vaubert and his companion find Bouval murdered in his study. In his dead hand is clutched a torn sheet of paper, on which the banker had striven unsuccessfully to write the name of his murderer.

Vaubert's suspicions leap to Alvimar and the latter is arrested. After questioning him closely the prefect of police orders Alvimar's release, and to the indignant Vaubert explains: "There is not sufficient evidence to hold him for murder." Vaubert learns that Alvimar frequents a gambling-house, follows him there, and scrapes acquaintance with him. Later he introduces Alvimar to Madame Bouval, whom he has persuaded to help him in fastening guilt upon the murderer. The banker's widow assumes the name of Mme. Corbini and pretends to be Vaubert's cousin. At Vaubert's bidding she plies her arts to make Alvimar fall in love with her, and succeeds. But neither has reckoned with the possibility that Amy Bouval may fall in love with her victim. When this happens, Vaubert is enraged. He is pondering what to do when word comes from the police that the murderer has been caught and has confessed the crime.

Incredulous, Vaubert goes to headquarters and is told that the prisoner is Meloit, the beggar, who, arrested for drunkenness, has been put through the third degree until he confessed the crime. But on becoming sober the beggar recants his confession. Vaubert, triumphant, goes to Amy's hotel and finds her in Alvimar's arms. Drawing her aside, he reminds her that Alvimar does not know her real name and demands that she reveal her identity. On hearing that the woman he loves is Madame Bouval, Alvimar turns pale. Vaubert confronts him suddenly with the dagger-like paper cutter that drew Bouval's lifeblood, and Alvimar, confessing the crime, kills himself with the knife.

AN ADVENTURE IN THE AUTUMN WOODS (Biograph Reissue Jan. 27).—The girl lives in the forest with her father and grandfather. The latter goes to the trading post and is returning home with a sack of gold when he is attacked by two robbers. He trails them to their camp, recovers the gold while they sleep, and reaches home exhausted. His son goes for a doctor, taking the gold as a precaution. The thieves reach the cabin, recognize the old man, who is asleep, and learn from the innocent girl that her father has the gold. They plot to rob him on his return. The girl overhears them and, making her escape, summons her lover, who arrives with aid in time to foil the thieves.

STRONGER THAN WOMAN'S WILL (Three Parts—Jan. 26).—The manufacturer's daughter refuses to marry the superintendent and elopes with a foreign count, who does not keep his promise to wed. Her father, summoned by her, pays the adventurer to give the girl his name. Thieves kill the count for his money. The countess returns home with her child and, after her father's death, oppresses the factory workmen to get more money for the future prince. The workmen strike, but she will not yield to their demands. Her hand is forced by the superintendent, who has found her letter to her father confessing her shame. He declares that he will publish the letter if she does not yield and, rather than lose her good name, she grants the workmen's demands.

WHEN KINGS WERE THE LAW (Biograph Reissue—Jan. 31).—Over the Kingdom of Romanda there reigned a King who was greatly influenced by his favorite, whom he devotedly loved. He presents her with a necklace of fabulous worth and enjoins that she never part with it, which command she swears by the stars to keep. About this time an impecunious cousin of the King calls to beg the loan of money, which is refused. The favorite promises to intercede for him. The cardinal and the favorite are bitter enemies, because of her thwarting many of his pet schemes, and he plans a revenge by inciting jealousy in the King.

The scheme he devises is to have the necklace missing and found in the cousin's pocket. The plan succeeds so well that the King condemns the seemingly guilty pair to an air-tight chamber, where they would have suffocated to death had not the lady-in-waiting, who helped in the plot, become horror-stricken and confessed. The cardinal himself was plunged into the depths of remorse, as he did not think the scheme would drive the impetuous King to such extremes; he merely wished to have the favorite exiled from the Court.

SELIG.

SELIG-TRIBUNE NO. 1 (Jan. 3).

Savannah, Ga.—Georgia women from motives of economy and freedom of movement have adopted overalls for house work.

Memphis, Tenn.—The new $8,000,000 bridge which it is expected will make Memphis the greatest southern railroad gateway east and west, is nearing completion.

Boston, Mass.—Harvard freshmen are rapidly getting into form for their annual hockey games.

Washington, D. C.—Secretary Daniels says battleships have reached the limit in size. Larger vessels could not pass through the Panama Canal. The California represents the ultimate in war vessels.

Vilkomir, Russia.—The German reserve force dig themselves in for the bitter winter in Russia.

Chicago, Ill.—Geane Beaumont, Clara Pause and Elsie Smoler swimming devotees, take their usual plunge in Lake Michigan Christmas morning; temperature 26 degrees air, 35 degrees water.

New York, N. Y.—Colonel E. M. House, the President's confidential adviser, leaves on the S. S. Rotterdam for Europe to acquaint our diplomats with the intimate views of the President on pending international affairs.

Captain Boy-Ed, formerly military attache at the German Embassy and recalled at the request of President Wilson, and Brand Whitlock, U. S. Minister to Belgium, will leave on the same ship.

Washington, D. C.—The Pages of the U. S. Senate leave the Capitol to take Christmas dinner with Vice-President Thomas R. Marshall.

Aetna, Ind.—Owing to the widespread disturbances in plants manufacturing war munitions, some of the companies do their work with a small army of guards.

Readville, Mass.—U. S. Army experts test new war plane, said to be the finest constructed and best designed aero in the world and the first to carry two gun turrets.

Revere Beach, Mass.—The roller coaster here wrecked by a gale, falls a vast mass of timber and iron, crushing two houses and injuring three people.

Selig-Tribune Feature Picture.—Kewpie, the baby elephant at the Selig Zoo, gets his breakfast.

Boston, Mass.—The holiday spirit invades the navy when the Blue Jackets on the battleship Nebraska acts as hosts to hundreds of poor children.

SELIG-TRIBUNE NO. 2 (Jan. 6).

Gibson City, Ill.—Seventeen thousand geese pose obligingly for the Selig-Tribune on the largest goose farm on earth.

Philadelphia, Pa.—The annual Mummers' parade presents this year a most unusual array of fantastic gorgeousness.

Seattle, Wash.—The little cabins in the Cascade Mountains near here, the homes of present day pioneers, are buried under a twenty-five foot fall of snow, the heaviest in years.

El Paso, Tex.—The "goodfellow" spirit causes a scramble for coins among Mexican refugee children, who, owing to the unsettled conditions in Mexico, have become temporarily residents of El Paso.

Washington, D. C.—By invitation of President Wilson, fifteen hundred delegates of the South and Central American republics attend the Pan-American Scientific congress in Memorial Continental Hall.

Seattle, Wash.—The S. S. Curacao without flag or register wrecked two years ago, and for the past eighteen months resting at the bottom of the ocean, reaches this port, and is promptly dubbed the "ghost ship."

El Paso, Tex.—General Victoriano Huerta, the deposed president of Mexico, who is seriously ill and under guard at his wife's house here.

Boston, Mass.—This city boasts of a hospital for canine aristocracy for surgical, medical and dental treatment, known as the Angell Memorial Hospital for Animals.

Juarez, Mexico.—General Obregon, Carranza's commander-in-chief, holds consultation with H. N. Gray, chief of Mexican secret service, and General P. E. Calles, regarding the taking over of Juarez from the Villistas.

Washington, D. C.—Frank Buchanan, member House of Representatives from Illinois, is indicted by federal grand jury charged with conspiring to foment strikes in American munition factories.

Selig-Tribune Feature Picture.—Cy de Vry, curator of the Chicago Zoo, tries forceful feeding on Anna, python, who is sulking and refuses to eat.

South Chicago, Ill.—An explosion at the plant of a linseed oil company causes a fire resulting in a $2,000,000 loss.

TOM MARTIN—A MAN (Multiple Reel—Jan. 24).—The cast: Tom Martin (Guy Oliver); Mary Brandon (Vivian Reed); Mrs. Brandon (Lillian Hayward); the Doctor (Al W. Filson); Bennet Gordon (Fred Hearne). George Nicholls, director. Written by Wallace C. Clifton.

Tom Martin, the village blacksmith, is in love with Mary Brandon. Mrs. Brandon bakes a pie for Tom and Mary takes it to him just as he is sitting down to his evening meal. There is a vacant chair opposite Tom's at the table, and he tells Mary that he always lays another plate for that chair because it was the one occupied by his beloved mother before she died. Bennet Gordon is engaged to teach the village school and he is accepted as a boarder by Mrs. Brandon, Mary's mother.

In the meantime, Tom and Mary have plighted their troth. The unsophisticated country girl, however, is fascinated by the ways of the city man who comes to the village as a school teacher. Gordon tells Mary that he loves flowers and Mary plucks some of her choicest blooms and gives them to the young man. Tom Martin notices Gordon wearing the flowers in his coat lapel, and becomes jealous.

Thomas Barker, the village storekeeper, owns a vicious dog and he has been repeatedly warned by Tom to secure the animal. The dog ultimately breaks loose and as it dashes down the street toward the school house is spied by Tom Martin. Believing that the maddened beast will bite some of the children, Tom rushes to the school house and there meets the infuriated animal and chokes him to death. He does not perform this courageous deed, however, until the fastidious Gordon has shown his cowardice by rushing into the school house and barricading the door. Then it is that Mary realizes the true worth of a man and knows that Gordon is a coward at heart, while Tom Martin is—a man.

Tom, in his desperate conflict with the maddened dog, is bitten. A physician informs Tom that his life is in danger. Mary, in the meantime, goes home and writes Tom a note saying that she will call upon him at five o'clock that evening. Tom feels strange sensations resulting from his wounds. Knowing that he is to be seized with madness as a result of the dog bite, he rushes into his smithy and there fashioning manacles from a red hot iron, he chains himself to his anvil, where he is found dead by Mary and others.

APPLE BUTTER ("The Chronicles of Bloom Center" Series—Jan 29).—The cast: Constable Plum (Wm. Hutchison); Ira Pash (John Lancaster); Johnny West (Sidney Smith); Phil Pickle (Lee Morris); Chubby Green (Ralph McComas); Mrs. Plum (Lyllian Brown Leighton); Selina Tubbs (Martha Mattox). Written by Maibelle Heikes Justice. Produced by Sidney Smith.

There is ill feeling between Mrs. Lucinda West and Mrs. Plum and Selina Tubbs over the apple butter monopoly at the Bloom Center fair. The Ladies' Art Embroidery Club, of which Mrs. Plum and Miss Tubbs are members, always influence the judges to give them the premium. Johnny West, disgruntled because his mother loses the apple butter award, tells Deacon Moon all about a shell game. The proprietor of the shell game and Constable Plum have reached a mutual understanding, but upon the urgency of Moon and his cohorts, Plum raids the swindle.

In order to get even with Plum, the shell game proprietor arranges with a pal to work the lost breast-pin game on the constable. They buy a pin at the general store and sell it to Plum for a goodly sum. Plum believing that he has been stung, "wishes" the pin on Johnny West, who with his mother, repairs to the Bloom Center jewelry store, followed by the Bloom Centerities. There the jeweler pronounces the breast-pin genuine and worth hundreds of dollars. With their suddenly acquired wealth Johnny West and his mother are more highly regarded.

ESSANAY.

FOLLY (Two parts; Jan. 25).—The cast: Robert Morse, a widower (Richardson Cotton); John Gresham, a financier from the West (Darwin Karr); Folly, Morse's adopted daughter, (Ann Kirk); Anthony Rand, a society idler (Randall McAlister).

Robert Morse, a widower, one night finds a baby girl on his doorstep. He decides to raise her, naming her Folly. Twenty years later finds Morse a retired capitalist and Folly a beautiful girl, surrounded in luxury. Anthony Rand, a society idler, wishes to marry her. She prefers John Gresham, a wealthy Westerner, and marries him. After their first wedded year Folly entertains lavishly.

At a New Year's eve party Anthony Rand induces her to dance on a table in a cafe. Her husband disapproves and leaves the place in a rage. Rand now urges Folly to obtain a divorce. He invites her and Morse to his cabin in the woods for a rest. He tries to make love to her and she resents it. Morse is knocked unconscious when he tries to interfere. Folly flees into the woods and finally comes to a cabin, where she seeks shelter. It happens to be the very cabin where her husband is also taking a rest. Rand has pursued her, and when he enters the cabin Gresham floors him with a powerful blow. Folly begs Gresham to forgive her, which he readily does.

THE FABLE OF FLORA AND ADOLPH AND A HOME GONE WRONG (Jan. 26).—The cast: The Judge (Charles J. Stine); Adolph Botts (Fred Wagner); Flora, his wife (Alice Edwards).

One morning a Modern Solomon in charge of a Divorce Mill got up on his Perch and told them to lead in the Matrimonial Miss-Fits. The first case that stared his honor in the Face was that of Flora Botts vs. Adolph Botts. The judge sized them up and saw they were just as happy as a couple of Panthers. He told Flora Pulled the Sob Stuff with trembly voice. Her lawyers wept at $8 a weep. She said she had Talent and Adolph did not appreciate it. Every time she went to recite he said to Lay Off and Cut Out the Mush. He was a Naughty Man. Adolph went on the stand. He said Poetry was his middle name, and four years before he composed a comic opera. A friend of his who worked in a Hat store wrote the music. He also declared the bleach Flora used on her hair had made her Soft under the Turban. The judge decided Adolph should pay Flora 25 bucks a week and Flora should pay Adolph 25. The Court then adjourned for Lunch. Moral: Genius must never walk alone.

DESTINY (Three parts; Jan. 29).—The cast: Richard Waldron, an attorney (Bryant Washburn); Ethel Dixon, his sweetheart (Ruth Stonehouse); Robert Gray, Waldron's rival (Edmund F. Cobb); Mr. Waldron (Charles J. Stine).

Robert Gray and Richard Waldron are rivals for the hand of Ethel Dixon. She favors Waldron and accepts his proposal. Knowing Waldron's one weakness, Gray gets him intoxicated, then calls Ethel to gaze upon the man she is about to marry. She breaks the engagement. Waldron realizes he has stepped into a trap and confronts Gray. A fierce battle follows, in which Waldron stuns Gray with a blow on the head. Thinking he has killed Gray, Waldron tells his father all. His father advises him to give up his law practice and the girl and leave the country. He departs.

Years later he has fallen into the depths. He is rescued by one of his former clients, whom he had saved from the gallows. The old fellow, realizing his debt of gratitude, brings about a reconciliation between Waldron and his father, which results in the renewal of the engagement with Ethel. Richard Waldron prospers, and some time later finds him happily married to Ethel, with a high position at the bar. He finally becomes judge of the Supreme Court.

VITAGRAPH.

JANE'S BASHFUL HERO (Jan. 31).—The cast: Jane (Edith Storey); Willie Wiggins (Donald MacBride); Hans Hoffmeyer (Billy Bletcher); Sheriff (Edward Elkas). Author, Paul West. Produced by George D. Baker.

Bashful Willie Wiggins courts Jane Brown, the village belle, but after nearly wearing out the sofa cannot find the courage to pop the question. Jane finally resorts to the old ruse of jealousy. That night the village folks of Mudville are scandalized to see Jane in the arms of a stranger silhouetted against the window shade. The whole town rises up in protest, and Willie, backed by the minister, demands an explanation of Jane. She guiltily denies the impeachment and the crowd, calmed by the dominie, disperse, but Willie camps on the doorstep to catch his "rival."

Jane during the night, regrets the scandal her little trick caused and flings the dummy she used into the well. Willie sees this and is horrified, believing it is the body of his rival, whom Jane has murdered. Frantic with excitement, he arouses the whole village. The indignant mob rush to Jane's home in their nighties and drag her forth dramatically. The sheriff goes down the well, and, of course, Jane has a good laugh on them all when the dummy is hauled up. Willie now realizes the depth of Jane's love and pops the question right then and there.

KALEM.

THE TALE OF A COAT (Jan. 18).—The cast: Ethel (Ethel Teare); Mr. Dough (Charles Mulgro); Jack Standing (Jack MacDermott); Butler (Gus Leonard); the Master Cracksman (Bud Duncan). Produced by William Beaudine.

Gus and Bud are two blundering robbers, Jack a millionaire Sherlock Holmes, who gains Mr. Dough's consent to his marriage to Ethel when by pure luck he nabs the crooks after they have robbed the Dough home.

THE DUEL IN THE DESERT (No. 9 of "Stingaree" Series—2 parts—Jan. 19).—The cast: Stingaree (True Boardman); Howie (Paul C. Hurst); Ethel Porter (Marin Sais); Inspector Cairns (Thomas Lingham); Sergeant Cameron (Edward Clisbee); Inspector at Post (Frank Jonasson). Produced by James W. Horne.

Stingaree and Howie escape after a hot pistol battle with the inspectors only to be captured again while carelessly lolling at their ease at the spring. Crossing the desert Stingaree fakes a fall from his horse and feigns unconsciousness. While one of the inspectors goes off to the post with Howie, the other stands guard over Stingaree awaiting the return of a wagon in which to put the captive. Stingaree proves his gameness in the long wait under the blistering sun and in a moment of unwariness for the inspector he is captured. Later, by a clever ruse, Stingaree rescues Howie.

THE SEALSKIN COAT (No. 13 of "Venture of Marguerite"—Jan. 21).—The cast: Marguerite (Marguerite Courtot); Billy Breeze (Bob Ellis); Peter Enright (Richard Purdon); the Count (Tom J. Evans). Author, Otto Hoffman. Producer, Robert Ellis.

A clever thief gets away with a pearl necklace and later, when pursued, puts it in the pocket of Marguerite's sealskin coat which is hanging outside her window for an airing. When he returns he finds that Marguerite has sent for the coat and is wearing it without knowing the valuable contents. There are amusing and also exciting complications with the thief following Marguerite in an endeavor to get the necklace back while Billy Breeze, her sweetheart, follows the thief in an effort to secure the large reward offered for his capture.

THE OPEN TRACK (Episode No. 63 of "The Hazards of Helen"—Jan. 22).—The cast: Operator (Helen Gibson); railroad detectives (R. Adams and Clarence Burton); the counterfeiters (Franklin Hall, George Robinson and Glen Gano). Author, E. W. Matlack. Producer, James Davis.

Helen's cleverness exposes a band of counterfeiters who later succeed in turning the tables on the railroad detectives and tying the two men to the cowcatcher of a train which they then start off down the grade. Helen pursues the train on a motorcycle and boards it by a leap to the handrail of a freight. The engine is soon brought to a stop and the detectives released. Helen also lends her assistance later to the capture of the counterfeiters.

SNOOP HOUNDS (Jan. 25).—The cast: B. Sharp and A. Ferret, detectives (Bud Duncan and Gus Leonard); the Two Macks of vaudeville (Jack MacDermott and Ethel Teare). Produced by William Beaudine.

Bud and Gus are rival detectives, and when the Two Macs, a vaudeville team, split because of jealousy, the rivals are given the job of getting evidence for a divorce, Bud by wifey, and Gus by hubby. Their blundering succeeds in healing the breach.

THE VILLAIN WORSHIPPER (No. 10 of "Stingaree" Series—2 parts—Jan. 26).—The cast: Stingaree (True Boardman); Howie (Paul C. Hurst); Inspector Kilbride (Frank Jonasson); Sergeant (Edward Clisbee); Oswald (James W. Horne); Mrs. Green (Ollie Kirkby). Produced by James W. Horne.

Oswald worships the bold Stingaree, and determines to follow the same life. Seeking to cure him of his folly Stingaree takes him along on a stage coach hold-up which is followed by a thrilling pursuit in which Oswald is captured. When he learns that the boy's mother is near death Stingaree plans to secure his freedom and is almost successful when the village busybody's curiosity results in his capture. This episode closes with Stingaree still in jail.

THE FATE OF AMERICA (No. 14 of "The Venture of Marguerite"—Jan. 28).—The cast: Marguerite (Marguerite Courtot); Peter Enright (Richard Purdon); Fred Randall (Arthur Albertson); the Wolf (Robert Ellis); Zarth (H. G. Hockey); Maid (Mae Miksecek). Author, Howard Irving Young. Producer, Robert Ellis.

Dean, a spy, is shot by the Wolf, an international crook, just as Marguerite is passing the lonely spot in her auto, so the heiress takes the wounded man to her home. Before he dies the spy turns over to Marguerite a bracelet containing papers concerning the invasion of America and a code book. Later the Wolf steals the bracelet and when he is followed by Fred, Marguerite's friend, he leads him to his den. Before turning Fred loose he seeks to terrorize him by signs of his astounding power. A later raid on his lair headed by Fred is unsuccessful. Meanwhile the Wolf has discovered that the bracelet is valueless without the code-book and we are left to surmise his attempts to secure that in the next episode.

TAPPED WIRES (Episode No. 64 of "The Hazards of Helen"—Jan. 29).—The cast: The operator (Helen Gibson); relief operator (Robin Adair); crooks (George Robinson, Glen Gano and Franklin Hall). Produced by James Davis.

After binding Helen to prevent her from stopping the express train to have it await an armed guard, crooks board the train, disable the messenger and dynamite the safe. Helen later takes a short cut in an auto and overtakes the train, but the crooks leap from the speeding train into her car before she can warn the engineer and train crew. At the point of a gun the chauffeur is made to follow the crooks' orders, but at the right moment Helen leaps from the speeding auto, the chauffeur turns the car to the edge of the cliff and then jumps for safety himself. The car somersaults down the forty-foot cliff burying its occupants beneath it.

Universal Film Mfg. Co.

POWERS.

UNCLE SAM AT WORK, NO. 4—Uncle Sam's Proteges at Work and Play (Jan. 15).—This picture depicts the intimate lives of the bluejackets on the big dreadnoughts. The picture opens with a number of fascinating scenes showing the features of work and play on shipboard. The officers and men are seen in the routine duty of standing watch in the early morning hours.

An amusing insight into the household duties of the "Jackies" is obtained from the views of the men scrubbing and holy-stoning the decks, mending their uniforms, washing their clothes, and scrubbing the dirty canvasses of the ship. Every detail in connection with the working of the big guns is faithfully depicted, from the polishing through the stages of hoisting the ammunition, loading the gun, sighting and training it, to the actual firing of it.

Danger from fire is always present on board our fighting ships, and the fire drill is one of the most important drills of the many. This is clearly shown, as is the drill to prevent collisions with other vessels. The signal corps, with their intricate and various systems of wig-wagging, is explained at length on the screen.

The picture closes with remarkable scenes showing the amusements of the sailors. Boxing, which is the chief sport of the sailor, takes up the greater part of their periods of recreation on board ship. A boxing match between two of the best boxers in the navy was especially filmed for this series. The last of the reel depicts the quarters of the sailors, showing how they make up their beds during the day and how they climb into their swinging hammocks for their nightly rest.

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL FEATURE

GRAFT (Episode No. 7—"America Saved from War"—Two Parts—Jan. 24).—The cast: Bruce Larnigan (Hobart Henley); Tom Larnigan (Harry Carey); Mrs. Larnigan (Nanine Wright); Roger Maxwell (Marc Fenton); Dorothy Maxwell (Jane Novak); Stanford Stone (Glen White); Kitty Rockford (Mina Cunard); Ben Travers (Jack Connolly); J. Brooks Carney (Rex de Rosselli).

Tom Larnigan, occupying a flat in New York with his mother and Bruce, latter recovered, brought from Chicago, Tom receives an appointment from the President as special examiner of criminal trusts. He is ordered to investigate the Steel trust. J. Brooks Carney, the head of the Steel trust, has no wish to have his business investigated, as he is planning a big coup that will mean billions to the steel industry. The plan is this: A foreign man of war is interned in the harbor. By blowing up this boat, Carney figures that strained relations existing between this country and warring nations will snap and the United States will be drawn into the conflict. This would mean untold orders and profit for the Steel trust.

Stone and Carney plan to carry out the plot with aid of an eccentric inventor named Bill Bean. A part of the plan is discussed in the Maxwell home, scraps of conversation overheard by Dorothy Maxwell and Kitty Rockford, who decide to investigate. Putting into effect their plan, Dorothy gets Kitty a job in Dunn's office through a bogus note signed "The Fifteen." Dorothy waits outside and Kitty is to drop her notes from a window containing any information that she may pick up. Stone phones Dunn, asking where he will find Bean. He learns that the best place is 63 Pell street. Kitty overhears and drops a note out of the window telling Dorothy to send Tom to the same place.

Stone and Carney find Bean at his home. He shows them an invention he has just completed—a portable wireless outfit, which, arranged in a vest, can be worn without detection. The operator has a key in each hand; by bringing hands together the current is released and will cause an explosion at a great distance. Bean shows his work of invention and they decide to try it out at eight that night. Carney, a careful man, decides to do the work himself. He learns that Tom is expected home that night so he leaves a package with Mrs. Larnigan for Tom. It is high explosive, with magnet attached and left exposed. He intends fastening the other package of explosive on the battleship. Bean stops at the hop joint, is attacked and rescued by Tom.

Bean tells Tom of the invention and Tom, being offered a place as his assistant, accepts. They start for the docks and Bean sends a note to Stone, telling him that he has a new assistant named Tom Larnigan. Stone phones Dunn to send one to get Larnigan out of the way. Kitty hears their conversation, gets word to Dorothy, who, together with Ben Travers, hurries to the dock.

Mrs. Larnigan, attracted by the magnet on the package, pulls it off. Carney, with other package of explosives, is rowing to the battleship. Tom, realizing the plot, tries to take the machine from Bean, but in the struggle Bean's hands come together, throwing the current. Carney is killed and Mrs. Larnigan is given a shock. Men from Dunn's office try to kill Tom. Tom is thrown into the water. Dorothy dives after him while Travers keeps the crooks from further interference. Tom and Dorothy are rescued. Bruce adds another name to his list—J. Brooks Carney, killed.

UNIVERSAL.

ANIMATED WEEKLY NO. 201 (Jan. 12).

Harvard's Track Squad.—An early start is made by candidates for the Crimson track team—Cambridge, Mass.

Boosting Prosperity—Thousands march at the funeral of Ol' Doc Gloom and bury the knockers' hammer—Syracuse, N. Y.

Alien Suspect Arrested.—Wireless operator on U. S. revenue cutter Ossipee discovers secret plant in woods—Portland, Maine.

Racing Season Opens.—Devotees of horse racing see their favorite steeds struggle for supremacy—New Orleans, La. Subtitle: They're off!

Survivors of Thessaloniki.—After suffering untold hardships for weeks and giving up all hope of rescue, crew of 90 arrives on Perugia, New York.

Two Million Dollar Fire.—Six lives lost when thousands of gallons of oil explode—Chicago, Illinois.

Jack Frost Leaves His Card.—First snowfall in twenty years spreads its immaculate mantle over southwestern coast—Universal City, Cal.

Moving Sea-Planes.—Advance corps precedes conveyances to clear their way of trees and telegraph wires—England.

England's Sons Respond.—English recruits in an endless stream of khaki on their way to the front—London, England.

Keeping Tabs on Tabby.—Animal Rescue League equips motor trucks with ladders to rescue tree-climbing felines—Boston, Mass.

What Next?—Animal hospital cares for the teeth of suffering canines—Boston, Mass. Subtitle: Preventing Bruno's teeth from "going to the dogs."

A London Pastime.—Hundreds of gulls partake of the bird-lover's bounty on the Embankment—London, England.

Ascot Speedway Opened.—Immense throng sees dare-devil drivers break speed records—Los Anglese, Cal. Subtitle: Eddie Pullen, the winner.

Indicted for Conspiracy.—Representative James Buchanan, charged with preventing shipments of arms and ammunition to Allies—Washington, D. C.

Preparedness—The Best Policy.—The Oklahoma, Uncle Sam's newest dreadnaught, arrives to be overhauled at Broklyn Navy Yard.

Cartoons by Hy. Mayer.

ANIMATED WEEKLY, NO. 202 (Jan. 19).

FAMOUS ROSE CARNIVAL—Gorgeous pageant of flower floats in Summerland—San Diego, Cal.

DERELICT BLOWN UP—Divers use 300 pounds of dynamite to remove sunken dredger—Providence, R. I.

TRAINING FOR CHAMPIONSHIPS—National diving and distance champions practice for coming Honolulu competition—Los Angeles, Cal.

HISTORIC RELIC RESTORED—Flag of General Jackson, hero of 1812 war, given back to South by State of Illinois—New Orleans, La.

SOME CHICKENS!—Ten thousand Leghorns, champion egg-layers, on one man's farm—Alhambra, Cal. Sub-title, Hen Fruit.

FENCING ON HORSEBACK—Canadian cavalry in masks battle with foils in "Balaclava melee"—Shorncliffe, England.

GALE WORKS HAVOC—Wrecked homes in wake of fatal storm—San Francisco, Cal. Subtitle, Ship Capsized.

FIGHTING CONSCRIPTION—English rush to enlist in last stand against enforced soldiering—London, England.

LINKING 600-FOOT SPAN—The raising of 900-ton section finishes giant bridge on New Colorado River—Needles, Cal.

3,000 MILES FOR BATTLE—Brown University's "eleven," first to cross continent, beaten by Washington State football stars—San Diego.

FLIES FOR SCIENTISTS—Juan Domonjoz gives startling aerial exhibition for Pan-American Congress—Washington, D. C. Sub-title, Hurdling Washington Monument.

FORD PEACE PARTY—Landing in Norway from "Oscar II"—Christiania. Sub-titles, Off for Skiing Trip; Kiddies Learn While Young; The Big Jumps.

CARTOONS—By Hy Mayer.

BISON.

A DAUGHTER OF PENANCE (Two Parts—Jan. 29).—The cast: Pia, the waif (Edna Maison); Castro Madero Cabello (Douglas Gerrard); Senora Ortega (Phyllis Daniels); Senor Ortega (O. C. Jackson); Rosa (Marjorie Lake).

Pia lives alone in a small hut with an old woman named Rosa. In an adjoining estate there lives a young artist named Castro Madero Cabella. One day a young Mexican, Pedro, makes advances to Pia, but she repulses him. The next morning his dead body is found with a knife in his heart. On the palm of his hand is a small cross drawn with his own blood. It is the mark of Pia's penance. In the past, several young men have met the same fate after attempting to caress Pia. As time goes on Pia meets Castro, and finally agrees to his proposal to pose for him. Pia falls in love with the young artist, but firmly repulses his attentions, fearing that the same fate will lead to his death. He, however, laughs at her fears and kisses her against her will, causing her to run from him.

That night Pia begs old Rosa to tell her what the strange vendetta is that hangs over her. Rosa tells her of the past. When she was a little girl of four years her mother and father were wealthy Spaniards. One evening her father saw her mother slip into the moonlit garden and hold a tryst with a stranger. He watched her as she stripped herself of her jewels and gave them to the stranger. He sneaked into the garden behind them and shot the intruder. Then his wife told him that he has killed her brother who was fleeing from the country because he was charged with a crime he did not commit. At the advice of his wife the husband left the country. His wife suddenly lost her mind and wandered away from the home, leaving Pia in the care of the servant, Rosa. The years pass, and no news has been heard from either her father or mother.

After the sad story Pia leaves the little hut and again meets the young artist and poses for him. Rosa wraps bread and fruit in a small bundle and slips into the woods unseen. In a secret cave she calls and an old hag appears who devours the food. The old hag is none other than Pia's demented mother. The old mother has a vision in which she sees Pia and the young artist making love. The vision beckons and calls her nearer to the roadside where the young lovers are sitting in the sunshine, painting and posing.

To the door of Rosa's hut there comes a stranger, an old man. A second glance reveals to the faithful Rosa the young master whom she once served. Filled with joy, she tells him that his child, Pia, is safe, and leads him out to the roadside and they start toward the mission where the young people sit. The old mother comes from the woods and faces the young people. Seeing Pia, in the arms of a man, she draws her knife from her bosom and advances upon them. As she is ready to plunge the knife into the back of Castro, Pia utters a scream, for she sees the strange sight in the reflection of the mission fountain. Castro turns and stays the arm of the demented woman. Old Rosa comes toward them with the old man, and turning to Pia, says: "These are your parents."

The sight of the husband of her youth restores the mind of the old woman, and she falls fainting into his arms. As time passes she is completely restored and Rosa, alone knowing that she was the mysterious one who killed Pia's lovers, determines to keep the gruesome secret locked away in her own breast, for with the dawn of reason the mother has completely forgotten the terrible deeds that she committed. In time Pia and her lover are wedded. The family once more is established in comfort, for old Rosa has carefully guarded the family wealth, hoping for the day when peace and happiness would come once more.

BIG U.

NAN GOOD FOR NOTHING (Jan. 28).—Tom Dibbles and Harry Collier have an adopted daughter, Nan, who is both a delight and worry to them. Each week they make a small contribution to provide for her future. Nan is a hoyden and is happier taking part in games with boys instead of playing with dolls and with the girls of her own age. One day while at play Nan sees a small child who has strayed from its nurse fall into the river. Without a moment's hesitation she dives overboard and rescues the child. Colonel Dawson saw Nan's brave act and gets her name from her playmates.

Tom and Harry are out of work and being in arrears with the rent, they are about to be ejected from their home. The landlord's son is on his way to serve a dispossess notice when he meets Nan in the street and attempts to flirt with her. She resents his attentions and he insults her. Charlie, who is passing, comes to Nan's aid and administers a thrashing to the son. A friendship springs up between Charlie and Nan which ripens into love on the part of the girl. He persuades her to take an interest in her appearance and he teaches her to read and write. Her guardians are astounded in the changes in the girl's character and are hard put to understand the causes.

In the meantime Nan learns of the money troubles of Tom and Harry and she generously takes the money which they put away for her and with it she pays the rent. Tom and Harry are deeply touched by her sacrifice. Colonel Dawson, remembering Nan's daring rescue, agrees to get positions for the two men and also contributes handsomely to Nan. With new surroundings and new ambitions Charles and Nan start in a little home of their own.

IMP.

HIRED, TIRED AND FIRED (Jan. 25).—The cast: "Slim" Hoover (Victor Potel); Sallie Sloppus (Jean Bernoudy); "Buck" Bull (Ed. Sedgwick); Miss Dinero (Eileen Sedgwick). Written and produced by Jay Hunt.

"Slim" Hoover, with his last jitney invested in doughnuts, and no prospects for future eats, unexpectedly finds employment as a piano mover. "Slim's" first job is the packing of a piano box to the top floor of an apartment house, where he fills it with a piano, under the direction of "Buck" Bill, his boss, who then orders "Slim" to carry the piano down to the waiting truck, while he makes love to Sally Sloppus, the slavey of the apartment where the piano once rested in security.

"Slim" is game—so is the piano—and in the struggle which follows, "Slim's" attempts to take it from its home, the piano breaks away from him and together they hurdle the succeeding flights of the steps to the street, when it is discovered that the wrong piano had been moved. "Slim" emerges from the wreckage to find that once more he is jobless.

LAEMMLE.

THE RED LIE (Three Parts—Jan. 27).—The cast: Dr. Baxter (Rupert Julian); Mrs. Baxter (Elsie Jane Wilson); Detective Jarvis (Doc Crane); Willis Rhodes (Hal Cooley). Written and produced by Rupert Julian.

Jarvis, a noted detective, and his men one night are called to the scene of a murder in the tenderloin district. They find the bodies of two dead men on the floor of the cafe and a crazed rough at the door with a gun in his hand. Jarvis discovers on the floor a diamond ear ring and a woman's footprint. He takes the murderer to jail and after questioning him, during which process he remains dazed and silent, the police and detectives agree that the man is playing "possum" with them and they decide to lay a trap to catch him. The police let the murderer loose and secretly watch him. Out in the street he looks around and then with the same dazed look on his face he returns to jail and they lock him up, convinced that he is insane.

But Jarvis, however, maintains that he is either an idiot or a master mind. Another trap is set. The men at work in the jail yard are marching in file. Before the crook enters the jail doorway back to his cell, the door closes and he sees that he is free, not knowing that eyes are secretly watching him. He escapes. The detectives follow him till he disappears over the wall of an estate owned by Dr. Baxter. The search reveals no one and upon returning to his office Jarvis originates a plan to trap the man.

Baxter admits his guilt upon being caught, and as the detective is about to take him from the house, Mrs. Baxter pleads for a chance to say something. Jarvis listens to her. She tells a story of a foolish adventure with a young man. It is an auto ride, taken against Baxter's wishes. A breakdown follows and the nearest place of refuge is at a roadhouse. Here they enter and have dinner. While looking at the bill of fare, Mrs. Baxter sees that the roadhouse is one of the most notorious in the country. Her horror is increased when she is accosted by one of her husband's business associates, a worthless society scamp. Hastily she and her companion leave the place, but scandal has started. She returns home late that night and upon her arrival home in answer to her husband's anxious questioning, tells the first lie of her married life, saying: "I was with a woman friend."

As time passes the society scamp comes and demands money in payment for his silence. She gives him what she has, and one day a note comes for more. The husband accidentally comes across the note and follows the directions thereof as to the meeting place. That night he follows his wife to the tenderloin district where the note demanded she come and pay the blackmail money.

He is carefully disguised as a slum character and enters the cafe. He sees the money paid to the scamp by his wife and then the rascal, noting the diamond ear rings in the lady's ears, tears them from her. Unable to control himself, Baxter defends his wife and a battle follows in which the scamp and another man are shot.

Thus was the crook arrested as he stood at the door. Jarvis, the detective, listens to the end of the story and then, rising, says: "I will give you five minutes to say good-bye to your wife; I'll be waiting on the porch." The parting is a sad one, and when Baxter comes to the porch it is empty. He is surprised. He goes to the detective's office and Jarvis sits at his desk, busy. Baxter says: "I have come to give myself up." Jarvis looks up crossly and answers: "Get out of here; visitors are not allowed in this office." After Baxter goes Jarvis picks up the document of the Baxter case that reads "Unsolved cases."

THE INNER SOUL (Two Parts—Jan. 28).—The cast: Nina Courtleigh (Constance Johnson); Louis Fisher (M. Blevins); Claude Bayard (J. Livingston); Dr. Winston (Ray Han-

ROLL TICKETS

PRICES
Five Thousand.....$1.25
Ten Thousand.....$2.50
Twenty-five Thousand.....$3.50
Fifty Thousand.....$5.00
One Hundred Thousand.....$8.00

Your own special Ticket, any printing, any colors, accurately numbered; every roll guaranteed. Coupon Tickets for Prize Drawings, 5,000 $2.50. Stock Tickets, 6c. per 1,000. Prompt shipments. Cash with the order. Get the samples. Send diagram for Reserved Seat Coupon Tickets, serial or dated.

NATIONAL TICKET CO.
Shamokin, Pa.

ford). Written by F. McGrew Willis. Directed by Leon Kent.

Nina Courtleigh, a society butterfly, is accepting the attentions of Louis Fisher, but when he proposes she tells him that if he wishes her friendship to continue he must cease all talk of marriage. Shortly after this Nina returns to the city. Fisher follows and after another proposal threatens to kill himself if she does not marry him. Nina merely laughs at him and Fisher shoots himself, but not fatally.

Dr. Winston is attracted by the shot and with Claude Bayard, his friend, hurries to Nina's apartment, where he ministers to Fisher and has him carried to his own apartments. Claude makes Nina's acquaintance. While Winston is nursing Fisher back to health Claude and Nina fall in love with each other. Claude proposes, but she refuses. As Claude is leaving, however, Nina remembers what Fisher has told her—that the butterfly dies at the end of the summer and that the summer of her youth is fast waning. She calls Claude back and accepts him.

After the honeymoon Nina cannot settle down to domestic happiness. They become somewhat estranged and Nina meets Fisher again and welcomes his attentions. Claude grows jealous—coming home and finding Fisher in the house he tries to throw him out and in a fight Fisher shoots him and persuades Nina to flee with him. They board a train and leave the city, but Nina now realizes she loves Claude and, leaving Fisher, she returns. In the meantime Winston has been summoned to attend Claude and just as he is removing him to the hospital for an operation Nina comes in. Winston tells her that she must leave the house forever and never see Claude again.

At the hospital an operation takes place and Claude completely recovers except for the fact that his past is a blank to him. Trying to remember the past he becomes moody and Winston takes him out to a cafe in an attempt to cheer him up. Nina is here with a party of friends and sees Claude. All her old love reawakens and she resolves to win him back. She forces Winston to introduce her. Claude does not recognize her and immediately falls in love with her. After a brief courtship they are married again.

Some days after the wedding Claude tells her that he is leaving to be gone several days on a business trip. Weeks pass. Winston comes to the house and, showing Nina a small vial of liquid, tells her that he has perfected an anaesthetic that will enable him to operate on Claude and restore his memory. Nina pleads with Winston, telling him that they are supremely happy and that if Claude recovers his memory he will cast her out. Winston is firm in his refusal, but Nina in desperation tears the vial from his hands and hurls it to the floor. Claude enters in time to witness this and asks for an explanation. Nina tells him that she has destroyed the only hope of restoring his memory. Winston departs and leaves them alone. Nina pleads for Claude's forgiveness and he tells her that when he was supposed to be away on a business trip he was operated upon and his memory was restored. Nina is terrified, but Claude reassures her and tells her that he knows the worth of her love and that their happiness will continue as it has.

L-KO.

KNOCKS AND OPPORTUNITIES (Two Parts —Jan. 26).—The cast: the florist (Reggie Morris); his sweetheart (Louise Orth); the ingrate (Billie Ritchie).

Bill got in bad with the jitney bus driver and got kicked out, but it was a lucky kick for Bill, as he fell in front of an approaching auto that contained a beautiful lady, who, thinking that Bill had been injured, rushed him to her house.

But Bill was all right. Father did not like his appearance and did not hesitate to tell him so, and Bill departed somewhat downhearted. Carelessly walking down the street he was again struck by an onrushing truck and this time he was succored by a very generous young man, who administered first aid to Bill and rather liked his appearance, so he took him to his store and fitted him out in new clothes and fed him.

Bill was a changed man outwardly and he made a fine appearance. Bill could not get the face of his fair rescuer out of his mind and decided to make a call on this fair lady. Much to Bill's surprise he found that the fair lady was engaged to his benefactor and promptly tried to knock his boss to the fair lady to further his own suit. Complications set in and Bill's well laid plans all end in his own destruction.

CUPID AT THE POLO GAME (Jan. 30).—The cast: the champion (Ray Griffith); the girl (Louise Orth); her father (Dan Russell).

Ray is a polo champion and is engaged to Louise, who loves him. Her father, who is rather flirtatiously inclined, likes Ray. A fortune hunting count determines to win Louise, and when he is refused in favor of Ray, he determines on a dastardly revenge and places a bomb shell with a lighted fuse in place of the polo ball, which Ray strikes with a mallet.

It hits a swell, who hurls it into the club house where it lands on a billiard table and Louise's father almost hits it with his billiard cue. Ray comes to the rescue and the villain is defeated and punished after some exciting adventures.

GOLD SEAL.

DISCONTENT (Two Parts—Jan. 25).—The cast: Pearson (J. Edward Brown); his nephew (Chas. Hammond); nephew's wife (Katherine Griffith); Glen, their daughter (Marie Walcamp); nephew's son (Alva Blake); his friend (John R. Hope); Juan (Juan de la Cruz). Written by Lois Weber. Produced by the Smalleys.

Old man Pearson was the most discontented soldier in the Home. He found fault with the food, beds, his companions and everything about the place. Pearson had a nephew living in the city nearby who was rather successful in business. He had a nice home and nice family consisting of his wife, to whom he was devoted, his son, who was studying for the ministry, and a very pretty daughter, who was engaged to be married to a man of whom they all approved.

This happy little family often remembered Pearson. He received little presents of tobacco and money and was often taken to ride in the family automobile or asked to dine at the family home. These attentions only aggravated the old man's discontent. By contrasting his nephew's affluence with the poverty of the Home, he gradually managed to create a spirit of unrest that threatened to spread throughout the institution. Fortunately his influence was removed at this time. Out of the kindness of his heart, the nephew, seeing that the old man was unhappy, made a place for him in his home—the old soldier became one of the family.

Now, at last, he had all the things that he had missed at the Home. He had a lovely room, delicacies of every kind on his table, an automobile at his disposal, pocket money with which to enjoy himself. But he found himself made unhappy by the fact that his nephew thought it necessary to go out too much at night on business and it was not long before he communicated his unhappiness to the wife who had never before had a doubt of her loving husband. Also the fact that the son was preparing for the ministry without any actual knowledge of the world he was called upon to overcome, seemed so wrong to him that it presently seemed wrong to the young man himself. He also believed himself a good judge of the fitness of things and he found fault with the fact that the daughter contemplated marriage with a man shorter than she was.

In fact he made such a point of this that the girl became ashamed of it herself. Now, having made everybody in the house unhappy and having overeaten so that he was now reduced to bread and milk, the state of affairs he had never encountered at the Home, and all novelty having worn off where the nice room and the automobile were concerned, Pearson began to get lonesome and began to find fault. He advised doing things the way they did them at the Home and at last, finding himself very discontented, he just packed up his few belongings and went back.

NESTOR.

HER STEADY CARFARE (Jan. 24).—The cast: The Boy (Ray Gallagher); The Girl (Betty Compton); The "Auna" (Stella Adams); The "Uncle" (Harry Rattenbury). Scenario by Al. E. Christie. Directed by Horace Davey.

Betty clerks in a dry goods store. Ray is a dispenser at a soda fountain. They meet upon a street car and a way to their further acquaintance is opened when Betty finds she has forgotten her pocketbook. Ray pays her car fare. When they leave the car Betty learns that in her excitement she has forgotten to ask for a transfer and Ray proffers another nickel. Next day Betty is seen with Ray by some of her girl friends. Upon joining them Betty tells them that Ray is the son of a millionaire. Ray tells a friend whom he meets that Betty has a wealthy aunt and he is congratulated.

Next day while Ray and Betty are out walking, one of Ray's customers passes. Betty gives him a nod of recognition and informs Ray that the prosperous looking individual who just passed him is her father. Ray feels that he is indeed in luck. They pass one of Betty's customers a little later and Ray tips his hat and bows, informing Betty that it is wealthy aunt. Next day at the fountain Betty's "father" comes in as usual and orders a drink. Ray, overcome, informs him that he is acquainted with the customer's daughter. The man informs Ray that he has no daughter, and leaves the place. Ray loses his job. His friend obtains him a job at another fountain.

At the store Betty waits upon Ray's "aunt," blushingly informing her that she is acquainted with her customer's nephew. Highly indignant, the customer informs her that she has no nephew. Later in the day the girls inform Betty there is a new clerk at the soda fountain where they are in the habit of attending, inviting her to come with them and see him. Betty goes and comes face to face with Ray. Each thinking the other a base deceiver they exchange the cold and stony stare. After working hours they meet outside the store. They make up, and Ray becomes her steady carfare.

VICTOR.

ACROSS THE LINE (Jan. 26).—The cast: Mildred Fontaine (Peggy Coudray); Horton Manners, Sr. (Wm. Canfield); Horton Manners, Jr. (J. Belasco); Mrs. Horton Manners (Mrs. Kraft). Written and produced by Jacques Jaccard.

"I don't know this woman and I don't want to know her, but I do know you will have to give her up. Your mother has had her investigated and has found out several things, either one of which is sufficient to cause me to speak as I do. In the first place she is thirty-six while you are but twenty. In the second she is not in your class socially. She lives in what is known as 'Across the line.' Therefore should you marry her you could not expect to raise her to your level; you must lower yourself to hers."

Horton Manners, man of the world, a power in business, a man who had lived and was living, rested his case. Horton, Jr., just out of school, and to whom the above remarks were addressed, looked at his father, then at his mother, and for once his mother failed him. She, a leader in society, had no intention of jeopardizing her position by allowing her son to marry beneath him.

The boy pleaded, his father softened and yielded one point. Take a trip around the world, boy; stay away a year, then if at the end of that time you still love this woman, I have nothing further to say. The boy, however was firm and told his parents that he would rather dig ditches than give up Mildred. He leaves to tell his sweetheart what has happened. The woman in the case, Mildred Fontaine, has lived and yet is just beginning to live and consoles herself with the thought that, although she has passed the age before which a woman is supposed to marry, she has found a man she loves and who loves her even though he is but a boy.

Horton, Jr., goes to her and tells her his father's ultimatum and the answer he gave to it. She, worldly wise and knowing that love cannot exist without the proper food, advises him to take the trip. The boy leaves for Paris. Mildred decides that she cannot live without him and plans to bring him back to her. She secures a position as social secretary in the Manners home. She plays upon Manners, Sr., whose weakness is women. She places him in a compromising position with herself and with the aid of Casey, a friendly chauffeur, secures a photograph of it.

She shows the father the photograph and he offers her money for it. She refuses and demands the return of the son. He writes a cablegram as dictated, but before sending it he tells her why he objected to the marriage, compares their ages and shows Mildred that in ten years she will be comparatively an old woman while the boy will be just in the prime of life. He pictures to her how unhappy they both would be in a few years' time. In the end, Mildred, loving the boy as she does, agrees and returns "across the line." In the meantime the boy has verified all his father's arguments by falling in love with a girl in Paris.

JOKER.

MRS. GREEN'S MISTAKE (Jan. 29).—The cast: Mr. Green (William Franey); Mrs. Green (Gale Henry); Butler Fritz (Charles Conklin); Mrs. Butler Fritz (Lillian Peacock). Written and produced by Allen Curtis.

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO EXHIBITORS— We can supply you with mounted posters on a great many feature productions of companies not handling mounted paper. Exhibitors preferring mounted posters can secure a prompt, reliable and accurate poster service from

AMERICAN SLIDE & POSTER CO., First National Bank Building, CHICAGO

The Greens are newlyweds and would be happy if husband Green had not been so jealous. The Greens have a butler in the person of Fritz, who resembles Mr. Green to a marked degree. One day Mrs. Green sends her husband out to get some clothes that are stored away. Husband Green decides that this work is too menial for him and presses the butler into service. The butler is loaded down with clothes and sent to Mrs. Green, and she, thinking it is her husband coming back, embraces him, just as her husband comes in. Green fires the butler on the spot.

Unknown to the Greens, Butler Fritz has a wife and baby, Bill, and various other bills which demand attention. The house of Fritz is in the state of dismay over his discharge. Green tells his wife that as he is unable to trust her in the house with a man, he will advertise for an unmarried maid to tend to the household duties and accordingly places an ad in one of the papers. Mrs. Fritz sees the ad and makes application for the job, stating to Green that she is single. Green hires her at once. Mrs. Green becomes jealous of her husband's attentions to the "butleress."

Butler Fritz meanwhile tries to mind the babies, but he proves that it is too much for him and he seeks out his wife. As he and Mrs. Fritz are embracing, Mrs. Green sees them through the window and thinks it is her husband. Green himself wanders around and sees a man in the dining room who he thinks is embracing his wife. He recognizes the man as the discharged butler and thinks he has come back to break up his home. Fritz hears the Greens coming and he goes one way with the baby while his wife takes refuge in the kitchen. Green upbraids his wife, while his wife accuses him of flirting with the new maid.

Fritz takes refuge in the closet in Mrs. Green's bedroom and she, having determined to leave her husband, comes into the room to get her clothes. Green follows his wife into the room and pleads with her to stay with him. Mrs. Green discovers the butler and baby, but tries to keep the discovery secret, but her husband's suspicions have been aroused and he brings Fritz forth. Mrs. Fritz, hearing the cries of the baby, enters the fray with a poker and Mrs. Green gets the worst of the argument. Matters are finally explained satisfactorily all around and the Greens determine to take the Fritz's under their protection in order that there may be no more jealousy.

REX.

THE LITTLE MASCOT (Two parts; Jan. 16).—The cast: The Mascot (Baby Early); Jack (Charles Cummings); Sister (Elsie Albert); Will (Jack O'Brien).

Baby Early is the mascot for Avon College. "Babe," as she is affectionately called by the students and professors alike, is a mischievous lass who has just reached her tenth birthday. All the students in the college were friends of "Babe," but Jack, the captain and star sprinter of the track team, who was in love with "Babe's" big sister, Elsie, was her favorite. She was devoted to him with a devotion only children can display. On her birthday Jack had given her a watch, which made him her hero for life. Now, as young as she was, "Babe" knew far more about athletics in general than many persons years her elder, but track athletics in particular, because of Jack and because she loved to run and jump herself, she knew from the ground up. She could tell when a runner was out of form and off his stride as well as the best trainer.

Now Jack was a big, healthy, happy-go-lucky fellow, with not a care in the world. He was naturally a great runner, consequently hated the strict training requisite to perfect him. On the eve of the annual meet with the rival college, Vernon, Jack proposes to Elsie, but "Babe" interrupts the proposal and tells her sister not to accept Jack unless he wins the big race against Vernon. Vernon has another great sprinter, who also loves Elsie, but finds that Jack is first in her affections. He then determines to put Jack out of the way for the big race. In the meantime Jack, anxious to win both the race and the hand of Elsie, begins a hard course of training. Will, his rival, sets plans for Jack's downfall.

Ask Your Banker

The average Banker is usually a shrewd & successful business man whose advice in business matters is worth following.

Ask your Banker what he thinks of installing an

AUTOMATIC ELECTRIC TICKET SELLING AND CASH REGISTER

in your Theatre and what the Great Advantages of a MONEY & LABOR SAVING MACHINE which will SYSTEMATIZE YOUR BUSINESS AND AFFORD THOROUGH PROTECTION

No one is quicker to realize these advantages.

LET HIM BE YOUR COUNSEL.

WRITE FOR ILLUSTRATED BOOKLET

The Automatic Ticket Selling & Cash Register Co.
1476 BROADWAY. NEW YORK CITY.

SIMPSON'S SOLAR SCREEN AND CELEBRATED SLIDES
113 W. 132nd Street, New York
Pat. June, 1908

A Seeburg Pipe Organ will solve your music problems.
J. P. SEEBURG PIANO CO.
Republic Building, Chicago

WANTED:
Comedy and Feature Scenarios.
Eagle Film Mfg. & Producing Co.,
Jacksonville, Florida

Have You Read Page 677?

On the morning of the day of the big race three men in an automobile see Jack walking along the road. They stop the car and jump out and pounce upon him. He is overpowered and taken to a lonely shanty on the outskirts of the town, bound and gagged and locked in. 'Babe," who had been out with her pony, saw the men disappear in the machine and followed them to the shanty. She manages to crawl through a small opening in the floor and frees Jack from his bonds.

At the same time the trainers and members of the team become alarmed at the absence of Jack and start a search for him in vain. The hour of the big race is on, when Jack comes running onto the field and wins over his nefarious rival. "Babe" had aided him to effect his escape. As the winner of the race Jack claims his masot for life—Elsie.

IN HIS OWN TRAP (Three Parts—Jan. 30). The cast: Rodney Stone, financier (Charles Ogle); John Mayne, attorney (Ben Wilson); Wm. Beckwith, banker (Jos. W. Girard); Mrs. John Mayne (Dorothy Phillips). Written by William Addison Lathrop. Produced by Ben Wilson.

Rodney Stone, a financier, calls upon Mrs. Helen Moore, a worldly-wise widow, intent upon proposing. He is refused, however, and just as he is leaving Mayne King, a rising young lawyer, arrives at the house. He is greeted affectionately, an incident which only goes to make Stone more persistent in his desire to get the widow. In due time Helen and Mayne are married. There is now a lapse of one year. Helen's extravagance has told heavily on the young husband, but such is his love that he makes little remonstrance. Stone, however, is carefully watching all, and surmises that it will eventually prove to his advantage.

At last, knowing that Mayne needs money desperately, Stone sets a trap. He calls old Hopkins, an experienced clerk, into his office and gives him a box in which there are $20,000 in cash and securities. He tells Hopkins to take the money and bonds to Mayne's office for investment, under the pretext that he (Hopkins) is going abroad for two years and that he wants to secure investments in first mortgages. Stone takes the numbers of the securities. Mayne walks into the trap just as Stone figured he would. Driven desperate by the bills that confront him, Mayne uses the money and hypothecates the stocks. When Stone has been informed by the detectives that the stocks have been hypothecated, he waits a week until he is sure the money is all gone and then he has Hopkins write a letter, saying he has changed his plans about going abroad and therefore prefers to make his own investments and that he will call for the securities and cash in two days' time. Mayne's wife, who had had Stone as her constant companion in all her pleasures and extravagances, comes in and sees the letter drop from Mayne's fingers. She reads the letter and asks her husband for an explanation. He tells her it is but too true, and adds: "I am a thief, you know the reason why, and I hope you are satisfied."

That night Helen prevents her husband from committing suicide. Later she decides to appeal to Stone, and goes to his office. She meets Hopkins, who has known her since childhood. Stone arrives and Helen tells him that she needs money. He agress to help her, but there is a condition. He looks her straight in the eyes and says that if she will come to his house at 11 o'clock alone, that night, he will give her the money, and old Hopkins, listening at the door, hears this. Helen draws away from Stone instinctively, but finally consents to his condition. All day Hopkins hunts for Mayne to tell him of his wife's peril, but Mayne is out trying to raise money. Meanwhile, Helen waits in her room throughout the evening. By 10 o'clock Mayne has raised the money from various sources and comes into the library a few moments after Helen has slipped out to keep her appointment with Stone.

In a few words Hopkins, who has been waiting for Mayne, tells him the whole story and gives him a receipt for the money which Stone had given to him, trusting to his endorsement of his contemptible scheme. The receipt from Hopkins clears the horizon so far as Mayne is concerned. Mayne takes the receipt and a revolver and starts for Stone's house. Mayne climbs a balcony of Stone's house, knowing he will never be admitted. He breaks into the room, but doesn't know that his wife is there. Stone switches off the light and pushes Helen through a door. As Mayne comes through the window Stone fires. Then follows a sucession of flashes in the dark room until at last Mayne switches on the light and sees Stone holding a broken left arm, his pistol lying on the floor.

IVAN FILM PRODUCTIONS

PRODUCING MONTHLY, FEATURE DRAMAS OF DISTINCTIVE MERIT IN WHICH "THE PLAY'S THE THING"; PRESENTING FAMOUS SCREEN STARS UNDER FILMDOM'S MOST ARTISTIC DIRECTORS

IVAN FILM PRODUCTIONS INC. 126 WEST 46TH ST. NEW YORK

Through all this Helen listens. Mayne now throws the recepit on the table with the money due Stone and demands his wife. Although he chokes Stone with furious vigor, Stone maintains that his wife has never been near him. A search by Mayne, who is master of the situation, seems to corroborate his statement, for Helen, on hearing that an adjustment of the money difficulty had been made, had slipped out of the house. When Mayne gets home he finds Helen and old Hopkins in the library confronting each other. After he has looked into his wife's eyes a long time he is evidently satisfied of her innocence and as he holds her close in his arms, after Hopkins has retired, he sees for the first time a heap of jewels which she has left for him on the table. He offers them to her, but she thrusts them away as though they were hateful, and when the significance of this act dawns, he folds her closer than ever in his arms.

BROADWAY UNIVERSAL FEATURES.

A SOUL ENSLAVED (Five Parts—Jan. 24).—The cast: Jane (Irma Sorter); Jane, later (Cleo Madison); Richard Newton (Tom Chatterton); Paul Kent (Douglas Gerrard); Jane's Mother (Lule Warrenton); Nellie (Marguerite Gibson); Ambrose (Alfred Allen). Scenario by Olga Printzlau. Produced by Cleo Madison.

Jane lives with her drunken mother. The child leaves home after a particularly brutal scene with her mother and seeks refuge in a neighboring town. Jane finds her new home little better than the old one, as she is made a slavey in the house.

Richard Newton and Paul Kent, college chums, are a bit wild and Richard has an affair with a popular girl of the smart set. After a night with the girl they arrive at her home at daybreak. When vacation time comes the boys prepare to leave for home and Nellie, worrying over her condition, begs Richard to take her with him, but he puts her off, promising to return for her. The only word she hears of him is a letter telling her he is going abroad and enclosing her a sum of money. Nellie commits suicide and Richard learns of the tragedy through the newspapers.

Ten years elapse and Jane has grown up, kicked and cuffed about by every one. She now works in a factory owned by Ambrose, who, one day while in the factory, sees Jane, takes a fancy to her and gives her a position in his office. Ambrose furnishes a handsome apartment for her and gives her everything her heart could wish. Ambrose, proud of his new toy, invites a friend from the club to visit him and so Paul Kent is introduced to the girl. Although Ambrose gives the girl everything her heart desires, he is repellent to her and she finds Kent more interesting. He becomes infatuated with her and finally persuades her to leave. Kent has promised to marry the girl and as time passes she begins to fear the consequence of her rashness. When she asks him when he is going to marry her he tries to quiet her by giving her a large sum of money.

Jane hates the life she is living, but when her thoughts turn back to the drudgery of her early days she stifles her conscience and resolves to go on with the farce. One day, while driving, her car frightens a horse and his rider is thrown. The rider is Richard Newton and he is rendered unconscious. Jane has him put into her car and rushes him to the hospital. On the way home from the hospital she finds a card case he dropped and learns his name. Feigning interest in his condition she calls on every occasion and finally Richard discovers she is in love with him. He begs her to come to him often and she promises. She decides to get away from her life and start again. She sells all and gives the money to the Sisters Orphan Asylum, thus hoping to atone for her wrong. They eventually get married and their union is blessed with a baby girl. Sometime later Richard takes her to a reception, where she meets Ambrose, who denounces her. When Richard returns to her she pleads illness and he takes her home. Richard takes her to the beach one day, and while she is resting on the bench Paul comes on and meets Newton. He sees Jane and makes a disparaging remark about her. Angry words pass between the men. When Jane sees Paul she collapses and her husband realizes there is some truth in the report.

There is a tense scene between husband and wife. Jane, half demented, wanders out and is taken in by the Sisters of an Orphan Asylum. She can tell nothing of herself. The maid, thinking to take Richard's mind away from his troubles, brings the baby in, but is frightened at his actions when he angrily orders the girl out, throws her some money and tells her to take the baby to some asylum. She takes the baby to the Sisters' Asylum and there finds Jane. Her reason returns when she sees her baby. Richard, left alone, is bitterly condemning Jane, when a vision of Nellie comes to him and he suddenly realizes he is as much a sinner as she is and decides to secure the baby. He hastens to the asylum and finds both Jane and the baby and advances to her with open arms. Happily they now leave with the blessings of the Sisters following them.

Mutual Film Corp.

AMERICAN.

THE MAN IN THE SOMBRERO (Two Parts—Jan. 25).—The cast: Jack Betson (Harold Lockwood); Alice Van Zant (May Allison); Jack's Father (Harry Von Meter); Alec Danvers (William Stowell). Directed by Thomas Ricketts.

Jack Betson, leaving for a hunting trip in the mountains, goes to his father's office in his hat factory to bid him good-bye. A fine figure in his hunting clothes, he is photographed, while there, to illustrate a hat advertisement. Alice Van Zant is being hard pressed by her suitors but they, one and all, fail to touch the responsive cord in Alice's heart. Alec Danvers, however, is not easily discouraged and forces his attentions on Alice to an ever increasing degree.

Alice plans a trip into the mountains and Alec becomes one of the party. Glancing through a magazine one day, Alice notices the hat advertisement, and at once is struck by the good looking young man illustrating it. She declares to one of her girl friends that there at last is the man whom she could love, and when chance happens to throw Jack Betson in her path, up in the mountains, they become fast friends.

In the meantime, Alec has grown very disagreeable and one day out in the woods, he openly abuses Alice. She screams in fright, and to her rescue comes Jack, who promptly takes matters into his own hands and proceeds to give Alec a thrashing. Alice falls unconscious and recovering finds herself in Betson's arms, on the way to the hotel. Love steps in and before long the pair are betrothed, whereupon Betson reveals his own wealth and standing, and all ends happily.

A SANITARIUM SCRAMBLE (Jan. 28).—The cast: Janice James (Vivian Rich); Aunt Penelope (Mother Ashton); Frank Fellows (Alfred Vosburgh); Col. Austin-Austins (Hugh Bennett). Directed by Reaves Eason.

Aunt Penelope's aspiration to be a Red Cross nurse fell short of fulfillment and she fondly hoped to realize her ambition indirectly through her niece, Janice. In accordance with her aunt's wishes, fun-loving Janice obediently went to training school. She soon managed to combine duty with pleasure by succoring an unfortunate youth who had burned his finger while looking too long in her direction. Janice finds it necessary to devote a good deal of attention to her patient and he shows no sign of recovering from his infatuation for his pretty nurse.

One fatal night they linger too long on the wrong side of the hospital gates and are intercepted by the head nurse as Frank is helping Janice through a window, which leads to Jan-

Adjustable Light

Often the density of your films varies to such a degree that the pictures on the screen are so bright they almost glare with some reels, and others can hardly be seen. The

Westinghouse-Cooper Hewitt Rectifier Outfit

is arranged to overcome this difficulty. By turning a knob on the outfit, the operator can adjust the brightness of the arc to suit the film he has on the machine at that time. Once set, the outfit will regulate the current automatically, so that the light is steady. No glare from thin films. No indistinct pictures from dense films. Write for folder 4205-A for full particulars.

Westinghouse Elec. & Mfg. Co.

Dept. UR. East Pittsburgh, Pa.

SHADOW BOX SCREENS
The latest thing in picture screens.
Incased in Black Shadow Box.
Inexpensive—Write for particulars.
Eugene Cox Scene Painting Studio
1734 Ogden Avenue Chicago

HIGHEST GRADE
Developing and Printing
FILM TITLES
We guarantee all work, give prompt delivery, at lowest prices.
Can furnish Expert Camera Man on short notice.
STANDARD MOTION PICTURE COMPANY
R. 1620, 5 S. Wabash Ave. Chicago
Phone Randolph 6692

All work supervised by
EDWARD M. ROSKAM
Commercial Motion Pictures Co.
Cliffside 323 Grantwood, N. J.

You Should Read Page 677

PORTER EQUIPS ANOTHER GREAT THEATRE

After a searching investigation of New York's Best Theatres, the BAY RIDGE THEATRE CORPORATION was convinced that B. F. Porter's installations were producing the BEST PROJECTION RESULTS. They signed a contract with him to install TWO SIMPLEX PROJECTORS, TYPE "S," Latest Models, in the LARGEST and FINEST THEATRE in BROOKLYN.

BUY YOUR MACHINES FROM THE MAN WHO SATIS FIED THE PRODUCER OF "THE BIRTH OF A NATION."

B. F. PORTER, 1482 BROADWAY, AT TIMES SQUARE, NEW YORK

ice's dismissal. Her spirits are unbroken and she suggests to her girl friends that they give a housewarming in her new apartment. It was some party while it lasted but awkwardly Aunt Penelope arrived in the midst of it. Janice, being a resourceful young person, while Aunt Penelope waited below, bundled the boys into bed—clothes on—and dressed the girls in nurses' caps and aprons and was ready when Aunt Penelope confronted her with the charge of dismissal to explain that she had started a private sanitarium. Aunt Penelope is at once all sympathy and insists upon doing her share of the nursing.

Colonel Austin-Austins, a southern gentleman in reduced circumstances, trails Frank to the apartment looking for a loan and he is persuaded to impersonate an "eminent surgeon and heart specialist." Janice plans to be rid of Aunt Penelope by suggesting that the Colonel take her to dinner which the Colonel gallantly agrees to do. Difficulties ensue when he fails to find the price of the dinner. However, Frank comes to the rescue of his finances and his honor. Later the nurses and their erstwhile patients are discovered in the cafe by Aunt Penelope. The Colonel calms her wrath and explains that he may not be a surgeon but he can carve a duck to perfection.

CLIPPER.

THE SMUGGLERS OF SANTA CRUZ (Three Parts—Jan. 28).—The cast: Verna (Charlotte Burton); Robert Langdon (William Russell); George Osborn (Roy Stewart); Dale, Verna's father (George Periolat); Jean (Eugenie Forde). Directed by Donald MacDonald.

Langdon, a revenue officer in search of smugglers operating along the coast of Santa Cruz Island, Cal., meets Verna, the daughter of the lighthouse keeper and they fall deeply in love. Osborn, chief of the smugglers, also loves Verna, although he is carrying on a clandestine affair with Jean whom he has promised to marry. Osborn's neglect and his attention to Verna rouse Jean's jealousy and in retaliation she betrays the smugglers' rendezvous to Langdon. Langdon surprises them and a fight follows. As Langdon and his men appear to have the upper hand, Osborn smashes the light and the smugglers escape. Langdon sends the confiscated goods to the revenue station and continues the search.

The love between Verna and Langdon grows. He tells her that some day he will call to her on the shell which she gives him and she promises to answer. Through his binoculars, Langdon discovers another hiding place of the smugglers and pursuing them is trapped in their cave and takes refuge in any empty cask. When all but three have gone, he covers them and escapes. Osborn's advances have been repelled by Verna and he hires Jed, one of the band, to abduct her. This plan is overheard by Jean, who hastens to inform Dale, Verna's father. Verna goes with Jed on his representation that her father has sent for her.

Langdon, hurrying to the lighthouse to telephone the revenue station, finds Jean unconscious. He revives her and she tells of Verna's abduction and Langdon rushes off to save her. In the fight with the smugglers which follows, Osborn is killed and Langdon fatally wounded, dying in Verna's arms. Across the sunset sea, Verna visions Langdon who appears at the prow of a phantom barge and as he calls to her on the shell she responds and walks off the edge of the rock, meeting him at last in the calm sea.

BEAUTY.

SOME NIGHT (Jan. 26).—The cast: Gladys (Carol Halloway); Dick (John Sheehan); Mrs. Boardem (Bessie Banks); Howarth (George Ahearn); May (Marty Martin). Directed by Jack Dillon.

Gladys, longing for romance, and Dick, looking for adventure, meets in a flirtation over the wall of Miss Boardem's select boarding school. Miss Boardem intervenes but not before Gladys has invited Dick to a fudge party in her room that night. Alarmed by a knock, Gladys hides Dick in her closet where he dons a dress and bonnet and when Miss Boardem comes in, is introduced as Gladys' sister from the country. Miss Boardem is delighted to meet sister and decides that she shall share her room, to the consternation of the girls.

Two other strangers arrive at the school that night—Dick's father, a professor, who has come to accept a new position, and Slippery Sam, who has an eye on the tuition money. Sam gets the money and slips out of Miss Boardem's room as she brings Dick in. Dick escapes and Miss Boardem thinks he has taken the money. He bolts into his father's room and while he is trying to explain, Miss Boardem discovers him and demands that father leave instanter.

Meanwhile, Slippery Sam has broken into Gladys' room in an effort to escape and the girls, seeing him disappear under the bed, think it is Dick and pass him a plate of candy. The maid tells Miss Boardem of a burglar in the house and they make for Gladys' room, where Dick's bonnet falls off and he dives under the bed to hide his confusion. Dick and Sam fight—Sam is dragged out and the money found on him. Father claims Dick as his son and Miss Boardem relents. It is, in sooth, "some night."

ALL THE PLAYERS

of prominence in any sized picture can be furnished instantly—WIRE US YOUR WANTS—If you fail to display the face of a popular player who is appearing at your house, you are overlooking an opportunity for larger receipts. THE FACE OF A WELL-KNOWN PLAYER prominently displayed will draw more money than the mere announcement of a name.

LARGE HAND COLORED PICTURES

Size 22 x 28 inches, 75 cents each. Every prominent player.

FAC-SIMILE OIL PAINTINGS, all sizes, from $8 to $25 framed. Quotations submitted on any size, framed or unframed.

THE SEMI-PHOTO POST CARDS, $3.00 PER THOUSAND, of over 600 players. The indispensable article for your mailing list.

PHOTOGRAPHS, SIZE 8 x 10, of all the prominent players; 600 different names, 20c. each.

LARGE PICTURES, HAND COLORED, size 11 x 14, all the prominent players, $2.00 per dozen; in aluminum frames, 50c. each.

GRAVURE FOLDER, containing pictures of the prominent players, including stars from the stage, $8.50 per thousand.

SINGLE COLUMN CUTS of every prominent player, 40c. each.

KRAUS MFG. CO.

220 West 42nd Street, NEW YORK

12th Floor Candler Building

Send for Catalogue of over 600 players and samples free. Write us, giving details of your dull nights, and we will send you a remedy.

PICTURE MACHINES

AT LESS THAN HALF PRICE

EDISON MODEL B, everything new but head, which is entirely rebuilt $100, cost new $225.—MOTIOGRAPH $85, cost new $185.—POWERS 6-A with motor, everything new but head, which is rebuilt, $230, or $185 without motor. Powers No. 5 head on new 6-A outfit, $150. All machines guaranteed first-class condition and complete in every detail, ready to run picture. Lenses to fit any size picture desired.—NEW RHEOSTATS with all machines. Ft. Wayne and B. & H. Inductors, $30 extra with machine in place of Rheostats.—SIMPLEX machine used in sample room display thirty days, $255. Bargains in many other machines; send for complete list Opera and Folding Chairs, all kinds, new and slightly used. Operating Booths that pass inspection.—PICTURE CURTAINS, $5. ROLL TICKETS 7½c. per thousand. Film Cement and Machine Oil 15c. a bottle. All makes and sizes of Carbons. Orders filled same day received.

LEARS THEATRE SUPPLY CO.

509 Chestnut Street St. Louis, Mo.

Kindly Read Page 677

WALK THIS WAY (Jan. 30).—The cast: Betty Gray (Neva Gerber); Harry Brown (Walter Spencer); Miss Tillie Tibbs (Lucille Ward); Mr. Fluff (Robert Klein); Rufe (Jack Gains).

Handsome Harry Brown is in love with pretty Betty Gray, but love's young dream is rudely shattered when their respective sires, lawyers and partners, become quarrelsome and dissolve, not only their partnership, but the "partnership-to-be" of their children. Harry leaves his bulldog, Bobby, with Betty and so that Betty may be made heart-whole once more, old maid aunty, Tillie Tibbs, is sent for from Hay Center to take Betty home with her. All communication being cut off between the lovers, Betty sends word of her going away to Harry via the broad collar of Bobby, the bulldog.

Aunty goes shopping, and in Mr. Fluff, genteel floorwalker, she sees the ideal mate for Betty. Mr. Fluff comes to Hay Center to spend his vacation and in the midst of Aunt Tillie's endeavors to make a "match" Harry turns up and he and Betty elope on a motorcycle. Aunt Tillie and Mr. Fluff pursue in a borrowed junkmobile, with Rube, "the jay boy of all work," hanging on.

In the meantime, Lawyers Brown and Gray have forgotten their temporary disagreement and come to Hay Center in a "bless you, my children" frame of mind. Arrived at the church, Aunt Tillie and Mr. Fluff find they are too late—the knot has been tied. Mr. and Mrs. Gray and Mr. Brown also arrive too late and Aunt Tillie is so disappointed that Betty asks her why she doesn't marry Mr. Fluff herself; whereupon Aunty being more than willing, and Mr. Fluff seeing monetary visions, points to the door of the church, and in his best floorwalker manner says: "Walk This Way."

CASINO.

ALIAS MR. JONES (Jan. 9).—The cast: Dick ("Bud" Ross); Dollie (Rea Martin).

Having tackled matrimony, Dick finds the company of Dollie, his bride, so delightful that when Monday morning comes he forgets all about going to work. Then he dashes frantically out of doors—but the cars are all going the wrong way. Miss Highfly, an old sweetheart, comes along in her automobile. Dick begs her to "rush" him to the office. The two are arrested for speeding. Dick gives his name to the sergeant as "J. Jones." Dick, released, dirties up his clothes and his face, and limps into the office with a tale of being run over by a truck. Dollie arrives, inquiring for her missing husband.

Dick is obliged to stick to his story and remember to limp. Headlines in the morning paper catch the bride's eye. "Joy Rider Arrested, Spooning at 53 Miles an Hour." A picture of Dick and Miss Highfly in the auto accompanies this juicy bit. Dollie confronts Dick with the picture. The latter is forced to invent a double, "J. Jones." The "double" gets the young husband into a series of scrapes which lead to his changing clothes with Dugan, a sport, and impersonating "J. Jones." Dugan, tricked out in Dick's clothes, and mistaken for the real owner of them, is borne home to Dolly, badly smashed up. The young wife sees Dugan's face. She rushes out of the house screaming for the police. Dick, meanwhile, enters with an officer, hastily changes clothes with Dugan, and takes his place on the couch. Dollie, on her return, is convinced that the shock was too much for her. The newlyweds are pacified.

THAN-O-PLAY.

IN THE NAME OF THE LAW (Three Parts—Jan. 11).—The cast: Girl (Gladys Hulette); Mountain Lover (John Lehnberg); Her Father (Morgan Thorpe); Secret Service Officer (Morris Foster).

The life of the southern mountaineers, of moonshiners and illicit stills hidden in the hills affords a rich field of romance for photo-drama. One of the perfect plays of its kind is "In the Name of the Law," scheduled for release by the Mutual Film Corporation. Gladys Hulette, the youthful star, whose intelligence and piquant beauty are strong factors in her rapid rise to fame, plays the part of Daisy Rudyard, the mountain girl, whose love for a young secret service man, Philip Dryden, proves a near-tragedy.

The "Dry Gulch" gang of moonshiners, the story reveals, have so long succeeded in evading the secret service men that at last the star man of the corps is put on the case. Philip Dryden, disguised as an escaped convict, is found, apparently half dead of exposure in the woods, by Jim Rudyard, chief of the moonshiners, who takes the stranger to his home.

Soon after Dryden becomes one of the gang. He and Daisy, Rudyard's daughter, fall in love. From the mountain girl the spy of the Government learns to appreciate how, to the hill folk, the law represents only oppression. He puts off his duty from day to day.

Meanwhile the jealousy of Tim Leech, an old sweetheart of Daisy's, is roused. He tries to kill the stranger. The first time Philip is saved by Daisy. The second time a slashing knife in the grip of his enemy rips from Dryden's shirt, where he has concealed the silver star of his authority. The bit of metal deflects the knife blade, saving Philip's life—but not before Daisy has seen the badge and realized that her lover is a traitor.

While Tim runs for aid, the girl holds Dryden a prisoner at the point of her gun. He tells her that he has lived a lie, but that he has sent no message of betrayal; that love for her has held him back. Daisy lets falls the gun and commands her lover to escape. At this instant Tim, the moonshiners at his heels, bursts into the cabin. As he lifts his gun there is firing from a nearby thicket. Tim falls dead. Then her lover has lied! He had betrayed them to the law. Daisy will not listen to Dryden's denials. But the sheriff of the posse, returning, draws from the pocket of the dead man a letter and hands it to the mountain girl. The note promises Tim Leech the hundred dollars he had asked to inform the authorities against his fellows. The real Judas is revealed —Daisy and Dryden enter upon a new life.

VOGUE.

OH! FOR THE LIFE OF A FIREMAN (Jan. 10).—The cast: Chief Gilbert (Russell Powell); Factory Girl (Priscilla Dean); Clarence Montmorency (Patrick McQuire).

Clarence Montmorency, an effeminate sailor on shore leave, is walking along the street when he witnesses the fire engines passing by. He is so impressed with the bravery and fearlessness the firemen display, that he resolves to be a fireman. To use his own words, "a sailor's life is simply grand, but, oh, for the life of a fireman." He applies at the fire house and is engaged by the Chief. While performing the duties, and going through the routine of a fireman, he encounters many amusing situations, and later proves to be a hero at a factory fire where he is instrumental in saving the life of a very pretty factory girl. How he wins her love in the face of numerous obstacles which are put in his way by the fire captain and a villain are told in a fast and breezy way.

MUTUAL.

MUTUAL WEEKLY NO. 55 (Jan. 20):

San Francisco, Cal.—The Evening Bulletin's 5th annual cross city race is won by Winged "0" Racer; 55 trained runners start. Subtitle: George Wyckoff, the winner.

St. Paul, Minn.—The late Gov. Hammond is buried here with high military honors.

San Francisco, Cal.—Olympic Clubmen revel in ocean surf. Their enjoyable dip is a tribute to California's midwinter climate.

Washington, D. C.—Labor men lay cornerstone of Federation Building. Samuel Gompers and prominent officials take part.

San Francisco, Cal.—Transport Sheridan sails with troops for Philippines.

Kristiania, Norway.—With the Ford Peace Party. The delegates journey to Holmkolm on trolleys to watch the ski jumping.

San Francisco, Cal.—Worst storm in 26 years hits this city; 72-mile-an-hour gale, with rain, kills 3, injures score.

New York City, N. Y.—Fifty thousand pairs of American shoes for Belgian children. Donations for 3,000,000 destitute war victims in France and Belgium may be sent to C. R. B., 71 Broadway, New York City.

Youngstown, O.—Steel mill strikers set city aflame. Looting and threat to break dam spreads terror; 2,000 troops on guard. Subtitle: 8,000 strikers are paid off under militia guard.

New York City.—Italian steamer "Verdi" disobeys U. S. neutrality. Arrives in this port with guns on deck. Government compels the covering of same until dismounted.

New Orleans, La.—General Jackson's famous battle flag is returned to this city. Historic old relic now in its permanent resting place in Battle Abbey.

Pasadena, Cal.—Georgeous floral pageant dazzles great throng. Twenty-seventh annual tournament of roses more resplendent in beauty than ever.

Portland, Me.—German wireless station seized. Hidden in the Maine woods, Emil Mayer's outfit was discovered by operator Brown of the Revenue cutter "Ossipee." U. S. inspectors now in charge.

Parkersburg, W. Va.—Steamboat "Kanawha" rams pier and sinks. River tragedy exacts toll of 20 lives.

WANTED
Dare-Devil Actor

for sensational moving picture series by prominent producer. Young man of personality, preferably with stage or picture experience. Must be capable of unusual exploits. Write qualifications fully.

Address: Dare-Devil, M. P. World, New York.

Successful Concerns
Install
CORCORAN TANKS
Get No. 8 Price List
A. J. CORCORAN, Inc. 11½ JOHN STREET NEW YORK CITY

The only thing cheap about our work is our price
Commercial Motion Pictures Co.
Cliffside 323 Grantwood, N. J.

"NEWMAN"
Brass Frames and Rails

NOW IS THE TIME to fix up your lobby. Throw out those unsightly old wood frames and invest in neat, attractive BRASS FRAMES. You will be surprised how quickly your investment will return to you.
But be sure the name "NEWMAN" appears on all frames—the guarantee of satisfaction.
Write for new 1916 catalog

The Newman Mfg. Co.
NEW YORK 101 Fourth Ave. CINCINNATI 717 Sycamore St. CHICAGO 108 W. Lake St.
Established 1882

FALSTAFF.

BELINDA'S BRIDAL BREAKFAST (Jan. 10).—The cast: Belinda (Barbara Gilroy); Lover (Bert Delaney); Sheriff (Ernest Howard); Wig Maker (Billy Bowers); Burglar (Colin Campbell).

Belinda's father is determined that his daughter's straight locks shall be curly. To this end he makes Belinda eat spinach three times a day. She rebels. So the spinach treatment ends in a midnight elopement. Next morning Belinda orders pickles and pie. Her unhappy husband pounces upon a sensational account in the paper of "Pickle Pete," who, stimulated by his usual rations of Heinz varieties and pie, has just pulled off another big safe robbery. Belinda, mortally insulted, flees home to father, pursued by her husband.

Vaulting into a speeding auto the husband finds hidden in the tonneau fat bundles of bills, a bag of pickles and a half a pie. He then locates the thief under the seat Placing the chill end of a pickle revolverwise against the neck of the crook, Belinda's spouse holds the fellow in subjection. Clem Duzzit and his famous auto hounds trace the fugitives. Pickle Pete takes refuge in a cupboard. By an odd accident, however, the hand-cuffs intended for the husband are shackled round a strange pair of ankles protruding from the cupboard—and Clem is in proud possession of the real crook. Belinda by now has the heart of the mystery. Her husband, obviously, is the cleverest detective in New York. She falls upon his neck, sobbing her forgiveness.

REFORMING RUBBERING ROSIE (Jan. 13).—The cast: Rosie (Arthur Cunningham); her daughter (Barbara Gilroy); her fiance (George Mack); representative Discord Piano Company (Jay Yorke).

For many years Rosie was haunted with one awful fear. She thought the day was fast approaching when she would be too large to hang out of the window from morning to night, and watch what was going on in the streets. But now that dread has been removed. Rosie does not care how fat she gets, for she no longer "rubbers."

The cure took all one day, and it convinced Rosie that many wonderful events happened in the home, unnoticed by the woman who is gazing out of the window. While Rosie "rubbered" her daughter eloped with a fireman, her cat stole the bird from her new Sunday hat, and her son took the bead trimmings from the same article of apparel, finding that the beads made most excellent substitutes for marbles. Also the representative of the Discord Piano Company removed the instrument upon which she was several months in arrears.

As a windup to the day's festivities, the place caught fire, owing to the fact that one of the piano movers had placed the hat of Rosie on the table beside a half-burned cigarette left carelessly there by another helper. As the blaze was confined to the rear of the apartment, Rosie did not know her home was in danger, but she saw the engines going around the corner, and lamented that she was not crosseyed, so she could witness what was happening.

Rosie's daughter and her fiance were just going into a church to be married when the alarm sounded, and he had to leave her when duty called. To his surprise he found it was his mother-in-law's tenement home that was ablaze, and good fortune gave him the opportunity to save her life twice, once when he dragged her shrieking from the window and hurled her into a fire net, and the second time when she returned into the blazing building to rescue her hat, was overcome when she saw how it had been ruined by her son and the cat and again was hurled into the waiting fire net held by the brave "fire laddies." After she had been revived, Rosie was informed of the elopement that had been halted, and was formally asked to accept her two time preserver as a son-in-law. Full of gratitude, she consented, but only on condition that he buy her a new hat, terms which he gleefully agreed to.

SIGNAL FILM CORP.

THE GIRL AND THE GAME (Chapter 5—"The Fight at Signal Station"—Two Parts—Jan. 24).—Storm visits Signal station and tells Helen he is looking for work. Together they seek the construction camp of Amos Rhinelander, Helen's uncle, who happening to be short of men installs Storm as assistant foreman. He learns the need of Rhinelander is a shipment of railroad ties and he is given the responsibility of landing these in the camp.

Mr. Exhibitor:—You will get more helpful information by carefully reading one trade paper weekly than by skimming over three or four. The MOVING PICTURE WORLD is the one paper you need.

Spike, Seagrue's spy in the Rhinelander camp reports to his chief. "Impossible," exclaimed Seagrue, "there are no more ties coming to Rhinelander. His supplies are cut off." Spike insisted the ties were on the way and this was confirmed by Capelle, another Seagrue agent. Then Spike received new and brief instructions: "Those ties must never reach Rhinelander." Spike hastens to the task. He goes to Oceanside and locates the four cars of ties for Rhinelander. His activities arouse the suspicion of railroad detectives and he is promptly chased away, but Spike is a resourceful crook.

He waits at the bridge for the train and swings handily aboard. He works his way forward to the tie cars and clinging to their sides removes Rhinelander's name from the billing cards and substitutes the name of Seagrue. Then the trainmen discover him but he mysteriously eludes them and clambers into the caboose, where he changes the tie way bills so that they read "to Seagrue" instead of "to Rhinelander." The crook has accomplished an artistic bit of deviltry.

Awaiting the ties at Signal Station is a gang of workmen in charge of Storm. Seagrue apprised by a secret code message of Spike's coup also musters a gang in charge of one Delaney who glares menacingly at Storm. Plainly trouble is brewing. Then the train arrives and the conductor, a man of peace immediately becomes the center of an angry bellowing mob. Seagrue demands the production of the doctored way bills. These, as changed, showed Seagrue to be consignee. Rhinelander and Helen are dumfounded and Seagrue's gang triumphantly begins the task of unloading. But Storm insists there is some trickery afoot and following an argument with Delaney lands an unwholesome wallop on that individual's jaw. Helen steps toward her desk to wire for confirmation only to discover the wires have been cut. Outside the two gangs are engaged in a free for all fight. Storm realizing the advantage is to neither plans to capture Seagrue which he does in daring fashion. The loss of their leader had its effect on Seagrue's men.

Helen meantime had climbed a telegraph pole to cut in on the wire with a "pony" instrument and she drops down on top of a box car of the train just as Storm leaps to the engine's throttle and starts to back the train up to Rhinelander's camp. Spike leads a gang to the rescue of Seagrue and then gives chase to the train mounted on a horse. He is successful too, swinging from his saddle to the engine's running board. Then follows a fearful fight in which Helen plays a decisive part. The rival gangs again attack the train only to be interrupted by the arrival of the sheriff and his posse. Spike and Seagrue are put to work with the other men, under the sheriff's guns unloading the cars at Rhinelander's camp.

GAUMONT.

SEE AMERICA FIRST (No. 18, "Milwaukee, Wis."—Jan. 11).—Milwaukee's real charms and picturesqueness have been overshadowed, perhaps, by the great German industry which has "made Milwaukee famous." The pretty Mutual Traveler will attempt to bring some of Milwaukee's wonder spots to the eyes of motion picture spectators. The marvelous harbor, with its tremendous facilities for handling the freightage of the Great Lakes, the drives, parks and residential section, picturesque Water street, the Soldiers' Home and the new Court House are among the places visited. A sight-seeing trip would not be complete, of course, without a glimpse of the breweries, so the Traveler takes her spectators with her to see the production of Milwaukee's greatest commodity.

KEEPING UP WITH THE JONESES (Jan. 11).—In the second half of the reel, Harry Palmer, the cartoonist, puts "Pa" McGinnis through his paces for "Ma" and "Julie" in the animated comic, "Keeping Up with the Joneses."

MUTUAL MASTERPICTURE DE LUXE.

THE THOROUGHBRED (American—Five Parts—Jan. 17).—The cast: Kelso Hamilton (William Russell); Angela Earle (Charlotte Burton); Carewe (Roy Stewart); Jessie (Lizette Thorne); Tom Cook (Jack Prescott). Directed by Charles Bartlett.

So that he may recover his losses and be able to propose to Angela, Kelso Hamilton has plunged heavily on Union Consolidated. A bear raid on U. C. finds Hamilton in his office feverishly watching the tape, as the figures drop from 50, and he realizes that if it reaches 42 he is wiped out. As the stock touches 47, Hamilton rushes to his broker, who threatens to sell him out at 42, and pleads with him to avail. The big board records 42 for U. C. Hamilton is ruined.

of Hamilton's ruin brings grief to Angreat shock to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earle, and wild joy to George Carewe, Earle's secretary, who does not love Angela but hopes to make her Mrs. Carewe for the sake of her money. For some years he has been secretly making love to Angela's maid, Jessie Cook. But Carewe's hopes are blasted for Angela offers her fortune to Hamilton to pay his losses. Carried away by her generosity, Hamilton tells her that he loves her and that he will go west and make good. Angela promises to wait.

Jessie learns that Carewe has only been playing with her, and she goes to the cottage of her father, Tom Cook. When Cook comes home and learns the cause of Jessie's grief, he starts in a rage for the Earl home. He finds entrance to George Carewe's room and there waits for him. He is discovered by Carewe's valet and in a desperate struggle the valet falls and Cook realizes that he is a murderer. Carewe hides some cards in the pocket of Hamilton's smoking jacket. Carewe accuses him of cheating, insists that he be searched and the evidence is so plain that Mr. Earl insists the engagement be broken. Angela pleads for Hamilton and will not believe him guilty. Tom escapes and hunted by the memory of the murdered man, he shaves off his beard and steals away on a freight train.

With Angela's promise to wait until his name is cleared, Hamilton goes to the West. Tom Cook gets aboard the brake beams of the Limited on which is Hamilton. The Limited is stopped by bandits a little farther on, and Hamilton, watching his chance, jumps the bandit left and rear guard. They fight desperately. Hamilton's hold is broken and the bandit is about to fire on him, when Cook crawls from under the car and saves the life of Hamilton. Cook tells Hamilton a hard luck story and Hamilton tells him he will give him work when he purchases a ranch.

Carewe, rid of Hamilton, presses his suit but is repulsed. Mr. Earle purchases mining property in the Santa Ynez Mountains and persuades all of his friends to invest. This property in the meantime has proven very rich, but the manager, an unscrupulous fellow, and a friend of Carewe's, writes to him that he has reported to Earle very serious conditions at the mine. He also stirs up the Mexican miners so that the stock depreciates in value and sends to Carewe a draft with which to purchase all the stock he can secure as the market falls. Carewe spreads damaging rumors about the stock and buys it in. Earle is blamed by his friends for their losses and with Mrs. Earle, Angela, Carewe, his secretary, and Angela's maid, Jessie, goes to California to make a personal investigation.

Meanwhile Hamilton has purchased a fully equipped ranch and endears himself to his employes, especially Cook who would like to clear Hamilton's name but is daunted by his own guilt. A band of cattle rustlers make inronds on Hamilton's herds, and he and his men pursue them into the hills. Earle's party arrive at the mine and they are none too safe, for the manager, to cover his knavery has worked the Mexicans into a frenzy against the head of the company, whom they think has been unjust to them. The party has hardly arrived when they are forced to seek refuge behind barricades in the manager's house. The Mexicans make an attack and a stray shot hits the powder house, which explodes and illuminates the surrounding country. Hamilton and his men hear the explosion, see the reflection of the fire, and anticipating trouble at the mine, ride toward it.

The Mexicans succeed in firing the house and the members of the party are about to make a rush when Hamilton and his men arrive. Hamilton, seeing a woman, carries her to safety and finds that he has rescued Angela. Earle extends his hand to thank their rescuer, sees who it is and takes Angela from him, with a word of thanks and good-bye. Cook is almost overcome by the sight of the man whom he thought he had murdered, but whom he had only stunned. He then tells the story that clears Hamilton and demands that Carewe marry Jessie; but Jessie has found a substitute for Carewe's false love in the unselfish love of the valet and Angela and Hamilton are once more united.

THE FIVE FAULTS OF FLO (Thanhouser—Five Parts—Jan. 20).—The cast: Flo (Florence La Badie); Fiance (Harris Gordon); Reckless Millionaire (Samuel Niblack); Flo's Father (Ernest Howard); Timid Little Girl (Grace De Carlton); Society Woman (Bertha Smith), Countess (Helen Eldridge).

Memories of the past came to Flo one night when she overheard her husband telling a friend that his wife has no faults. Flo knew

Kindly Read Page 677

MR. EXHIBITOR
You ask for better light. Here It Is.
TransVerteR
THE HERTNER ELECTRIC & MFG. CO.
Dept. W. Cleveland, Ohio, U. S. A.

THE STERLING
CAMERA & FILM CO.
Manufacturers of Feature Film Productions
Commercial, Industrial and other Camera Work a Specialty. All Work Guaranteed
145 W. 45th St., New York, N. Y.

Get acquainted with the
ERBOGRAPH WAY
of Developing and Printing
ERBOGRAPH COMPANY
203-11 West 146th St., New York City

The Strelinger catalogue of
BRUSH ELECTRIC LIGHTING SETS
tells why direct current is very much better than alternating current for moving picture shows. Send for it.
THE CHAS. A. STRELINGER CO.,
Box MP-2, Detroit, Mich., U. S. A.

Features For Sale
Write the largest film brokers in the country for your wants. We have everything. Dramatic, sensational, animal, Western. See us first.
Wisconsin-Illinois Feature Release Co.
Mallers Building, Chicago

For POSTERS
Goes Lithographing Co
Chicago

The First Moving Picture Journal in Europe
The Kinematograph Weekly
The reliable Trade organ of Gt. Britain; covering the whole of the British Film market, including the American imported films. Read by everyone in the industry. Specialist writers for Finance, Technical Matters, Legal, Musical, Foreign Trading (correspondents throughout the world)—and every section devoted to the Kinematograph. Specimen copy on application to:—
The Kinematograph Weekly, Ltd.
9-11 Tottenham Street, London, W. Eng.

that during her life she had been the slave of five faults: Pride, Envy, Fickleness, Extravagance, and Jealousy. When a school girl Flo was full of pride, for her father was in comfortable circumstances and was able to send her to a fashionable institution. One day a new pupil arrived, a timid little girl. Flo took a dislike to her because the new comer's father was a man of no position. She snubbed the little girl and kept her out of the chief school society. One night Flo and some of her chums were holding a party. They heard a cry from outside, and saw a rope made from a sheet dangling from the next window and the girl writhing in pain on the ground below. Evidently she had started to climb out of the window, lost her grip and fallen. She rose to her feet and hobbled off painfully. Flo and the others went into the next room, the school home of the timid little girl. The place was empty, but on the table was a pathetic little note. The lonely child wrote that she had tried so hard to make the other girls love her, but failed. She could not remain in school, she was afraid to return home, so had determined to go out into the world and seek work. Flo knew that she was to blame, and when she found the timid little girl told her that she would change her attitude toward her.

As a debutante Flo was envious. But she believed that this fault of hers was cured when she attended a week-end party and witnessed the trapping of a thief who had stolen a priceless diamond upon which Flo had cast covetous glances.

As a society girl, Flo was fickle. She flirted with many men and was secretly engaged to the young electrical engineer who later became her husband. There was another man, a wealthy young idler, with whom Flo went motoring. While they were out the young idler imbibed too freely. Reckless of danger he drove ahead at top speed. Fortunately for the girl they encountered the young engineer, driving his own auto. He saved his sweetheart but the intoxicated millionaire drove his car over a cliff and was killed. This incident taught Flo another lesson, and she gave up her fickleness.

As a daughter Flo was extravagant. Her father was foolishly fond of her and she never realized that her own expenses and those of the home were rapidly bringing him close to ruin. Finally the father made a personal appeal to his wealthy elder brother but the latter refused to loan him a cent. The two men were talking in a room on the ground floor and a servant girl outside the door heard angry words, and heard her master say that the other man would never get a cent while he (the elder brother) lived. Then there was a shot and the maid who immediately rushed into the room found her master dead upon the floor and his brother standing near him. On the floor was a revolver, one chamber of which had been discharged. Flo's father was arrested, and sentenced to death. On the day set for the execution, Flo's sweetheart found the real assassin. He had been employed by the victim as his gardener and had been discharged. In vindictive rage he had fired through the window killing his ex-employer, dropped the gun inside of the window and made good his escape. He had been injured in a street accident later and on his death-bed made the confession that cleared an innocent man. The realization that her own extravagance had placed her father's life in peril cured Flo of extravagance.

As a bride Flo was jealous. One day she saw her husband reading a letter. He dropped it on the tabel as he went to the telephone. She picked it up and read it. The letter read as follows:

My dear boy: I'll give you until Saturday night to square your dealings with me. If you stay away I'll expose you. Yours, Stella Riccardo.

Flo believed this was a love letter to her husband. It was really a note his ne'er-do-well brother had received from the woman proprietor of a fashionable gambling house. Through the telephone directory Flo found the address of Miss Riccardo, met her maid, and by paying her liberally induced the girl to go away and substitute Flo in her place. Her husband was in ignorance of her plan, for she had left word for him that her aunt in a distant city was very ill and she had gone there. Thus Flo was in the gambling house when her husband called and she overheard his conversation with Stella Riccardo. To her joy, she learned the real truth and was stricken with remorse, because of her jealousy. The police raided the place and all were in danger of arrest. Stella escaped through a panel in the wall. Flo's husband was too much excited to move until his wife rushed into the room, grabbed him by the hand and dragged him into the secret passage way, just before the panel swung back into place. From this place they went upstairs. A rope was dangling from a window which made it possible to swing across the court-yard to the window of an adjoining building. Stella was just about to make the leap when the other appeared. It flustered her, she swung out hastily, the rope slipped from her hands and she fell to the pavement below. Undaunted by this accident Flo and her husband got safely away.

Coming out of her reverie, Flo thought of the words her husband uttered and mused to herself, "Even if one has faults they really do not count if one's friends and relatives believe they do not exist."

AS A WOMAN SOWS (Gaumont—Five Parts—Jan. 24).—The cast: Loren Hayward (Alexander Gaden); Milly Hayward (Gertrude Robinson); Bobby Hayward (Covington Barrett); Robert Chapman (John Rheinhard); Joseph Willoughby (Charles W. Travis); Loren's Aunt Abbie (Mathilde Baring); Georgia, her niece (Yvonne Chappelle). Written by O. A. Nelson. Directed by William H. Haddock.

Milly Hayward was discontented because her husband gave the best of his time and attention to his duties as the new Mayor of Lynboro—duties which crowded her out of his life. Innocently she confided her pique to Loren's Aunt Abbie and to Georgia, two women who had always hoped that Loren would marry Georgia. They advised her to start a flirtation to rouse Loren, and suggested Robert Chapman.

The flirtation proved a boomerang. Chapman, encouraged, tried to kiss Milly by force. Loren, happening upon the scene, whipped Chapman, took his little son, Bobby, and ordered Milly from the house. Meanwhile Loren continued his preparations to prosecute Joseph Willoughby, a contractor and political power, for municipal graft. Milly went to Loren's office to make a final plea. While there she accidentally brushed into her open traveling bag the documentary evidence on which Loren relied to convict Willoughby.

Stealing Bobby from her husband's new home, she fled to another city. There she was followed by Chapman and also by Loren, who believed that she took the Willoughby papers intentionally. Loren arrived just in time to meet Milly and Chapman together. Seizing little Bobby, he denounced them both and left. But when Bobby and Loren lay ill with fever, Milly's love led her back, when she and Loren patched up their differences. She returned the Willoughby papers, which she had discovered when she unpacked her bag. The Haywards decided to give a party to celebrate their reunion. During the party, Loren was called to his office. Burglars, in the pay of politicians, had broken in, hoping to secure the Willoughby documents. Milly retired, suffering with a headache. The attention of Chapman was distracted by a flirtation with a pretty maid as he went upstairs for his overcoat and hat, and it was quite inadvertently that he entered Milly's room just as Loren came in the front door and started up the stairs.

Fearing to lose her husband for the second time, through no fault of her own, Milly locked her door to gain time. As she did so, the burglars, still after the Willoughby papers, entered through the window. When Loren finally got the door open, he found only his wife in a faint and a dead burglar. So Milly's honor was vindicated.

LORD LOVELAND DISCOVERS AMERICA (American—Five Parts—Jan. 27).—The cast: Lord Loveland (Arthur Maude); Leslie Dearmer (Constance Crawley); Bill Willing (William Carroll); Major Hunter (Charles Newton); Tony Kidd (William Frawley); Alex (George Clancy); Izzy (Nell Franzen).

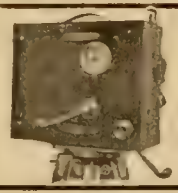
Lord Loveland in England is besieged by his creditors and consults his mother as to what he should do. He is advised to go to America and marry an heiress. He plans to sail on a certain ship, but at the eleventh hour he changes his plans and departs for America on another vessel without informing relatives of the change.

Meanwhile, in England, his valet, at not having been paid a year, impersonates Lord Loveland. He arrives in New York's expensive hotel and soon discovers he has but forty dollars in his pocket. He goes to bank and presents a letter of credit, but the bank informs him that there is a bogus Lord

(Continued on

FULCO FULCO FULCO FULCO
Moving Picture Exhibitors
Get your supplies from FULCO the house that carries everything you need
E. E. FULTON CO., 152 W. Lake St., Chicago
FULCO FULCO FULCO FULCO

There Is No Program So Good That One of Our Features Cannot Improve
Pasquali, Terriss Feature Film and Interstate Feature Film
MASTERPIECES
Picture Playhouse Film Co.
71 W. 23rd St. New York City



L. A. MOTION PICTURE CO.
Manufacturers of high grade studio equipment
215-217 E. Washington Street
LOS ANGELES, CAL.

HARRY K. LUCAS
"THE SUPPLY KING"
ATLANTA —— GEORGIA
THEATRES EQUIPPED THRUOUT. FIVE YEARS OF UNINTERRUPTED SUCCESS. 50 PAGE ILLUSTRATED SUPPLY CATALOGUE FOR THE OPERATOR OR MANAGER. WRITE.

Central Film Co.
H. A. Spanuth, Mgr.
110 S. State St. Chicago

Have You Read Page 677?

EXHIBITORS
Don't "wait" for business
"Go after it"
with a
DEAGAN ELECTRIC UNA-FON
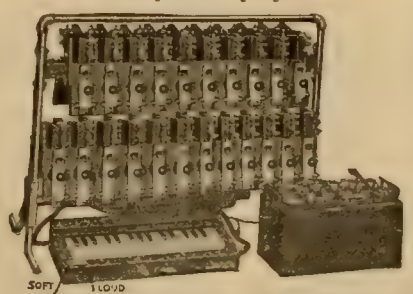
as a
Street and Lobby Ballyhoo
A 12-piece Brass Band in a 31-inch space. Weighs 125 pounds.
Your pianist plays it.


Write for Catalog "F" and Free Trial Offer
J. C. DEAGAN
DEAGAN BLDG. 1776 BERTEAU AVE.
CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

CAI
Tic
F
Embody Ticket Se
Theatre Record I request.
CAILLE BP

Triangle Audiences Pay Two Admissions

Probably one of the greatest proofs of TRIANGLE SUPREMACY is the fact that exhibitors are constantly wiring us that many of their patrons continually pay two admissions to see the same performance over again. Many a moving-picture fan is so thrilled with the breath-taking action in an exciting drama, or so highly amused at the swift-moving comedy in the Keystone that the small matter of another admission price is not considered.

Pocatello, Idaho,
January 4th, 1916.

W. S. Rand,
TRIANGLE FILM CORPORATION,
Denver, Colorado.
TRIANGLE opened Orpheum Theatre today. Enormous crowds. Everybody highly pleased. Pictures scored heavily. SOME PATRONS CAME TWICE IN SAME DAY.

DON CARROTHERS.

St. Paul, Minn,
January 3rd, 1916.

Mr. Arthur Lucas,
TRIANGLE FILM CORPORATION,
Philadelphia, Pa.
Opened TRIANGLE PROGRAMME January 2nd to capacity houses all day. Show great. Wonderful photography, beautiful directing, and supreme acting. Great applause and enthusiasm from patrons.

STRAND AMUSEMENT COMPANY.

It is this kind of testimony week after week that PROVES the quality and value of TRIANGLE PLAYS to the exhibitor. They please the patrons and force returns in through the box office windows which is what most interests the exhibitor.

HAS YOUR CONTRACT BEEN ACCEPTED?

TRIANGLE FILM CORPORATION
71 WEST 23rd ST. NEW YORK

January 23rd Releases A Triangle Triumph

It is easy for you to appreciate the bewitching charm and delightful fascination of such an alluring atmospheric TRIANGLE PLAY as "The Wood Nymph" in which Marie Doro makes her TRIANGLE debut, and when your patrons first witness this superb production with its beauty and sweetness they will be so impressed that their unsolicited recommendations will create a quantity of business for the second performance.

Willard Mack, the popular Broadway star, who has made such a marked success in many other TRIANGLE PLAYS appears this week in a five reel drama, "The Conqueror," a play of notable strength and absorbing interest. Based on a vital life problem many fathers and mothers are trying to work out this engrossing picture strikes home and commands the consideration and careful thought of every one of your patrons. It will make a distinct impression.

As for the two comedies that they are Keystones is almost enough. But when you know that these two pictures, "A Movie Star" and "Perils of the Park," have more than their share of that thousand-laughs-a-minute rattling-Gatling quality, their success is assured.

TRIANGLE FILM CORPORATION
71 WEST 23rd ST NEW YORK

(Continued from page 665.)

to honor the draft. Disgusted, Lord Loveland returns to his hotel, where he finds he has no credit. He is ejected and his baggage is held in lieu of the bills he has already accumulated at the hostelry. Lord Loveland is alone in a strange world and with forty cents in his pocket. He applies to a friend for aid, but the friend, thinking the card presented is that of the bogus Lord Loveland, refuses to even see the visitor.

Disheartened and disgusted, the nobleman betakes himself to Central Park, where through the thrilling rescue by Lord Loveland of a mongrel puppy, he forms a fast friendship with one Bill Willing, a likeable old man out of work. Willing takes Lord Loveland to a cheap hotel where his forty cents is more than sufficient to procure two beds. In the morning he takes the English peer to a restaurant where in payment for meals, Willing draws artistic signs which advertise the day's tempting viands at Alex's restaurant. Lord Loveland, attired in evening clothes and monocle, has no trouble in getting employment as a waiter. He hopes thus to earn sufficient funds to pay his passage back to the dear old British Isles, but Tony Kidd, an enterprising New York reporter, learns of the monocled waiter and writes a story for his paper. Crowds come daily to Alex's restaurant to be waited on by this unique garcon. Among them is Leslie Dearmer, a woman playwright with whom Lord Loveland had become acquainted on shipboard. There is an explosion in the kitchen and the guests flee panic-stricken from Alex's restaurant. Lord Loveland becomes a hero when he extinguishes the blaze and causes the guests to return to their tables.

Later, he loses his job through the apparent affection he has for Izzy, who is Alex's daughter. He takes up with a 10-20-30-cent troupe of theatrical players with whom he plays minor parts. Miss Dearmer seeks out the manager of Lord Loveland's troupe, intending to sue that individual for the use of one of her copyrighted plays. She calls and is surprised when her gaze meets that of the British nobleman. To her, the Lord relates his plight and she engages him as her chauffeur. The nobleman falls head over heels in love with his fair employer. The two are out for a spin when the Englishman summons up courage and declares his love. So ardent does he become in his proposal that he fails to heed the path his automobile is taking. The machine leaves the road, crashes into a tree and both ocupants are thrown violently from their seats. When consciousness returns, Miss Dearmer is in Lord Loveland's arms, and the two plight their troth.

The tide of Lord Loveland's fortunes have turned. By a combination of circumstances, he becomes recognized as the real Lord Loveland and he is restored to the position which is rightfully his. Henceforth, all is love and happiness and the nobleman has no desire again to see dear old Britain's shores.

THE IDOL OF THE STAGE (Gaumont—Five Parts—Week of January 31).—The cast: Philip Van Kortland, known to the stage as Edwin Hargrave, famous Broadway star (Malcolm Williams); Van Kortland (Chas. W. Travis); Morton, Philip's old friend (John Mackin); Doris Morton (Lucille Taft); Clark Porter (Richard Garrick); Robert Mitchell (James Levering); Marion Mitchell, his daughter (Helen Marten); Edwin (Charles Winston); Superintendent of Convict Camp (Harry Chira); Dr. Brown (James Arbuckle, Jr.); Reporter (Allan Robinson). Directed by Richard Garrick. Written by Paul M. Bryan.

Proud of his Knickerbocker descent, the Elder Van Kortland is ashamed of his son, Philip, for having adopted the stage for a profession. Although Philip is famous as a Broadway Star under the name of Edwin Hargrave, his father begs him to give up the stage and marry the daughter of an old friend. Hargrave refuses to give up his life-work or to marry a girl whose name he does not even know, much less a girl whom he has never seen. He departs on a western tour. While playing a week in a Western city he meets and falls in love with Doris Morton, not knowing that she is the girl his father hoped he would marry. Her father, not knowing that Hargrave and Van Kortland are one and the same, tells Doris he would rather see her dead than married to an actor. Philip and Doris elope and are married.

Philip and his wife go to Chicago, where he is booked to play several weeks. Here she falls ill, and the actor learns that long and careful nursing will be required to restore her health. He watches over her until his own health is wrecked from his stage work and sleepless nights nursing her. While building up his own constitution, he becomes a victim of narcotic drugs. Leaving Doris in charge of a nurse, Philip continues his tour. When this ends he accepts a position as leading man of a Southern stock company to get money to pay the expenses of his wife's long illness. Marion, daughter of the manager, falls in love with him—not knowing that he is married. His mind clouded by a drug, Philip wanders into a Chinese Opium den masked as a curio shop. Here Marion follows him. Philip pretends he is buying a bracelet. This he gives her to allay suspicion, but later she finds him smoking in a back room.

Trying to get the actor away from the den, she puts her diamond ring on his finger coquettishly telling him it is in exchange for the bracelet. Finally curiosity overcomes her, and despite Philip's objection she tries Opium smoking. Philip's senses are deadened by the drug and he does not know the effect it has on her until he awakens the next morning to find Marion in a nearby bunk. Realizing the situation, Hargrave resigns from the company as soon as he has safely led Marion from the Opium den. Marion sees the note to her father which says Hargrave, as he is known, must rejoin his wife in Chicago. Her love turns to hate. When Philip reaches Chicago Marion has him arrested for stealing her diamond ring.

Mentally irresponsible because of his drug-habit, Philip cannot make the fight that he should. He weakly pleads guilty, despite his duty to his wife, so that Marion, whom he considered had been kind to him, should not be compromised because of her visit to the Opium den in an effort to save him. The convicted man is sent to a convicts camp. Here Doris visits him. She arouses the passion of Clark Porter, a "Trusty" who secretly supplies Philip with morphine when told that Philip will be free as soon as he is cured of his craving for narcotics. Through trickery Porter gets an account of Doris' visits to the camp into a blackmailing society paper, making it appear that she is coming to see him. Doris is thereafter refused admittance and Porter thinks to win her when his short term expires. Doris disappears and leaves no trace of her whereabouts, her story not having been believed. When her baby son is born she does not communicate with her husband or her family.

Because of the story in the society paper, Philip thinks his wife has deserted him. When he leaves prison he goes into business forsaking the stage. Finally he establishes himself in the city where Doris is living, her son now old enough to contribute to her support by selling newspapers. On the night of a benefit performance of "Ingomar," the hero is taken ill. The elder Van Kortland, who is visiting his son, suggests that Philip play the part. He does so on short notice. Doris is in the audience and recognizes him. Already Philip has been drawn to the little newsboy, his own son, and it is through giving the lad tickets that Doris happened to be present at the performance.

On the way home from the theater, Doris is recognized by Porter, now a tramp. He follows her and forces his attentions upon her. The boy, seeking help, appeals to Philip and the elder Van Kortland. They rush to aid the boy's mother, and are overcome with surprise to learn that the woman is Doris. Philip forces a confession from the tramp, thus learning of his wife's innocense. The two are reconciled, and Philip's father is so softened that he even agrees that his grandson may follow the stage as a profession without protest.

COMPENSARC

That's the device that saves Moving Picture men two-thirds on their electric light bills, and yet gives better light. Did you see our ad last week? Well, don't look it up. Just write for our

BOOKLET 15018

FORT WAYNE ELECTRIC WORKS
of General Electric Company
1402 Broadway
FORT WAYNE, INDIANA
733

—FEATURE FILMS—

Three, four and five reel subjects, with paper,
$10.00 per reel
Two reel subjects, with paper,
$7.50 per reel
Single subjects, with paper
$5.00 per reel
Splendid comedies, all makes
G. W. Bradenburgh
802 Vine Street Philadelphia

EVERYTHING-FOR-YOUR-PLAYHOUSE
HOMMEL'S
COMMERCIAL BUILDING
422 FIRST AVE
PITTSBURGH, PA.
We Will Equip Your Theatre Completely
REPAIR PARTS
SUPPLIES
MACHINES

Shipped from Stock.
You will be pleased and it will pay you if you
Send Your Next Order to Hommel's

Perfect Developing and Printing

Your negative developed, printed, titled and shipped within TWELVE HOURS
5c. per foot complete
Special price on quantity orders.
TITLES in any language.
6c. per foot
Cards Free—Tinting Free
Satisfaction guaranteed by our fifteen years' experience.
GUNBY BROS., Inc.
145 West 45th Street New York City

THEATRE RECORD LEDGER

The theatre man's bookkeeping system for recording receipts and expenses. Every item of expense and receipts all on one sheet—52 sheets under one cover.
Price $2.50 (include 20c extra for postage)
Meniscus-Biconvex Condensers
Imported and carried exclusively by us. This Condenser will improve your projection 100%. Recommended by every authority. Price $4.00 per pair (20c. for postage.)
Northwestern Motion Picture Equip. Co.
J. V. BRYSON, Pres. MINNEAPOLIS

Don't Fail to Read Page 677

MENGER & RING, Inc.
MANUFACTURERS OF
Poster and Lobby Display Frames
384-6 W. 42d St., NEW YORK
Phone Bryant 6621-22

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

PATHE NEWS NO. 3 (Jan. 8).

New York City.—Italian passenger liner Guiseppe Verdi arrives from Naples with two 3-inch guns on her afterdeck to repel hostile submarines.

New York City.—After sailing 15,000 miles the cadets of the Schoolship Newport arrive home by steamship companies to officer their boats. Subtitle: The cadets are inspected before they leave for a short vacation after which they will take up duty as officers on merchant steamers.

Slough, England.—Cattle raised on the famous farms of King George are sold at auction at the annual show.

Lewisham, England.—Men of the Twentieth London Regiment are cheered as they parade with guns taken from the Germans at Loos.

Aldershot, England.—Lord Derby, at the close of his recruiting campaign, reviews some of the 2,950,514 men who responded to his appeal to enlist.

New York City.—Passengers from the waterlogged liner Thessaloniki are rescued by the S. S. Patris after being tossed for six weeks in Atlantic storms. Subtitle: Rev. Dr. Glavas, a Greek priest, who worked tirelessly to hearten his fellow passengers.

Uncle Sam's Activities.—How the Government serves the people of the United States. Pictures taken by special sanction of the Government departments. Subtitles: Marvelous new machines, each of which prints a million stamps every two hours, are installed in the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. George Stickney, inventor of the new machine. Gumming the backs of stamps. A finished roll of 600,000 stamps worth $12,000. The perforating device which has a capacity of 90,000,000 stamps every six hours. Coiling stamps for use in vending machines.

Cambridge, Mass.—Harvard students, members of the newly-organized boxing squad, spar in an open air ring in the snow.

Winchendon, Mass.—The delights of tobogganing and skiing thrill Boston society folk at annual winter carnival here.

Centralia, Wash.—Many families are driven from their homes when the Skookum Church River overflows its banks and floods the town.

Portland, Ore.—High school boys join the national guard and naval militia and take the first step towards the Swiss military school system. Subtitle: Boys of the naval militia take the oath on the U. S. S. Boston.

PATHE NEWS NO. 4 (Jan. 12).

New York City.—Captain and crew of the Greek liner Thessaloniki, which was left to sink after being storm-tossed for eight weeks, are landed by the S. S. Perugia. 1. Captain Goulandis (right) who refused to ask for aid and Chief Engineer Constantakos. 2. The wireless operator (center) who was forbidden to sound the S. O. S. call.

Washington, D. C.—Cornerstone of new American Federation of Labor headquarters is laid by President Samuel Gompers.

Cleveland, Ohio.—Flaming warehouse crashes on dwellings when walls buckle in $100,000 fire.

Pathe's Paris Fashions.—In Natural Colors. 1. A simple afternoon dress of Georgette crepe with folds of satin. 2. A tight fitting walking suit trimmed with red fox. 3. Evening cloak of black velvet with cape of embroidered gold lace. 4. A Laforriere creation of gold lace for evening wear.

Parkersburg, W. Va.—The old river packet Kanawha strikes pier and sinks when the guiding lights on the banks of the Ohio are blown out in a violent storm.

Seattle, Wash.—Seven inches of snow fall here and the young folk welcome the unusual opportunity to enjoy winter sports.

Tia Juana, Mexico.—Sporting devotees of two Continents gather just across the border for the opening of the newly organized 100-day meet. Subtitle: Holtville, with C. Kelsay up, wins the Inaugural Handicap.

Los Angeles, Cal.—Winter lays her icy grip on this section and the orange groves are mantled with snow for the first time in twenty years.

East Youngstown, O.—Ten thousand rioting laborers fire and destroy two-thirds of this town, causing $1,500,000 property loss and the sacrifice of many lives. Subtitles: 1. Destruction and desolation greet the eye at every turn. 2. Three thousand state militia are rushed from nearby towns. 3. The bridge connecting the factories and the town is burned to prevent the rioters advancing on the plants. 4. Dangerous walls of burned structures are demolished. 5. All liquor is confiscated by the troops. 6. Employees of the works are paid under guard.

FROM KABYLIA TO CONSTANTINE (Picturesque Algeria—Photocolor—Jan. 11).—The region of Kabylia, in northeast Algeria, is one of the wonderlands of the earth. "From Kabylia to Constantine," we take an automobile from this garden spot of Africa, through some of the most wonderful mountain country in the world, over the most modern roads, past small tile-roofed villages, until the town of Constantine is reached. This is an interesting picture, dealing as it does with the most picturesque part of this country, and showing many of the peculiar native customs.

UNFAMILIAR FISHES (Globe—Jan. 11—On same reel as foregoing).—The waters of the tropical countries of the world just teem with peculiar fish life, the most unusual of which are shown in this picture. Finny creatures from the Amazon River, South America; the streams of India, and the waters of the West Indies are shown in close foreground, thus portraying vividly all their characteristics.

LUKE LUGS LUGGAGE (Phunphilms—Jan. 12).—"Lonesome Luke" is a baggage smasher at the terminal of a railroad. He got the job by answering a newspaper ad which announced the work to be "light and the pay good." But many and arduous are the duties which he is required to perform. Large and small trunks, live stock, bundles, boxes and all sorts of stuff comes under his care and he gets away with it fairly well. Yes, until a large billy goat of the long horn species comes his way. This fellow, with his well developed tendency to buck anything and anybody in his path, leads Luke a merry chase. He is thrown about hither and yon, but finally conquers him. Next, however, comes a large box of dynamite which Luke is supposed to ship. The thing blows up and our hero is wafted several miles by the force of the explosion. The last we see of him is when he lands on the top rung of a friendly telegraph pole.

FROM BAD TO WORSE (Starlight—Jan. 15).—Daisy goes out rowing and falls overboard in full sight of Heinie and Louie. Of course it's up to them to do the rescuing honors, but before they are through Heinie is compelled to pull both Daisy and his pal from the briny. He uses heroic treatment on the pair, and is rewarded by Daisy with an invitaton to call on her. He does this and receives a vast sum of money for his services in the life saving line. But while at the house, Daisy's husband puts in his appearance and Heinie takes it on the run—aided and abetted in his flight by a .44 in the hands of friend husband. He takes Louie with him in the sprint and the only way they can escape the husband and the .44 is by jumping overboard. This they do and the last we see of them is when their heads sink beneath the waves.

Triangle Film Corp.

A MOVIE STAR (Keystone—Two-part—Jan. 23).—The cast: A Film Idol (Mack Swain); His Wife (Polly Moran); A Fan (Harry Gribbon); His Company (Julia Faye).

Mack Swain, the great hero actor, goes to see himself in the pictures. Everybody in the audience cheers and applauds when they find out that Swain is present. Julia Faye is sitting next to Mack and she neglects her escort, Harry Gribbon, to flirt with the actor. Harry tries to attract her attention, but she is always looking at the star by her side or his representation on the screen. All the other girls in the vicinity are envying Julia, but Mack has only occasional glances for them, his main interest being in her.

Gribbon is bit worst of all, when Mack bears the girl off, when the show is over. All the girls crowd around Mack and seek to get a word, or at least a glance from him, but he has only eyes for pretty Julia. They finally reach the street and everybody is shouting his name and pointing him out. Then along comes Mack's wife, Polly Moran, with a baby in her arms and several children of different ages tagging at her heels. She gives a start, when she sees Mack and Julia. Then she descends upon him and administers some hard slaps and cuffs on his face. Mack tries to get away from Polly, but she grabs him by an ear and bears him away.

PERILS OF THE PARK (Keystone—Jan. 23).—The cast: A Lively Husband (Harry Gribbon); His Wife (Alice Davenport); The Maid (Marie Manley); The Gardner (Harry McCoy).

Harry Gribbon gets into some funny mixups with his wife over his fondness for the maid. The whole trouble started when Alice Davenport, the wife, saw Gribbon hugging pretty Marie Manley, the maid. What made it worse for Gribbon was the fact that it was wifie's birthday. Alice stamped her feet and refused all of hubby's pleas for forgiveness. To square himself, Gribbon stole the locket he had just given to Marie and presented it to Alice for a birthday present.

Gribbon was in hot water again. This time it was Marie that nourished a grouch. He liked the maid and was bound to make it up with her. As he was walking around, he spied Harry McCoy, the gardener. Gribbon sent McCoy to recover the locket. McCoy stole the ornament and Alice's money, but left her purse. Meanwhile Gribbon took the maid to a cafe, but found he had no money. He went out and saw his wife in the park. While she was looking the other way, he deftly got away with her purse. After the pair had eaten dinner, Gribbon looked in his wife's purse and found it empty. Again he went outside. In the park he noticed McCoy. After a struggle he got the locket and the money the gardener had stolen. It made McCoy angry and he called the police. As the officers entered the cafe, Alice went in with them.

Just then Gribbon was hanging the locket around Marie's neck. Alice ran at him brandishing her arms, her face furious with anger. There was a wild turmoil created by the entrance of the police and Alice's actions. In the excitement the guests were panic-stricken. Chairs and tables were upset as people rushed in all directions. It all ended with a march to the station of the guilty gardener followed by Alice and Gribbon as witnesses against him.

THE PRICE OF POWER (Fine Arts—Five Parts—Jan. 30).—The cast: Orrin Johnson, F. J. McDonald, Marguerite Marsh, Spottswoode Aitken, Sam DeGrasse, Gladys Brockwell, Vera Lewis, Clyde Hopkins, Daisy Robinson.

John Belmont is a clever mechanic in a New England mill. He is somewhat attracted by a girl named Marie Donavon, but the more physical charms of Jennie cause him to marry her in spite of her loose morals. She gives birth to a boy. After a time, Belmont gets tired of the quiet home life and monotonous toil and leaves for the South. There his ability finds full scope and he becomes a rich factory owner. He is married to a society butterfly under his assumed name of Roberts. She becomes the mother of an idle drone of a son, Claude.

Belmont, or Roberts, as he is now known, returns to the mill town where he used to live in poverty. He gets control of the mill in which he used to work. He is not recognized by the inhabitants, because of the change that years and prosperity have made in him. He recognizes his son, Dave, as one of the factory workers, but doesn't dare to claim him on account of his bigamous marriage. He starts an efficiency system in the mill, which has the effect of causing the workers to double their toil without any increase in pay. He disregards the protests of the men and the appeals of the women. He retires to a secret room in his house of which he alone knows the mode of entrance by a concealed button. There he loses his mind and wanders out to become a member of a party of tramps. After a journey he returns to the mill town, breaks into his own house and obtains a roll of bills from the secret room. His companions rob him in the night.

Maisie Brooks, the sweetheart of Dave, takes

GEORGE B. CORMACK & CO.

CINEMATOGRAPH FILM DISTRIBUTORS, LONDON

We can handle first class agency at once for multi reel Continuous Productions. World's Rights (Excluding America). Extensive Continental connection. Sound Financial Standing.

"Oxford House," 9-15 Oxford St., London, W., England

New York Offices, 1545-47 Broadway, New York City

You Should Read Page 677

PATENTS

Manufacturers want me to send them patents on useful inventions. Send me at once drawing and description of your invention and I will give you an honest report as to securing a patent and whether I can assist you in selling the patent. Highest references. Established 25 years. Personal attention in all cases. WM. N. MOORE, Loan and Trust Building, Washington, D. C.

pity on Roberts, who has adopted the nickname of Daffy. He lives with Maisie and her father after he has been injured in a struggle between the striking workmen of Roberts mill and the police. Roberts, by a twist in his mind, thinks he is a workmen and has fought with them supposing he was avenging the wrongs he had suffered. Maisie appeals to the factory manager to obtain the release of Dave, who has been arrested for participation in the attack on the factory.

The manager refuses to intervene. Claude Roberts sees the girl and offers to aid her in getting her lover freed. She goes to the Roberts home accompanied by Daffy. Claude attacks her and is shot by Daffy, who has gained access to the secret room. When the girl gets outside she finds the old man. Dave gets a position as a foreman in another factory town. He marries Maisie and takes her and her father with him, when he leaves for the new place. Daffy is left in the old mill town. He suffers under the harsh system he has devised for others. He has forgotten completely his identity as the masterful factory owner, but he realizes the bitterness of spending the remainder of his life at hard toil. So he pays the price of power.

THE GREEN SWAMP (Kay-Bee; Five Parts—Jan 30). The cast: Bessie Barriscale, Bruce McRae, J. Barney Sherry, Milton Ross, Lola May, Louise Brownell.

Marjorie Allison was consumed with jealousy. She found fault with her husband, Dr. Ward Allison, for looking twice at a woman at a theater, though he was unconscious of any harm. At a masked ball she caught him dancing twice with one woman and reproached him with it. So her passion for suspecting the worst of her husband went on in spite of his explanations and reproaches. One night there came a call for Dr. Allison. The wife suspected that the doctor was being led astray by some charmer and didn't inform him of the call. Later the call came again. Dr. Allison hastened away to tend the patient, a child, who had pneumonia. By strenuous efforts the doctor preserved the life of the child. He was unwilling to forgive his wife at first, but she showed him some baby clothes that she was working on and he yielded because of her condition.

Marjorie stifled her jealousy for a while and everything was lovely in the Allison home. Then the doctor became infected with tetanus while treating a patient in a hospital. To guard his wife from the shock of knowing his danger, Dr. Allison made a pretense of going on a journey but went instead to the home of a friend, Dr. Jim Hendon. Through a friend named Edna, Marjorie found out where her husband was stopping and immediately she was overcome with jealousy. She resisted the suspicion for a long time, but the desire to know what her husband was doing at his friend's house was too strong for her. She sent a detective to the house. He heard Dr. Hendon calling up a nurse and suspected that there was going to be a party there. He voiced his suspicion to Marjorie and she rushed to the house.

Posing as a nurse, Marjorie gained admission to the Hendon house. It was the critical moment of the operation on Allison's throat and a hairbreadth deviation by the surgeon's knife would spell death for him. Not realizing this, the girl-wife broke into the office where she saw the coat and hat of a woman. The surgeon, but Marjorie didn't know this and was almost wild with jealousy. She rushed to the room where the operation was taking place and had her hand on the door knob ready to burst in. Then a vision came to her of the various times she had wrongfully suspected her husband and the promises she had made never to yield to the green monster again. Her better nature triumphed and she resolved to trust her husband. After her return home a feeling of happiness stole over her as the spirit of faith in her husband lifted her out of the morass of jealousy. The next morning she learned of the operation and its successful termination. So her faith was justified and she went to the bedside of Allison with a face radiant with love and happiness.

Miscellaneous Feature Film

ARTHUR S. KANE.

SOMEWHERE IN FRANCE (Five Parts—January).

Synopsis—Reel 1—Captives being brought from firing line through communicating trench. The Germans that have just been taken in an attack are being brought back wounded under French guard.

Wounded German prisoners followed by wagonloads of dead. A village being wrecked by heavy artillery fire and the Germans under escort of French infantry carrying their dead on stretchers.

In three days' fighting, the French captured seventy field guns.

120 m/m short gun on automatic carriage in action. This view shows the French throwing large shells into the German front.

Firing French trench mortar. When this gun is fired the concussion is so great the men place their hands over their ears and run away.

High explosive and shrapnel shells bursting over German position. This view shows that when a shrapnel shell breaks it has an actual radius of eight acres. High explosive shells tearing up earth.

French soldiers examining captured German trench.

Synopsis—Reel 2—French front at Queenevieres. (Aisne.)

An hour of recreation. French soldiers playing football, taught them by the English Tommies. We also see them bathing in a hole caused by large shells from the German side.

Ammunition and aerial tropedo supplies nearing the trenches.

Ammunition "a la cart." This shows ammunition being brought up in long strings of wagons. It also shows you some of the big automobile trucks which are used so extensively in the war.

Company of quick firers. The deadly machine gun sections being rushed to the front.

Repairing a bridge. French quickly repairing a bridge blown up by Germans.

French Alpine troops.

Quennevieres Farm, a famous battleground. In this picture we get a view of a farm which General Joffre says has been soaked with blood from the battles that have been fought upon it.

For France they died. For a brief moment only you are shown soldiers lying dead upon the battlefield. One of them you will notice has a bayonet sticking in his breast.

Made in America. Here we will see barbed wire piled in great heaps. Without it this war would be won by one side in a short time. Barbed wire prolongs the war.

First Part—Synopsis—Reel 3—Raising soldier of telescopic tower to direct artillery fire. We witness the French armored breast work and recoil of the gun. You see the man approach, his little tower door and direct the firing of the guns. He descends very easily.

Gathering statistics from German captives. German officers who have been taken prisoners being examined by the French.

Part of the 25,000 prisoners taken by the French at the Battle of Champagne.

The stolid oxen are used to draw the heavy artillery.

Concentrating German prisoners to send them to detention camps.

Cutting buttons off trousers of German prisoners to prevent them from escaping.

Picturesque troops from Morocco strengthening their position. The Moroccan soldier with his turban and picturesque costume digging new trenches and strengthening his position which he has just captured.

German graveyard behind trenches captured by the French. Germans bury their dead immediately behind their firing trenches. The ground is shattered and torn by shells.

Bringing up field kitchens.

The French coast is protected by a large fleet of hydro-aeroplanes.

Looking down on the torpedo-boat destroyers off the French coast. This shows the photographer up in a hydro-aeroplane photographing the warships underneath as they cut the water at 21 knots an hour.

The return of the air fleet.

How a waterplane is taken back to its shed.

Second Part—Synopsis—Reel 3—French artillery lookout officers. Here you see the French artillery officer a short distance from the German trenches directing the range of the French artillery.

French shells exploding in enemies' trenches. Shells from the French side smash the German trenches.

The French are expert in throwing hand bombs. We see a French soldier coolly standing and flinging hand bombs into the German trenches in front of him.

German gas bombs constantly fall within the French lines. Gas bombs breaking in the woods inside the French lines. At one time gas had a horror to the allied soldiers. Now with the aid of the gas protectors they are indifferent to it.

A "75" battery throwing shells into the German lines. We get a look at the famous gun called the "75" in action. The French speak with pride of this gun.

Tracey le Val, the seat of many battles. The famous town which has been ruined by shells from both sides.

French African troops. Glimpsing the brown-skinned man from Africa, some of whom have already been decorated with French medals for bravery.

This village captured by house-to-house fighting. This is one of the many villages which the Germans held with machine guns located in each house, and the French had to capture house by house at a great cost.

King George V of England, President Poincaire of France and General Joffre reviewing the French cavalry.

Synopsis—Reel 4—Various types of bombs and hand grenades. A picture which demonstrates the different kinds of bombs that are made and used by the French in trench warfare.

Illuminating cartridges and fuses used in night warfare. As the enemy must be watched continually even at night the French use the same as the Germans, flare rockets, which are shot in the air and held in position by a little parachute and which throw a powerful light over the enemy trenches. These are sent up every few minutes through the night.

Have You Read Page 677?

WE CHARGE ABSOLUTELY NOTHING

for the helpful hints, the special human-interest service, and the dozen and one other "extras" which are so essential to your business success and peace of mind. Our standard price for includes everything that makes for film quality and your complete satisfaction. With your sample order we will prove it!

PERFECT DEVELOPING AND PRINTING

Send today for factory description and price list

INDUSTRIAL MOVING PICTURE COMPANY

WATTERSON R. ROTHACKER, President

223-233 West Erie Street - - - - - Chicago

Actual battle being fought between French and German trenches only forty feet apart.
French trench cannon.
French trench mortar.
French cross-bow throwing bombs.
Another type of trench mortar.
Steel lookout or observation tower. Here is shown the different type of French trench guns showering the German trenches with shells. The steel tower used for observation purposes.
Bois le Pretre, the scene of many battles.
Twenty yards from the enemy. Back of the French trench with the French soldiers taking advantage of a lull in the firing shaking out their blankets and house cleaning.
Germans bombarding French position with high explosive shells. This scene shows shells hitting in front of the French trench where the dirt is thrown up as high as the Capitol building.
German prisoners taken at Bois le Pretre.
French military baloon ascending to make observations.

Synopsis—Reel 5—French armored cars, painted to resemble the landscape, on way to attack.
The French army is now equipped with new steel helmets.
The call to arms As the bugle blows the men fall in line and march off with a quick stride.
French infantry advancing in open formation. French infantry advancing in open formation through the woods to begin an attack. Trees are torn to pieces by a heavy shell fire that has been directed on their position.
Machine guns and munitions brought through captured German trenches by pack mules. German trenches after they had been captured by the French and their equipment piled in heaps lying on top of the trenches.
Starting off to take photographs of German positions. This shows an aeroplane and the photographer starting off for a trip over the German trenches.
Ten thousand feet in the air over German trenches. Here you will see 10,000 down the German trenches and the battlefield "Somewhere in France" where this photograph was made.
Above the clouds.
The French machine is attacked by a German "Taube."
By clever manouvering other French machines force the German to descend inside French lines.
The captured machine had scarcely a scratch.
Another concentration camp for German prisoners.

V-L-S-E, INC.

CAPTAIN JINKS OF THE HORSE MARINES (Essanay—Five Parts—Jan. 17).—The cast: Aurelia—Mme. Trentoni (Ann Murdock); Robert Carrolton Jinks (Richard C. Travers); Gussie Von Volkenburg (John Junior); Charlie La Martine (Edmund F. Cobb); Mrs. Greenborough (Camille D'Arcy); Mrs. Jinks (Laura Frankenfield); Prof. Belliarti (Ernest Maupain); Pete, the bellboy (Bruce Kent). Taken from the fantastic comedy by Clyde Fitch. Arranged and directed by Fred E. Wright.

Robert Carrolton Jinks and his companions form a marching club to boost the presidential campaign for General Grant. They design fantastic costumes and set the club in an uproar when they appear in them. Jinks is made captain of the marching club and dubbed "Captain Jinks of the Horse Marines." While discussing plans for the campaign Jinks sees a bill poster pasting up a great placard announcing the coming of Madame Trentoni, a famous opera singer. Jinks and his two friends decide to go to the boat to meet her dressed in their marching uniforms and accompanied by a band, just for a joke. Jinks bets $1,000 with his friends that he can make love to her.

The boat is an hour late in docking and the band leader discovers that he has been playing his music for nothing. He becomes angry and the entire band adjourns to a nearby saloon for drinks. Jinks and his friends go with them. Reporters who have gone to the boat to meet Madame Trentoni fear that if Jinks and his band are present at the arrival of the boat it will interfere with their interview. So they bribe the band master not to play.

Jinks and his friends arrive at the boat late, having been delayed by a violent argument with the band master. They finally discover Madame Trentoni, however, and Jinks falls madly in love with her. She has great trouble with the customs inspector and Jinks pulls out a roll of bills and hands it to the official. He is immediately arrested for attempted bribery and taken to jail. He finally is released on bail and goes to call on Madame Trentoni, who is stopping with her foster father. She is as much in love with him as he is with her and the courtship progresses rapidly.

Jinks tries to call the bet off with his friends, declaring that it is an insult to Madame Trentoni. They refuse to listen to him, and he finally agrees to pay the bet, giving them a card reading "I. O. U. $1,000 for the bet regarding Madame Trentoni." The two friends are also much taken with Madame Trentoni and attempt at various times to see her. She refuses to have anything to do with them. This makes them angry and they decide to get even with Jinks. They tell her foster father that Jinks intends to marry Madame Trentoni for her money only. He refuses to believe it until shown the "I. O. U.", when he flies into a fit of rage. He tells Madame Trentoni and she then refuses to see Jinks.

Jinks finally discovers why she is angry and after several unsuccessful attempts to see her gains admittance to her apartment and tells her the facts of the case. She throws her arms about him. As they are in this position a detective enters the room to arrest Jinks. His bribery case had come up in the court the day before and he had f gotten to appear. Trentoni tells the detective that she and her sweetheart have had a tiff and want a chance to make it up. Her pleading, with the promise that Jinks appear in court the next day, wins the detective's assent. The two then embrace and everything ends happily.

THE ISLAND OF SURPRISE (Vitagraph—Five Parts—Jan. 24).—The cast: Robert Lovell (William Courtenay); Godfrey Lovell (Charles Kent); Daniel Casselis (Anders Randolf); Edwin Arden (Charles Wellesley); Doctor Elverson (Denton Vane); Dorothy Arden (Eleanor Woodruff); Dorothy Casselis (Zena Keefe); Mrs. Lovell (Julia Swayne Gordon); Mrs. Casselis (Caroline Cooke); Yacht Captain (Logan Paul).

Dorothy Arden is private secretary to Godfrey Lovell, known as the Creosus of Wall Street. His western partner is Daniel Casselis, who has a daughter, named Dorothy. Lovell has a son, Robert, and the two financiers are trying to arrange a match between their children. But Robert falls in love with his father's secretary, and marries her, but on returning home to tell dad, he finds Lovell is ill and has gone on a long sea voyage to recuperate. Bob is sent to Chicago to see Casselis and invite him and his daughter to come on the cruise with Lovell, and Dorothy is greatly distressed at this turn of events. Bob reassures her, however, and still they do not tell his father.

Bob meets Miss Casselis on the Limited as she is returning from an Eastern trip and they become friends. Meanwhile, Dorothy has determined to go on the yachting trip; so when the whole party arrive at Frisco Bob finds his wife awaiting them. Many amusing complications occur during the voyage and jealousies are aroused. The yacht anchors off a lonely island in the Pacific and Bob, with the two Dorothys, goes ashore. The yacht is driven out to sea by a terrible storm, leaving the three stranded on the Island of Surprise. Bob is hurt in a terrific landslide and the blow causes him to lose his memory.

Dorothy tries in vain to call to mind his marriage to her, and Miss Casselis, thinking Dorothy is merely bluffing, is not to be outdone and claims Bob is her husband. Bob finally settles an uncomfortable situation by telling the women he will simply remain their friend and protector. Meanwhile, the yacht has had to send out a boat for the nearest land, owing to engine trouble, and a man-of-war is met.

She is directed to the island, and arrives just in time to drop a shrapnel among a horde of island savages who are attacking the three castaways and just about to annihilate them. Rescued by the navy men, the three castaways are reunited with their party. Bob recovers consciousness and recognizing his wife, all ends in forgiveness and happiness.

A NIGHT OUT (Vitagraph—Five Parts—Jan. 31).—The cast: Grannum (May Robson); Mrs. Haslem (Flora Finch); Mrs. Duncan (Kate Price); Nitza (Eva Taylor); Jeff Dorgan (Hughie Mack); McMahon (William Shea); Deacon (Charles Brown); Waldo (George Cooper); Betty (Belle Bruce); Grace (Ethel Corcoran); Jack (Jack Storey); Paul (Arthur Cozine). Authors, May Robson and C. T. Dazey. Produced by George D. Baker.

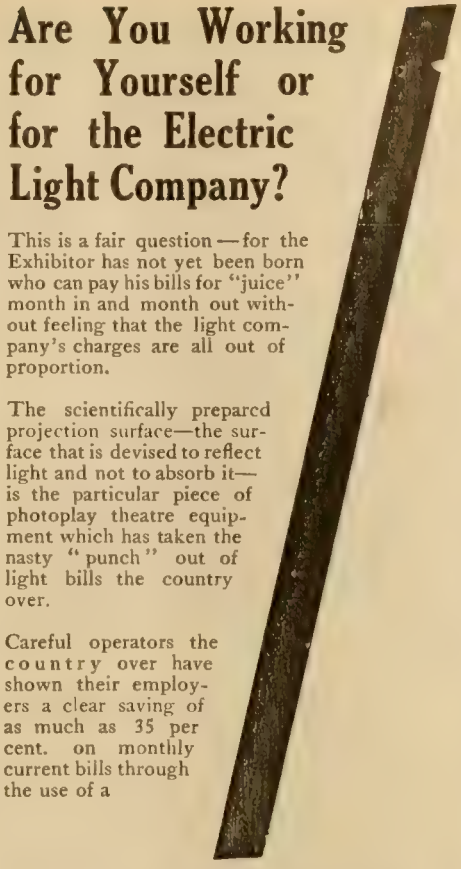
Kept in restraint all her earlier life, Granmum decides to enjoy the latter part a little. She is again held in check by her daughter, but her grandsons, Paul and Jack, are her greatest companions. The boys are in love with Grace and Betty, and Granmum, through Mrs. Duncan, a neighbor, confidentially offers a ring for the first couple to be married. Waldo, son of Jonas Deacon, president of the Purity League, confiscates the ring. The boys

Are You Working for Yourself or for the Electric Light Company?

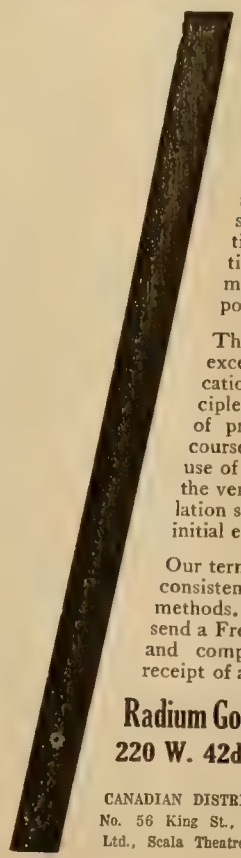
This is a fair question—for the Exhibitor has not yet been born who can pay his bills for "juice" month in and month out without feeling that the light company's charges are all out of proportion.

The scientifically prepared projection surface—the surface that is devised to reflect light and not to absorb it—is the particular piece of photoplay theatre equipment which has taken the nasty "punch" out of light bills the country over.

Careful operators the country over have shown their employers a clear saving of as much as 35 per cent. on monthly current bills through the use of a



RADIUM GOLD FIBRE SCREEN



In considering the purchase of a RADIUM GOLD FIBRE SCREEN it must be remembered that despite the fact that the Radium is the best known, the best advertised, and the most satisfactory of the scientifically prepared projection surfaces, it is by no means an expensive proposition.

The first cost is far from excessive because the application of good business principles has cut down our cost of production. And, of course, the saving which the use of the screen effects from the very first day of its installation soon pays even the small initial expenditure required.

Our terms are as liberal as any consistent with good business methods. We will be pleased to send a Free Sample of the screen and complete information upon receipt of a Postal Card inquiry.

Radium Gold Fibre Screen, Inc.
220 W. 42d St., New York City

CANADIAN DISTRIBUTORS: Allfeatures, Ltd., No. 56 King St., Toronto, Can.; Allfeatures, Ltd., Scala Theatre Bldg., Montreal, Can.

Have You Read Page 677?

often go to the Three Lights cafe, of which Jeff Dorgan is the proprietor, from whom old Jonas Deacon collects a little "Christian charity," under pressure. Waldo is in love with Nitza, a dancer at the Three Lights. Granmum finds out where the boys go and determines to have a "night out" herself to determine the respectability of the place.

At the cafe Granmum makes a big hit with Jeff Dorgan who teaches her to dance the tango, and everything is going swimmingly, when old Jonas raids the place with the police. In the confusion which follows, Granmum drops her purse. Granmum and the boys manage to escape, but the bag identifies Granmum, and the next morning she has to confess to her "night out." Nitza arrives at this moment with some other things Granmum dropped and accidentally the dancer drops the ring out of her pocketbook. Then Waldo admits having stolen the ring, but Granmum forgives him and refuses to press the charge. Then everything turns out all right and a jubilee dinner announcing the various engagements is given, and Granmum makes a speech about her "night out" which brings much laughter and applause.

WORLD FILM CORP.

THE BALLET GIRL (Brady—Five parts—Jan. 24).—Inheriting a taste for dancing from her parents a little girl seeks on every occasion to practice the art. But, though her mother favors her ambitions, her severe aunts do not; and it is not until she grows into young womanhood that she can gratify her wish to become a successful dancer. Success crowns her efforts and she becomes a popular star. Drifting into Bohemia, she almost becomes the prey of a profligate man about town; but escapes his clutches and gives her hand and heart to an honest young countryman.

Happiness appears to be in sight for the girl. But her former lover returns and arouses jealousy in her young husband, from whose mind, however, all suspicion is removed by the disappearance of the ballet girl's assailant. Thus the ex-dancer and her husband settle down to a happy married life.

EQUITABLE.

THE RANSOM (Triumph—Five Parts—Jan. 17).—The cast: Janet Osborne (Julia Dean); Marcia Osborne (Louise Huff); Mark Osborne (James Hall); Sarah Osborne (Ethel Lloyd); Geoffrey Allen (Kenneth Hunter); Ellis Raymond (Willard Case). Directed by Edmond Lawrence.

Janet Osborne is somewhat afraid of her stern husband. He denounces the theater and cards, but Janet's life is influenced by an actress who moves into the house next door. Mark Osborne orders her to ignore the woman, but she helps her home when she is hurt and a warm friendship is begun. At the home of the actress she meets Allen, a theatrical man known as the "star maker." He gives her the idea of being an actress. A stormy scene between Janet and her husband follows his discovery that the actress has brought Janet home in her car, but her clandestine friendship with the actress and Allen continues, the latter introducing her to a manager who agrees to give her a part when she is ready for it. The three go to dinner; the train is missed; but she thinks only of her "great day." Mark has been told by his cousin, Mrs. Ellery, about Janet's party. He rushes home, finds the house dark and little Marcia crying.

When Janet comes home the house is dark. Allen insists on coming in and kissing her. Being discovered by Mark, she is ordered from the house. She goes with Allen. Mark looks after their child, but he will not get a divorce. Janet is happy when she hears of Mark's death. Allen makes her an offer which insults her and, deprived of his influence, she goes down the hill in her stage career. Years later she becomes maid to her daughter who has been told that her mother is dead and who has gone on the stage. She is really talented, and her mother has sunk so low that she is sometimes called "Crazy Jane." She tries to steer Marcia away from the evils of stage life. The girl is really in love with an artist, but an elderly admirer wants to take charge of her. There is an exciting scene where the mother tries to prevent a meeting between the two. Allen turns out to be the admirer, and Jane, knowing the wreck he made of her own life, gets a pistol. The artist comes to the theater. Allen is shot; the artist is told to go to Marcia. Jane falls dead, having ransomed her soul to save her daughter from the life she has herself led. Marcia and the artist settle their differences, and she never knows that "Crazy Jane" was her mother.

METRO PICTURES CORPORATION.

THE LURE OF HEART'S DESIRE (Popular Plays and Players—Five Parts—Jan. 17).—The cast: Jim Carew (Edmund Breese); Thomas Martin (Arthur Hoops); Crazy Jake (John Mahon); Ethel Wyndham (Jeannette Horton); Little Snowbird (Evelyn Brent). Written by Aaron Hoffman and Francis J. Grandon. Directed by Francis J. Grandon.

Jim Carew, a sturdy lighthouse keeper, saves the life of Ethel Wyndham, a young society woman, whose boat crashes upon the rocks near his post. Soon after her recovery she is returned to the mainland, and to her friends, and Carew, disconsolate because of his unrequited love for the girl, gives up his position in the lighthouse. In his subsequent wanderings, he becomes possessed of the gold fever, and joins a prospecting party in a rush to the Yukon.

In the Yukon, Carew is successful from the start. He strikes a big claim, and soon amasses a fortune. On the last night of his first week in the Youkon Carew joins a gang of miners celebrating in the principal saloon. Little Snowbird, a beautiful, young Indian girl strolls into the place, and immediately catches Carew's fancy. Crazy Snake, one of the miners, who is known for his fearlessness and brawn, proposes that the miners all cut the cards for the girl, the holder of the highest card to claim her as his own.

Carew resents this proposal, and he and Crazy Snake come to blows. Carew beats the bully in the encounter, and is hailed as the hero of the camp. Little Snowbird's heart goes out to Carew, and surreptitiously, she follows him wherever he goes. One night he falls in a big snow storm, and it is Snowbird who finds him and carries him to safety. Afterward, they live together.

Carew, with all the money at his command that he desires, tires of the camp life in the desolate Alaskan wastes, and pines for one more fling on the Great White Way. He arranges to go to New York for one trip, and then return to live with Snowbird for life. Carew arrives in New York on New Year's Eve. He engages a table in Murray's restaurant, one of the smartest and gayest places in town. There he observes Ethel Wyndham at another table, and immediately joins her party. Now that he is wealthy, she is willing to listen to his renewed vows of love. She agrees to marry Carew, but her consort, Thomas Martin, a society leech and gambler, prevents her by threatening to expose her for some shady transactions they have been engaged in together.

Ethel is driven to renounce Carew, who then realizes the depths to which she has descended, and he is broken hearted. Back on the Yukon, the little Indian girl is waiting for him. She despairs of Carew ever returning, and takes her own life at her father's deathbed. Carew now remembers his Indian girl, and decides to go back to her, renouncing society as frivolous and a sham. He arrives on the Yukon on the very night that little Snowbird has passed away. But at her side in the cabin he finds a newly born babe—another Little Snowbird. During the years that follow Carew devotes himself to the daughter, and lavishes every luxury upon her, in memory of the mother.

PARAMOUNT.

MICE AND MEN (Famous Players; Five Parts—Jan. 10). The cast: Peggy (Marguerite Clark); Capt. Lovell (Marshall Neilan); Mark Embury (Charles Waldron); Roger Goodlake (Clarence Handyside); Mrs. Deborrah (Maggie Halloway Fisher); Joanna (Helen Dahl); Minister Goodlake (Robert Conville); Embury's Servant (William McKey); Matron (Ada Deaves); Colored Mammy (Francesca Warde).

This picture tells the story of Peggy, a foundling who is adopted by a philosopher in the hope that she will one day develop into an ideal wife for him. Mark Embury is the name of the scientist and dreamer, who, after a survey of the young girls in his town, has come to the inevitable conclusion that they are all too frivolous for housewifery. He conceives the idea of applying to the local Foundling Home for permission to adopt the most promising of the little inmates.

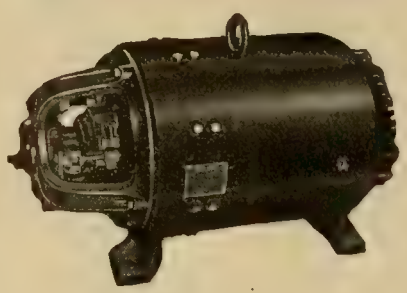
The Foundling Society sends him a number of "samples," from which he chooses Peggy. Under his carefully and well thought-out plan of education and culture, Peggy gradually develops into a beautiful girl with keen intellect and a noble heart. But the eminent professor has forgotten to reckon with youth in laying his very unique plan. When Peggy meets Captain George Lovell, the nephew of the philosopher, she finds him most interesting. The feeling is more than reciprocated—it is increased a thousandfold. But the captain has committed the indiscretion of conducting a harmless flirtation with Mrs. Goodlake, the wife of Embury's lawyer. Discovering this fact,

COSTS LESS!!!
GIVES BEST LIGHT!!
SMALLEST AND LIGHTEST!

Fits in any Booth and can be installed by Your Operator

SEND FOR FREE BULLETIN No. 1

HALLBERG 20th CENTURY MOTOR GENERATOR



Costs Only
$249
With Regulator for Operating (1) Arc at the time at 30 to 70 Amp. D. C.

$20 extra for control for (2) 30 to 40 amp. arc's—or $50 extra for control for (2) 30-40 amp. arc's on fine switchboard with volt and amp. meters and special field rheostat—No live part on front of boards.

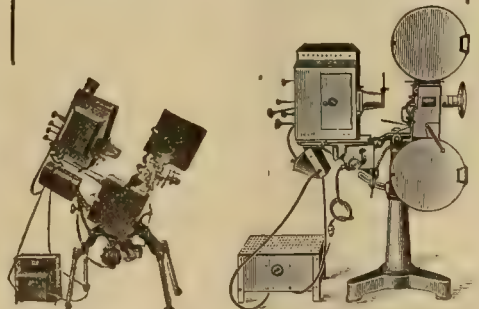
For 110 or 220 volt, 60 cycle, 2 or 3 phase A. C. Line. For single phase, $40 extra.

Weight, 450 lbs. Height, 15"
Width, 15"; Length, 28"

Other Sizes and Styles of All Kinds—Quoted Upon Request

I am distributor of "SPEER CARBONS," all makes of moving picture machines and furnish everything complete for the theatre, new and used apparatus.

IMPORTANT NOTICE
All quotations on Imported Carbons are withdrawn. Write for new prices.



POWER'S 6B "SIMPLEX"

Send for Free Circulars and Catalogues, but for Hallberg's Big 100-page Catalogue, send 25 Cents.

I EQUIP THEATRES COMPLETELY AND CARRY ALL MAKES CARBONS AND SUPPLIES.

Send $2.50 for latest Operator's Book "MOTION PICTURE ELECTRICITY"

J.H. HALLBERG SWEDISH ELECTRICAL ENGINEER
38 East 23d St. The House of Quality New York

Tell Your Motion Picture Sales Story in THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD which Speaks Authoritatively to the ENTIRE Trade Each Week.

The Scoop of the War!

On the Firing Line With the Germans

State Rights Now Selling

Showing:

Storming Novo Georgeievsk!

Fall of Warsaw!

Great Seven-Day Battle!

Battlefields from Aeroplane!

Von Hindenberg's Great Drive!

The Kaiser at the Front!

Murderous Machine Gun Fire!

There are dozens of so-called war pictures, but ours is authentic, consisting of 8,500 feet of pulse-quickening scenes taken from automobile and aeroplane at the front by WILBUR H. DURBOROUGH—daring American Press photographer, who accompanied Von Hindenberg's army for seven months.

TEN WEEKS CHICAGO, auspices CHICAGO DAILY NEWS;
FIVE WEEKS ST. LOUIS, auspices TIMES;
TWO WEEKS MILWAUKEE, auspices FREE PRESS;
TWO WEEKS ST. PAUL, auspices DAILY NEWS, and closing for all the big cities and daily newspapers, and—

PLAYING TO ENORMOUS RECEIPTS WHEREVER SHOWN!

The camera does not lie; Mr. Durborough is seen in at least 50% of the scenes in the film.

Showing:

Smashing the Big Forts!

Zeppelin Raids on Warsaw!

Rain of Russian Shells!

Fierce Infantry Assaults!

Miles of Battling!

Terrific Trench Struggles!

Desperate Bayonet Charges!

CHICAGO TRIBUNE ADMITS:—December 10th, 1915
"THERE ARE WAR PICTURES AND WAR PICTURES, BUT THE BLUE RIBBON GOES TO THOSE TAKEN BY DURBOROUGH."—KITTY KELLY.

FOR TERMS ADDRESS:

WAR FILM SYNDICATE, 308 Mallers Bldg., Chicago

and not realizing the mildness of the pastime, the uncle tells Lovell that he must give up the woman.

But the Mexican War settles the question for the captain, as he is called to the front. He has made a profound impression upon Peggy, who corresponds with him while he is at the front. Lovell has not been away from Peggy very long before he realizes that he loves her. Peggy, for her part, finds life not quite so interesting since the departure of her soldier—so she writes him telling about her lessons and the wonderful kindness of her guardian.

Meanwhile Mark Embury has fallen very much in love with his adopted daughter, over whose education he is presiding with such solicitous and tender care. Mistaking her overwhelming gratitude and tender filial devotion for a different sort of love, he looks forward eagerly to the day when he can ask Peggy to marry him. He is elated with the success of his plan and glories in the fact that it is working out even better than he had anticipated. The war over, Lovell returns a hero and, Mrs. Goodlake still desperately in love with him, places him in a compromising position which leads Peggy to believe that he is false to her. Her loyal little heart broken, Peggy staggers her guardian by confessing to him that she is in love with Lovell, but that she will never have anything more to do with him because of his duplicity. Thus does fate play into the hands of the philosopher, who finds it in his power, by merely keeping his own counsel concerning the innocence of his nephew—which he quickly establishes—to kill the love of Peggy for his young rival. His decision makes an absorbing and touching denouement.

THE GOLDEN CHANCE (Jan 13—Lasky—5 Parts).—Mary Denby (Cleo Ridgely); Roger Manning (Wallace Reid); Steve Denby (Horace B. Carpenter); Mrs. Hillary (Edythe Chapman); Mr. Hillary (Ernest Joy); Jimmy the Rat (Raymond Hatton). Written by Jeanie Macpherson; directed by Cecil B. DeMille.

Steve Denby spends all the money he can get on drink and finally forces Mary, his wife, when the funds are exhausted, to seek employment. In answer to a newspaper advertisement Mary secures a position as seamstress in the home of a wealthy society woman, Mrs. Hillary. Mr. Hillary is a promoter and wishes to interest the wealthy young bachelor, Roger Manning, in a scheme which he is promoting. He invites him to a dinner party to meet a beautiful young woman. The beauty fails to appear. As a last resort, Mrs. Hillary dresses Mary in a stunning gown and has her take the place of the absent guest.

Manning promptly falls head over heels in love with Mary, who conducts herself with great dignity and modesty, and he is about to become interested in Mr. Hillary's scheme when Steve Denby breaks into the Hillary house where both Manning and Mary are spending the week-end. Steve enters his wife's room and steals all the valuables. They recognize each other, but Mary permits him to escape. In sneaking down the stairs Steve meets Manning. The house is aroused, and while Manning is telephoning for the police, Mary induces the Hillarys to permit her husband to escape, rather than have Manning know that she is the wife of the prisoner.

The next morning Mary goes back to her tenement home and there Steve plans to blackmail the wealthy bachelor. He sends him a note—which he forces Mary to sign—to come to the tenement. When Manning arrives, Steve and another crook attempt to force him to give them money. The two men attempt to shoot Manning, when Manning's chauffeur, who is downstairs in the street below, hears the noise and calls the police. As the police enter, Derby shoots one of them and is in turn shot and killed as he attempts to climb up the fire escape. Though shocked at the death of her husband, Mary, realizing her love for Manning, goes to his waiting arms.

KLEINE-EDISON FEATURE SERVICE.

THE DEVIL'S PRAYER-BOOK (Kleine—Five Parts—Jan. 5).—The cast: Albert Sprague, alias "Al Spencer" (Arthur Hoops); his wife and Nell, his daughter (Alma Hanlon); John Springer, a crook (Frank Belcher); Nancy, his wife (Ruby Hoffman); Fred Block (Carlyle Fleming); Tom Sprague (Tom Coventry).

"Al" Spencer, a gambler not averse to cheating, occupying an apartment with his wife and an infant daughter, flees, deserting his family, after attacking and robbing a card player whom a confederate had brought to his place. Living in the same building is Nancy Springer, a shoplifter, whose husband, a thief, is in jail awaiting trial. His attorney, anxious to create sympathy for his client, urges Nancy to borrow an infant and appear with it in court during her husband's trial. Mrs. Spencer innocently lends her baby; the ruse wins and Springer is acquitted. Nancy, going to return the baby to its mother, finds the woman dead, so she and her husband informally adopt the child, naming it Nell. Fifteen years elapse.

Spencer, former gambler, now known as Albert Sprague, is prosperous in business and apparently reformed. He marries a wealthy widow with a young son. They reside on Long Island on a very pretentious estate. The Springers, attracted by Mrs. Sprague's display of gems and jewelry, plot to rob the Sprague residence. Leasing an adjoining estate, they soon are on friendly terms with their intended victims. Nell, now a clever thief, is purposely seized with illness while visiting at Sprague's and cannot be removed for several days, during which time it is planned that she shall steal the Sprague diamonds, pearls and jewelry. She falls in love with young Sprague, confesses to him that she is a thief. Her adopted parents learning of this, and knowing the police will investigate, boldly rob the Sprague residence.

While doing this, Springer kills young Sprague and his mother dies of shock. The adopted daughter, Nell, is locked up, tried and found guilty of complicity in the murder. A thief turns state's evidence, the Springers are caught, and through her statements Sprague learns that Nell is his own daughter whom he deserted when she was an infant. He works for her release, finally accomplishes it, then discloses to her his identity, but she spurns him. Eventually they are united.

THE CATSPAW (Five Parts—Edison—Jan. 12).—The cast: Roxane Bellairs (Miriam Nesbitt); Kittredge St John (Marc MacDermott); His Double (Marc MacDermott); Mr. Bonwit (William Wadsworth); Archie Varnum (Yale Benner); Mrs. Shackleton (Mabel Dwight); Major Holbrook (Harry Eytinge); Dorothy Paget (Grace Morrissey); Detective Burke (James Harris); Detective O'Connell (Brad Sutton). Directed by George A. Wright.

In Milville, Kittredge St. John meets his old confederate, Roxane Bellairs, and they decide to "clean up" the town. Kittredge has a scheme, he tells Roxane, which he is going to keep secret even from her. He employs a cultured man, who is the exact double of himself in appearance, and instructs him that his duty will be

You Should Read Page 677

STOP!! Consider a minute Before you purchase your THEATRE EQUIPMENT

There is a certain lasting confidence in purchasing from a reliable concern—Whether it is biscuits or battleships you buy. YOU KNOW THAT.

When installing a theatre equipment why not confine your purchases to a house whose experience and reputation will inspire that confidence? It costs no more—but the feeling of security you have is worth more.

The Kleine Optical Company is the oldest house in the country handling motion picture theatre equipment. We were the pioneers in the business! Ask anyone who has been in the business for years. The name KLEINE to them is synonymous to motion picture confidence.

Write us on any subject concerning the equipment of your theatre. WE ARE DISTRIBUTORS OF EVERY STANDARD MAKE OF MOTION PICTURE PROJECTOR ON THE AMERICAN MARKET. OUR STOCK IS LARGE AND COMPLETE AT ALL TIMES AND INCLUDES EVERY ARTICLE AND DEVICE THAT HAS MERIT.

SEND FOR OUR COMPLETE CATALOGUE

Kleine Optical Company

166 North State St. GEORGE KLEINE, PRESIDENT INCORPORATED 1896 CHICAGO, ILL.

The only Fotoplayer is the Fotoplayer we manufacture

And anything else offered you as a Fotoplayer is an imitation and fraud. You should know that every genuine Fotoplayer bears the name Fotoplayer on the sliding door and on the bronze name plate.

The trade name Fotoplayer is registered in the U. S. Patent Office and is legally applied exclusively to the instrument made and sold by us. There is only one Fotoplayer and that is the AMERICAN Fotoplayer, the instrument we manufacture and sell—the only and original musical instrument for motion-picture houses.

The Fotoplayer with its orchestral and beautiful pipe organ tones is expressly manufactured for your needs. It is also equipped with all the necessary traps and effects and may be played by hand or by ordinary player piano rolls. Our wonderful patented shifting device allows an instant change of rolls to fit every change in the picture, giving appropriate music at all times.

We warn you to be careful and not to consider any instrument offered you as a Fotoplayer unless you are positive it is the AMERICAN Fotoplayer.

We would appreciate any information you may send us of any effort of an interested salesman or other person who has or is trying to misrepresent the facts to you.

The Only Fotoplayer is the American Fotoplayer

AMERICAN PHOTO PLAYER COMPANY

62 West 45th Street New York City

Factories in Berkeley, California, and New York City to represent him at social functions as Kittredge St. John. Roxane works her way into the good graces of Major Holbrook and Mr. Bonwit, of the Milville bank. Society in Milville is entertained at Mrs. Shackleton's ball. The double, in love with Dorothy Paget, leaves after the ball in company with Major Holbrook, for the club for a game of cards. Roxane, who sees what is going on between the double and Dorothy Paget, becomes jealous, believing that the man is Kittredge.

During the night of the ball, the Milville bank is robbed, and detectives discover Kittredge St. John as the burglar. The double is arrested but proves an alibi by Major Holbrook. Mr. Bonwit is in love with Roxane and lavishes gifts and money upon her. In honor of the engagement, Mrs. Shackleton gives a dinner party. While the guests are in the dining room, the house is robbed and the maid finds Kittredge at the safe, screaming her discovery, but Kittredge escapes into the next house. The double, however, is in the country with Dorothy Paget's family. Believing the double in the country to be Kittredge, the guests discredit the maid's story.

WILD OATS (Kleine—Five Parts—Jan. 19).—The cast: Roy Wilson (Malcolm Duncan); Jessie Wilson (Alma Hanlon); James Wilson (Wm. Anker); Richard Carew (Herbert Hayes); Graham Madison (Frank Belcher); Cleo (Ruby Hoffman).

Roy Wilson, an ungovernable youth of fast habits, owes considerable money in the form of gambling debts to Graham Madison, an architect of doubtful morals. Roy's father is a competing architect and his sister, Jessie, is the sweetheart of Carew, Wilson's chief consulting engineer. In addition to his gambling debts, Roy forms an attachment for Madison's mistress, Cleo, thus involving himself more deeply with Madison.

Both Wilson and Madison prepare to submit bids for an important railway contract, and Madison, after getting Roy well in his power, compels him on pain of exposure to steal his father's bid. That night Carew asks for Jessie's hand and is refused by Wilson on the grounds of Jessie's extreme youth. When the loss of the plans is discovered Wilson promptly accuses Carew and discharges him. Meanwhile, Roy travels a fast pace with Cleo, of whom Madison, having gained his end, has tired. When the fastidious lady fancies an expensive necklace Roy, after trying unsuccessfully to borrow the money to purchase the necklace, rifles the wall safe in his father's library. Unluckily, Carew calls at this moment for a clandestine meeting with Jessie to show her a letter he had just received from Madison in which the letter offers him a position.

In leaving the house Carew fails to take with him the envelope bearing Madison's name, and this is left on a table where Wilson finds it on his way upstairs to the library. The shock of the robbery kills the frail, old man, who falls to the floor with the envelope clutched tightly in his hand. This, coupled with the word of the butler who had seen Carew leaving the house, weaves a strong chain of circumstantial guilt. Immediately after the theft Roy hurries to Cleo's apartments and offers her the spoils of his shame. She divines the truth and indignantly sends him home. He arrives in the parlor a moment after Carew, who has been quickly apprehended and brought back. The knowledge of his father's death proves too much and Roy breaks down, confessing the whole story. The following day the law lays a heavy hand on Madison and Carew and Jessie look hopefully forward to a better day.

THE INNOCENCE OF RUTH (Edison—Five Parts—Jan. 26).—The cast: Mr. Carter (Edward Earle); Ruth Travers (Viola Dana); Mortimer Reynolds (Augustus Phillips); Edna Morris (L. Davril); Togo (T. Tamamoto). Director, John H. Collins.

Jimmy Carter, a millionaire, leading an idle, indulgent life, gets an urgent message from his friend, Reginald Travers. Travers, who is dying, has been ruined in the stock market by Mortimer Reynolds, and penniless, he leaves his little daughter in care of Carter, who promises faithfully to look after her. After the death of Travers, Carter takes Ruth to his luxurious home and gives her to the motherly care of Mrs. Jenkins, his housekeeper. Mortimer Reynolds, anxious to add Ruth to his list of unfortunates, instructs his mistress, Edna Morris, to make her acquaintance and to gain her confidence. Carter and Reynolds become bitter enemies because of Reynold's sarcastic reflections on the relationship between Carter and Ruth.

As time passes, Ruth, by her winsomeness and innocence gradually changes Carter's mode of life. He no longer feels an interest in the gay life of former days, and even loses his taste for the morning nip. Unconsciously, Ruth is transforming his sympathetic dutiful interest in her to love. In a moment of ecstasy he crushes her in his arms. At the Charity Ball, where Ruth is taking part in a tableau, she meets Edna Morris. Fearful of Reynold's wrath should she fail, the unhappy girl works her way into the graces of Ruth. Carter sees this and immediately takes Ruth home, refusing to explain his conduct to her. Meeting Ruth in the park the following day, Edna denounces Carter for his action of the previous evening. "Why should he object to me, pray? Everybody knows that your father didn't leave you a penny, and that you are living on the—shall I say—generosity—of Mr. Carter." Stunned by the revelation that she is looked upon as Carter's mistress, the impetuous little girl rushes to the house and, in a burst of fury, screams her hatred of Carter. In the still of the night, she makes her way out of the house to Edna's apartment.

It is here that Reynolds finds her. Impelled by a fiendish lust, he forces her to partake of his wines, and slowly they begin to work their effect. Carter, who, in desperation, has been searching for her, finds her in the apartment, stupefied and dishevelled. Disgusted and heartsore, he looks upon her contemptuously and leaves, feeling that she has gone the way of Edna. Mrs. Morris, Edna's mother, prompted by a subconscious feeling that all is not well with her child, comes to the house from her little cottage in the country. She takes both penitents back home with her, hoping that they may forget and begin life anew.

Meanwhile, Reynolds, whose financial affairs have taken a turn for the worse, and who is being sought by the police for forgery, attempts to make his escape. He is caught by the police and so made to pay for the misery and misfortune which he has brought upon others. Miserable and despairing because Carter has mistaken her, Ruth can find no peace. But Edna, she who has dragged her to darkness and degradation, succeeds in lifting her once more to the light of hope. The once impetuous Ruth is again folded in the arms of Carter, knowing that there only will she find eternal happiness and peace of soul.

You Should Read Page 677

THERE'S A REASON

for doubt on technical points when authoritative information for the Exhibitor, Manager or Operator can't be obtained. The contents of the books herewith advertised place all necessary information and practical assistance within reach of every reader. For instance, every weekly issue of the contains an unequalled fund of information in regard to every angle of the moving picture art. Its staff is an aggregation of the best posted men in the industry who have devoted years to a study of the requirements of all our readers. Its correspondents are located in all the principal centers and its columns contain the most complete data possible. In a class by itself as a trade paper for every intelligent student of moving picture production and exhibition.

MOVING PICTURE WORLD

F. H. Richardson the recognized expert on projection, is working on a new edition of his "THE MOTION PICTURE HANDBOOK FOR MANAGERS AND OPERATORS," which will be a larger and better edition, containing fully illustrated articles on the subject of projection. This will be the standard textbook for managers and operators for many years.

J. H. Hallberg well known as an authority on electricity, has compiled a 278-page fully illustrated book, entitled "MOTION PICTURE ELECTRICITY," containing up-to-the-minute information on picture theatre electrical equipment. Also necessary tables and practical advice to the operator. A revision of all his Electrical Talks published some years ago in one of the trade papers. The price, $2.50.

Epes W. Sargent is author of "TECHNIQUE OF THE PHOTOPLAY," an exhaustive treatise on the writing of the Photoplay, containing sample scripts and complete detailed instruction for experienced as well as inexperienced writers. Price, $2.00. All published by

Moving Picture World

17 Madison Avenue New York

The Consistency
of THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD
draws to its advertising columns the greatest amount of high-class advertising that appears regularly in any picture journal. ¶Our paid circulation is greater than that of any other trade paper. Our staff of correspondents is larger and more competent. ¶We print the truth---news, reviews---and advertisements. ¶We stand for the best methods of production and exhibition. Helping the exhibitor is our object, first, last and always, and by so doing THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD has climbed the highest peak in moving picture trade journalism.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS

Classified Advertisements, three cents per word, cash with order; 50 cents minimum postage stamps accepted :: :: :: ::

SITUATIONS WANTED.

CAMERAMAN—Desires position. Has representative references; complete outfit. Accept moderate salary. Address Reliable, care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

MOVING PICTURE OPERATOR—Wide experience. Electrician. Keresone, gasoline motor generating set. Guarantee perfect projection. Go anywhere; salary reasonable. Andrew Segers, Box 1907, Washington, D. C.

MOVING PICTURE OPERATOR — Strictly sober, reliable. Any machine; go anywhere; salary reasonable; projection guaranteed. Write or wire. Henry M. Alsman, Mayfield, Ky.

OPERATOR—Licensed, has also had experience in laboratory. State salary. Operator, 692 Flushing Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

CAMERAMAN—Expert in effects. Desires connection with reliable concern. Has lately been engaged in new process natural color motion picture photography. Experienced in laboratory work. Best references. Address V. M., care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

ASSISTANT DIRECTOR—Reliable and efficient. Thorough technical and artistic experience. Can prove great help to director needing a capable assistant and one who knows his business. Address C. A., care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

CAMERAMAN — Broad outdoor experience. Own complete professional outfit. Samples. References. Charles I. Reid, Millersburg, Pa.

EXPERT PHOTOGRAPHER—Playwright, comedy, dramatic producer, original ideas. Offers considered any company, or partnership in film production. Walsh Photo-Play Co., Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

CAMERAMAN—At liberty. Studio, scenic and commercial. Address S. S., care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

DIRECTOR, with vast experience, at liberty after January 15 Productions have been rated by critics among the best motion pictures ever produced. Open for engagement with reliable concern. Address A., care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

PIANIST—Young married man wants position; cue pictures. Two years last position. Best references furnished. L. M. W., care M. P. World, N. Y. City

TWO MEN FOR EXPEDITION OR FIELD WORK IN ANY COUNTRY. ONE IS A CAPABLE CAMERAMAN; ONE IS A DIRECTOR. SPEAK THREE LANGUAGES. SOBER, RELIABLE; BEST REFERENCES. IRA, CARE M. P. WORLD, CHICAGO, ILL.

AT LIBERTY—A-1 violinist-pianist, man and wife. Experienced vaudeville, pictures, cafe work. Teachers. Man piano tuner. No tickets to reliable parties. First-class references furnished. Good repertoire. A. F. of M. Musicians, Box 256, Payette, Ida.

MANAGER of high-class moving picture theater. Ten years all round experience, wishes connection with feature film concern as territory manager, road man, etc., with convincing methods and hustling ability. Apply W. J. M., care M. P. World, N. Y. City HIGH-CLASS MANAGER at liberty. Ten years of detailed experience in the motion picture industry. Have always been successful owing to my extreme managerial ability. An interview will convince. J. W., care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

OPERATOR and wife pianist. Joint salary $25. Long experience. Best references. Experienced, care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

EXPERT CAMERAMAN wishes to change position. Three years' experience large studios. Moderate salary. E. C., care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

OPERATOR—Six years' experience; good mechanic and electrician. Guarantee perfect projection. Go anywhere; reasonable. Collins, 343 East 42d St., N. Y. City.

HELP WANTED.

MANAGER who has made good and will stand investigation. Take entire charge new modern theater. Town 10,000. Good opportunity for right man. B. S. M., care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES.

"AMBERLUX" Lens filters are business bringers.

FOR SALE—Fine large motion picture studio (about 100 x 200 ft.). Situated on large tract of land. Picturesque location, thirty minutes from New York. Address Picture Studio, care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE—"A Gentleman's Home." The finest three hundred and thirty acre improved farm in Western Washington. Improvements alone cost seventeen thousand dollars. Fenced, crossfenced. One and a half miles of water front, fine sandy bathing and clam beach; dock. All kinds of fruit and berries. Two houses, one five-room and one new eight-room, modern, large porch, beautiful water view. Five large barns, new late model chicken coop and other buildings. Thoroughbred Brown Swiss registered cattle. Five good horses, wagons, farm tools and implements. Also a 31-foot cruiser type launch goes with the place. Will consider a good motion picture theater as part payment. Answer quick if you want this. J. S. Shortley, owner (no agents), Orcas, Wash.

CALIFORNIA SCENERY made to order, plain or colored. Prices on application. Monterey Motion Picture Co., Monterey, Cal.

THEATERS WANTED.

WANTED—To rent, first-class show with option of buying. Must be located in the West in good manufacturing or railroad center. Banking references furnished. Address Box 120, Duncan, Ariz.

PROFITABLE MOVIE WANTED—In good Texas, Indiana or Illinois town. Will buy or lease. Write describing fully, if you have something really worth close investigation. Box 24, Route 3, Pimento, Ind.

WANTED—To buy or lease theater. State all details, including capacity and average weekly receipts and expenses. Carl Duncan, Killbuck, Ohio.

(Continued on page 679.)

POWER'S 6B

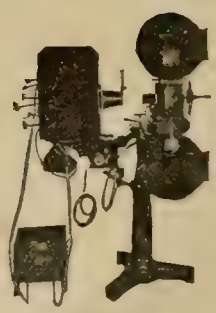
Adolphus Beniot

owner of the

HILLCREST THEATRE

TAFTVILLE, CONN.

Wanted the Best of Modern Equipment for His Theatre.



SIMPLEX

We Specialize in Lenses Tell Us Your Troubles

He Purchased from Us Machines, Booth, Chopper, Special Condensing and Projection Lenses, and We Saw to it That His Projection Was the Best Obtainable.

We Equip Motion Picture Theatres Completely

Ask Him About It We Can do the Same for You

Picture Theatre Equipment Company

19 WEST 23rd STREET NEW YORK

158 PEARL STREET BUFFALO, N. Y.

PROJECTION ENGINEERS
CONSULT US FOR MODEL PROJECTION

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISEMENTS---Continued from page 678

CASH FOR YOUR MOVIE—I am a practical, successful moving picture broker. Seventeen years of continuous success. Selling upwards of one million dollars' worth annually, sales, exchanges and leases. Lewis, the Moving Picture Broker, Established 1896. Offices, 578-80 Ellicott Sq., Buffalo, N. Y.

THEATERS FOR SALE OR RENT.

MODERN—Fully equipped picture and vaudeville theater, located central states, town 10,000. Best reasons for selling. Closest inspection. Bargain $2,500. Exceptional opportunity. XYZ, care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

SAN DIEGO, CALIFORNIA—I wish to sell the Union Theater, as I have a large mine to look after. This is in the best location in the city and has been established seven years, 330 days sunshine per year. No cold, no frost. It is a money maker right now. For information write to George W. Magwood, Owner.

FOR SALE—Picture theater, fine equipment, heart of city of six thousand in Michigan. Money maker. Very little opposition. Bargain for quick sale. Good reason for selling to buyer. G. D., care M. P. World, N. Y City.

LOOK—Moving picture men. For sale, two picture houses in one of Illinois' best cities. One house seats 600. One seats 700. Specially constructed. The best location you ever saw. Houses must be seen to be appreciated. Long leases. Houses located close together. Only men with cash need write for information. Nothing like this ever advertised in any paper. Best reason in the world for selling. Address Lock Box 786, East Moline, Ills.

MOVIE—One of the best sections in Buffalo. Running expenses, including rent, $85 week. Receipts $100-$150 week. Five-year lease; capacity about 400. Edison and 6A Power's machines; piano. Price, $1,500; $800 down. Lewis, Moving Picture Broker, 580 Ellicott Sq., Buffalo, N. Y.

MOVIE—The only one in successful manufacturing town of about 4,000. Admission ten cents. Weekly expenses less than $60. Receipts about $130. Price for real estate and equipment, $10,000; half cash, or will sell the business for $3,000. Lewis, 580 Ellicott Sq., Buffalo, N. Y.

TWO OF THE LARGEST and best-equipped movies in town of 35,000; the monopoly of the town. Weekly receipts, $800-$1,000. Weekly expenses about half. One of the houses could be converted into 10c-15c house under proper management, which will increase the receipts about $300 week. Positively worth $20,000; will sacrifice for $12,000. Lewis, 580 Ellicott Sq., Buffalo, N. Y.

MOVIE—Buffalo, workingmen's settlement; seating capacity 340, standing room for about 100. Modern equipment in every detail. Expenses $85 week. Receipts $125-$200. Present owner seven years. Price $12,500; $3,000 down; or will sell the business alone for $3,500. Lewis, 580 Ellicott Sq., Buffalo, N. Y.

FOR SALE—Largest picture house in good Illinois town of 40,000, in good shape for vaudeville, capacity 700. Lease to suit. Cost $5,000. Good basement for roller rink. Will consider reasonable cash offer; other business takes all my time. C. E. Brosi, P. O. Box 348, Quincy. Ill.

PICTURE THEATER for sale. In the best city on Pacific Coast. Location best in city. Seating 350, stage and sceneries newly built, rent reasonable. City 17,000. Reason for selling other business out city. Eva. L. Rick, 730 H St., Eureka, Cal.

EQUIPMENT WANTED.

SIX Oscillating Fans, 110 volts, sixty cycles. Must be cheap. Federicks, 3533 No. Thirteenth St., Phila., Pa.

WANTED—To buy Power's 6a and Simplex machines, also heads for Power's 6. Olson Bros., 117 No. Topeka Ave., Wichita, Kans.

EQUIPMENT FOR SALE.

FOR SALE—New and second hand moving picture machines, all leading makes, at reduced prices. Crescent Film Exchange, 37 So. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

LARGE STOCK of used moving picture machines—all kinds—also opera and folding chairs at about half regular price; all goods guaranteed in first-class condition, shipped subject to inspection. Lears Theater Supply Co., 509 Chestnut St., St. Louis, Mo.

FOR SALE—Complete equipment, any quantity, new and second-hand for moving picture theaters, furnished at short notice. Specializing Powers' machines. W. H. Latimer, 808 Lackawanna Ave., Scranton, Pa.

"AMBERLUX" Lens filters protect your patrons from eyestrain. Price $3.50. W. D. Warner, Columbus, Ohio.

FOR SALE—New or second hand opera chairs for moving picture theaters at a bargain. Crescent Film Exchange, 37 So. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

FOR SALE—Rebuilt machines. Motiograph, 1908, $60. Edison Exhibition, $65; Power's No. 6, $115. Power's No. 5, $75. Motiograph, 1911, $125. A-1 condition guaranteed. Many others. Write for catalog and list. Amusement Supply Co., 160-H No. Fifth Ave., Chicago, Ill.

CUSHMAN, 4 h. p., 4 cycle engine, Korsmeyer, 60 volt, 2½ K. W. generator. Power's 5 machine, lamp sockets, wire, etc. Good condition. Sell cheap. Emery Greenwood, care Ruffs Chop House, Hartington, Nebr.

FOR SALE—McIntosh single stereopticon arc outfit complete. Excellent condition. Peer, 628 So. Hobart, Los Angeles, Cal.

$75 BUYS complete late model $250 standard moving picture machine, used only thirty days. Guaranteed as good as new. 1/12 horse power direct current motor, $4. 16-inch direct current electric fan, $3. H. David, 711 So. Kedzie Ave., Chicago, Ill.

ORDER "Amberlux" lens filters today.

OPERA AND FOLDING CHAIRS—New and second hand. Special offers—400 maple folding, 35c each. 300 lot practically new at a bargain. 1,800 other opera chairs in perfect condition, also an electric sign. All guaranteed subject to inspection. Atlas Seating Co., 501 Fifth Ave., N. Y. City.

CAMERAS WANTED.

RELIABLE CAMERA wanted in trade for a just like-new motorcycle with $275. Tires have never been on the pavement yet. Prefer Universal Camera. Write W. B., care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

CAMERAS FOR SALE.

NEW MODEL No. 4 Pittman Prof. camera now ready. Automatic dissolve, automatic take-up, both directions, 400 ft. magazine. The most up-to-date camera proposition ever placed upon the market. Tripods, lenses, etc. Send for particulars. We also specialize in repairs and improvements in all makes of cameras. R. W. Pittman Co., 394 Canal St., New York City. Phone 5961 Franklin.

PROFESSIONAL ANGELUS—A-1 camera, like new. Four magazines, 400 foot capacity, Zeiss Tessar F.3-5 lens 50mm, dissolving attachment, film meter punch, best focusing arrangements through the film also on ground glass. Plush lined carrying case, professional tripod, tilt and panoramic, cost $550. Sell for $325. L. Jones, 331 So. Kickapoo St., Lincoln, Ill.

SAVE MONEY—New latest model, 400 foot professional, automatic dissolve, F.3-5 lens, only $200. Bargains in tripods $15 upwards. Ray, 326 Fifth Ave., N. Y. City.

FOR SALE—Pathe professional camera, genuine Carl Zeiss 3-5 lens, 2 in. focus, three magazines and studio tripod. Price $200. Box 915, Waco, Tex.

FILMS WANTED.

WANTED—Sole agencies Australasia everything connected cinematography, also second-hand war films, scenics, exclusive features any quantity, C. O. D., Melbourne. Commonwealth Feature Films, Ltd., 182 Collins St., Melbourne, Australia.

WANTED—Single reels, doubles, three, four and five-reel features. Must be in first-class condition, with or without posters, for export. Federal Feature Film Co., 119 East 23d St., N. Y. City.

WANTED—Three, four, five and six-reel features. Must be in first-class condition, with or without posters for export. State all particulars in first letter. Sohmer, Rm. 803, 145 West 45th St., N. Y. City.

WANTED—4, 5 and 6-reel western features, with plenty of paper. Western, care M. P. World, N. Y. City.

4, 5, 6-REEL American features for export. Peerless Film Co., Inc., 145 West 45th St., N. Y. City.

FILMS FOR SALE OR RENT.

FOR SALE—200 reels $2 per reel up, with posters. Billy Sunday, $35. War pictures, $25. "War World Wide," four reels, new, $200. Wichita Film & Supply Co., Wichita, Kan.

100 SINGLES AND DOUBLES, American make, 12 posters with each reel. Shipped privilege screen examination. Federal, 119 East 23d St., N. Y. City.

THREE and four-part hand-colored Passion films. Sale or rent. No. 5 Power's moving picture machine, $50, complete. Luback, 1109 Manhattan Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

3 AND 4-REEL features in excellent condition, with plenty of advertiing matter. Also single and two reelers with posters. 3-reel Kilbane-Attel fight picture; great bargains. Weinberg's Features, 145 West 45th St., N. Y. City.

FOR SALE—Moses and Pharaoh, Son of the Shumanite, Herod and the New Born King, Priestess of Carthage, Days of Nero. Price, $50 each. Donald Campbell, 145 West 45th st., N. Y. City.

MISCELLANEOUS.

WE BUY and sell new and second hand moving picture machines, opera chairs and films. Crescent Film Exc., 37 So. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

ENTER—"Amberlux"—Exit eyestrain.

CARTOON—Advertisement and chasing letter titles made to order 17c foot up. Ray, 326 Fifth Ave., N. Y. City.

STICKTITE FILM CEMENT—Only cement that's guaranteed. Used by leading theaters. Recommended by F. H. Richardson, M. P. World. Trial bottle, 25c. Sticktite Cement Co., Turner Falls, Mass.

A Welcome Visitor Each Week in Every Business Home Where Moving Pictures Are of Interest

The Moving Picture World

Is Admirably Adapted to Carry Any Little Message Which You May Wish to Send

Our Classified Advertisements at Three Cents Per Word Will Produce Remarkable Results

Send Copy, with remittance, to CHALMERS PUBLISHING CO., 17 Madison Avenue, New York City

INDEX

TO CONTENTS

Among the Picture Theaters..... 609
"As a Woman Sows" (Gaumont)..... 621
At Leading Picture Theaters..... 574
Avenue Theater Leased..... 640

"Bait, The" (Centaur)..... 622
Berst Leaves General Film..... 574
Beaumont, Harry, with Essanay..... 607
"Because He Loved Her" (Triangle)..... 620
Ben Ali Theater at Lexington Burns..... 638
Big New Theater, The..... 635
"Bill Peter's Kid" (Vitagraph)..... 617
Bronx Exhibitors Install Officers..... 571

Calendar of Daily Program Releases...650, 652
Censorship Talk Rampant..... 647
"Chain of Evidence, The" (Biograph)..... 616
Chicago News Letter..... 576
"City, The" (World Film)..... 615
Coming Biograph Dramas..... 616
Comments on the Films..... 624
Conditions in the Rockies..... 606
Credit in Kansas City..... 642

Denver's Dime Shows..... 646
Detroit's Mayor Says Local Censorship May Come..... 640

Essanay Serial Looms Big..... 571
"Evangelist, The" (Lubin)..... 621

Facts and Comments..... 563
Film Hosts in Battle Array..... 566
Five Reel Material..... 564
Forbids Giving Prizes..... 638

General Film Company Not to Dissolve... 582
Grandon, F. J., Goes to Metro..... 612
"Green Stockings" (Vitagraph)..... 617

Hearken All Ye Producers..... 565
"His Vindication" (Cosmofotofilm)..... 623

Lack of State License Hinders Company.. 639
"Law's Injustice, The" (Lubin)..... 621
Le Vino Leaves Arrow..... 573
List of Current Film Release Dates, 682, 684, 686

"Madame X" (Pathe)..... 615
Manufacturers' Advances Notes..... 627
Marston, Theodore, a Director of Big Scenes 604
"Marta of the Jungle" (Centaur)..... 616
Mason, Sydney..... 614
Michigan Board of Health Advises Seeing Films..... 641
Minneapolis Wants Board of Film Approvers 643
Minors in the Business..... 634
"Mishaps of Musty Suffer, The" (Kleine).. 619
"Misleading Lady, The" (Vitagraph)..... 618
Modern Theater Construction..... 601
Morosco, Oliver, Signs Broadhurst..... 575
Motion Picture Educator..... 608
Music for Equitable Players..... 605
Music for the Picture..... 599
"My Lady Incog" (Famous Players)..... 620

New Orleans Development..... 644
News of Los Angeles and Vicinity..... 578
Next Week's Vitagraphs..... 603

Ohio Sunday Laws..... 637
Orth, Louise..... 612

"Path of Happiness, The" (Red Feather).. 622
Pathe Dinner a Love Feast..... 570
"Peggy" (Triangle)..... 620
Picture Theaters Projected..... 632
Popular Plays and Players Active..... 573
Portland Screen Club..... 648
Poster Ticket System..... 573
Prince, Charles H..... 605
Purple Pictures and Their Peril..... 604

Quincy Censor Resigns..... 641

"Ransom, The" (Equitable)..... 616
Real Stories from Reel Studios..... 607
Reviews of Current Productions..... 615
Rothapfel Opens Knickerbocker..... 571
Rowland Refused Injunction..... 572

Screen Club Meeting..... 636
Stories of the Films..... 634
"Stronger than Woman's Will" (Biograph). 616
Sullivan & Considine Move Out of Salt Lake City..... 646

Theaters on Olive Street..... 645
"Trail of the Wild Wolf" (Universal)..... 622
Triangle Foreign Contracts..... 605
Triangle Program..... 620
Two Lubin Releases..... 621

"Unwritten Law, The" (California)..... 618

"Villain Worshipper, The" (Kalem)..... 619
V-L-S-E Staff Changes..... 605

Ware, Helen, in "Secret Love"..... 613
Warner's, H. B., Triangle Debut..... 572
Want National Board..... 633
Wants Cincinnati's Zoo..... 639
Wharton Doing General Producing..... 570
What Spokane Exchange Managers are Doing..... 648
"Wild Oats" (Kleine-Edison)..... 621
With World Film Directors..... 575

TO ADVERTISERS

CARBONS AND CARBON ACCESSORIES.
Jones & Cammack..... 689
Kiewert, Chas. L..... 689
Reisinger, Hugo..... 691
Speer Carbon Co..... 693

CHAIR AND SEATING MANUFACTURERS.
American Seating Co..... 693
Andrews, A. H., Co..... 693
Steel Furniture Co..... 693

ELECTRICAL & MECHANICAL EQUIPMENT.
Amusement Supply Co..... 691
Calehoff Supply Co..... 691
Erker Bros..... 692
Feature Corporation..... 689
Foos Gas Engine Co..... 691
Fort Wayne Electric Works..... 668
Fulton, E. E..... 665
General Electric Co..... 693
Hallberg, J. H..... 672
Hertner Electric & Mfg. Co..... 664
Hommel, Ludwig & Co..... 668
Illinois Theater Supply Co..... 690
Kleine Optical Co..... 674
Lears Theater Supply Co..... 662
Lucas, Harry K..... 665
Northwestern Motion Picture Equip. Co.... 668
Picture Theater Equip. Co..... 678
Porter, B. F..... 661
Stern Mfg. Co..... 688
Stedinger, Chas. A..... 664
Swaab, Lewis M..... 691
Westinghouse Elec. & Mfg. Co..... 661

FILM EXCHANGES.
Bradenburgh, G. W..... 668
Central Film Co..... 665
Greater N. Y. Film Rental Co.....650, 686
Wisconsin-Illinois Feature Release Co..... 664

MANUFACTURERS OF MOVING PICTURES.
American Commercial Film Co..... 692
American Film Co., Inc..... 540
Biograph Co..... 651
Bluebird Photoplays, Inc.....532-34
Edison, Thos. A., Inc..... 649
Essanay Film Mfg. Co.....519, 523-25, 530-31
Equitable Motion Picture Corp..... 522
Famous Players Film Co.....526-29
Gaumont Co..... 545
Great Northern Film Co..... 688
Hearst-Vitagraph..... 537
Ivan Film Productions..... 660
Kalem Co.....561-62
Kane, Arthur S.....Colored Insert
Kleine, George..... 553
Knickerbocker Star Features..... 555
Lariat Films.....Colored Insert
Lasky, Jesse L., Feature Play Co..... 535
Lubin Mfg. Co..... 556
Metro Picture Corp.....Colored Insert
Mutual Film Corp.....536-39
Paramount Pictures Corp.....528-29
Pathe Exchange, Inc.....546-51
Picture Playhouse Film Co., Inc..... 665
Rolin Film Co..... 694
Selig Polyscope Co..... 694
Selig Tribune..... 695
Signal Film Corp.....542-43
Sterling Camera & Film Co..... 664
Thanhouser Film Corp.....518, 544
Triangle Film Corp.....666-67
Universal Film Mfg. Co.....520-21
Vim Comedies..... 554
Vitagraph Co. of America.....558-60
V-L-S-E, Inc..... 653
Vogue Films, Inc..... 541
War Film Syndicate..... 673
Wharton Bros., Inc.....Colored Insert
World Film Corp..... 553

MISCELLANEOUS.
American Film Laboratories..... 687
Active Motion Picture Co..... 688
Automatic Ticket Selling & C. R. Co..... 660
Bioscope, The..... 690
Caille Bros..... 665
Cox, Eugene, Scene Painting Studios..... 661
Classified Advertisements..... 678
Columbia Film Co..... 685
Commercial Motion Pictures Co.....663, 661
Cormack, Geo. B., & Co..... 669
Corcoran, A. J..... 663
"Dare-Devil"..... 663
Eagle Film Mfg. & Producing Co..... 660
Eastman Kodak Co..... 687
Erbograph Co..... 664
Evans Film Mfg. Co..... 688
Exhibitors, Send for These..... 692
Film World..... 688
Gunby Bros..... 668
Il Triso Al Cinematografo..... 688
Industrial Moving Picture Co..... 670
Kinematograaf, De..... 688
Kinematograph Weekly, The..... 664
Kraus Mfg. Co..... 662
M. P. Board of Trade..... 683
Motion Picture Electricity..... 689
M. P. W. Anti-Censorship Slides..... 693
M. P. Directory Co..... 688
Moore, Wm. N..... 669
National Ticket Co..... 658
Standard Motion Picture Co..... 661
Trade Circular Addressing Co..... 690

MOVING PICTURE CAMERAS.
Los Angeles M. P. Co..... 665
Universal Camera Co..... 687

MUSIC AND MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS.
American Photo Player Co..... 675
Deagan, J. C..... 665
Harmo Pipe Organ Co..... 687
Schirmer, G., Inc..... 690
Seeburg, J. P., Piano Co..... 660
Simon, Walter C..... 688
Sinn, Clarence E..... 693

POSTERS AND FRAMES.
American Slide & Poster Co..... 659
Goes Lithographing Co..... 664
Menger & Ring..... 668
Newman Mfg. Co..... 663

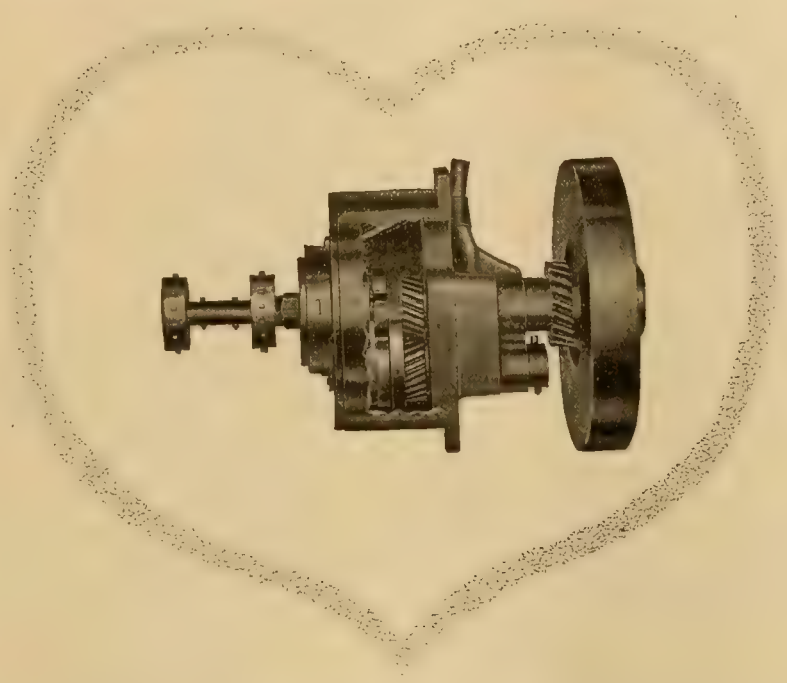
PROJECTION MACHINE MANUFACTURERS.
American Standard M. P. Mch. Co..... 690
Enterprise Optical Co..... 685
Power, Nicholas, Co..... 696
Precision Mch. Co..... 681

PROJECTION SCREEN MANUFACTURERS.
Genter, J. H., Co., Inc..... 690
Minusa Cine Products Co..... 685
Radium Gold Fibre Screen, Inc..... 671
Simpson, A. L., Inc..... 660
Thomas, A. G..... 688

STEREOPTICON SLIDES.
Niagara Slide Co..... 632
Utility Transparency Co..... 687

THEATRICAL ARCHITECTS.
Atherton, Thomas, Jr..... 693
Decorators' Supply Co..... 691

Mechanical Perfection Is Reason for Simplex Popularity



THE HEART OF THE MECHANISM IS THE INTERMITTENT MOVEMENT

SIMPLEX INTERMITTENT GENEVA MOVEMENT STAR AND CAM must not be confused with similar movements of other projectors.

The principle may be similar but the Simplex method of design and accuracy is what gives results.

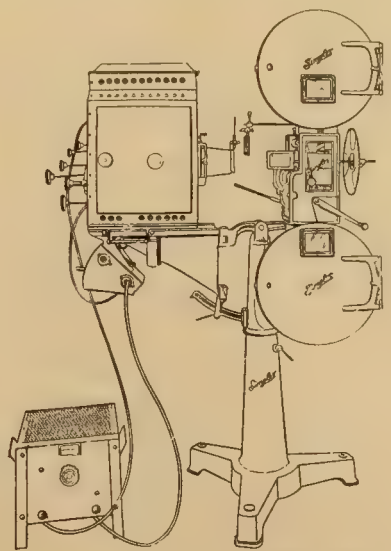
When you consider that sprocket must be started and stopped 16 times or more each second the strain on the parts employed is apparent.

The circumference of the Simplex Intermittent Sprocket travels ¾ of an inch in 1/64th of a second, or at the rate of 2,880 feet per minute. This gives some idea of what it means to bring it to an instant stop.

In the manufacture of the Simplex Intermittent Movement the finest steel is used and the greatest accuracy to the 1/10,000 of an inch is required.

The Star and Sprocket are tested under a magnifying glass for mechanical accuracy and are tested under operating conditions for results on the screen.

The entire intermittent case can be removed from the machine in 30 seconds by taking out 2 screws and loosening 2 others. It can be replaced as quickly.



Simplex
TRADE MARK PAT'D

The PROJECTOR that received the UNANIMOUS APPROVAL of the U. S. GOVERNMENT WAR DEPARTMENT and

GRAND PRIZE—PANAMA-PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL EXPOSITION.

Send for Catalog "A"

MADE AND GUARANTEED BY

THE PRECISION MACHINE CO. INC.

317 East 34th St. New York

List of Current Film Release Dates

(For Daily Calendar of Program Releases See Pages 650, 652.)

Universal Film Mfg. Co.

RELEASE DAYS.

Sunday—Big "U," Laemmle, L-KO.
Monday—Broadway Universal Features, Imp, Nestor.
Tuesday—Gold Seal, Imp, Rex.
Wednesday—Animated Weekly, L-KO, Victor.
Thursday—Big "U," Laemmle, Powers.
Friday—Imp, Nestor, Victor.
Saturday—Big "U," Bison, Joker.

ANIMATED WEEKLY.

Dec. 22—Number 198 (Topical).
Dec. 29—Number 199 (Topical).
Jan. 5—No. 200 (Topical).
Jan. 12—Number 201 (Topical).
Jan. 19—Number 202 (Topical).
Jan. 26—Number 203 (Topical).
Feb. 2—Number 204 (Topical).

BIG U.

Jan. 2—The Honor to Die (Three parts—Dr.).
Jan. 6—No release this day.
Jan. 13—"X 3" (Three parts—Detective—Dr.).
Jan. 15—Across the Rio Grande (Three parts—Western—Drama).
Jan. 20—No release this day.
Jan. 27—No release this day.
Jan. 28—Nan Good for Nothing (Drama).
Feb. 3—No release this day.

BISON.

Jan. 15—Across the Rio Grande (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 22—Buck Simon's Puncher (Two parts—Western—Drama).
Jan. 29—A Daughter of Penance (Two parts—Mexican—Drama).
Feb. 5—Phantom Island (Two parts—Mystery—Drama).

BROADWAY UNIVERSAL FEATURES.

Jan. 3—Landon's Legacy (Five parts—Drama).
Jan. 10—Love's Pilgrimage to America (Five parts—Drama).
Jan. 17—The Man Inside (Five parts—Drama).
Jan. 24—A Soul Enslaved (Five parts—Dr.).

GOLD SEAL.

Jan. 4—Lord John's Journal (Adventure No. 2, "The Gray Sisterhood" (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 11—The Boob's Victory (Two parts—Comedy—Drama).
Jan. 18—The Reward of Chivalry (Three parts—Drama.)
Jan. 25—Discontent (Two parts—Psychological—Drama).
Feb. 1—Lord John's Journal (No. 3, "Three Fingered Jenny"—Three parts—Drama).

IMP.

Jan. 4—No release this day.
Jan. 7—The Law of Life (Three parts—Human Interest—Drama).
Jan. 11—No release this day.
Jan. 18—No release this week.
Jan. 21—Vanity Thy Name Is (Two parts—Comedy—Drama).
Jan. 25—Hired, Tired and Fired (Comedy).
Feb. 1—No release this day.
Feb. 4—The Soul Man (Drama).

JOKER.

Jan. 8—Those Female Haters (Comedy).
Jan. 15—No release this day.
Jan. 22—The Whole Jungle Was After Him (Animal—Comedy).
Jan. 29—Mrs. Green's Mistake (Comedy).
Feb. 5—Wanted, a Piano Tuner (Comedy).

LAEMMLE.

Jan. 5—The Underworld (Comedy—Drama).
Jan. 6—Missy (Two parts—Modern—Drama).
Jan. 9—Blind Fury (Drama).
Jan. 13—No release this day.
Jan. 16—No release this day.
Jan. 20—Just Plain Folks (Three parts—Rural—Drama).
Jan. 23—Her Dream Man (Drama).
Jan. 27—The Red Lie (Three parts—Mystery—Drama).
Jan. 28—The Inner Soul (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 30—No release this day.
Feb. 3—The Wise Man and the Fool (Two parts—Human Interest—Drama).
Feb. 6—No release this day.

L-KO.

Jan. 9—Billie's Reformation (Two parts—Comedy).
Jan. 12—Gertie's Busy Day (Comedy).
Jan. 16—Flirting a la Carte (Comedy).
Jan. 19—Saving Susie From the Sea (Comedy).
Jan. 23—Mr. Meldiot's Assassination (Two parts—Comedy).
Jan. 26—Knocks and Opportunities (Two parts—Comedy).
Jan. 30—Cupid At the Polo Game (Comedy).
Feb. 2—Sea Dogs and Land Rats (Comedy).
Feb. 6—A September Mourning (Two parts—Comedy).

NESTOR.

Jan. 7—Flivver's Art of Mystery (Comedy).
Jan. 10—The Boy, the Girl and the Auto (Comedy).
Jan. 14—Flivver's Good Turn (Comedy).
Jan. 17—Mingling Spirits (Comedy).
Jan. 21—Flivvers Famous Cheese-Hound (Comedy).
Jan. 24—Her Steady Carfare (Comedy).
Jan. 28—Flivvers in the Dance of the Shivvers (Comedy).
Jan. 31—When Aunt Matilda Fell (Comedy).
Feb. 4—Flivvers in the Still Alarm (Two parts—Comedy).

POWERS.

Jan. 15—Uncle Sam at Work, No. 4, "Uncle Sam's Proteges at Work and at Play" (Educational).
Jan. 20—Building Up the Health of a Nation, No. 2 (Educational).
—The Aerial Buds (Vaudeville Act).
Jan. 22—Uncle Sam At Work (No. 5, "Protecting the Ships At Sea"—Edu.).
Jan. 27—Sammie Johnsin, Hunter (Cartoon—Comedy).
—Fishing River Lampreys (Educational).
Jan. 29—Uncle Sam at Work, No. 6, "Saving Wealth and Building Health (Educational).
Feb. 3—Building Up the Health of a Nation No. 3—Educational).
—Caged with Polar Bears (Vaudeville Act).
Feb. 5—Uncle Sam at Work (No. 7, "Uncle Sam's Children"—Educational).

REX.

Jan. 11—His Return (Drama).
Jan. 14—Her Defiance (Two parts—Heart Interest—Drama).
Jan. 16—The Little Mascot (Two parts—Dr.).
Jan. 18—The Silent Member (Drama).
Jan 23—No release this day.
Jan. 25—No release this day.
Jan. 30—In His Own Trap (Three parts—Modern—Drama).
Feb. 1—In Dreary Jungle Town (Comedy).
Feb. 4—The Little Thief (Drama).
Feb. 6—One Who Passed By (Drama).

VICTOR.

Jan. 7—No release this day.
Jan. 12—Man and Morality (Three parts—Dr.).
Jan. 14—The Ring and the Rajah (Drama).
Jan. 19—Her Better Self (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 21—A Sea Mystery (Drama).
Jan. 26—Across the Line (Drama).
Feb. 2—Son o' the Stars (Three parts—Western—Drama).

UNIVERSAL SPECIAL FEATURE.

Jan. 3—Graft (No. 4, "The Power of the People" (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 10—Graft No. 5, "Grinding Life Down" (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 17—Graft No. 6, "The Railroad Monopoly" (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 24—Graft, No. 7, "America Saved From War" (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 31—Graft No. 8, "Old King Coal" (Two parts—Drama).

Mutual Film Corp.

RELEASE DAYS.

Sunday—Reliance (2), Casino (1), Thanhouser (1).
Monday—American (2), Falstaff (1), Novelty (1).
Tuesday—Thanhouser (2), Cartoon and Scenic (1), Beauty (1).
Wednesday—Rialto, Centaur (3), Novelty (1).
Thursday—Centaur (2), Falstaff (1), Mutual Weekly (1).
Friday—Mustang (2), American (1), Cub (1).
Saturday—Clipper, Than-o-play or Mustang (3), Beauty (1).

AMERICAN.

Jan. 3—Matching Dreams (Two parts—Comedy—Drama).
Jan. 7—Time and Tide (Drama).
Jan. 10—Viviana (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 14—The Secret Wire (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 14—Spider Barlow Meets Competition (Crook—Drama).
Jan. 16—The Gamble (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 18—The Silent Trail (Two parts—Sociological—Drama).
Jan. 21—The Thunderbolt (Drama).
Jan. 25—The Man in the Sombrero (Two parts—Society—Drama).
Jan. 28—A Sanitarium Scramble (Comedy).

BEAUTY.

Jan. 4—Billy van Deusen's Shadow (Comedy).
Jan. 8—To Be or Not to Be (Comedy).
Jan. 11—The First Quarrel (Comedy).
Jan. 15—Getting In Wrong (Comedy).
Jan. 19—Johnny's Birthday (Comedy).
Jan. 23—Mischief and a Mirror (Comedy).
Jan. 26—Some Night (Comedy).
Jan. 30—Walk this Way (Comedy).

CASINO.

Jan. 2—Leaving It to Cissy (Comedy).
Jan. 9—Alias Mr. Jones (Comedy).
Jan. 16—Ham and Eggs (Comedy).

CENTAUR.

Dec. 30—The Terror of the Fold (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 6—The Homesteader (Two parts—Animal—Drama).
Jan. 13—Marta of the Jungles (Two parts—Animal—Drama).

CLIPPER STAR FEATURES.

Jan. 1—The Wraith of Haddon Towers (Three parts—Psyclo—Drama).
Jan. 28—The Smugglers of Santa Cruz (Three parts—Seacoast—Drama).

CUB.

Jan. 7—Jerry in the Movies (Comedy).
Jan. 14—Jerry In Mexico (Comedy).
Jan. 21—The Girl of His Dreams (Comedy).
Jan. 28—Around the World (Comedy).

FALSTAFF.

Dec. 30—Foolish Fate Flora (Comedy).
Jan. 3—The Optimistic Oriental Occults (Comedy).
Jan. 6—Hilda's Husky Helper (Comedy).
Jan. 10—Belinda's Bridal Breakfast (Comedy).
Jan. 13—Reforming Rubbering Rosie (Comedy).
Jan. 18—Grace's Gorgeous Gowns (Comedy).
Jan. 20—Pete's Persian Princess (Comedy).
Jan. 25—Lucky Larry's Lady Love (Comedy).
Jan. 27—Beaten at the Bath (Comedy).

GAUMONT.

Jan. 4—See America First No. 17, "Chicago Industries" (Scenic).
—Keeping Up With the Joneses (Cartoon—Comedy).
Jan. 11—See America First (No. 18, "Milwaukee, Wis.) (Scenic).
—Keeping Up With the Joneses (Cartoon—Comedy).
Jan. 23—See America First, No. 19, "The Dells of Wisconsin"—Scenic).
—Keeping Up With the Joneses (Cartoon—Comedy).
Jan. 30—See America First, No. 20, "St. Paul and Minneapolis" (Scenic).
—Keeping Up with the Joneses (Cartoon—Comedy).

(Mutual Releases continued on page 684.)

President Wilson

will be the guest of honor and will address the first annual dinner of the Motion Picture Board of Trade of America

INC.

at the Biltmore Hotel, New York City, on Thursday evening, January 27, at eight o'clock.

Every member of the motion picture industry is cordially invited to be present and meet the President.

Reservations will be entered in the order received. Number limited to one thousand. Telegraph or mail reservations at once to

MOTION PICTURE
BOARD OF TRADE
18 East 41st Street, N. Y. City

List of Current Film Release Dates

(For Daily Calendar of Program Releases See Pages 650, 652.)

(Mutual Releases continued from page 682.)

MUSTANG.

Jan. 15—"Water Stuff" (Three parts—Comedy—Drama).
Jan. 21—Wild Jim Reformer (Two parts—Western—Drama).
Feb. 4—The Extra Man and the Milk-Fed Lion (three parts; comedy-drama).

MUTUAL WEEKLY.

Jan. 13—Number 54 (Topical).
Jan. 20—Number 55 (Topical)
Jan. 27—Number 56 (Topical).
Feb. 3—Number 57 (Topical).
Feb. 10—Number 58 (Topical).

NOVELTY.

Dec. 29—No release.
Jan. 21—Mr. Bumps, Commuter (Comedy).

RELIANCE.

Jan. 2—The Law of Success (Two parts—Dr.).
Jan. 5—The She Devil (Three parts—Dr.).

RIALTO.

Jan. 12—The Secret Agent (Three parts—Secret Service—Drama).

THANHOUSER.

Jan. 11—In the Name of the Law (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 19—The Phantom Witness (Three parts—Mystery—Drama).
Jan. 26—The Burglar's Picnic (Three parts—School—Drama).
Feb. 2—The Knotted Cord (three parts; detective drama).

MUTUAL MASTERPICTURES DE LUXE.

Jan. 17—The Thoroughbred (American—Five parts—Drama—No. 56).
Jan. 20—The Five Faults of Flo (Thanhouser—Five parts—Society—Drama—No. 57).
Jan. 22—The Bait (Centaur—Five parts—Drama—No. 58).
Jan. 24—As a Woman Sows (Gaumont—Five parts—Drama) (No. 59).
Jan. 27—Lord Loveland Discovers America (American—Five parts—Dr.) (No. 60).
Jan. 29—Betrayed (Thanhouser—Five parts—Race—Drama) (No. 61).
Jan. 31—Vengeance Is Mine (Centaur; five parts; drama (No. 62).
Feb. 3—The Idol of the Stage (Gaumont; five parts; drama) (No. 63).
Feb. 5—The White Rosette (American; five parts; drama) (No. 64).

SIGNAL FILM CORPORATION.

Jan. 10—The Girl and the Game (No. 3—"A Life in Peril"—Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 17—The Girl and the Game (No. 4, "Helen's Perilous Escape") (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 24—The Girl and the Game, No. 5, "The Fight at Signal Station" (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 31—The Girl and the Game, No. 6 (Two parts—Drama).
Feb. 7—The Girl and the Game, No. 7 (Two parts—Drama).

THANHOUSER MASTERPICTURE.

Jan. 8—Society Wolves (Five parts—Political Drama).

VOGUE.

Jan. 10—Oh, for the Life of a Fire Man! (Comedy).
Jan. 12—A Bum Steer (Comedy).
Jan. 20—A Baby Grand (Comedy).
Jan. 23—Sammy's Dough-Full Romance (Com.).
Jan. 27—Bungling Bill's Burglar (Comedy).
Jan. 30—He Thought He Went to War (Com.).
Feb. 3—Sammy versus Cupid (comedy).
Feb. 6—Title not yet announced.

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

RELEASE DAYS.

Monday—Pathe.
Tuesday—Pathe, Photocolor.
Wednesday—Pathe, Phunphilms, Globe
Thursday—Gold Rooster.
Saturday—Pathe, Starlight, Balboa.

BALBOA.

Jan. 8—The Red Circle (No. 4—Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 15—The Red Circle No. 5, "Weapon of War" (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 22—The Red Circle, No. 6, "False Colors" (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 29—The Red Circle, No. 7, "The Third De-Degree" (two parts; drama).

GLOBE.

Jan. 10—Unfamiliar Fishes (Educational).
Jan. 17—Railroad Construction on the Dark Continent (Industry).
Jan. 24—The Ausable Chasm (Picturesque America (scenic).

GOLD ROOSTER PLAYS.

Jan. 7—The King's Game (Five parts—Dr.).
Jan. 14—Madame X (Six parts—Drama).
Jan. 21—The Love Trail (Five parts—Dr.).
Jan. 28—Hazel Kirke (five parts; drama).

KING COLE.

Jan. 22—Riding the Goat (Comedy).

PATHE.

Jan. 24—The Horrors of War (three parts; topical).

PATHE NEWS.

Jan. 1—Number 1, 1916 (Topical).
Jan. 5—Number 2, 1916 (Topical).
Jan. 8—Number 3, 1916 (Topical).
Jan. 12—Number 4, 1916 (Topical).
Jan. 15—Number 5, 1916 (Topical).

PHOTOCOLOR.

Jan. 10—From Kabylia to Constantine (Scenic).
Jan. 17—The Lizards (Colored—Educational).
Jan. 24—Headdresses of Holland (costumes) (colored).

PHUNPHILMS.

Jan. 5—Luke Leans to the Literary (Comedy).
Jan. 12—Luke Lugs Luggage (Comedy).
Jan. 19—Luke Lolls in Luxury (Comedy).

STARLIGHT.

Jan. 8—Ach! Such Crimes! (Comedy).
Jan. 15—From Bad to Worse (Comedy).
Jan. 29—Shooting at Random (comedy).

Miscellaneous Feature Releases.

AMERICAN BIOSCOPE.

January—The Making of Fulton (Three parts—Drama).

AMERICAN CORRESPONDENT FILM CO.

January—The Battles of a Nation (Six parts—Topical).

AURORA FILM PLAYS CORPORATION.

January—The Waif (Five parts—Drama).

B. S. MOSS MOTION PICTURE CORPORATION.

Jan. —The Salamander (Drama).

CALIFORNIA MOTION PICTURE CORPORATION.

Jan.—The Unwritten Law (drama).

COSMOFOTOFILM CO.

January—His Vindication (Four parts—Dr.).

EAGLE FILM MANUFACTURING & PRODUCING. CO.

January—Pirates of the Sky (Drama).
January—Grogan's Alley (Comedy).
January—The Adventures of Suffy (Comedy).

EDUCATIONAL FILMS CORPORATION OF AMERICA.

Jan.—Where Footfalls Seldom Sound (Series No. 1, "The Film Hunters" (scenic).

EQUITABLE FILM CORPORATION.

Jan. 10—Her Great Hour (Triumph—Five parts—Drama).
Jan. 17—The Ransom (Triumph—Five parts—Drama).
Jan. 24—Babette of the Bally Hoo (Five parts—Drama).
Jan. 31—The Clarion (Five parts—Drama).

JOE W. FARNHAM.

January—Race Suicide (Six parts—Drama).

FOX FILM CORPORATION.

Jan. 9—A Parisian Romance (Drama).
Jan. 16—The Fourth Estate (Drama).
Jan. 23—The Serpent (Drama).
Jan. 30—The Ruling Passion (Drama).

GREAT NORTHERN FILM COMPANY.

January—Sins of a Great City (Four parts—Drama).

ARTHUR S. KANE.

January—Somewhere in France (Five parts—Topical).

MEDUSA FILM.

Jan. —His Daughter's Second Husband (Five parts—Drama).

METRO PICTURES CORPORATION.

Jan. 10—The Turmoil (Columbia—Five Parts—Drama).
Jan. 17—The Lure of Heart's Desire (Popular Plays and Players—Five parts—Drama).
Jan. 24—Her Debt of Honor (Columbia—Dr.).
Jan. 31—Man and His Soul (Quality—Drama).

WM. MORRIS.

January—On the Battlefields of France (Top.).

MUTT AND JEFF, INC.

Jan.—Mutt and Jeff, No. 1 (cartoon; comedy).

THE NEW YORK WORLD.

January—Fighting in France (Topical).

PARAMOUNT PICTURES CORPORATION.

Jan. 6—Tongues of Men (Morosco—Five parts—Drama).
Jan. 10—Mice and Men (Famous Players—Five parts—Comedy—Drama).
Jan. 13—The Golden Chance (Lasky—Five Parts—Comedy—Drama).
Jan. 17—My Lady Incog (Famous Players—Five parts—Comedy—Drama).
Jan. 20—Nearly a King (Famous Players—Five parts—Comedy).
Jan. 24—The Call of the Cumberlands (Pallas—Five parts—Drama).
Jan. 27—The Spider (Famous Players—Five parts—Drama).
Jan. 31—Pudd'nhead Wilson (Lasky—Five parts—Comedy—Drama).

TRIANGLE FILM CORPORATION.

Releases for week of Jan. 16:
The Missing Links (Fine Arts—Five parts—Drama).
Because He Loved Her (Keystone—Two parts—Comedy).
The Beckoning Flame (Kay-Bee—Five parts—Drama).
A Modern Enoch Arden (Keystone—Two parts—Comedy).

Releases for week of Jan. 23:
The Wood Nymph (Fine Arts; five parts; drama).
Perils of the Park (Keystone; comedy).
The Conqueror (Kay-Bee; five parts; drama).
A Movie Stark (Keystone; two parts; comedy).

WAR FILM SYNDICATE.

Jan.—On the Firing Line with the Germans (eight parts; topical).

WORLD FILM CORPORATION.

Jan. 10—Life's Whirlpool (Brady—Drama).
Jan. 17—The City (Shubert; drama).
Jan. 24—The Ballet Girl (Brady; drama).
Jan. 31—Fruits of Desire (Brady; drama).

V-L-S-E, INC.

Jan. 10—No Greater Love (Selig—Five Parts—Drama).
Jan. 10—Green Stockings (Vitagraph—Five parts—Drama).
Jan. 17—Captain Jinks of the Horse Marines (Essanay—Five parts—Comedy).
Jan. 17—My Lady's Slipper (Vitagraph—Five parts—Drama).

KLEINE—EDISON FEATURE SERVICE.

Jan. 5—The Devil's Prayer Book (Kleine—Drama).
Jan. 12—The Catspaw (Edison—Five parts—Drama).
Jan. 19—Wild Oats (Kleine—Five parts—Dr.).
Jan. 26—The Innocence of Ruth (Edison—Five parts—Drama).

WITHIN YOUR GRASP LIES GOLD!

You don't have to DIG for it—it's THERE!

To be in business and make a living is one thing, but the "goal" you strive for is WEALTH—not mere Bread and Meat. If you are not making money, just take an hour off, sit in some quiet place and ask yourself these questions:

Am I giving the public their money's worth?

Is my place clean, well ventilated—inviting?

Are my pictures as Clear and Bright as they might be?

If you will assume the attitude of a patron rather than proprietor, the last question you put to yourself will make you do some DYNAMIC THINKING!

Mr. Exhibitor, do you realize that you are staking YOUR ALL on the screen you use? Do you know that there is no other one thing that will RUIN you so quickly and surely? Do you think the public are going to STRAIN THEIR EYES on CLOUDY pictures? NO! Absolutely NO—they go where they get the MOST for their money, the same as YOU do.

MINUSA GOLD FIBRE SCREENS, "Built by Brains," are the biggest MONEY MAKERS and MONEY SAVERS on earth. They MAKE MONEY because they show a Brilliantly Clear, Natural picture, and DO NOT TIRE THE EYES. They save FIFTY PER CENT. OF YOUR LIGHT because of their greater "reflective power"—making the screen a GIFT from the Electric Company.

If you would have GOLD, and much of it, get a "MINUSA"!

Write or Wire for Samples and Prices.

The ORIGINAL GOLD FIBRE SCREEN—Perfected.

MINUSA CINÉ PRODUCTS COMPANY

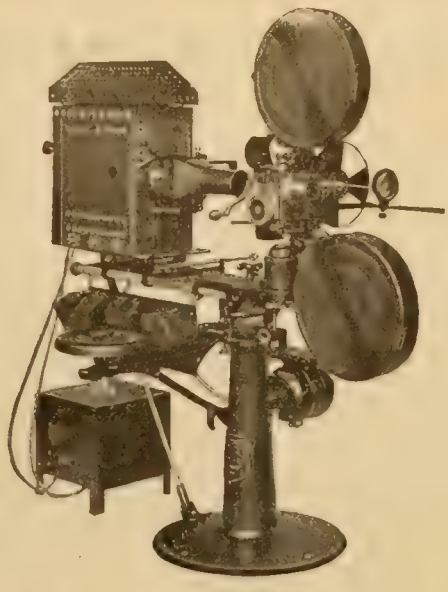
SCREENS BUILT BY BRAINS

ST. LOUIS | CHICAGO | PITTSBURG | NEW YORK | SAN FRANCISCO | CALGARY, ALBERTA | LONDON, ENG.

If you are confident of results before your negative is developed, let that confidence rest also in our ability to properly finish it. Just send us your exposed film with your instructions concerning assembling, tinting, etc., and we'll do the rest. Or if you prefer to develop your own negative let us at least show you how good it is possible to make a print.

THE COLUMBIA FILM MFG. COMPANY

1514 Prospect Ave., Cleveland, O.



What You Get

After you have listened to all the big talk of other manufacturers—after all is said and done—what interests you most when you select a machine is what you get.

We claim—and can prove it—that in the MOTIOGRAPH at $285.00 you get more real value than you can obtain in any other projecting machine on earth at any price.

We could cut down our cost $50.00 and no one but an expert would know it—that doesn't mean it wouldn't be found out later on, for it would be, and "later on" is not a good time to find out things about a machine you buy—the live exhibitor has "found out" the real QUALITY and high class projection obtained from the MOTIOGRAPH—that is why the large number of MOTIOGRAPHS are being sold.

Write for Catalogue

Enterprise Optical Mfg. Co.

574 W. Randolph Street
Chicago, Ill.

Eastern Office
19 W. 23rd Street
New York City

Western Office
833 Market Street
San Francisco, Cal.

List of Current Film Release Dates

(For Daily Calendar of Program Releases See Pages 650, 652.)

General Film Company

RELEASE DAYS.

Monday—Biograph, Essanay, Lubin, Selig, Vitagraph.

Tuesday—Biograph, Essanay, Kalem.

Wednesday—Biograph, Essanay, Kalem.

Thursday—Lubin, Mina, Selig.

Friday—Kalem, Vim, Vitagraph.

Saturday—Essanay, Kalem, Lubin, Selig, Vitagraph.

BIOGRAPH.

Jan. 5—The Skating Rink (Three parts—Comedy).
Jan. 10—In the Aisles of the Wild (Drama—Biograph—Reissue No. 32).
Jan. 12—The War of Wealth (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 17—The Miser's Heart (Drama) (Biograph—Reissue No. 33).
Jan. 18—The Angel of Piety Flat (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 19—A Life Chase (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 24—An Adventure in the Autumn Woods (Drama) (Biograph Reissue No. 34).
Jan. 26—Stronger than Woman's Will (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 31—When Kings were the Law (Drama) (Biograph—Reissue No. 35).
Feb. 1—The Chain of Evidence (Two parts—Drama).
Feb. 2—The Smugglers (Three parts—Drama).

ESSANAY.

Dec. 22—Canimated Nooz Pictorial No. 3 (Cartoon—Comedy).
Dec. 25—The Woman with a Rose (Three parts—Drama).
Dec. 28—Brought Home (Two parts—Drama).
Dec. 29—The Fable of "The Heir and the Heiress" (Comedy).
Jan. 1—The Prisoner at the Bar (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 4—The Lesson (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 5—Mile a Minute Monty (Cartoon—Comedy).
—A Scenic Subject on the same reel.
Jan. 8—The House of Revelation (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 11—Angels Unawares (Two parts—Comedy—Drama).
Jan. 12—The Fable of "The Two Philanthropic Sons" (Comedy).
Jan. 15—Pieces of the Game (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 18—The Book Agent's Romance (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 19—Canimated Nooz Pictorial No. 4 (Cartoon—Comedy).
—Scenes of Canadian Rockies (Scenic).
Jan. 22—The White Alley (Three parts—Dr.).
Jan. 25—Folly (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 26—Fable of Flora and Adolph and a Home Gone Wrong (Comedy).
Jan. 29—Destiny (Three parts—Drama).

KALEM.

Jan. 4—The Missing Mummy (Comedy).
Jan. 5—The Honor of the Road (No. 7 of the "Stingaree" Series—Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 7—Crossed Clues (No. 11 of "The Ventures of Marguerite" Series—Dr.).
Jan. 8—When Seconds Count (No. 61 of the "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series—Drama).
Jan. 11—Guardian Angels (Burlesque—Com.).
Jan. 12—The Purification of Mulfera (No. 8 of the "Stingaree" Series) (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 14—The Tricksters (No. 12 of "The Ventures of Marguerite" Series (Dr.).
Jan. 15—The Haunted Station (No. 62 of the "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series (Drama).
Jan. 18—The Tale of a Coat (Burlesque—Com.).
Jan. 19—A Duel in the Desert (No. 9 of the "Stingaree" Series) (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 21—The Sealskin Coat (No. 13 of "The Ventures of Marguerite" Series) (Drama).
Jan. 22—The Open Track (No. 63 of the "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series) (Drama).
Jan. 25—Snoop Hounds (Burlesque—Comedy).
Jan. 26—The Villain Worshipper (Tenth of the "Stingaree" Series (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 28—The Fate of America (No. 14 of "The Ventures of Marguerite" Series—Drama).
Jan. 29—"Tapped Wires" (No. 64 of the "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series—Drama).
Feb. 1—Artful Artists (Comedy).
Feb. 2—The Moth and the Star (No. 11 of the "Stingaree" Series—Two parts—Drama).
Feb. 4—The Lurking Peril (No. 15 of "The Ventures of Marguerite" Series—Drama).
Feb. 5—The Broken Wire (No. 65 of the "Hazards of Helen" Railroad Series—Drama).

LUBIN.

Jan. 1—A Ready Made Maid (Comedy).
Jan. 5—Sorrows of Happiness (Four parts—Drama—Unit Program).
Jan. 5—His Lordship (Comedy).
Jan. 6—Vengeance of the Oppressed (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 8—Billie's Headache (Comedy).
Jan. 10—The Lost Bracelet (Drama).
Jan. 10—The City of Failing Light (Four parts—Unit Program).
Jan. 10—A Bath Tub Mystery (Comedy).
Jan. 11—The Old Watchman (Two parts—Dr.).
Jan. 13—The Bond Within (Three parts—Dr.).
Jan. 15—A Skate for a Bride (Comedy).
Jan. 17—The Little Sister of the Poor (Dr.).
Jan. 20—The Law's Injustice (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 22—Insomnia (Comedy).
Jan. 24—The Evangelist (Four parts—Drama—Unit Program).
Jan. 24—Fooling Uncle Tom (Comedy—Unit Program).
Jan. 24—Two News Items (Drama).
Jan. 25—The Dragoman (Two parts—Drama).
Jan. 27—The Embodied Thought (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 29—Cured (Comedy).
Jan. 31—A Reformation Delayed (Comedy).
Feb. 3—A Modern Paul (Three parts—Drama).
Feb. 5—The Election Bet (Comedy).

MINA.

Dec. 9—Forty-Five Minutes from Nowhere (Comedy).
—Why Hubby Grows Bald (Comedy).
Dec. 16—When the Show Hit Watertown (Comedy).
Dec. 23—The Little Puritan (Comedy).
Dec. 30—From Blackstone to Stone (Comedy).
Jan. 6—Caught With the Goods (Comedy).
Jan. 13—Title not yet announced.
Jan. 20—A Misfit Baron (Comedy).

SELIG.

Jan. 3—Selig Tribune News Pictorial No. 1, 1916 (Topical).
Jan. 6—Selig Tribune News Pictorial No. 2, 1916 (Topical).
Jan. 8—The Chronicles of Bloom Center (No. 7, "Spooks"—Comedy).
Jan. 10—The Devil-in-Chief (Drama).
Jan. 10—Selig Tribune News Pictorial No. 3, 1916 (Topical).
Jan. 13—Selig Tribune News Pictorial No. 4, 1916 (Topical).
Jan. 15—The Chronicles of Bloom Center No. 8, "No Sir-ee Bob!" (Rural Com.).
Jan. 17—Why Love Is Blind (Drama).
Jan. 17—Selig-Tribune News Pictorial No. 5, 1916 (Topical).
Jan. 20—Selig-Tribune News Pictorial No. 6, 1916 (Topical).
Jan. 22—Chronicles of Bloom Center No. 9, "When the Circus Came to Town" (Comedy).
Jan. 24—Tom Martin—A Man (Drama).
Jan. 24—Selig-Tribune News Pictorial No. 7, 1916 (Topical).
Jan. 27—Selig-Tribune News Pictorial No. 8 1916 (Topical).
Jan. 29—Apple Butter (No. 10 of the "Chronicles of Bloom Center" (Rural Comedy).
Jan. 31—Diamonds are Trumps (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 31—Selig-Tribune News Pictorial No. 9, 1916 (Topical).
Feb. 3—Selig-Tribune News Pictorial No. 10, 1916 (Topical).
Feb. 5—The Desert Calls Its Own (Western—Drama).

VIM.

Dec. 24—Mixed and Fixed (Comedy).
Dec. 31—Ups and Downs (Comedy).
Jan. 7—This Way Out (Comedy).
Jan. 14—Chickens (Comedy).
Jan. 21—Frenzied Finance (Comedy).
Jan. 27—A Special Delivery (Comedy).
Jan. 28—Busted Hearts (Comedy).
Feb. 3—A Sticky Affair (Comedy).
Feb. 4—The Getaway (Comedy).

VITAGRAPH.

Jan. 3—Who Killed Joe Merrion? (Four parts Drama—Unit Program).
Jan. 7—His Wife Knew About It (Comedy).
Jan. 8—Tried for His Own Murder (Broadway Star Feature—Three parts—Dr.).
Jan. 10—When Lin Came Home (Comedy).
Jan. 14—When Two Play a Game (Comedy).
Jan. 15—By Love Redeemed (Broadway Star Feature—Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 21—A Telegraphic Tangle (Comedy).
Jan. 22—The Secret Seven (Three parts—Dr.—Broadway Star Feature).
Jan. 24—The Cold Feet Getaway (Comedy).
Jan. 28—Peace at any Price (Comedy).
Jan. 29—The Ruse (Broadway Star Feature—Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 31—Janes Bashful Hero (Comedy).
Feb. 4—The Wrong Mr. Wright (Comedy).
Feb. 5—Bill Peters' Kid (Broadway Star Feature—Three parts—Drama).

General Film Company Features

BROADWAY STAR FEATURES.

Jan. 8—Tried for His Own Murder (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 15—By Love Redeemed (Three parts—Dr.).
Jan. 22—The Secret Seven (Three parts—Dr.).
Jan. 24—The Ruse (Three parts—Drama).
Feb. 5—Bill Peters' Kid (Three parts—Dr.).

KNICKERBOCKER STAR FEATURES.

Jan. 7—Paying the Toll (Three parts—Dr.).
Jan. 14—A Daughter of the Woods (Three parts—Drama).
Jan. 21—House of Mystery (Three parts—Dr.).
Jan. 28—The Heart Breakers (Three parts—Drama).
Feb. 4—The Crime of Circumstance (Three parts—Drama).

UNIT PROGRAM RELEASES.

Jan. 3—Who Killed Joe Merrion? (Vitagraph—Four parts—Drama).
Jan. 3—Sorrows of Happiness (Lubin—Four parts—Drama).
Jan. 10—The City of Failing Light (Lubin—Four parts—Drama).
Jan. 24—The Evangelist (Lubin—Four parts—Drama).
Jan. 24—Fooling Uncle (Lubin—Comedy).

We offer a GREATER VARIETY of BETTER FILMS in THE REGULAR SERVICE than any other exchange. Our subjects consist of the one, two, three and four reel productions of the EDISON, ESSANAY, BIOGRAPH, KALEM LUBIN, SELIG, VITAGRAPH, KLEINE and PATHE studios. Our charge is most reasonable. It will be to your advantage to investigate at once. GREATER NEW YORK FILM RENTAL CO., 126 West 46th St., New York

PRINTING AND DEVELOPING

American Film Laboratories, Inc.

"The Tiffany of the Film Trade"

THE FINEST FILM LABORATORIES AND STUDIO IN THE WORLD

A Happy and Prosperous New Year

LOUIS B. JENNINGS, Pres. & Gen. Mgr.

EDWIN S. PORTER, Vice-President

69-71 West 90th St., New York City

Telephone Riverside 1410

If your Panoramic and Tilting Tripod is not as good as this one—

You are working at a disadvantage.

If your Tripod and head are not like this—

It is not as good.

Shall we prove it?

UNIVERSAL TILTING AND PANORAMIC TRIPOD

Wide spread top legs give truss strength and rigidity.
Segmental slide prevents twitching.
Panoramic table quickly changed to any position.
Positive locking devices. Snap-handles cannot fall off.
Deep cut worms and gears insure long wear.

Can be used with any camera

The Universal Camera Company

25 E. Washington St., Chicago, U. S. A.
1209 Times Bldg., New York
821 Market Street, San Francisco, Cal.
229 E. 6th St., Los Angeles

Demonstrational Catalogue on request

A clear picture

is as essential as a good scenario. Because the basic product is right the clearest pictures are on Eastman Film. Identifiable by the stencil mark in the margin.

EASTMAN KODAK CO.
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

A Genuine* PIPE ORGAN

can be operated from the simple keyboard of the piano. ORGAN ALONE — PIANO ALONE — OR BOTH TOGETHER. Write for particulars

HARMO PIPE ORGAN COMPANY

126 West 46th Street, NEW YORK
1423 McCormick Bldg., CHICAGO

HANDY EQUIPMENT

Make'em Yourself Slides

These slides are written with pen and ink or on the typewriter, and they are neat and look well. Used for advertising slides, to announce future and feature programs, vaudeville and musical acts, etc. In fact, they may be used for anything you wish to say to your audience.

For the sum of $3.50 we will send, by parcel post, prepaid and insured, the following:

24 cover glass, 1 package binder strips, 1 dozen mats, 1 instruction sheet, 1 form sheet and 50 strips of gelatin of four different colors—enough for from 300 to 400 slides. Address all orders and remittances

UTILITY TRANSPARENCY CO.

1733 West 9th Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

MIRROROID SCREEN, the only screen worth bragging about. If you contemplate making improvements on your projection, let us show you how you can do it. We have two of these screens, slightly used, good as new—a bargain. Let us know what size your screen is. If they will fit, it is worth your consideration. We are jobbers for the Mirroroid.

Mr. Exhibitor, a new Projection Machine is coming to life; you can afford to wait, it will pay you. Get the habit: Deal with us for your pocketbook's sake.

STERN MANUFACTURING CO., 109 N. 10th Street, Philadelphia, Pa

Quality means EVANS means Perfection

We do PARTICULAR Work for PARTICULAR People
Developing and Printing ONLY

EVANS FILM MANUFACTURING COMPANY

Telephone 6881 Audubon 416-418-420-422 West 216th Street, New York City

WE ARE ACTIVE

in every branch of the film business, Animated Cartoons, Trade Marks and Developing, Printing and Stock Titles. Write us today.

ACTIVE MOTION PICTURE CO.
1101 W. Randolph Street CHICAGO
PORTABLE MOTION PICTURE PROJECTORS

SCENIC and EDUCATIONAL FILMS

Write for descriptive catalogue containing subjects from all parts of the world.

GREAT NORTHERN FILM CO. 110 W. 40th St. New York, N.Y.

Strictly Personal, Exhibitors

Get The FILM WORLD

A clever little magazine for Movie Fans. Full of best stories of the photoplays, and room for your program on two pages, thus making it one of the most attractive and valuable house organs you can get.

Write for sample. FREE.

FILM WORLD 621 Longacre Bldg. New York City

Silver Your Curtain with SILVERIT

Increase your business by showing a clean, clear white picture. SILVERIT can be applied on your curtain, smooth and even. Makes a daylight screen at a low cost. Reduces your light bill and gives you a perfect picture. One pound will cover a curtain 10 x 12, if applied over aluminum or paint. If applied over alabastine, double the amount.

$2.50 per pound

A. G. THOMAS 1705 FAIRACRES AVE., PITTSBURGH, PENNA.

DUTCH EAST INDIES

Netherlands

DE KINEMATOGRAAF

Leading Organ of the Cinematograph Trade. With Correspondents all over the World.

AMSTERDAM HOLLAND

Annual Subscription .....fl. Dutch 7.50
Sample Copies .....fl. Dutch 0.20
Advertisements, each line .....fl. Dutch 0.20

Belgium

DUTCH WEST INDIES

EXHIBITORS—MUSICIANS

Would you buy $3.00 worth of music for 50 cents?

YES? Then send for a piano score of the specially composed music for "The Black Crook" (Kalem regular release) 39 PAGES, even if you don't book it, as it can be used for other pictures. Let your pianist play music that everybody hasn't heard before. This music CANNOT BE PURCHASED IN MUSIC STORES.

WALTER C. SIMON, 50 West 110th St., New York

IL TIRSO AL CINEMATOGRAFO

The most important Film Journal in Italy.

Published every Monday at Rome. Excellent staff, special bureau of information. Correspondents in all parts of the world. Yearly subscription for foreign countries: $3.00.

Business Office: Via del Tritone 183, Rome, Italy.

A Dependable Mailing List Service

Saves you from 30 to 50% in postage, etc. Reaches all or selected list of theatres in any territory. Includes name of exhibitor as well as theatre in address. A list of publicity mediums desiring motion picture news. Unaffiliated exchanges looking for features, Supply houses that are properly characterized as such. Producers with address of studios, laboratories and offices. Information in advance of theatres being or to be built.
W43.

MOTION PICTURE DIRECTORY COMPANY

80 Fifth Avenue, New York Phone 3227 Chelsea
425 Ashland Block, Chicago Phone 2003 Randolph

Addressing Multigraphing Printing Typewriting

BOUND VOLUMES of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD

are the

Accepted Reference Books

of the Moving Picture Trade
Your Office Equipment is Not Complete Without Them
ADDRESS CHALMERS PUBLISHING CO.,
17 Madison Ave., New York City

KNOWLEDGE BRINGS SUCCESS

Messrs. Exhibitor, Exchangeman, Operator, and Film Men Everywhere:—The moving picture business is one of the youngest but one of the leading industries of the world to-day. We may well be proud to be connected with it. Are you keeping up? Do you know all about it? It will yield larger returns for an equal amount of work to the men who know. Each weekly issue of the MOVING PICTURE WORLD contains more up-to-date information than you can get from all other sources. Subscribe now if not already on our mailing list. You will get your paper hours earlier than from the newsstand and it costs less.

ONE YEAR.....$3.00
SIX MONTHS $1.50
See title page for rates Canada and Foreign

MOVING PICTURE WORLD
17 Madison Avenue, New York

.....

.....

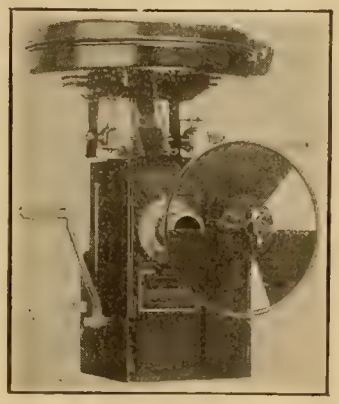
.....

Cut out and mail today. Theatre.....

NEW POLICY

In future all Feaster non-rewind attachments for projectors will be sold outright. Rentals discontinued.

New manufacturing and marketing plans bring reduction in price.



FEASTER ON A SIMPLEX HEAD

SAVES

Rewinding—Noise—Breakage —Delays—Strain on Projector—Is positively fireproof.

Mr. F. H. Richardson says:
"I have seen some very bad film run through the Feaster and can vouch for the fact that any film which will pass through the projector will pass through the Feaster successfully. There is less danger of breaks where the Feaster is used."

FEASTER CORPORATION
1482 Broadway New York City

A Reel Bright Spot

Produced Only With

BIO RECOGNIZED BIO CARBONS BRAND STANDARD CARBONS

ORDER FROM YOUR DEALER OR EXCHANGE OR FROM

Charles L. Kiewert Co.

NEW YORK
165 Greenwich Street

MILWAUKEE 114 Huron St.

SAN FRANCISCO 143 Second St

EVERYTHING YOU OUGHT TO KNOW

to Get Best Results in the Conduct of Your MOTION PICTURE BUSINESS
Where Electricity Is Concerned

Whether You Are OPERATOR MANAGER OR MANUFACTURER

IS AT YOUR EASY COMMAND IN

Motion Picture Electricity

By J. H. HALLBERG
Electrical Expert with an International Reputation

This Splendid Work Will Pay for Itself the First Day You Have It in Your Possession

Sent to Any Address, Charges Prepaid, on Receipt of TWO DOLLARS AND FIFTY CENTS

Chalmers Publishing Co.
17 Madison Avenue, New York City

REFLEX

Made in Switzerland.

The Quality Carbons of the World.

Reflex D. C. Carbons have a Specially Constructed Negative with Copper Coated Core.

An operator in Iowa writes us as follows:

"Rec'd the carbons you sent me for use on A. C. and am free to say THEY ARE THE BEST I HAVE EVER USED. I have operated for very nearly five years and have used all makes of carbons. Would ask you to ship me at once via American Express C. O. D.——."

Don't worry about the carbon shortage. Send in your order now for REFLEX carbons and get the very best.

¾ x 12 plain cored	$10.00 per 100 carbons
⅝ x 12 plain cored	7.50 per 100 carbons
⅝ x 6 copper coated cored	3.75 per 100 carbons
½ x 6 copper coated cored	2.75 per 100 carbons

If your dealer cannot supply you with REFLEX carbons, send cash with your order or instruct us to ship C. O. D. and we will fill sample orders in lots of not less than fifty each in all the above sizes.

Watch our weekly advertisements and remember that all letters we publish are authentic.

JONES & CAMMACK
SOLE IMPORTERS
Cor. Bridge and Whitehall Streets New York City

What I have done for over 9400 exhibitors the world over, I can do for you!

I want you to write and tell me your projection troubles. Let me send you large, free testing samples of the screen that is universally known as the World's Best—bar none—widely imitated but never equalled.

MIRROROID

Patented June 9th, 1908, Feb. 15th, 1915. Other patents pending.

The screen that is used in almost every Government and State institution, leading colleges, etc.; and by exhibitors who investigate before they buy. MIRROROID users knew they were buying the accrued value of my judgment based upon my eight years' experience—the pioneer screen manufacturer and inventor of metalized non-oxidizing cloth.

The validity of Mirroroid patents is conceded by the E. I. Du Pont De Nemours Co., manufacturers of Fabrikoid, as well as the superiority. They use MIRROROID in all theatres erected at their many plants.

Now, you must fully realize that any smooth, metalized surface is productive of hazy out-of-focus effect, glare, and eye-strain besides fade-away at a close-up or angle view.

It cannot be disputed that MIRROROID eliminates all these defects, because it is made with a rough or matte finish. Consequently the screen you must use.

Our five-year guarantee covers and protects you in every way. MIRROROID can't turn in color—it can't oxidize, crack or peel. It can be washed with soap and water.

These statements are true and are open to your investigations at all times. Beware of substitutions and imitations. The man who investigates before he buys never suffers remorse. "Use the Brains God Gave You" and you can't go wrong. REALIZE.

Success is a state of mind. Keep Mirroroid, the screen with the black back, on your mind. Beat your competitor to it.

IT SELLS FOR 36 1/9 CENTS A SQUARE FOOT.

THE J. H. GENTER CO., Inc. Newburgh, N. Y.

The Largest Screen Factory in the World. Agencies all Principal Cities.

PRICE LIST OF MUSIC

suggested in the cue sheet for the current Metro release

"THE LURE OF HEART'S DESIRE"

Duval—Viennoise Waltz	$0.60	Adam—The Bim-Bims	$0.80
Bartlett—A Love Song	1.00	Jarnefelt—Prelude	1.25
Nevin—Barchetta	.60	Schumann—Aria
Noble—Morris Dance	1.00	Friml—Rachety Coo (Katinka)	.60
Bohm—Tarantella	1.00	Kleinecke—Keep Going	.60
Lean—The Tune They Croon in the U. S. A.	.60	Loud—Entr'Acte "Clarice"	1.05
		Herbert—Debutante One-Step	.60
Huerter—Intermezzo	.60

These prices are subject to a professional discount of 25% to patrons of the Moving Picture World, transportation costs to be added to net amount. Quotations given are for small orchestra; editions for piano solo, full orchestra or extra parts are in proportion.

To insure prompt service and favorable discounts, a cash balance may be maintained, against which purchases may be charged; or a regular monthly charge account will be opened with responsible theatre managers or orchestra leaders on receipt of the customary business references.

The numbers in the cue sheet preceded by an asterisk (*) refer to the

Schirmer Photoplay Series a loose leaf collection of dramatic numbers specially written for motion picture use. Two volumes now in preparation:

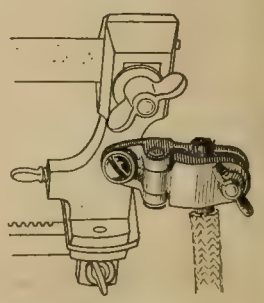
Price per volume (containing 10 numbers): Small Orchestra, $3.20; full orchestra, $4.40. Each number separately, 60c., small; 80c. full.

G. SCHIRMER (INC.)

3 East 43rd Street
New York City

Perfection Cable Holders

The only lug not necessary to remove to make a new connection, and will last as long as the lamp itself. Contact parts can be cleaned without removing from lamp. Price, $1.50 per pair prepaid — Accompany your order with a remittance. Write for full descriptive matter to



Illinois Theatre Supply Company
128 N. La Salle Street, Chicago, Ill.

For the fullest and latest news of the moving picture industry in Great Britain and Europe.

For authoritative articles by leading British technical men.

For brilliant and strictly impartial criticisms of all films, read

THE BIOSCOPE

The Leading British Trade Journal with an International Circulation

American Correspondence by W. Stephen Bush of "Moving Picture World"

85 Shaftesbury Avenue, London, W.

Specimen on Application

FOR SALE

MOVING PICTURE MAILING LISTS

Only complete one to be had, numbering 22,000; price, $40.00; itemized by states, or $3.50 per thousand for states you want. Postage guaranteed.

1173 Film Exchanges..... $4.00
149 Manufacturers and Studios..... 1.00
210 Moving Picture Machine and Supply Dealers. 1.50

Write for particulars

Trade Circular Addressing Co.
168 West Adams Street, Chicago

Franklin 1183 Estab. 1888

PERFECT PROJECTION PAYS

Your customers don't come to you and say: "Why don't you use the AMERICAN STANDARD MASTER MODEL MOTION PICTURE MACHINE like Bill Blunk up the street does?" They don't know nor care about how the pictures are thrown on the screen, but they do demand that the pictures show up right. They don't even trouble to insist that you serve them with perfect projection; they never come back and they caution their friends not to patronize you. And what patrons are left to you will in time be persuaded to accompany friends to theatres that show bright, clear, flickerless pictures. Perfect projection pays! Get it with the AMERICAN STANDARD MASTER MODEL.

AMERICAN STANDARD MOTION PICTURE MACHINE COMPANY
One Ten and Twelve West Fortieth Street, New York, N. Y. New York, N. Y.

Calehuff Supply Company, Inc.

1301 RACE STREET PHILADELPHIA

Jobbers of Power's, Simplex, Motiograph, Standard and the New Edison Super Dreadnaught Machines and Genuine Parts.

Special agents for Rembush Gold Fibre, Silver Fibre and Mirror Screens, brass and wooden frames.
Machines of all makes repaired by experts.
A few good second-hand machines for sale, cheap, in very good condition.
Theatres furnished complete. Estimates furnished by request.

CHAS. A. CALEHUFF, President and G . Manager

WOULD YOU CARE

If we could show you how to MAKE MORE MONEY, how to substantially increase your receipts at a small outlay?
We have a proposition of interest to all Moving Picture Exhibitors and Managers, that has never been placed before them.
We will sell you a NEW, GENUINE POWER'S, NEW 1916 MOTIOGRAPH, EDISON OR A SIMPLEX MACHINE, guaranteed for one year from date of sale, on easy monthly payments.
Drop us a line today and we will tell you all about our plan.

AMUSEMENT SUPPLY COMPANY
6th FLOOR CAMBRIDGE BUILDING
N. W. Cor. 5th and Randolph, Chicago, Illinois
Distributors of the Power's, Motiograph, Edison and Simplex Machines and Genuine Parts.

ELECTRA

PINK LABEL

CARBONS

are a guarantee of perfect projection

A Limited Stock of

5/8 x 12 Cored Double Pointed and 5/8 x 6 Cored Still on Hand

To be had of all first-class dealers

SOLE IMPORTER

HUGO REISINGER

11 Broadway New York

Ornamental Theatres

Plaster Relief Decorations

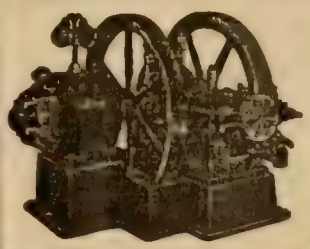
Theatres Designed Everywhere

Write for Illustrated Theatre Catalog. Send us Sizes of Theatre for Special Designs

THE DECORATORS SUPPLY CO.
Archer Avenue and Leo Street
CHICAGO, ILL.

THE FOOS

ELECTRIC LIGHT PLANTS



3 to 400 H.P.
Make current for 2 cents per K.W.
Special Electric Engines 3 to 75 H. P., make current as cheap as a 5000 H.P. steam plant. Your central station bills will pay for an outfit in your theatre in 3 or 4 years.
Send for Catalog 98

Motion Picture Machines

FROM

The Largest Supply House in the East

We are Distributors for

Minusa Gold Fibre Screens

The Acme of Screen Perfection.

Power, Simplex and Baird Machines and all supplies

Catalogs for the asking

LEWIS M. SWAAB
1327 Vine Street, PHILADELPHIA

FOR CAMERA MEN

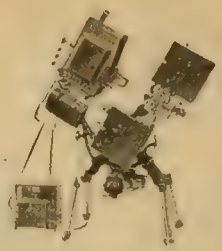
OUR LABORATORY EXPERT TURNS OUT "ROCK-STEADY" TITLES FOR OUR FILM CUSTOMERS ON THE BEST EASTMAN STOCK.



POWER'S 6B

FOR THEATER OWNERS

WRITE TO ERKER'S FIRST AS THEY EQUIP THEATRES WITH EVERY APPLIANCE FROM DOOR TO SCREEN.

WRITE DEPT. "P" FOR FREE PRICE LIST FULL LINE M. P. CAMERAS AND TRIPODS—REPAIRING

ERKER'S
608 OLIVE ST. ST. LOUIS

REASONABLE—RELIABLE WRITE TODAY FOR CATALOG "S" IT'S FREE

Exhibitors, Send for These

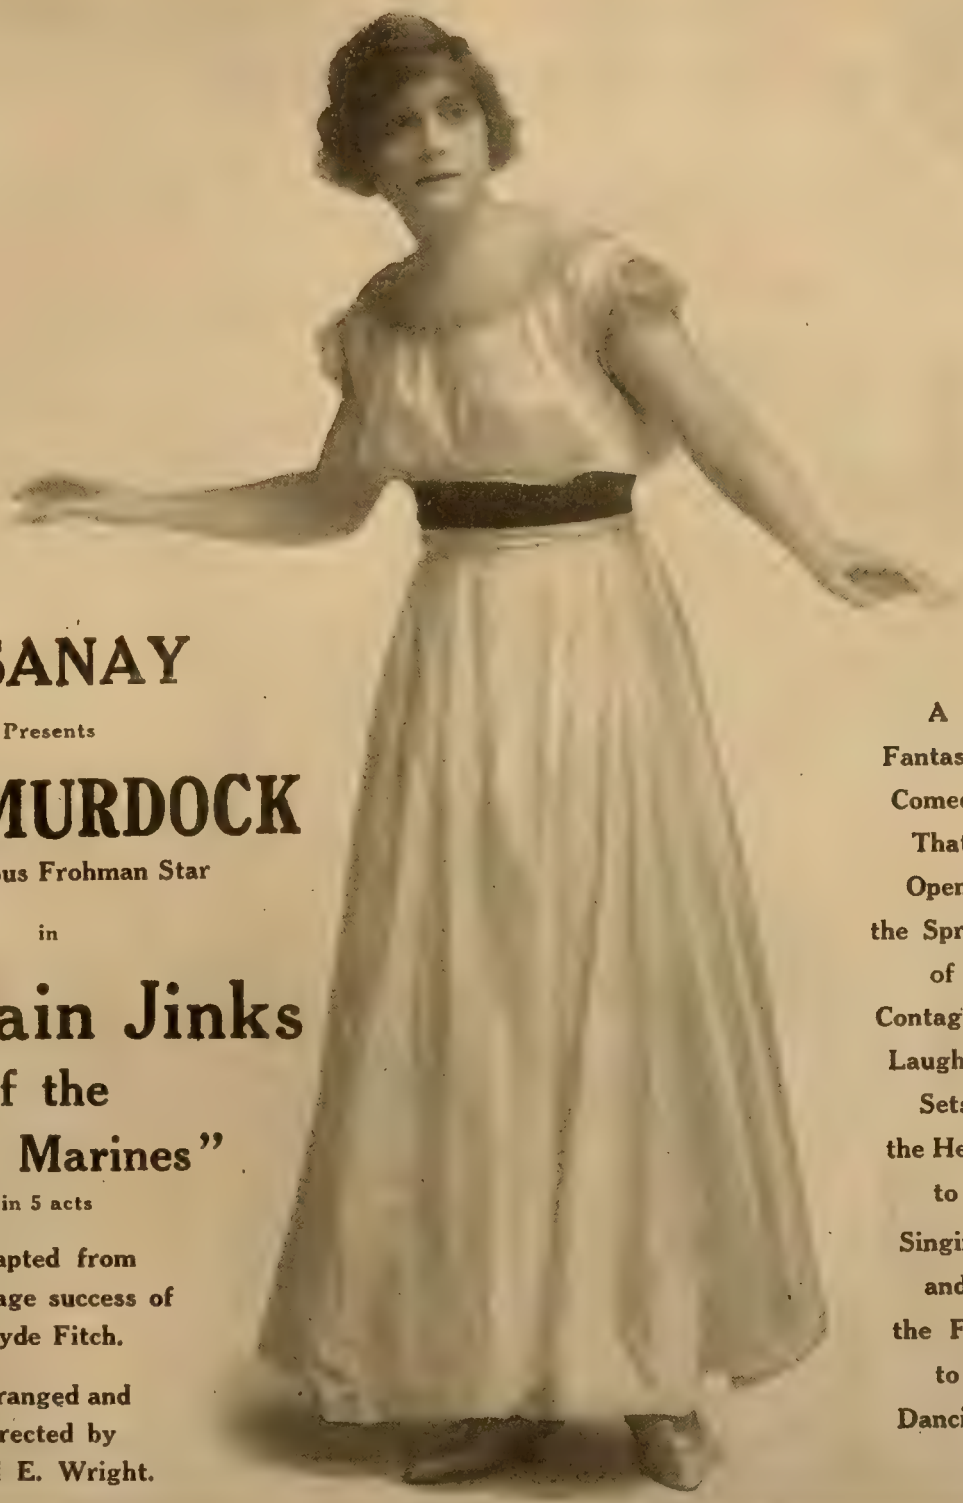
THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD has prepared blanks for petitions to Congress against the proposed Federal Censorship. Each one of these blanks contains space for fifty signatures. We will send these blanks to each exhibitor according to his needs. Our advice to him is that he make it a point to secure the signatures of voters or persons of voting age. No others will have weight. This is to be a petition of the People to their representatives in Congress. It is best, therefore to have the signatures of citizens who are not in any way interested in the moving picture industry. Do not sign yourself. Do not ask any of your employees to sign. Let only disinterested citizens sign the petition. Forward the petition duly filled out with the signatures to us and we will forward it to Congress. This should be taken up by every Exhibitor in every State. ADVISE AT ONCE WHETHER YOU REQUIRE ONE OR MORE BLANKS. WRITE US IMMEDIATELY. Act at once! Now!! This minute!!!

WARNING TO EXHIBITORS!

You Are Losing $100 to $150 Cold Cash Every Month By Not Running "MOTO-ADS" (Animated Cartoons) In Your Theatre!

DON'T kill your patronage with slides. Our animated cartoon ads are more entertaining and amusing than most comedies. The audience never tires of them. Send us a post card today and we will show you how you can increase your profits at least $100 monthly without one cent of expense.

AMERICAN COMMERCIAL FILM COMPANY, 30 N. Dearborn St., Chicago



ESSANAY

Presents

ANN MURDOCK

The famous Frohman Star

in

"Captain Jinks of the Horse Marines"

in 5 acts

Adapted from the stage success of Clyde Fitch.

Arranged and directed by Fred E. Wright.

A Fantastic Comedy That Opens the Springs of Contagious Laughter Sets the Heart to Singing and the Feet to Dancing

TRADEMARK Reg. U. S. Pat. 1907

ESSANAY

GEORGE K. SPOOR, PRESIDENT

1333 Argyle Street, Chicago

Yes, Mr. Laemmle

"The Play's the Thing"

BUT— Don't forget that there isn't another program on earth which gives the public a chance to see as great a number of players—popular players—good, capable players—as they see on the regular Universal Program.

The Play may be the Thing, but we believe the people are just as anxious to see:

Mildred Adams
King Baggot
Sherman Bainbridge
Harry Benham
Mother Benson
Curtis Benton
Henry Bergman
Hobart Bosworth
Paul Bourgeois
Neal Burns
Harry Carey
Harry Carter
Lon Chaney
Fred Church
Wallace Clark
Harry Coleman
Betty Compson
Peggy Coudray
Howard Crampton
Doc Crane
Juan de la Cruz
Grace Cunard
Dorothy Davenport
William C. Dowlan
Adele Farrington
Marc Fenton
Gloria Fonda
Francis Ford
William Franey
Mary Fuller
Jane Gail
Ray Gallagher
William Garwood
Jos. W. Girard
Douglas Gerrard
Maud George
Olive Fuller Golden
Myrtle Gonzales
Ray Griffith
Ella Hall
Hobart Henley
Gale Henry
Allen Holubar
Jack Holt
Little Clara Horton
Alice Howell
Mina Jeffries
Rupert Julian
J. Warren Kerrigan
Yona Landowska
Gretchen Lederer
Pathe Lehrman
Robert Leonard
Helen Leslie
Louise Lovely
Ethel Lynne
Eddie Lyons
Cleo Madison
Edna Maison
Charles (Pop) Manley
Luella Maxim
Violet Mersereau
Matt Moore
Lee Moran
Harry Myers
Eva Nelson
Frank Newberg
Jane Novak
Laura Oakley
Charles Ogle
Louise Orth
Paul Panzer
Val Paul
Lillian Peacock
Peggy Pearce
Carmen Phillips
Dorothy Phillips
Eddie Polo
Victor Potel
William Quinn
Herbert Rawlinson
Stella Razeto
Ned Reardon
Billie Rhodes
Billie Ritchie
Franklin Ritchie
Marc Robbins
Edith Roberts
Rex de Rosselli
Gertrude Selby
Ernest Shields
Master Antrim Short
Phillips Smalley
Frank Smith
Richard Stanton
Rosemary Theby
Grace Thompson
Louise Vale
Agnes Vernon
Fatty Voss
Marie Walcamp
Lule Warrenton
Lois Weber
Glen White
Ben Wilson
Marie Wierman
Elsie Jane Wilson
Lois Wilson
William Worthington
William Welsh

RED FEATHER PHOTOPLAYS
Present
Cyril Scott
In a dramatic Photoplay
adaped from the famous Novel
"The Lords of High Decision"
By the Popular American Author
Meredith Nicholson
Arrange for Bookings through your nearest Universal Exchange

TRADEMARK
Reg. U. S. Pat. 1907

ESSANAY
GEORGE K. SPOOR, PRESIDENT

BIG FOUR FEATURE PLAY

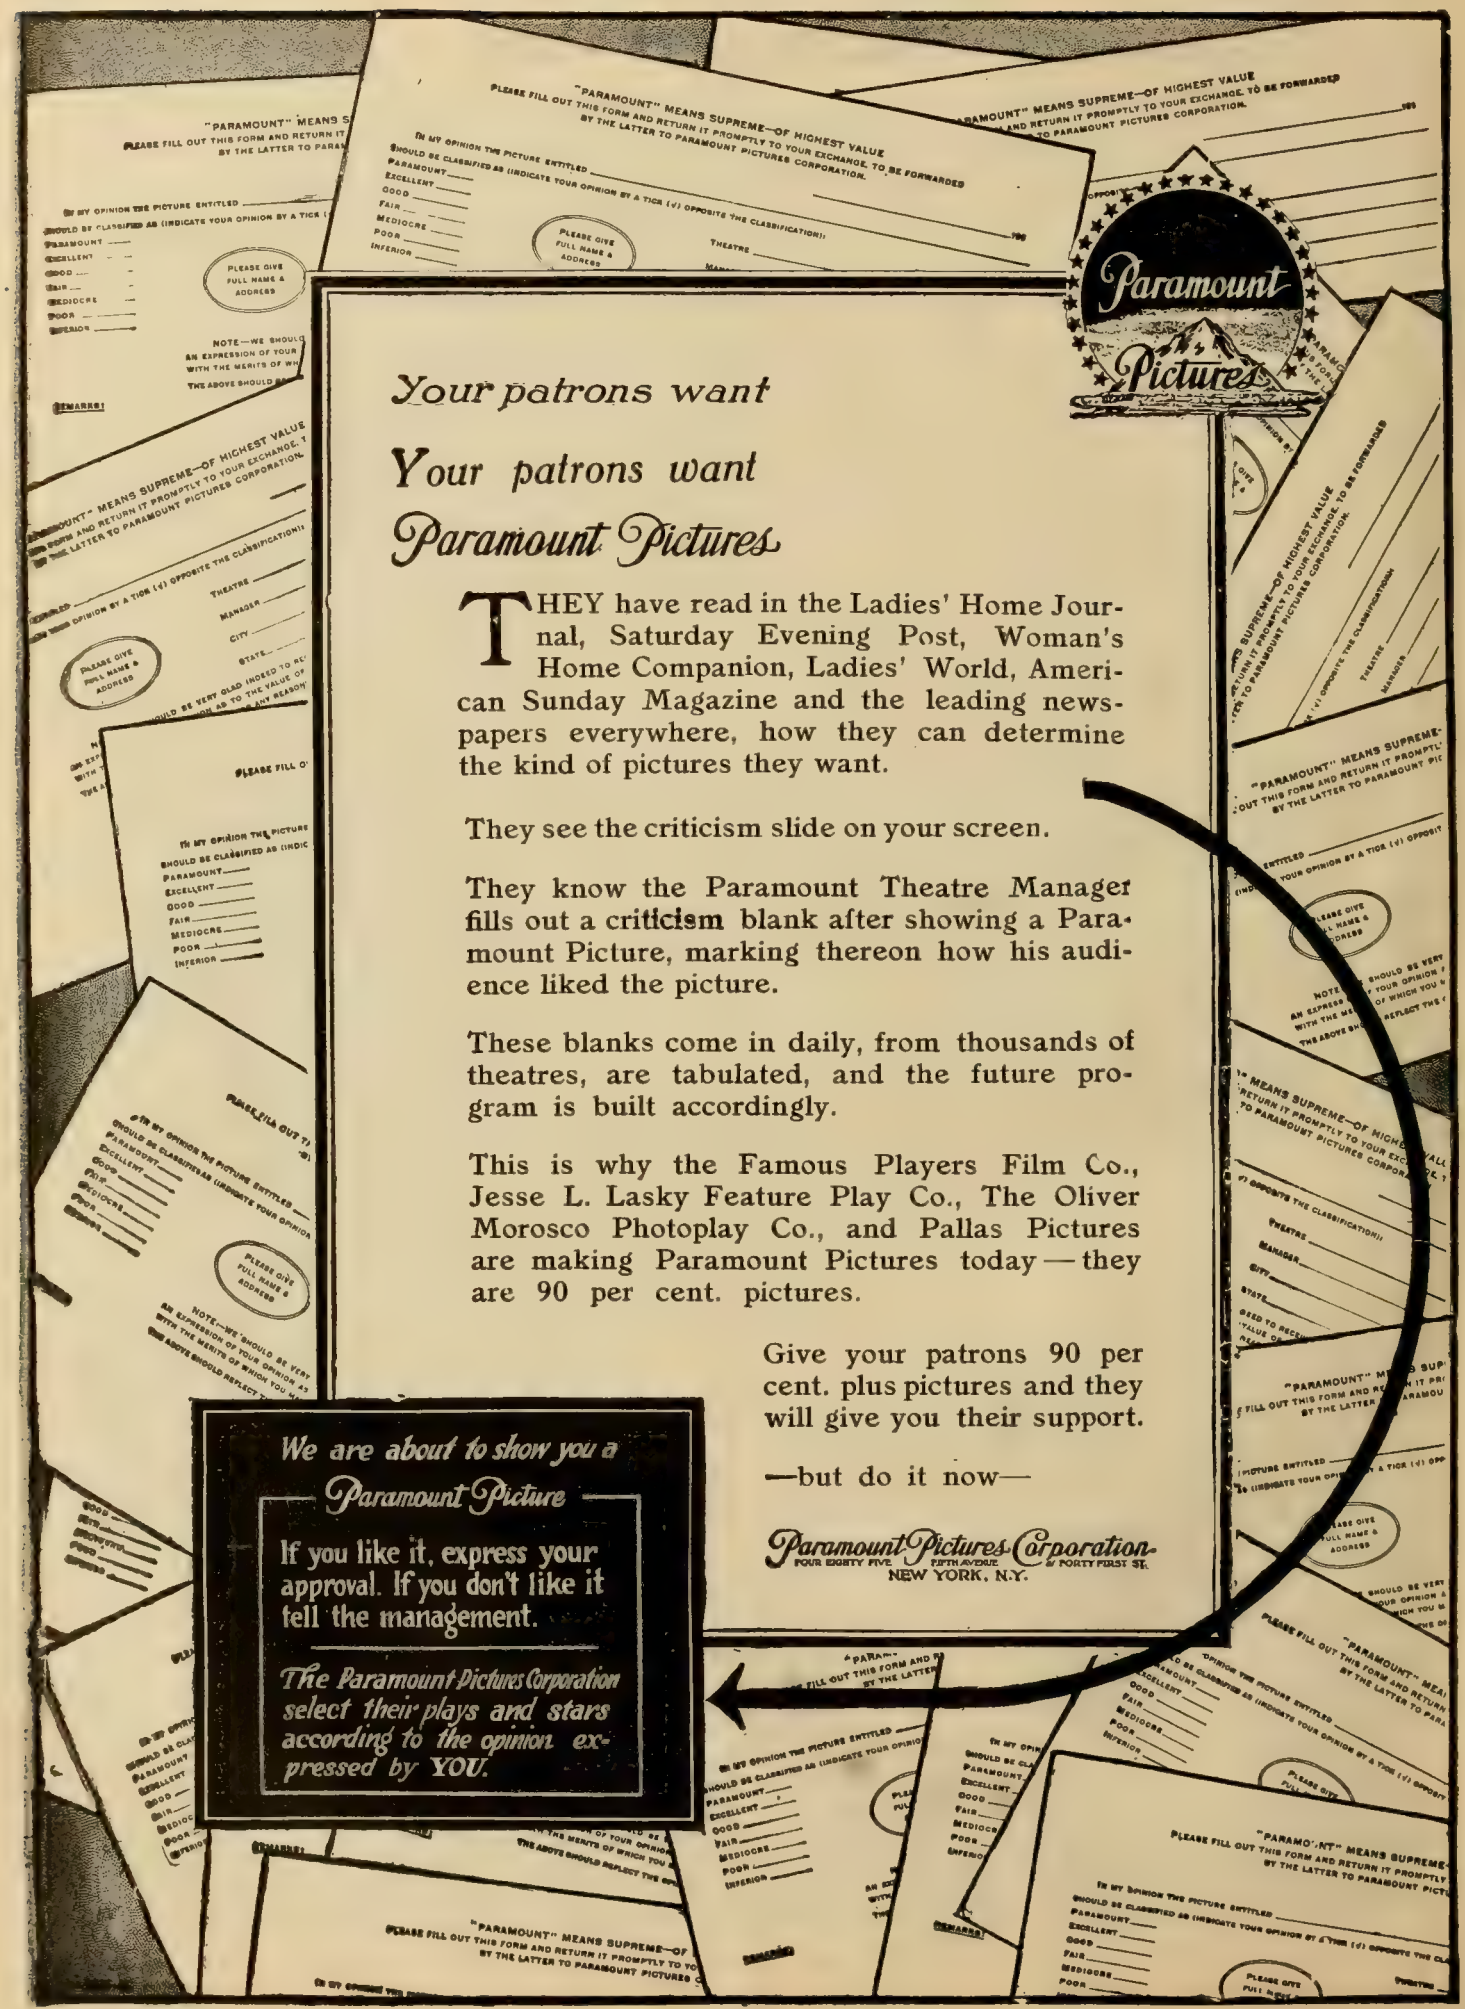
1333 Argyle Street, Chicago

The Strange Case of Mary Page

The Greatest Series of All
A Smashing Hit!
Get It Quick Before Your Competitor Does
Released January 24
Booked Through the General Film Co.

Essanay

1333 Argyle St., Chicago
George K. Spoor, President



"PARAMOUNT" MEANS SUPREME—OF HIGHEST VALUE
PLEASE FILL OUT THIS FORM AND RETURN IT PROMPTLY TO YOUR EXCHANGE, TO BE FORWARDED BY THE LATTER TO PARAMOUNT PICTURES CORPORATION.
IN MY OPINION THE PICTURE ENTITLED
SHOULD BE CLASSIFIED AS (INDICATE YOUR OPINION BY A TICK (✓) OPPOSITE THE CLASSIFICATION):
PARAMOUNT
EXCELLENT
GOOD FAIR
MEDIOCRE
POOR
INFERIOR THEATRE
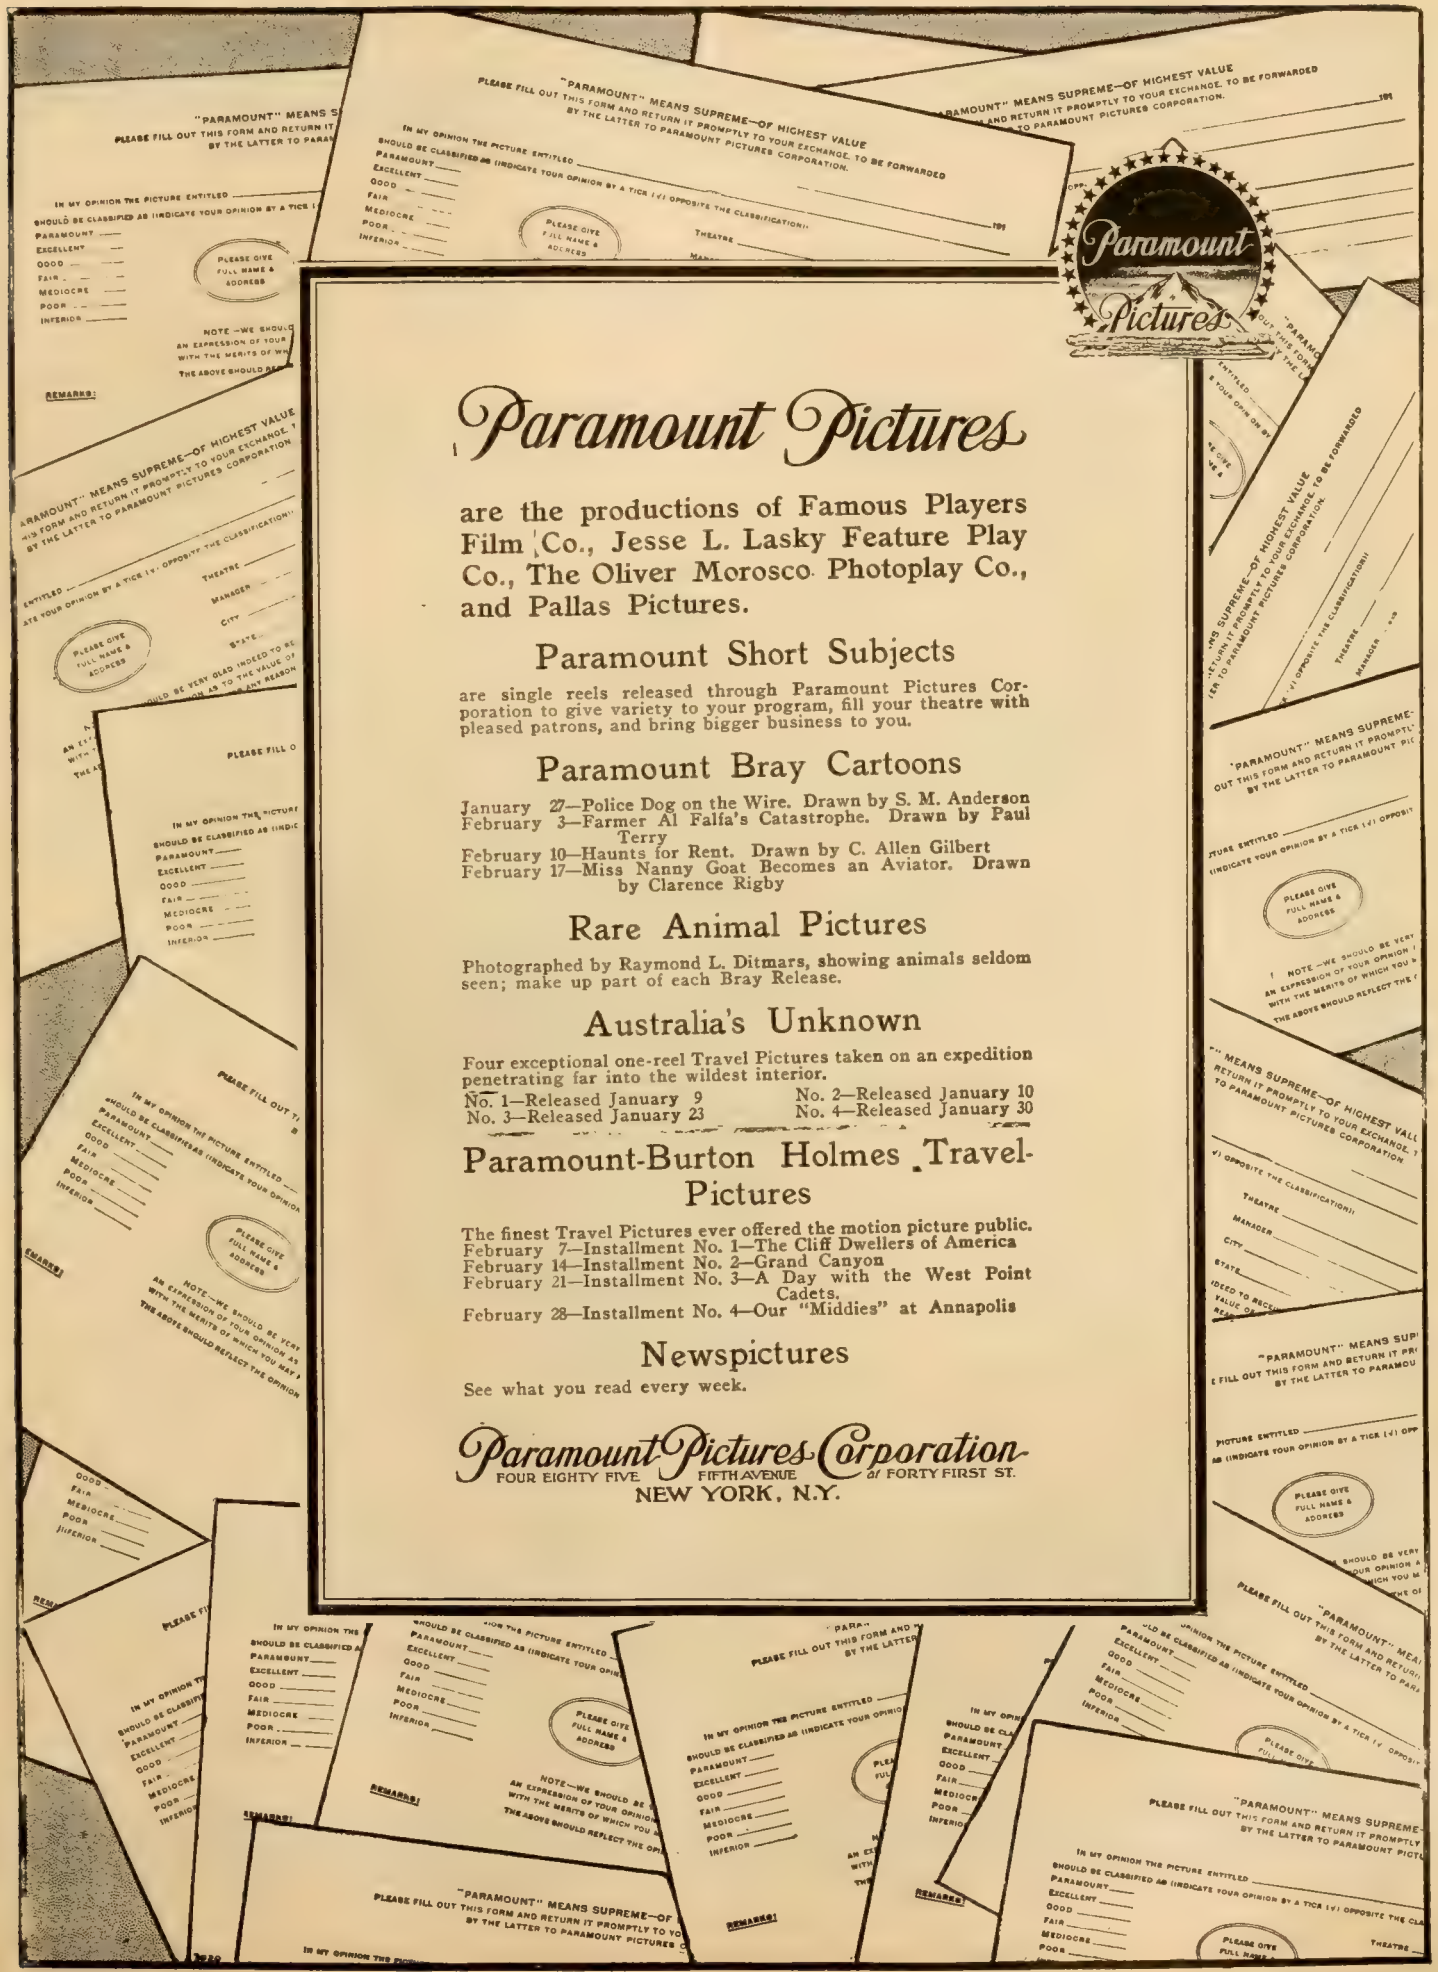
MANAGER
CITY
STATE
PLEASE GIVE FULL NAME & ADDRESS
REMARKS:
Paramount Pictures
Your patrons want
Your patrons want
Paramount Pictures
THEY have read in the Ladies' Home Journal, Saturday Evening Post, Woman's Home Companion, Ladies' World, American Sunday Magazine and the leading newspapers everywhere, how they can determine the kind of pictures they want.
They see the criticism slide on your screen.
They know the Paramount Theatre Manager fills out a criticism blank after showing a Paramount Picture, marking thereon how his audience liked the picture.
These blanks come in daily, from thousands of theatres, are tabulated, and the future program is built accordingly.
This is why the Famous Players Film Co., Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Co., The Oliver Morosco Photoplay Co., and Pallas Pictures are making Paramount Pictures today — they are 90 per cent. pictures.
Give your patrons 90 per cent. plus pictures and they will give you their support.
—but do it now—
Paramount Pictures Corporation
FOUR EIGHTY FIVE FIFTH AVENUE FORTY FIRST ST.
NEW YORK, N.Y.
We are about to show you a Paramount Picture
If you like it, express your approval. If you don't like it tell the management.
The Paramount Pictures Corporation select their plays and stars according to the opinion expressed by YOU.



"PARAMOUNT" MEANS SUPREME—OF HIGHEST VALUE
PLEASE FILL OUT THIS FORM AND RETURN IT PROMPTLY TO YOUR EXCHANGE, TO BE FORWARDED BY THE LATTER TO PARAMOUNT PICTURES CORPORATION.
IN MY OPINION THE PICTURE ENTITLED
SHOULD BE CLASSIFIED AS (INDICATE YOUR OPINION BY A TICK (√) OPPOSITE THE CLASSIFICATION):
Paramount
Excellent
Good Fair
Mediocre
Poor
Inferior
PLEASE GIVE FULL NAME & ADDRESS
THEATRE
MANAGER
CITY
STATE
REMARKS:
NOTE—WE SHOULD BE VERY GLAD INDEED TO RECEIVE AN EXPRESSION OF YOUR OPINION AS TO THE VALUE OF THE ABOVE SHOULD REFLECT THE OPINION
Paramount Pictures

Paramount Pictures

are the productions of Famous Players Film Co., Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Co., The Oliver Morosco Photoplay Co., and Pallas Pictures.

Paramount Short Subjects are single reels released through Paramount Pictures Corporation to give variety to your program, fill your theatre with pleased patrons, and bring bigger business to you.

Paramount Bray Cartoons

January 27—Police Dog on the Wire. Drawn by S. M. Anderson
February 3—Farmer Al Falfa's Catastrophe. Drawn by Paul Terry
February 10—Haunts for Rent. Drawn by C. Allen Gilbert
February 17—Miss Nanny Goat Becomes an Aviator. Drawn by Clarence Rigby

Rare Animal Pictures

Photographed by Raymond L. Ditmars, showing animals seldom seen; make up part of each Bray Release.

Australia's Unknown

Four exceptional one-reel Travel Pictures taken on an expedition penetrating far into the wildest interior.

No. 1—Released January 9
No. 2—Released January 10
No. 3—Released January 23
No. 4—Released January 30

Paramount-Burton Holmes Travel-Pictures

The finest Travel Pictures ever offered the motion picture public.
February 7—Installment No. 1—The Cliff Dwellers of America
February 14—Installment No. 2—Grand Canyon
February 21—Installment No. 3—A Day with the West Point Cadets.
February 28—Installment No. 4—Our "Middies" at Annapolis

Newspictures

See what you read every week.

Paramount Pictures Corporation
FOUR EIGHTY FIVE FIFTH AVENUE at FORTY FIRST ST.
NEW YORK, N.Y.

PARAMOUNT

DANIEL FROHMAN
PRESENTS

JOHN BARRYMORE

IN

"NEARLY A KING"

A COMEDY OF ROMANCE AND ADVENTURE

BY William H Clifford

IN FIVE PARTS

RELEASED FEB. 10TH

PRODUCED BY THE

FAMOUS PLAYERS

ADOLPH ZUKOR, President

DANIEL FROHMAN, Managing Director

48 FAMOUS FEATURES A YEAR

PROGRAM

THE FAMOUS PLAYERS FILM COMPANY

THE PIONEER AND PREMIER PRODUCING COMPANY IN THE PRESENTATION OF CELEBRATED STARS AND PLAYS IN MOTION PICTURES

Released on the

Paramount Program

FILM COMPANY

Executive Offices
507 FIFTH AVENUE
NEW YORK

Canadian Distributors—
Famous Players
Film Service, Ltd., Calgary—
Montreal—Toronto

48 FAMOUS FEATURES A YEAR

THE IRON

A new PATHÉ Serial of extraordinary power presenting the favorite cast of the photoplay world—

PEARL WHITE,

SHELDON LEWIS and

CREIGHTON HALE

With a cast like this the public is already won!
Big straight-to-the-public advertising of course!

The PATHÉ EXECUTIVE
25 WEST 45th ST.

CLAW

SHELDON LEWIS PEARL WHITE CREIGHTON HALE

Written by ARTHUR STRINGER and adapted by GEO. B. SEITZ; complete in 12 installments of two chapters each. Produced by the FEATURE FILM CORP'N under the personal supervision of EDWARD JOSÉ.

Released Feb. 28th.

EXCHANGE inc.

OFFICES
NEW YORK

THE RED

IS A 100% EFFIC-

Efficient in cast—
RUTH ROLAND

Efficient in scenario—
WILL M. RITCHEY

Efficient in production—
BALBOA

Efficient in story—
ALBERT PAYSON TERHUNE

Efficient in publicity—
It's in the newspapers everywhere!

The PATHÉ
EXECUTIVE
25 WEST 45th ST.

CIRCLE

-IENCY SERIAL!

GET A 100%

FULL HOUSE BY

SHOWING THE

100% SERIAL

EXCHANGE inc.
OFFICES
NEW YORK

PATHÉ
HAZEL

The best loved play
with a truly wonderful
PEARL

WILLIAM RILEY HATCH, BRUCE MCRAE,
FLORENCE EDNEY, each one of whom is
"HAZEL KIRKE," as a photoplay will repeat
Sumptuously produced by the GOLD ROOSTER play

The PATHÉ
EXECUTIVE
25 WEST 45th ST.

PRESENTS
KIRKE

of the last thirty years, cast headed by WHITE

CREIGHTON HALE, ALLEN MURNANE and a real headliner.
the triumphs of the original production.
WHARTONS and released as a five part
January 28th.

EXCHANGE inc.

OFFICES
NEW YORK

PARAMOUNT PROGRAM

THE NAME OF LASKY
MEANS PERFECTION
IN PHOTOPLAY PRODUCTIONS

W. Stephen Bush in the Moving Picture World said about Cleo Ridgeley and Wallace Reid in "The Golden Chance":

"I do not hesitate to say that in the specializing in this branch of our noble art the Lasky pictures are simply in a class by themselves."

LASKY PRODUCTIONS EXCLUSIVELY ON THE PARAMOUNT PROGRAM

CANADIAN DISTRIBUTORS, FAMOUS PLAYERS FILM SERVICE (Ltd)

JESSE L. LASKY FEATURE PLAY CO (Inc)

FOUR EIGHTY-FIVE FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK CITY

Jesse L. Lasky, Pres. — Samuel Goldfish, Vice-Pres. and Treas. — Cecil B. DeMille, Director Gen.

MR. CHARLES H. RYAN, manager of the Garfield Theatre, Chicago, remarking on the growth, progress and consistency of METRO PICTURES, writes:

> "Your features at the present day are better than anything on earth—or anywhere else."

We appreciate Mr. Ryan's enthusiasm especially because his opinion is shared by so many exhibitors throughout the world.

Metro Pictures Corporation

METRO PICTURES

METRO PICTURES CORPORATION

presents

THE UPSTART

Contrived and Directed by EDWIN CAREWE

From the play by Thomas Barry and the inspiration of George Bernard Shaw

with

GEORGE LEGUERE and MARGUERITE SNOW

supported by JAMES LACKAYE

Produced in 5 Acts by ROLFE PHOTO PLAYS INC.

The UPSTART
is a production of the newer, bigger, better type telling a smashing good story of loveless marriage and divorce.

Released on the METRO Program February 7th

COMING EVENTS

METRO PICTURES

Metro—Drew Comedies

Provoking, Producing, Perpetuating

LAUGHS THAT LAST

Mr. and Mrs. SIDNEY DREW appearing in comedies that measure one reel long, fifty laughs wide and eighty laughs thick. Booking now for the February releases.

METRO PICTURES CORPORATION

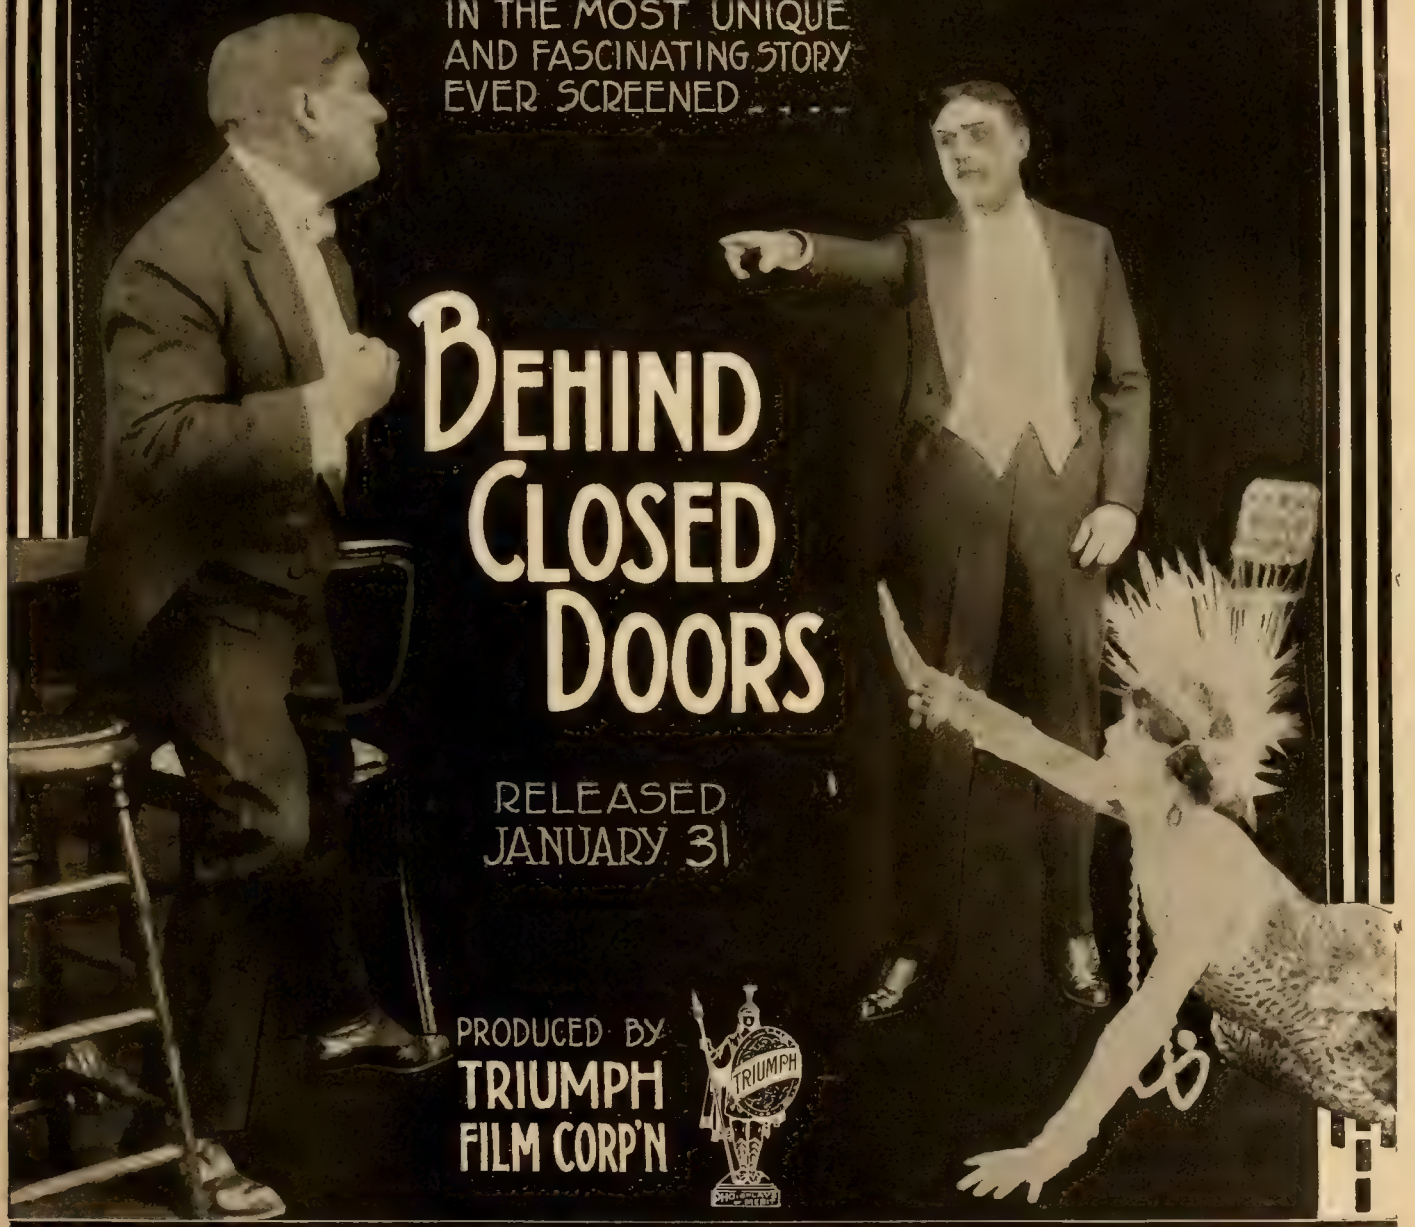
EQUITABLE

PRESENTS

THE SUBLIME VAMPIRE WOMAN

MARIE EMPRESS

IN THE MOST UNIQUE AND FASCINATING STORY EVER SCREENED . . . .



BEHIND CLOSED DOORS

RELEASED JANUARY 31

PRODUCED BY TRIUMPH FILM CORP'N

EQUITABLE MOTION PICTURES CORPORATION

RELEASING THROUGH

WORLD FILM CORPORATION

What the name Wm A. BRADY means to the Exhibitor

The CRITERION of the CRITICAL for ORIGINALITY, POWER, DRAMATIC FORCE and SUPERLATIVE BOX-OFFICE VALUE —

Releases of the past eighteen months include the following Screen Triumphs

ROBERT WARWICK in "THE DOLLAR MARK"
EMMA DUNN in "MOTHER"
TOM WISE in "A GENTLEMAN FROM MISSISSIPPI"
ROBERT WARWICK in "THE MAN OF THE HOUR"
ALICE BRADY in "AS YE SOW"
WILTON LACKAYE in "THE PIT"
ROBERT WARWICK in "ALIAS JIMMY VALENTINE"
FRED MACE in "WHAT HAPPENED TO JONES"
ROBERT WARWICK in "THE MAN WHO FOUND HIMSELF"
WILLIAM ELLIOTT in "WOMEN AND WINE"
HOLBROOK BLINN in "THE BOSS"
VIVIAN MARTIN in "LITTLE MISS BROWN"
ROBERT WARWICK in "THE FACE IN THE MOONLIGHT"
ALEC. B. FRANCIS in "AFTER DARK"
MARTHA HEDMAN in "THE CUB"
ROBERT WARWICK in "THE STOLEN VOICE"
GEORGE NASH in "THE COTTON KING"
JOSE COLLINS in "THE IMPOSTER"
HOLBROOK BLINN in "THE IVORY SNUFF-BOX"
HOLBROOK BLINN in "THE FAMILY CUPBOARD"
ROBERT WARWICK in "SINS OF SOCIETY"
VIVIAN MARTIN in "OVER NIGHT"
ALICE BRADY in "THE RACK"
HOLBROOK BLINN in "LIFE'S WHIRLPOOL"
ALICE BRADY
HOLBROOK BLINN in "THE BALLET GIRL"
ROBERT WARWICK
FRANCES NELSON in "FRUITS OF DESIRE"
HOLBROOK BLINN in "LOVE'S CRUCIBLE" in "THE UNPARDONABLE SIN"

Even greater BRADY ACHIEVEMENTS in active preparation, adhering rigorously to the standard established

Released

WORLD FILM

LEWIS J. SELZNICK

Wm A. BRADY PICTURE PLAYS INC.

Presents —

Alice BRADY and Holbrook BLINN

IN

"The BALLET GIRL"

Adapted from the novel
"CARNIVAL"
by
Compton Mackenzie

Life's cross-currents, with their treacherous undertow, are strikingly and fearlessly shown in this ultra-modern photo-drama of a beautiful girl's fight for "her place in the sun".

JENNIE RAEBURN'S problem the world old one of love or ambition's fulfillment furnishes in it's working out, an absorbing story of New York stage and society life.

ALICE BRADY
in the most captivating and compellant role of her dramatic career.

through

CORPORATION
VICE PRESIDENT

MUTUAL MASTERPICTURES
DE LUXE EDITION

MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION
Presents

THE DEAD ALIVE

A Tense Drama that Teems with Mystery and with Strong, Heroic Action - FIVE REELS

STARRING THE FOREMOST PLAYERS

MARGUERITE COURTOT
AND SIDNEY MASON

RELEASED the WEEK of FEB. 14TH.

Produced by GAUMONT

Book through

MUTUAL MASTERPICTURES
DE LUXE EDITION

MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION
Presents

WHAT DORIS DID

AN ENGROSSING DRAMA OF SOCIETY LIFE. TRULY AN ARTISTIC TRIUMPH—FIVE REELS

featuring
The BEAUTIFUL STAR
DORIS GREY

RELEASED the WEEK of FEB. 14TH.
Produced by THANHOUSER
Mutual Exchanges

MUTUAL MASTERPICTURES
DE LUXE EDITION

MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION
Presents

THE CRAVING

A drama with terrific "punch". Great football scenes; amazing action—FIVE REELS featuring the POPULAR STARS

WILLIAM RUSSELL
—and—
CHARLOTTE BURTON

Released the Week of FEB. 14TH.

Produced by AMERICAN

Book through

MUTUAL PICTURES
MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION
Presents
A THREE-REEL
THANHOUSER PRODUCTION
OUTWITTED
A picture of powerful dramatic action
featuring
"LADY"
the famous Thanhouser collie and a cast of players headed by.....
WAYNE AREY
Released the week of FEB. 14TH
Mutual Exchanges

MUTUAL PICTURES

Lillo of the Sulu Seas

A rare gem in a golden setting!

A tremendous three-part "Flying A" wonder play, portraying intensely romantic exploits among the pearl fishers and traders of the South Seas. A pulsating drama of intrigue, love, adventure—with a thrilling shipwreck and rescue. New, unique, vivid situations superbly acted by a big company headed by

Harold Lockwood–May Allison

Released February 8th

According to St. John

A throbbing tale of regeneration in the western country. A vital, red-blooded drama of love, crime and self-sacrifice.

Three-Reel "Mustang" Drama

With Anna Little and Jack Richardson

Directed by Tom Chatterton

Released February 11th

Won by One

Neva Gerber
Wallace MacDonald
Dick Rosson

Single Reel "Beauty" Comedy

Directed by Arthur McMackin

Released Feb. 9th

Here's the Latest Style in Laughs

Billy Van Deusen and the Vampire

The vampire turns out to be a "he"—a stunning surprise, the climax of ludicrous happenings.

Carol Halloway — John Steppling
John Sheehan

Directed by Arthur McMackin

Released February 13th

American Film Co., Inc.

SAMUEL S. HUTCHINSON, President

Chicago, Illinois

All "Flying A," "Beauty" and "Mustang" productions are distributed thro'out the United States and Canada exclusively by Mutual Film Corporation.

MUTUAL SPECIAL FEATURE

Going Like A House Afire!

THE DIAMOND FROM THE SKY

A Picturized Romantic Novel
By Roy L. McCardell

"Like a house afire!" That's the way an exhibitor expressed it the other day, and he hit the nail squarely on the head.

Neighborhood exhibitors now are reaping big profits with this spectacular production of great big thrills! Each two-act chapter is, in itself, a powerful success. The entire production has proved itself a gold mine.

Book It Now And Make Money!

You neighborhood theatre men—don't let this opportunity slip. Big money awaits you. Go to your nearest Mutual exchanges for new and special booking information. Act Now!

North American Film Corporation
John R. Freuler, Pres. 71 West 23rd St., New York City

MUTUAL SPECIAL FEATURE

BOX OFFICE RECORDS SMASHED!

EXHIBITORS from coast to coast proclaim "The Girl and the Game" the most stupendous box office success of all their experience. Their telegrams, hot off the wires, and letters are jammed with "capacity" reports. Read some of this titanic testimony about this electrifying serial, the definite thrills in each chapter of which are guaranteed by President Hutchinson.

This Telegram Tells!

All records broken on The Girl and the Game. Wonderful picture. Wonderful photography. In fact great. Keep up good work as established in first chapter and success will be yours. If succeeding chapters are on par with first, all series or serials will fade in oblivion.

RALPH KRETZER, Colonial Theatre, Springfield, O.

Turned Them Away!

At the first presentation of "The Girl and the Game" on last Monday evening, our only regret was that our house was not twice its present size as its capacity would even then be taxed with the number we turned away. Notwithstanding a vaudeville house situated directly across the street with a seating capacity of 1500 seats gave a first night performance, and three other picture houses in the next block were all bidding for the business.

CHAS. WALKER, Mgr., Academy Theatre, Pittsburgh

Attendance Marks Shattered!

For your information the Jitney Theatre, Minneapolis, played to 3100 people on the opening night of "THE GIRL AND THE GAME." This breaks all records for attendance at this theatre on opening night for any serial or series photoplay.

L. E. DAVIS, Representative.

Biggest and Best Serial!

I must say that this undoubtedly is the biggest and best serial ever produced. Helen Holmes is at her best and the first glimpse of the picture assures you that the photography is the same, the standard of perfection the Signal Film Co. has always adhered to. We turned them away last night and in closing will say—let me talk to any exhibitor who is afraid to tackle this money getter.

S. E. BUETTELL, Amuse Theatre, Dubuque, Ia.

Showing To Packed Houses!

This great serial is simply immense and we are showing to packed houses every Thursday — Thursday has always been my quietest day, but the way this picture has stimulated my business is wonderful.

GEORGE LAENHARDT,
Varsity Theatre, Champaign, Ill.

Largest Crowd That Ever Attended!

Ran 1st Episode of "THE GIRL AND THE GAME" Tuesday to the largest crowd that ever attended theatre. Started show at 6:15 p. m., and held them out until 10 minutes of ten. The most remarkable feat was that it was raining so hard. It was just pouring down and I had them standing to the car tracks.

SYLVESTER GUETLE, Mgr.
Center Theatre, Cincinnati, O.

Thousands of Theatres Book Big Profits!

Line up the big crowds at your box-office. Start this half-million dollar serial now—fifteen two-act chapters—one chapter released each week. Every chapter a terrific thriller! Chapter Six now appearing—shows daring Helen Holmes' fearful leap from open jack-knife bridge!!

Show to big money. "The Girl and the Game" nights are enormous payers—establish enthusiastic patronage. Act now—clinch record receipts for fifteen weeks!

For booking Information apply to "The Girl and the Game" department of any Mutual Exchange, or at Mutual Home Office, New York City.

SIGNAL FILM CORPORATION

SAMUEL S. HUTCHINSON, President
Publicity Offices: 222 South State Street
CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

Terrific Newspaper Success!!

No previous serial success has ever received more than half the newspaper co-operation given "The Girl and the Game." Over 1000 newspapers are publishing, for millions of readers, Frank H. Spearman's tremendous railroad film novel.

New York World
Pittsburgh Press
Atlanta Constitution
Omaha Bee
Buffalo Courier
Indianapolis Star
Chicago Evening Post
Detroit Journal
Baltimore American
Boston Globe
Cincinnati Times-Star
Kansas City Journal
Los Angeles Tribune
Dallas Journal
Milwaukee Sentinel
Philadelphia North American
Memphis Commercial Appeal
New Orleans Times-Picayune
San Francisco Chronicle
St. Louis Globe-Democrat
Seattle Post-Intelligencer
Cleveland Leader
Louisville Herald and One Thousand Others.

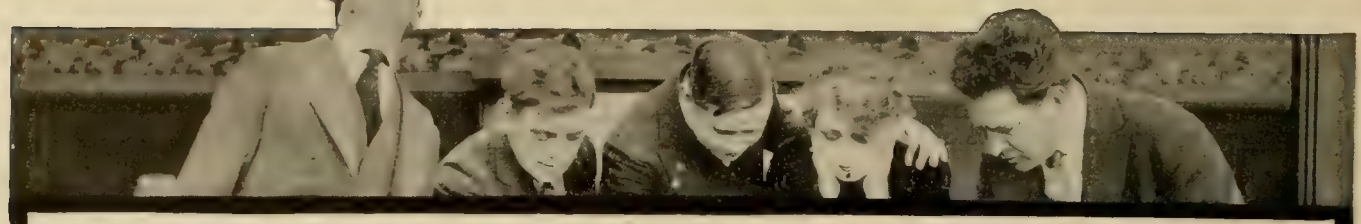
MUTUAL PICTURES



Bungling Bill, Burglar

Slapsticks With a Reason

VOGUE COMEDIES

FOR plain and fancy "bungling," Bill is a sensation! His merry burglar work provides another uproarious Vogue comedy success. The scenes are as fast as the automatic shooting iron of the Bad Man—and as sure to hit!

Released—January 27

Acts Just the Same as Laughing Gas!

He Thought He Went to War

Released—January 30

CROWD your house and lobby with Vogue comedies—the funniest plays ever filmed. The greatest box-office successes.

Distributed throughout the United States and Canada exclusively by Mutual Film Corporation.

VOGUE FILMS, Inc.

Executives:
JOSEPH H. FINN
SAMUEL S. HUTCHINSON

Publicity Offices:
222 South State St.
Chicago, Ill.

One of the "rapid-fire" scenes in Bungling Bill, Burglar.

MUTUAL MASTERPICTURES

DE LUXE EDITION

"THE IDOL OF THE STAGE"
Released February 3

MALCOLM WILLIAMS
The Broadway Favorite

A Spectacular Romance of Stageland, Society and Convict Camp.

"THE DRIFTER"
Released February 7

ALEXANDER GADEN

What Happens When the Gambling Passion Seizes a Divinity Student?

"THE DEAD ALIVE"
Released February 17

MARGUERITE COURTOT
America's Film Star

Is She His Wife?
Two Lovely Courtot Parts in One Production.

GAUMONT CO.

FLUSHING, N.Y. MADE IN AMERICA JACKSONVILLE, FLA.

MUTUAL PICTURES

Edwin Thanhouser

Presents

The Knotted Cord

3 REELS

A Mystery Drama that cannot fail to please. Strong situations, surprises and swift action!

With

Bert Delaney

And a Splendid Cast

Released Wed. Feb. 2

Staged by William Parke

THANHOUSER Film Corp.

New Rochelle N.Y.

PREMO

offers the field another production. It is of the same stamp and character as those previous Premo productions which have already created a reputation for Premo as the foremost independent producer. These are:

The Premo Play, "The Master Hand," which starred Nat Goodwin and scored for the World Film.

The Pathe-Premo release, "The Greater Will," which starred Cyril Maude.

Now comes the greatest Premo offering—a new sort of film drama, truly an innovation—

The DEVIL'S TOY

inspired by the poem "The Mills of the Gods," scenario by Madden and Marks, adapted by

HARLEY KNOLES

(Premo's Director General and himself producer of "The Devil's Toy")

The cast is superb. It might almost be called an all-star cast, being headed by

Adele Blood

ADELE BLOOD famous as "EVERYWOMAN"

Her reputation for portraying allegorical parts is known in every town throughout the United States.

Supporting her is that master of subtle, crafty villainy

Edwin Stevens

EDWIN STEVENS famous as THE DEVIL

AND MONTAGU LOVE

recently a feature of the "Ware Case," the great Broadway Success.

The "Devil's Toy" is primarily a drama of passions. It tells of the struggle of a man with his baser self.

Knoles has again demonstrated his bigness of conception and his extraordinary creativeness. Practically every scene is a masterpiece but especially to be noted are the following:

Scene in the Hotel Biltmore Ice Gardens
Theatre Scene, with 100 Famous Stage Children
The Fade-Ins of the Devil Masterpieces of Expert Photography, by ARTHUR EDESON

PREMO FILM CORPORATION

HARRY RAPF, President

11 East 14th Street, N. Y. C.

(Old Biograph Studio)

Oliver Morosco

PRESENTS

ANNA HELD

IN

"Madame LA PRESIDENTE"

By MAURICE HENNEQUIN & PIERRE VEBER

RELEASED FEB. 7TH

Produced by

The Oliver Morosco Photoplay Co.

PUBLICITY OFFICE
222 WEST 42ND STREET
NEW YORK, N.Y.

CANADIAN DISTRIBUTORS
FAMOUS PLAYERS FILM SERVICE LTD.
MONTREAL, TORONTO, CALGARY.

STUDIOS
201 NORTH OCCIDENTAL BV'D
LOS ANGELES, CALIF.

Paramount Pictures

ON THE STREET OF MAKE OR BREAK

The West Side, meaning Broadway and Riverside Drive, between 77th and 110th Streets, is the residential section of New York's most representative citizenship.

Here live the better-than-average substantial people—the class with incomes of $5,000 or better—a class not too fastidious to appreciate capably produced film dramas, but so discriminating that only the best will tempt it.

Exhibitors in this district probably must exercise greater care in the selection of their features than any other in the United States. Their houses are grouped so near that prospective patrons may pick that which most appeals to their taste. In addition, these managers have the fiercest competition in the world—that of New York's theatrical district—only a minute's ride away.

Sunday is the biggest day in the week in these theatres, and New Year's Sunday, naturally, one of the biggest of all.

On January 2nd last, of the nine theatres in this area, V-L-S-E features were exhibited in four. The fact that the pictures displayed in the other five houses were the product of five different companies is of added significance. In other words, Big Four had but one less booking than all other feature organizations combined.

That this is not an exceptional representation is best evidenced by the fact that the forty-six features released by the V-L-S-E from May 1st, 1915 to January 1st, have had so far all told 214 bookings in the nine theatres of this district.

The Riverview Theatre, for instance, has run forty-three out of the forty-six subjects and repeated on many of them. The Adelphi Theatre has shown twenty-two, some of them for two and three days, an uncommon occurence in New York City, and, as Manager Wolf says, "expect to take the rest of them right down the line." The Olympia has featured twenty-six of them and is rapidly extending its bookings.

Here, then, is the crucible of film features, and the record which V-L-S-E productions have made in it.

"A wise success-seeker", some one has said, "profits by the experience of those who have camped along the trail before him."

Are you one of these?

V. L. S. E. Inc.

The Fact that The Coming Release

"MY LADY'S SLIPPER"

features

ANITA STEWART

and

EARLE WILLIAMS

was written by

CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY

and produced by

RALPH INCE

is sufficient unto itself to warrant the unanimous support
of all exhibitors

THE VITAGRAPH COMPANY OF AMERICA

Released through V. L. S. E. Inc.

LUBIN

RICHARD BUHLER

Supported by

ROSETTA BRICE

in

"THE GODS OF FATE"

Written by

Daniel Carson Goodman

Produced by

JACK PRATT

A red blooded drama of modern industrial life, teeming with high tensioned interest and the heart throbs of thwarted love.

LUBIN FEATURE

Released through V.L.S.E. Inc.

SELIG
Offers

Regina Badet

The Versatile Actress, in

"NO GREATER LOVE"

A Selig Red Seal Play in Five Soul-stirring Reels Presenting a Story of Passionate Mother-Love

SELIG

Released through V.L.S.E. Inc.

THE MISLEADING LADY

in 5 Acts

Presenting

Henry B. Walthall

and

Edna Mayo

The story of the kidnapping of a bride and a cave-man wooing in modern society.

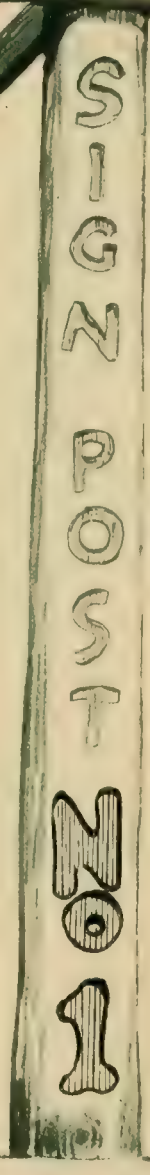
It lays bare the naked savage soul of man, throbbing with all the intensity of the raw, primitive passions of love and hate.

Adapted by H. S. Sheldon from the great stage success of Charles W. Goddard and Paul Dickey. Directed by Arthur Berthelet.

Essanay

"First to Standardize Photoplays"

Released through V. L. S. E. Inc.



ALEX ETHIER PRES E COMEAULT JR. CLERK R M KANE TREASURER

PARK THEATRE COMPANY
INCORPORATED
SPENCER, MASS

Spencer,Mass.
October 27,1915.

Mr. George Balsdon,Branch Mgr.,
Vitagraph-Lubin-Selig-Essanay,Inc.,
67 Church Street,
Boston, Mass.

Dear Sir;----------

It is a pleasure to book the features of "The Big Four". Their drawing power in my theatre is greater than any other features that I have ever booked. The people have come to realize that your features combine excellent photography, good acting and stories with worthwhile and consistent plots. Your features send the people home satisfied which is an assurance that they will come again. Capacity houses are the rule for all your bookings. The last three,"The White Sister", "The Rosary" and "The Island of Regeneration" have established your features in the hearts of Spencer people.You may be sure of my future patronage.

Very truly yours,

Richard M. Kane

Mgr. Park Theatre,
Spencer,Mass.

"I know not how to govern our own course save by the proven experience of others."

V. L. S. E. Inc.

A FOOL'S PARADISE

An IVAN Production

Written and Directed by IVAN ABRAMSON

PREDICTED to create a furore in the film world when released, "A Fool's Paradise" will be the biggest box office attraction of the season and the one feature you will surely want to repeat!

A wonderful story, so strong Six reels were required to present it properly; a superb cast of screen stars, headed by Chrystine Mayo, Paula Shay and Joseph Burke.

Get in touch with the Ivan exchange in your territory and book "A Fool's Paradise," the Ivan February release.

Ivan Film Productions, Inc.
126 West 46th Street, New York City

IVAN EXCHANGES

NEW ENGLAND—E. W. Lynch Enterprises, Boston and Worcester, Mass.

NEW YORK AND NORTHERN NEW JERSEY—Merit Film Corp., New York City.

WESTERN PENNSYLVANIA, WEST VIRGINIA—Liberty Film Renting Co., Pittsburgh, Pa.

OHIO—Standard Film Service Co., Cleveland and Cincinnati, Ohio.

MICHIGAN—Standard Film Service Co., Detroit.

INDIANA AND KENTUCKY—General Feature Film Co., Mallers Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

ILLINOIS AND SOUTHERN WISCONSIN—General Feature Film Co., Mallers Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

MINNESOTA, NORTH AND SOUTH DAKOTA, AND NORTHERN WISCONSIN—Zenith Feature Film Co., Lyceum Bldg., Duluth, Minn.

IOWA, NEBRASKA, MISSOURI, KANSAS AND OKLAHOMA—Monarch Feature Film Co., Kansas City, Mo.

TEXAS, LOUISIANA AND ARKANSAS—L. Santikos, Waco, Texas.

FOREIGN RIGHTS—Winik-Brock, New York and London.

Triangle Applause Continues

From North and South, East and West, the stream of congratulatory letters and telegrams praising TRIANGLE Service continues. Sometimes a big-city millionaire theatre owner wires us of the wonderful results "TRIANGLE" Plays are bringing him, and then a letter is received the same day from some little fellow in a small town advising that his business is better than it has ever been. The big and the little alike are pleased with present results and are enthusiastic over the outlook for further profits in the future.

Here is a telegram from Turner & Dahnken, which every exhibitor should read.

San Francisco, Cal.
January 16th, 1916.

Triangle Film Corporation,
71 West 23rd Street,
New York City.

All San Francisco records shattered with TRIANGLE opening at Tivoli Opera House today. TRIANGLE Plays enthusiastically received. Thousands turned away.

TURNER & DAHNKEN.

Unsolicited praise of this kind from people of this high standing should be the very best proof that a prospective TRIANGLE exhibitor could possibly desire. No amount of selling talk or enthusiasm displayed by a salesman over the merits of Triangle plays is as convincing as the many recommendations which have been received from hard-headed business men.

TRIANGLE FILM CORPORATION
71 WEST 23rd ST. NEW YORK

January 30th Triangle Releases Will Crowd the Box Office

There's an indefinable something about TRIANGLE plays which draws the crowds back to the box office window and compels returns.

This week Orrin Johnson in "The Price of Power" gives a wonderful characterization of the strong working man who set out to win a fortune. Nothing deterred him and he won the victory, but the price he paid makes a story that your patrons will surely appreciate. Seldom has there been a play of such strength—a play that arouses hate for the man as he exercises his power and sympathy in his troubles. This is the kind of a play that will make your first-performance patrons increase the number of people who attend the second show.

As for the second picture, no stronger drama—no play dealing more intimately with the rocks on which so many matrimonial bargains are wrecked has yet been seen than "The Green Swamp," in which Bessie Barriscale and Bruce McRae appear. Every husband and wife will appreciate this true story of domestic American life. It's a tale that holds the interest throughout and never lets a moment lag.

As for the Keystones, there are a couple of corkers this week—"He Did and He Didn't" and "Love Will Conquer." Fatty Arbuckle and Mabel Normand appear in the first, and Fred Mace in the second. These three popular Keystone stars will keep your house alive with laughter.

TRIANGLE FILM CORPORATION
71 WEST 23rd ST NEW YORK

BLUEBIRD
PHOTO PLAYS

"Secret Love"

"A sure-fire attraction at the Ziegfeld."—Chicago Examiner

BLUEBIRD PHOTO-PLAYS (Inc.)

ANNOUNCE THE THIRD RELEASE

"UNDINE"

with Ida Schnall

The magnificent dramatic spectacle from the famous French Classic of the Sea by Pierre de la Motte Fouque

Directed by Henry Otto

Booking reservations now being apportioned in all the foremost cities throughout America

Chief Executive Offices
1600 Broadway
NEW YORK

Or your local BLUEBIRD offices

BLUEBIRD

BLUEBIRD
PHOTO PLAYS

"A credit to a Program."
—Chicago Tribune

LUBIN

Will Release the following during the week begining

Jan 31st

"A REFORMATION DELAYED"

One Act Drama

Feb. 3RD

"A MODERN PAUL"

Three Act Drama

Feb. 5th

"Billie Reeves Comedy"

THE ELECTION BET

One Act

GENERAL FILM LUBIN RELEASES

Knickerbocker Star Features

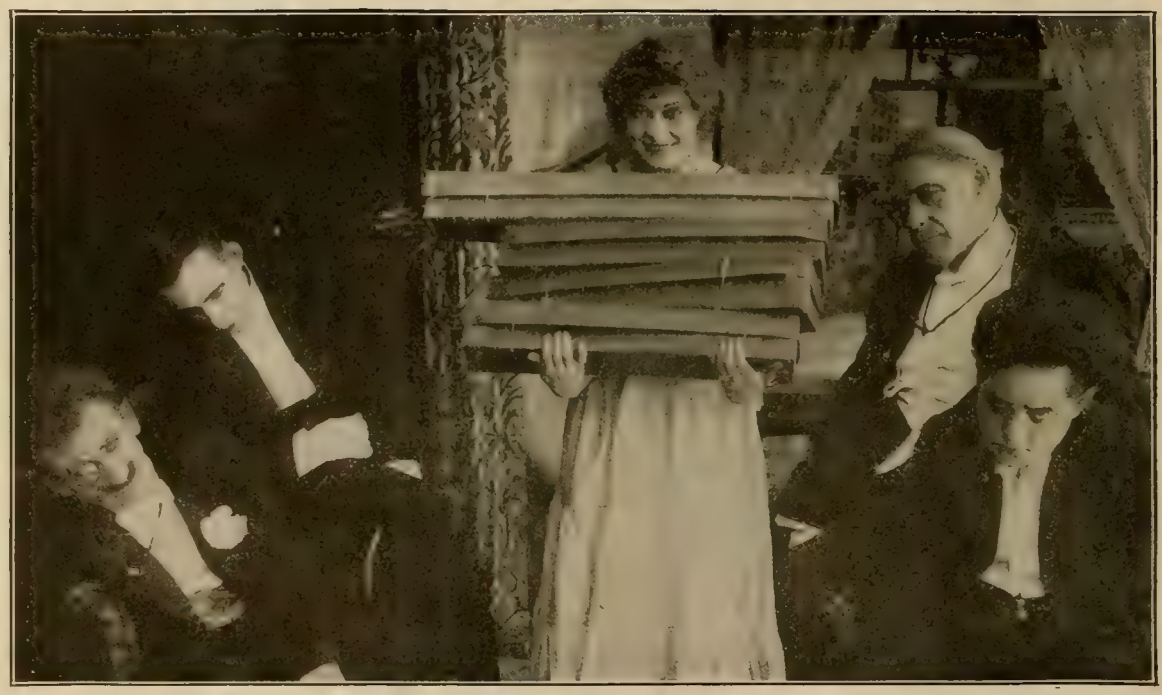
January 28th—General Film Program

A Big Feature Three-Part Comedy Drama

"The Heart Breakers"

Featuring

Jackie Saunders



Humanity and Hilarity; Humor and Heart Interest, all combine to make this a winning Feature Comedy-Drama.

Four "Heart Breakers" in a persistent struggle for an Heiress, meet defeat by the innocent up-to-dateness of a Cub Reporter.

Special Posters by a Special Artist, one, three and six sheets.

Remember the Date—January 28th General Film Program

Coming!

"The Crime of Circumstance"

February 4th—Three-Part Feature

Knickerbocker Star Features

NEW YORK

VIM COMEDY FILMS

Two Vim Comedies a Week Hereafter: THURSDAYS and FRIDAYS

Three companies at work featuring "Plump and Runt," "Pokes and Jabbs," "Bungles," the peer in Comedy Films

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 3rd "PLUMP AND RUNT" IN "A STICKY AFFAIR"

Everybody Sticks;
The hero and heroine Stick;
The terrible villains Stick;
The staid professor Sticks.

A Glorious Gambol in a Geyser of Glue.

Mr. Exhibitor: Glue this ad in your VIM Book and make your patrons Stick!!

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 4th "POKES AND JABBS" IN "THE GETAWAY"

A Successful Comedy is NOT one that makes part of the audience laugh all the time, nor all of the audience laugh part of the time, but in making ALL OF THE AUDIENCE LAUGH ALL THE TIME.

"The Getaway" will do this—

Pokes and Jabbs make an exciting "getaway" from a card game; Madam Pokes heads the pursuers. They are stranded between earth and sky; finally land at the feet of the furious female.

Remember---THURSDAYS and FRIDAYS ARE VIM DAYS

GENERAL FILM PROGRAM

VITAGRAPH

Comparisons

* * *

If you are not convinced that

Hearst-Vitagraph

Is the greatest news pictorial
In the world

Investigate

* * *

You will find that
In addition to
The breeziest news
The best cartoons
The most up-to-date fashions and
Latest views of the European struggle

Hearst-Vitagraph

Has the most efficient
Advertising Campaign
Of any news reel
On the market.

* * *

You can get Lobby display
Window cards and posters
(In addition to the greatest publicity Campaign ever launched)

In time for
A top run release.

* * *

This is an additional service
Which means
Increased box office receipts.

* * *

Investigate

(Thru V. L. S. E.)

The VITAGRAPH COMPANY of AMERICA
EXECUTIVE OFFICES
EAST 15th ST. and LOCUST AVE., BROOKLYN, N.Y.
NEW YORK · CHICAGO · LONDON · PARIS

VITAGRAPH

¶ Make Friends For Your Goods

There is only one rule
In advertising—

Make Friends For Your Goods!

* * *

Let your patrons feel
That you know motion pictures
From A to Z.
They will then understand
That your photoplay house
Is selling amusement
That will stand under the test.

* * *

¶ All Vitagraph productions
Will make friends
They should be YOUR goods.
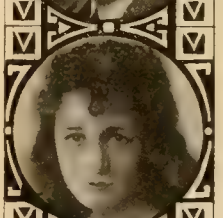
Book them.
Thru the G. F.



Regular Releases

"Jane's Bashful Hero"
Comedy—Monday, January 31st
Featuring EDITH STOREY, Donald MacBride, Billy Bletcher, and Edward Elkas

* * *

"The Wrong Mr. Wright"
Comedy—Friday, February 4th
Featuring Garry McGarry, Jewell Hunt, Charles Wellesley and Harry Fisher

* * *

Broadway Star Feature

"Bill Peters' Kid"
Three-part drama—Saturday Feb. 5th
Featuring MARY ANDERSON, William Duncan, William Bainbridge and Fred Behrle.
Produced by Rollin S. Sturgeon.

The VITAGRAPH COMPANY of AMERICA
EXECUTIVE OFFICES
EAST 15th ST. and LOCUST AVE., BROOKLYN, N.Y.
NEW YORK · CHICAGO · LONDON · PARIS

VITAGRAPH

If exhibitors
Could only realize that
Three fundamentals
Make a successful photoplay
They could easily choose their subjects

* * *

Heart interest
Self-preservation and the
Love of a man for a woman
Are the three fundamentals necessary.

* * *

Cyrus Townsend Brady

Is a student
Of psychology.
He wrote

"The Island of Surprise"

* * *

This Blue Ribbon Feature contains
Heart interest
Self-preservation and the
Love of a woman for a man.

* * *

It is William Courtenay's First screen success.

* * *

It is a Vitagraph
Superlative picture.

Produced by Paul Scardon

Released January 24th

Thru V. L. S. E.

The VITAGRAPH COMPANY of AMERICA
EXECUTIVE OFFICES
EAST 15th ST. and LOCUST AVE., BROOKLYN, N.Y.
NEW YORK · CHICAGO · LONDON · PARIS

VITAGRAPH

¶ Need we make any further announcement

Than the fact that

MAY ROBSON

Known the world over
As a stage favorite
Of the highest order
Appears in

"A Night Out"

By Charles T. Dazey

Author of "In Old Kentucky"

★ ★ ★

This picture is the
First and Only
Screen appearance of
May Robson

★ ★ ★

It is a Blue Ribbon Feature, of course.

Released January 31st

Thru V. L. S. E.

★ ★ ★

COMING

Superlative one reel comedies with

Frank Daniels

The greatest comedian of this Generation.

The VITAGRAPH COMPANY of AMERICA
EXECUTIVE OFFICES
EAST 15th ST. and LOCUST AVE., BROOKLYN, N.Y.
NEW YORK · CHICAGO · LONDON · PARIS

"THE PERILOUS SWING"

An Episode in

"THE HAZARDS of HELEN"

Featuring HELEN GIBSON

The Most Daring Actress in Pictures

There is a surprise as well as a thrill in each of Helen Gibson's feats of daring audacity—for they are all of startling originality, amazing in conception and electrifying in execution. In "The Perilous Swing," Helen tosses fear to the winds. When apparently baffled by the raising of the drawbridge Helen throws her lariat over the end of the girder as it rises in mid-air and without thought of danger swings out through space to the opposite bank of the river. This supreme thrill is the climax of a breath-taking single reel "Hazard" surcharged with exciting action. Released Saturday, February 19th; 1 and 3-sheet 4-color lithographs, newspaper mats, etc.

The Original Railroad Series—and Still Setting the Pace

A MOLAR MIX-UP

A Bud Duncan and Ethel Teare comedy with a laugh at the start and a roar at the end. A dentist's office and tangled lovers provide the fun.

Released Wednesday, February 16th. Catchy 1 and 3-sheet 4-color lithographs

THE GUIDING HAND

A tense drama of real life, with the old family servitor, two sons at odds, and a woman of the world as the principal characters.

Released Friday, February 18th. Eye-catching 1 and 3-sheet 4-color lithographs on this single reel

And Here is the News That You Have Been Waiting For—

"HAM" IS BACK AGAIN

His return bow is made in "HAM TAKES A CHANCE," Released February 15.

Make a note of that release date now, for you won't want to miss a single issue of the new better-than-ever Ham comedies. The world-famous comedian will delight his large following more than ever in these new subjects. In "Ham Takes a Chance," Ham and Bud get jobs with a broken down road show, of which Ethel is the star. Bud's task is to exercise the prima donna's pet snakes, while Ham will make your sides split with laughter as the knife-throwing expert with Bud as his target. A rollicking single reeler that brings you back to the "good old days" when Ham never failed to pack your house. 1 and 3-sheet 4-color lithographs on this subject, also a stock 3-sheet that is a sure-fire business builder.

These pictures obtainable at all General Film Company branch offices

Get Advance News and Publicity Aids By Putting Your Name on the Mailing List for the New Kalem Bulletin

KALEM COMPANY

235-239 West 23rd Street New York City, N. Y.

MOVING PICTURE WORLD
THE FILM INDEX
EXHIBITORS' GUIDE

Entered at the General Post Office, New York City, as Second Class Matter

J. P. Chalmers, Founder.
Published Weekly by the

CHALMERS PUBLISHING COMPANY
17 MADISON AVENUE, NEW YORK CITY.
(Telephone, 3510 Madison Square)

J. P. Chalmers, Sr.....President
J. F. Chalmers.....Vice-President
E. J. Chalmers.....Secretary and Treasurer
John Wylie.....General Manager

The office of the company is the address of the officers.

CHICAGO OFFICE—Suite 917-919 Schiller Building, 64 West Randolph St., Chicago, Ill. Telephone, Central 5099.

PACIFIC COAST OFFICE—Haas Building, Seventh St. and Broadway, Los Angeles, Cal. Telephone, Broadway 4649.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and Philippine Islands .....$3.00 per year
Canada ..... 3.50 per year
Foreign Countries (Postpaid)..... 4.00 per year

All changes of address should give both old and new addresses in full and clearly written, and require two weeks.

ADVERTISING RATES.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING—no display—three cents per word; minimum charge, fifty cents.

DISPLAY ADVERTISING RATES made known on application.

NOTE—Address all correspondence, remittances and subscriptions to MOVING PICTURE WORLD, P. O. Box 226, Madison Square Station, New York, and not to individuals.

(The Index for this issue will be found on page 852)

"CINE-MUNDIAL," the monthly Spanish edition of the Moving Picture World, is published at 17 Madison Avenue by the Chalmers Publishing Company. It reaches the South American market. Yearly subscription, $1.50. Advertising rates on application.

Saturday, February 5, 1916

Facts and Comments

AN idea prevails among many exhibitors that small items containing information about their locals are not of sufficient importance to deserve a place in the columns of THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD. We have always urged secretaries of local and state organizations to send us the fullest information of their doings and of their plans and prospects. THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD has repeatedly circularized the recording officers of the various organizations throughout the country with a request for this information. We now wish to add that no item containing information is too insignificant for publication in our columns. To keep alive the interest in organization it is necessary to have a good weekly record of all the doings of the organized exhibitor wherever he may be located. We hope that the secretaries of the various organizations will bear this in mind and send us all the news they have.

* * *

THE new federal censorship bill which Crafts told the Committee he had worked out in co-operation with certain film interests is fully as objectionable as the original measure. While the absurd copyright provisions are stricken out, the worst features of the bill remain. In one respect it is a good deal worse than the original measure. The latter provided for an appointment of a commission by the President of the United States; the new bill provides for the appointment of five commissioners by the President "with the advice and consent of the Senate." This provision makes it absolutely sure that the commission will be strictly political and that it will be filled on the dear old Jacksonian principle—"To the victors belong the spoils." One of the most deliciously absurd clauses of the new bill provides that the commission may issue a license for a scenario before the scenario is put in the hands of a director. Licenses under this section may be issued six months in advance "as long as the producer behaves himself," as the more or less Reverend Dr. Crafts remarked in his witty way. On what theory any man even slightly familiar with motion picture conditions can persuade himself to support such a bill and to go on record before a Congressional Committee is utterly beyond our comprehension. If this is not shackling and choking the New Art we have lost our ability to see straight.

* * *

IN this issue THE MOVING PICTURE WORLD brings to a close its complete reports of the proceedings before the House Committee on Education which for six nights has heard the opponents and the proponents of the federal censorship of motion pictures. The report very largely carries its own comments, but we cannot help pointing out the fact that the cohorts of Crafts were in dismal plight and actually ready to retire in more or less disorder when they found aid and comfort in a most welcome and wholly unexpected quarter. Three or four very prominent and reputable producers suddenly came forward and stopped the impending rout of the professional reformers by appearing before the Committee and committing themselves unreservedly in favor of the principle of federal censorship. Of course they were entirely within their rights and as much entitled to their opinion as are the opponents of the measure. Nevertheless, it is a great pity that at a moment when the monster of censorship seemed to be slowly bleeding to death, its lethal wounds were bound up and its drooping spirits revived by the mistaken friends of the screen picture.

IMPORTANT NOTICE REGARDING DATE.

On account of the evident confusion in the minds of many of our readers throughout the country, we have decided to return to our former plan of dating the MOVING PICTURE WORLD one week in advance of publication date. Last week's paper was Number 4 of Volume 27 and dated January 22. This week's issue is Number 5 of Volume 27 but is dated February 5. In other words, while the issues are published in consecutive weeks there will be none bearing date of January 29, as, beginning with this issue, we will date the paper one week in advance as we did previous to the issue of October 30, 1915. ALL READERS WILL OBLIGE BY PROMPTLY ADVISING WHEN THEY DO NOT RECEIVE THEIR COPIES ON TIME.

Making a Scene*

By Louis Reeves Harrison.

TO WORK out any ideal system for an art in the early stages of its evolution is manifestly dangerous. On the other hand, to abandon the abstract for the concrete, to be guided by the examples put before our eyes in that state, is equally perilous. With almost every constructive detail of the new art in process of formulation, like the characteristics of a young child, what principles can be laid down that are really logical deductions from what has been well done? The finest screen stories of a few years ago begin to look amateurish just now—we might easily find ourselves reasoning from feeble premises.

Observe the best photoplays—is there any such thing as a regular practice in determining the number of scenes to an act, or the quantity of material necessary for a scene? If not, how is it possible to lay down any law on the subject which shall be in accord with present experience? It is better under the circumstances to avoid assertion altogether and offer merely an idea of what has been found useful in some recent scenarios successfully produced, a sort of experimental foundation.

A scene in its broad sense comprises what goes on without a break in one place. It presents uninterrupted action in the open or within the confines of a studio set. When it is broken by a screen imprint, or to cover a lapse of time, or to portray another line of coincident action, or for some mental vision of one of the characters of other times and places, not depicted by double exposure, both it and the interruptions become new scenes so far as enumeration is concerned. Also, when the scene is very long, or when the effect can be heightened by contrast, it may be interrupted, but not so as to lose hold on attention.

In farce-comedy, and in that unconscious farce, the screen drama which does little more than depict action, the scenes may be so indiscriminately chopped and patched by every one, from author to editor, that there may be a hundred or more in one act, whereas three or four dozen, inclusive of screen imprints, particularly when filled with interesting matter, are sufficient. While there are no arbitrary rules on this subject, the audience point of view is to be considered, and constant flashing back and forth may easily operate to destroy rather than to sustain interest.

When a small boy is robbing an orchard and sees the farmer's big dog headed his way there is a time for action and little room for psychology, but consider the well-known situation of the young girl of ruined aristocratic family, her heart given to an absent young man of her own class, her attention compelled by a husky parvenu of great wealth proposing marriage. The absent one has been long silent; her devoted father is facing disgrace as well as destitution; her loving mother is on the verge of physical and mental collapse, and the girl's sense of obligation to her parents is as high as her fine spirit.

Assuming that all the characters have been made known when first introduced, the set first calls for attention. To be in accord with the girl's social station and the mood of the play it should be described clearly and briefly, nominating essential details. Let it be that of a well-ordered reception-room with a glimpse of noble hall in the background. Refinement characterizes the girl's costume, absence of savoir faire the dress and conduct of the suitor. He may not be lacking in dignity of a rude sort, but he must betray that he is ill at ease in spite of abundant self-confidence. She is waiting when he enters.

The scene between these two may be disposed of in three parts, one portraying the proposal, one given to a screen imprint of what the suitor says, and one showing the girl's reluctant acceptance and the suitor's departure, with a glimpse of her mental torture after it is over. Characterization at once becomes important and occupies a large part of what is described in the scenario—how do the two people conduct themselves under the circumstances? The girl's mental state may be set forth by still greater amplification, increasing the number of scenes.

1. The set is named and described. The girl's attitude toward the suitor after he enters must be considered. She knows why he has come because she is a woman; she receives him with a measure of dignified courtesy because she is intelligent; she tries to relieve his embarrassment because she is generous. He is full-blooded and impassioned, but he falters and fails until the intensity of his nature breaks like an on-rushing wave on the merciless rock of her native resistance. He declares himself. 2. An imprint of his ardent declaration.

3. The girl does not give an immediate reply—she is still struggling between an impelling necessity and the natural dictates of her heart. Instead of deciding matters in the third scene, the general effect may be strengthened by some revelation of what is passing in her mind. She listens with lowered head, then she turns away and gazes pensively toward the camera. Show her in what is called a "close-up," a large view of her face alone, exhibiting her mood as a dreamy one. Note in the scenario that this scene dissolves to the next, the ordinary term being "Cut to Scene 4." Audiences have grown accustomed to consider this fading out and into another scene as a "vision."

Four may begin with "resolve" to whatever new set is to follow, or to the same set in days gone by. Let it be that the girl remembers a parting from her true-love in the same reception room after a costume ball. The last guests are bidding good-night to her parents in the hall, while her true-love in the foreground slips a chain and locket over her head and implores her not to forget him during his absence. Now the scene is cut to 5, in which is imprinted his parting injunction, "Promise that you will be true." There is a cut to Scene 6, the same as 4, and the portrayal of her promise and the parting. This is followed by a dissolve to 7, same as the first scene.

Seven shows in large scope that the girl is standing apart from her parvenu suitor in the last attitude portrayed in 3, only in large scope. Her whole soul revolts against breaking her promise to wed one she does not love, and this is made so plain that he cannot fail to see it, but she catches a glimpse of her unhappy father guiding a physician through the hall, and she regains her original strength of purpose. She bows to the inevitable and accepts the proposal, but her attitude is so appealing that her suitor is affected. There is conversion in his attitude for the moment; he bends over her hand and leaves. She weakens when he has gone, but brightens up on the appearance of her father and tells him the news.

One scene develops to three and even to seven under some circumstances, particularly when it is of prime importance, but this does not mean that mere intermittent flashes of action need be dignified as scenes. It is not necessary for the author in unimportant cases to do more than state that two scenes of contrast, or of converging action are to be subdivided for any purpose, particularly that of intensifying suspense.

*Copyright, 1916, Louis Reeves Harrison.

Break in Film Ranks

Paramount, World, Metro and Equitable Declare for Federal Censorship—Announcement Comes at Moment When Anti-Censorship Forces Were in Sight of Victory—Crafts and Hodkinson Had Conference and New Bill is Proposed—Fight Now Up to Exhibitors.

By W. Stephen Bush.

THE eleventh hour furnished a sensational surprise in the hearings on the federal censorship bill before the House Committee on Education. In the course of the six nights which the committee had allotted for the consideration of this momentous measure, representatives of the film interests had been constantly gaining in the favor of the committee. Not only had the greatest and best-known producers appeared in opposition to the bill, but disinterested and distinguished educators and clergymen had likewise recorded their eloquent dissent from the policy underlying the vicious Crafts bill. At least six members of the committee were openly arrayed against the bill and four of the six had been most outspoken in their antagonism to the Crafts idea. Time and again they had riddled Crafts with the machine guns of logic and sound statesmanship and had shot his more or less hysterical supporters all to pieces; the large audience in the caucus room had been repeatedly betrayed into demonstrations of sympathy for the freedom of the screen when at the last moment three well-known film men appeared and ardently supported the principle of federal censorship, both by their presence and by the recorded utterances of their attorney.

The Eleventh Hour Sensation.

It was a tense and highly dramatic moment. Martin W. Littleton, on behalf of David W. Griffith, had just finished a most powerful appeal for the freedom of the screen. Mr. Littleton, who himself had been a member of Congress for four terms, and who has since won enviable distinction as one of the leaders of the New York bar, spoke with more than his usual force and eloquence, and the committee, much impressed by his words, had repeatedly extended his time. The echoes of his splendid peroration had scarcely died away and the audience as well as the committee were still under the spell of his oratory when Crafts arose and in his rasping voice addressed the chairman of the committee and, seizing a bundle of papers, pointed them in the direction where William W. Hodkinson was sitting flanked on one side by Arthur Friend and on the other by Raymond Pawley. Evidently Crafts expected some response, probably remembering a previous agreement, but he received none, for the three men mentioned sat immovable. Raising his voice to its highest pitch, Crafts now almost screamed out "Mr. Lasker." There was no response, but when Crafts in a most condescending manner advanced a few steps and pointed directly to Mr. Friend the latter arose and stepped in front of the committee. He immediately proclaimed that his name was not "Lasker" but "Friend," and for the rest of the evening the fact was recognized by everybody except Crafts, who persisted in the name of "Lasker." The appearance of Mr. Friend in response to a summons by the chief enemy of the motion picture interests created a profound sensation, and it certainly created considerable consternation among the men who for six nights had assured the committee that the motion picture industry was a unit in its opposition to federal and every other kind of censorship. The surprise which presently depicted itself on the faces of those members of the committee who had been friendly to the motion picture interests amounted to almost stupefaction. For the first time in the history of motion pictures a representative of great and legitimate film interests put himself on record in favor of the principle of federal censorship. For the first time in American history an American citizen appeared before a committee of national lawgivers and asked that a great medium of expression be put under the benevolent despotism of the government. It was a historic occasion but not one calculated to fill the friends of the motion picture industry with hope or pride. This is substantially what Mr. Friend said:

"I represent the Paramount Pictures Corporation, the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company and the Famous Players Film Company, likewise the World Film Corporation, the Equitable Film Corporation and the Metro Pictures Corporation. We believe that the present bill now before you is objectionable and we are opposed to it. We are also opposed, unalterably opposed, to amending the federal criminal statute by extending the legislation against obscene books, etc., to the motion picture. We are in favor of the principle of federal censorship for motion pictures. We believe that the producer who aims at making clean pictures should be protected against the producer who specializes in salacious and immoral pictures. For this reason we believe that the federal commission to regulate and censor motion pictures would be a good thing. If a measure can be drafted embodying the idea of federal censorship in some other form, a measure which will safeguard the legitimate interests of the industry, we will be in favor of it and we will co-operate with the framers of such a bill."

Presto Change! A New Bill.

Curiously enough, upon this demand of Mr. Friend the Rev. Dr. Crafts pulled forth from his portfolio a new bill which he told the committee he had elaborated with the advice and assistance of certain film interests in New York City. The new bill contained some substantial changes. One of them is to the effect that the commission for censoring pictures is to be appointed by the President "with the advice and consent of the Senate." Another provision very loosely drawn says that the censors and their subordinates shall be located wherever their duties require them to be. The salary of the chairman is to be $8,000 in the new bill, while the other commissioners get $7,000 a year each. The entire cost of the commission including salaries and all other expenses shall not exceed $80,000 a year. The next section of the bill is amended by inserting the word "promptly" between the words "shall" and "license" in the following sentence: "that the commission shall license every film submitted to it and intended for entrance into Interstate Commerce." The distinction between children and adults in the same section of the bill is done away with. Another absurd provision which spoke of "amplifications" of a film ordered by the commission is likewise stricken out in the new bill. One entirely new section of the amended bill provides that the commission may issue licenses for scenarios six months in advance, but that these licenses may be cancelled and revoked at any time at the pleasure of the commission. The next section of the old bill providing for a seal is omitted in the new measure, and in the subsequent section the word "certificate" is erased and the word "license" substituted. Sections eight and nine relating to the issuance of seals for duplicates and for the regulation of copyright are omitted in the new bill. Another alteration is to the effect that in its annual report to the United States Commissioner of Education the federal censor commission may recommend certain films especially suitable for children. There are some minor changes which do not in any way touch the principles involved in the bill.

The New Friends of Crafts Fail to Change Situation.

In support of this new bill Dr. Crafts made the assertion that at the present time 90 per cent. of all moving picture scenarios deal with questions of sex.

Those members of the committee favorable to the film interests, especially Mr. Rucker of Illinois, Caleb Powers of Kentucky, and Frederick W. Dallinger of Massachusetts addressed several inquiries to Mr. Friend in the course of his speech from which it very plainly appeared that their opposition to the Crafts measure had not been affected in the least by the sudden appearance of its new friends.

The writer in an interview with the member of the committee most actively opposed to the Crafts idea received the assurance that the opposition in the committee against favorable report would be most vigorous and persistent.

Jewish Clergyman and Educator Oppose Crafts' Idea.

A very full attendance of the committee was present in the caucus room of the House Office Building when the hearings for and against the Crafts bill were resumed on Monday night. The first speaker against the Crafts bill was W. Stephen Bush of the Moving Picture World, who made substantially the following remarks:

It seems to me, Mr. Chairman, that the issue joined in this case of the moving pictures against Federal censorship is very simple. The other side claims that such censorship is necessary, we assert that it is not. Your report in favor of the adoption of the Craft's bill sweepingly and catagorically asserts that motion picture censorship is necessary beyond all question. I believe I am reporting your report substantially, if not literally. Now, it seems to me we have a right to ask upon what evidence this sweeping conclusion is based. So far we have not only received no facts which can be dignified with the name of evidence, but we have not even been furnished with a bill of particulars. The proponent of this bill, the Rev. Mr. Crafts, has so far submitted nothing which resembles anything like evidence. The letter which he read into the report, written by the Superintendent of Schools, of the city of West Virginia, has been dissected by one of the members of this committee, and I shall waste no time on it. Outside of Mr. Craft, there has appeared before this committee, an agent of the Society for the Prevention of Crime, who has not submitted one scintilla of evidence upon which to base any conclusions as to the character of motion pictures. I listened with a good deal of interest and with the closest attention to the statements made by the ladies, who appeared before this committee on Saturday night, and who, in behalf of their various organizations, announced their support of federal censorship of motion pictures. I think all, or nearly all, of them spoke of some very excellent pictures they had seen, and they expressed the hope that by means of a federal censorship all motion pictures might be brought to this same standard of excellence. Now, is it not just possible that these ladies, in their judgment of these pictures, were influenced rather by their tastes than by any ethical considerations? The plea of these ladies was put forth in behalf of the child. One of the speakers, whose obvious sincerity must have impressed your committee, as it certainly impressed me, told us that she had a friend in Washington whose daughter, a girl about eleven years old, had gone to see the motion pictures, and that she saw a Russian play, that this play showed you a prince assaulting a young woman, and how people were taken to Siberia and flouted with knouts. Now, gentlemen, is it not perfectly plain that this is just the description a girl of eleven years would give of Tolstoi's greatest work, "The Resurrection?" I do not know how many of your committee have seen the play or read the story, but I am very sure that every one who has read the story or has seen the play will agree with me when I say that "The Resurrection" is one of the most powerful and the most moving spiritual and moral lessons in the whole range of modern literature covering the period of, say, three generations. Millions of men and, perhaps, more millions of women have been shaken to the very depths of their souls by this play which is altogether uplifting and altogether optimistic, showing in a most convincing way that no human soul is ever beyond redemption, and that vice is equally hideous, whether it is masked by the conventions of high society or whether it lifts its head in the hovel of the peasant, and that virtue and repentence are stronger than any vice or any evil, and that God is able to redeem souls which we, in our human conceit, and in our self-satisfied and smug complacency, would cast forth and destroy. Do you wonder that all this beauty and this tremendous moral lesson went over the head of a girl of eleven years of age? Now I want to know whether Mr. Crafts and the ladies who have been here to condemn motion pictures want us to change such plays as "The Resurrection" and make them suitable for girls of eleven years of age? I, for one, confess that it would be utterly beyond my power to do so, but I am willing for them to try.

The world of the child is not your world and mine, and our world is not the world of the child. I have devoted the last ten years of my life in maintaining the high standards, or the highest possible standards, of taste and ethics in motion pictures. I have made a very careful and earnest study of motion pictures and, especially of its legal status under our scheme of laws. If I were convinced, and I assure you that my mind is entirely open, that censorship were the best method of coping with an occasional bad picture, I would unhesitatingly endorse it. But after I have seen the workings of censorship at close range, both here and abroad, I have come to the conclusion that censorship—that is to say a previous legal restraint, I mean a legal restraint prior to publication, is not the best method, and really has proved a preposterous failure wherever it has been tried.

The people of the States of Ohio, Pennsylvania and Kansas are laughing at the censors; I personally have talked with them and have been furnished with copies of their rules, regulations and standards, and just to show the absurdity of them, I have gone to the trouble of applying these standards to the plays of Shakespeare. Under this test only four Shakespearian plays survived without any changes or elimination.

The rest of the speaker's time was taken up in answering questions propounded by members of the committee.

Mr. Bush was followed by Rabbi Simon. Dr. Simon declared that he had formerly been carried away by what he described as "Movie-Hysteria." He said he had been a determined foe of the motion pictures to which he ascribed all sorts of evil influences. After a study of the subject, however, he concluded that he had been entirely wrong. It was his opinion that this great moving picture had not only grown in importance and popularity, but also in its moral character and in its art and beauty.

"When an institution shows itself capable of such splendid improvement without the need of any legal compulsion why should we interfere with legal enactments. I am a Jew. There was a time when the motion picture screen held the Jews up to ridicule and painted an entirely wrong picture of the Jewish character. We felt and resented this very much. Did we go to law and appeal to the police? We did not. Such a course would have been unmanly and humiliating. Instead we appealed to the manufacturers of pictures directly and placed our point of view before them. They saw the justice of our contention and immediately agreed to abate the evil. An agency which is as responsive to a genuine public command as the motion picture has shown itself to be does not stand in need of regulation by the policeman's club.

Rabbi Simon concluded the argument for the opponents and was followed by Canon Chase, who repeated his well-known arguments in favor of a legally regulated morality, including censorship of motion pictures. The Canon said one remarkable thing and another, that was richly humorous and provoked the audience as well as the committee into spasms of laughter.

"It is," said the venerable ecclesiastic, "a well-known fact that the morality of the theater-going public is much lower than that of the general public. Now I thoroughly disagree with my brother clergyman, Cyrus Townsend Brady, that the state and church have no common interests. On the contrary I believe it is one of the functions of government to bring the low morality of the theater-going public up to the general average of public morality."

"Canon," asked one of the members of the committee, "what about the National Board of Censorship?"

"It's a fake," said the Canon, with placid conviction. "They claim to have 225 censors. I say they only have 120 or 140 at the most."

The Canon went on to assure the committee that they would find good arugments in favor of censorship in his debate on the question with a former president of the General Film Company.

"I am told," the venerable gentleman added with great naivete, "that this debate would eventually take its place alongside the famous Haynes-Webster debate."

Canon Chase Relates a Harrowing Adventure.

In the course of his remarks the Canon intimated that the words of film men could not always be relied on.

"I myself," he proceeded with great earnestness, "have been a victim of their deception. It came about in this way. Some fellow came to me and said: 'Doctor, I want to make a motion picture of you.' I asked him what he wanted it for and he said, 'Oh, just for an animated weekly.' Well, I believed him and I had myself filmed standing right in front of my own church. I went to see all the weeklies but could not see my picture. I had forgotten all about it when one day a parishioner of mine, a nice old lady, met me on the street and said: 'Why, doctor, you appear in a perfectly horrid picture.' I asked her what picture and she said it is called 'The Gunmen of New York.' I have been trying to find the man who played this trick on me." The Canon viewed the film men present with evident suspicion, but they merely joined in the uproarious laughter which followed the recital of the Canon's tale of woe.

The Canon was followed by a youth named John Cooke, who described himself as the editor of the "Civic Bulletin." He assured the committee that he was no speaker. His remarks were earnest and ungrammatical. He mentioned "The Rack" and "Three Weeks" as unfit for publication. He said he had never read the book "Three Weeks," but that he had seen the picture, which made him blush at the very recollection. Howard Clark Barbey, the agent of the Society for the Prevention of Crime, submitted a list of condemnations issued by the Pennsylvania Board of Censors, year ending November 30, 1915. He was followed by Dr. Walter L. Laidlaw, the executive secretary of the Federation of Churches in New York. He said that workers in various churches in New York had found an astonishing diversity in the character and quality of motion pictures.

Distinguished and Disinterested Speakers Oppose the Crafts Abortion.

Tuesday night was consumed to a large extent by reading protests in the form of letters and telegrams into the record. One of these protests came from Samuel Gompers, the President of the American Federation of Labor. Another came from Mrs. Howard L. Gans, the president of the Federation for the Study of Child Welfare. This letter was read by Dr. Orrin G. Cocks, of the National Board of Censorship. In substance the letter declares that parents ought to exercise better control over their children and not try to shift the blame for their neglect and carelessness on the officials of the nation, state or city. Letters were also filed from the Governors of the censorship States, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Kansas, substantially to the effect that each of the states mentioned would continue its own specific brand of censorship irrespective of what the Federal Government might choose to do. The most distinguished speaker against Federal Censorship on Tuesday night was the Very Reverend Thomas Edward Shields, A. M., Ph. D. L.L. D. Dr. Shields is professor of Psychology and Education in the Catholic University, Dean and Assistant Treasurer of the Catholic Sisters' College, President of the Catholic Education Press, and editor of the Catholic Educational Review. This speaker elaborated the thought that public and private conscience, rather than any legislative statute, must be depended on to conserve public morals. Censorship, he said, was un-American and undemocratic, and obsolete. His experience as a teacher of teachers and his observations extending over a quarter of a century had taught him that morality cannot be developed by legislation, but must be fostered by entirely different agencies, of which the church is or ought to be the first, and the most powerful. Frank W. Persons, president of the charity organization, a member of the National Board of Censorship and a social worker of many years experience, next addressed the committee and made many telling points against legalized censorship. He was followed by Alonzo T. Jones, editor of "Religious Liberty," and John P. Bradley, president of the Washington Secular League. Neither of these two speakers has any financial interest in motion pictures, and both of them opposed the Crafts bill on the ground that it involved a violation of the right and freedom of expression. The last speaker of the evening was Mrs. Fulton Brylawski, who briefly reviewed the failures of censorship.

John R. Freuler's Convincing Arguments.

Wednesday night the last hearing was held. It began most auspiciously with an able and exhaustive address by John R. Freuler, the President of the Mutual.

Mr. Freuler spoke as follows:

I do not believe that this nation could exist as the republic it is today without a free press. I contend that the motion picture as a medium of thought transmission is a form of publication and that it is entitled to the liberties of a free press. Existing laws are ample to safeguard the public against irresponsible publishers of books, newspapers, magazines and—motion pictures. Enforcement of the laws against indecency and obscenity is ample assurance of proper regulation of motion pictures. We can submit to no other regulation.

The measure which this committee has before it, however, would impose some impossible conditions on the motion picture industry, aside from the big general question of right and justice. For instance (lines 7, 8 and 9 on page 30), it stipulates that the censorship commission "may license any film, subject to such exisions, amplifications or alterations as the commission may direct or require to be made." "Amplification" of a scene or any part of a picture might easily be impossible. Motion pictures frequently utilize events and accidental scenes impossible of reproduction subsequently.

There is serious conflict in the provisions limiting the cost of the commission to $40,000 a year and the provisions fixing a fee of $1 for examination by the commission of each film of 1,000 feet or less, and 50 cents for each film which is a duplicate of any film which has been licensed. Further the word film is not defined. Some of our film releases measure 500 feet, while we have had one which totals 60,000 feet.

The provisions of section 12 would raise about $500,000 a year, as a tax on an already overburdened industry. There seems to be a very widespread impression that the motion picture industry is wonderfully prosperous, boiling over with profits. That is not true. The public demand for expensive pictures has for the time wiped out profits.

This bill would also create an army of "deputy censors," and that suggests the extreme probability of another federal patronage machine, with unlimited powers for harm. In this connection I recall the game wardens of Wisconsin, as appointed under that remarkable law that loaded the payrolls with useless officials.

The suggestion of censorship is an insult to the millions who daily patronize the motion picture play theaters. Only clean films are profitable. People do not like picture plays that even border on indecency. This fact, and existing law, are ample to protect the public.

We do not ask for license. We are willing to submit to regulation, but only such regulation as that to which other forms of publication are now subjected.

Mr. Freuler was listened to with marked attention and his remarks produced a visible effect on the members of the committee. He was followed by Ex-Congressman Martin W. Littleton, representing David W. Griffith. Mr. Littleton said in substance:

Must we be censored by law-made boards as to what we shall see and hear and read, or shall we leave this to the corrective forces of public opinion, which is the very fire and flame of a democracy? We are a democracy, shot through and through with the force and fervor of public opinion. Our great press, without whose tireless production of the facts and courageous advocacy of public questions, popular government must relapse into the darkness of provincialism and prejudice, has, without a single challenge from the nation, the state or the city, since the foundation of the government, stimulated and preserved a consistent public opinion. It narrates from day to day all of the happenings in human society. It publishes the pictures which tell the story of every feature and phase of human life, social, economic, moral and religious; it comments with the utmost freedom upon every aspect of human activity; it catalogues the accidents, crimes, disasters, shortcomings, failures and heartaches of the human race. It analyzes mercilessly the public questions, social controversies, religious dispute and all of the purpose and motive and passion of mankind. It debates and freely criticises everything which flows out of the life of man and measures. It is the eye, the ear and the tongue of the nation, seeing, hearing and talking of everything under the sun; and yet, where, in all our history, has it been seriously proposed to censure its columns or its pictures; to cut a fine line of cleavage between what was supposed to be moral and immoral in all its multifarious publications? This has been left to the sovereignty of that censorship which resides in the hearths and homes of America, and the decision rendered by that great board has never been appealed from. * * *

What is an immoral picture or film? Who can answer that question? Must that question be answered for one hundred million people by five men whom they do not choose? Must that question, which reaches from the nether sewers of flagrant immorality into the very stars of an ethical firmament, be answered for every man, woman and child in the nation by a group of quixotic and querulous old gentlemen solemnly settling the morals of a nation by presidential appointment? What is immorality in a picture or film? Shall the educated, amusement-loving men and women of America call on Congress to answer this question, and then shall Congress in turn leave it to a body of five men to answer it? What is an immoral film or picture which shall be withheld from the view of the public? If Congress is speaking for the people, will it write into the law an answer to this question, or will it remit us to an appointive board for the answer. Do people demand that Congress shall enact laws prohibiting immoral films or pictures? If so, will Congress obey that demand and write a law setting forth what the people wish prohibited as immoral, or will it answer the demand by telling the people that it has turned over that great question to five appointive and underpaid men? If all this is answered by saying that Congress cannot define what is or what is not an immoral picture and cannot write a law which will fix a standard, then how can we say that five nominees of the President will be blessed with the wisdom or endowed with the genius to strike the line of cleavage between a moral and an immoral film or picture?

How One "Reformer" Was Silenced.

For a brief moment Fred J. Herrington spoke a second time on the workings of censorship in Ohio and Pennsylvania. Howard Clark Barber, the man from the Society for the Prevention of Crime, was asked here by Congressman Rucker, a member of the committee, whether he believed that the saloons were responsible for much crime. Barber replied, "Yes, for a large part of all crimes."

"Well," continued Mr. Rucker, "you admit that the motion pictures are driving the saloons out of business?"

"That's the claim," replied Barber, in a non-committal way.

"It's more than a claim," Mr. Rucker went back at him, "it is a proven fact. Now if you are honestly in favor of the prevention of crime, why do you want this censorship which will hamper the motion pictures?" Thereupon Brother Barber said no more.

After this interlude occurred the astonishing events which are fully described in the opening paragraphs of this article.

Speculation as to the fate of the Crafts bill is idle as Congress is going to be in session for many months. There will be an early action on the bill by the committee and will in all probability be favorable. It will probably reach the floor of the House. I am not prophet enough to foretell what will happen to it there.

The Big Meeting at Albany

March 1st and 2nd Ought to See You There If You Have Your Business in This State.

AT the hearing on the Crafts bill in Washington the Rev. Canon William Sheafe Chase of Brooklyn volunteered the information that a bill will shortly be introduced to force censorship of motion pictures upon the people of New York. This fact ought to be reason enough for every New York City and State exhibitor to attend the big meeting to be held at the Ten Eyck Hotel at Albany on March 1 and 2. There are any number of other good reasons. Exhibitors must stand together to maintain their rights.

Read the advertisement in this week's issue of The Moving Picture World, urging all exhibitors in the State of New York to be in Albany on March 1 and 2. There is the skeleton of events, but the scope of the meeting will be much bigger than the "ad" would show. It's a general get-together affair, which is bound to result in good. Don't say "let George do it." Come yourself, it makes no difference whether your theater is small or big.

The exhibitors in the State want to get together to get better treatment from exchanges and producers; that was the idea advanced by the men who agreed to call this big meeting at Albany. Censorship spoils your picture, you cannot attract the people with a program consisting of scenic and industrial pictures. National President Herrington will be there and Sam Trigger will be there and there will be co-operation and the fullest freedom of discussion. Don't forget the time, March 1 and 2, and the place, Ten Eyck Hotel, Albany.

Advertising Men Meet

Plan to Standardize All General Film Publicity Discussed at Headquarters.

THAT all advertising material furnished to the exhibitors concerning releases distributed by the General Film Company may meet his requirements as exactly as possible, the advertising managers of the manufacturers releasing through the General met on Monday, January 24, with President George Kleine at the company's executive office, 200 Fifth avenue, New York. Prior to this meeting the advertising men had gathered at first hand considerable direct information from the exhibitors. Consequently, they were in a position to exchange much valuable information.

It was unanimously decided at the meeting that regular monthly gatherings would take place at which there would be full and frank discussion as to what the exhibitors of the country as a whole, or in particular sections, desired in their advertising aids.

In addition to President George Kleine those present were: H. H. Bruenner, Biograph; L. C. McChesney, Edison; Victor Eubank, Essanay; William Wright, Kalem; Omer F. Dowd, Kleine; Norman Jefferies and George Spink, Lubin; C. J. Harris, Melies; William Lord Wright, Selig; S. M. Spedon, Vitagraph, and B. W. Babcock, General Film.

President to Address Trade Board

Committee of Arrangements Making Every Effort to Extend Fitting Reception to Chief Executive.

THE officers and committees of the Motion Picture Board of Trade of America have completed tentative arrangements for the board's first annual dinner, Thursday, January 27, at which President Woodrow Wilson will be a guest and the principal speaker. The latest announcement is that the President's bride, formerly Mrs. Norman Galt, will honor the affair by her presence, occupying a balcony box with a party of friends from Washington and New York. This will be the initial visit of Mrs. Wilson to New York as the first lady of the land, and that fact alone will make the dinner one of unique interest, especially in view of the fact that it has been decided to invite ladies to occupy seats at the tables on the floor.

The great ballroom of the Hotel Biltmore, seating 850 people, will be entirely filled, the tables being occupied by from six to ten persons. The dinner itself will not vary greatly from the annual affairs to which New York is accustomed, such as Chamber of Commerce dinners and those of the other large commercial and civic organizations. The positive statement is made that there will be no "stunts" or other special features. The speeches will be the thing. The affair will mark the full recognition of the motion picture industry as one of the most substantial in the country from the standpoint of capital invested and the character of the men engaged in it.

"The future is veiled to a certain extent, of course," said J. W. Binder, executive secretary of the board, "but the recent past has shown what can be done in the way of upbuilding and broadening. The public realizes that the motion picture is one of the three or four great forces in the great moral, intellectual and social life of America. The visit of President and Mrs. Wilson as our guests is auspicious and significant."

Commodore J. Stuart Blackton will be the toastmaster. Other than the President and Mr. Blackton, the speakers chosen are Supreme Court Justice Samuel Seabury, the Rev. Cyrus Townsend Brady, Senator Henry A. Ashurst of Arizona, Collector of the Port of New York Dudley Field Malone, Martin W. Littleton, Dr. Stephen S. Wise, and, it is expected, Thomas A. Edison and Governor Martin G. Brumbaugh of Pennsylvania. Governor Whitman and Mayor Mitchel are on the guest list and others who have been asked to occupy seats at the guest table are Cardinal Farley, William F. McCombs, Admiral Robert E. Peary, Admiral Charles Sigsbee, Major General Leonard Wood, George Eastman, Melville E. Stone, Governor Arthur Capper of Kansas, Governor Frank B. Willis of Ohio, David Bispham, Robert J. Collier, Roy Howard, Edwin Markham, Hudson Maxim, Robert Adamson and George H. Bell.

The committees in immediate charge of the affair are made up as follows: Invitation, J. Stuart Blackton, J. E. Brulatour, William A. Johnston and J. W. Binder. Arrangements, Walter W. Irwin, John R. Freuler, J. A. McKinney, Watterson R. Rothacker, Paul Gulick and J. W. Binder.

Secretary Tumulty and Dr. Cary Grayson will be in the presidential party and will have seats near Mr. Wilson. Secretary Tumulty long has been a friend of the motion picture and is an appreciative patron of the picture theaters in Washington. According to officers of the board there was never any question of the wives and other feminine members of the motion picture men and their guests attending the affair. The dinner will start at 7.30 o'clock.

DISPUTE OVER SUNDAY SHOWS.

The question of Sunday opening came to an issue in Freeport, L. I., recently, when members of the churches held a meeting to protest against the running of shows at the American, one of the two important houses in the town. It is said that in fighting the opposition, the management of the American has the hearty co-operation of those who control the Plaza. On this point there will be no rivalry.

For many months the motion picture men of Freeport have been losing legitimate Sunday business because their houses remained closed and possible patrons went to Lynnbrook, Rockville Center, or other neighboring towns where no objection has been raised to Sunday performances.

On Jan. 2 a program was offered at the American to satisfactory patronage, and on the two following Sundays business showed an increase. Meanwhile those opposed to the innovation had mustered their forces, and the up-shot of the indignation meeting was an announcement that church members would boycott the photoplay houses until Sunday shows had been abolished. The theater proprietors express an equally firm determination to insist upon their rights and at last reports a compromise had not been effected.

Held for Grand Jury

Arthur Bard and David Keene Held for the Federal Grand Jury on Fraud Charge.

DAVID KEENE, president and treasurer of the Associated Film Sales Corporation, a concern he is charged with forming in this city in connection with Arthur Bard, formerly of San Francisco, has been held to the United States Grand Jury in $7,500 by Commissioner Houghton. He is charged with using the mails in a conspiracy to defraud in the sale of moving picture films. Bard, who ranked as vice-president of the concern, was held on a similar charge a few days before Keene's arrest.

The complaint, according to Assistant District Attorney Samuel Hershenstein, charges that Bard was sent on here from San Francisco by the Associated Film Manufacturers of the coast city, as an agent. He was to open offices in New York as the eastern headquarters of the manufacturers' association. He arrived in due time and did establish offices. He met Keene and, so the charge alleges, instead of selling films and accounting to his home house, formed the sales corporation, sold films by using the mails and also was in the market to sell stock of his corporation. It is alleged that all the western manufacturers got for a large number of valuable films intrusted to Bard was a number of shares of stock in the sales company.

Just how much loss was entailed or is claimed by the San Francisco house is not set forth in the moving papers. The matter will be laid before the Grand Jury at once and an indictment is expected during this term of court.

Estelle Mardo, Mirror Star

ESTELLE MARDO, a one-time member of the Biograph Company and since then with the Vitagraph Company of America, by which company she was featured with Maurice Costello, has been engaged by Captain Harry Lambart, of the Mirror Films, Inc., as leading woman for one of the companies which that organization will have working at the Glendale studio. Miss Mardo first got a part of any prominence with Lawrence Marston, who gave her the role of Elinore in "The Road to Yesterday." After that she played many important parts and went into stock. She then went with D. W. Griffith and played opposite to Henry B. Walthall in "The Floor Above" for the Mutual. She played opposite to King Baggot at the Imp studio and went south later to appear in "The Littlest Rebel" with E. K. Lincoln. She then went to the Vitagraph and later did several parts in pictures for the World Film Corporation.

Estelle Mardo.

Harry Hyde, a former director for the Biograph, began his first picture for the Mirror Films, Inc., when he started in on what the author of the scenario, Adrian Johnson, called an impressionistic detective story. Captain Harry Lambart, chief producer for the Mirror Company, assigned the players to Mr. Hyde last week. The picture will be brought out featuring Estelle Mardo and Harry Carvill, a well-known veteran of the stage, who has appeared in many London and New York successes.

Mr. Hyde has come to the Mirror Films as director after a successful career in the making of motion pictures largely in the service of the Biograph Company, where he made pictures for some years. His first picture for the Mirror is of the sort with which he has had success in the past.

THE STRAND SHOWS MANY PATHE PICTURES.

Pathe is contributing largely to the program of the "Strand," New York's million dollar film palace. Last week a three-reel subject, "The Gold Cobra," a colored scenic "Old Unchanging Holland," an educational "Quaint Dances of Japan," The Pathe News and "Monkey Shines," a "Heinie and Louie" comedy, all Pathe pictures, were shown.

Berst Returns to Pathe

Becomes Vice-President and General Manager, the Position He Formerly Held—Was First Pathe Representative in America.

ONE of the week's big surprises was the definite announcement of the return of J. A. Berst to the Pathe Company. This move on the part of Mr. Berst was predicted in the Moving Picture World of last week, but due to the fact that Mr. Berst had not officially concluded his connection with the General Film Company the change could not be announced. Since then everything has been cleared up and the statement is now given out by the Pathe Exchange, Inc., that Mr. Berst has returned to his first love and is occupying the same position from which he resigned three years ago.

It will be interesting to readers of the Moving Picture World to recall the career of Mr. Berst at this time. His entree into business life was as an employe of Pathe Freres in Paris in 1896, when he began at the bottom and learned the motion picture business in all its branches. In 1904 he was sent by Charles Pathe to the United States to develop the market for Pathe films here. The stock of films he brought with him was small and some of them were as short as fifteen feet. Mr. Berst rented offices on Twenty-third street, New York, and marketed the films himself at prices that seem very low nowadays. His infant business prospered, so much so that he engaged a cashier and office boy. Each year saw such increases that in 1908 it was decided to install a factory equipment at Bound Brook, N. J., where the main Pathe American factory has ever since been located.

The year following the big studio in Jersey City was built and Louis J. Gasnier, also for many years identified with Pathe interests, came over from France to be chief studio director. At this time was begun the production of Pathe American dramas and comedies, and the stock company formed, which later was to contain such sterling players as Pearl White, Henry Walthall, Gwendoline Pates, Paul Panzer, Crane Wilbur, Octavia Handworth, Lillian Wiggins, the late Joseph Graybill, Charles Arling, Francis Carlyle, Eleanor Woodruff and Irving Cummings.

The all around experience which Mr. Berst had received in the Pathe factory and office in France united with his selling experience in this country, stood him in good stead and took concrete form in the phenomenal growth of the business. In telling of those early days Mr. Berst mentions the fact that the first long Pathe picture in any way comparable to the modern features was the four-part "Passion Play" which was brought over from France in 1906.

In December of 1913, Mr. Berst resigned and became treasurer of the General Film Company. Early in 1915 he was proffered and accepted the position of vice-president and general manager of the Selig Company. Several months ago he resigned to accept the presidency of the General Film Company, which office he now resigns to go back with Pathe.

Mr. Berst knows the film business as do few men. With all its branches of manufacturing, producing and marketing he is thoroughly familiar. He has made a most enviable record as an executive and business builder, and the news that he again is with the organization which he so materially aided in bringing to its present importance, will interest the entire film world.

L. J. Gasnier, whom he succeeds, will very likely become the Pathe director of production, that end of the business which has always been the nearest to his heart. As a judge of pictures and as an expert in the knowledge of those qualities that every good picture must have and how those qualities may be attained, he is probably unequaled. He has been for the interests of Pathe first, last and all the time, and is generally recognized in the Pathe organization as a positive genius.

WILLIAM F. HADDOCK DIRECTING "I ACCUSE."

A new Mutual Masterpicture, "I Accuse," is just being started at the Gaumont winter quarters at Jacksonville, Fla., under the direction of William F. Haddock. It was written by Miss Marjorie Howe, and the picture version prepared by Gaumont's scenario editor, George D. Proctor. Alexander Gaden, seconded by Miss Gertrude Robinson, has the leading role. It will be released February 24. Supporting the Gaumont stars in "I Accuse" are W. J. Butler, Henry W. Pemberton and John Reinhard. A number of scenes have already been filmed.

Universal Buying High-Class Scripts

Eastern Players to Be Featured in Adaptations of Well-Known Authors—Otto to Direct Baggot.

ALL of the Universal stars under contract to appear in Red Feather productions will be given proper vehicles in which to exert their entire energy and versatility. It is declared the Universal has lost no players except those it had decided to drop. It only remains for the stars to be fitted with the proper vehicles to turn out the best work in their career, and this part has been left entirely to H. J. Shepard, head of the scenario department. He has been busy scouring the market for the most adaptable and highest class material that could be filmed.

The subject of procuring the rights to film the greatest works of the greatest authors was thoroughly discussed at the annual meeting of the Universal last December, and as a result it was decided to let nothing stand in the way of obtaining for release on both the regular Universal program and the Red Feather Productions photoplays that would stand alone. As the opening gun in the campaign Paul Leiester Ford's "The Honorable Peter Sterling," which was the best of the best sellers of its time, was procured as a vehicle for King Baggot, who will be directed by Henry Otto, who until recently had been employed at Universal City. The Universal can expect good work from this team, as they are both chums. The novel will be made into a five-reel Red Feather production.

Ben Wilson will begin work at once on a detective series by Eustace Hale Ball called "The Voice on the Wire." This will be in five episodes of two reels each, each episode a separate and distinct story, but each one being experiences of the voice on the wire. Mr. Wilson will have the role of the detective. A feature of the detective serial is its syndication through the Hearst chain of papers.

Mary Fuller will be provided with two excellent features, one by Wallace Irwin, from his book, "Thrown to the Lions." It will be a five-reel Red Feather feature, and will afford many excellent opportunities for Miss Fuller to show her versatility. Another adaptation which will be done by Miss Fuller will be "The Huntress," from the pen of G. Vera Tyler, granddaughter of President John Tyler.

Reginald Wright Kaufman's novel, "The Ivy and the Oak," being a new vampire story, new in stagecraft as well as screencraft, but old to the world, will be the vehicle of some prominent star. Harry Benham will put on under the direction of John Harvey a great two-reel comedy, "Held for Damages," while King Baggot will follow his "Peter Sterling" with Jacques Futrelle's "Diamond Master." Other works which have been bought for release during the course of the next few months include "The Social Buccaneer," and "Black Friday," by Frederick Isham; "The Texas Ranger," by McLeon Raine, and "The First Lady of the Land," by Acton Davies and Charles Nirdlinger.

The Universal has eliminated its staff of scenario writers and substituted in its stead continuity writers, whose chief duties it will be to adapt stories, books and ideas which have been and are being constantly purchased for the use of the company.

SPINGLER NOW WITH OCEAN FILM CORP.

"Driftwood," picturized from Owen Davis's play by Anthony Kelly, will soon be completed under the direction of Marshall Farnum. The star of the feature is Vera Michelena of comic opera fame, and her leading man is Harry Spingler.

Prior to his present engagement, Mr. Spingler appeared in several of the Universal features starring King Baggot. Mr. Spingler's best work in the cinema field was revealed during his stay of seven months with the Fox Film Corporation, during which time he enacted the juvenile roles in "The Bondman," "From the Valley of the Missing," "The Blunderer," "Samson," "The Thief," "A Gilded Fool" and "The Idler."

K. & E. ENJOINED IN "BEN HUR" SUIT.

An injunction has been granted to Harper Brothers and Henry L. Wallace as owners of the rights to the late General Lew Wallace in the publication "Ben Hur," preventing the theatrical firm of Klaw & Erlanger from producing a motion picture version of that famous book. The injunction prevents K. & E. from producing the picture until the question as to whether the dramatic rights purchased by them some years ago covers the rights to produce a picture. This contention is denied by the plaintiffs. The case was heard by Judge Mayer in the Federal Court.

Kleine, General Film President

Other Changes in Board of Officers—Berst's Plans Will Be Carried Out—Settlement Made With Fox.

AS ANNOUNCED in the Moving Picture World of January 22, J. A. Berst declined re-election to the presidency of the General Film Company and George Kleine was chosen in his stead. George K. Spoor was elected vice-president; Frank J. Marion secretary and Paul Melies treasurer. An executive committee was chosen, consisting of Mr. Kleine, Mr. Marion and A. E. Smith, to conduct the affairs of the company.

Mr. Berst, it is now definitely stated, retired from the General Film to accept a particularly advantageous offer from Charles Pathe, president of the Pathe Exchange, Inc. Mr. Berst also resigned from the directorate of the General Film, to which he was elected at last Tuesday's meeting.

In confirmation of the foregoing comes the following formal statement from the General Film Company:

The usual annual election of the General Film Company took place Wednesday, January 19, and, as is customary, followed the annual stockholders meeting. New officers were elected as follows: George Kleine, president; George K. Spoor, vice-president; Frank J. Marion, secretary; Paul G. Melies, treasurer.

Mr. Kleine is one of the best known and most successful film manufacturers in the industry. He is one of the group of men who has made the motion picture business what it is today. He succeeds J. A. Berst, who resigned to return to Pathe Freres as vice-president and general manager.

George K. Spoor, now vice-president, is president of the Essanay Manufacturing Company and represents that organization upon the board of directors of the General Film Company.

Frank J. Marion, who was formerly vice-president, and who is now secretary, is president of the Kalem Company, another of the group of manufacturers who distribute their products through the General Film Company. As in the past, Mr. Marion represents the Kalem Company as a director of the General Film Company.

The new treasurer of the General Film Company is Paul G. Melies, who is president of the Melies Manufacturing Company.

The executive committee, it is announced through the officers of the company, 200 Fifth avenue, will consist of President Kleine, Frank J. Marion and Albert E. Smith. Mr. Smith, it will be remembered, is treasurer of the Vitagraph Company of America.

At the directors meeting which preceded the election of officers, but two changes in the directorate were made. P. L. Waters of the Biograph succeeds J. J. Kennedy, of the same organization; and Col. W. N. Selig, president of the Selig-Polyscope Company, becomes a director.

The complete board and the manufacturing organization which each diretcor represents is as follows: George Kleine, Kleine; Frank J. Marion, Kalem; Paul G. Melies, Melies; W. N. Selig, Selig; Ferdinand Singhi, Lubin; Albert E. Smith, Vitagraph; George K. Spoor, Essanay; P. L. Waters, Biograph; C. H. Wilson, Edison.

The election was the annual occasion following the directors' meeting. It is stated authoritatively that there will be no changes in the policies of the General Film Company.

General Film Buys Fox Exchanges.

Closely following the announcement of the election of officers of the General Film Company came the news that a settlement of the controversy between the William Fox exchange interests known as the Greater New York Film Rental Company and the General Film Company and its allied producers. On this subject the following formal statement was issued by the General Film:

The William Fox interests sold this week the Greater New York Film Rental Company to the General Film Company, because of Mr. Fox's decision to abandon altogether the supplying of regular service to exhibitors, and to devote himself entirely to his feature business. Mr. Fox takes this action because of the increasing demands upon his energies in connection with the Fox features.

It happened that shortly after Mr. Fox had decided to handle features alone, the General Film Company was rearranging some of its distribution methods with a view to securing greater co-operation for the benefit of the exhibitor. Consequently, Mr. Fox's representatives entered into negotiations with the General Film Company, the successful conclusion of which is now announced.

The Greater New York Film Rental Company has offices in Atlanta, Baltimore, Cleveland, Newark, New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Scranton and Syracuse. These offices will be combined with the branches of the General Film Company. The purchase means that exhibitors now have greater opportunities of having their needs supplied promptly.

As marking Mr. Fox's entire withdrawal from the distributing of regular service, a further contract between the General Film Company and Mr. Fox may be instanced. Under the contract, which runs for two years, the General Film Company will supply service to all of the Fox circuit theaters. The contract covers some of the best-known and most successful theaters in the city, such as the Academy of Music, Fourteenth street and Irving place, and the City theater in Fourteenth street. In all, there are sixteen of the leading theaters of New York, Newark, Springfield, Mass., and New Britain, Conn.

Mr. Fox is known as one of the most astute and farseeing men in the film industry. He has always exercised the most careful supervision of the programs of his houses of entertainment. Officers of the General Film Company are glad to have their own judgment of the regular service confirmed by so exacting a film authority as Mr. Fox. They regard Mr. Fox's action as an effective indorsement of the high qualities of the program marketed by their organization.

While nothing is mentioned in the General Film statement regarding the suits brought against the General Film and others by Mr. Fox, it was definitely stated by the representatives of Mr. Fox that all actions at law had been discontinued as part of the agreement and that the slate was clean. Neither party to the agreement would mention the price paid Mr. Fox for his exchange interests, but it is learned that the amount was approximately $300,000.

Ambrosio Sails

Concludes Negotiations with Rita Jolivet for Pictures—Author's Film Co. to Represent Him in America.

ANONIMA AMBROSIO, the well-known continental film producer, before sailing for Italy on the "Nieu Amsterdam" on Wednesday last, announced that he had consummated arrangements by which the two multiple-reel features in which Miss Rita Jolivet acted the title roles, will be released in America immediately.

International interest has centered around Miss Rita Jolivet, owing no doubt to the association of her name with the sinking of the "Lusitania," and the fact that she is the medium through which the last message of the late Charles Frohman was conveyed to the world, when he said a moment before the great ship sank, "Why fear death? It is the most beautiful adventure in life."

During her sojourn on the continent, Mr. Ambrosio was quick to recognize the sterling ability of this little lady, and immediately engaged her to portray the title roles in his six-reel production, "Zwany," and "The Hand of Fatma," a four-reel drama. Judging from the reports of the privileged few who were present at a preshowing of "The Hand of Fatma," devotees of the high-class picture theaters have a rare treat in store for them.

Preliminary work is now being done to the end of making an announcement to exhibitors of a list of features—some even gorgeous spectacles—which will prove genuine headliners on any first-class program.

It is Mr. Ambrosio's intention, as announced recently, to specialize on productions for the American market. During his four weeks' stay here he has made an exhaustive study of existing conditions, and he returns fully confident that he has correctly diagnosed the situation insofar as what the American audiences are clamoring for. Henceforth he will make pictures, the acting of which will be typically American. One prominent Broadway star has already been engaged to pose for two features, which are to be commenced immediately. Still more than this, he has taken one of the best-known directors from our midst, who will act in an advisory capacity so that all mannerisms and gesticulations which are foreign to the American mind will be eliminated.

Mr. Ambrosio was enthusiastic regarding the contract which he had executed with the Authors Film Co., Inc., of 1432 Broadway, New York City. By the terms of this agreement the Authors Film Co., Inc., will act as sole and exclusive agent and distributor for the entire output of the Ambrosio studios in the continent of North America.

A CRITIC COMPLAINS OF KEYSTONES.

Editor Moving Picture World:

Having always been an admirer of Keystone comedies, I have watched with great interest the releases they have put out on the Triangle program. Together with innumerable other individuals, I expected wonderful things from the new Triangle-Keystone, and it is a tribute I feel that is due Mack Sennett, as master producer, to say that with the exception of a very few their pictures have more than fulfilled my highest expectations.

There are but four exceptions. The Eddie Foy picture, the Hale Hamilton picture, "The Game Old Knight" and "The Hunt." While they are very laughable in places, I consider they lack the distinctive touch and the decidedly Keystone twist that have so immortalized the name of Keystone.

After seeing any of these four pictures just enumerated, one feels that while he has seen a good comedy, he has just missed seeing a real Keystone.

Although not an expert in the matter of production, the conclusion I have drawn is that the subdirectors responsible for these pictures have not yet profited to the fullest extent from the wonderful tuition offered by that peer of comedy directors—Mack Sennett.

Aside from the pictures mentioned, however, I must express my delight with the Keystone productions the Triangle has offered on its program.

AN INTERESTED CRITIC.

Government Enjoins Patents Company

Decree Entered Before Judge Dickinson Prohibits It from Continuing Monopoly Declared Illegal—Defendants Have Until February 24 to File Appeal.

ANOTHER move was made in the suit of the government against the Motion Picture Patents Company, the General Film Company and others on January 24 in the United States Court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania. Edwin P. Grosvenor, the solicitor for the government, presented to Judge Oliver B. Dickinson a decree for signature and settlement.

It will be noted that in the course of the decision it is declared the defendants are engaged in a combination and conspiracy in restraint of trade in violation of the law of July 2, 1890. The specific acts which the court sets forth as constituting an illegality are the several agreements enumerated in the petition for the assignment of patents to the Motion Picture Patents Company; the contracts, licenses and agreements enumerated in the petition—the license agreements existing between the Patents Company and the licensees, the license agreements between the company and the exchanges, the licenses from the company to exhibitors, the license agreements between the company and manufacturers of exhibiting machines, the license agreements between the company and the General Film Company, the agreements between the General and the Patents Company, and all other license agreements referred to in the petition.

While it is set forth that the defendants and their representatives are enjoined from continuing the combination complained of, it is distinctly set forth that nothing contained in the decree shall be construed as preventing owners of patents relating to the motion picture art and named in the pleadings from granting lawful licenses under lawful conditions to any of the defendants or to others or from collecting royalties in the future from licensees. The decree also states if an appeal be taken without delay—and the defendants are given until February 24 in which to make it—such action will operate as a stay of the decree pending the determination of the appeal.

The decision is as follows:

In the District Court of the United States for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania.

The United States of America, Petitioner, against Motion Picture Patents Company, General Film Company, Biograph Company, Thomas A. Edison (Inc.), Essanay Film Manufacturing Company, the Kalem Company (Inc.), George Kleine, Lubin Manufacturing Company, Melies Manufacturing Company, Pathe Freres, the Selig Polyscope Company, the Vitagraph Company of America, Armat Moving Picture Company, Frank L. Dyer, Henry N. Marvin, J. J. Kennedy, William Pelzer, Samuel Long, J. A. Berst, Siegmund Lubin, Gaston Melies, Albert E. Smith, George K. Spoor and W. N. Selig, Defendants.

Please take notice that the undersigned will present the within proposed decree to the Honorable Oliver B. Dickinson, at his Chambers in the Post Office Building, in the City of Philadelphia, State of Pennsylvania, on the 24th day of January, 1916, at 11 a. m. for signature and settlement.

Edwin P. Grosvenor,
Solicitor for Petitioner, Office and Post Office Address, 40 Wall street, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York.

To Charles F. Kingsley, Esq., 74 Broadway, New York City. [Here follow other names of attorneys for defendants.]

Before Oliver B. Dickinson, United States District Judge.

Decree.—This cause came on for final hearing upon the pleadings and all the evidence and was argued on behalf of the petitioner by Edwin P. Grosvenor, special assistant to the Attorney General, and on behalf of the defendants by Charles F. Kingsley, Melville Church and Reuben O. Moon, and thereafter, upon consideration thereof, the Court announced and caused to be filed, on October 1, 1915, its written opinion therein.

Whereupon the Court adjudged, ordered and decreed as follows:

First—That the petition be and is hereby dismissed as to the defendant, Melies Manufacturing Company.

Second—The death of Samuel Long occurred after the final hearing and there has been no revivor.

Third—That the defendants (other than the Melies Manufacturing Company, against whom the petition is dismissed) and each of them, have attempted to monopolize and have monopolized and have combined and conspired, among themselves and with each other, to monopolize a part of the trade or commerce among the several States, consisting of the trade in films, cameras and projecting machines and parts thereof, in violation of the Act of Congress, approved July 2, 1890, entitled "An Act to protect trade and commerce against unlawful restraints and monopolies."

Fourth—That the defendants (other than the said Melies Manufacturing Company) and each of them have entered into and are engaged in a combination and conspiracy in restraint of trade and commerce among the several states in films, cameras and projecting machines and parts thereof in violation of the Act of Congress approved July 2, 1890, entitled "An act to protect trade and commerce against unlawful restraints and monopolies."

Fifth—That the several agreements enumerated in the petition for the assignment of patents to the Motion Picture Patents Company, namely, Petitioner's Exhibits 2, 3, 4, and 5; the contracts, licenses and agreements enumerated in the petition, to wit, the license agreements entered into between the Motion Picture Patents Company and the Patents Company licensees, to wit, the Biograph Company, Thomas A. Edison, Inc., Essanay Film Manufacturing Company, Kalem Company, George Kleine, Lubin Manufacturing Company, Pathe Freres, Selig Polyscope Company, Vitagraph Company of America and Gaston and George Melies, of which Exhibit 3, annexed to the Petition, is a copy; the license agreements between the Patents Company and the rental exchanges, of which Exhibit 4, annexed to the Petition, is a copy; the licenses from the Patents Company to the exhibitors, of which Petitioner's Exhibit 4 is typical; the license agreements between the Patents Company and manufacturers of exhibiting machines, of which Exhibit 5, annexed to the petition, is a copy; the license agreements between the Patents Company and the General Film Company, of which Exhibit 7, annexed to the petition, is a copy; the agreements between the General Film Company and the said Patents Company licensees, to wit, the Biograph Company, Thomas A. Edison, Inc., Essanay Film Manufacturing Company, Kalem Company, George Kleine, Lubin Manufacturing Company, Pathe Freres, Selig Polyscope Company and Vitagraph Company of America, and Gaston and George Melies, of which Exhibit 8, annexed to the petition, is a copy; and all other license agreements referred to and described in the petition, the answers, or in the evidence superseding or succeeding the above enumerated license agreements and contracts, including among others defendants' exhibits 47, 48 and 50; and all licenses under said patents so assigned to the Patents Company, and granted by it, have been, were and are the means adopted and used by the defendants in order to carry into effect the objects and purposes of said unlawful combination and conspiracy in restraint of said interstate trade and commerce in films, cameras and projecting machines and parts thereof in violation of said Act of Congress and that the said contracts, licenses and agreements are therefore hereby declared illegal and the defendants, and all and each of them and their officers, agents, servants and employees are enjoined and prohibited from doing anything in furtherance of said agreements and from enforcing in any manner said agreements or any of the terms thereof; except that in so far as any defendant may deem himself or itself entitled to a money claim against any other defendant or defendants on account of past transactions under said agreements, contracts or licenses, the same may be prosecuted, defended, appealed and adjudicated in any and all courts.

Sixth—That the said contract, agreements and licenses enumerated in the petition and the combination therein described was a conspiracy in restraint of trade and commerce among the several states and were and are illegal.

Seventh—That the said defendants, their officers, agents, servants and employees, are enjoined and prohibited from continuing their said combination, conspiracy and monopoly and attempt to monopolize interstate commerce in said articles by means of the said unlawful contracts or license agreements or by any other means similar thereto.

Eighth—Nothing in this decree contained shall be construed to prevent whoever may be the owner or owners of the patents relating to the motion picture art named in the pleadings and evidence herein from granting lawful licenses under lawful conditions to any of the defendants or to others, nor to prevent the defendants or others from taking lawful licenses from the owners of said patents. Nothing herein contained shall be construed to prohibit whoever may be the owner of the said patent or patents from collecting royalties in the future from licenses.

Ninth—That the said defendants, their officers, directors, agents, servants and employees, are enjoined and prohibited from resuming, engaging in, continuing or carrying into further effect the combination and conspiracy, the monopoly and attempt to monopolize adjudged illegal hereby and from engaging in or entering into any like combination or conspiracy or monopoly or attempt to monopolize the effect of which will be to restrain commerce in said articles among the several States of the United States or in the territories of the United States by making any express or implied agreement or arrangement, together or one with another, like that adjudged illegal herein relative to the control or management of the business of the said defendants in films, cameras, projecting machines and other accessories of the motion picture business, the effect of which will be to prevent each and any of them from carrying on interstate trade and commerce in said articles in competition with the others.

Tenth.—That judgment for its lawful costs is hereby given in favor of the petitioner and against the defendants except Samuel Long, deceased, and the Melies Manufacturing Company as to whom the petition is dismissed.

Eleventh—Should an appeal be taken herein without delay, such appeal shall operate as a stay of this decree during the pendency of such appeal.

Twelfth.—It is further ordered that this decree be entered this 24th day of January, 1916, but shall not become operative until the 24th day of February, 1916, on which day the parties or any of them may appear at Room 303, Post Office Building, Philadelphia, and pray an appeal in open court.

By the Court:

DICKINSON,
U. S. District Judge.

W. Eugene Moore, Alfred Moser, Leo Wirth and Harris Gordon at Thanhouser's Jacksonville Studio.

The Motion Picture Exhibitor

FIGHTING LEGISLATION IN MASSACHUSETTS.

Strong Opposition Against Federal Censorship Bill—Many Measures Offered in Bay State Legislature.

By William M. Flynn.

A STATE wide campaign is about to be inaugurated by the members of the Moving Picture Exhibitors' League of Massachusetts, Inc., to secure the consensus of public opinion toward the proposed Federal censorship law now boiling in the Congressional pot at Washington. The campaign will be more one of education than anything else for the exhibitors plan to show their patrons just what hardships the new law would force upon the moving picture industry.

According to the present arrangement which was worked out by the executive committee in the office of Grenville S. MacFarland every exhibitor in Massachusetts will be asked to throw upon his screen at every performance a statement to be adopted by the league outlining the purpose of the new law, the attitude of the Massachusetts exhibitors toward it, and the method agreed upon to try and forestall its passage by Congress.

Printed slips will be given to patrons at all performances or exhibitions in moving picture houses in Massachusetts, which the patrons will be asked to sign. The slips will register the disapproval of the persons signing them and voice their sentiments in opposition to the proposed new Federal censorship law. The various theaters of Massachusetts will be divided up into districts similar to the present congressional districts and all the signed slips collected in any theater will be bundled together and forwarded to the Congressman representing that district in Washington with a request that he not only vote against the bill but do his utmost to defeat it.

In this manner the exhibitors hope to arouse tremendous public sentiment in opposition to the bill and to impress upon the lawmakers at Washington that the people of Massachusetts are satisfied with the existing censorship regulations in this state and that they will take to heart any attempt upon the part of those in Washington to interfere with one of their chief forms of entertainment. It is highly probable that this campaign will also be conducted in the other states in New England and may also be extended to the other states of the Union.

The exhibitors of Massachusetts have not been slow to realize that any Congressman is going to think twice and think seriously before voting in favor of any bill if he receives a petition, signed by thousands of voters in his district, to vote against it.

A campaign similar to this one was conducted in Massachusetts last year when all sorts of censorship bills were before the Massachusetts Legislature. The people were with the exhibitors from the outset. They were not in sympathy with any of the bills and the members of the legislature were not allowed to forget that fact with the result that all of the bills were killed outright.

In soliciting the support of the public the exhibitors have made no mistake. They have always been square with the people of Massachusetts and the people of Massachusetts appreciate it and have responded by supporting financially and morally the exhibitors' efforts to better conditions in this state. For that reason the exhibitors are looking forward to as great success in the coming national campaign as they secured in the last one held in this state.

Proposed State Legislation.

While several bills affecting the various branches of the moving picture industry have been cast into the legislative forum at the State House this year no censorship measures have made their appearance, much to the gratification of the exhibitors. The time set for filing petitions for legislation is passed and any new measures that appear for introduction in either the House of Representatives or the Senate can only be admitted under suspension of the rules.

In view of the treatment accorded many of the belated bills proponents of increased censorship in Massachusetts will find it rather rough sledding in attempting to get their pet views before the General Court this year. Included in the legislative policy for 1916 is a short session, and as the makeup of both branches is practically the same as last year the members of the legislature will not look too kindly upon any censorship bills seeking admission at this late date. Many of the solons remember the trials to which they were subjected by the censorship bills presented last year and they do not relish the idea of going through a similar experience again this year.

More than a few petitions dealing with other phases of legislation have been denied admission to date and there is nothing in evidence to assume that the members of the legislature will break down their policy to satisfy the whims of a few adherents of greater censorship for films. However, there are enough bills in the fire to occupy the attention of those interested for some time to come.

The "Thirty-Minute Bill."

The bill introduced by Representative Charles "Sandy" Chapman of Cambridge, which provides that all moving picture theaters must furnish ten minutes of some other form of amusement or entertainent for every thirty minutes of films now has a sister bill. This bill is almost a duplicate of the thirty-minute bill, except that it provides that in cases where films are shown for a period of twenty-five minutes, the owner or manager of a moving picture theater must provide some other form of amusement for a period of at least eight minutes. This second bill was introduced by Senator James P. Timilty of Boston on the petition of Walter W. Regan.

It is known the vaudeville interests are behind the Chapman bill, but the reason for introducing the second bill has not been made quite clear to those on the outside. It is believed, however, that the same idea is responsible for both measures and that the second was introduced in the hope that one of them might slide by.

The claim has been set up by some moving picture men that these bills are unconstitutional and for that reason have no standing in the legislature. There is a great deal to be said in favor of the stand taken by these men, who are principally proprietors of small houses showing films exclusively. By dint of much hard work they have built up a following and have established properties that are valuable. Their houses are not big enough to support vaudeville and the passage of either of these bills would virtually compel them to put on acts between films or go out of business. This, they say, amounts to nothing more or less than confiscation of property and there are many who agree with them. And, again, the people have no say in the matter. Under the terms of these bills they will have to take what is given them and be satisfied. If it comes down to the last analysis, Attorney-General Henry C. Attwill will be requested to render an opinion as to the constitutionalty of either or both of these bills. Judging from the outlook, however, neither of them will be enacted into law.

An Anti-Advertising Slide Bill.

Rep. John L. Donovan of Boston, sometimes called the "Mayor of Chinatown," has filed a bill in the House that has created considerable gossip and the reason for which has not been made plain as yet. The bill was introduced on the petition of James H. Brennan of Charlestown and if passed will put an end to advertising by means of slides projected on the screens of moving picture houses. The bill reads as follows:

"Section 1. It shall be unlawful for any owner, proprietor, or manager of a moving picture theater in the City of Boston to allow the use of his screen for the display of any advertisement or announcement, with the exception of advertisements and announcements for religious or charitable institutions and events, or when it refers to his own theatrical affairs.

"Section 2. It shall be the duty of the licensing department of the Mayor's office of the City of Boston to enforce the provisions of this act.

"Section 3. Any violation of this statute shall be punishable by a fine of not less than fifty dollars ($50.00) nor more than two hundred dollars ($200.00), and for repetition of the offense the license of the offender shall be forfeited.

"Section 4. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed.

"Section 5. This act shall take effect within thirty (30) days after its passage."

While this bill is a special act applying only to moving picture theaters in the city of Boston, it will probably be amended to include all the moving picture theaters in Massachusetts, as the legislature, as a rule, is opposed to passing special legislation. The purpose of the amendment will be to secure consideration of the proposition at the hands of those who will have the matter in charge.

It is reasonable to believe that the advertising men of Massachusetts will strongly oppose this bill, as it treads on their toes none too gently. This bill would also bar a host of industrial films that are now being put out annually by large, enterprising concerns who look upon them as convincing advertising of their business and an asset that is not to be choked off without a protest.

The source of this bill may be found among some persons who complain of exhibitors "wasting time" showing advertisements at intermission in moving picture exhibitions or between films. In some quarters it is thought political reasons may have fostered the measure, but whatever the reason for its inception the petition will have difficulty in getting through the legislature.

Another "Race Prejudice" Bill.

The "Birth of a Nation" bill has made its appearance this year as an added section of the anti-African dodger bill. This bill was presented by Rep. James G. Wolff of Boston and is the annual petition of a certain class of colored persons to prohibit any form of the so-called African dodging in Massachusetts on the ground that it reflects upon the colored race. The section that deals with films reads as follows:

"Whoever for hire or in a public place engages in or manages any game, device or amusement tending to arouse ridicule, contempt, dislike or hatred toward any citizen, class, race or religion shall be punished by a fine of not more than five hundred dollars or by imprisonment of not more than three years."

The colored people who were back of the "Birth of a Nation" bill last year will probably storm the State House again this year in support of this new measure. The fear rankles in their breasts that Massachusetts may be invaded by another film similar to the "Birth of a Nation" and they are seeking some effective method of preventing its exhibition. Although the fight over this bill will be devoid of the spectacular features which surrounded the "Birth of a Nation" it will nevertheless be just as energetic on the part of the proponents and will demand a lot of attention from those opposed to it.

To Regulate Sale of Tickets.

If a bill presented by Rep. Edward N. Dahlborg of Brockton is passed it will materially reduce the profits of many of the moving picture exhibitors in this state, as it prohibits the sale of tickets after the house is full and does away with standing room altogether. The principal section of the bill is worded as follows:

"It shall be unlawful to sell a ticket of admission to any theater, concert hall, or other place of amusement where seats are provided, to sell to any person a ticket purporting to entitle the holder to a seat unless a seat is available at the time of the sale and at the time of the entrance of the purchaser to the theater."

Two bills have been entered by Rep. John W. Craig of Boston, one of which prohibits a moving picture exhibitor from raising the price of admission on special occasions and the other forbidding him to sell tickets anywhere except in his box office. The first bill if enacted into law would prevent moving picture exhibitors from boosting their prices on holidays or at times when they were showing special and costly attractions. The second bill is aimed more particularly at managers and owners of big theaters who turn their tickets over to agents or speculators than it is at moving picture houses. The penalties for violating the provisions of these two bills and the Dahlborg bill are left to the discretion of the court.

Other Regulations Proposed.

There are three bills before the legislature to take cinematographs out from under the rigid restrictions that govern the exhibition of moving pictures in Massachusetts. One of these was introduced by Rep. J. Weston Allen of Newton and accompanies a petition signed by George F. Moulton of Boston and Leon E. Dadmun of Somerville. The bill refers to the existing law and says that the provisions of the most exacting sections "shall not apply to any cinematograph or similar apparatus operated with only cellulose acetate films not more than one inch and one-fourth in width and requiring not more than five hundred watts of electric current to operate the arc; nor shall they apply to any cinematograph or similar apparatus operated by means of an incandescent bulb requiring not more than one hundred and ten volts of current, the mechanism of which apparatus is enclosed in a box or case of asbestos or other fire-resisting material, provided, however, that such machine shall not be kept or used in or upon any of the premises defined in section 1 of this act except under such regulations as the chief of the district police shall prescribe."

The motive for this bill is to allow the introduction of small moving picture outfits into homes, schools, churches, etc. A bill almost exactly like this one has been introduced into the Senate on the petition of Eugene P. Cornell of Wellesley.

The third cinematograph measure is the child of Rep. Edward I. Kelley of Boston and contains the following provisions:

"It shall be lawful for cinematographs to be used and moving picture apparatus to be operated in church halls or other buildings or any buildings under the control of religious corporations provided that the operator and the apparatus are duly licensed and the buildings and arrangements conform to such rules and regulations as may be imposed by the inspector of buildings or building commissioner or other like authority in the city or town concerned."

Rep. Thomas J. Giblin of East Boston is responsible for a bill that is friendly to the industry, inasmuch as it provides that moving picture houses outside of the Metropolitan fire hazard zone do not have to be of first-class construction if they live up to certain building regulations outlined in the bill.

Educating the Public

Northwestern Ohio League Will Conduct Lectures in Behalf of Better Pictures.

C. A. MEGOWN, special representative of the Northeastern Ohio Motion Picture Exhibitors' League, is completing arrangements for a series of free lectures on various phases of the moving picture business. The first of the series will be held in the near future at the Cameraphone theater on Euclid avenue, of which Mr. Megown is proprietor.

It is planned to display films such as "The Stoning" and "The Way Back," both Edison pictures, and the Essanay picture, "The Temper," and call the attention of the public to the fact that none of the persons outside of the picture profession who are interesting themselves in the "better film" movement have taken any notice of pictures of this high character. "There are many such films being shown," Mr. Megown says, "but the people who are seeking to uplift the motion picture business never take any notice of them."

Mr. Megown and B. J. Sawyer, president of the league, are also planning a series of lectures in various theaters on "Pictures and Censorship." They will arrange special programs of films passed by the Ohio Board of Censors but which exhibitors contend are not proper pictures. The lectures by Mr. Megown and Mr. Sawyer will explain why these films have come under the ban of the exhibitors though endorsed by the censors.

"It might be well to call the attention of the public to the fact that the pictures in question are on the shelf instead of in the theaters," Mr. Megown said.

The new Northeastern Ohio Motion Picture Exhibitors' League is developing into quite a healthy youngster. At its last meeting, January 18, the league accepted the applications of 69 new members. There are now 127 exhibitors on the active list.

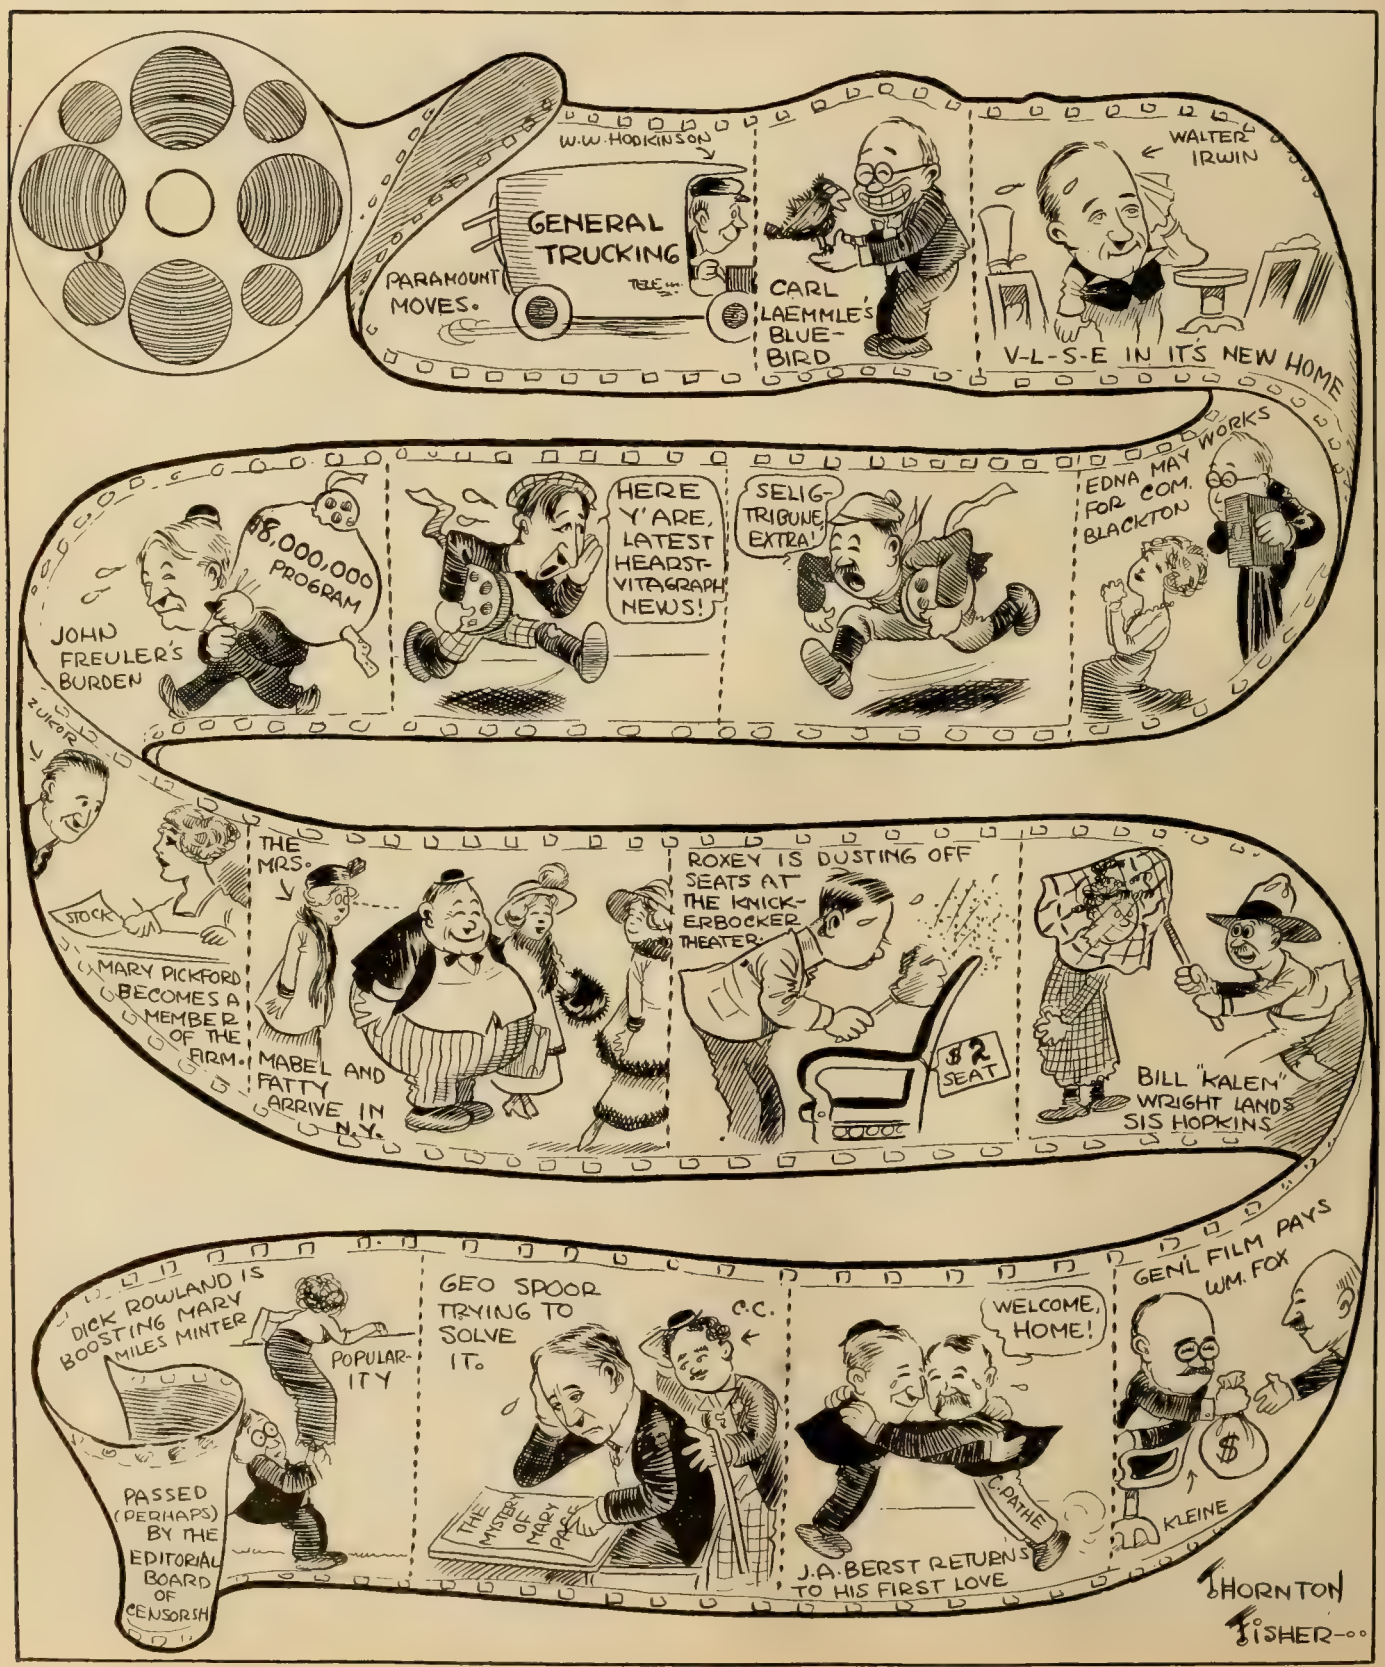
OKLAHOMA CONVENTION CALLED.

The convention of the Oklahoma Moving Picture Exhibitors' League will be held in Oklahoma City, Feb. 11 and 12. Indications point to an unusually large attendance, as some important matters are to come up for consideration.

BALL PROCEEDS TO ACTORS' FUND.

The Pittsburgh Screen Club, composed of moving picture men, has decided to give ten per cent. of the profits of its forthcoming ball, next month, to the Actors' Fund of America.

MOVING PICTURE WORLD NEWS REEL for January



Western Producers to Co-operate

Jesse Lasky, Just Back from Coast, Outlines Some of the Things the Manufacturers Aim to Accomplish.

AFTER an absence from New York of several months, Jesse Lasky, president of the feature producing company bearing his name, has returned to New York for a five weeks' stay. Mr. Lasky, while insisting that he likes California, admitted that the sharp, clear weather he found on his arrival in his former home was much to his liking. In the fine new offices of his company, which he had not before seen, Mr. Lasky talked the other day of general conditions on the Pacific coast, of the agitation regarding censorship and other things, and of the new organization formed by the producers for the combined solving of the problems confronting all manufacturers. He announced, too, that "The Cheat" will be dramatized.

Jesse L. Lasky.

One of the more important subjects discussed by Mr. Lasky was the formation of the Motion Picture Producers' Association. The initial action looking to the organization of the manufacturers was inspired by the fact that for a long time there was an absence of co-operation from the city. Los Angeles and its newspapers permitted attacks on the industry without attempting to stop them. Every studio on the coast is represented in the association. Permanent headquarters will be established, and the offices will be in charge of a secretary, who will have had no previous connection with the business. To make the association more comprehensive in its scope, eastern manufacturers without Los Angeles affiliations will be invited to become associate members.

One of the duties of the secretary will be adjustment of differences that may arise between the members. Another will be the handling of various matters that may arise from time to time in which both the community and the manufacturers may be concerned. A third and by no means not a minor subject that will receive close consideration will be the manner in which employees carry out their agreements.

The new association in the ends it will seek to attain will be an elaboration of the Motion Picture Board of Trade of America. In other words, where the one is concerned more with business affairs, the Los Angeles association will confine itself to the production or studio side.

"The business has grown so rapidly that it was only after the industry had reached present proportions the producers began to realize they must organize to protect themselves," said Mr. Lasky. "It is believed that steps may be taken that will tend to keep salaries at a more normal basis. We believe the establishment of equitable conditions will be for the good of the player as well as of the manufacturer.

"Of course you have heard of the recent agitation in Los Angeles. One result of it was that delegations from many cities have visited us. Chambers of commerce and boards of trade have been very anxious to get us to go to their respective communities, offering us land and in some cases agreeing to build studios on our specifications."

Mr. Lasky spoke of the prospects of the Los Angeles motion picture auxiliary committee to raise money for the Actors' Fund, of which he is the local chairman. He said the committee hoped to raise close to $100,000. He emphasized the growing recognition of the fact that "the play's the thing."

"The Cheat," the recent production featuring Fanny Ward, is to be dramatized. In all probability Miss Ward will play the leading role; very likely some of the players who supported her will be seen in the cast. Mr. Lasky said that before his return to the coast he will close a deal for the dramatization. He has an option on the services of two prominent dramatists. Mr. Lasky is under the impression that this is the first instance where a successful screen story has been used as the basis for a stage production, and it would seem his impression is founded in fact.

Mr. Lasky announced that James Young, who has made many pictures for the Vitagraph and Peerless companies, was to leave for the Lasky studios on Wednesday, January 26, accompanied by his assistant and cameraman. Allusion was made to the recent acquisitions by the Lasky scenario department in George Bronson Howard and Paul Dickey. Mr. Lasky said a staff of playwrights in the east were under contract to write for his company, among these being Willard Mack.

"I don't believe today the producers in Los Angeles have any complaint to make against the city," said Mr. Lasky in conclusion. "The attitude of the authorities and the citizens appears to be entirely fair. At the time of the recent misunderstanding it did seem as if every day saw the formation of a committee or organization to co-operate with the picture men. The result has been that if any manufacturer had in mind the contingency of moving to some more congenial community he has put away the thought. As an illustration of what the coming to another city of a picture manufacturer might mean we may take the case of our company. A census was made of the employees and their families and it was learned that if we changed our base of operations it would involve the transfer of 1,250 persons. Our expenditure each year is in excess of a million dollars. So it is easy to understand why any community would be willing to give land and build a studio."

Kuhn Joins Mahin Agency

PAUL R. KUHN, for the past five years associated with the Nichols-Finn Advertising Company, has severed his connection with that organization to join the Mahin Advertising Company, Monroe Building, Chicago. Mr. Kuhn is well known in film circles, having assisted in preparing the advertising campaigns for "The Million Dollar Mystery," "The Diamond from the Sky," "The Girl and the Game," the Chicago Tribune's Belgian War Pictures and the widely advertised film "The German Side of the War."

Paul R. Kuhn.

Recently Mr. Kuhn has given much of his attention to the interests of the Mutual Film Corporation in promoting "The Eight Million Dollar Mutual Program" and "Mutual Masterpictures, De Luxe Edition."

Ever since the motion picture industry began to break into the advertising limelight, Mr. Kuhn has been identified with its advertising activities. He has been engaged upon the advertising efforts of such organizations as the Mutual Film Corporation, the American Film Company, the Indian Film Company, the Syndicate Film Corporation, the North American Film Corporation and the States Film Corporation.

Few advertising men in America have made such a deep study of the film industry as has Mr. Kuhn. In his new association Mr. Kuhn will handle all the advertising for George Kleine's new motion picture novel by Rupert Hughes in which Billie Burke and Henry Kolker will be featured.

BALSHOFER TAKES COMPANY SOUTH.

Another Metro company headed by Fred J. Balshofer, director in chief, has gone to Jacksonville, Fla., where exteriors will be made for a big production, as yet unnamed. There were fifteen persons in all in the party, including Marguerite Snow, the charming and popular Metro star; Zella Call, formerly leading woman with Al Jolson, in "Dancing Around"; John Goldsworthy, leading man in several Metro productions, and Howard Truesdell, who will assist Mr. Balshofer in the direction of the new photoplay, and also play a leading role. The Balshofer feature will be produced by the Quality Pictures Corporation for the Metro program.

Chicago News Letter

By JAS. S. McQUADE.

George Kleine Interviewed on the "Billie Burke" Serial.

DURING George Kleine's brief stay in the city last week I learned that work had been actively in progress on the "Billie Burke" serial for two weeks past, at the Kleine studios in New York, and that the first release will be made probably in April. As the name of the serial has not yet been decided upon, the designation given above is used for the time being.

I had the privilege of seeing a few proofs of the earliest scenes in the first episode, and was firmly impressed that Billie Burke will prove one of the most magnetic and beautiful of all film stars. To me she appeared to still greater advantage before the camera than on the stage, and that is saying a great deal.

Mr. Kleine informed me that the present plan is to make the serial in twenty episodes, of two reels each, and, judging from the scenes viewed, I consider that the story by Rupert Hughes in films opens up with fine promise.

"Henry Kolker, as the leading man, is doing the best work of his career," said Mr. Kleine. "No expense has been spared in selecting the very finest cast, with a particular eye to type and suitability. The film story will be very high class and will be marked by an atmosphere of refinement, without depriving it of any of its inherent virility or power.

"In some respects the film will establish a precedent, with respect to the high salaries of the entire cast. Even the subordinate parts are being taken by artists of the highest rank.

"In the matter of sets we are aiming at a refinement and perfection that will appeal to good taste. The cheap melodramatic thrills are being carefully avoided, also everything that might be considered tawdry.

"In the matter of costumes the most artistic care is being taken. A contract has been made with Lady Duff Gordon covering all the gowns that will be worn by Miss Burke throughout the twenty episodes. These gowns will be specially designed by Lady Duff Gordon herself, while keeping particularly in mind the role and the personality of the star.

"As I have before stated, the title has not yet been decided upon, or at least it is not yet ready for publication.

"I do not believe in mentioning the cost of the production, on account of the exaggerated statements usually made in such cases. It can be readily inferred, however, from the personnel of the cast and the costly elaboration of other factors in the production, and also taking into consideration the period of time consumed in the making, that the final figures will exceed the cost of any other films, of any magnitude, ever made, and I am conservative in making this statement."

Mme. Beriza, Prominent Grand Opera Star, Signed by Selig.

Marguerite Beriza, the celebrated soprano now with the Chicago Grand Opera Company, signed a contract last week to become a Selig moving picture star. This great artiste, whose salary in grand opera has been well up in the thousands yearly, has never appeared before a moving picture camera, but, a lover of art in every form, she believes that she has in moving pictures a great artistic opportunity.

Mme. Beriza in her early career carried off first prize in the Paris Conservatoir as pianist and vocalist, and won enviable popularity at the Paris Opera Comique. Later, with her former husband, Lucien Muratorex, numerous artistic operatic successes were achieved.

The popular song bird has had a brilliant career in this country. She sang in the Boston Opera Company for three years, and was a notable member of the Metropolitan Opera Company in New York City. Her well-known successes in "Faust," "Tales of Hoffman," "La Tosca," "Louise," etc., are too well remembered to require discussion here.

The advent of this talented international operatic artiste in the making of moving pictures will mark a most unusual departure. In the height of her successful career in grand opera, Mme. Beriza has taken the decisive step to become a permanent star in moving pictures. Her fine talent as an actress contributed largely to her high standing as an operatic soprano, and will doubtless win for her renown and popularity on the moving picture screen.

Mme. Beriza will join the acting forces of the Selig Polyscope Company early in February, and in all likelihood will be engaged both at the Los Angeles and Chicago studios of that company.

On the Division of Moving Picture Rights Between Theatrical Managers and Playwrights.

The Authors' League of America, with a membership that includes most of the best-known writers in the country, recently drafted a form of contract for use between playwrights and producing theatrical managers.

Some of the principal clauses of the contract touch on percentage royalty, on the prohibition of the theatrical manager from making any change in a play without first securing the written consent of the author, while one of them, clause 7, treats of the division of the moving picture rights between the manager and the author. The clause makes them equal partners in the disposition of the screen rights, on which decision the official bulletin of the Authors' League makes the following comment:

> Under present conditions the motion picture rights to a play are frequently more valuable than the performing rights. For it is a strange fact that better terms can be arranged for the motion picture rights to a play which has failed in production and which, at best, contains not half material for five reels of motion pictures than for motion picture rights to a book so replete with picturesque and dramatic action that the strain upon the already tottering imagination of the scenario-wright and the photoplay director is reduced to a minimum. Why the manager should get any interest whatever in the motion picture rights is a mystery. Three years ago he didn't know they existed. Today he insists that he can't afford to produce a play without the safeguard against loss provided by his fifty per cent. interest in the motion picture rights. He not only insists, he gets that interest or refuses to produce the play.

It might be said with equal point that the author of the play was equally ignorant of moving picture rights three or more years ago. When the play was completed, the author had invested so much of time and brain effort in it, and he looked solely to its production on the stage for payment. The theatrical manager who decided on producing it also looked to its stage production to reimburse him for the amount laid out on the producing company and other expenses, besides a profit on his investment. In case of failure the manager was by far the greater loser, because he had taken greater chances.

As he takes the same chances now—greater, perhaps—and since the author is decidedly not taking any more, can the manager be consistently blamed for insisting upon his share of the moving picture rights to safeguard him against failure?

The author gets a certain publicity that is valuable even when his play may prove a failure; because in certain elements the play may have been strong, while perhaps in construction or otherwise it was weak and the dramatic critics may have written with hope that the author would do better next time and turn out a success.

The manager who lost his money on the author's failure may not have the opportunity to get it back on the author's successful play, and so we cannot blame him if he insists, in each case, on equal participation in moving picture rights. He is entitled to his pound of flesh as much as is the author, if not more so.

Chicago Film Brevities.

George Kleine arrived in the city Saturday morning, January 15, and returned to New York Tuesday, January 18. Speaking of the one-reel comedies featuring Harry Watson, of Bickel & Watson, Mr. Kleine said: "We are filling a few preliminary dates in large houses like the Strand in New York and the Ziegfeld in Chicago. My first opinion of these farce comedies, that they are the most original farce comedies yet offered, has been confirmed by the public. I confess that my object has been to demonstrate to exhibitors generally—because of the usual suspicions—that we have here a series of one-reel farce comedies of tremendous drawing power. These few dates in the large houses have been exclusive, and the films, which comprise a series of ten, will be released through my branch offices, exclusively, after they have been given the preliminary demonstration. We are making another series of one-reel farce comedies that will feature George Bickel, Mr. Watson's partner, which will be released at a later date, although both partners appear in the first set of ten, notably in a film reproduction of their famous stage comedy prize fight. I may state that in the preliminary showings of the present series of ten, each farce comedy is run for one week." Kitty Kelly, photodramatic critic of the Chicago Tribune, writes of Harry Watson's comedy as follows: "At last an original comedian has developed a case of genuine funniness which doesn't show a trace of Chaplinitis. He is Harry Watson, of Kleine, and as a dilapidated tramp he is the stimulator of spontaneous laughter. Though his relationship with soap may be infrequent, his fun is clean."

* * *

Harper & Brothers, publishers, have arranged for a special photoplay edition of Rex Beach's "The Ne'er-Do-Well," which was recently filmed by the Selig Polyscope Company. The book is embellished with scenes from the Selig play.

* * *

Phil H. Solomon, formerly connected with the Chicago office of the Metro Pictures Corporation, is now city representative of the Bluebird Photoplays, Inc., with headquarters at 109 North Dearborn street, this city.

* * *

Samuel B. Yonan, son of B. Yonan, who is the only moving picture exhibitor in Urumia, Persia, called at the World office last week. Mr. Yonan, Sr., is owner of the Shainshah theater in Urumia, which seats 250 people. An admission of 25 cents is charged for a program of three reels of Pathe Freres product. This program is changed once a week. There are only two or three moving picture theaters throughout Persia, Mr. Yonan, Jr., states. Samuel B. Yonan left Urumia in 1910 and came to America to engage in the moving picture business here. Mr. Yonan was formerly connected with Pathe Freres in Joinville (near Paris), France, in the capacity of darkroom man. While here he has been connected, in the same capacity, with several firms. Altogether Mr. Yonan has had five years' experience in photography, and is now fitting himself to be a cameraman. It is his intention to return to Persia after the war and engage in the producing business there.

* * *

The Board of Trade of Vicksburg, Miss., is planning to co-operate with the Selig Polyscope Company in the filming of Winston Churchill's great novel, "The Crisis." According to Vicksburg newspapers, a letter was recently received from Mr. Selig, stating that a representative of the Selig Company would shortly visit Vicksburg to inspect the locations called for in Churchill's work. It was agreed by the Vicksburg Board of Trade that should Mr. Selig respond to a personal invitation to visit Vicksburg again that he will be so favorably impressed with the many charms of the scenic environment of that city and surrounding delta that he might be persuaded in time to open a branch studio in the city. The Vicksburg Board of Trade has taken official action to assist Mr. Selig in every way possible to assure the success of the great drama of ante-bellum days. "The Crisis" exterior scenes, according to present plans, will be taken in St. Louis, Nashville and Vicksburg, and several thousand people and elaborate equipment will be required to make the spectacular scenes complete.

* * *

The nuns of the Ursuline Convent, on State street, New Orleans, La., recently saw moving pictures for the first time, when M. L. Alexander, president of the Conservation Commission of Louisiana, delivered an illustrated address on the natural resources of the state, for the benefit of the pupils of that institution and their instructors. By the aid of colored lantern slides the spectators were taken on a picture tour of the state—to the sulphur mines, the salt mines, the forests, and through the oil and gas fields. After the showing of the slides, three reels of moving pictures taken by Stanley Clisby Arthur, the commission's ornithologist, were projected on the screen by the Portoscope, a portable moving picture machine that can be set up and used to exhibit pictures anywhere.

* * *

For the week beginning Monday, January 24, the Studebaker will inaugurate the policy of two programs a week. The Monday program, which will run until Wednesday night, inclusive, will be "D'Artagnan," featuring Orrin Johnson, and "Perils of the Park," Keystone, in which Alice Davenport and Harry Gribbon take the principal roles. On Thursday and for the balance of the week the Kay-Bee feature, "Acquitted," with Wilfred Lucas, and "A Movie Star" by Keystone, featuring Mack Swain, will be the screen offerings.

* * *

A recent cablegram from London states that official moving pictures of actual fighting operations of the British army in France and Flanders are being taken under the direction of the war department, and that they will soon be exhibited before the British public so as to inform them what the army is doing. The receipts from the sale and rent of these films will be devoted to the aid of disabled soldiers and their dependents.

* * *

Walter W. Evans, special traveling representative of the Precision Machine Company (Simplex), spent last week in the city looking after the trade. He left for Detroit and Saginaw, Mich., after which Milwaukee and Minneapolis will be visited. Mr. Evans is covering all the territory in the middle west in the interests of his company, from Pittsburgh in the east as far west as Denver, and from St. Louis as far north as Minneapolis. Mr. Evans reported growing activity in his line in the territory assigned him.

* * *

A fire in the basement of the building of the Panorama theater, 5110 Prairie avenue, lasted two hours on Sunday, January 16. Harry Friedman, manager, telephoned the fire department and ordered the lights in the theater turned on. He then announced that there was a fire nearby and that it was advisable for his patrons to leave for a few moments until the danger, if any, was ascertained. Only a few of the audience paid any heed, and it was not until he ordered the side fire exits opened and the pictures stopped that the patrons filed out. The theater itself was not damaged. A strange feature of the occurrence was the fact that most of the people who went out into the extreme cold night soon returned and the show was continued.

* * *

The first regular monthly meeting and banquet of the Reel Fellows' Club for the new year was held Wednesday evening, January 19, in the clubrooms, 17 North Wabash avenue. Plans for the year entered upon were discussed informally, and initial arrangements were made for the opening of a campaign that will increase the membership to 500.

* * *

The second annual dance of Local 157, Moving Picture Operators of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers of Chicago, was held at Illinois Hall, 1544 Ogden avenue, this city, Wednesday evening, January 19. A. W. Hortsch, president of the local, reported that the affair was "a grand success." The patrons at the dance were treated to a novel innovation, which introduced the Auto-Arc, and the committee on arrangements was highly complimented upon the beautiful rainbow effects of this new invention. About 600 couples attended the dance.

* * *

The Selig-Tribune has contributed its share to the opposition given the Hughes-Smith bill, now before the House Education Committee at Washington, D. C., which favors the federal censorship of moving pictures. In No. 6 of the Selig-Tribune, moving picture producers are shown appearing before the House committee to demand their constitutional rights. The Selig-Tribune poster, No. 6, also carries arguments made by producers against the attempt to create a federal board of censors.

BOOKING "SIS HOPKINS" ALREADY.

General Film exchanges report an unusual fact in connection with the Sis Hopkins comedies being produced by Kalem. Though the first announcement of the comedies was made only a few weeks ago and none are ready for release, a number of exhibitors have already made advance requisitions for bookings and many have written Kalem for co-operation in preparing their publicity for the new subjects. This advance ordering is more surprising when it is considered that the Kalem productions will mark Rose Melville's debut on the screen. The National Amusement Company, of Akron, Ohio, probably has the honor of making the first booking of a Sis Hopkins comedy, as shown by this letter received from the president, L. A. Schiappacasse: "Gentlemen: Have made arrangements to have the 'Sis Hopkins Comedies' placed on our program as soon as they are released. Meanwhile would like to have any special advertising matter you will have out on these comedies, cuts for newspapers, etc. L. A. Schiappacasse."

News of Los Angeles and Vicinity

By G. P. VON HARLEMAN and CLARKE IRVINE

GRIFFITH TALKS AT BUSINESS MEN'S DINNER.

At Annual Dinner Attended by Many Picture Men Producer Discusses Relation of Industry to Community.

AT THE annual dinner and election of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association of Los Angeles there were present many prominent moving picture men who told of the good being done by the industry in this city. One of the most interesting speeches was made by D. W. Griffith. His subject was "The Film Industry in Its Relation to the Commercial Community," which served to express in a significant manner the viewpoint of the association upon one big and active issue. Mr. Griffith set forth in terms of clarity and power what the motion picture industry stands for. He agreed with the estimate of President W. E. Bush of the association that $20,000,000 is spent annually in Los Angeles by studios and employees. On another side of the subject he said:

"You need not be ashamed of any part of the business. There are sinners in it, but you will not find them any more numerous proportionately than in any other profession, and I do not even except the law-making and preaching professions, because I have statistics to prove my statement. People all over the world—in India, China, Australia, Germany, Russia, everywhere—are having Los Angeles and her incomparable surroundings shown and translated to them by the moving picture. And into this art there is being put beauty, love and, I believe, a great deal of understanding."

"Realizing the enormous importance of the film industry," said President Bush, "which has become one of the greatest factors in our industrial life, the board of directors as early as last February adopted a strong resolution in support and defense of that industry, and our attention and our efforts have been constantly directed along these channels."

ACTIVITY AT KALEM STUDIO.

The Whole "Ham" Family Working in Kalem Comedy—Ethel Teare to Have Her Own Company.

They are putting on comedies these days at the Hollywood studios of the Kalem Company. A story of Kentucky feud days, written by Lloyd Hamilton and Bud Duncan, has just been completed. In this farce the whole "Ham" family takes part. There are Ham's father, sisters, brothers and a small "Hamlet." Porter Strong plays the father and Gordon Griffith, who recently played "Ben Blair as a Child," in the Morosco production of that name, has the part of Little Ham.

Ethel Teare, who for the past year has been leading woman for the Ham Comedies, is now to have her own company under the direction of William Beaudine at the Hollywood studios. Victor Rottman will play the opposite lead.

